Louisville, Ky.—The first light upon the mysterious disappearance of Alma Katherine Kellner, the eight-year-old daughter of Frederick Kellner, brewer of this city, was furnished when Mrs. Kellner declared that a meeting had been arranged between herself and envoys of the kidnapers.

The child was kidnaped on the street Wednesday morning by two persons, one believed to be a man, although both wore woman's clothing, and was taken away in a wagon.

Owing to the prominence of the Kellner family the kidnaping stirred the city to its depths. Police in every city in the middle west were notified and are searching for the child and her kidnapers.

BILL AIMED AT STRIKES

Congressman Steenerson Introduces a Drastic Measure to Prevent "Threatened Public Mischiefs."

Washington.—A drastic proposition to meet the strike of the switchmen on the railroad lines entering St. Paul is made in a bill, amending the Erdman act, which was introduced to-day by Representative Steenerson of Minnesota, providing for receiverships of the roads involved, if necessary.

His bill proposes that the attorney general of the United States in controversies between railroads and their employes may, if necessary, file a bill in equity to prevent any threatened public mischiefs in any United States court within the circuits where the railroads may do business, such bill to make the railroads and employes defendants, together with all known corporations, organizations or individuals aiding or abetting.

Brick Rates Are Too High.

Washington.—After an investigation extending over a year the interstate commerce commission announced that the rates charged by the railroads for the transportation of fire brick, building brick and paving brick from Central Traffic association territory to the Atlantic board were unreasonable and should be reduced.

General Sentenced to Death.

Panama.—Gen. Vasquez has been court-martialed and sentenced to death by Estrada's insurgent forces at Rama. New advices corroborate the report of a sweeping victory for the revolutionists.

Pacific Fleet Is Divided.

Manila.—The United States Pacific fleet sailed from here Friday. The Tennessee and Washington go to Shanghai, the Pennsylvania and West Virginia to Hong Kong, the Maryland and Colorado to Kobe, Japan, and the California and South Dakota to Yokohama.

Cousin of De Armond Killed.

San Bernandino, Cal.—L. A. De Armond, a cousin of the late Congressman De Armond of Missouri, was killed by an electric shock Thursday.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY.

How Relief from Distressing Kidney Trouble Was Found.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wolf, 388 W. Morgan St., Tipton, Mo., says: "Inflammation of the bladder reached its climax last spring and I suffered terribly. My back ached and pained so I could hardly get around and the secretions were scanty, frequent of passage and painful. I was tired all the time and very nervous. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking a few boxes was cured and have been well ever since."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Taking the Tips.

"Why did Dollarby sell his hotel?"

"He wasn't making money fast enough."

"What is he doing now?"

"He's luxuriating in the position of head waiter."

SAVE THIS RECIPE FOR COLDS

"Mix half pint of good whiskey with two ounces of glycerine and add one-half ounce Concentrated pine compound. The bottle is to be well shaken each time and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours." Any druggist has these ingredients or he will get them from his wholesale house. The Concentrated pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in an air-tight case, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." This is one of the best and quickest remedies known to science.

Accounted For.

Landlady—This is a bronze turkey.

Starboard—Ah, I see; survivor from the bronze age.

Important to Mothors.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

WANTED IT FOR HAIR WASH

No Trouble at All for Retired Singer to Account for the Carbolic Acid.

"I was on my way home one night," said the retired baritone, according to Illustrated Bits, "and the hour was late. As I turned a corner at a lonely spot a wild-eyed man stepped out in front of me. In his right hand he carried a pistol and in his left a gleaming knife. With a low, mocking laugh he thrust his burly form athwart my path, and said:

"'At last I have you in my power. I have sworn to kill the first man I met after 3 a. m. You are he—also it. Would you rather be shot or stabbed?'

"Immediately I saw I had to do with a madman. Quick thought was necessary. Right there and then my long training stood me well in hand. Taking a pint bottle of carbolic acid from my overcoat pocket, I remarked, jovially:

"'Old scout, I greet thee as a friend. Kill me if thou wilt, but first let us drink success to the crime.'

"It made a hit with the bug. He grabbed the bottle and took a swallow like a stage hand. As he fell writhing on the sidewalk I stepped over his body and continued on my way."

"How did you happen to have a bottle of carbolic acid with you?" asked the incredulous press agent.

"I was taking it home to put on my hair," answered the retired baritone.

Precocious.

The little girl was acting naughtily before company. Her mother warned her sharply.

"If you do that again, I'll smack you," she said.

"No you won't," replied the pert daughter. "I'll sit down on myself and then you can't."

HABIT'S CHAIN

Certain Habits Unconsciously Formed and Hard to Break.

An ingenious philosopher estimates that the amount of will power necessary to break a life-long habit would, if it could be transformed, lift a weight of many tons.

It sometimes requires a higher degree of heroism to break the chains of a pernicious habit than to lead a forlorn hope in a bloody battle. A lady writes from an Indiana town:

"From my earliest childhood I was a lover of coffee. Before I was out of my teens I was a miserable dyspeptic, suffering terribly at times with my stomach.

"I was convinced that it was coffee that was causing the trouble and yet I could not deny myself a cup for breakfast. At the age of 36 I was in very poor health, indeed. My sister told me I was in danger of becoming a coffee drunkard.

"But I never could give up drinking coffee for breakfast, although it kept me constantly ill, until I tried Postum. I learned to make it properly according to directions, and now we can hardly do without Postum for breakfast, and care nothing for coffee.

"I am no longer troubled with dyspepsia, do not have spells of suffering with my stomach that used to trouble me so when I drank coffee."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

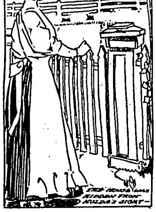
HULDAH'S REVOLUTION

By PHOEBE WILLEY BENSEL

(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

Huldah Alden stood in the doorway of the substantial, comfortable-looking farm house, watching her brother and his family drive through the big gate and down the bright, sunlit road.

Her heart was filled with rebellion as she drank in the fragrance of the outdoor life around her. She was a gentle soul and all her life had yielded her own will to someone else. Years before, when Huldah was a young, fair-faced girl, a dream of love had come to her, wherein she had seen herself the mistress of William Jewett's home and the mother of a flock of laughing, bright-eyed children. But her mother had frowned upon the youthful lovers, and after that Huldah's life had been graver and duller than ever. The years glided swiftly by, and Huldah Alden passed quickly from her rosy and white girlhood into a spiritless and dull old maidenhood. All the brightness and beauty had been crushed from her life by the indomitable will of her mother, and a patient endurance had taken its place. But always the thought had been with her that some time there would be a change, when she would be free to live her own life in her own way. She had been a dutiful daughter, but she knew that life held something sweeter and better than anything she had known, and she had always dreamed of some time surrounding herself with the peace and happiness, the beauty and brightness that had always been denied her. But when old Mrs. Alden had died, and Huldah was beginning to see stray gleams of sunshine lighting the grayness of her life, her brother, who possessed many of the characteristics of his mother, had closed the old house and taken his sister home with him. He and his wife had talked the matter over and, decided that "Huldy warn't fit to live alone no more'nt a ten-year-old girl," and so John Alden had taken her home to live with him and refused to let her go back and live alone, as she had begged to do.



THE HOUSE WAS HIDDEN FROM HULDAH'S SIGHT—

Huldah patted the head of the big black dog that lay dozing in the warm sunshine on the door-step. Maje was old and rheumatic and almost past his days of usefulness, but his mistress had brought him with her when she came to her brother's house, and many times since, old Maje had journeyed back across the fields and pastures to his old home. She watched her brother as he drove along the moist country road until a sudden turn, in a heavy growth of trees, hid him from her view. Then her glance wandered slowly across the wide fields and sunny pastures to the distant hill on whose green slope stood the little red house that her mother had left her. The house was hidden from Huldah's sight by a grove of birch whose leaves were beginning to show, here and there, a glint of yellow in their green shadows. And as she looked, the old house seemed to be holding out invisible, but loving arms to her, and she could hear faint, but insistent voices calling her back to its familiar shelter. And as she stood there, looking and listening, there flashed into her faded blue eyes a childish gleam of triumph, at the thought of John Alden's wrath when he discovered what she had done.

"Come, Maje," she called, as she turned to go in, "We'll go back home to-day, an' what's more, we'll stay there, too. I guess we're old enough to know what we want. I ruther think we can take care of ourselves without nobody's halpin' us. Poor old fellow! you'll be jest as thankful to git back home as I'll be."

Huldah went into the buttery and proceeded to fill a basket with a substantial luncheon of cold beans and brown bread and doughnuts for herself and Maje, while the old dog watched each movement with an eager and interested air. Then carefully clearing the kitchen stove so that no sparks could fly out and set fire to anything, she shut and locked the door, and then, placing the key in its accustomed hiding place, under a flat stone by the door, the two travelers took their way across the fields to their old home.

As Huldah stooped to get between the rails of the first fence, she saw a woman coming through the field toward her. "Good land!" she exclaimed, "I believe that's Mary Ann Record—yes, 'tis. I wonder where she's goin'! Where you bound to, Mary Ann?" she called as the other woman came nearer.

"My sakes! Is that you, Huldy Alden?" was the answer. "I should like to know where you've started fur? I'm out after a little more pennyroyal; you know it's good 'till the first frost comes—an' I was afraid I didn't hev 'nough to last; so many set sech store by it that I allers like to hev plenty on hand. But where be you an' old Maje goin'?"

"I'll tell you, Mary Ann Record, jest where we're goin'! We're goin' back home where we belong. I'm sick an' tired of allers doin' what somebody else tells me, an' now I'm goin' to be my own mistress an' live in my own house an' see how 'twill seem to do things es other folks do."

"Well, there, Huldy," said her companion, "I think you're doin' jest right. You never hev had a chance to take any comfurt, an' I hope you'll never go back to John Alden's to live."

Together the two old friends walked slowly across the long pasture. The pungent odor of tansy, checkerberry and sweet fern arose from the bruised herbage under their feet.

Presently they reached the boundary of the field where Mrs. Record's quest ended, and Huldah paused for a few parting words.

"Now, Huldy," said her companion impressively, "you jest stick to it an' don't you never go back to John's, no matter what he says. Massy sakes! You dunno how much comfurt you'll take when you git back home an' can do jest as you please."

"No, I'm free now," was Huldah's answer, "an' I'm goin' to live my life in my own way after this. All my life long my soul's be'n in bondage, but now it's goin' to be different. I tell you, Mary Ann, all summer I've been tryin' to get spunk 'nough to take this step. I never reely thought I'd dare to, but now I hev, an' John an' Clarindy can never make me go back. Thank the Lord I've got means 'nough to last me, an' I can be free an' independent. I don't believe I ever see quite so nice a mornin' es this is, did you, Mary Ann? Seems to me everythin' looks brighter an' prittier than it ever did before. Why can't you come over an' spend the day with me next week? I'll be settled by that time. I've laid out to hev lots of comp'ny this winter an' go visitin' too. Can't you come over next Wednesday?"

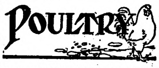
"Why yes, I dunno but I can," was the answer, "an' I'm goin' to bring over a couple of kittens. They'll be a sight o' comp'ny fur you, an' you uster to be monstrous fond o' cats when you was a girl."

"My! that will be nice," and a gratified smile spread over Huldah Alden's faded face. "I never had a cat, an' I uster want one above all things; now don't forgit to come, an' bring two of 'em."

And she and old Maje climbed the stone wall together and walked slowly up the hill on the other side. At last they came in sight of their goal. Then Maje gave an ecstatic yelp and bounded up the hill as fast as his tired old legs would carry him. Huldah followed more slowly, her hungry eyes drinking in every detail of the weather-beaten old house and its surroundings. As she opened the front gate, Huldah Alden's heart contracted with a sudden fear, for there, on the doorstep, in the shadow of the tall lilac, where she and William Jewett had said good-bye to their youthful hopes, was the figure of a man, his head bowed upon his hands in a dejected, discouraged attitude. Just then the old dog came around the corner of the house and with a joyous bark flung himself upon the motionless figure. As the man raised his head and patted old Maje, Huldah gasped weakly to herself: "My soul an' body! it's William Jewett! what shall I do? The Lord must hev sent him here to meet me when I came home," and her trembling limbs refused to carry her any farther. She still stood there in the gateway, holding on to the gate for support, as the man, turning his glance in that direction, saw the pale-faced trembling woman, watching him with a half-frightened look in her faded blue eyes. In that one glance he seemed to see and understand why she was there, and in another moment he was at her side. "Thank God, Huldy!" he began, "you hev come back—I hev waited an' watched so long fur you—I thought you'd never—" and a hoarse sob checked his utterance as he gathered her into his arms, while his whole frame shook with the emotion he was vainly trying to subdue. "There, there Huldy," as the tears rolled down her cheeks. "You poor little thing! don't you take on so; I'll look out fur you now."

"Oh, William, I jest knew the good Lord had sent you when I see you there in the same spot where we'd parted so many years ago. But I'm an old worn-out old woman now with gray hair, an' you're young an' spry's you was years ago, while I'm faded an' homely," and poor Huldah's face grew sad at the thought of her vanished youth.

"It's no sech thing," stoutly maintained her old lover. "You air jest as sweet an' pritty to me as ever you was, an' to-morrer we'll pay a nice little visit to old Parson Dexter an' we'll learn John Alden a lesson."



FATTEN POULTRY FOR MARKET

To Do It Profitably Must Be Done Quickly—Suitable Food Is Necessary Requisite.

(By ISAAC MOTES.)

To fatten poultry quickly and profitably requires good judgment and proper management in the care of the fowls and proper feeding. The best foods are bits of fat meat, mashes of meal or fine grits made from yellow corn, with skim-milk; boiled potatoes, rice and oatmeal and milk. If anything, oatmeal is preferable because of its greater heating qualities and its effect on color or fat.

The main point to keep in view is to fatten your fowls in the shortest time possible. To do this they should be kept in a coop or pen, where they cannot take much exercise, for by exercise they work off flesh and keep down fat. A good way is to confine them in small, light coops made of lath or wire netting. These may sit out in the back yard or barn yard, on well-drained ground. In case of rain or damp weather cover them with oilcloth. Keep the pen dark during the daytime, except when the fowls are eating, by throwing a thick covering over the coops, such as old carpets, blankets or quilts. This will prevent the fowls from stirring about between meals. In the morning give them boiled potatoes, mashed while hot and thickened with cornmeal, with a little salt and pepper for seasoning.

They should be fed three times a day, and their bill of fare varied as much as possible, but with a large proportion of starchy, heat and fat producing articles. Very little green stuff should be given them, though pumpkin or squash may take the place of boiled potato occasionally.

Fresh bedding should be supplied frequently, and the coop and spot it occupies kept clean. The coop should rest on cinders, or on gravelly or sandy soil, with a bedding of hay or straw. The coop being light, it will be easy to move it to a new place occasionally by a man getting at each end and lifting it an inch or so off the ground, gently pushing the chickens along inside the coop as it is moved, having prepared the bed of hay on the new place beforehand.

Unless a hen is a very valuable breeding fowl it does not pay to keep her after she is two years old. They should be marketed just before their second molting.

Whether or not you buy your feed during the winter, it hardly pays to feed chickens hatched the previous spring, except, of course, the most promising pullets for next spring's laying. Keep the others well fed and growing until they weigh between three and four pounds, then put them in the fattening coop and give them all they will eat for ten days to two weeks and rush them to market. Both young and old fowls should not be fed within 24 hours previous to killing.

Whether you ship dressed or alive must depend upon your market and the wishes of the parties to whom you ship. If you ship to a packing house or commission firm it is customary to ship in coops, but if you ship to some retail grocer or market in the city, it will perhaps be best to ship fowls dressed.

Dry-picked fowls bring a slightly higher price in the open market. White or buff colored sell best, as the pin feathers do not show so much on the dressed fowl, and this gives it a neater appearance.

CROSS LEGHORNS WITH GAMES

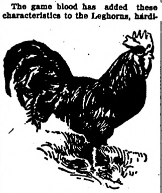
Fancier Eliminates the One Fault of the Former by Introducing Indian Game Blood.

(By WILLIAM R. FLANDERS.)

I have been a fancier and advocate of pure bred poultry for over 40 years, and the way I am eliminating the one fault of the White Leghorn is by introducing Indian game blood.

Six years ago I purchased some Indian game hens, and by using White Leghorn sires ever since I have built up the best flock for general utility I have ever owned.

The game blood has added these characteristics to the Leghorns, hardiness, increased size and improved table qualities. They are, if possible, better layers and the best fowls for raising chickens I ever had.



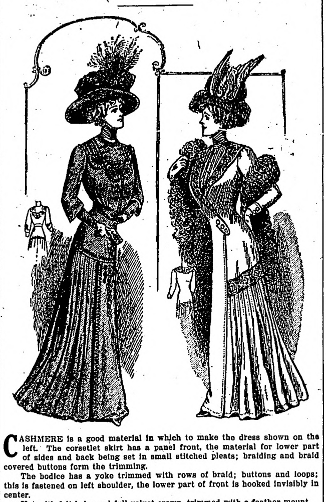
Leghorn Cock.

To-day I have 160 fowls, over 100 pullets, about every one pure white, but some having the game form and comb.

I purchase new cockerels of White Leghorn blood each year to head the flock.

Select the best of the older hens for eggs for hatching.

Two Smart Dresses



Cashmere is a good material in which to make the dress shown on the left. The corsetlet skirt has a panel front, the material for lower part of sides and back being set in small stitched pleats; braiding and braid covered buttons form the trimming.

The bodice has a yoke trimmed with rows of braid; buttons and loops; this is fastened on left shoulder, the lower part of front is hooked invisibly in center.

Hat with felt brim and full velvet crown, trimmed with a feather mount.

Materials required: Eight yards 46 inches wide.

The second is in amethyst Sedan cloth, the Princess part is continued to foot in front; the right side wrapping quite over to the left where it is fastened by hooks from the hips upwards, the lower part is stitched; the full lower part of sides and back are tucked where they join Princess under a band of braided material; the collar and the long revers that outline the deep "V" are braided; the vest being of tucked crepe-de-Chene.

The fur toque is ornamented with a handsome feather mount.

Materials required for the dress: Eight yards 46 inches wide, 7 yards sateen, ½ yard tucked silk.

ALL KINDS OF TRIMMINGS

Soutache Braid, However, Retains Popularity Accorded It Last Season.

This is the most difficult question there is to answer in the fashion world.

At the beginning of the season the vogue of soutache braid was considered an absurdity. Never another season of it, said fashion leaders. But here we are in the height of another and greater soutache season. Creators of braid were not satisfied until they combined this fascinating little braid with fancy weaves to make wide, fanciful braid trimmings. When rat tail was recently introduced it was named as soutache's successor. But now the downfall of it is in sight instead.

Jet, jet, jet—has been the cry of fashion. But at last we hear that Paris has forsaken it. American fashions have not, however, thanks. Nothing can take the place of jet for trimming, black gowns especially.

Gold and silver trimmings are at their height of popularity. And no one can deny that these are quite the prettiest trimmings that have been in vogue for many seasons. Even entire tunics of beautiful evening gowns are of gilt jet.

Oriental and art shaded embroideries are much in favor, too. This is an unusual season of colors, so, of course, rich colored trimmings are bound to be held in high esteem.

Yes, it is a season of trimmings—and many kinds. No hard and fast rules govern them.

The New Jabots.

Girls are wearing neck accessories that show touches of the colored lace in favor this season.

These laces are Valenciennes, in white or cream heavy mesh, with the figures stamped in them in color. The dotted patterns are most in demand and can be found in several tones of one color, or in combinations of pink and blue dots, lavender and green, corn color and brown.

If one has bits of coin-dot white lace left over from a frock, it is very easy to cover the dots with satin stitch in color. No padding should be used and the printed laces are naturally flat in effect.

When Linen Is Yellowed.

If linen is carefully put away in blue tissue paper it should not yellow easily. When, however, it has taken on a saffron hue it can be whitened by soaking in a solution of one teaspoon of cream of tartar to every quart of water.

Later wash in usual way and hang in the sun to dry. If after the soaking in cream of tartar badly yellowed linen is stretched on the grass to dry the bleaching process will be hastened.

For Those in Mourning.

Instead of organdy or linen cuffs and collars, those who are in mourning are wearing white crepe. It is an acceptable idea. Strips of the crepe are cut and the edges turned in and pressed down by hand. They are adjusted to the neck and wrists with black pins.

SPOON MAKES PRETTY PRIZE

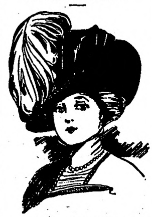
Perhaps the Best of the Trifles That Can Be Offered at a Girls' Party.

As prizes for a girl's party few trifles are more acceptable than a silver spoon. In the coffee, tea and bonbon sizes are spoons of sterling silver, with slender handles enameled with a diamond, heart, spade or club, and gilded bowls engraved with the hostess' initials. A favorite spoon of heavier weight has a handle of repousse hammered silver, tipped with the head of an American Indian wearing a war bonnet and a bowl engraved with the name of an aboriginal tribe. There are also many attractive looking spoons showing flower patterns developed in repousse work upon their handles and with elaborately etched gilded bowls.

Silver and porcelain are charmingly combined in the spoons, which have either plain or etched sterling bowls and handles of Haviland, Dresden or Delft. Occasionally this plan of combination is reversed, and while the effect is decidedly novel, the porcelain bowls are liable to crack if employed to stir a hot beverage, or to snap when used to serve confectionery.

Equally fragile, although dainty, are the spoons having gold bowls and handles of silver filligree, and to be regarded solely as an interesting collection are the spoons which have bowls of silver cut out work and handles of crystal or metal set with rhinestones, amethysts and pearls. Even more impractical, but nevertheless alluring, are the gold bowled spoons, which are equipped with handles of mother of pearl decorated in floral design, done in gold.

EFFECTIVELY CHIC.



A new model in nut-brown moire, lined with brown velvet, a knotted feather in the same shade.

Pump Bows at Neck.

The black velvet pump bow continues in favor. It is used with a turnover collar, with a lace or net stock, and is copied in bows of emerald green, Burgundy red, and king's blue. The bar pins that fasten it are from three to five inches long. The swallow in green or blue enamel with outstretched wings is again in favor, and gives an effective dash of color.

SOUNDS LIKE A FAIRY TALE

THE FARMERS OF CENTRAL CANADA REAP WHEAT AND RICHES.

Up in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the provinces that compose Central Canada have such a quantity of land suitable for the growth of small grains, which grow so abundantly, and yield so handsomely that no fear need be feared of a wheat famine on this Continent. The story reproduced below is only one of the hundreds of proofs that could be produced to show the results that may be obtained from cultivation of the lands in these provinces. Almost any section of the country will do as well.

With the country recently opened by the Grand Trunk Pacific, the latest of the great transcontinental lines to enter the field of the development of the Canadian West, there is afforded added ample opportunity to do as was done in the case cited below:

To buy a section of land, break it up and crop it, make $17,550 out of the yield and $10,880 out of the increase of value all within the short period of two years, was the record established by James Bailey, a well known farmer within a few miles of Regina. Mr. Bailey bought the 640 acres of land near Grand Coulee two years ago. He immediately prepared the whole section for crop and this year has 600 acres of wheat and 40 acres of oats. The wheat yielded 19,875 bushels, and the oats yielded 4,750 bushels. The whole of the grain has been marketed and Mr. Bailey is now worth $17,550 from the grain alone. He bought the land at $18 an acre, and the other day refused an offer of $35 an acre, just a $17 advance for the time of his purchase. The land cost $11,320 in the first instance. Here are the figures of the case.—Land cost, 640 acres, at $18, $11,320. Wheat yielded 19,875 bushels, at 84 cents a bushel, $16,695. Oats yielded 4,750 bushels at 28 cents a bushel, $855. Offered for land, 640 acres at $35 an acre, $22,400. Increase value of land, $10,880. Total earnings of crop, $17,550, together with increase in value of land a total of $28,540.

It is interesting to note the figures of the yield per acre. The wheat yielded 33½ bushels to the acre, and oats 118.7 bushels to the acre. The figures are a fair indication of the average throughout the district.

Agents of the Canadian Government in the different cities will be pleased to give you information as to rates, etc.

The Exception.

In a home where the mother is somewhat aggressive and the father good-natured and peace-loving, a child's estimate of home conditions was tersely expressed the other day. While dressing, the mother paused in the act of putting on her shoes and said: "I certainly am easy on shoes, I have worn these for four months. I don't know what you would do, John, if I were not. I am easy on everything." The little girl looked up from her dolls and remarked: "Except father."—Success.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

When it comes to being charitable to the faults of others, the brotherhood of man has the sisterhood of woman beaten to a frazzle.

If you would be happy, keep your eyes wide open during courtship and half closed after marriage.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna
Cleanses the System Effectually;
Dispels colds and Headaches due to Constipation;
Acts naturally, acts truly as a Laxative.
Best for Men, Women and Children—Young and Old.
To get its beneficial effects, always buy the Genuine, manufactured by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS
one size only, regular price 50¢ per bottle.

Best for Baby and Best for Mother
PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
Is fine for children and adults, very pleasant to take and free from opiates. It soothes and heals the aching throat and assures restful nights to both mother and child.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advanse. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

We understand that represen-tatipe Opsahl will not be a candidate for re-election next year. Mabe he has seen a hand writeing on the wall, but if he hasen't he will see it in such plain language that he won't have to have it translated, if he makes another attempt to miss-represent this district in the legislature.

Should Hon. A. L. Hanson, the Ada statesman make any attempet to be re-elected we have a letter of his written about this bridge proposition up here last winter, which we shall publish, just to let the farmers see the difference in Senator Hanson when he wants their votes, and when he thought he had a lot of pork out of the state pork barrel and was in St Paul.

Should Be Ree-elected.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson has announced that he is a candidate for re-election to his present office The Review can honestly and conscientiously say that it believes that he ought to be re-elected, and that by a large majority. Ever since the early days of the Red River Viley Mr Steenerson has always stood for the men who most needed his assistance—those without much money—the great mass of the people, and particularly for the farmer and the working man. On account of being the pioneer in the work of railroad rate regulation by the state he has always had the opposition of the big railway companies. During the last session of congres he took a stand in accordance with the wishes of his constituents, and has fought their battels. Steenerson can neither be bought nor bluffed, but he might be defeated for re-election. But if the people will use ordinay good sense and not allow themselves to be stamped by politicians working with the interest, who are fighting for special privileges, he will be retained—and his majority will be a big one.—Henrdrum Review.

Whether Steenerson is re-elected, or defeated, his friends will not lay sleeping in their tents next year, while others push their 2 x 4 band wagon by, and the man that defeats congressman Steenerson will know he has been in a race.

The Barrier.

"Yes, my husband and I quarrel incessantly."

"Why don't you get a divorce?"

"We can't bear to. What would become of Fido?"—Cleveland Leader.

The Chinese Burglar.

"The Chinese burglar is the most difficult to nab," declared Lecoq, the detective. "I might say he is impossible to nab. When this yellow scoundrel goes burgling he goes naked and covered with oil, and thus he is as slippery as an eel. But, you say, why not nab him by the pigtail, hey? The answer to that is that his pigtail is done up in a knot on top of his head and stuck full of needles and hatpins with the points turned outward. You often see a Chinaman in Pekin or Shanghai with his clothes stained with oil and with tiny red pricks all over him. He's been having trouble with a burglar."

Vegetable Suspension Bridge.

A remarkable suspension bridge spans the river Apurumac in central Peru. The ropes of this bridge are composed of pliable roots and vines, while the planks are made of branches. In the humid climate of Peru it would be by no means extraordinary if this vegetable bridge were one day to start growing.—Wide World Magazine.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, S.S.
District Court,
14th, Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ——Plaintiff,
Vs
Axel Engman, ——Defendant.

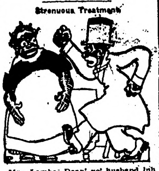
THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the above named defendant.

You are hereby summond and requ-ired to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action, which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

E. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9,—1, 21,-10.

Strenuous Treatment.



Mrs. Lambo—Doan' yo' husband lub yo' eny mo'? He used to say fer a good wife yo' was de record.

Mrs. Sambo—Yaas, en now he comes home en tries to beat de record.

Antiquity of the Water Pump.

The water pump of today is but an improvement on a Grecian invention which first came into use during the reign of Ptolemies Philadelphos and Energetes, 283 to 221 B. C. The name, which is very similar in all languages, is derived from the Greek word pempo, to send or throw. The first ancient description we have of a water pump is by Hero of Alexandria. There is no authentic account of the general use of the pump in Germany previous to the beginning of the sixteenth century. At about that time the endless chain and bucket works for raising water from mines began to be replaced by pumps. In the seventeenth century rotating pumps, like the Pappenham engine, with two pistons, and the Prince Rupert, with one, were first used. Pumps with plunger pistons were invented by Morland, an Englishman, in 1674 and the double acting pump by De la Hire, the French academician.

Retribution.

"Stand up, prisoner," orders the stern judge.

The trembling culprit, who has been found guilty by a jury of his delighted peers, stands.

"Prisoner at the bar," solemnly declares the judge, "you have been convicted of building house after house containing one of those confounded little boxes called 'reception rooms,' in which there is neither room to receive nor books to make it a wardrobe. The sentence of the court is that for the next ten years you shall be confined in one of these alleged reception rooms of your own construction and design."

Immediately the lawyers for the defendant begin work upon an appeal on the ground that a cruel and unusual punishment has been decreed.—Life.

A Big Help.

The lecturer raised his voice with emphatic confidence. "I venture to assert," he said, "that there isn't a man in this audience who has ever done anything to prevent the destruction of our forests."

A modest looking man in the back of the hall stood up.

"I—er—I've shot woodpeckers," he said.—Everybody's.

Make Some One Happy.

Charles Kingsley thus counseled a friend: "Make it a rule and pray to God to help you to keep it, never, if possible, to lie down at night without being able to say, 'I have made one human being at least a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day.' You will find it easier than you think and pleasanter."

Ladylike.

A little girl on a train was chewing gum. Not only that, but she insisted on pulling it out in long strings and letting it fall back into her mouth again.

"Mabel," said her mother in a horrified whisper, "don't do that. Chew your gum like a little lady."—Everybody's.

Webster Made Neat Retort.

As judge made law is now so much discussed, we may recall one of the neatest answers in history, as far at least as our own reading goes:

Judge (interrupting Webster's argument)—That is not law.

Webster—It was law until your honor spoke.—Collier's Weekly.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 19, 1909.

Department of the Interior: U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. November 19, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Sarah Watterberg of Torgeson Minn., who on January 14th. 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 1030, Serial No. 01880 for S. W. ¼ Section 18 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet: U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 21st. day of December 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

August Knutson, Anton Knutson, Ole Vraa, Ole Antonson, all of Torgerson Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam Nov. 19, 1909.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. November 12, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Maggie Sunergard formerly Maggie Bergh, of Germantown Minnesota who on June 20th 1904, made Homestead Entry, No. 434, Serial No 0489, for S E. ¼ Section 14 Township 154N. Range 41 W 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J.M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 21. day of December 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Jay. ayne, of Germantown Minn. Joseph DuChamp, Fred DuChamp, of Kratka Minn. Charles Thompson, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 19th. 1909.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn November 11th. 1909.

Notice is hereby given that, Jermen Rystad, of Benton North Dakota, who on November 18, 1904 made Homestead entry No 924, Serial No. 04347, for the S.W. ¼ Section 29, Township 152 N. Range 40 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 21st, day of December 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Daniel J. Hella, Guner B. Rystad, of Garnes, Minn. O. K. Breland, of Lille Minn. Knud Danielson, of Plummer Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 10.1909.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. December 6th, 1909.

Notice is hereby given, that Daniel Relerson, of Highlanding Minn., who on November 15. 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 896, Serial No. 04329, for N.W. ¼ Section 35 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridan, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 11th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben K. Kviste, Tallak S. Dale, Tobias Olson, Andrew Ellingson, all of Highlanding Minnesota.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam Nov. 19th. 09.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. November 16, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Peter Lovly, of Erie Minn. who on November 16th. 1904, made Homestead entry No. 909, Serial No. 04358, for N. E ¼ Section 36 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 30th. day of December 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Johnsgaard, Edwin Hanson, Haus C. Solberg, E.K. Rime, all of, Erie Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 19 1909.

Department of the Interiorir. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. November 16, 1909.

Notice is heeby given that Pliny H. Wright, Kratka Minn., who on June 28th, 1904, made Homestead entry No 377, Serial No. 04136 for Lots 3, 4, & E.½ S.W. ¼ Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Monicipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on 23rd, day of December 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Herman R. Leslin, Edward Olson, Albert Strum, Carl Larson, all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Publication Nov. 19, 1909.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. November 16, 1909.

Notice is heeby given that Peter J. Thorson, of Highlanding Minn. who on April 4th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1111, Serial No. 01446, for S.E. ¼ Section 17 Towship 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 20th, day of December, 1909.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Herman Halverson, of Brunkeberg Minn. Chris Thorson, Elo Sanders, Matt Erickson, of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

TWO UGLY ANIMALS.

Those Big Pigs, the Rhinoceros and the Hippopotamus.

THEY ARE HARD TO CAPTURE.

Getting Away With One of the Colossal Brutes Makes the Work of Trapping the Big Felines Seem Like Child's Play—Methods of the Hunters.

Trapping the big felines is child's play compared with the work of capturing those lumbering, colossal animals of the "big pig" family, the rhinoceros and the hippopotamus.

Too stupid to tame or to break to a halter and too heavy to transport through hundreds of miles of wilderness, it would take a man half a lifetime to bring one of these five to six thousand pound creatures out of a jungle into civilization. Therefore the expert's only chance is to find a cow with a calf and to capture the young one.

Compared with the alert, grim exterior of the felines, there is little in the appearance of a phlegmatic, ponderous pig like a rhinoceros to indicate its real ferociousness. There is hardly a wild animal in existence which is more dangerous than this rarest of all our menagerie captives. Awkward as the great creature appears when at rest, once aroused it dashes through the densest thicket with the irresistible speed of an express train.

To catch a rhinoceros the trapper proceeds with preparations much as would an explorer bound for a two or three year expedition in the interior of an unexplored continent, for the difficulty confronting him is the threefold one of first penetrating a thousand or more miles into the interior; second, of finding not only a rhinoceros, but a rhinoceros cow with a calf old enough to capture, and, lastly, of transporting his prize across hills and mountains and plains, over rivers and ravines, across swamps and through forests to civilization.

Skirting swamps and rivers, the men are ever on the lookout for the deep, round spoors, like a pie plate driven into the mud, for in this wet ground the rhinoceros loves to wallow. Frequently five or six months elapse before the tracks of a cow and a calf are picked up.

Noiseless and from well to leeward, the trapper and his men gradually steal nearer until the cow and the calf are inclosed in a circle. From ahead, out of the maze of cane and creeper, sounds the uneasy stamping of the cow. With a half snort, half grunt, in an instant the rhinoceros is all attention. Head raised and nostrils sniffing, she searches the air steadily. At sight of one of the savages the cow dashes with the speed of a race horse at the man, charging the human decoy, and at that instant the trapper's rifle is heard, and her furious charge is over, provided the bullet reaches the heart by striking just behind the left foreleg—the only vulnerable point in the inch thick armor with which the beast is clad.

Now and then it happens that the trapper fails to kill in time—his gun may miss fire, intervening trees may interfere or the marksman may miss his aim. Then the life of the decoy depends upon his own agility. To run to the side before the rhinoceros is almost on top of him would be fatal, for the swift brute would overtake him with a few bounds. His only hope is to wait until the deadly horn is almost at his feet and then, with the swiftness of a mongoose dodging the aim of a cobra, to leap to one side while the ponderous creature, unable to turn short in time, dashes onward under its own impetus. Twice, three times, a clever native hunter will dodge in this way, giving the trapper ample time to bring down the rhinoceros.

Then comes the tracking of the frightened calf, which has fled at the first sign of trouble, and soon it is pushed, prodded and shoved up a bridge of log skids into a cage of the bullock cart.

But even more dangerous is the trapping of the hippopotamus, for, although in itself the "rhino" is a more savage antagonist than the "river horse," the trapper hunts the former on land and brings down at a safe distance, whereas in the case of the hippopotamus he must fight in the same primitive fashion that savages have used for ages. Hand to maw, as it were, he must engage this two ton monster while standing in the bow of a frail canoe, for the hippopotamus, as its name, the "river horse," means, is a land and water animal and must be harpooned and brought ashore before it expires, otherwise it would sink at once to the bottom of the river, the coveted calf escaping among the other hippopotamuses instead of following the stricken cow to shore, so that the youngster may be caught.—A. W. Rolker in St. Nicholas.

The Blue Danube.

The Danube still retains its ancient splendors. The Rhine is the river of vine clad, sunny hills, ruined castles on rugged crags, mediaeval history and modern glory in war and in peace, a river bright as the warble of a bird in the wood. The Danube hills carry immense, almost untouched, forests, higher and grander than the heights of the Rhine. In the midst of this rich, deep green verdure lonely white mountains break in on the eye. There are many wayside chapels, too, on the banks. In solemn, awesome, majestic beauty the Danube far excels the chesty, pretty Rhine, and it must be called a pity that so few American travelers take a tour on this indescribably superb river.—Omaha Bee.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY:

D. N. Winton,
Manager.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's, & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p.m.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Intercollegiate.

"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amherst Four Leaf Clover.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.
C. L. Hansen...... Pesident.
Daniel Pattreson. ..Vice Pres.
A. D. Stephens.... ...2nd Vice Pres.
B. E. Burkes.........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk

DR. MILES' ANTI Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the Sunbeam office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

Singer Bros. will put in a big stock of holliday goods at their Rhoda and Kratka store.

Stephen Singer was an over night visitor with us Sunday night, on his way to Rhoda.

We want to hire a man to chop some cord wood and make fence posts. Inquire at this office.

The Highlanding farmers club met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T.S. Jacobson, last Sunday.

We received our first 1910 calender from Andrew Ellingson this week, and they are beauties.

Anton C. Skog, sold his Kratka farm last week to P. M. Johnson, his neighbor, for $3000 cash.

Lurents and Welent, Weinerowski, of Radney and Mr. Beaudry, of Highlanding were transacting business here Wednesday.

There was a big sleigh load drove down from Highlanding on Sunday evening, for a surdrise party at Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress, and all enjoyed a pleasent evening.

Surveyor C. H. Martz and his ditch appraising crew left for St.Hilaire on Monday haveing compleated their work in this township for the present.

We are indebted to Mr. Lattimore for a snap shot view of the Highlanding creamery. We expect to publish some views of this part of the county and that will be one of them.

Miss Christine Skeie will fix up the candy packages for the Christmas tree, so that all the school scholars will be rememberd by Santaclause. Any controbutions should be sent to her.

If you are a little bashful about makeing Christmas presents to your friends you can hang them on the Christmas tree at the Highlanding school house on December 24th, and let them guess who sent them.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2.00 per cord.

Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

Boy, or girl wanted to set type and learn printers trade. Good wages paid after you learn how to set type. Call at this office.

There will be a big ball at the Kratka hall, on Saturday evening December 18th,. First class music, and a fine phonograph intertainment. All are invited.

There was a party of government surveyors stopped over night at Walter McAndress last Saturday night that were makeing a survey of Red Lake River, but what for we don't know.

There will be a Christmas tree entertainment at the Highlanding school house on Xmas eve, December 24th. Our school teacher Miss Skeie is preparing a programme to be given by the school scholars, and all who attend may be sure that they will pass a pleasant Christmas eve. Opprotunity will be given to all to place presents on the tree for their friends, and all are invited.

A Hector Outhectored.

A publisher's reader at a literary club hectored a group of novelists.

"You chaps," he sneered, "must always be coining new words. Good English isn't good enough for you. In the last half dozen manuscript novels I turned down there were such horrible neologisms as 'he hoarsed,' 'she parroted,' 'they shrilled,' 'he glimpsed her,' 'it supremed,' and so forth. Faugh!"

"Let me inform you," cried a novelist defiantly, "that your remark shows a pitiful ignorance on your part of our mother tongue. As for 'shrilling,' Tennyson writes:

"'With petulant thumb and finger shrilling "Hence!"'

"Chapman, the great Chapman, is an authority for 'parroting.' 'Glimpsing' has been used by Howells and Lowell, and 'supreme' as a verb may be found in Shelley's letters." — Washington Post.

CLEARWATER LOCALS

News are scarce before Xmas

Miss Elma Brekke returned to Grand Forks Monday after visiting her parents for a few months.

Mrs. Sarah Leeveld returned home form Thief River Falls on Monday, where she had been visiting relation and friends.

Mr Al Smith came up from Grand Forks N D Monday.

Mr and Mrs Breckmann and and daughter Bertha made a business trip to Plummer Monday.

The Clearwater young peoples meeting will be held at A. Rolandsons next Sunday. Everybody welcome.

There was a joll crowd gathered at the home of Mr. Oscar Lindberg on Sunday evening and had a little dance.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec 17th, 1909
Department of The Interior U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota December 13, 1909

NOTICE is hereby given that Aslak Person, of Malone Minnesota who on October 4th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 676, Serial No. 04251, for N.W.¼ Section 12 township 152 N, Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 20th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Gunder Asbjornson, Targer Lanji, Salve T. Myrum Ole Askland, all of Malone Minn.

R.J. MONTAGUE,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th, 1909.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909

Notice is hereby given that Anlreas Anensen, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entry No. 1193, Serial No. 04482, for Lots 3, 4, S.E. ¼ N.W. ¼ Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of Intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th. day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn., Gunder Asbjernson, of Malone Minn. Elias Mosque, of Sunbeam Minn. Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th. 1904, made Homestead entry No. 283, Serial No. 04116 for N. E. ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above descibed, before J. M. Bishop municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 17th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter Flo, Haaken Nabben, August Johnson, John Carlson, all of Thorwik Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

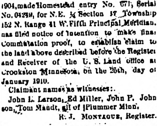
First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th. 1909.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 14th, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that, Lewis T. Burgh, of Plummer Minn., who on October 14th. 1904, made Homestead entry No. 671, Serial No. 04249, for N.E. ¼ Section 17 Township 152 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John L. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. Johnson, Tom Maudt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Was Put Out.



Grace—That player got angry when he hit three times at the ball and missed it.

Frank—Yes; he does easily put out

In the adversity of our best friends we often find something which does not displease us.—Rochefoucauld.

NEWS! News!
Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.
SINGER BOS.
RHODA & KRATKA,
Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices
Clothing.
WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS
We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing.
Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.
Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.
Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

Rather Venomous.

A tenderfoot who visited the Yosemite in the old days thus related his experience: The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.

"Venomous reptiles? You bet. I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes you can just bet your life is venomous. Why, one day I was comin' down here drivin' a wagon when I catches sight of a snake in the brush all ready for a spring. My horses starts, an' I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring. He makes one clear spring, the snake does, an' he misses the horses."

"That was lucky. But you—you"—

"Lucky? You bet your life it was lucky. He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."

"You don't say!"

"I do say, and maybe you don't believe it, but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an' that wagon is swelled up so bad that we had to leave it by the wayside and take the horses home."

Now They Never Speak.

A coolness growing out of the following conversation has sprung up between Jones and Smith:

"I had a splendid time last night," said Jones. "I spent the evening at a little social gathering at the Goodman mansion."

"Are the Goodmans nice people?" queried Smith.

"Well, I should say so. They are very aristocratic. To get into their circle one must have either a great deal of money or a great deal of genius."

"You don't tell me so! And you say you were there?"

"Yes."

"You were invited, were you?"

"Of course."

"And to be invited a man has to have plenty of money or a great deal of genius?"

"Precisely."

"Well, Jones, I am very glad to hear you have become rich all of a sudden. Lend me £5."—London Answers.

Blood For Bread.

Hunger! To what lengths will it drive men! Here is a passage from "Force," a tale of Napoleon's days describing how ten veteran hussars under a young officer, after two days without food, fought like fiends for a loaf of bread stolen from a woodman:

"He trembled with covetousness, but he did not move. He was starving, but he was an officer.

"The foremost rider speared the loaf up with his saber, clutched it and began to eat. The others quickly closed in on him. He was gripped from behind and half strangled. The bread fell into the mud. The men then began to fight in bitter earnest, and their sabers flashed dimly in the falling rain. One of them reeled under a saber stroke and fell back on his horse.

"He (the officer) flung himself in the melee and was thrown from his horse. As he crawled along the mud out of the way of the trampling hoofs he put his hand on the bread. His fears at once vanished. He bent over his prize, hiding it from view of the struggling soldiers, and lowered his head and got the loaf under his teeth and ate it."

Nature's Handiwork.

The down upon the peach or plum is so delicate and so thickly set that one cannot touch the fruit with a needle's point without breaking the tender stalk, and yet the dew of the night covers the whole surface of the fruit and disappears in the morning, leaving the gossamer growth more orderly and beautiful than before. The dew covers every leaf of the giant oak, and the mighty tree drinks in the refreshing moisture to its thirsty heart through millions of pores, and the iron trunk that has withstood a thousand storms is made stronger by the gentle strength of the dew. The silent fall of the dew is caused and controlled by agencies of the most tremendous power. The same power which shakes a whole continent with its subterranean thunder is the same as that which encircles the finest filament of thistledown with a coronet of dewy gems so small that they do not bend the delicate stalks with their weight.—London Globe.

One day is worth two tomorrows. Have you something to do tomorrow? Do it today.—B. Franklin.

THE MERCHANTS
State Bank,
OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,
THAT RAISE CROPS.
For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.
We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.
Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN
It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.
Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING. HIGH GRADE.
Automatic Lift.
Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Hard Hit.

"Dis paper sez dat Teddy Roosevelt's publishers give him a dollar a word."

"Dat's nothin'. I wunst got $2 word—when I sassed de judge."

Barrie and Kipling.

Mr. Barrie was one day at Waterloo station in a hurry to catch a train. He was hastening from the bookstall laden with papers, "a good many sixpenny ones among them," he dolefully relates, when, in rushing around a corner, he fell into the arms of Rudyard Kipling, equally in a tearing hurry. They turned on each other with scowling faces, then smiled in recognition and asked each other whither he went. Then Kipling, exclaiming, "Lucky beggar, you've got papers!" seized the bundle from Barrie, flung him some money and made off. "But you did not stoop to pick up his dirty halfpence, did you?" queried one of Mr. Barrie's hearers anxiously. "Didn't I, though?" returned Barrie, and added ruefully, "But he hadn't flung me half enough."—St. James' Gazette.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MAC
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOM
If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain St] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers
FOR SALE BY
Hicks' Furniture & Carpe
Thief River Falls, Mi

McCALL PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE
McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 239 to 249 W. 37th St., NE

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL
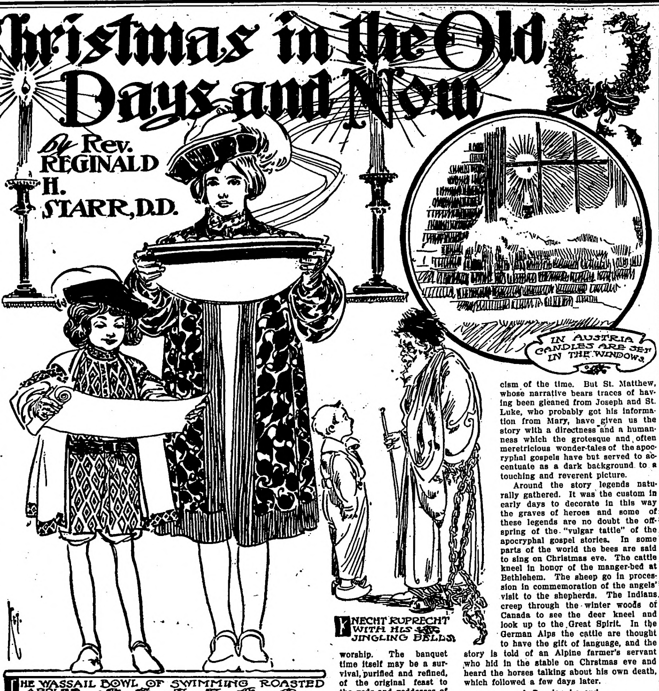
DICTIONARY
Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of Questions in Language, The Trades, Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:
Colored Plates, Flags, State Seals, Etc.
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Foreign Words
Abbreviations
Recognized by the Courts, the Schools and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.
Should You Not Own Such a Book
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY
Largest abridgment of the International. Thin Paper Edition. 1116 Pages, 1400
Write for "DICTIONARY WRINKLES," and specimen pages. Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.
G. & C. MERRIAM C
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

Christmas in the Old Days and Now

By Rev. REGINALD H. STARR, D.D.



THE WASSAIL BOWL OF SWIMMING ROASTED APPLES.

KNECHT RUPRECHT WITH HIS JINGLING BELLS.

IN AUSTRIA CANDLES ARE SET IN THE WINDOWS.

ALL the world keeps Christmas day. From the land of the midnight sun to the sunny south of perpetual summer is a far cry. But in the long distance there is no land where Christmas is not kept. Its celebration is a part of the universal history of the human race. Whatever may have been its origin and whatever peculiarities may have gathered about it in its adaptation to different people and different circumstances, it is to us Americans to-day a practically national feast.

To keep it was at one time, and in our own part of the country, it is true, a penal offense. It was thought to savor of prelacy and to foster unpleasant memories of political servitude. But it has grown with our growth and the broadmindedness of the American people is seen at its best in the hearty commemoration of the nativity of the Christ from year to year.

In some parts of the country, in fact, Christmas day bids fair to supplant Thanksgiving day, and it certainly may already claim an equality of recognition with the time-honored national festival of our New England forbears. People of every creed and every nationality within our borders delight to participate in the celebration of the Christmas feast, and many a scion of old-world stock finds himself back home again as the church bells peal and the candles glimmer on the Christmas trees. It is a time of universal peace and good will. It brightens homes, softens asperities and uplifts us as it brings "the light that never was on land or sea."

The Origin Unknown.

The origin of the festival is said to be lost in antiquity. If, as held by many, it is a Christian feast grafted on to a pagan one, its history is age long. The actual institution of Christmas as the celebration of the nativity of Jesus Christ dates from the second century of the Christian era. St. Chrysostom says that it was observed from the beginning, according to western practice, from Thrace to the Straits of Gibraltar, and he calls it "the most venerable, the mother of all the rest."

But as to the time of the celebration there was a diversity of observance. The early Christian church naturally kept Easter as commemorative of the resurrection of Christ, which the apostles were especially chosen and instructed to proclaim, and the feast of Pentecost, which became the birthday of the church, came next in order. Then to these were added two others, the one commemorative of the baptism of Jesus Christ and the other of his birth. The first of these, the Epiphany, or Manifestation, came from the east to the west. The second, Christmas, or the nativity, came from the west to the east. The two were officially recognized and quite widely kept in both the east and west in the fourth century. In a sermon preached by the Golden-Mouthed in Antioch on December 25, A. D. 386, he speaks of the festival of Christmas as having first become known there 10 years before and on another occasion he invites his hearers to participate in its approaching observance.

But as to the reason for the selection of December 25 as Christmas day, first arrived at by the Hippolytes, there is much difference of opinion. It is held by some that the German name of the festival "Weihnacht," is a literal translation of the Hebrew "Chanuka," the Jewish festival of the purification of the temple by Judas Maccabeus, which begins on December 17, and that as the Passover and Pentecost were perpetuated in Easter and Whitsuntide, so the festival of the Purification has been preserved in Christmastide and the practice of burning candles on the Christmas trees has come from the old Hebrew feast.

Early Festivals.

But the Purification can hardly be numbered among the greater and important festivals of the Hebrews and, as Schaff says, there is really no Old Testament feast corresponding to our Christmas. The weight of opinion as to the time of year chosen by the Christian church in the west lies in another and entirely different solution of the question and links the Christian observance to the ancient practice of the heathen world.

It must be remembered in this connection that the particular date was first fixed upon by the Roman branch of the church, and at that season of the year a series of pagan festivals occurred which were closely interwoven with the civil and social life of the Roman people. These festivals had an import which lent itself to the growth of the Christian faith, and they may have been spiritually adopted by the church in order to counteract their evil tendencies and at the same time advance the cause of the new religion.

The Saturnalia, for instance, represented the peaceful times of the golden age and abolished sharp distinctions between citizen and serf. But it was a time of wild and unholy revelry. Then the Brumalia—the feast of the shortest day, or winter solstice—was the commemoration of the birthday of the new sun about to return to the earth. It was the "dies natalis invicti solis." In the old mythology of the sun worshipers it was the birthday of Mithras himself, and, in fact, the time of year has from unnumbered ages before the Christian era pagan Europe, in all its tribes and peoples, had celebrated its chief festival. So here we have the double truth of the golden age and the rebirth of the unconquered sun, as he breaks the power of darkness, refined and enriched in the Christian teaching of "peace on earth and good will to men," as coincident with the rising of the Sun of Righteousness in the birth into the world of the son of the peasant woman who was also the Son of God.

This view of Christmas accentuates the true place of the Christian religion in relation to the ancient and deep-seated religions which preceded it, and at the same time reveals a beauty of development in its culmination as the completed manifestation of God to man. In the infancy of the race the winter solstice was everywhere a season of rejoicing. No matter what the peculiar form which it assumed, it expressed the world joy of the time. So the very idea of the Child God which gives Christmas its meaning may not only have been foretold by sybil and seer and prophet, but prefigured by the infant gods of the Greek and Egyptian and Hindu and Buddhist forms of religion.

These to us imperfect an unsatisfactory conceptions of the Divine may have been the rude but honest efforts of the earlier days of the human race to group the idea of a God-man which has been made so real and so full of joy to us in the Nativity and the Epiphany of the Christ. In this sense the early church may have been wiser than she wot of. Her aim was to select the best features of the heathen feasts and embody them for their purification in Christian practices and sacred rites and to wean the converts from their old superstitions to the deeper and more real truths of the Christian faith.

But in so doing she may have been the unconscious instrument of a divinely guided evolution in religious practice and belief which has ennobled and enriched the world. The symbolism of our Christmas to-day certainly lends itself in many ways to this point of view. In the greenery with which we deck our houses and churches and in the gift-laden fir trees which gladden our children's hearts, we still retain the symbols by which our heathen forefathers signified their faith in the power of returning sun to clothe the earth with green and hang new fruit on the trees. The Christmas carol may be a new birth of the hymns of the Saturnalia. The holly and mistletoe came from the Druid worship. The banquet time itself may be a survival, purified and refined, of the original feast to the gods and goddesses of the fabled Olympus. The "Yule" of "Merrie England" is the old Teutonic name of the religious festival of the winter solstice, during which Celt and Roman could trace the movements of their deities as they walked abroad in the world.

The Story Christmas Tells.

The Christian religion is not merely something built over the old ethnic religions as the church of St. Maria Sopra Minerva in Rome is built over the ruins of the old heathen temple of Minerva, or as the grove sacred to Adonis was planted by the order of the Emperor Hadrian over "the cave close to the village" which is now honored as the scene of the Saviour's birth. It had a larger and a deeper meaning. Christmas tells the story of a gradual but complete unfolding of the divine idea of religion as seen in the Christ Child, of its worship and its merry-making in its at once sacred and social feast.

The story is told simply but graphically by two of the four evangelists. St. Mark's gospel begins with the baptism of the Christ, so logically he had no need to tell the story of his birth and boyhood. St. John wrote near the close of the first century, and with the dominant idea of settnig forth the divinity of Christ in opposition to the prevailing gnosticism of the time. But St. Matthew, whose narrative bears traces of having been gleaned from Joseph and St. Luke, who probably got his information from Mary, have given us the story with a directness and a humanness which the grotesque and often meretricious wonder-tales of the apocryphal gospels have but served to accentuate as a dark background to a touching and reverent picture.

Around the story legends naturally gathered. It was the custom in early days to decorate in this way the graves of heroes and some of these legends are no doubt the offspring of the "vulgar tattle" of the apocryphal gospel stories. In some parts of the world the bees are said to sing on Christmas eve. The cattle kneel in honor of the manger-bed at Bethlehem. The sheep go in procession in commemoration of the angels' visit to the shepherds. The Indians creep through the winter woods of Canada to see the deer kneel and look up to the Great Spirit. In the German Alps the cattle are thought to have the gift of language, and the story is told of an Alpine farmer's servant who hid in the stable on Chrstmas eve and heard the horses talking about his own death, which followed a few days later.

A Bosnian Legend.

There is a Bosnian legend that the sun leaps in the heavens and the stars dance around it. A great peace comes stealing down over mountain and forest. The rotten stumps stand straight and green on the hillside. The grass is beflowered with blossoms and the birds sing on the mountain tops in thanks to God. In Poland the heavens open and Jacob's ladder is set up between earth and sky. In Austria the candles are set in the window, that the Christ Child may not stumble when he comes to bless the home. In north Germany the tables are spread and the lights left burning for the Virgin Mary and her attending angel.

The English superstition is admirably voiced by the myriad-minded Shakespeare in "Hamlet:"

> Some say that ever 'gainst that season comes
> Wherein our Lord's birth is celebrated,
> The bird of dawning singeth all night long,
> And then they say no spirit can walk abroad.
> The nights are wholesome. Then no planets strike,
> No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
> So hallowed and so gracious is the time."

If a man will compliment his wife upon her youthful appearance and tell her that he loves her, she will forgive other white lies.

Origin of the Oldest Christmas Hymn

IN EVERY Roman Catholic church and in probably ninety-and-nine out of every hundred Protestant churches throughout Christendom this is the season when is heard that grand old hymn whose tender and solemn strains find an echo in the universal human heart—"Adeste Fideles" (Come, All Ye Faithful). It is the anthem sung at high mass at Christmastide for centuries past, calling Christ's worshipers to Bethlehem, where the new-born Savior lies.

This naive and beautiful Latin anthem is more ancient than its history, and goes back six or seven centuries. Saint Bonaventura, an Italian monk of the thirteenth century, who died in Lyons, France, in 1274, is credited with the authorship of the beginning:

Adeste fideles,
Laeti triumphantes,
Venite, Venite in Bethlehem.
Natum videte, Regem angelorum.

Venite adoremus,
Venite adoremus,
Venite adoremus Dominum.

Oh, come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
Oh, come ye, oh, come ye to Bethlehem.
See the new-born Saviour, king of all the angels.

Oh, come let us adore him,
Oh, come let us adore him,
Oh, come let us adore him, Christ, our Lord.

Saint Bonaventura was a Franciscan scholastic philosopher, and was surnamed "Doctor Seraphicus." His preserved writings are of a dogmatic or didactic nature exclusively, and this hymn is not to be found among them. Doubtless it is to be referred to the seraphic side of his genius and temperament. Its classic Latin cadences are of such lyric felicity that one cannot help but believe they were written to the noble and touching melody on whose wings they have floated to our time. Surely this is not too fantastic a suggestion, when it is remembered that the original Greek music of the Delphic hymn to Apollo is preserved intact, and that certain familiar phrases of the Gregorian chant, used to-day in the Roman mass, are identified by Hebrew historians as the same which were sung in Solomon's temple many centuries before the time of Christ.

The hymn "Adeste Fideles" is not known to have been used in England earlier than the seventeenth century. The musical setting, as we have it in modern notation, is ascribed by Novello to one John Reading, who was organist at Winchester cathedral from 1675 to 1681, and later at Winchester college. Its real origin is lost in the mists of antiquity which probably far antedates the middle ages and the Latin verses to which it has been inseparably wedded.

Word-language reaches but the one people or race to whom it is directly addressed. But the language of music is universal—it is "understanded of the people" instantly all the wide world over—it needs not to be written in choice Latin nor translated into many tongues—it is caught up from the heart and echoes on forever. That is why the "Adeste Fideles" has become the Christmas hymn of all the world.

HIS STATUS.

Dat's a swell horse youse got, Jimmie! What is he, a charger, or—?"

"Aw, by de way he is always kickin', I guess he's just a plain mule!"

Mistakes Will Happen.

Lady (to her sister, a doctor)—There—I cooked a meal for the first time to-day, and I made a mess of it.

"Well, dear, never mind, it's nothing. I lost my first patient."

Of course the best thing with which to feather your nest is cash down.

IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND ANYTHING better for sideache, backaches or stitches than Perry Davis' Painkiller. Get the large size, it is the cheapest. At all druggists, 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

A girl's ideal is naturally shattered when he goes broke.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. Tiny sugar-coated granules.

It's one thing to run into debt and another to crawl out.

Four Million Dollars

Represents the cost of the Milwaukee Solvay Coke plant. This plant covers an area of 28 acres. It has storage room for 450,000 tons of coal.

More than 600,000 tons of Solvay Coke are produced at Milwaukee in a year—the demand is growing greater every day.

95% of the founderies of the west burn Solvay Coke—it is the exclusive fuel of 100,000 homes.

Buy Milwaukee Solvay Coke
"The Ideal Domestic Fuel"

Perfect for household use
For heating or cooking
Burns through and through
No smoke or dirt
No ashes to sift
A clean healthful fuel
Coal is expensive
Solvay saves 20%
Is always satisfactory
Light in weight
Makes housework easy
Abolishes fuel troubles
Do you use it?
If not, why not?

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke—all sizes—ask your dealer, and write for interesting booklet of coke information to

Pickands, Brown & Co.
Colby-Abbot Bldg.
Milwaukee, Wis.

Buy Milwaukee Solvay Coke
"The Fuel without a Fault"

WESTERN CANADA
What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you.) [1]

LEDBETER TRIAL ON

SMITH TRIAL OPENS WITH VICTIM'S BROTHER ON STAND.

VICTIMS DAUGHTER'S TESTIFY

Give Rather Important Testimony Bearing on Mysterious Murder.

Mankato.—The jury to try Frank Smith, charged with murdering H. J. Ledbeter, May 4, last, completed as follows: William H. Macbeth, Mankato, retired merchant and miller; Henry Hodapp, Decorah, farmer; Edward Bender, Lake Crystal, stock buyer; Thomas Rooney, Ceresco, farmer; John C. Bixby, Garden City, hotel keeper; F. E. Eaton, Garden City, farmer; R. E. Stanley, Shelby, farmer; Charles Moses, Lake Crystal, farmer; Thomas C. Norman, Garden City, farmer; P. H. Jordan, Mankato, game and fish warden; Eric Shaw, Butternut Valley, foreman.

Seventy-two names were drawn in getting the jury, and the prosecution used its 17 peremptory challenges and the defense seven. Smith and the states attorneys, both are well pleased with the character of the jury selected.

It was a terrible arraignment that P. A. Ledbeter, telling his story in his direct and retiring manner, made of the defendant, without seeming to know it, and Mrs. Ledbeter, wife of the murdered farmer, was brought into the case repeatedly in the witness' testimony.

The witness told of coming to Mankato une 18 to search for his brother, H. J. Ledbeter, of whose disappearance May 5 he had been informed. Searchers from ths city and Medo and Ilma townships armed with iron spears, augers and shovels, spent two days in going over the farm, seeking where the body was buried, as he had suspicions of foul play. Search was rewarded the second day by finding the body under a potato patch.

Witness told of conversations with Smith, who had put him off with different stories to account for his brother's disappearance, once telling of seeing him alive on the farm two weeks after the disappearance, once saying he had prevented him from shooting himself just as he was about to pull the trigger of a shotgun with a string, and once saying that he and Mrs. Ledbeter had planned to slay Ledbetter by throwing the ladder out from under him while he was making repairs to the top of the barn. The reason this did not succeed was because Ledbetter only went part way up and then came down, remarking he was too old and nervous to climb as he used to. Smith had laid at least one of these stories to Mrs. Ledbeter's ingenuity to shield him.

The second day's developments in the trial of Frank Smith, charged with murdering Holley J. Ledbeter, were more favorable to Mrs. Ledbeter and distinctly to Smith's disadvantage. Mrs. Ledbeter's two daughters, Hazel and Mabel, were put on the stand with her consent and gave straightforward testimony. They and their two younger brothers had gone to bed the evening of May 4 soon after 9 o'clock, following shortly after Smith, and heard no noise or disturbance of any kind during the night.

Hazel went into her parent's room downstairs and everything there looked the same as usual. Smith was off searching for their father. The evening before a neighbor's children had been there playing with them and their father had watched them play. A small dog had bitten him on the finger and Mabel said she saw her mother tie the finger up. Neither saw their father kick the dog or their mother slap their father. The defense claims the murder was committed before midnight and the girls' testimony about hearing their father call Smith the next morning is new and important.

E. F. Searing, city editor of the Daily Free Press, told of a conversation he had with the defendant at the jail the night of his arrest, and of what was said later that night by Smith and Mrs. Ledbeter when brought face to face. The testimony was confined to Smith's statement of alleged illicit relations with Mrs. Ledbeter before the murder, of Mrs. Ledbeter's reply when accused by Smith of trying to buy poison of a Redwood Falls doctor when she said it was chloroform to take medicine stains from her dress, and of Smith's having prefaced the question with, "Now, Mrs. Ledbeter, when you helped me kill Mr. Ledbeter didn't you" do so and so, which he had finally corrected to "bury Ledbeter."

The defense tried to get in the entire conversation, but the state objected, and the jury was sent out while this point was fought out. The court finally decided that only such parts of conversations as bore on matters brought out by the state were admissable.

INNOCENT MAN IN PRISON.

Son Clears Teare of Old Incendiary Charge.

Stillwater. — After having served two years in the state penitentiary on conviction of burning his home to get the insurance, James T. Teare, a logger, has been proved innocent. Teare's son, who is in prison in Colorado, has sent an affidavit, duly signed and sworn to, in which the young man swears he set fire to the house and testified fasely against his father as revenge.

EBERHART ON FARMING.

Minnesota Governor Addresses Chicago Convention.

Chicago, Illinois.—Gov. Adolph O. Eberhart of Minnesota, in an address here before the National Fairs and Exposition association, made a plea for better farming in America.

"We have made this country the model of the world in our free schools and republican form of government," said Governor Eberhart. "While we have demonstrated the possession of the greatest agricultural resources on the globe and have supplied the world's markets with an unparalleled volume of farm products, we have exhibited a vast and alarming weakness in the depletion of our soil resources and the reduction of yield and profit per acre under cultivation.

"During the last 50 years in which we have made such tremendous strides in manufacturing and commerce we have lost in soil fertility, as estimated by economic authorities, a wealth that would maintain our population for centuries.

"The starvation of our soil has aroused the entire nation and a halt should be called until remedies can be applied to stop this great and unnecessary waste. We find many farms show a decrease in yield per acre due to persistent single cropping, the very cause that has produced farm poverty from time immemorial."

STATE CONSERVATION CONGRESS.

Preliminary Organization for Big Meeting Is Effected.

St. Paul.—The first Minnesota state conservation congress will be held in February or March, and congresses will be held annually in the several Minnesota cities. Delegates to the congress will be appointed through the commercial organizations of the different cities who will nominate delegates to be appointed by the governor. Representatives of the agricultural interests of the state will also send delegates.

D. M. Neill, Red Wing, president of the Federated Commercial Clubs, is the chairman of the organization; Clinton L. Mosher, of St. Paul, secretary, and Eli S. Warner, treasurer. The committee on arrangements consists of D. M. Neill, Red Wing; Gov. A. O. Eberhart, State Auditor S. G. Iverson, W. L. Harris and H. A. Tuttle, Minneapolis; Eli S. Warner and Louis W. Hill, St. Paul; H. V. Eva, Duluth and Professors Gray and Boss of the University of Minnesota. The committee on arrangements of time and place consists Eli S. Warner, St. Paul; Professor Boss, university; Immigration Agent Welsh, St. Paul; W. L. Harris, Minneapolis. Committee on finance, H. A. Tuttle, Minneapolis; State Auditor S. G. Iverson, St. Paul; H. V. Eva, Duluth. The committee on speakers is: Louis W. Hill, Governor Eberhart, D. M. Neill and Professor Gray.

MINNEAPOLIS CASE DISMISSED.

Threshing Machine Company Loses Appeal to Commission.

Washington, D. C.—The interstate commerce commission has dismissed the complaint of the Minneapolis Threshing Machine company against the Omaha and Northwestern railroads. The company complained over the fact that joint rates which had been effective between the Great Northern and the two roads named, whereby Hopkins received the same rates as Minneapolis, had been cancelled at the beginning of the present year. The cancellation of these joint rates was alleged to make unreasonable rates on threshing machinery from Hopkins to local points along the two railroads. It was claimed that distributing houses in Minneapolis received better rates than were given the Hopkins concern.

The interstate commission finds that the $5 switching charge now assessed from Hopkins to Minneapolis is reasonable unless Hopkins is to be placed on the same basis as Minneapolis for all business on all railroads.

STATE'S FRUITS ARE SHOWN.

Minneapolis.—Fruits and flowers defied the season during the four days' session of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society and its auxiliaries, the Minnesota State Forestry Association, the Plant Breeders' Auxiliary, the Women's Auxiliary, the Minnesota State Florists' Society, and the Minnesota State Bee-keepers' Society, which opened in the First Unitarian church.

More than 1,000 plates and boxes of fruits raised in the northwest were displayed in the basement of the church. The prize list is a long one and covers gropes, roses, pecks of apples, top-worked apples, seedling apples, bushel boxes of apples and nuts. Convention headquarters were at the Majestic hotel.

The program of the meetings held every morning and afternoon was a lengthy one, as each speaker was restricted to 10 minutes. Among the numerous features were an address on "Breeding," by W. M. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture, illustrated by lantern pictures.

Power Company Supplies Many Cities.

Fergus Falls.—The Otter Tail Power Company of this city closed a contract to supply electricity for lighting the city of Breckenridge and to operate the pumps for Wahpeton's water works system. The company is already supplying Wahpeton with electricity for lighting, and also supplies Fergus Falls. The power is obtained from a dam five miles below this city and transmitted across the country. The distance to Breckenridge and Wahpeton is twenty-five miles.

JEFFRIES IN A DREAM, WHIPS JACK JOHNSON

IF JIM'S VISION COMES TRUE, THE BIG FIGHT WILL END IN FOURTH ROUND.

FIGHTERS' FAMOUS BLOWS.

Jeffries—Swinging left to the jaw.

Jack Johnson—Right arm uppercut and hook.

Bob Fitzsimmons — Half-arm jolts to stomach and jaw, delivered at close quarters.

Joe Gans—A snappy right hook.

Bat Nelson—Left-hand scissors punch over the liver.

Jim Corbett—Left-hand jab and right cross.

Kid McCoy—The corkscrew delivered with a twist of wrist before landing.

John L. Sullivan—Right-hand swing to the jaw.

Frank Erne — Snappy left-hand jab.

Terry McGovern — Overhand right-hand wallop to the jaw.

If dreams come true, Jack Johnson is doomed to defeat. Jeffries dreamed recently that he put the big black out in four rounds. Many persons believe dreams go by contraries. The following story of his vision as told by Big Jeff is interesting enough for reproduction:

"Four rounds was all the fight went, and I won with a left hook to the jaw. As I remember the thing now, it was a very warm day. I had never fought in the open air before and the light kept me squinting all the time. Johnson and I tossed a coin for corners and he won, taking the chair with the sun to his back. In my corner the sun was right in my eyes, and Kid McCoy, who was behind me, held a parasol over my head as I sat there waiting for the bell to ring. He kept telling me funny stories. Tim McGrath was a great fellow for taking a man's mind off the fight by telling these stories, and McCoy had me giggling like a big kid at the jokes.

"I was a bit nervous at that. My first real fight in about seven years, you know, and the mob, buzzing and looking at me, like gawks, made me fidgetty. I don't remember about the first three rounds except that I missed a lot. My eye wasn't right for distance. I could see Johnson's black, shining head in front of me, but every time I let go it seemed that he wasn't there. The sun was awfully warm on my head and shoulders. It reminded me of the night I fought Sharkey. They had about 10,000 electric lights over the ring for the moving pictures and it was like fighting in an oven.

"Old Billy Jordan was the referee—yes, I remember Bill hopping around. Seems funny having Jordan as referee, but I remember that we had an awful fuss over the referee and finally all hands decided that Billy was the one man who suited us all.

"The sun that day was low, and if I ever got that side of the ring where it hit me in the face I always backed around until I had Johnson over there and had my back to it.

"My mouth was swollen from jabs, I remember, and it felt as though a bee had stung me. Neither one of us was bleeding at all. I know that my lips bothered me and the knuckle on my right hand was bad from where I belted Johnson on the head. When I went to my corner in the third round McCoy told me to slam when Johnson did and that the chances of a clean punch were better if I could connect.

"We got close together after the bell and exchanged punches to the body. I know mine seemed to sting him, as he fell on my shoulder just for a second after we landed. Some one, or rather all, in my corner were waving their hands to rush him. I waded in and forced him toward his corner. He shot out his left at my nose again and I hooked the left over on his chin.

"'There he goes!' they yelled. He fell on the ropes and just sank like a brick chimney hit in the middle by a cannon ball. His knees sagged and refused the weight of his body. His head hit the lower rope and as Jordan counted 10 seconds off I stood against the post in my corner. I could hear the howls, 'Jeff wins! Jeff wins!'

"I guess I was so excited that I woke up and then again I heard, 'Jeff wins!' I rubbed my eyes and sat up to listen. It was Berger on the phone in the hall telling Gotch that I won a bet from him that we left to Berger to decide. 'Yes, Jeff wins,' Berger kept saying, and then I jumped out of bed to tell him about the dream.

"I'm pretty good on dreams and think that one will come true surely. The very fact of me knocking him out with my left is so true that it makes me feel good. I never knocked a man out in my life with a right-hand punch. I never put all of my force into a punch, either, except in this dream, and I sure did unbutton that with a vengeance."

Football Captains Elected.

In elections recently held captains of football teams for 1910 were elected as follows: Frederick J. Daly, Yale; Butzer, Illinois, and James Dean, Wisconsin.

Hyland to Captain Iowa.

Mark William Hyland of Des Moines is Iowa's new captain. He was chosen as the leader of the 1910 team at a banquet in Kansas City.

COUGHING BURST BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in 5 Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion; and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief, as found in patent cough medicines, and whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion. A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the cause, except it be consumption. Don't wait for consumption to grasp its victim, but begin this treatment, which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

GOOD WORK IS LOVED WORK

And Therein One Should Find the Contentment That Is Chief Part of Life.

If a man doesn't love his work, he had better get something else to do. But the trouble is that such people will hardly love any kind of work. The trouble is in them. They lack intelligence. If they knew enough to know good work, they would soon learn to love it. The manual-training scheme has this in view—to surround the job a man is doing with such intelligence and taste as will make it attractive to him.

"The man who is in love with his job gets more contentment out of life than any other," says Brander Matthews; and he gets a great part of his contentment in doing his work right. No man can love his work who shirks. No man can be contented who is dishonest about his work. This is shirking or doing it negligently. So these things always go together—honest work, contentment and love of the job.

AGONIZING ITCHING.

Eczema for a Year—Got No Relief Even at Skin Hospital—In Despair

Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I was troubled with a severe itching and dry, scrufy skin on my ankles, feet, arms and scalp. Scratching made it worse. Thousands of small red pimples formed and these caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so, the chief surgeon saying: "I never saw such a bad case of eczema." But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. After suffering agonies for twelve months, I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment. I continued its use, combined with Cuticura Soap and Pills, and I was completely cured. Henry Searle, Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 10, 1907."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

Detected.

The consul in London of a continental kingdom was informed by his government that one of his countrywomen, supposed to be living in Great Britain, had been left a million of money. After advertising without result, he applied to the police, and a smart young detective was set to work.

When a few weeks had gone by his chief asked him how he was going on.

"I've found the lady, sir."

"Good! Where is she?"

"At my place. I got married to her yesterday!"

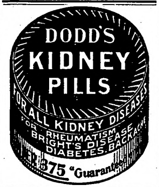
Anti LaGrippe Remedy.

It is now claimed by several western medical men that a whiskey mixture obtainable at any drug store is an absolute preventative and quick cure for bad colds and lagrippe. To make this powerful system tonic add one ounce of compound fluid balmwort and two ounces of glycerine to a half-pint of good whiskey. Dose, a tablespoonful three to six times a day.

Decollette.

Lady in Box—Can you look over my shoulder?

Man from Country—I've just been lookin' over both of 'em, an', by gosh, they're all right!—Houston Post.



WE BUY FURS AND HIDES

10 to 50% more money for you to ship Raw Furs, Horse and Cattle Hides to us than to sell at home. Write for Price List, market report, shipping tags. $10,000 BOOK Hunters' and Trappers' Guide Best thing on the subject ever written. Illustrating all Fur Animals. Leather bound, 450 pages. Price $2.00. To Hide and Fur Shippers, $1.25. Write today. ANDERSCH BROS., Dept. 114 Minneapolis, Minn.

Woman's Daring Deed.

In southern Tunis lies an extensive salt marsh desert called the Shott Jerid, of which the Arabs stand in terror, for many a caravan has been lost in the salt incrusted morass, which, according to De Lesseps is as much as 1,200 feet deep in places. This region has been crossed for the first time in a small automobile by a woman, Myriam Harry, a well-known French novelist.

If the women are to be credited, every married woman finally dies of a broken heart, and every old bachelor has had his heart buried in a grave for years.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia never could get along with Hamlins Wizard Oil. Wizard Oil always drives them away from the premises in short order.

Everyone can do his best thing easiest.—Emerson.

WE PAY HIGH PRICE FOR HIDES and furs & sell guns and traps cheap. N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis.

We help ourselves when we help others.—W. J. Bryan.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the old reliable cough remedy. Found in every drug store and in practically every home. For sale by all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.

The first step toward keeping your mouth shut is to close it.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic 25c a bottle.

Better a poor man at large than a rich man in jail.

Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S ITTLE
IVER
PILLS.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

GENUINE must bear signature:

Brent Good

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 920

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 158-163 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

SHIP RAW FURS AT ONCE

WULFSOHN GANSS FUR CO., Inc.

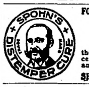
Capital $50,000.00 216 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

The only Minneapolis house which has branches in New York, Leipzig and London. Ship your raw furs to us, then you are sure to get full values and a square sort.

	Ex. Lge.	Lge.	Med.	Small	II	III	IV
SKUNK—	$4.25	$3.50	$3.00	$3.25	$2.00	$2.00	$ .75—1.00
RACCOON—	3.25	2.75	1.75	1.25	1.50	.75	$ .50

	Winter	Lge. Fall	Small Fall	Kitts.
RATS—	$ .45	$ .40	$ .30	$ .10

Prompt Returns. We pay express charges.



FOR PINK EYE DISTEMPER CATARRHAL FEVER AND ALL NOSE AND THROAT DISEASES

Cures the sick and acts as a preventive for others. Liquid given on the tongue. Safe for brood mares and all others. Best kidney remedy; 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle; $5.00 and $10.00 the dozen. Sold by all druggists and horse goods houses, or sent express paid, by the manufacturers.

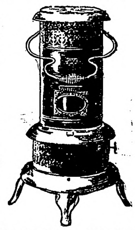
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists. GOSHEN, INDIANA

When Cold Winds Blow

When cold winds blow, biting frost is in the air, and back-draughts down the chimney deaden the fires, then the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)



shows its sure heating power by steadily supplying just the heat that is needed for comfort.

The Perfection Oil Heater is unaffected by weather conditions. It never fails. No smoke—no smell—just a genial, satisfying heat. The new prevents the wick being turned too high. Removed in an instant.

Automatic Smokeless Device

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

W·L·DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

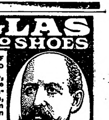
Fast Color Eyelets

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.



BOY'S SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog.—W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

Christmas Customs of Every Land Seen in Washington

By EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY W.A. PATTERSON

CHRISTMAS PARTY OF PAN-AMERICAN YOUNG PEOPLE

WASHINGTON not only has a United States Christmas celebration but it has the festivities that mark the Christmas season in all the civilized nations of the world. At the Russian embassy there is a Christmas fete after the manner of the people in the land of the czar; there are French doings at the great European republic's official residence, and there is the genuine old English Christmas at the home of the British ambassador, and so one may go on through the entire list of foreign representatives, not even barring the embassies of China and Japan, where in honor of the day, as Christian nations view it, the oriental officials have holiday dinners.

The South American people make much of Christmas. It is the great feast day in all Latin-American countries and the ambassadors and attaches and their families do not forget the customs of their native lands simply because for a few seasons they have been transplanted to new scenes. The "open house" is the order of the day in nearly every official residence in Washington after the family has had its own intimate celebration of the holiday. Large families are the rule rather than the exception among the ambassadors and ministers from the southern European and from the Central and South American countries. The children have a gala time of it at home and then the visiting begins. The presents that are purchased and stored temporarily in the embassies are not all for the adults and children of the household. The probable visitors of the day are borne in mind and as a little Brazilian boy in Washington put it once: "I have had ten Christmases in ten hours."

CHINESE STUDENTS AT CHRISTMAS REUNION AT CHINESE LEGATION

Church going on Christmas day is the rule in Washington. Some persons have been unkind enough to say that all the American officials go to church on Christmas because the fact is very apt to get into the newspapers and "it reads well at home." The majority of the Central American and South American diplomats temporarily resident in Washington, are nominally at least good churchmen, and they attend service as a matter of training and as a matter of course. Practically all the women from the Latin-American countries are religiously devout, and with them church going on Christmas is a matter of duty that is not to be neglected under any circumstances. No child is allowed to miss church and the result is that all the capital city temples of worship are well filled on the feast day.

President Taft always has been a regular attendant at church and his service going since he became president establishes no precedent. Mrs. Taft and the children are Episcopalians, while the president is a Unitarian, and so it is that Sundays and other church days are the only days in the year that the family becomes in a sense divided. The president attends service at the Unitarian church of All Souls, of which the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce is the pastor. Mrs. Taft and the children are regular attendants at St. John's Episcopal church which in years past was attended by so many presidents of the United States that it came to be known semi-jocosely as "the Church of State." Mrs. Roosevelt and her children also attended St. John's on Sundays and Christmas days, while Mr. Roosevelt went to the little German Reformed church on Fifteenth street, and rarely missed a service.

This Christmas season the majority of the members of both houses of congress are in the capital city. Time was, and not so long ago, that senators and representatives took their families and went home to spend the holiday season, but now, for financial reasons, the national legislators in the main elect to stay in Washington for their holiday making. Prior to the passage of the last railroad rate bill most of the members of congress had passes on the railroads. Now they have to pay their way when they travel and for those who live at a distance from Washington this means a considerable expenditure of money in case they desire to go home at Christmas.

Every employe of the White House is given a Christmas turkey by the president. This is a custom of many years standing, and only once or twice has it been broken. The clerks in the departments, and there are many thousands of them, not only get a Christmas holiday, but are allowed to leave their work at noon on the day previous in order that they may do their Christmas shopping. The lot of the department clerk in Washington is not a hard one, as far as the matter of holidays is concerned. Every employe is given a month's leave on full pay in each year, and is allowed another month "to be sick in." This last statement means, of course, only that if an employe is ill he or she receives full pay for one month on receipt of the physician's certificate that the illness has been real. The clerks get seven or eight holidays each year, and these, taken in connection with the month's leave, and with the fact that the hours of work number only seven and a half each day, make the laboring condition of the department clerk fairly comfortable.

Washington's Christmas is always a green Christmas, even if there is snow on the ground, for in this latitude there are many trees and shrubs that hold their leaves and their color all through the year. As a matter of fact there is rarely any snow in the capital city that is worthy of the name. All last winter, save for a few hours, the streets were bare of snow. Then came March 4th, Inauguration day, and a record-making blizzard with a downfall of snow, hail and rain mixed. The holly is always green and so are the wild honeysuckle and the laurel, trees and plants that are abundant along the Potomac.

President Roosevelt was, as everyone knows, a nature lover. He took every opportunity that offered to get away from the city. His daily walks and rides took him far into the country, and on Christmas day during the last four years of his term of office he went to Pine Knot, a wooded, mountain country place that belonged to his wife. Mr. Roosevelt stayed in Washington until the festivities of the day were over and the children had a chance to take account of their presents, and then he left for the log cabin in Virginia where he could sit in front of a huge open fire with a genuine "old Christmas" back log. On these Christmas outings Mr. Roosevelt did a little rabbit shooting and tried to do some turkey shooting, but the major part of the day time he spent in the fields armed only with an opera glass, with which he studied the winter birds, always with an eye sharpened to the possibility of finding some species that was rare.

SPANISH MINISTER AND SECRETARY STARTING ON ROUND OF CALLS

President Taft loves nature, too, in a way, but he is not much of a tramper excepting where the walk leads over the golf links on which he spends his holiday afternoons, Christmas included, for in Washington because of the comparative mildness of the climate, the game of golf is possible nearly every day in the year.

There are several hundred officers of the army and navy stationed in Washington, most of them being detailed for office work in the departments for a term of four years. The naval officers perhaps enjoy their holiday-making in the capital more than do their brothers of the army, for the sailors have been compelled to spend many Christmases at sea away from their wives and families, while here they may gather their families about them and not break any sea regulations in so doing. The army officer, whether he goes to the Philippines or to some distant frontier post, ordinarily takes his family with him and so Christmas day does not to him necessarily bring with it the sense of loneliness and homesickness that it brings to the man at sea.

In the biological survey, which is a bureau of the department of agriculture, there are many scientists at work. Most of these men have spent a large part of their lives in the wilds studying birds and mammals, and shells, plants and fishes, to say nothing of reptiles. The office life is irksome to these scientists. They belong to the free air, the barren plains, and the pine forests. So it is that on every holidy that brings with it a release from office cares, they take to the open fields. About the hills in many places about Washington on Christmas day there are to be seen the little camp fires of the scientists who are cooking their mid-day Christmas dinners under the open sky.

Some time ago all the bird students in the United States were asked, if they could, to make a trip afield on Christmas day and to make a list of the birds that they found. Thousands of bird lovers followed the suggestion and are still following it. Each one of the students turns in a report to a central headquarters giving the names of the birds that on Christmas day fell under his observation. As a result of this practice the Washington scientists have many valuable notes concerning "out of season" birds. For instance, the report came to Washington on a Christmas or two ago, that on the holiday four mocking birds were seen and positively identified in the fields near Boston, Mass. Other birds were reported from other northern localities, birds that in the ordinary course of things ought to have been far south of the Mason and Dixon line. So it is that a Washington Christmas day idea has been made to serve the ends of science.

It has been said that in years past a great many of the senators and representatives in congress went home to spend the holidays, but that now the practice largely has passed. An exception should be made for the past, and the present, as well, in the cases of those senators and members who have in charge legislation which has been proposed in bill form at the opening of the session of congress. When bills are introduced they are at once referred to committees and if the measures are of importance the chairmen of the committees to which they have been sent, make a study of them in order that their merits and demerits may be determined. In some cases this means long and continued study and it is not at all an unusual thing to find a committee chairman giving over the joys of the home life on Christmas day to consult precedents and to formulate arguments to be used for or against some proposed legislation, and to find him doing this in the seclusion of a stuffy office room on Christmas day.

A good many Washington people, especially those who came here from the south, go over into Virginia to hunt on Christmas day. In parts of the Old Dominion fox hunting is still the order of the winter day, and if the fox is not in evidence there are always rabbits and quail, while on the lower Potomac and in the marshes along Chesapeake bay in open winters, the ducks and the geese are fairly abundant. The outdoor life appeals strongly to the southerner, and in many cases the northerners who have come to the Potomac country have formed the hunting habit and join the Christmas day outing parties of their southern cousins.

Christmas is the great holiday of Washington. From high to low the people make the most of it. There is good cheer everywhere evident and charity is not forgotten.

MISS KIYO TAKAHIRA, DAUGHTER OF THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR

AMERICA'S CHRISTMAS THE BEST OF ALL

An occasional Jersey commuter, familiar with the religious section of Barclay street, is commonly the only sort of American in New York who knows a presepio by sight. Yet the presepio is the sign of the Latin Christmas, as the fir tree is of the northern. The manger of the Barclay street windows shows only the inside of the stable, with the figures and the cattle done in Italian terra cotta. But the real presepio in its native land may show the whole countryside as well, and if the pilgrims wending their way to the manger are good Sicilian peasants, bearing good Sicilian wine and cheese on their donkeys, they are only the more interesting.

St. Francis, born in the quaint little town of Assisi among the brown Umbrian hills, in 1182, invented the presepio to make the Christmas story plain to the simple, illiterate common people. During the 800 years since it has remained a favorite devotion in Latin Europe. The Italian and Spanish call it the presepio, the manger; the French the creche, the cradle; and the Hungarians and Belgians, Betleim, or Bethlehem.

Only a few years since not a carpenter could be hired in Rome or Naples for weeks before Christmas. They were all busy erecting presepios in the homes of the quality, while the poorer folk were constructing their own. As the mainland grows more sophisticated the quaint old devotion is fading away; but in conservative Sicily people still make the presepio every year as they dress Christmas trees in New York. All over the island families are busy from December 1 to 15 putting their old presepios in order, or making new ones; and there is much calling to and fro to compare results and admire new and elaborate specimens of the art. The presepio may be a little thing on a stand in one corner, or it may occupy the whole side of a room.

It may represent a whole mountain side, made of the rough, flexible bark or the cork tree. Peaks, crags and precipices abound, with winding trails, houses and castles of colored cardboard, forests of twigs and sometimes tiny pipes to furnish brooks and lakes. In the center is the grotto, with the holy family within. A sky of blue paper is stretched above, with the Star of Bethlehem conspicuous, and over the hills come the shepherds bearing the gifts to the babe.

Spain, like Sicily, has never lost the presepio, and in both Spanish and Sicilian cities there are booths for the sale of miniature shepherds, magi and all the accessories of the art. In France the creche is not made at home, as in the southern countries, but it used to be a part of the Christmas decorations of every French church, and is still so in the rural districts. Many a polished cosmopolite of Paris can remember working busily for days before Christmas in his childhood to help freshen up and rejuvenate the creche of his parish church in some little village of France. In the villages close by Paris to-day children who go about the streets singing Christmas carols carry a little creche in a box upon their shoulders.

The manger typifies the difference between the Latin and the Teuton Christmas. The Latin Christmas is a purely religious festival, as much so as any other feast of the church. It has no particularly domestic or social quality. Italian children never get presents on Christmas day. That is done on All Souls' day, in October, when they believe—if they are very small—that the spirits of their departed relatives have come back in the night and left presents for them; undoubtedly a very ancient relic of ancestor worship. It is the great Teuton family of nations that give presents to children on Christmas day. And the Christmas tree came out of the vast forests where dwelt the heathen German and Scandinavian tribes. It is, in fact, a pagan relic, passed down from primitive forest dwellers and worshippers. Where Celt, Slav or Latin use it, they have borrowed it.

France, half Latin and half Celt, dashed with Gaul and Viking, is a family by herself in this, as in everything. She builds the manger in the churches, but at home, though she seldom dresses a Christmas tree, little Babette and Pierre set their shoes by the fireplace instead of hanging up their stockings. Pierre and Babette, if they are very small indeed, believe that "le petit Jesus" or "le petit Noel"—"the little Jesus" or "the little Christmas"—have brought the gifts. But the average French child is as sophisticated as young America, and Pierre has to be a very little boy indeed, to believe in "le petit Jesus." No French or Italian child ever hears of Santa Claus till he comes to America; by which it may be gathered that that good saint was strictly German, and when he emigrated, came to America like all the rest of the Germans.

The growth of the typical American Christmas, with its universal Christmas greens and present-giving, is a curious phenomenon. It has no roots in American history. The original settlers of New England never observed it. The Dutch of New Amsterdam scarcely noticed it, but made New Year's the great, joyous, popular festival. Within the memory of old people still living Christmas passed unobserved in New York, while all holiday merrymaking centered in New Year's day. Modern America has built up a Christmas festival of its own, and has rejected definitely the religious feast in favor of the social and domestic one. In one way, however, the American Christmas is more religious than any and all the Latin church feasts put together. One who has lived through a year's changing round of saints' days in Italy, in all of which no work is done and the people take holiday, will observe that the thought of the people never goes out to those in need. The abounding giving of an American Christmas; the uneasy, uncomfortable feeling that every child, at least, must have, if possible, a good dinner and a present on Christmas day, is quite unknown in the Latin countries.

The feeling that poor old bums and hoboes, even the criminals in their prisons, the paupers in their almshouses, the beggars, the unworthy—all ought to have something good to eat on that day, and a little Christmas cheer in some form—is part of the American Christmas.

The races that come to the melting pot of America keep their home Christmas for only a few years after they arrive. Then they drift off into a more or less Americanized Christmas.

For a few years after they come, also, they try to eat their traditional dishes at Christmas time. The Hungarian housemother makes the Christmas cakes which a long line of ancestral cooks made before her across seas. They are round balls of dough, covered with honey and poppy seed, and then baked. The Bohemians and Poles also make poppy seed cakes, each in a different style. The Sicilian housewife, too, has a traditional Christmas cake. It is a ring of dough with a hole in the middle—the Italian doughnut, in fact—which is fried, sprinkled with sugar and eaten hot.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1909. NO. 39.

Gossip of Washington

What Is Going On at the National Capital.

He Calls Mrs. Snowball a Model Hen

ANTI-RACE SUICIDE MEDAL

WASHINGTON.—For 20 years James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, has been sounding the praises of the American hen. He has shown by statistics, pictures, reports, omelets, soft-boiled eggs and spring chickens that the American hen beats the world. She is not the possessor of great personal beauty, she does not aspire to be a butterfly of fashion, but is a very fine representative of the housewife type of chicken. If fine feathers made fine birds she would not be in it. For the peacock is a dazzler and the rooster struts with an air that cannot be imitated by his more modest companion who does the housework and scratches around for the children. But the hen, by keeping steadily at work and doing the best she can, has been enabled to enrich this country by more good dollars than all the silver mines of the west and all the gold of the Klondike. Statistics show that in a

For generations Maryland has been famous for her chickens, and whether they were fried a la Maryland or were laid to rest in the old-fashioned pie, they have served their country well and have left pleasant memories behind them. It is all the more gratifying to record that out of the heart of the fried-chicken belt has come this phenomenal hen.

According to the records, she not only lays two eggs a day, but sometimes varies it by contributing three. All are perfectly fresh and suitable for family use. If she can keep up her record for a year this will mean 730 eggs, with a few extra for Christmas and the Fourth of July. If all the eggs grow up into chickens Mrs. Snowball would soon have enough descendants to cluck around the world. She deserves a medal from Secretary Wilson and a cablegram from Col. Roosevelt for her efforts to prevent race suicide.

Mrs. Snowball is a model hen. She never worries about the fashions in feathers; she is not forever running off to some barnyard by the sea or chicken house in the mountains; she does not try to shine at bridge or outscratch her neighbors. She stays at home, looks after Mr. Snowball and the children and attends strictly to business. Wherefore will she be remembered wherever the egg is held in honor and the chicken in esteem.

Woman Causes a Big Scare in a Bank

A HEAVILY veiled woman, well dressed and with an aristocratic bearing, rushed into a Washington bank and up to the window of the receiving teller. A number of people were standing in line waiting to deposit money. The man nearest the window held in his hands a large roll of bills and before him on the marble counter lay a leather bag in which he carried his gold coin to the bank.

With a swift glance at the teller and no word of explanation to the man waiting she made a quick grab at the bag and turned hurriedly to leave the building. The man at the window cried, "Stop!" a policeman came running to his assistance one hand clutched at his pistol pocket, several women in the long line of waiting patrons showed signs of fainting and the wildest excitement prevailed. Had a bank robber descended in the guise of a fashionable woman?

"Put back that money!" demanded as with one voice the banker, the policeman and all the men standing in line at the window.

"Why, certainly. I will," said the woman who had caused all the excitement and who, by this time thoroughly alarmed at the cries of everyone about her, ventured an explanation. "I owe you all an apology, I believe. I was here a moment ago and forgot a pair of gloves. I left in a great hurry and must have left them here at the window. I had only a few minutes to catch my train to Baltimore and mistook that gentleman's money bag for them. They are just exactly that color, you know."

Her explanation was sufficient and smiles spread over the alarmed faces.

"Good joke," voted the huge guardian of the peace, who breathed freely again and sauntered away.

Really Is a Jag in a Georgia Melon

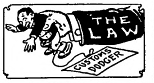
THE department of agriculture has come along with some good news for those citizens in southern Indiana who, when arrested last fall for conducting "blind tigers," set up as a defense that they had become intoxicated from eating watermelons. The department has not yet analyzed the Indiana brand of melons, but it asserts there is a "jag" in the Georgia melons.

Of course it is carefully concealed, and much care and labor is required to extract it, but it is there just the same. The department has proved this beyond doubt. Out of 100 pounds of watermelons experts in chemistry made one-tenth of a gallon of alcohol. They also have convicted the humble sweet potato of possessing another spree. Secretary Wilson announced the discovery of a criminal tendency in the watermelon heretofore unsuspected.

"We have been experimenting with every sort of fruit and vegetable that contains sugar," said Mr. Wilson, "the watermelon, pears, apples, peaches, plums, pumpkins, muskmelons, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, beets and other vegetables. The watermelon surprised us. We never expected it of it. The purpose is to develop the cheapest kind of denatured alcohol for use as fuel.

"The experiments have been made to benefit the seacoast portion of the south, from Virginia down the Atlantic around Florida and along the gulf. Sweet potatoes can be grown cheaply in the sand of these sections. One bushel of sweet potatoes will make a gallon of alcohol. The product is a better and cheaper fuel than benzine."

How the Government Loses Millions



INSTITUTION of criminal prosecutions against perpetrators of "sleeper trunk" customs frauds with ramifications in all parts of the country; the pressing of existing indictments to avoid lapses under the statute of limitations and the customs investigation generally were discussed at a conference at the treasury department recently. Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, Attorney General Wickersham, Collector Loeb of the port of New York, and United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise of the southern district of New York, participated.

The "sleeper trunk" frauds, whereby goods are brought into this country in trunks with false bottoms to deceive the inspectors, stretch to many parts of the United States, though passing only through the port of New York in the cases about to be prosecuted.

Beyond the generalization of millions of dollars nobody officially can estimate the amount of taxes thus evaded. Most of the violators of law in this respect are dressmakers. The government has a good deal of evidence along this line, and the prosecutions for this form of wholesale dishonesty promises to be of a sensational character.

Collector Loeb expressed the opinion that the "sleeper trunk" frauds could no longer be carried on successfully under the rules he has adopted. These provide for a new stamp arrangement for trunks and a limitation of the hours a trunk may remain on the docks.

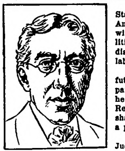
Backward.

"Why is it your wife and you never quarrel?"

"We found out years ago that that was exactly the wrong way to arrive at a peaceable agreement."—Cleveland Leader.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

JUDGE URGES A NEW PARTY



Judge Peter S. Grosscup of the United States court of appeals, writing in the North American Review under the caption, "Prosperity with Justice," advocates the rise of a new political party committed to the policy of an equal distribution among all men of the fruits of their labor.

Judge Grosscup holds that the society of the future must be founded on "a proprietary copartnership in corporate success," and adds that he is now ready to renounce his loyalty to the Republican party in favor of a new party which shall have for its purpose the establishment of a policy of justice and equity to all mankind.

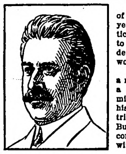
The period of awakening in America, says Judge Grosscup, came with the administration of Mr. Roosevelt.

Judge Grosscup believes that the present administration is not only failing to carry out the policies inaugurated by Col. Roosevelt, but is assuming a reactionary attitude which is making the burden of the worker more oppressive and intolerable than before. Hence the need of a fresh party. As to the actual work for reform accomplished by the former president, Judge Grosscup says:

"The central figure of this period (the period of awakening) was President Roosevelt. There are those blind enough to the faults of this remarkable man to see in him a greater man than Lincoln; and those blind enough to his virtues not to see in him the extraordinary insight that gave to him, as to Lincoln, his leadership among men. But no one saw more clearly than Mr. Roosevelt that his administration had accomplished little in the actual work of reframing the laws to carry out its spirit—no one saw more clearly than he that his work was chiefly that of a preacher of righteousness.

"To his successor—wholly selected by himself—was left the constructive work that was expected to be done. Roosevelt had summoned the people, had impaneled them as a great jury before whom to frame and to whom to submit, one after another, the constructive proposals that would carry out the purpose of the awakening. The proposals themselves he left to be framed and submitted by his successor.

GREAT LAWYER SAVES WOMAN

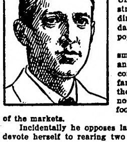


When Samuel Untermyer of New York, one of the greatest of the country's corporation lawyers, was appointed several weeks ago by Justice Malone of the supreme court of New York to defend Augusta Crisinti, charged with the murder of her husband, the bar was amazed and wondered what he would do with the case.

Mr. Untermyer had not been connected with a murder case for years. He had not been inside a courtroom in connection with a case of such minor importance in a long while and necessarily his friends believed he had forgotten many of the tricks that make criminal lawyers successful. But the "doubting Thomases" didn't take into consideration the kind of man they had to deal with.

When the court appoints a lawyer for a person too poor to retain legal counsel the attorney is allowed $500 as a fee. To Mr. Untermyer $500 means nothing, so it was not to get the money, as subsequent events show, that he entered the case with such zeal. He worked night and day for the poor Italian woman. He spent $1,000 out of his own pocket and when the jury came in with a verdict of "not guilty" Mr. Untermyer gave the $500 the state owed him to the prisoner. He had saved her life and given her what seemed to her a fortune, more money than she had ever had in her life.

PLEADS FOR RACE SUICIDE



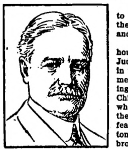
With Theodore Roosevelt in far-away Africa, no one yet has taken up the cudgel to defend the former president's anti-race-suicide theory, which has been assailed by Prof. Scott Nearing of the University of Pennsylvania. Prof. Nearing is instructor of economics, and he sees as one of the direst perils which confront this country the danger of overproduction in only one thing—population.

Prof. Nearing has launched the doctrine of smaller families on the basis that large families and many of them are likely to eat up all the contents of the national larder and create a famine. He ascribes the high cost of food to the increase of large families, and evidently has no faith in the stories about vast quantities of food being destroyed to prevent the overloading of the markets.

Incidentally he opposes large families n the ground that woman should devote herself to rearing two or three children in a proper manner rather than bearing three or four times that number to overcrowd the schools and keep the baker busy.

"Race suicide is a good thing," is the way the professor puts it, "because it prevents an increase in population greater than can be provided for. It also means an easy life for women. How can they enjoy life when they spend their prime in bearing children?

NEW MINISTER TO CHINA



William J. Calhoun is to be the new minister to China. The Chicago lawyer at first declined the post, but later reconsidered his determination and accepted it.

President Taft was ready to appoint Mr. Calhoun to the federal bench, to the place given Judge Carpenter, if he would take it, say those in touch with things at the White House. These men were not surprised to learn that he was being pressed to go to China. Mr. Calhoun stirred Chicago political circles as late as November 6, when addressing the Marquette club members in the presence of Senator Cummins of Iowa, he fearlessly defended the "insurgents" at Washington. Politicians generally felt that the speech brought the Chicago lawyer back into the political field and it is said those who did not agree with Calhoun began to fear the influence he might have.

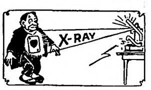
Born in Pittsburg, Pa., in 1848, Mr. Calhoun has long been a commanding figure in Illinois and the nation. In 1896 he took up the cause of the late President McKinley and did much to swing Illinois' delegation to the McKinley column in the national convention.

In 1898 Mr. Calhoun was named a member of the interstate commerce commission, serving until 1900, in which year he moved to Chicago. In 1905 he was selected as a special commissioner to Venezuela, when an international crisis was impending. His report, made then, has formed the basis for America's action ever since in maintaining the principles of the Monroe doctrine.

City Items in Terse Form

Metropolitan News of Interest to All Readers

Hides His Misplay by Eating a Card



NEW YORK.—It wasn't the stake involved that caused A. B. Hudson, a Wall street broker, to invent a heart sandwich, for money means little to him. It was the vaunting pride in his ability to play bridge.

John W. Gates, John A. Drake, Hudson, popularly called "Huddy," and a broker were whiling away a long evening in a small game in a private room in an uptown restaurant. Six or seven men, whose names are familiar in Wall street, were present. Opposite Hudson sat Gates, Drake was paired with the broker. Gates' temper had not been improved by the luck in which he was playing.

Finally it came to the rubber and it was a heart make. Five leads had been made when a heart was led. "Huddy" laid a club upon it. Gates lifted his eyebrows. When more trumps had been ignored by "Huddy," Gates burst out with:

"For the love of Mike, man, haven't you got a heart?"

"No, I haven't," responded Hudson sharply; "don't you suppose I know how to play?"

Then he slyly "skinned his hand." There staring at him from behind another card to which it had stuck was the ace of hearts. He had revoked five times; they were playing for a dollar a point and as each revoke penalized him three tricks and as a heart make counted eight, he and his partner were facing a loss of $120 on the deal.

"Gi' me sandwich, quick," he ordered the waiter. "I feel sort o' faint."

"Aw, go on, play the game," commanded his partner.

"All right," he responded, but as he reached for the sandwich he let his cards drop. Stooping he inserted that fatal ace of charts between the slices of what had been a chicken sandwich and devoured it.

As he was chewing it he looked at his cards and broke out: "Hey, I only got two cards."

Each of the others had three.

"It looks like a misdeal," remarked "Huddy," nonchalantly; "too bad, ain't it?" And it was declared a misdeal.

Her High Heel Gave Burglar Liberty

THIS IS SO SUDDEN, LADY

NEW YORK.—Misfortune in the shape of a high-heeled boot and a hole in the carpet overwhelmed Mrs. Edward Patterson just as she was going strong in a chase for a thief from her home, 350 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn.

In recounting the facts it is necessary to state that Mrs. Patterson wears a No. 3A, or thereabouts, and the heel of a No. 3A isn't much broader than a spike. She did not give a pardonable thought to her footgear when she returned from shopping, but opened the door softly and discovered the thief in her bedroom. He was bending over a trunk in which were the family jewels and considerable cash. Mrs. Patterson approached noiselessly—No. 3's properly trod in make little commotion—and threw her arms around the thief's neck.

He wavered an instant between resistance and a longing to enjoy the embrace of his fair captor. Decision came when Mrs. Patterson put on her emergency brake clutch and the thief gurgled. He tried to free himself and, failing, dragged Mrs. Patterson into the hall. She had an abundance of pluck and held fast as she was carried downstairs like a trunk on an expressman's shoulders.

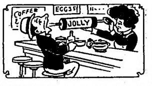
The first chance Mrs. Patterson got to get her feet on the floor was in the lower hall after she had been bumped down three flights. There is a hole in the hall carpet, and as Mrs. Patterson alighted her heel caught in the hole. The thief gave a lunge and "r-r-r-ip!" off went the high heel.

Mrs. Patterson took one step and then almost burst into tears. With her heel gone, she hobbled ridiculously. She just wouldn't appear in the street that way. The thief, therefore, got a good start, and when several men, attracted by Mrs. Patterson's cries, confronted him, he said:

"Please don't stop me! My wife is on a rampage. Just look how she's torn my coat."

So they let him depart, not knowing he had a gold watch, a diamond ring, other jewelry of less value and about $50 in cash.

Men Like Empty Cups, Says Waitress



BOSTON.—"Yes, men are just like a long row of coffee cups. They sit in a line empty and we have to fill 'em up."

This is the way that you look to the girl behind the counter who takes your order for eggs and fish cakes. If you thought that the lady might be impressed with your individuality you are mistaken, the Boston Herald says. This hustling person with the bright smile and pink cheeks is far too busy with her "roast beef rare—sausage and mashed potato—hurry up those eggs—doughnuts, doughnuts, more doughnuts," to see you in your true light.

"Land, yes, men are all alike. They want what they want and they want it quick. If their order does not come right up you catch it. If you try to hurry the chef you catch it again.

"Now there are the grouches, plenty of them. It is funny—though not so funny, either—that most of them come in in the morning. You know how it is yourself when you have just got up. You feel like a fried egg slapped out of the pan before it got fried. You go downtown, sidle up to a lunch counter and growl for something to eat.

Newest Dog Food May Conquer Arctic

CHICAGO.—The latest product of Packingtown is to be tried out on the dog—literally. It will be tried on Eskimo dogs at that. A corps of experts now is scourin Greenland from coast to coast to find the hundred strongest dogs in that ice-locked region, and it is the appetites of these dogs that Chicago's food specialists are to cater to.

Capt. Ronald Amundsen is to take these 100 powerful canines on shipboard in his seven years' cruise for the far recesses of the Arctic ocean, and when the explorer left Chicago yesterday, after conferences covering many days with the food chemists at the stockyards, it was learned today, he carried samples of a new delicacy to tickle the appetite of dogdom, sharpened by the already famous arctic cliamte.

Reduced to its elements in the laboratory test tubes, the new dog biscuit—for it looks rather more like a biscuit than any other known article of diet—promises to supply all of the ingredients to sustain canine life. The formula showing the units of fat and protein has convinced the scientists that if the success of Capt. Amundsen's invasion of the far north depends upon the strength of his dog teams, Packingtown is ready to make that success a foregone conclusion.

But Capt. Amundsen is wary. A scientist himself, he knows the limitations of science. It sometimes happens that a food product will measure 100 per cent. perfect in the laboratory test, but fail utterly when its usefulness is carried to the supreme court of gastronomics—the stomach.

"There are some strong features mentioned in Mrs. Fakit's boarding house advertisement."

"Then I'll bet she put in the coffee and left out the butter."

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - MINN

A SPORT-LOVING PEOPLE.

The Anglo-Saxons love sport. No matter in what part of the world they are found, the spirit is strong among them. Wherever the restless Anglo-Saxon dominates, the love of sport is dominant. The Americans are—at least, the most of them—descendants of this virile race, and nowhere is the love of sport so much exhibited as in this country. Our people are patrons of horseracing, of baseball, of golf, of football, of all out-of-door sports as no other people. The English are great sportsmen, but not to the extent that Americans are, for the reason that the opportunities are greater here. Nor does the nation suffer from this propensity. We are told, of course, by some of our college thinkers that our young men indulge too much in athletics, that this indulgence is a detriment rather than a benefit to the boys; that because of the "fad," as these wiseacres term it, we are injuring the physical powers of the boys. We do not take much stock in this sort of pessimism. Here and there a few may overdo themselves and fall by the wayside; but athletic competition has never, in our judgment, seriously injured American youth. On the contrary, it has developed in them muscle, courage and self-reliance, requisites to good health and ultimate success when they are called upon to lay aside athletics for the more serious cares of life.

Evidence accumulates that Bering sea covers a center of great seismic and volcanic activity. The commander of a revenue cutter reports to the treasury department that he has investigated Bogoslof island, the frequent changes in which have been of much scientific interest, and that he steamed all around the island, taking soundings the entire way and finding bottom only at one place, where the lead touched at a depth of 45 fathoms. Steam jets arise from a lake in the center of the island, and the conclusion is that the island is the summit of a volcano and that the lake is the crater. Bogoslof island has perpetrated some curious stunts from time to time, and volcanic origin seems to explain them. Uncle Sam came into possession of many interesting things when he acquired Alaska.

The news that the old mining camp of Virginia City, Nev., is sinking into the deep canyon along the side of which it was built indicates an inglorious end for a town which once attained some prominence. Virginia City grew out of the opening of the Comstock lode, and the Comstock lode formerly was among the greatest silver producers in the world. Considerable gold was also found there. At one time the lode yielded wealth at the rate of $10,000,000 annually, and it made great fortunes for the "bonanza" owners. Altogether, between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 in gold and silver was taken from the mines.

If, as is intimated, it turns out that the assassination of Prince Ito, the Japanese statesman, was the result of a far-reaching plot in Korea, the situation in that country may become most serious. Reports from Seoul, the Korean capital, go to show that to many of the people the killing of Ito was "not unpleasing." This attitude suggests greater hostility to Japan and representatives of Japanese power than had been suspected in many quarters. In fact, there appears to be dangerous disaffection throughout the country, and an outbreak would not be surprising.

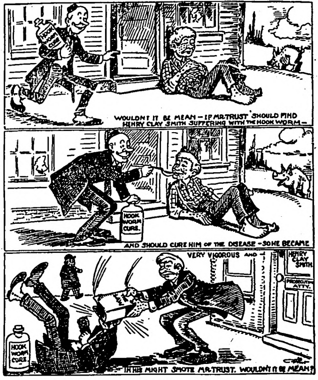
The United States is not the only country in which persons gratify their curiosity or morbid taste by crowding into courtrooms when sensational cases are in progress. Even France, where good taste is presumed to be strongly in evidence if not predominant, has a fair share of those who show similar inclinations, the opening of the Steinheil murder trial in Paris being an illustration. When 25,000 persons apply for admission to a courtroom and when $200 is offered for a place in line "the limit" would seem to have been reached.

College professors calculate that if the birth-rate decrease continues for 150 years there will be no births at all by 2060 A. D. In that case few will survive to the time when men will live 120 years—and those who do will be lonesome.

Halley's comet is growing brighter. It is to be hoped that this is not a baleful sign, as comets are notoriously known to the superstitious as harbingers of bad tidings, generally in the shape of wars and national disasters, and, like some people, brighten at the prospect of other people's troubles coming.

The assassination of Prince Ito only proves again that there is always a brainless crank ready to take the life of a great and good man.

WOULD'T IT BE MEAN?



HOOK WORM CURE
WOULDN'T IT BE MEAN—IF MR. TRUST SHOULD FIND HENRY CLAY SMITH SUFFERING WITH THE HOOK WORM—
HOOK WORM CURE.
AND SHOULD CURE HIM OF THE DISEASE—SO HE BECAME VERY VIGOROUS AND—
HENRY CLAY SMITH
PROSECUTING ATTY.
HOOK WORM CURE
IN HIS MIGHT SMOTE MR. TRUST. WOULDN'T IT BE MEAN?

WILL FIGHT THE STEEL TRUST

ORGANIZED LABOR PREPARES TO OPPOSE "OPEN SHOP."

Copy of Grievances Is Sent to President Taft and Governor of States.

Pittsburg, Pa.—At the close of a momentous two-days' conference here Tuesday, war was formally declared upon the United States Steel corporation by the leaders of organized labor throughout the United States and Canada.

The decision to battle long and hard against the stand taken by the steel corporation in its policy of "open shop" was reached by the labor conferees only after hours of debate and a deal of trouble.

In a resolution adopted by the national labor leaders, organized labor throughout the country is called on to thoroughly and completely organize all employes in the iron, steel and tin plate industry, ordering an assessment of ten cents per member, recommending appointment of committees to see the president, congress and the governors for the purpose of laying before them the "grievances from which labor suffers at the hands of the steel corporation."

At the conference, which passed the remarkable battle decree, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, presided, and through him the measure was put upon the record books of the executive council of the federation.

The grievances of organized labor against the steel corporation, as set forth in the resolution, have been forwarded to President Taft and the United States senate and house of representatives. The governors of the states in which the United States Steel corporation owns plants or has interests will also receive a copy of the resolution.

The resolution deals principally with the low wages paid the men in the employ of the steel corporation, the hours of work and the general condition of oppression under which the corporation is alleged to hold its employes.

Thorough organization of all employes in the iron, steel and tin plate industry and co-related trades is urged and a call for organizers to assist in the work is made.

JOHN W. GATES IN NEW ROLE

Appears Before Methodist Conference and Warns Delegates Against Speculative and Other Gambling.

Galveston, Tex.—John W. Gates, the once prominent Wall street figure, appeared in a new light at the Gulf District Methodist Episcopal conference in session at Port Arthur, when he addressed the gathering of church men and laymen, warning them against speculation and all other forms of gambling.

He pictured the life of a man who gambled, and speculated, and turned fortunes in a few hours, jumping from pauper to millionaire, and then to pauper, as compared with the tiller of the soil, and the mechanic and the merchant, who earns his money by labor and by shrewd business methods, invest well his savings.

Woman in Quantrell Raid Dies.

Emporia, Kan.—Mrs. Sallie McKinney, who, tradition says, led Quantrell and his band into Lawrence on the memorable occasion of the sacking of that town on August 31, 1863, died here after a long illness.

Prison for All Who Aid Strike.

Sydney, N. S. W.—Business has been so demoralized by the miners' strike that the legislature took the drastic step of passing a bill rendering both strike leaders and employes who instigate or aid a strike or lock-out liable to imprisonment for a year.

New Japanese Envoy Arrives.

San Francisco. — Baron Yasupa Uchida, new Japanese ambassador to the United States, arrived here Friday on the liner Tenyo Maru.

COOK COMMITTEE IS AT WORK

Members Are Fully Acquainted with Explorer's Records—Loose-Dunkle Affidavits Create Excitement.

Copenhagen.—The meetings of the Cook committee at the observatory are rigorously guarded.

The committee is now fully acquainted with the explorer's records and it is said that they contain nothing Dr. Cook could not have compiled after his return, during his five months' stay in Greenland or aboard the Hans Egede, where there was an abundance of voluntary assistance by a scientist versed in exploration, a knowledge of instruments and also of the use of a typewriter.

The Loose-Dunkle affidavits have arrived and are creating much excitement.

Private advices from Christiania state that Nansen, who has hitherto declined to give an opinion, disbelieves Dr. Cook's claims.

New York.—Capt. B. S. Osbon of this city, secretary of the Arctic club, has written Capt. Joseph E. Bernier in Ottawa, Ont., and others that Capt. August W. Loose's story of his dealings with Dr. Cook, as published in a New York newspaper, was concocted for sale without regard to the truth.

"In the presence of witnesses," said Capt. Osbon, "I heard Loose say:

"'I was out for the money and I didn't care how I got it.'"

Capt. Osbon does not believe that Loose's narrative as supported by his affidavits, was a part of any plot to discredit Dr. Cook.

"The idea originated with Loose and Dunkle," says Capt. Osbon. "They had for sale matter in this controversy so explosive that nobody dared handle it. When they found that out, they cast about for something else. Dunkle was the promoter. Loose the workman. Also, Dunkle got most of the money. That's what Loose says, and now he is casting around to see where he stands. He's got a conscience and it smarts."

SUGAR CO. PAYS $695,573

Arbuckle Bros. Reimburse United States for Money Due as Customs Duties on Imports.

New York.—Arbuckle Bros., generally credited with being the largest independent rivals of the American Sugar Refining Company, have acknowledged that from 1898 to 1907 they, too, failed to pay the government all the money due as customs charges on imported sugar.

In settlement of all civil claims against them, the Arbuckles have offered and the treasury department, with the concurrence of the attorney general, has accepted payment of $695,573. But criminal prosecution of those responsible will in no wise be hampered or conditioned by this acceptance.

Johnny Thompson Gets Decision.

Kansas City, Mo. — The championship aspirations of "Fighting Dick" Hyland were rudely shattered last night when, after ten rounds of fast milling, Johnny Thompson was awarded the decision over the Californian. The bout was a whirlwind affair, both boys being of the aggressive kind. Thompson twice sent Hyland to the floor.

Gen. W. W. Dudley Dead.

Washington.—Gen. W. W. Dudley of Indiana, formerly commissioner of pensions, died Wednesday of Bright's disease.

To Take Over Potash Mines.

Berlin.—The government of Prussia, which owns three potash mines, has presented to the federal council a bill extending imperial control over the potash production of the country. Many of the existing potash contracts are with American firms.

Blow Up Bank; Steal $2,000.

Lawton, Okla.—Five robbers entered the Citizens' State bank at Geronimo, a small town near here Friday, dynamited the safe and escaped with $2,000 in cash.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

ZELAYA TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION TO NICARAGUAN NATIONAL CONGRESS.

LOOKED UPON AS FORMALITY

Ruler's Action Is Acclaimed by People with Shouts for United States and Estrada—Sends Message to Assembly.

Managua, Nicaragua. — President Zelaya has resigned. He sent his resignation as chief executive to the national congress of the Nicaraguan republic on Thursday.

Five deputies were appointed immediately upon the receipt of the resignation to draft a bill looking to its acceptance, which is now considered a mere formality.

Accompanying his resignation Zelaya sent the following message to congress:

"The painful circumstances into which the country is plunged call for acts of abnegation and patriotism on the part of good citizens, who are the witnesses of the oppression of the republic by the heavy hand of fate. The country is staggering under a shameless revolution which threatens the nation's sovereignty and a foreign nation, unjustly intervenes in our affairs, publicly providing the rebels with arms, which has only resulted in their being defeated everywhere through the heroism of our troops.

"To avoid further bloodshed and for the reason that the revolutionists have declared that they would put down their arms when I surrendered the executive power, I hereby place in the hands of the national assembly the abandonment of the remainder of my term of office, which is to be filled by a substitute of their choosing, with the hope that this will result in good to Nicaragua, the re-establishment of peace and particularly the suspension of the hostility of the United States, to which I do not wish to give a pretext for intervention."

News of the president's action spread throughout the city, and soon great crowds moved through the streets, shouting for the United States, Estrada and the revolution.

Apparently there was no other course for Zelaya to take. The people were aroused. The guns of the revolutionists threatened. The warships of the United States lay in Nicaraguan ports.

Managua has been seething for days. The spirit of revolt has spread even to the gates of the palace. Zelaya surrounded himself with an armed guard. Unchecked, the people have marched through the streets, crying for the end of the old, proclaiming the new regime.

Who will take up the reins no one knows nor cares. There is no doubt that congress will act quickly.

Dr. Jose Madriz, judge of the Central American court of justice at Cartago, who has been close to Zelaya and is now his choice for president, is on his way here.

Madriz has his following strong and influential, even among the revolutionists, but Gen. Estrada, under whose command the great body of fighting insurgents now face Vasquez's troops at Rama, will have none of him.

Estrada's word will bear weight in the choice of president.

Zelaya has known, too, that Madriz is not acceptable to the United States, and he has sought to learn who would be looked upon with favor by that government as his successor, but the American government, so far as can be learned, has named no man and the choice probably will lie with those who have gained the upper hand.

RUSH MARINES TO CORINTO

U. S. S. Buffalo with 700 Men Aboard Gets "Hurry-Up" Sailing Orders—American Citizens Alarmed.

Washington.—The United States ship Buffalo, now at Panama with 700 marines on board, was Friday ordered to sail at once for Corinto.

This action was taken as the result of a telegram received from the United States consulate at Managua, in which it was stated that inasmuch as Zelaya, in his message resigning the presidency, had made unpleasant reference to Americans, and owing to a report which was current in that city to the effect that civilian adherents of Zelaya had been armed with daggers, the citizens of the United States had appealed to the consulate for protection.

Another telegram from the American consulate at Managua states that it is currently rumored there that when Madriz arrives in Managua Zelaya will formally surrender his office to the national assembly, and that that body has already received instructions from Zelaya to cast its vote for Irias as president of Nicaragua.

The conclusion of the United States officers at Managua is that by the selection of Irias, Zelaya would still retain his hold on power and continue to dominate the situation.

Children Burn in Locked House.

Winnipeg, Man.—Two daughters, aged two and five years respectively, of Sydney Masters of Fort Rouge, were burned to death Friday in a fire which destroyed the Masters' home. Mrs. Masters locked the children in the home while she was away.

Henry W. Blodgett Resigns.

Washington.—Henry W. Blodgett, United States attorney for the eastern district of Missouri with headquarters at St. Louis, has resigned and the resignation has been accepted.

KING LEOPOLD PASSES AWAY

AGED MONARCH UNABLE TO LONGER STAND STRAIN.

After Restful Day, Alarming Symptoms Appeared, Physicians Unable to Prolong His Life.

Brussels.—King Leopold of Belgium died at 2:35 o'clock Friday morning, his aged and wasted body being unable to stand the strain put upon it.

The collapse occurred suddenly and at a moment when the doctors seemingly had had the greatest hopes for his recovery.

Apparently the drainage of the wound was perfect, as no fever was present and during the day the king had been able to take nourishment.

The public at large was satisfied that the king was on the road to recovery, but within the pavilion, where the king lay, there was a feeling of anxiety, chiefly because of Leopold's great age.

After a restful day the patient was able to sleep for a brief period early in the evening and the night passed quietly. But towards two o'clock alarming symptoms appeared.

Suddenly the king turned and called to Dr. Thiriar:

"I am suffering."

Dr. De Page was summoned and the two physicians did everything possible to prolong life, but without avail.

The end came quickly and, after a spell of weakness, peacefully.

Prince Albert arrived at the death bed about twenty-five minutes later.

The young man who will ascend the Belgian throne, the pride of his nation and one of the best educated of royalty, a lover of outdoor sports and fair play, wept as he stood beside the remains of the uncle whose death had made him king and across the watching city there swept the cry:

"The king is dead; long live the king!"

Leopold II., king of the Belgians, was born April 9, 1835. His father was Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg, an uncle of the late Queen Victoria. His mother was a daughter of Louis Philippe of France.

Leopold's father was elected king of the Belgians in 1831 when they escaped from Dutch rule, and Leopold II. succeeded to the throne in 1865. At the age of 18 he was married to Marie Henrietta, daughter of the Archduke Joseph of Austria. On his majority he entered the Belgian senate. During the following five years he traveled in Spain, Morocco, Algiers, Egypt, Palestine, India and China, earning the distinction of being the most traveled monarch in Europe when he became ruler of Belgium. Leopold often expressed a desire to visit the United States in later years, but the coming of old age, his cares and perhaps, to a certain extent, his pleasures prevented.

12 DEAD; 25 HURT IN WRECK

Broken Rail Derails Southern Railway Passenger Train—Cars Fall Down Thirty-Foot Embankment.

Greensboro, N. C.—Local passenger train on the Southern railway, known as the Richmond and Atlanta train, was wrecked Wednesday at Reedy Fork trestle, ten miles north of here, and 12 dead bodies have been removed from the wreckage. It is reported 14 are dead. Twenty-five injured are at St. Leo's hospital.

George J. Gould, who with his son Jay, was in one of the Pullmans when the train jumped the track and who was reported dead, escaped uninjured.

The derailment was caused by a broken rail about 200 feet from the trestle that spans the small stream. The engine and baggage, mail and express cars passed over in safety, while the day coaches and Pullmans were thrown from the trestle into the creek 30 feet below.

DR. DOXEY HELD FOR MURDER

Officials at St. Louis Cannot Explain Arrest—Wife Is Charged with Poisoning William Erder.

St. Louis. — Dr. L. B. Doxey, Columbus, Neb., husband of Mrs. Dora E. Doxey, was lodged in the police hold here over night. Opposite his name on the record is, "Charged with first degree murder."

The arrest of Dr. Doxey was surrounded with mystery. No indictment has been returned by the grand jury investigating the death of William J. Erder. The circuit attorney's office said the police were not ordered to make the arrest.

Mrs. Doxey was brought here from Nebraska on information charging first degree murder. The coroner's jury returned a verdict holding that she poisoned Erder, whom she is charged with having married last April.

Dr. Frank W. Reilly Dead.

Chicago.—Dr. Frank W. Reilly, for many years assistant health commissioner of Chicago, union soldier, pioneer sanitarian and editor, died at his home after an illness of 15 months.

Mexican Insults Old Glory.

Monterey, Mex.—A drunken Mexican has been placed in jail here for tearing down and spitting upon an American flag in token of his contempt for the attitude of the United States in the Nicaraguan affair.

Sneezes Out Bullets.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—After carrying three bullets in his head for 47 years Francis Rogers of this city, a civil war veteran, ejected them from his nose during a fit of violent sneezing Thursday.

CLIP THIS OUT.

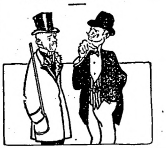
Valuable Recipe When Afflicted with Rheumatism or Backache.

This is a renowned doctor's very best prescription for rheumatism.

"One ounce compound syrup Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint high grade whiskey. Mix them and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time. The bottle must be well shaken each time."

Any druggist has these ingredients or he will get them from his wholesale house.

OMINOUS GESTURE.



"So your fiancee is smaller than you."

"Yes, she comes up just to there."

STATE OF OHIO CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY. }

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & CO., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886.

{ SEAL } A. W. GLEASON, NOTARY PUBLIC.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Just Married.

Gwendolyn seemed a bit unhappy. "What is it, dearest?" murmured Harry, solicitously.

"I was merely thinking how terrible it would have been!" said Gwendolyn, with a shudder.

"Terrible? What would have been terrible?" gasped Harry.

"Oh," returned Gwendolyn, "if your father and mother had never met! Or mine had never met! Or we'd never have been born! Or hadn't loved each other—or, Harry—Oh! wouldn't it have been too terrible!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

A Remnant of the Dark.

A colored man died without medical attendance, and the coroner went to investigate.

"Did Samuel Williams live here?" he asked the weeping woman who opened the door.

"Yassuh," she replied between sobs.

"I want to see the remains."

"I is de remains," she answered, proudly.—Everybody's Magazine.

Worth Its Weight in Gold.

PETTIT'S EYE SALVE strengthens old eyes, tonic for eye strain, weak, watery eyes. Druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

A married man can always get a little off his sentence for bad behavior.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE

when you want Perry Davis' Painkiller, as nothing is as good for rheumatism, neuralgia and similar troubles. 70 years in constant use. 25c, 35c and 50c.

A woman isn't necessarily levelheaded because her hat is on straight.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (800 miles north of the International boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly

70,000 Americans

will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year.

1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.

Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N. D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you)

Salts and Castor Oil—bad stuff—never cure, only makes bowels move because it irritates and sweats them, like poking finger in your eye. The best Bowel Medicine is Cascarets. Every Salts and Castor Oil user should get a box of CASCARETS and try them just once. You'll see. 834

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE.

A DOSE OF

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

is as safe as it is effective. Guaranteed to contain no opiates. It is very palatable too—children like it.

All Druggists, 25 Cents

THE SHEEP LIFTERS

By REGINALD WYON

(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

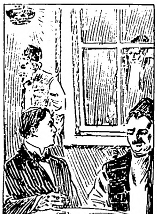
There is a feeling of suppressed excitement in the air this evening. It is nine o'clock, and the billiard room of the Hotel Balsha is unwontedly crowded, to the great inconvenience of the players, a neat young Turk and a grizzled old Montenegrim. The terms "billiard room" and "hotel" are perhaps misleading, suggesting leather lounges and other appurtenances of civilization; but beyond the war-worn table, with its patched cloth and springless cushions, and the fact that sleeping accommodation is provided upstairs or in the kitchen, and on shakedowns in the dining room, according to the number of guests—none are ever turned away—there is nothing to justify the use of these names.

The governor of Podgorcia is upstairs in his room, closeted with the brigadier and the captain of gendarmes. Messengers are constantly coming and going, and it is significant that they all carry rifles this evening. On the stairs, on the landing above, and in the hall, are at least a score of men standing silently, leaning on their rifles. In vain I attempt to pump Milan, the governor's private secretary, who has just come in and seated himself at our table.

"I know you are hatching up a little war or something," I expostulate, "otherwise old Captain Tomo of the police would not have declined a glass of wine. He was visibly swollen with importance when he went up to the governor just now."

But Milan only smiles vaguely in answer.

"It is a wet night," he says, and I glance at the rain-washed window. Through the blurred glass is a face, indistinguishable yet familiar, and I look closer. There is a movement as if a finger is beckoning from outside, and with a muttered excuse I leave the room. It is Petar, my friend the gendarme, a merry soul, and the companion of many a midnight escapade in the old Turkish quarter, where he has watched over us when we have serenaded the Turks. He draws me cautiously under the shelter of a doorway, and whispers impressively that I shall get my rifle.



THROUGH THE BLURRED GLASS IS A FACE

"Cover it under thy mantle," he adds. "Let none guess that thou art armed, and then meet me at the corner."

Hurriedly I edge my way through the waiting men, and in my room I hear the subdued voices of the governor's council through the thin partition.

Buckling on my revolver, and slipping a magazine into the carbine, another in my pocket, covering all in the folds of my great coat, I carelessly, though with beating heart, push through the crowd again out into the stormy night. Petar grins appreciatively as I tap the carbine.

Silently Petar leads the way along the little river Rignica—I well content to wait till he shall explain—his soft opanki making no sound on the stonestrewn ground, till he pauses, and, climbing down the steep river bank, halts under the shelter of a cave. Taking off his broad struka he lays it on the ground, and with our backs against the wall we recline at our ease. I give Petar my tobacco tin and ask for an explanation; but first he deftly rolls two cigarettes, and in the light of the match I see that his face is wreathed in smiles.

"Nizams" (Turkish regulars) "are coming," he says, blowing out the fragrant smoke and chuckling. "They are coming to raid the sheep on Lazzo's farm over yonder."

"How dost thou know" I ask impatiently. "Have they telegraphed their departure to the governor"

"Nay," says Petar; "but Achmet the Turk has betrayed them. He has bought the right to return to his home in Podgorcia with this information. Thou knowest he stole rifles not long ago?"

I nod, and ask how he knows this.

"Achmet's brother is my friend, Gospodin. And ere the governor knew, I had thought of thee, but dared not speak till now for fear that they would guess that I was telling thee. At midnight they come and cross the river at the ford, and there we shall await them."

"How many come?" I inquire.

"Six, a dozen perhaps, not more," he answers; "but it is not them we fear. The firing may bring the Albanians down to the border, for it is but a rifle shot distant. Now we wait here till another hour is past, and then I will take thee to the spot where thou canst see all in safety."

"Hast thou no fear that we may not, too, be fired at by our friends?" I query. "The night is very dark, and how can the others distinguish us?"

"Nay," says Petar; "for that I have arranged! I am detailed with a score of others to watch the ford, and at eleven o'clock we meet there." His voice is reproachful as he adds: "Dost thou think I would lead thee into danger?"

I apologize, knowing well the caution taken by these reckless men for the safety of their guests; yet I muse how good Petar will safeguard me when the bullets fly at random. The time passes quickly, for Petar is an interesting talker, and the clock chimes out again.

"It is time," he says, and we rise, enveloping ourselves in our cloaks. He walks along the tiny path below the overhanging cliff; for the Ribnica lies in a deep cutting, and not another word does he vouchsafe till, with a hoarse whisper, he answers a crisp challenge. Then other figures rise from the surrounding boulders. All the men I know, and silently they push forward and grasp me by the hand in welcome. Then Petar takes me to another cave smaller than the last, and with a natural parapet, over which I clamber. Once inside I see that no bullet can penetrate here, and smile at the thoughtfulness of these men. It is a weird scene. I can just distinguish the rough outlines of the great boulders which strew the river bed, and opposite is the outline of the lofty bank, straight and unbroken. The river rushes with a gurgling, pleasant sound over the shallow ford, and now, except Petar, who is peering intently over the parapet, not a soul is to be seen. The darkness has utterly swallowed up that little crowd of men, yet I know each boulder hides a keenly vigilant Montenegrin, like the watcher at my side, with a rifle ready in the hand. Still the rain beats down, and I fall a-dreaming as the minutes drag wearily by. Perhaps I doze, when suddenly Petar lays his hand on my arm and points. With a start I follow the direction of that hand, and at first see nothing. Petar relaxes my arm, and I see that he is aiming. Then I see shadowy figures moving noiselessly between the boulders, and my heart beats to suffocation. I count six of them gliding in single file, a pace or two separating each from the other. But two or three boulders divide the foremost man from the ford, who pauses instinctively, holding up his arm as a signal. The next instant a voice rings out, "Halt and surrender!" For an answer the six rifles of the Turks crash in the silence. Then the rifle at my elbow cracks with a report like thunder, flashes dart from every boulder, and Petar has leapt the parapet. Scarce knowing what I do, I follow him, and a figure rushes toward us. Petar clubs his rifle, but the fugitive deals him a mighty blow with his fist and he reels backward, but recovers himself and sends a bullet after the flying man. Then follows a deathlike stillness for a few seconds, and the leader of the Montenegrins shouts an order to cease firing in the ravine and assemble on the cliff. Some scatter over the great plain, and now a shot rings out in the distance, then another and another, till the whole country-side would seem to be alive with the reports of rifles. The great slope of Fundina becomes a bed of fireflies, as the peasants turn out and pass on the alarm to their brethren in the mountains.

"Thou wast foolish to leave the cave," says a voice at my elbow. It is Petar, wiping the blood from a cut in his forehead.

"Why do they fire on the hills?" I ask. My voice surprises me, and I am ashamed, for it trembles. "Are the Albanians attacking in force?"

"Nay, Gospodin," says Petar grimly; "none now will venture across the border to-night. That is the signal of alarm, and ere thou returnest to the town it will be full of men."

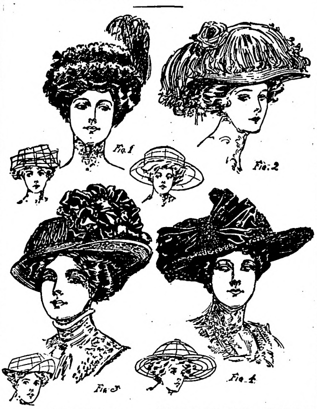
And it was so. The street before the hotel is thick with men, many thousands of them, in bands under the leadership of their officers. Even as I go to my room, tired and wet to the skin, I hear still the distant tap of rifles from the border, and to this strange music, mingling with the buzz of the men in the street below, I fall asleep.

Stage Villain's Lively Time.

In Alexandre Bisson's new play, which will be performed at Paris for the first time next week, an additional scene has been created in order to introduce two police dogs. They chase the villain up and down, across and under the stage, and finally capture the bad man. The dogs enter so heartily into what they seem to consider a great lark that the unfortunate villain has expressed the hope that the play will be short-lived.

A wise man never loses anything, if he has himself.—Montaigne.

Hats for the Year.



By Julia Bottomley.

In spite of the jibes of the critics of fickle fashion, that strong and beneficent goddess allows stability to govern styles in some instances. Even in the realm of millinery where she gives freest rein to caprice, she has decreed that some fabrics and some styles shall belong to every season of the year and every climate. Whether from choice or compulsion, does not matter, but the edict is out, and has been for three years or more, that hats made of silk and those made of what is called "hair braid" are fashionable the year round. These materials were old-time favorites for demi-season millinery and naturally drifted from the between-seasons period into summer and winter use.

The transparent, lustruos braids of which they are made look like the braid woven of horse hair but is either of silk fiber or "pyroxyline," a clever product imitating hair and quite as expensive. It has the advantage of taking all colors in dye and has a beautiful luster. There are cheaper imitations of hair braid, in silk and other materials. These airy braids are so light that they are usually used in full ruffles to cover the wire frames over which such hats are made. They are woven with a drawing thread along one edge, all ready to be drawn up to produce the required fullness.

On account of their light weight, great quantities of braid may be used, and the hat given a soft, fluffy appearance, the effect of a mass of ruffles. These braids are also easily fashioned into rosettes, wheels, petals, in fact into innumerable fancy effects for adorning or making up the body of hats. Plain hats of these braids are made by manufacturers and shown in a variety of shapes, ready-to-trim, each season.

Four examples of hats, of this material are shown, with the frames over which they are made. It will be noticed that the shapes selected are those that are always fashionable, also. There is the round turban in Fig. 1 made of ruffles of braid and trimmed with wreaths of feathery heather about the brim and top crown. This hat, in shades of lavender, bears an airy aigrette in blue and lavender at the left and a novel touch in the bow of blue velvet ribbon at the right side. Such a piece of millinery is in good taste for evening or day wear and at any season.

In Fig. 2 one of the ready-made shapes is shown, but it can be copied fairly faithfully by sewing the braid to a wire frame like that pictured with it. It is the old, familiar, always beautiful flat hat with broad brim. In the example shown the hat and plumes are all in rose color finished with a charming rose and sprig of foliage.

A street hat is pictured in Fig. 3. In this case a perfectly satisfactory hat results from sewing the braid to the frame without fullness. Its very simple and smart trimming is entirely of ribbon. It is an ideal hat for the tourist.

Perhaps the most effective of all these hats is shown in Fig. 4. This hat is beautiful in almost any color. The example shown, made for a young woman, is in a pink coral shade, the velvet of the same color but darker. The braid is ruffled on the frame, and the under brim is faced with messaline silk matching the braid. Four full loops of velvet are thrust through slashes in the crown. This hat is very fine in black and in the new blue and wisteria shades. It is striking in white with black velvet bows, and can be worn with all costumes in this chic combination.

All the wire frames must be covered with fine mull matching the braid in color, as a foundation to which the braid is sewed. There are millinery fabrics, very sheer, made for this purpose. The braid is to be sewed with silk thread also matching it in color. These hats are within the scope of the home milliner, in fact about the most satisfactory of those she can make successfully. The braids are more or less expensive, depending on the material of which they are made. Some of them are very cheap. The best are very durable.

CHIFFON VEILED WITH LACE

Idea of Past Seasons Returns to Us with Renewed Expressions of Favor.

The idea brought out last year of veiling lace with chiffon has come back again with renewed vigor. It was brought about by the necessity of softening the metal tissues which were used against the neck and arms last season; it spread to lace. It is rather an absurd method on the face of it, yet it has quite a good many followers, especially among the high-priced designers.

It is usually done with black chiffon, and the claim is that this smoky veil gives charm to the design of the lace beneath it. Whatever the points in its favor or disfavor, it is a prevalent fashion. On afternoon frocks and smart, boned blouses for one-piece suits the small yokes and lower sleeves are veiled with the finest of black chiffon.

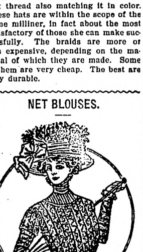
It is always better when doing this to add a lining under the lace of silver or gold net. This gives brilliancy to the black chiffon and keeps it from deadening the gown.

It is an expensive fad to use four draperies for one effect, but the designer of to-day has no thought of expense.

Handkerchief Bureau Cover.

A very pretty bureau cover can be made from handkerchiefs. Three are sufficient. The plain hemstitched ones make very pretty covers, though if one prefers some of the embroidered style, it is all a matter of taste. Join them with lace insertion, edged with lace to match and you have a useful and dainty gift at small cost. Torchon or cotton cluny lace, which may be bought for as little as five cents a yard, is quite suitable and wears splendidly.

NET BLOUSES.



Bands of embroidered net and lace beading joined in fashion shown above make a charming blouse for wear with separate skirts. Yoke, stock and long sleeves are made distinctive by using plain tucked net in same shade.

Cashmere and Velvet.

Frocks of soft cashmere are especially suited for young girls. The texture of the material can be worked into soft, girlish lines, and the clinging quality allows the slimness of a youthful figure to be retained, even though fullness be used. Gowns of cashmere for house wear have now received a velvet touch, which enhances their charm and gives a new oportunity for coloring the dresses. A band of darker-hued velvet is effective at the hem of a skirt; pipings of velvet are excellent in emphasizing lines, and tiny velvet bows are used to give contrast at the neck. When planning your cashmere house gown, do not forget to visit the velvet counter.

COUNTRY WHOSE SOIL SPELLS WHEAT AND OUT OF WHOSE FARMS THOUSANDS ARE GROWING RICH.

WHAT PRESIDENT TAFT AND OTHERS THINK OF CANADA.

Another Fat Year for the Canadian West.

Our Canadian neighbors to the north are again rejoicing over an abundant harvest, and reports from reliable sources go to show that the total yield of 1909 will be far above that of any other year.

It is estimated that $100,000,000 will this year go into the pockets of the Western farmers from wheat alone, another $60,000,000 from oats and barley, while returns from other crops and from stock will add $40,000,000 more. Is it any wonder then that the farmers of the Canadian West are happy?

Thousands of American farmers have settled in the above mentioned provinces during the past year; men who know the West and its possibilities, and who also know perhaps better than any other people, the best methods for profitable farming.

President Taft said recently in speaking of Canada:

"We have been going ahead so rapidly in our own country that our heads have been somewhat swelled with the idea that we are carrying on our shoulders all the progress there is in the world. We have not been conscious that there is on the north a young country and a young nation that is looking forward, as it well may, to a great national future. They have 7,000,000 people, but the country is still hardly scratched."

Jas. J. Hill speaking before the Canadian Club of Winnipeg a few days ago said:

"I go back for 53 years, when I came West from Canada. At that time Canada had no North-West. A young boy or man who desired to carve his own way had to cross the line, and to-day it may surprise you—one out of every five children born in Canada lives in the United States. Now you are playing the return match, and the North-West is getting people from the United States very rapidly. We brought 100 land-seekers, mainly from Iowa and Southern Minnesota, last night out of St. Paul, going to the North-West. Now, these people have all the way from five, ten to twenty thousand dollars each, and they will make as much progress on the land in one year as any one man coming from the Continent of Europe can make, doing the best he can, in ten, fifteen, or twenty years."

It is evident from the welcome given American settlers in Canada that the Canadian people appreciate them. Writing from Southern Alberta recently an American farmer says:—

"We are giving them some new ideas about being good farmers, and they are giving us some new ideas about being good citizens. They have a law against taking liquor into the Indian Reservation. One of our fellows was caught on a reservation with a bottle on him, and it cost him $50. One of the Canadian Mounted Police found him, and let me tell you, they find everyone who tries to go up against the laws of the country.

"On Saturday night, every bar-room is closed, at exactly 7 o'clock. Why? Because it is the law, and it's the same with every other law. There isn't a bad man in the whole district, and a woman can come home from town to the farm at midnight if she wants to, alone. That's Canada's idea how to run a frontier; they have certainly taught us a lot.

"On the other hand, we are running their farms for them better than any other class of farmers. I guess I can say this without boasting, and the Caandians appreciate us. We turn out to celebrate Dominion Day; they are glad to have us help to farm the country; they know how to govern; we know how to work."

Another farmer, from Minnesota, who settled in Central Saskatchewan some years ago, has the following to say about the country:—

"My wife and I have done well enough since we came from the States; we can live anyway. We came in the spring of 1901 with the first carload of settlers' effects unloaded in these parts and built the first shanty between Saskatoon and Lumsden. We brought with our car of settlers' effects the sum of $1800 in cash, to-day we are worth $40,000. We 'proved up' one of the finest farms in Western Canada and bought 320 acres at $3 per acre. We took good crops off the land for four years, at the end of which we had $8000 worth of improvements in the way of buildings, etc., and had planted three acres of trees. Two years ago we got such a good offer that we sold our land at $45 per acre. From the above you will see that we have not done badly since our arrival."

Prof. Thomas Shaw of St. Paul, Minnesota, with a number of other well known editors of American farm journals, toured Western Canada recently, and in an interview at Winnipeg said in part:—

"With regard to the settlement of the West I should say that it is only well begun. I have estimated that in Manitoba one-tenth of the land has been broken, in Saskatchewan one-thirtieth and in Alberta, one-hundred and seventy-fifth. I am satisfied that in all three provinces grain can be grown successfully up to the sixtieth parallel and in the years to come your vacant land will be taken at a rate of which you have at present no conception. We have enough people in the United States alone, who want homes, to take up this land.

"What you must do in Western Canada is to raise more live stock. When you are doing what you ought to do in this regard, the land which is now selling for $20 per acre will be worth from $50 to $100 pre acre. It is as good land as that which is selling for more than $100 per acre in the corn belt.

"I would rather raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. You can get your food cheaper and the climate is better for the purpose. We have a better market, but your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Winter wheat can be grown in one-half of the country through which I have passed, and alfalfa and one of the varieties of clover in three-fourths of it. The farmers do not believe this, but it is true."

Keeping pace with wheat production, the growth of railways has been quite as wonderful, and the whole country from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains will soon be a net-work of trunk and branch lines. Three great transcontinental lines are pushing construction in every direction, and at each siding the grain elevator is to be found. Manitoba being the first settled province, has now an elevator capacity of upwards of 25,000,000 bushels, Saskatchewan 20,000,00, and Alberta about 7,000,000, while the capacity of elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur, on the Great Lakes, is upwards of 20,000,000 more.

Within the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta there are flour and oatmeal mills with a combined capacity of 25,000 barrels per day, and situated along some famous water powers in New Ontario, there are larger mills than will be found anywhere in the Prairie Provinces.

Last year the wheat crop totaled over 100,000,000 bushels. This year the crop will yield 30,000,000 more. A recent summary shows that on the 1st of January, 1909, the surveyed lands of the three western provinces, totaled 134,000,000 acres, of which about 32,000,000 have been given as subsidies to railways, 11,000,000 disposed of in other ways and 38,000,00 given by the Canadian Government as free homesteads, being 236,000 homesteads of 160 acres each. Of this enormous territory, there is probably under crop at the present time less than 11,000,000 acres; what the results will be when wide awake settlers have taken advantage of Canada's offer and are cultivating the fertile prairie lands, one can scarcely imagine.

Ancients Wore Sheath Gowns.

It need not be supposed that even feminine fashions can evolve something new under the sun. A learned Egyptologist discloses that the sheath gown was popular among the ladies of the Nile 15 centuries before the Christian Era. One gown was made of fine linen, adorned with elaborate designs. The professor thinks that the slit in the side was intended to display the wearer's precious anklets. These ancient ladies also dressed their hair elaborately with puffs and padding. They painted their faces and lips, as shown by rouge and pomade jars. All of this is reassuring to man who may have thought that some of the modern developments of the dressmaker were without precedent in their eccentricity. Once more is demonstrated the fit coupling on the words "eternal" and "feminine."

Rather Ambiguous.

The Rev. Mr. Dozen had not gained the golden opinions of his congregation, who were unanimous in asserting that he was foolish and conceited.

He considered himself greatly slandered, and, meeting an old German friend of his in the street one day, began to retail his woes, ending up by saying:

"And the church warden actually called me a perfect ass. My cloth prevented me from resenting insults, but I think I shall refer to it in the pulpit next Sunday. What would you advise?"

"Mine friendt," replied the German soothingly, "I know not, but I tink dat all you can do vill be youst to bray for them as usual!"—Detroit News-Tribune.

Is Prayer Geographical?

Not long ago, in an important county in Ohio, the women and others prayed that it would go "dry" and it did. A few days later, the people in Nassau and Suffolk counties, Long Island, prayed that these counties would become desiccated and a count of the votes showed that there was nothing doing. In both cases only those people prayed who were accustomed to that form of weapon. Accordingly there is a strong suggestion that prayer, like the tariff, is a local issue.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

The Noisy One.

Bacon—Every man in the concern belongs to the Anti-Noise society but one.

Egbert—And who is that one?

"The silent partner."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

We don't blame a man for growling if his wife treats him like a dog.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 25, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam, Minn., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

We wish all our readers a merry Christmas and a happy New year.

The Thirteen Towns, published at Fosston, got out a handsome Christmas number that is a credit to the editor, and the live business men of that place.

Number of Nails to a Horseshoe.

Centuries ago there lived a farrier, Walter le Brun by name, whose dexterity at the anvil on the occasion of a great tilting meeting on the banks of the Thames was noticed by the then reigning monarch, Edward III., who rewarded the blacksmith by granting him sufficient land adjoining the tilting green for the erection thereon of a forge. As quit rent he had to present annually to the king six horseshoes and sixty-one horseshoe nails. To the modern mind the number of nails would appear to be superfluous, but when it is remembered that the horseshoes of that period required ten nails apiece it will be seen that the calculations of Edward III. merely allowed one over in case of accident. Furthermore, the shoes were all to be for the horse's fore feet, from which fact some historians draw the inference that the animals ridden in the knights' tournaments were encouraged to injure each other with their front hoofs.—London News.

"Correct to a T."

Our earliest quotation for this or for the kindred phrases "to suit one to a T," "to fit to a T," "to know one to a T," is of 1693. Can any one help us to an earlier example? No one of our many instances throws any light upon its origin. A current obvious conjecture would explain "a T" as meaning "a T square," but to this there are various objections. We have no evidence as yet that the name "T square" goes back to the seventeenth century and no example of its being called simply "a T," and in few if any of our instances would the substitution of "a T square" for "a T" make any tolerable sense. The notion seems rather to be that of minute exactness, as it were "to the minutest point." But the evidence is mainly negative. If examples can be found of "T square" before 1700 or of its reduction simply to "T" or of earlier examples of "to a T" they may help to settle the actual origin.—London Notes and Queries.

The First Wire Nail.

Although the wire nail is a small thing, it would be a big thing to do without. Probably no one could estimate the millions or billions or trillions—whatever the number may be—that are used in a single year. Yet the first wire nails in the United States were made no longer ago than 1872. The first machine for their manufacture was brought over from Dusseldorf and set up in Covington, Ky. Later this single machine was multiplied by four and a company was organized. In 1884 the manufacture of wire nails was begun in Beaver Falls, Pa., and the product was already beginning to grow in popularity and usefulness. Just a year later a strike temporarily shut off the manufacture of cut nails, and the wire nail was in such demand that the manufacturers were swamped. From that time dates the supremacy of the wire nail.—Chicago Post.

The First Fireless Cooker.

Soon after the battle of White Plains, N. Y., while the American forces were drifting toward North Castle, the lone occupant of a house, one of the Pierce families, on the Bedford road at Pleasantville, N. Y., looking out of the window, descried a posse of Hessian soldiery coming up the pike. Having just placed a number of loaves of bread in the old Dutch oven, she bethought herself that it would be well to secrete them until the soldier band passed. She at once removed the loaves, which had already become heated, and ran up in the attic and placed them between two feather beds. The soldiers arrived in due time and soon appropriated everything removable. After their departure the housewife remembered the bread exodus, ran up the stairs, and, lo, the bread was done to the "queen's taste!"—Magazine of American History.

When Women Run Us.

Friend—So your detective force is a failure? Chief Emma: Yes; we can't find any one who is willing to be a plain clothes woman.—Puck.

Had Had His.

Sioux Chief—Why didn't you torture the baldhead? Piute Chief—What was the use? He had been married for twenty years.—Buffalo Express.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, S. S,
District Court,
14th. Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ——Plaintiff,
Vs
Axel Engman, ——Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the above named defendant.

You are hereby summond and requ-ired to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action, which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

F. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9,—1, 21,-10.

The Hand Kiss.

The kiss of the hand is undoubtedly ancient and therefore is not derived from that of the lips, but probably the converse is true. The hand kiss is loosely asserted to be developed from servile obeisances in which the earth, the foot and the garments were kissed, the hand and cheek succeeding in order of time and approach to equality of rank. But it is doubtful if that was the actual order, and it is certain that at the time when hand kissing began there were less numerous gradations of rank than at a later stage.

Kissing of the hands between men is mentioned in the Old Testament; also by Homer, Pliny and Lucian. The kiss was applied reverentially to sacred objects, such as statues of the gods, as is shown by ancient works of art, and also among numerous etymologies by that of the Latin word "adoro," and it was also metaphorically applied by the inferior or worshiper kissing his own hand and throwing the salute to the superior or statue.

The Story of a Statue.

There was set up in the seventeenth century at Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, what is probably the most curious piece of art extant, erected to the memory of Sir Robert Holmes, a British naval officer of that period. The odd circumstance is that the statue was not originally designed for Holmes at all, but for a very different personage, no other, indeed, than Louis XIV. of France. This statue, finished as to the figure, but in the rough as to the head, was being taken to France on an Italian vessel when it was captured by a British man-of-war commanded by Holmes. Upon perceiving the unfinished condition of the statue Holmes, with grim humor, compelled the artist, who had accompanied his work, to chisel his (Holmes') head on the king's body. And so it stands today. Holmes was eventually made governor of the Isle of Wight, which fact accounts for the location of this mongrel bit of artistry.

The Lottery Mania.

The first lottery on record in England was drawn in London in 1569, the proceeds being devoted to public purposes. Four hundred thousand lots were drawn for the prizes of cash and silver plate, and for four months nothing else was thought or talked of, and the delight of the winners and the despair of the unfortunates seemed equally exaggerated. A perfect epidemic of lotteries followed, there being no laws upon the subject, and soon there were lottery tailors, lottery tea merchants, lottery barbers (who with each shave at threepence gave a ticket that might draw a ten pound prize), lottery shoeblacks, lottery eating houses where for sixpence a plate of meat and the chance of drawing 60 guineas were given, and so on down to a sausage stall in a narrow alley, where it was written that he who bought a farthing's worth of sausage might realize a capital of 5 shillings.

Trials of a Lecturer.

A well known Englishwoman lecturer tells some stories at her own expense.

"I was," she says, "on a tour through the provinces, and one night as I appeared on the platform in a small town the chairman introduced me to my audience in the following way: 'You have heard of Mr. Gladstone, the Grand Old Man. Let me now introduce to you the grand old woman.' This was intended as a sincere compliment.

"On another occasion a bluff old farmer who boasted of his ability to look on all sides of a question announced me as follows: 'This lady's come here to talk about her rights. She's hired the hall herself, and so she's got a right to be here, and if any of you don't like what she's got to say you've got an equal right to walk out in the middle on't.'"

The Usual Thing.

"What's the proper thing at a wedding?"

"Wish the pair happiness and tell everybody else there's no earthly chance for it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To attempt to make everything emphatic is to make nothing emphatic.—Whately.

Notice For Publication;

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Dec. 10 1909.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn December 6th 1909. Notice is hereby given that Daniel Peterson, of Highlanding Minn. who on November 15, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 900. Serial No. 04329 for N. W. ¼ Section 25 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 11th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben E. Kelste Tollek S. Dale, Tobias Olson, Andrew Ellingson, all of Highlanding Minnesota.

R. J. Montague register

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th 1909. Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn December 14th 1909. Notice is hereby given that Lewis T. Burch, of Plummer Minn. who on October 14th 1904 made Homestead entry No. 671, Serial No. 04240, for N. E. ¼ Section 17 Township 152 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John L. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. Johnson, Tom Mandt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication

First Pub in the Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn, December 13, 1909. Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 985, Serial No. 04116 for N. E. ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn on the 17th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter Flo, Henken Nabben, August Johnson, John Carlson all of Thorwik Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 17th. 1909.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909 Notice is hereby given that Andreas Anensen, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entry No. 1103, Serial No. 03482, for Lots 3 4. S. E. ¼ N. W. ¼ Section 6 Township 152 N Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th. day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn. [illegible] Asbjornson, of Malone Minn. Elias [illegible], of Sunbeam Minn. Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec 17th 1909 Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota December 13. 1909

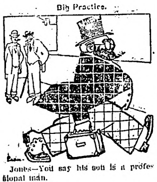
NOTICE is hereby given that Aslak Person, of Malone Minnesota who on October 4th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 676. Serial No. 04251, for N. W. ¼ Section 12, township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 20th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Gunder Asbjornson, Targer Lanji, Salve Myrom, Ole Askland all of Malone Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE.
Register.

Big Practice.



Jones—You say his son is a professional man.

Brown—Yes.

Jones—But you also said he follows football. Do you mean he's a professional player?

Brown—Not at all. He's a surgeon.

Figure It Out.

A beggar boy asked an old gentleman in the street for sixpence.

"What will you do with it if I give you one?" asked the old gentleman.

"Turn it into ninepence quick," replied the boy.

"How?"

"Give me the sixpence and I'll soon show you."

The boy got the money, darted off to a baker's shop and bought a threepenny loaf, with which he returned to the old gentleman and handed him back 3 pennies.

"How's this? You said you would make the sixpence into ninepence."

"So I have. The baker's got threepence; you've got threepence, and I've got a threepenny loaf. That's ninepence."—Pearson's Weekly.

KILLED THE COBRA.

Methods of a Mongoose In Attacking the Big Snake.

I had the good fortune to witness a fight between a four foot cobra de capello and a mongoose.

On first catching sight of the cobra, rikki tik (as Rudyard Kipling calls the Indian mongoose) quietly smelled its tail and then hung around awaiting events with curiosity, but he had not long to wait, for the cobra spread its hood, hissed out its death sentence and prepared to dart from its coil at its natural and hated enemy.

Now commenced a most interesting and deadly battle of feint and counter feint by the mongoose and strike and lightning-like recovery by his adversary, who was also on the defensive, all the time watching for the opportunity to get in his almost blind.

Time after time rikki tik squirmed slowly up to within reach of those terrible fangs, belly on ground, with every gray hair of his body erect with anger and excitement, his eyes glaring from his head, which, by the way, he invariably held sideways during this approach and attack, but the moment the cobra struck in a flash back sprang master mongoose, and, although often it appeared as if impossible that he could have escaped the dreaded fangs, ne'er a scratch harmed him, and there he would be again wearing the cobra out and pressing his advantage inch by inch. At last, with a growl and sharp rikki cry, the plucky little beast flew in, avoided the strike and seized the snake behind the head, never for a moment getting under his mouth, but right at the nape of the neck and head, which he scrunched with a loud crackling sound despite the struggles and twisting and turning of the cobra. Again and again rikki returned to the now writhing reptile and bit its head and body until it lay dying.

Finally he bit three or four inches of his mortal foe, but carefully avoided eating the fangs and poison glands, which I picked up by a stick and found them broken, but with the venom sacks attached.

Contrary to popular belief, I am of opinion the mongoose is not immune from snake poison, else why should he be so particularly and carefully avoid being bitten? It is only by his marvelous activity that he escapes the spring and darting strike of his deadly enemy, the cobra de capello.—Ceylon Times.

DESTROYED BY CHEMICALS.

Weapons Used by Assassins Against Royal Personages.

Very few people are aware that as soon as the trial of an assassin of royalty is concluded the weapon with which he accomplished his crime is carefully destroyed so that no trace of it remains.

The reason of this is twofold—first of all, the possibility exists that at some time or other the weapons used in a royal tragedy may be exhibited to the public in some museum or show, and, second, there is a strange superstitious dread existing among reigning houses that the existence of the innocent but unhallowed weapons by which rulers have been dispatched to eternity is fraught with peril to their descendants.

The method of destroying these weapons is a curious one. The wooden portions, such as the stocks of pistols or the handles of poniards, are burned, and the metal portions are eaten away in a bath of nitric acid.

This has been the custom ever since the attempted assassination of Queen Isabella of Spain in 1852 by Merius. Prior to that date the metal work of firearms or knives was ground or filed away, but the blade of the dagger with which Merius sought to execute his dastardly crime proved to be of such exquisite temper and hardness that it resisted both file and grindstone.

This became known to the populace, and the superstitious Spaniards believed that Merius had invested his weapon with magical qualities. To divest them of this absurd belief the authorities had the weapon destroyed by immersing it in chemicals, a rule that has been followed ever since.

High Class Suicide.

In China suicide has been a fine art for several centuries. If a mandarin is guilty of misconduct he is requested to put himself out of the land of the living. There is a distinction, too, in the manner in which the oriental may die. If he is of exalted rank and entitled to wear the peacock feather he is privileged to choke himself to death with gold leaf. This is regarded as a distinguished manner of ending life. If the mandarin is only of the rank that is entitled to wear the red button he must be content with strangling himself with a silken cord. Such are the distinctions of caste.

Financial Information.

"So you at last yielded to that man's importunities and gave him some tips on the market?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax.

"What happened?"

"Well, they turned out so badly that I'm mighty glad I didn't invest any money on 'em myself."—Washington Star.

Consoling.

"That was tough meat you gave me last night," said the customer.

"Oh, run along!" said the dealer. "You will forget it by the time you pay for it."—Buffalo Express.

Fame.

Little Willie—What is fame, pa?

Pa—Fame, my son, is a ladder with grease on each rung.—Chicago News.

The Abyssinian wife is the head of the house.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,
IN THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick,

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY,
D. N. Winston,
Manager.

U.S. Mail.

The U.S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's; & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p.m.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Intercollegiate.

"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amherst Four Leaf Clover.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Optinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,
Merchants State Bank,
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.
Officers.
C. L. Hansen.......President.
Daniel Patterson.......Vice Pres.
D. Stephens.......2nd Vice Pres.
E. Burger.......Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS
FOR Headache
FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.
DR. MILES' Anti-Pain Pills
TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.
If you have Headache Try One
They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects
25 Doses 25 Cents
Never Sold in Bulk.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

The Ole Giving threshing rig started up at James O'Brions place yesterday.

Chris Skott the Rawleigs medicine man was an overnight visitor here Wednesday. Mr. Skoot will be around to see all his friends next month on a collection trip.

We want to hire a man to chop some cord wood and make fence posts. Inquire at this office.

Singer Bros. will give a grand public ball at Kratka on Saturday evening January 1st, 1910.

Miss Christine Skeie closed a successful tearm of school in the Highlanding school today.

A sleighing party from High Landing will drive down to Kratka to the Christmas tree intertainment tomorrow night.

There will be a big ball at the Kolskis hall in Deer Park on Saturday evening January 8th, All are invited.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00 a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2.00 per cord.

Yours for wood, Otto P. Stuey
Hilda post office

The weather has been very fine the past week with plenty of snow for sleighing.

We have a Christmas intertainment to atted this afternoon and evening which compells us to chop off on local news.

Boy, or girl wanted to set type and learn printers trade. Good wages paid after you learn how to set type. Call at this office.

Miss Beaudery returned home from Thief River Falls yesterday, where she has been attending high school for a holliday home visit.

Oscar Nesland and Edward Singer passed by here yesterday on their return home from Fargo N.D., where they made a big realestate and threshing machine deal.

Andrew Ellingson has been appointed post master at High Landing to fill vacancy caused by resignation of J. W. Vrolson. Mr. Ellingson is one of our pioneer merchants who has always been a staunch republican and an ardent supporter of Halvor Steenerson, and when this office became vacant, he was certainly entitled to first consideration for the appointment.

Henry Ward Beecher's Wit.

On one occasion as Mr. Beecher was in the midst of an impassioned speech some one attempted to interrupt him by suddenly crowing like a cock. The orator, however, was equal to the occasion. He stopped, listened till the crowing ceased and then, with a look of surprise, pulled out his watch. "Morning already!" he said. "My watch is only at 10. But there can be no mistake about it. The instincts of the lower animals are infallible."

There was a roar of laughter. The "lower animals" in the gallery collapsed, and Mr. Beecher was able to resume as if nothing had occurred.

French Convicts.

Convicts who are sent to the French penal colony in French Guiana are punished in exactly inverse ratio to their crimes. The murderers and the most dangerous convicts are sent to the island of Salvation, where they lead lazy and healthy lives, but the men convicted of lesser offenses work and die in a terrible climate on the coast. In the settlement of St. Jean de Maroni the mortality is from 40 to 50 per cent. The average life of a convict is two years.

Which Was It?

"Are we slaves or are we free men?" thundered the orator. "I pause for a reply."

"Some of us are married," came the answer from the last row of seats.—New York Sun.

An Opportunity.

Judge—Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth? Fair Witness—It will be just perfectly lovely if you really have the time to listen.—Harper's Bazar.

"A little of this goes a long way," said the aeronaut as he flicked the ash from his cigar.—Harvard Lampoon.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

A merry Xmas and happy New year to all.

Bernhar Lindberg came up from Crookston on Saturday for a few days visit with friends and relatives.

The young peopels meeting at A Rolandsons place last Sunday was largely attended.

People are all busy threshing and it is no fun this time of year.

There will be religious services at the school house north east from Lillon Newyears day in the Skandinavin languge at 11 o'clock a.m., and in the english language in the afternoon at 2 o'clock p.m., by Rev. Skogen.

Lille bros have a fine pair of stag hounds and are busy cheisin wolves now days.

Adolph Lindberg and Miss Clare Moe were quietly maried at the residence of the brides mother Dec. 20th, We wish them much joy.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

TO FIND FAULT.

People Are Sometimes Paid For That Express Purpose.

You have no idea how many things are wrong in a big business until you are paid to look for them, writes Gelett Burgess in Collier's. There were the clocks, for one thing, when I first began. The girls wore too many rats in their hair, there was grease on the elevator doors, expensive hats were dumped one on another, the ventilation was bad, the boxes on the shelves showed from the street through the show windows and about a thousand other things. Then Spindelheim sold teapots just like our eighteen cent ones for 14 cents, and for a concern like Smith & Co. to be undersold is fatal. There's really nothing that so enrages Mr. Smith; also Rubinstein's window dresser has beaten ours, too, at times. Down it goes in my little report. Wouldn't any woman love my job.

Yes, it's fun to be paid for being a misanthrope, but it's hard work too. At 9 o'clock I begin my promenade through the store downstairs, upstairs, basement, attic and annex. If a girl at the counter has dirty finger nails or too wide a pompadour to suit me I stop and talk pleasantly, buy 9 cents' worth of edging and so get her number from the sales slip. She never knows anything about it till her superintendent gives her a scolding the next day. I have eyes like a hawk and a nose like a hound and ears like a small boy under the sofa when a young man's calling on big sister. In ten minutes I have spotted the dust in the corner of the aisle, a girl who wears brass bracelets, a porter who is not attending to his duty, a badly arranged counter, an error in spelling on a placard, two store detectives loafing on their job and a hideous combination of colors in the front window. I go to the ladies' room and make a note of these things surreptitiously. I don't dare go there too often, though, for fear I'll be identified, so sometimes I run back to my office, two blocks away. So it goes till about 4 o'clock, hither and thither, high and yon, looking for trouble. It doesn't do a clerk any good to be uncivil to me, I can tell you, or to make me wait too long for my change, but I try to be fair, and if I find a particularly willing and considerate sales person down that name goes in my report too. You might suppose that there'd be good graft in that; but, of course, I keep my position only so long as the head of the firm has absolute confidence in my integrity. The funny part of it is that the more I complain the better he likes it. I'm like the opposition party in congress, I'm never satisfied. When I am I'll have to look for another position.

At 4 o'clock I go back to my little office and dictate my report from my notes to a stenographer, and when it's typewritten I send it to the head of the firm.

When "Pluck" Was Slang.

The word "pluck" affords an instance of the way in which slang words in the course of time become adopted into current English. We now meet with "pluck" and "plucky" as the recognized equivalents of "courage" and "courageous." An entry in Sir Walter Scott's "Journal" shows that in 1827 the word had not yet lost its low character. He says (volume 2, page 30), "Want of that article blackguardly called pluck." Its origin is obvious. From early times the heart has been popularly regarded as the seat of courage. Now, when a butcher lays open a carcass he divides the great vessels of the heart, cuts through the windpipe and then plucks out together the united heart and lungs—lights, he calls them—and he terms the united mass "the pluck."—London Notes and Queries.

Late Hour Explained.

"What kept you until this late hour?" asked the husband of his suffragette wife.

"Well, my dear," she answered meekly, "you see it took us an hour to [illegible] another the meeting lasted [illegible] the rest of the [illegible] in moving [illegible]"—Detroit Free Press.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS.

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place

to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing.

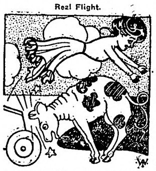
Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS:

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

Real Flight.



"Oh, darling, come and fly with me!"
He cried to the maiden sweet.
Just then his auto hit a cow,
And o'er the big and brassy prow
The maid flew twenty feet

Leaning Tower In England.

The famous leaning tower of Pisa has a rival in the Temple tower of Bristol, in England. It is a square tower of early Gothic architecture. All its parts still preserve their normal relative positions without cracks or fissures. The tower, which is about 115 feet high, is five feet out of perpendicular at the summit. There are no records to show whether the inclination was part of the architect's design or whether it is the result of an earthquake or of slow changes in the inclination of the soil. For many years there has been no change in the slope of the tower.

Right In Her Line.

"Isn't young Bilkins going to wed that actress?"

"No; she feared that his laziness would bring poverty to both of them."

"And what did she do?"

"Canceled the engagement, saying she had an aversion to a poorhouse."—Exchange.

Useless.

Wifey (red hot)—Don't try any evasion with me, sir! Where have you been? Hub (unsteadily)—M'dear, wha's [illegible] If [illegible] your question [illegible]—[illegible]

The Force of Habit.

One of the campers had done something peculiarly idiotic, and the dean said, "Dick reminds me of Thomas' colt."

"What about Thomas' colt?" asked Dick cheerfully.

"Why," the dean responded readily, "where I lived in Maine when I was a boy an old man named Thomas raised horses. He once put out to pasture a colt which had been fed from its birth in a box stall and watered at the trough in the yard.

"The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the colt swam the stream to go up to the barnyard for a drink of water."

English as Spoken In London.

I must confess in passing that after a lifetime spent upon English I had nearly as much difficulty with that language "as she is spoke" upon the streets of London by the common people as I had with French and German in Paris and Berlin. The most popular sensational journal of London is the Daily Mail. They call it the Dily Mile. Many other words are equally unrecognizable.—London Letter to Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A Never Failing Supply.

The fond husband was seeing his wife off with the children for their vacation in the country. As she got into the train he said, "But, my dear, won't you take some fiction to read?"

"Oh, no!" she responded sweetly. "I shall depend upon your letters from home."—London Tatler.

Buying the First Bond.

In the lives of most people there are a few moments that are not only big with importance, but remain long in the memory. One of these moments may be the first sight of the ocean; another, when great, snow clad mountains first come into view. Still another, though perhaps not quite so romantic, is that time when the average man or woman draws his or her savings out of a bank and buys the first bond.—Moody's Magazine.

Sensitive Salmon.

"Splendid color, isn't it?" asked a fishmonger as he cut a pound or two of salmon for a customer.

"Yes," replied the latter, "looks as if it were blushing at the price you ask for it!"—London Scraps.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates, Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,

THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,

Sunbeam Minn.

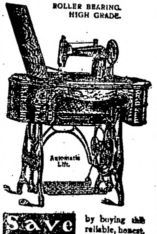
W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.



Automatic Lift.

The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.

ROLLER BEARING. HIGH GRADE.

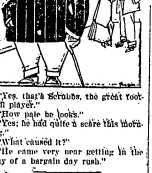
Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.

BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

A Narrow Escape.



"Yes, that's Scrubbs, the great foot-ball player."

"How pale he looks."

"Yes; he had quite a scare this morning."

"What caused it?"

"He came very near getting in the way of a bargain day rush."

Old Cures.

The antiquary took down a little gray book. "Here is a 'family doctor,'" he said, "that was published as far back as 1501. Talk about your quaint prescriptions!" The first prescription, a truly quaint one, ran: "If a man be greved wyth the fallinge sicknesse, let him take a he-wolves harte and make it to powder and use it; but if it be a woman, let her take a she-wolves harte." A 1501 jaundice cure was: "Take earthwormes and cut them small, and braye them wyth a little wyne so that ye may swallow it; drincke the same fasting." For toothache: "Seeth as many little frogges sitting upon trees as thou canst get, in water; take the fat dowynge from them, and when nede is, anoynt the teth therwyth."

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHI

LIGHT RUNNING NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPA

Orange, Mass.

Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.

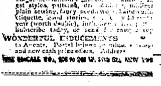
Our guaranty never runs out.

Sold by authorized dealers only.

FOR SALE BY

Hicks Furniture & Carpet C

Thief River Falls, Minn.



McCALL PATTERNS [illegible]

McCALL'S MAGAZINE More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. [illegible] est styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, [illegible] year (worth double), including [illegible] Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium [illegible] and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 236 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS [illegible]

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

[illegible]

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools and [illegible] THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. [illegible]

[illegible]

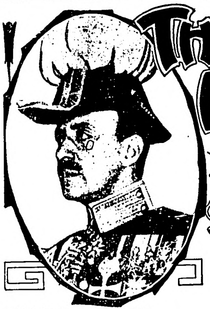
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.

Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

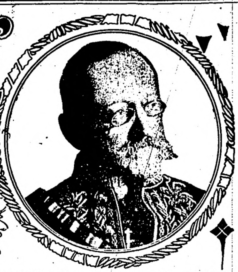
DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE DIPLOMATS' BUSIEST DAY

By WALDON FAWCETT



MARQUIS DE VILLALOBAR, THE NEW SPANISH MINISTER



BARON MAYOR DES PLANCHES, DEAN OF THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS

THE first day of the year is decidedly the busiest day of the twelvemonth for the foreign diplomats stationed in America. The odd part of it is that the manifold duties which make January 1st the most crowded interval on the calendar are almost wholly in the nature of social obligations rather than business tasks. Moreover, the responsibilities of this busy day rest equally heavy upon the envoys of the various foreign powers—that is, the ambassadors and ministers—and upon the secretaries, counselors and attaches who make up the official staffs of these dignitaries. Even the women of the official foreign colony—the wives and daughters of the diplomats of high and low degree—share in the feverish activity of the dawning year. Indeed, their participation begins weeks in advance with frequent visits to the dressmakers, for, one and all, these fair foreigners must have striking new gowns for the momentous occasion.

The explanation of this display of energy on the part of a class of people who ordinarily lead the most leisurely existence imaginable is found in the fact that New Year's day of each year marks the opening of the official social season at Washington. It is a day of receiving and calling and dining (all in the most formal way), for everybody in national official circles from the president down to the least important public official, but the social merry-go-round, spins at a more lively gait for the diplomats than for any of the other participants in Uncle Sam's great annual dress parade. Not only do they have to go more different places in carrying out the day's program, but they have to do more dressing than any of the other celebrities, not even excepting the high officers of the United States army and navy, who don their full dress uniforms for this occasion.

Indeed, it is the chore of getting togged out in their gaudiest raiment that compels the diplomats to arise somewhat earlier than usual on New Year morning. Official etiquette prescribes that each foreign representative shall appear in full diplomatic uniform or court dress on this significant occasion. Now be it known, it is no slight undertaking to put on such garb. The average diplomat, accustomed as he is to fastidious dressing, finds it pretty nearly as formidable a job as the average American workman or farmer regards the donning of a dress suit. The diplomat's viewpoint will be the better appreciated when it is explained that not a few of these costly broadcloth uniforms are so heavily encrusted with gold lace and other ornaments that they are well nigh stiff enough to stand alone. It is a twentieth century coat of armor, so to speak. In many instances high boots are an item of the court dress and usually a heavy helmet or fur turban and a long cloak that reaches to the feet are included in the costume. Finally, the diplomat, of any standing, covers the entire front of his coat with the glittering insignia of royal orders and jeweled decorations—each several times as large as the ordinary badge and adding in the aggregate, considerable weight to the trappings of state.

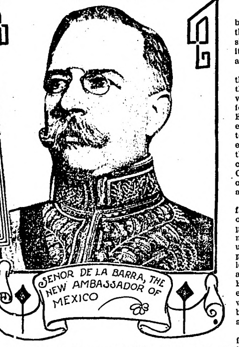
With the time-consuming prelude of dressing out of the way, the diplomats, more gorgeously garbed than any operatic chorus, are ready for the first formal function of the day. This is the president's reception at the White House. The foreigners, all of whom have carriages or automobiles (rented for this busy day, if they do not already possess them), must leave home for the presidential mansion about 10:30 o'clock, for they are to have the honor of being the first persons received by the president after he has greeted his cabinet, and they must be in their duly assigned places in the waiting line ere the presidential party at 11 o'clock sharp, descends the grand stairway and takes station in the Blue parlor for the reception. Hard and fast rules must be observed as to the order in which the diplomats file past the president. There are two divisions. First the ambassadors, each accompanied by all the members of his staff and their wives, and then the ministers, each similarly attended. Places in each division are assigned in accordance with the length of time each envoy has represented his government at Washington. That is, statesmen who have been here for years take precedence over the newcomers.

At the head of the line walks the ambassador who by virtue of the most lengthy service in Washington is the dean of the diplomatic corps. This post of prestige is now held by Baron Mayor des Planches of Italy. The foreigners are introduced to the president by the secretary of state, who has the best of his cabinet colleagues in that he is thus temporarily in the limelight.

After the White House reception the diplomats return home for a few minutes' rest, and then a little before 12 o'clock they set out for the residence of the secretary of state. Here, at noon, an elaborate repast is served. The average American citizen would declare it a luncheon, but in social diplomatic usage it is a breakfast. Considerably more than 200 persons are expected at this breakfast, so that it can be seen that it taxes the housekeeping arrangements even in a mansion such as the $150,000 dwelling of Philander Knox. Then, too, the same importance attaches as at the White House, to who goes first, so that servants have to be carefully drilled and the utmost care exercised lest some lesser diplomat receive more honor than is his due, while some greater luminary is correspondingly slighted.

HOME OF SECRETARY OF STATE KNOX WHERE THE GREAT "DIPLOMATIC BREAKFAST" IS SERVED ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

HERMAN DE LAGERCRANTZ, MINISTER OF SWEDEN AND HIS SECRETARY



SENOR DE LA BARRA, THE NEW AMBASSADOR OF MEXICO

The entire afternoon of New Year's day the diplomats devote to making ceremonial calls. Almost all the prominent hostesses in Washington, except the wife of the president, hold receptions on this eventful afternoon. Most of the diplomats go first to the home of the vice-president, then "down the line" of cabinet homes in the order of their official standing; after which they pay their respects at the residence of the speaker of the house of representatives, and then follows indiscriminate calling upon the wives of senators, representatives, army and navy officers and other official hostesses who are keeping open house. Everywhere they meet other diplomats and public officials of all grades, for calling is general at the seat of government on the first day of the year. In accordance with the Yankee idea, only the men of the American households go calling on New Year's afternoon, but the diplomats are in almost every instance accompanied by the ladies of their households. It is past sundown when this round of calling is concluded, but that does not end the day for the tired diplomats. Most of them have been invited to the ceremonial dinners that, in great numbers, close the day in Washington, hence they must hurry home and change to evening attire in order to greet yet another hostess before 8 o'clock.

A RUSKIN STORY

In 1858, when Ruskin was in his fortieth year, he was asked by a friend to give some lessons in drawing to a child named Rose La Touche—whose name indeed was French, but whose family were Irish. There sprang up between Ruskin and this young girl a very charming friendship, which, of course, at the time could be nothing but a friendship. They wrote each other letters and exchanged drawings and then for awhile they did not meet.

Ten years passed by before they saw each other. Meanwhile the child whom he had remembered as a blue-eyed, saucy, clever little blonde with ripe, red lips and hair like fine spun gold, had become a very lovely young woman of 19 years. They resumed their old acquaintance, but in a very different way. Though Ruskin was nearly 50, he gave to Rose La Touche an adoration and a passion such as he had never felt before. On her side she no longer thought of him as "very ugly," but was singularly drawn to him, despite the difference in their years.

The two met often. They took long strolls together in the pleasant fields of Surrey, and at last Ruskin begged her to make him happy and to be his wife. Oddly enough, however, she hesitated, not because he was so much older than herself, but because he had ceased to be what she regarded as "a true believer." Some of the things that he had written shocked her as being almost atheistic. She was herself, underneath all her gayety of manner, a rigid and uncompromising Protestant. She used phrases from the Bible in her ordinary talk and when she spoke of marriage with John Ruskin she said that she could not endure to be "yoked with an unbeliever."

Yet her heart was torn at the thought of sending him away; and so for several years their intimacy continued, he pleading with her and striving hard to make her see that love was everything. She, on the other hand, read over those passages of the Old Testament which seemed to bar all compromise.

At last, in 1872, when she was 24 and he was 53, she gave him her final answer. She would not marry him unless he could believe as she did: His honesty forbade him to deceive her by a pretended conversion, and so they parted, never to see each other again. How deeply she was affected is shown by the fact that she soon fell ill. She grew worse and worse, until at last it was quite certain that she could not live. Then Ruskin wrote to her and begged that he might see her. She answered with a note in which she feebly traced the words:

"You may come if you can tell me that you love God more than you love me."

When Ruskin read this his very soul was racked with agony and he cried out:

"No, no—then I cannot come to her; for I love her even more than God!"

When she died, as she did soon after, the light of his life went out for Ruskin.—Munsey's.

CITY OF 4000 B. C. FOUND

The vestiges of a city 6,000 years old have been found in Babylonia by the French expedition which has been at work for several years on the site of the Roman Susa, the Shushan of the Bible and later the capital of the Emperors Darius and Artaxerxes.

According to details furnished to the Jewish World, a mound marking the site of the city has been excavated by M. de Morgan and was found to mark the site of the ancient Elamite acropolis of the city. The excavations have produced most astonishing results. Here the explorer found superimposed, one above the other, the remains of three cities, the oldest dating back to B. C. 4000, and below these the signs of older settlements of prehistoric ages.

The recent discoveries show that far more than a thousand years prior to B. C. 1800 the city was occupied by the Babylonians, and that most of the kings of that country set up their monuments in it. When the powerful Semitic dynasty of Babylonian kings contemporary with the age of Abraham was overthrown, the Elamites regained their independence and retained it until B. C. 649, when the city was sacked by Assurbanipal, king of Assyria, who destroyed the palaces and temples.

Explorations show that the chief feature of the ancient city, as of all those of the ancient east, was the temple of the city god, in this case the god Susinak, which stood upon the acropolis. An exploration of the foundations revealed the records of Gudea, king of Chaldea, B. C. 2800. Fortunately, considerable information as to the nature of the sacred edifice and its precincts is preserved by an interesting monument, which was discovered in the ruins.

In the center of the model are the figures of two nude men, one holding a water jar. These, no doubt, are the king and priest performing the ceremonies of lustration, or ceremonial purification, which are a great feature of the oriental temples and frequently mentioned in the religious inscriptions.

Primitive Mills in Brazil.

Vice-Consul De Young, writing from Santos, calls attention to the small corn grinding machines in Brazil:

"In the interior of Brazil a primitive method of producing cornmeal by pounding instead of grinding is practiced. The instrument known as a 'mojollo' works automatically, and consists of a tree trunk balanced on the bank of a stream, one end of the trunk being hollowed out to form a large cup, while the other end is in the form of a pestle. Water filling the cup depresses that end of the log, whereupon the water runs out and the other end falls back to its original position, the pestle striking the corn. Some modern corn grinders have recently been introduced, but there is a good field for a very small and inexpensive grinder to take the place of the 'mojollo' in the interior, where flour mills are rare and each family grinds its own corn."

Onion as Tale-Teller.

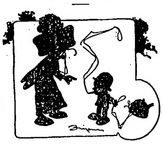
There's a divorce.
'Tis a very sad affair.
An onion is at the bottom of it.
Of yore hubby was fond of onions.
He ate, and ate, and wifey stood it.
Then he fell in love with a festive maiden,
No more onions for him, much to his wife's surprise.
The more she thought of it, the more she wondered at the change.
Not only did he desert the orodous onions—presently he deserted altogether.

FOR THE PUBLIC

New Formula Cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Hoarseness in Five Hours.

Much is being done in these days to stop the ravages of consumption, but probably nothing has been so effective as teaching the public how to break up a cold and cure coughs, bronchitis, tonsilitis, etc., with simple home-mixed medicine. A laxative cough syrup, free from whiskey is the prime need. A cough indicates inflammation and congestion and these in turn are due to an excess of waste and poisons in the system. A tonic laxative cough syrup rids the system of congestion, while relieving the painful coughing. Get the following and mix at home: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less, according to age. Cut this out and save it for some friend.

IMPERTINENT.



Missionary—You haven't been to Sunday school for a month. I don't expect to meet you in heaven!

Kid—Gee! I didn't know you wuz as bad as all dat!

Good Work Going Forward.

Following a whirlwind campaign against consumption in Charleston, the American tuberculosis exhibition of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis recently opened another exhibition movement in Greenville, S. C. After January 1 the work will be continued in Columbia, S. C., in connection with the session of the state legislature. Efforts will be made to secure an appropriation to fight tuberculosis. Another exhibition of the National association has just closed a campaign in Colorado, and is now touring Oklahoma. A state-wide fight will be waged in this state. Later, this exhibition will go to Arkansas.

WE PAY HIGH PRICE FOR HIDES and furs & sell guns and traps cheap. N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis.

Did anybody ever ask the weeping willow why it does it?

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES
1875 "Guarantee"

The Wretchedness of Constipation
Can quickly be overcome by
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE
PLANTEN'S (TRADE MARK) C & C OR BLACK CAPSULES
SUPERIOR REMEDY FOR URINARY DISCHARGES ETC.
DRUGGISTS OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 50c.
H. PLANTEN & SON, 93 HENRY ST. BROOKLYN N.Y.

A Light or a Close Shave
NO STROPPING NO HONING
TRADE Gillette MARK
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 52-1909.

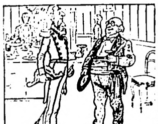
BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
A preparation of superior merit for relieving Coughs, Hoarseness and Irritation of throat; of great benefit in Lung Troubles, Bronchitis and Asthma. Free from opiates or any harmful ingredient.
Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box.
Sample mailed on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY.

Will Break Up a Cold in Twenty-Four Hours and Cure Any Cough That Is Curable.

The following mixture is often prescribed and is highly recommended for coughs, colds and other throat and bronchial trouble. Mix two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, and eight ounces of pure Whisky. These can be bought in any good drug store and easily mixed together in a large bottle. The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, and put up for dispensing in half-ounce vials.

NOTHING REMARKABLE.



The Mayor—Just think, admiral, I've married 20 people in two hours.

The Admiral—Well, that's only ten knots an hour.

SORE EYES CURED.

Eye-Balls and Lids Became Terribly Inflamed—Was Unable to Go About—All Other Treatments Failed, But Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About two years ago my eyes got in such a condition that I was unable to go about. They were terribly inflamed, both the balls and lids. I tried home remedies without relief. Then I decided to go to our family physician, but he didn't help them. Then I tried two more of our most prominent physicians, but my eyes grew continually worse. At this time a friend of mine advised me to try Cuticura Ointment, and after using it about one week my eyes were considerably improved, and in two weeks they were almost well. They have never given me any trouble since and I am now sixty-five years old. I shall always praise Cuticura. G. B. Halsey, Mouth of Wilson, Va., Apr. 4, 1908."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

Diet of the Old.

A sane diet for a person of 70 or 75 should be made up largely of vegetables and fruit, some fish, some eggs, a little meat and simple cereals, if there is no inclination toward obesity.

Drinking with one's meals is not considered advisable, especially as liquids are apt to wash down the food before it is properly masticated. Two quarts of water, or more, should be taken between meals, however, during the day. Hot water is especially good for one who does not exercise much, as it flushes out the entire system. Stimulants, such as tea and coffee, should not be very strong.—Harper's Bazar.

Home-Made Bitters.

Loss of appetite at this season accompanied by lassitude is a symptom of weakened vitality. Improve the appetite and digestion and nature will do the rest says a well-known medical man. This is highly recommended and much used in some parts of the country. Ask any good druggist to mix one ounce compound fluid balmwort and one ounce syrup sarsaparilla compound to a half pint of good whiskey and take a tablespoonful three to six times a day. Excellent too as a tonic system cleanser.

Then the Scissors Cut In.

"You may be sharp," said the thread to the needle, "but I notice you are always getting it in the eye."

"Oh, I don't know," answered the needle, "I notice that whenever you get in a hole I have to pull you through."

"Hush up, you two," cried the thimble. "If it wasn't for my push you would neither of you get along."

Disapproval.

"What makes those two women turn up their noses at each other so superciliously?"

"Possibly," replied Miss Cayenne, "each got a glimpse of the current novel the other was reading."

A Rare Good Thing.

"Am using Allen's Foot-Ease, and can truly say I would not have been without it so long, had I known the relief it would give my aching feet. I think it a rare good thing for anyone having sore or tired feet. —Mrs. Matilda Holtwert, Providence, R. I." Sold by all Druggists, 25c. Ask to-day.

The Way It Happened.

Maude—Bigsby literally fell at my feet.

Belle—Aeroplane or intoxication?

Some people suffer continually with tired, aching and swollen feet. Little do they know how soothing is Hamlins Wizard Oil. Rub it in at night and have thankful, happy feet in the morning.

There is a place for everything, and the place for slippers is very often on the seat of a small boy's trousers.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM has been used successfully for years for deep-seated coughs, colds and bronchitis. Everybody should know about it. It is simple, safe and sure.

It's easy for a woman to paint a pretty face—if she has one.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

A good guesser always boasts of his intuition.

SMITH IS CONVICTED

JURY RECOMMENDS LENIENCY IN CASE OF MANKATO FARM HAND.

VERDICT MEETS WITH APPROVAL

Trial of Mrs. Ledbeter Is Begun, on Request of Defense.—Woman's Attorneys Secure Dismissal of Sheriff by Affidavit.

Mankato.—The jury in the case of Frank Smith, charged with the murder of H. J. Ledbeter, a well known farmer of this country, rendered a verdict of murder in the first deree, as charged in the indictment, and also filed a recommendation for leniency. The jury was discharged.

None of the members had heard of Smith's criminal recor das related by Sheriff Devine, of Logan county, Ill., and Deputy Warden Dowell, Chester, Ill., penitentiary, and expressed gratification that their judgment was sustained by developments outside the trial.

Smith refused to say anything for publication, remarking that the case was not through yet. If he can get funds he intends to move a new trial preparatory to an appeal on rulings of the court, so his attorney states.

Few spectators were present when the verdict was rendered, but the outcome is generally commended by the public. The publication of Smith's past record crystallized public sentiment against him and much fear had been expressed that the jury, not knowing it, might bring in a verdict in lesser degree.

Mrs. Ledbeter's Trial Begun.

The trial of Mrs. Grace Ledbeter began two hours after the jury retired in the Smith case. This had not been expected by the state, which had made arrangements to take the case up Dec. 27. The defense insisted on an immediate trial, however, and the court so ordered. Mrs. Ledbeter, dressed in black and wearing a heavy black veil that hid her face from the public gaze, and with a furlined-cloak over her shoulders, was the center of all eyes as she sat beside her attorneys, S. B. Wilson, A. R. Pfau, Jr., and C. J. Laurish, Her two little daughters, Hazel and Mabel, sat behind her, and near them was their uncle, her husband's brother, P. A. Ledbeter, of Hayward, Wis., her accuser in the present proceedings. The state was represented by County Attorney Walter A. Plymat and Special Municipal Judge W. R. Geddes, and Assistant General G. W. Peterson arrived from St. Paul to assist them, as he did in the Smith trial.

Judge A. R. Pfau, the trial judge, instructed the sheriff and bailiffs to exclude all persons under age during the trial and to prevent any demonstrations whatever and hold spectators back from the jury box.

Twenty-four jurors on the regular panel not on Smith's case were all excused for various causes during the afternoon, the state using two of its 10 preemptory challenges and the defense none of its 20. When court was about to order a special venire of 50 talesmen, the defense filed an affidavit of prejudice against Sheriff J. Donahue, alleging bias against the defendant, and under the law the court had no discretion and directed the venire be placed in the hands of Coroner E. R. Kennedy for service. This is the same procedure as that followed by the defense in the third trial of Dr. G. R. Koch, of New Ulm, in this county, when he was acquitted, and two of Mrs. Ledbeter's attorneys assisted the defense of Koch.

The trial of Mrs. Ledbeter is expected to be watched with more intense interest by the public than Smith's, owing to the many more perplexing features in the case. Numerous witnesses will be subpoenaed by both state and defense, probably three times as many as were secured in Smith's case, as the field for investigation is much wider, particularly as regards motive. This case will be stubbornly fought throughout and several weeks are expected to be consumed in the trial.

BARS GAMBLING IN ROCHESTER.

Mayor James Thompson Decides To Make It a Clean City.

Rochester.—Mayor James Thompson has issued an ultimatum that no more gambling is to be allowed in this city, and orders have been given to the police to this effect. For some time there have been a number of business places that have permitted card games in their establishments, and as a result a number of the younger generation of the city have formed a habit of spending their time in these places.

The attention of the mayor has been called to the growing tendency, and how Mr. Thompson comes out with the statement that he is going to make Rochester a clean city.

"DOPE" CAUSE OF DOWNFALL.

This Is to Be Defense of Itasca County Ex-Treasurer.

Duluth. — The defense has shown its hand in the case of the state against A. A. Kremer, the defaulting treasurer of Itasca county, whose trial is on at Grand Rapids.

It is eidently the intention of the defense to show that the accused was unfitted for business at the time he made the alleged fraudulent entries in the books, as a result of the use of some drug.

O'REILLY APPOINTED BISHOP.

Will Succeed Late Bishop Shanley, of the Bishopric of Fargo.

Minneapolis.—Rev. James O'Reilly, pastor of St. Anthony of Padua church, Eighth avenue and Main street northeast, will succeed the late John Shanley to the bishopric of Fargo. Announcement of the appointment made in a dispatch from Rome which reads:

Rome, Dec. 14.—Approving the recommendations of the consistorial congregation as presented by the secretary, Cardinal De Lai, the pope today appointed Rev. James O'Reilly, now rector of the St. Anthony of Padua, Minneapolis, Minn., to the bishopric of Fargo, N. D., and the Rev. M. F. Fallon of the Provincial oblates of Buffalo to the bishopric of London, Canada.

The bishopric of Fargo has been vacant since last June, when Bishop Shanley died, after a long illness. It is a growing diocese and ranks as one of the most important in the Northwest. The naming of the Minneapolis priest for the place is regarded as a high compliment to the ability and standing of Father O'Reilly as a churchman.

Father O'Reilly is 53 years old. He studied for the priesthood at the seminary of All Hallows, Ireland, and came to the United States when a young priest. He was assigned as vicar at Stillwater, where he served for a number of years and then came to Minneapolis. He has been pastor at St. Anthony of Padua for 26 years.

THREE JURORS ACCEPTED.

State Will Send Counsel to Help Prosecute Mrs. Ledbeter.

Mankato. — Fifteen talesmen were examined in the murder case against Mrs. Grace Ledbeter, and three were accepted as jurors—namely, Charles Polle, a limeburner; Olaf Lundberg, and Adolph Lilie, a retired ice dealer. All are of Mankato.

Fears expressed since the case was taken up that Assistant Attorney General Peterson could not return to assist the state in the trial, were set at rest finally by a long-distance message from Peterson, saying he could come as soon as the jury was drawn. The county board had taken steps to appeal to Governor Eberhart for assistance in case the attorney general's office refused it.

Sensational reports heard to the effect that a razor and knife were found in Smith's mattress were without foundation. Smith has had a razor to use since the middle of July, and has returned it regularly to the officials. A knife with broken blades half an inch long was given him by the officials in July to sharpen a pencil, and has been kept on his table even since. He is not suspected of harboring any design to commit suicide, but a close watch is being maintained day and night as a precaution.

DULUTH CANAL IS DENIED.

Waterway to Minneapolis Gets Unfavorable Report.

Washington, D. C. — An unfavorable report upon the proposed canal connecting Minneapolis and Duluth by the way of the St. Croix river was made by Chief Engineer Marshall. "From an engineering point of view," said General Marshall, "the project is practicable, but commercially is impracticable and I do not deem it advisable for the government to undertake it now."

General Marshall states that he supports the board of engineers and the district engineer in their report which is an exhaustive discussion of the condition of the traffic between Duluth and Minneapolis. The board of engineers takes the position that the four railroads extending from Duluth to Minneapolis and St. Paul are amply able to take care of the traffic.

WOODS TO HEAD FARM SCHOOL.

Minnesota Board of Regents Transacts Important Business.

St. Paul. — A. F. Woods, head of the department of plantology in the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., was selected as dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Minnesota. Dr. Woods will succeed Dean J. W. Olsen, and will serve for a salary of $6,000 a year. The salary heretofore paid was $4,000 a year.

The succession to President Cyrus K. Northrop was discussed. A committee, consisting of President Northrop, John Lind, B. F. Nelson and Dr. W. J. Mayo, will look up a successor to President Northrop, who plans to retire next year.

A. Z. LEVERING DEAD.

Was For Twenty Years Secretary To Thomas Lowry.

Minneapolis. — Anthony Z. Levering for over 20 years private secretary to Thomas Lowry, died after a short illness. Mr. Levering was 58 years old. He came to Minneapolis in the early '70's and had lived at the family residence for over 25 years.

Mr. Levering was to have sailed to Capetown Jan. 1, to visit his daughter.

Towle Syrup Plant Destroyed.

St. Paul.—The factory plant of the Towle Syrup company, was destroyed by fire, causing a loss estimated at $100,000, covered by insurance. The plant was installed in a three-story brick building eight years ago. The principal product of the factory was syrup, but candies and other sweets were also manufactured. One hundred people are put out of employment by the fire. E. A. Towle stated that some effort would be made to supply the customers of the company and that the plant would be rebuilt.

LOOKS LIKE HARVARD FOR SEASON OF 1910

WILL HAVE MORE VETERAN FOOTBALL PLAYERS ON TEAM THAN YALEE NEXT YEAR.

Harvard will have a team of veteran footbal players next season, for of the 16 men who entered Harvard's line-up in the recent game against Yale only five will be lost through graduation, while only ten of the entire squad will not return to college next year. With a decidedly fast freshman team to pick from the outlook for one of the best elevens in the history of football at the university next year is a most promising one.

Gil Browne, Houston, Paul Withington, Fish and O'Flaherty are the only members of the varsity eleven who will not be eligible next year.

After the election of Daly as captain came an inventory of the Yale material for 1910, and was a heart breaker for Yale. "Ted" Coy, who has been looked upon for three long years as the leader of strength in Yale's backfield, will be graduated next June. So will Cooney, the big center, who has played for three years, and who looks like the most popular all-American center of 1909.

On either side of Cooney Yale will also lose Goebel and Andrus—the greatest guards at Yale since Heffelfinger was in the line with "Stan" Morrison—who played their last game for Yale last month. So did Lilley, Hobbs, Spencer, Logan and Holt. Brown, the substitute guard, will also leave Yale next June. Behind the line, "Steve" Philbin and "Fred" Murphy ,two of the best halfbacks of the year, have closed their football careers.

The question comes, is there anyone left besides Daly and Kilpatrick? It is not long to name those who will form the nucleus for the 1910 team. Howe will be in college again and so will Corey, one of the other quarters of the year, but Johnson, the third quarter, will graduate in June.

For end material Yale will have Kilpatrick, Savage, Vaughan and Brooks. Naedele, the only other end of the this season, will graduate in June. For tackle material there will only be Paul, who played as Lilley's substitute in both of the big games this fall. For guard material there is none in sight except what the present freshman class may furnish, and this is mighty unattractive at present.

At center the outlook is better, because both Hyde and Frances, the two lightweight substitute centers, will be back in college next fall. For backfield material there is no good fullback unless Savage is put at this position and Vaughan and Kilpatrick kept at the ends. Dennis is a good punter, but this is all that can be said for him. The halfback material will be cut down to "Jack" Field, Messinger, Robinson and Taylor, none of whom are in the same class with the halfbacks of Capt. Coy's team.

Walter Camp will have a son as a candidate for the varsity next fall. He is a big fellow and should have a football career ahead of him.

GOPHERS KEEP WILLIAMS

Minnesota University Board of Control Offers Coach Choice of Two Contracts.

In spite of reports of dissatisfaction with the work of Coach Harry Williams of the University of Minnesota football team in the last year, the athletic board of control of the Gopher institution has offered the instructor the choice of two contracts. The first was for one year at his present salary of $3,500 and the second for two years at $3,000. It is regarded as certain by the students that William will accept one of the two.

Williams' selection as coach was a popular one with the students at the northern 'varsity.

"Ted" Coy, captain of the Yale eleven of 1908, who was mentioned as a possible successor to Williams at Minnesota, has accepted the nomination as head coach for the Blue for the season of 1910. The selection was made by Fred Daly, newly-elected football captain. Daly refused to divulge his other coaching plans.

Ben Brush Is Leading Sire.

Ben Brush heads the list of winning stallions for 1909 with $66,262, Sweep being his most successful son. Plaudit, the sire of Harrigan and King James, stands second with $64,557. Then comes Yankee, the sire of Joe Madden, with $59,385. Woolsthorpe is fourth with $58,845; Star Shoot, the sire of Ocean Bound, Nimbus and Livonia, comes next with $53,605. Sain, whose most successful son is Jack Atkin, is sixth, with $51,$15. Fitz Herbert's sire, Ethelbert, is credited with $50,837, and Voter, the sire of Hilarious, follows with $46,635.

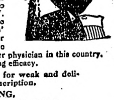
Trade Goode for Nichols.

Outfielder Wilbur Goode of Cleveland has been traded to the Philadelphia Americans for Infielder Simon Nichols. Goode was purchased from Akron O. and P. league club in 1908, and his batting aided the Naps materially in finishing second. This year he failed to distinguish himself and was relegated to the bench.

Mullin a Real Plunger.

As a plunger Pitcher Mullin of Detroit is running his team mate, "Wild Bill" Donovan, a close race. George hit the Jacksonville books for $700, establishing a mark which Bill will attempt to break when he reaches the Hot Springs layout in March.

A Poor Weak Woman



As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG,
SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any age are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue; acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle, $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special agents wanted.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

WE BUY FURS AND HIDES for spot cash. 10 to 50% more money for you to ship Raw Furs and Hides to us than to sell at home. Write for Price List, Market Report, Shipping Tags, and about our HUNTERS' & TRAPPERS' GUIDE 2d Edition. $10,000 Book 450 pages, leather bound. Best thing on the subject ever written. Illustrating all Fur Animals. All about Trappers' Secrets, Decoys, Traps, Game Laws. How and where to trap, and to become a successful trapper. It's a regular Encyclopedia. Price, $2. To our customers, $1.25. Hides tanned into beautiful Robes. Our Magnetic Bait and Decoy attracts animals to traps, $1.00 per bottle. Ship your Hides and Furs to us and get highest prices. Andersch Bros., Dept. 114 Minneapolis, Minn.

The Most Profitable Lands in the U. S.

are in the Gulf Coast Country, Cameron County, Texas. Why? Answer: Most southerly county in U. S. and the very earliest fruits and vegetables bring highest prices for big crops. Deep black soil, no gumbo. Artesian Well Irrigation. Climate nearly same, summer and winter; no extreme heat, no malaria. Profits on $30.00 land, several hundred dollars. Fact. Return fare, $32.50, first and third Tuesdays. Delightful trip. Write for details. Agents wanted in your town.

W. W. CLARK, Palace Building, Minneapolis

SHIP RAW FURS AT ONCE

WULFSOHN GANSS FUR CO., Inc.

Capital $50,000.00 216 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

The only Minneapolis house which has branches in New York, Leipzig and London. Ship your raw furs to us, then you are sure to get full values and a square sort.

	Ex. Lge.	Lge.	Med.	Small	II	III	IV
SKUNK—	$4.25	$3.50	$3.00	$2.25	$2.00	$2.00	$ .75—1.00
RACCOON—	3.25	2.75	1.75	1.25	1.50	.75	$ .50

	Winter	Lge. Fall	Small Fall	Kitts
RATS—	$ .50	$ .45	$ .30	$ .10

Prompt Returns Ref, N. W. Nat. Bank. We pay express charges.

RHEUMATISM is most painful

WHAT'S GOOD?

ST. JACOBS OIL

Price 25c. 50c.

It gives INSTANT relief when nothing else will remove the twinges. It finds and rests each sensitive spot in a wonderful manner. Don't wait till pain overtakes you, let alone overcomes you.

ALWAYS KEEP ST. JACOBS OIL IN THE HOUSE READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY

St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

W·L·DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Fast Color Eyelets

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

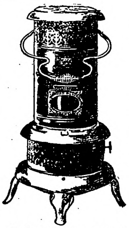
Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOY'S SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.



Have Heat Brought To You

When your bed-room, bath-room or dining room is chilly, you may have heat brought to you in just the degree you desire. It is easy when you have a

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

available. Place the heater where the cold is most annoying, strike a match.

No fuss—no flurry—no smell—and, above all, no smoke. The

Automatic Smokeless Device

which automatically locks absolutely prevents smoke. Removed in an instant. Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

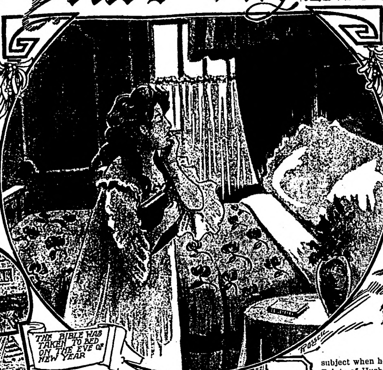
STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(Incorporated)

Myths, Customs and Superstitions of New Year's Day

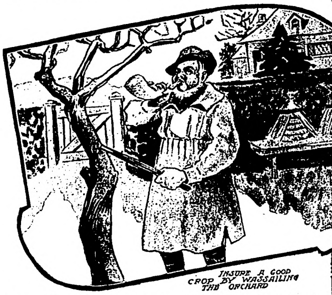
BY EDWARD FOSTER

IN ANY attempt to trace the origin of the innumerable myths, customs and superstitions connected with the fetes and festivals of the calendar, the student is confronted with two problems: The strong probability of their having been primarily of religious significance, and thus the potsherds, as it were, of cults long forgotten, and the possibility of their having become garbled or altered in being handed down through the centuries. Pausanias 17 hundred years ago evidently realized this difficulty to the full when he wrote in his "Description of Greece:" "As to these fables of the Greeks I considered them childish when I began this work, but when I get as far as this book I formed this view: That those who were reckoned wise among the Greeks spoke of old in riddles and not directly, so I imagine the fables about Chronos to be Greek wisdom, of the traditions therefore about the gods I shall state such as I meet with."

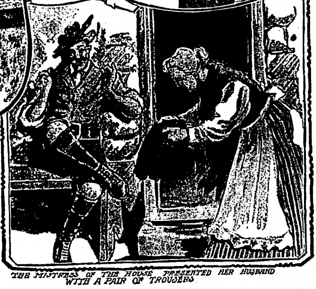
Plutarch also warned us against approaching these studies in the spirit of skepticism and does not leave us in the dark as to his attitude of steering a middle path between absolute unbelief and blind trust. "In regard to legendary lore," he says, "I stand in the position of one who neither altogether believes nor altogether disbelieves. There are indeed some slender and obscure particles of truth scattered about in the mythology of the Egyptians, but they require a clever man to hunt them out, a man capable of getting great results from small data."



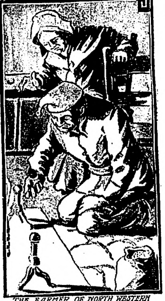
THE BIBLE WAS TAKEN TO BED ON THE EVE OF NEW YEAR



INSURE A GOOD CROP BY WASSAILING THE ORCHARD



THE MISTRESS OF THE HOUSE PRESENTED HER HUSBAND WITH A PAIR OF TROUSERS



THE FARMER OF NORTH WESTERN FRANCE SEEKS TO FIND THE MONTH THE PRICE OF WHEAT WILL BE THE HIGHEST

At the period when these two authors wrote, all learning and science were confined to a very narrow circle of initiates. The common folks were kept in strict ignorance of the true meaning of their festivals; the mysteries were a hidden book as to their true significance, and only the outward and visible sign of the celebrations came within their ken. How far the secrets were kept by these initiates—a combination compared with which our steel and sugar trusts sink into mere insignificance—is too well known to every student. Thus in many cases it is impossible to trace definitely the actual basis of these ancient myths and customs and any attempts, perforce, must necessarily remain much in the nature of a patchwork quilt. A scrap gathered here and there from the ancient writings helps to work up the quilt, but the ultimate stage has a somewhat crazy appearance.

It is all the more exasperating, because many of these early writers, such as Herodotus, Plutarch and others have stopped short in their screeds just when a few extra words would have eased the knots that now prevent us from unraveling the skein. They were initiates and thus sworn to silence. Their oaths, however, did not prevent them whetting our curiosity and leaving us in a position where, as Plutarch cynically remarks, it would indeed be a clever task to get "great results from small data."

Athenaeus, another of the old Greek gossipers, in speaking of the policy of the Romans in adopting the customs of peoples whom they had conquered says: "For it is the conduct of prudent men to abide by those ancient institutions under which they and their ancestors have lived, and made war upon and subdued the rest of the world; and yet at the same time, if there were any useful or honorable institutions among the peoples whom they have subdued, those they take for their imitation at the same time as they take their prisoners. And this was the conduct of the Romans in olden time; for they, maintaining their national customs, at the same time introduced from the nations whom they had subdued every relic of desirable practices which they found." This, in a measure, was the policy of the early fathers in adapting heathen feasts and sacrifices to the festivals of the church. With them, however, it was rather a case of adaptation than of adoption, believing that the new order of things would come easier to the converts to the Christian religion if the changes were not made too sweeping nor too harsh. Thus it is that so many of the customs connected with our festivals have come down to us from time long prior to the birth of the Saviour.

Unlike the many customs connected with the celebration of Christmas, those of the beginning of the New Year seems to bear more of the stamp of paganism. At the same time such customs show a rather close resemblance, due in a large measure to the fact that both can be traced to the celebrations round the ancient festival of the Saturnalia and winter solstice, when the old year went out and the new came in; a period of general rejoicing, and it must be admitted of a great degree of rowdyism, noise and license which all the fulminations of church councils in the Middle Ages and city ordinances and orders of chiefs of police in these later days have been unable to suppress. The youngster of to-day with his horn is just as prominent in creating a racket as was his prototype of a couple of thousand years ago.

Of late years this period of noise has been largely restricted to the eves of Christmas and New Year, but formerly the period closely following Christmas day was one of continuous jollification. Mummers perambulated the strees of the towns and villages, and the Lord of Misrule, the Abbot of Unreason or the Abbas Stultorum held sway. The "Fete of Fools" was celebrated on the three days following Christmas, culminating on Holy Innocents day in a general jamboree, in which not even the churches were spared. Young people dressed themselves up as the great dignitaries of the church, and even the very offices seem to have been paradied and dances held in the churches. The second canon of the Council of Cognac, held in 1260, put under pain of excommunication all such as masqueraded as bishops, etc. At the councils held at Nantes in 1431, and at Bourges in 1438, fulminations were hurled against the "Fete of Fools," while as early as 1212 the celebration was abolished by the council held at Paris. Yet the custom of masquerading on the days following Christmas is not yet extinct in many districts of France and elsewhere, but the celebration has been shorn of much of its picturesqueness and at the same time of its extreme license.

The Lord of Misrule had jurisdiction in both the great English universities from Christmas to Twelfth day. He regulated the celebrations and directed the plays acted at this period, for which he received a regular stipend, but from the records of his rule that have been handed down to us it would rather seem that he himself was sadly in need of being regulated and disciplined. Each city had its similar functionary, and his jurisdiction was not limited to this festive season; he had the regulation of all the festivals of the year. The reign of the Lord of Misrule may be said to have ended when Cromwell and his "crop-eared" Puritans took charge of the government, and while there was some attempt to revive his lordship after the restoration of Charles II., the bones had become too dried and the flesh shriveled up—he was a mere mummy of his former self. In Scotland the Abbot of Unreason was suppressed much earlier—1555—by the legislature, but whether such strong action was due to the spread of Puritanism or to the unbridled scenes of disorder is a question. Under Henry VIII., (1540) the procession of children on Childermas, or Innocents day, was forbidden in England by proclamation. There are, however, still a few traces of the Lord of Misrule. The English Christmas pantomimes open on December 26—Boxing day—and have now become as much of an established institution as ever the Lord of Misrule was in his palmiest days. Of recent years the institution has found favor on this side of the Atlantic. The masquerading on the streets of the Lord of Misrule and his followers has been merely transferred to the boards of the theater. In many parts of France masquerading by children is still in vogue during the three days following Christmas, and in most countries something analogous is to be found. Sometimes the feature is kept up until Twelfth day, while in some sections the fun does not commence until New Year's day.

These first three days have been specially consecrated to the memory of saints and martyrs—St. Stephen on the 26th, St. John the Evangelist on the 27th, and holy innocents or Childermas on the 28th.

The fact that the day next after Christmas was dedicated to St. Stephen, the protomartyr, shows with what veneration he was held by the early church. On this day, in many parts of Ireland, and in the Isle of Man, it is still the custom of the boys to hunt the wren. The origin of this curious but cruel custom is hidden in the mist of ages and thus offers another difficulty of "getting great results from small data." One legend current in Ireland, and told by Lady Wilde, is to the effect that on one occasion, when the Irish troops were approaching to attack a partion of Cromwell's army, the wrens came and perched on the Irish drums, and by their tapping and noise aroused the English soldiers, who fell on the Irish soldiers and killed them all. This tale is a close analogue to that in which the cackling of geese is said to have saved Rome from capture, which even the staid Roman historian, Livy, seems to treat with a show of belief. The custom, however, dates back much further than Cromwell and his Ironsides. In County Leitrim the dead birds are carried from house to house tied to a pole or bunch of furze, covered with ribbons, etc., the boys chanting:

The wren, the wren, the king of all birds,
On St. Stephen's Day he was caught in the furze;
Although he is little his family is great,
So rise up mistress and give us a treat.

The mistress has to turn in a few pence to the boys, the "jackpot" thus created being opened by the boys at the end of the day.

In the Isle of Man the boys give a feather of the wren to each good wife who contributes the necessary coin, and it can well be imagined that by the end of the day the appearance of the bird is somewhat dilapidated. It is then buried on the sea shore with certain mock ceremonies. In former years the interment was made in the churchyard.

It was and is still the custom in many parts of England to bleed the horses on St. Stephen's day. The efficacy of this treatment on this particular day, as a preventive of all equine ailments, was thought to be undoubted, but even old Tusser seems to have had his doubts on the subject when he says in his "Five Points of Husbandry:"

Yer Christmas be passed, let horses be let blood;
For manie a purpose it dooth them much good;
The day of St. Steeven old fathers did use;
If that do mislike thee, some other day
chuse.

The commonsense reason for bleeding the horses on this day was that both man and beast had the three day following Christmas day as a holiday. In parts of Bohemia and elsewhere among the Slavic peoples of Europe the master of the house gets no work out of his servants from Christmas to Innocents' day, and in many sections the holiday and general suspension of work is kept up until Twelfth day—Epiphany. Among the Valaks there is a very significant custom. On the morning of St. Stephen's day the mistress of the house presents her husband with a pair of trousers in token of her obedience during the ensuing year. Evidently the suffragette campaign has not reached into these remote Slavic regions.

Holy Innocents' day, or Childermas (December 28), commemorates the massacre of the children in Bethlehem, under Herod. This in itself is sufficient to explain its early recognition by the church. The superstition that the day is an unlucky one—a "dies nefastus"—is not only widely spread all over Europe, but is deeply rooted and can be traced back many hundreds of years.

The superstition was strong all through the middle ages. In England, in the fifteenth century, it was thought so inauspicious that the day set for the coronation of Edward IV. (Sunday), happening to be Childemas, the ceremony was postponed until the following day. In the County of Suffolk at this day the superstition is carried even further, and on whatever day of the week Childemas may happen to fall, that day is held to be unlucky throughout the year. The commencement of any new task is thought to be certain to be followed by failure. Addison gives an instance of this belief in the Spectator of March 1, 1710-'11. "'Thursday,' says she, 'No, child, if it please God! You shall not begin upon Childermas day. Tell your writing master that Friday will be soon enough.'"

The custom of whipping the children as a reminder of the event commemorated by Childermas was common in France, and some parts of Normandy to-day there is still a remnant existing among the country folks, but the religious significance has been partly lost. This method of assisting the memory of the luckless urchin by scoring his epidermis was formerly in vogue on other occasions than Holy Innocents' day. In England it was formerly a common practice during the riding of the boundaries of parishes and manors on Ascension day to whip the youngsters at every important or disputed point. This "Christening in the days of his youth," was remembered ever afterward, and the particular stone, cairn or streamlet marking the metes and bounds between adjoining parishes was thus indelibly mapped on his gray matter—a proceeding quite as efficacious as a survey.

Although the festivities connected more closely with the celebration of Christmas day have completely overshadowed those of the New Year, still there are not a few corners in Christendom wherein the latter season is held in much greater repute. In Scotland, in particular, it is the great holiday of the year, and on the eve and the day of New Year the canny Scot lets himself out with a vim. It would seem as if his spirits, pent up for a whole twelvemonth, find vent at this paticular season.

In France, Roman law and custom have impressed themselves perhaps more strongly than elsewhere in Europe, not even excepting Italy itself, and the close political friendship which existed between Scotland and France previous to the ascension of James VI. to the throne still finds expression in the country to the north of the Tweed in a much stronger fashion than is generally believed. Many of the lowland terms of to-day are merely French in a Scottish guise. It is perhaps more to this close political entente than to the spread of the Puritan doctrines—doctrines which held everything in abomination, that smacked in the slightest degree of church festivals—that so many of the customs and superstitions now current among the canny Scots so closely resemble those of France. Christmas at one time was almost as much of a festival in Scotland as to the south of the border, and it seems that in the cities, at least, it is again showing recrudescence. But among the rank and file of the people, with the "Man in the Street," it is the New Year that holds his heart and at the same time disturbs his digestion and addles his brain. Any one who has been in the "Canny Toun o' Edinbro" or Glasgow on a New Year's eve realizes the spirit of good-will that reigns even if his ears be split by the pandemonium of noise and his eyes suffer by the reek of the torches, and it is rarely that the Scot in all his jollification at this period construes liberty as license. The custom of welcoming in the New Year has, however, on occasions, been marked by unpleasant features. On the eve of New Year, 1812, the hoodlums of Edinburgh took advantage of the festival to rob unsuspecting citizens. Two of the citizens died from the effects of the maltreatment at the hands of these rowdies, of whom three were executed as an example. This unfortunate incident threatened to put an end to the celebrations.

With the Scots, the eve of New Year is known particularly as "Hogmanay." Throughout the northeastern counties of England it is known as "Hagmena," but in many districts of the latter it is the entire week preceding the New Year, rather than the last day of the year. There have been many attempts by philologists to get at the derivation of the term, and it has even been suggested that it is a corruption of two Greek words, signifying "the holy moon or month." Opinion, however, leans toward its French origin—"Au gui menez" (bring in the mistletoe), and "Au gui l'an neuf (to the mistletoe the New Year), both in allusion to the ceremonial gathering of the plant by the Druids. In almost every district in France we find the term in a more or less corrupted or dialectal form. The Scottish custom of the children going from house to house singing a short verse and begging the "guid wife" for a small present is identically the same as that known all over France.

Get up, guid wife, and shake yere feathers,
An' dinna think that we are beggars,
For we're yere bairns come oot the day,
So rise and gie's oor Hogmanay.

chants the little Scotch kiddie, and the analogue of the doggerel can be found in every village of France. As the Scottish verselet shows, the "hogmanay" applies to the presents to the children, and has not the custom of giving presents at this season endured for centuries? Ovid, in his Fasti, alludes to the custom among the Romans of his day. Then the presents do not seem to have been at all costly and were more symbolical than otherwise. The palm-date and dried fig with the jar of honey and the small coin were the gifts, and it does not need any great stretch of imagination to guess their symbolic meaning. The cakes, fruit and luck-penny are still given the children—they are their "hogmanay."

The superstition that the first person entering the house on New Year's morning, or the first one met during the day, presages good or bad luck during the ensuing year is almost universal. The first to cross the threshold or "first foot" has thus a peculiar significance and many are the precautions taken that he be of the lucky variety. We mention "he" for except in a very few isolated instances the superstition that should a woman be the "first-foot" ill-luck will follow is almost universal. Moreover, he must be a dark man—a red-headed man is anathema. A splay-footed, a pigeon-toed, squint-eyed or an individual whose eyebrows closely approximate, in fact any bodily or mental deformation carries bad luck with it. Yet even here we find a few exception which rather tend to disturb our belief in the infallibility of the rule. In the Bradwell District of Northumberland a light-haired and splay-footed individual is preferred. In parts of Lancashire and Yorkshire a blonde "first foot" is reckoned quite lucky, while in the Maritime Alpine districts a hump-backed visitor on New Year's day is held to bring in great luck with him. In Scotland the prejudice against a red-haired "first foot" is very strong and in the Isle of Man and all through Ireland it is quite as pronounced.

The superstition of ill-luck being attached to red hair is very ancient. Among the ancient Egyptians and Jewish people it was known. Typhon is said to have had this particular color to his "thatch," and red-haired men were abused at certain festivals, as Plutarch tells us in his "Moralia." Cain and Judas Iscariot are both said to have had the crimson topknot, while a well-known legend current among the Jews says that this peculiar tint was the effect of falling down and worshiping the golden calf. In Norse and Gaelic legend we find that the hero is warned against a "ginger-headed" individual.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1909. NO. 40.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Carrie Nation Gives Advice on Wooing

MY ITTIE TOOTSY WOOTSY MAMMA-IN-LAW.

WASHINGTON.—"The first thing a fellow ought to do when he goes courting is to get a line on his future mother-in-law, because she's going to be either his best friend or his worst enemy."

It was Carrie Nation who confided this bit of philosophy to a reporter.

The enforced leisure of the Washington workhouse, where she was being held pending a hearing on a charge of destroying property, had given Mrs. Nation the chance to turn her attention from her pet theme, and it was an off day for the demon rum as far as she was concerned.

"I am going to devote a large part of my time hereafter to seeing that mothers-in-law get the attention they ought to have from the American people," she said, warming to her theme. "Why, a man ought to love his mother-in-law as much as he does his wife, and if he does not it's a sign either that he's soaked all the decency out of him with whisky or burned it out with these fool cigarettes. If a man does not like the mother of the girl he's going with he better light out and book his spare time somewhere else, because it's a sure thing that the girl will turn out to be just like the old lady.

"This law of heredity that I've been studying lately is a wonderful thing. It's the keynote of the whole matrimonial problem. Now, if a fellow begins to think his girl's mother is pretty nice dispositioned, he don't need to look any farther than that house for a wife. And after he gets married it's most likely that his mother-in-law will be willing to do more for him than his wife will in the way of cooking and economizing and minding his children."

Mrs. Nation owns to 63 years, but says she will fight to the death against the demon rum. She has now achieved the crowning triumph of her nine years' crusade—the smashing of furnishings in the big Union station.

Anecdotes of the Nation's Lawmakers

THE SCRIBE
PAYNE

DURING the heat of the tariff session Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, who boasts as large a girth as any member of congress, had occasion to go to the White House with frequency. The amount of news he gave up on these occasions to the newspaper men would have starved a space writer to death in about two days. In addition, Mr. Payne, who was always polite on such occasions, finally became a little bit gruff, because of the rapid-fire bombardment of questions which were daily thrown at him. Finally, a reporter on a Washington newspaper, who was about as large around the waist line as Mr. Payne, recorded the call of the Republican leader at the White House by saying that Mr. Payne had, that day, "waddled" in to see the president and out again. The next day, when hailed by the same reported for news, Mr. Payne got even by retorting:

"Tell your paper that its reporter waddled after Mr. Payne, who replied that he had no news."

Recently Mr. Payne called at the White House and the reporter greeted him with:

"Well, Mr. Payne, I see you are still waddling to the White House."

"You must go around with a looking-glass in front of you all the time," came the reply from Mr. Payne, without the bat of an eye.

Senator Julius Caesar Burrows of Michigan, after an exceedingly busy day in which he called upon the president and several members of the cabinet, thereby arousing the suspicion of the Michigan newspaper men to a fever heat, was met by one of them, who inquired:

"Senator, have you any news concealed about your person to-day?"

"Yes," replied the senator. "Thoroughly concealed."

Put Spies on the Trail of Uncle Sam

POLITICS
BUSINESS

THE Pressed Steel Car Company of Pittsburg, which was recently in the throes of a long strike, is establishing a branch in Washington, not for the purpose of acquiring new business in that district, but to keep in direct touch with governmental affairs.

This is following out the policy of President F. N. Hofstot, who claims that within a few years every corporation of any size in the United States will maintain a similar office in the national capital to keep close watch on what the government is doing and make an annual report to its head offices wherever they happen to be. The corporations hope through the newspapers to disseminate the action and policies of the Union's executive officers and offices. They will maintain their own clerical sleuths.

"Business is taking the place of politics in our government," said Mr. Hofstot. "The government of this country is becoming more commercialized every day. The commercial interests are becoming more important than politics. Commerce and business are the mainstay of the nation, and expect only the right that the government should give greater rights to them.

"Politics in the future should take a back seat. This will increase as the years pass. My own view is that every big industrial firm should keep in close touch with the doings of the government, and particularly with those departments devoted to the commercial and industrial interests."

Mr. Hofstot was asked about politics.

"What I get in politics—" he exclaimed. "Why, if a man wants to have his name sullied and his reputation dragged down in this country all he has to do is to get into politics; run for office and the rest is easy."

It is anticipated that the other big corporations of America will follow the ideas outlined by the head of the Pressed Steel Car Company.

Attorneys Fight in Washington Court

UNITED STATES District Attorney Daniel W. Baker and Andrew A. Lipscomb, the leading criminal lawyer of Washington, passed the lie and engaged in a rough-and-tumble fight under the eyes of Justice Ashley M. Gould several days ago.

Mr. Baker was the prosecutor and Mr. Lipscomb the attorney of the defense in the trial of John W. Collier, a policeman, charged with killing his captain on inauguration day. In the course of the trial Lipscomb insinuated that the district attorney had attempted to intimidate Rev. Dr. Edward Mott, Collier's pastor, by writing a letter to the bishop of Washington objecting to Dr. Mott appearing as a character witness for Collier.

Mr. Baker was on his feet in an instant with an objection, but Lipscomb was not to be headed off.

"I want to show you that the district attorney's office has attempted to intimidate this witness!" shouted Lipscomb.

"Mr. Lipscomb knows that he is not telling the truth!" shouted the district attorney.

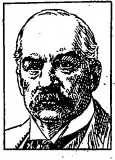
"You're a liar!" shouted Mr. Lipscomb.

Then the district attorney made for him. Mr. Baker weighs 250 pounds. He is not so agile as in his college days, but he was full of fight. He launched a wallop at Lipscomb, which, had it landed, would have knocked him across the court room. His aim was bad, and the blow landed on the assistant district attorney.

Then Liscomb and Baker clinched, and rights and lefts, uppercuts and jabs stirred up the court room dust, and likewise the ire of the judge, who ordered the bailiffs to separate them. Justice Gould called the fighting attorneys before the bar, gave the district attorney a severe reprimand and fined Lipscomb $50 for contempt.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

MORE POWER FOR MORGAN



Through purchase of control of the Equitable Life Assurance society, J. P. Morgan is acknowledged the insurance king of America, the dominating factor in the nation's finances and the master and controlling spirit of the traction situation in New York.

Mr. Morgan has been during the past 25 years the Atlas of the financial world of the United States. He possesses more money power than any man who ever lived in this country.

Born in Hartford, Conn., April 17, 1837, of a family which for generations had been wealthy and aristocratic, he from his youth up enjoyed all the educational advantages that his parents' money and social position could give him. After graduating at the English high school in Boston he went abroad and became a student at Gottingen, Germany. At the age of 23 he returned to this country and apparently because nothing else presented itself for him to do went into his father's banking business.

During the years that followed some of the most luminous of his achievements were:

In 1871 he created a market in Europe for $25,000,000 worth of New York Central stock and sold it there at a profit which amazed old Commodore Vanderbilt.

In 1877 he handled an issue of $26,000,000 of government bonds in preparation for putting the national currency on a gold basis.

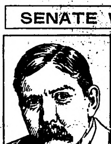
In 1880 he provided $40,000,000 for the extension of the Northern Pacific railroad to the Pacific coast.

In 1880 his was the master hand in the reorganization of the Reading railroad and the reorganization of the Baltimore and Ohio, involving syndicate work and the loan of $10,000,000.

In 1893 the Southern railway was created out of the Richmond Terminal and allied lines.

In 1895 the Erie railway was rehabilitated.

SENATE WATCHES DOLLIVER



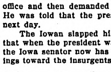
Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa, a leading member of the "insurgents," threw some hot shot into the enemy in his speech delivered at the Press club in Chicago just before congress convened. Mr. Dolliver advanced the theory that the most hopeful sign about the last congress was not what congress did, but the fact that it did not do so unanimously. He also said that he believed President Taft's attitude toward the "insurgents" at the present session will be friendly and that he thought the president had done all that it was up to him to do in the tariff matter, as congress made the tariff revision and not the president.

"The time when a 'skin game' can be worked on the people with the unanimous consent of congress will never come again," said Mr. Dolliver. "When I am asked why I do not vote with the majority I say: 'Not until I have made a chemical analysis of it.'

Soon after he arrived in Washington Senator Dolliver went up to the White House to see President Taft. He waited for some time in an outer office and then demanded of Secretary Carpenter the reason for the delay. He was told that the president was busy and could not be seen until the next day.

The Iowan slapped his hat on his head and left, telling Mr. Carpenter that when the president wanted to see him he could send for him. It is said the Iowa senator now has a different opinion concerning the president's feelings toward the insurgents.

MONEY IS THE NEW LEADER

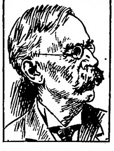


The Democrats in the United States senate have a new leader. He is Hernando de Soto Money, senator from Mississippi. The senate is pretty well made up of money these days, having several multimillionaires on its salary list. It often is called the "Millionaire's club." The new minority leader, however, has money in name only. Of course the Mississippian who will lead the party of Jefferson in the affairs to come before the senate has a few dollars, but as compared with Elkins, Guggenheim, Depew and several others he is a poor man.

Senator Culberson of Texas has been the minority leader in the upper branch of congress for several years, but soon after the lawmakers convened for the sixty-first session he announced that he would give up the honor because of his health. Many thought Senator Bailey, also of Texas, would get the place, but it went to Senator Money.

Mr. Money has had ample experience in congress to make him a good leader of his party forces. He was first elected from the fourth Mississippi district in 1875 and served 10 years. He was out of the house until 1893 and was again elected, serving until 1897. While a member of the house he was elected in 1896 to the senate, but did not take his seat until March 4, 1899.

EDWARD OUT-OF-DOOR KING



No other European sovereign is so much a man of the open air as King Edward, who has just celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary. He is singularly energetic, though not active in the sense of one who walks rapidly and far. When there is nothing better available for an out-of-door occupation he does not despise the gentle game of croquet, though he has never fallen a victim to golf.

He is not afraid of rain and he actually revels in the brisk freshness of a heavy shower. He hardly ever uses an umbrella. For life out of doors he prefers clothes which will resist the rain, but he does not like a mackintosh. Clad in a long, cloth cape, which completely covers his other clothes, he scorns to take shelter from even a tropical downpour.

He likes the sea, not only in its fairer moods, as when he is yachting in pleasant weather on the Solent, but also when he can watch it in storm.

On his tour abroad this year the king was perpetually out of doors, in the royal yacht or ashore in motor-cars or carriages. He picnicked wherever he could, even at Girgenti and Pompeii.

Few are more skilled in the management of a sporting estate than his majesty. His head keeper, Mr. Jackson, constantly consults him and the king takes no mere surface interest in the intricacies of game preservation, with due regard to the rights of others. He arranges the beats personally and with much skill and he enjoins a rather strict observance of all the rules. He is an excellent marksman.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Taft's Visit Stirs Up Bowery Tramps

WORK
GO!
TAFT

NEW YORK.—Since President Taft visited the Bowery and addressed 300 of "the boys," more energy has been shown by the hoboes who haunt the resorts of the notorious thoroughfares than ever before in his history. There is not a man, woman, or child along the thoroughfare who will admit he or she was not at the president's side. Nearly 2,000 white collars sent by a Brooklyn laundry the next day aided the men of the Bowery to show they appreciated the visit.

After the free distribution of laundry at the mission the men gazed at one another and waited for the next miracle.

"The men are just dazed, and that is the only term that expresses it," said J. T. Hunt, who has charge of the labor bureau of the mission. "They cannot realize the president of this country really came down here to talk with them."

As he was speaking a mild mannered six foot two of humanity, with a two days' stubble beard, came up to the desk and made an attempt at a bow.

"What is it, Jake?" asked Mr. Hunt.

"Say, boss, it's this way," replied Jake. "I'm just going out to get a job if I have to take it off somebody. If the president comes down here to talk to us bums and tells us we got a chance, why, we're going to make good. He ought to know, hadn't he? Guess his word goes with me. If we are good enough for him to talk to I'm going to get busy!"

"That's the way it has been going all day," said Mr. Hunt. "I never saw men so deeply stirred. The visit of the president has put more ambition into them than they have ever before displayed. Just wait and I will show you."

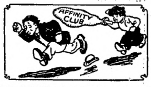
Stepping before 50 or 60 men, all resplendent in new white collars, Mr. Hunt said to a man whose collar plainly was too tight and who was proud of his distress:

"Come here, Frank. Tell us just what you think and what the men are saying about the president's visit."

"We don't know what to say," said the man. "It's just knocked us clean out. The boys are clean crazy over it. Why, we never thought that the likes of the president cared nothing about us here.

"We're all Democrats, but here Mister Taft comes around and calls us boys and tells us we is as good as anybody. Say, the boys are going to go some now. Wish I could get one day's work and I'd get a necktie."

Affinity Trust at Missouri College



ST. LOUIS.—If you visit Columbia and see a man wearing a hunted look, dodging at the mere sight of a girl, don't put him down as a misanthrope, or a football hero trying to escape flattery, or a bashful professor. He may be only side-stepping his self-appointed affinity.

For the University of Missouri, leader in football and things intellectual, has an affinity club in good working order. It is composed of half a dozen young women who room at one of the popular boarding houses near the campus. Of course, the affinity idea itself is old and can't begin to compare with Uncle Joe Cannon as a space-getter in the newspapers. But the young women of the Affinity club have added several brand-new wrinkles to the idea.

Each member of the club, as a requisite of membership, has selected an affinity and has told his name to the other girls. The rules of the organization requires that she shall have had only the most distant speaking acquaintance with the Fortunate One—or the Victim, depending on the point of view. The choice is final; the rules prohibit changing affinities. Having made her choice, the young woman strives to obtain some marked recognition from her affinity. The penalty for failure is a "tubbing."

The open season for the affinities closed at Christmas. If before that time any member of the club did not succeed in having her affinity pay her some "special attention," she was to take a "tubbing" in the presence of the members who have "made good." And the water wasn't to be warm, either.

"Marked attention," as defined by the club, means an invitation to dance or to go to the theater or a request to call. A stroll on the campus wouldn't do.

Telephone Girl Scores Her Own Sex

GIVE ME THE MANAGER KNOCK

NEW YORK.—"Yes, I know they say that women have more patience than men, but that's just another of those 'they says,'" remarked a telephone girl on day duty at one of the uptown exchanges in an expansive half hour. "If women are more patient than men they certainly don't show it when they use the telephone.

"When some women give the number they want they expect to get their party instanter, or quicker, and if they don't they immediately become catty about it.

"The most nonsensical accusation that women are forever making against exchange girls is that the girls are eavesdropping on their phone conversations. Such a thing of course is perfectly impossible, for the very simple reason that a girl working at a board hasn't one instant of time to do anything like that.

"'Give me the manager,' a woman said to me over the phone a while ago, before she had asked for the number.

"'Do you wish to make a complaint?' I asked her.

"'I wish,' she replied in a severe tone, 'to have a very private conversation with my lawyer, and I want to talk with the manager first to ascertain if he will assure me that my conversation will not be listened to.'

"Oh, You Kid!" Ditty Breaks Up Church

"I LOVE MY GOD—BUT OH YOU !!! KID"
REVIVAL MEETING

CHICAGO.—"Oh, you kid!" the stale ditty of the five-cent theaters and the vaudeville houses, was hashed into a sacred anthem in Geneva several nights ago with disastrous results to a prayer meeting at one of the churches.

Since then the pastor and the deacons have been searching for the irreverent member of the choir who annexed the phrase to the hymn with a lead pencil. With much indignation they asserted that he is a fit subject for conversion—of a muscular kind.

The quotation made its fatal entrance into the prayer meeting during a solo that was rendered by a soprano during the hush which followed a solemn exhortation by the preacher. The services had been fervent. The pastor had preached a stirring little sermon and 10 to 12 of the laymen had given their testimony. From the sober looks of several young men and women on the back benches it looked as if converts were soon to be gathered in, when the spell and spirit of the meeting were broken by the words of the frivolous song.

The pastor had closed his exordium and had announced the solo. The young woman lifted her voice in song. She put so much fervor into the music itself that she followed the words blindly and sang the anthem exactly as it had been revised by a joker.

"I love my God," sang the soprano in swelling note.

"I love my God," the singer repeated, putting on the crescendo for a climax, "I love my God, but, oh, you kid!"

The choir and congregation went into hysterics, the prospective converts gasped and then guffawed, and before order could be restored the shocked and scandalized pastor dismissed the meeting without waiting for the benediction.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - MINN

DEBT ABROAD.

The people of the United States may view with placidity their financial debt to Europe, even though that obligation is estimated at present at the prodigious total of $400,000,000. There is nothing novel or startling about this condition. It is not abnormal, says the Washington Herald. It is possible to view with complacency the estimate that an additional $100,000,000 is carried out of this country every year by tourists and expended abroad. This is true, even in face of the fact that for months the trade balance has shown an increase of imports, both luxuries and necessities, which may be regarded as a symptom of increased domestic trade. It must be observed that the gold production of the United States equals its currency demand. This is true of no European country. Moreover, there is a surplus of silver output. Thus this country is slightly ahead in the source of the precious metals. It is not necessary for the United States to buy gold to pay its debts. This remains a fact, despite the interest payments upon our securities in the hands of foreign investors and the premiums upon foreign insurance policies. It is the American farmer who most contributes to the squaring of this account. Europe demands all the cotton, corn and wheat that this country can spare from its own consumers, and this year the prices of those staples are high. Thus in international balances, it is always necessary to reckon with those primary sources of wealth, the farm and the mine.

Count Zeppelin was quoted the other day as expressing the belief that the time when it would be possible to cross the ocean in airships was near at hand. He was represented as saying that carrying passengers and freight in this manner undoubtedly would be practical. And here comes an American scientist who completely out-Zeppelins Zeppelin. Prof. Thaddeus C. Lowe, who is at the head of the famous Mount Lowe observatory, near Pasadena, Cal., is convinced that it is feasible to circle the globe in a dirigible balloon without having to stop to replenish fuel or other supplies. His faith is so great that he is constructing a machine in which it is proposed to attempt this feat.

A French firm ranking as the most extensive of its kind in the world announces the intention of moving its plant, or a very large part thereof, to Paterson, N. J., where the business of dyeing and manufacturing silks will be continued. It is not so many years ago since the idea of producing good silks in the United States was ridiculed as utterly chimerical. To-day American silks rank well alongside the best imported goods, and now noted silkmakers are bringing their establishments here from other lands. Protection did it, and will do abundantly for any nation which applies the principle understandingly.

A high school on Long Island has issued an edict against hair puffs and cosmetics. With regard to the former something desperate needs to be done, as at the present rate of puff decoration, the average woman's head threatens to blot out the landscape, and it is necessary to attack the evil with the growing generation if a race of top-heavy women are not to afflict the eye of beauty-loving mankind.

A New Jersey teacher has just started for Europe to collect a hundred-odd millions belonging to the estate of Sir Francis Drake. If she succeeds, it will give a fresh impetus to the overworked but hitherto unprofitable "English-claim" industry, which, oddly enough, has fixed its focus on English landed estates when castles in Spain are so much better adapted for the purpose.

The fact that the necessities of life have increased in price 56 per cent. in the last 13 years doesn't worry the farmer. The city man may have pleasures that are denied to him, but when it comes to a table groaning with good things the countryman is the real epicure.

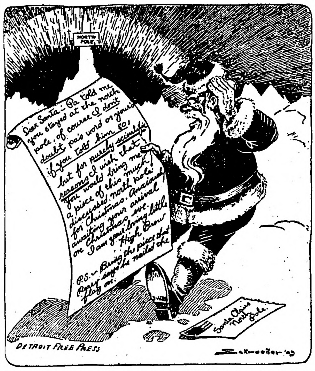
It seems to be fairly certain that a general parliamentary election is at hand in England. In all probability the contest will come at the beginning of the year, and chances favor an exceedingly active campaign.

A college president says that airships will replace automobiles. Then instead of the speed maniacs running over the general public they will be falling down on their heads.

The season for hunting has opened in Maine and the men who value their lives will not take to the woods till the amateur hunters have left them.

Greece will discover in time that mutiny is no advance over the recognized Olympic games.

A NEW JOB FOR "SAINT NICK."



FIRE IN INSANE HOSPITAL

ANNEX TO CENTRAL ASYLUM AT JACKSONVILLE BURNS.

Hundred Patients Scantily Clad Escape During Excitement—Fear Some Are Burned to Death.

Jacksonville, Ill.—A hundred or more scantily clad lunatics roamed the country after being liberated from imprisonment by a fire which destroyed the north wing of the Northern Hospital for the Insane Tuesday

Several firemen were injured by falling walls in the fight to prevent the blaze from spreading to the main part of the building.

Nearly 1,500 insane men and women were liberated, but the quick work of the guards prevented the majority of them from fleeing beyond the limits of the asylum.

Wild panic followed the breaking out of the blaze in the north wing. Hundreds of helpless inmates, screaming and struggling at the windows and doors, fought fiercely with the guards, who tried to conduct an orderly retreat to other parts of the asylum.

Many escaped in the first throes of the panic. Their clothing, such as they had on, was torn off in the struggling mass of humanity in the corridors, and of those who escaped nearly all are roaming about in thin night clothing, while some are practically naked. Posses of officers and citizens are searching for the fugitives.

The fire burned until after midnight before it was under control and danger to the hundreds of inmates in the other wings minimized.

BANKER'S WIFE IS JAILED

Mrs. Edith L. Allen and Her Sister Are Charged with Concealing Property.

Madison, Wis. — Mrs. Edith L. Allen, wife of Philip Allen, Jr., who wrecked the First National bank of Mineral Point, Mrs. Allen's sister, Miss Addie Jackson, stenographer and bookkeeper of the Redford Sash and Door Company of Chicago, and their brother-in-law, Guy Roe of Winona, Minn., president of the Union Fiber Company of that city, were arrested on complaint of United States District Attorney Gordon, charging them with conspiring to conceal property turned over to them by Allen since he was declared an involuntary bankrupt on November 26.

The defendants were arraigned before Commissioner Blake, pleaded not guilty and were bound over for their preliminary hearing on January 4. Unable to furnish bail of $5,000 each they were committed to jail.

INDICT MORE SUGAR MEN

Federal Grand Jury Bring In Number Indictments Against Arbuckle Employes.

New York.—The federal grand jury which is investigating the sugar frauds Monday handed down a number of new indictments directed against former employes of the Arbuckle Company.

Bench warrants have been issued and as soon as the men are arrested the names will be made public. It is stated that in the case of the frauds in the Arbuckle refinery there was no manipulation of the scales, the method employed there being simple bribery of government weighers to have them report short weights.

Jumps to Death in Subway.

New York.—While the Grand Central station in the subway was crowded with Christmas shoppers, Abrahar Fineman, a clothing manufactur Thursday leaped from the platforn in front of an express train and was ground to death under the wheels.

New Hungarian Premier Named.

Budapesth.—Emperor-Kin g Francis Joseph Thursday appointe d Dr. Ladislau von Lukacs, former minister of finance, Hungarian prer

STRIKE SETTLEMENT NEAR

Railroad Officials and Representatives of Switchmen Confer with View of Compromising.

St. Paul, Minn.—As the result of two conferences in the office of G. T. Slade, third vice-president of the Northern Pacific railroad, which were attended by that official, General Manager J. M. Gruber of the Great Northern, R. W. Wheelock, secretary to Gov. Eberhart, and the ten officials representing the railroad section of the American Federation of Labor, the chances for a settlement of the switchmen's strike in the northwest are brighter now than at any time since the men went out three weeks ago.

Vice-President Slade and R. B. Perham, chairman of the railway council, announced after the session that both sides had agreed to make no statement for publication. Mr. Perham stated, however, that the conferees will meet again Thursday, and until that time conditions will remain the same so far as the strikers are concerned.

It is believed here that some kind of a compromise has been agreed upon between the strikers and the railroad officials.

GUARDS PROTECT A NEGRO

Armed Men Still Surround Belleville Jail to Prevent Attack on Alleged Slayer of Motorman.

Belleville, Ill.—Sheriff Cashel continued to maintain his armed guard at the Belleville jail, where Will Clark, the negro charged with with slaying Motorman E. V. Goudey, is being held.

The finding of the coroner's jury that "circumstantial evidence points to William Clark, a negro, as the murderer of Motorman Goudey," was received by citizens without comment. Blood-stained trousers were identified as having been worn by Clark.

WALSH GETS BRIEF STAY

Convicted Banker Obtains Temporary Respite by Supreme Court's Order of Delay.

Washington. — John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker over whom a sentence of five years' imprisonment is hanging, will be able at least to eat his Christmas turkey at home.

The formal presentation to the supreme court of the United States of his petition for a writ of certiorari insures that result if nothing more.

TO REPORT WATERWAY BILL

Chairman of House Committee Says Measure Carrying More Than $30,000,000 Will Be Reported.

Washington. — "We will report a general river and harbor bill about the first of February," said Chairman Alexander of the house committee on rivers and harbors.

"How much is it likely to carry From $30,000,000 upward?" he was asked.

"It will be much more than that. It will be a reasonably large sum."

CHERRY VERDICT PUT OFF

Inquest Over Victims of St. Paul Mine Disaster Is Postponed Until January 4.

Cherry, Ill.—T he coroner's inquest into the St. P al mine disaster of November 13 w as postponed until January 4.

The lo ng delay in reopening the mine sh afts has made the miners restless.

Taft Attends High Mass.

Washington.—President Taft, accompanied by practically all of the members of his cabinet, attended the solemn high mass of requiem held at St. Matthew's Catholic church Thursday for the repose on the soul of King Leopold of Belgium.

Pays $40,000 for Soup Tureens.

New York.—Including commissions and other incidental expenses, J. Pierpont Morgan recently paid $40,000,000 for two soup tureens which he obtained in Paris.

ASSASSINS AT WORK

HIGH OFFICIALS IN THREE COUNTRIES ARE VICTIMS OF "REDS."

PREMIER STABBED IN SEOUL

Bomb and Knife Are Used by Assailants in a Remarkable Series of Political Acts of Violence—Widespread Plot Is Seen.

Seoul, Korea.—Yie Chamm Yong, a Korean, Wednesday stabbed and fatally wounded Premier Yi, the head of the Korean cabinet.

The assassin was immediately arrested. He is a youth of about 20 years and is believed to be a member of a political secret society.

The premier was removed to the hospital, where it was said he was dying.

Premier Yi was formerly minister of education in the Korean cabinet. He became prime minister in May, 1907, when a reconstruction of the cabinet followed a five-hour audience that Marquis Ito, the Japanese resident, had with the emperor. Yi was regarded as a firm and competent officer, but his efforts to carry out the policy of the new administration met with continual and determined opposition from his political adversaries.

The assailant was a young Christian, who was for many years a resident of the United States. The premier was riding in his jinrikisha when the assailant came up with a long kitchen knife in his hand. He drove this twice into the abdomen of the premier and once into the latter's lung.

The assassin then turned on the premier's jinrikisha man, whom he stabbed and instantly killed.

St. Petersburg.—Col. Karpoff, chief of the secret police of St. Petersburg, was assassinated Wednesday. He had been enticed to a modest apartment in a remote street of the Viborg district and there was blown to pieces by a bomb, exploded, supposedly, by his host, one Michael Vosskressensky, who had leased the rooms for a few days.

The murderer rushed into the street following the explosion and was captured. An assistant of Karpoff's who had accompanied him, was severely injured.

Karpoff was appointed from Baku, where he had been chief of the secret police. There have been several convictions of bombmakers recently.

Bombay, British India. — Arthur Mason Tippetts Jackson, chief magistrate of Nasik, in the presidency of Bombay, was assassinated Wednesday by a native while attending a theatrical performance.

The motive for the murder is supposed to have been a wish for revenge upon the magistrate, who had recently sentenced a criminal to life imprisonment.

Washington.—An official dispatch received by the state department from Bucharest said that the prime minister of Roumania had been shot and seriously wounded by a Roumania anarchist.

600 ARE KILLED IN BATTLE

Gen. Estrada Scores a Complete Victory Over Zelayan Forces—Two Americans Are Killed.

Bluefields, Nicaragua.—Gen. Estrada Wednesday won a complete victory over the government troops at Rama. A total of 00 men of both armies was killed or wounded. Nineteen hundred of Zelaya's men have surrendered, including Gen. Gonzales, who was in command. Two Americans are reported killed.

The fighting occurred outside the city limits. The wounded are being brought here. Commander Shipley has landed surgeons from the Des Moines to care for them.

Estrada has captured Rocreo, Gen. Vasquez' strongest position, and he has been victorious all along the line, which stretches for a distance of eight miles.

The casualties on the government side were high, the greatest execution being done at Rocreo, which the revolutionists finally took by assault. Tatumbia, a short distance from Rocreo, was captured by Gen. Mena after a bloody fight.

Warriner Gets Six Years.

Cincinnati.—"I'm free for the first time in ten years," said Charles L. Warriner, the defaulting treasurer of the Big Four, who was Wednesday sentenced to six years at hard labor in the state penitentiary. Warriner had pleaded guilty to embezzlement by prearrangement between the county prosecutor and his attorneys.

Senator McLaurin Is Dead.

Jackson, Miss.—United States Senator A. J. McLaurin died suddenly Wednesday night at his home in Brandon. Death was due to an attack of heart failure. When the fatal stroke came upon him Senator McLaurin was seated in a rocking chair in front of the fireplace in his library.

Shoots Sister and Kills Himself.

New York.—His sister's persistent refusal to give him money so angered Abraham Bennett, Jr., of Brooklyn that he shot her down in the hallway of their home Thursday, probably fatally injuring her, and then shot and killed himself.

Beaten and Driven by White Caps.

Petersburg, Ind. — White caps dragged Lafe Dedman from his home Wednesday night, near Winslow, beat him with switches and pickets and ordered him to leave the neighborhood.

BARONESS LEAVES BELGIUM

LEOPOLD'S QUEEN TAKES TRAIN FOR FRANCE.

Accepts Government's Hint That Expulsion Awaited Her Unless She Voluntarily Departed.

Brussels. — Baroness Vaughan whom Leopold made his queen in fact, if not in name, quietly left Belgium, accepting the hint of the government that if she did not depart voluntarily she would be expelled from the country.

The baroness packed up those magnificent furnishings of her chateau which were the personal gifts of King Leopold and forwarded them across the frontier. She herself took a train for France.

Prince Albert's happy plan to reunite the exiled and separated family was fulfilled. As Baroness Vaughan passed out forever from Belgian life, Princess Louise triumphantly entered the city and was officially greeted at the station and acclaimed by the people. She was conducted with royal honors to the Chateau Belvedere, which henceforth will be her official home.

A vast crowd viewed the body of the late king. Many of the people who came in from the provinces were incensed that the gates were closed at three o'clock and they tried to force an entrance. In the panic people were trodden on, garments were torn and women fainted. Quite a number were injured. Finally the palace was reopened and the visitors were allowed to file past the catafalque.

Brussels. — The body of Leopold II., king of the Belgians, was placed in the royal burial vault in the Church of St. Marc at Laeken, the suburban residence of the royal family. Near it rests the remains of his queen, Marie Henriette; the Princess Josephine and the young duke of Brabant.

The funeral and burial were conducted with all the pomp and ceremony of which the state was capable, despite the wish expressed by the monarch in his will that the obsequies should be of the simplest.

EXPLOSION KILLS SEVEN

Gas Is Set Off by Lamps of Miners in Illinois Coal Mine.

Herrin, Ill.—A gas explosion in mine A of the Chicago & Carterville Coal Company in this city Thursday killed seven men, among them the civil engineer and his helpers.

It is supposed that the explosion was caused by the surveyor and his party walking into an old worked-out room which had gas and which was set off by the lamps they carried.

Four bodies have been recovered. The gas is still bad in that portion of the mine where the explosion occurred and a crew of men have been working for hours trying to fan back the gas and recover the other bodies.

There were several miners knocked senseless by the explosion, and suffered a narrow escape from death by after-damp, but all will recover.

Wives and relatives of the 300 men and boys employed at the mine made a wild rush to the mouth of the mines and could not be driven away until their husbands and friends were all brought on top.

GIANT SHIP IS LAUNCHED

Battleship Utah, Largest Boat Afloat, Is Christened by Daughter of Gov. Spry.

Philadelphia.—Declared to have no equal afloat as a first-class fighting machine, the battleship Utah, the greatest warship ever built in the United States, was launched from the yard of the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J., Thursday.

As the big hull started to leave the thickly greased ways, Miss Mary Alice Spry of Salt Lake City, daughter of the governor of Utah, raised her arm, and with a swift, hard swing, broke a gayly be-ribboned bottle of champagne against the keel of the great ship and spoke the words that gave the vessel its name.

The Utah is the fifth of the all-big-gun type of battleship for the United States navy to be launched. When completed she will be more powerful than the Delaware and the North Dakota of the Dreadnought class.

THREE CLERKS DIE IN FIRE

London Department Store Burns When Crowded with Christmas Shoppers—Loss $2,500,000.

London.—At least three lives were lost and many persons were seriously hurt in a fire which destroyed the big drapery store of Arding & Hobbs at Clapham, a southwestern quarter of London Monday.

The fire was due, it is believed, to the breaking of an electric light bulb among celluloid articles.

The store, which covered an acre of ground and had five floors and a hundred departments, was crowded with Christmas shoppers.

Expresses Christmas Greetings; Dies.

Kewanee, Ill.—Immediately after wishing his two visiting daughters a Merry Christmas, John W. Tuttle, pioneer of Stark county, fell dead here Thursday of heart disease, aged 77.

Forger Gets Fourteen-Year Sentence.

New Orleans.—John L. Collins, convicted of forging several checks and charged by the police with heading a clever gang of swindlers, was sentenced to 14 years in the state penitentiary.

BUILT UP GREAT BUSINESS

Frederick Mayer Boot and Shoe Company a Monument to German Thrift and Industry.

That the key to real business success is often based on a sound principle, rather than money, is best illustrated by the reproduction of the following biographical sketch of Frederick Mayer, founder of the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Company, reproduced from an issue of the German American National Alliance:

Frederick Mayer, founder of the factories at Milwaukee and Seattle now bearing his name, came to this country from Nierstein, Hessen Darmstadt, in May, 1851, and immediately proceeded to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he entered the employ of R. Suhm as a journeyman shoemaker.

The spirit that prompted him to seek his fortune in the new world was soon responsible for another change, and in 1852, a year later, he embarked in business on his own accord, making boots and shoes to order as only a German apprenticed artisan knows how. Subsequently a stock of goods was carried and a retail business conducted until 1880, when the manufacture of shoes was engaged in at wholesale to the trade.

In 1890 the business was well established, the foundation firmly laid and the policy well determined. From that time on the growth was more rapid. The capacity of the present Mayer factories at Milwaukee and Seattle is 9,000 pair per day, giving employment to an army of people, paying annually over six hundred thousand dollars in wages, and employing sixty-five salesmen who travel 24 states in the interest of Mayer shoes.

Frederick Mayer died on March 16, 1893, after building up a large and successful business. He is succeeded by his sons, George P. Mayer, Fred J. Mayer and Adam J. Mayer, who, by rigidly maintaining the policy of the founder, have succeeded in bringing the business up to its present magnitude, where it stands as a monument of German thrift and industry.

DIDN'T SEE IT THE SAME WAY

Father of Young Missionary Disagreed Violently with Popular Chinese Custom.

The young missionary relighted his cigar.

"In China, father," he said, "I'd have no trouble in selecting a present for you."

"No?" queried the old man.

"No," said the missionary, with a hearty laugh. "The most desirable present to give old folks is a coffin, in China. Ha, ha, ha! And old folks like yourself don't mind it at all. They welcome a coffin as heartily as you'd welcome a box of Havana regalias."

"Humph!" said the father, grimly.

"And if an old Chinaman is ailing," said the young missionary—"if he has your rheumatic complaint, for instance—then he regards a coffin as an especially thoughtful gift. In fact—"

But the missionary's father had suddenly left the room, slamming the door behind him with a certain violence.

SKIN HUMOR 25 YEARS

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the —— Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, '09."

Face Covered with Pimples

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for ten days and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several month but got no results. Wm. J. Sadlier, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, May 1, 1909."

Friendly Birds.

Most of the birds and mammals have the fear of man in their hearts, and are difficult to approach, but others show no great concern. The Alaskan jays, for instance, are devoted camp followers. "They proved useful as scavengers," says Mr. Osgood, "and cooked oatmeal seemed to attract them even more than raw meat. They many times hopped about the campfire, or perched on the tent poles and ropes. Their harsh chattering was not always pleasant, but was somewhat atoned for by their less frequent soft whistle and their pert and confident ways, so on the whole their presence was welcomed."

When the Sleeper Wakes.

"John!" she exclaimed, jabbing her elbow into his ribs at 2:17 a. m., "did you look at the kitchen door?" And John, who is inner guard, and was just then dreaming over last evening's lodge meeting, sprang up in bed, made the proper sign, and responded: "Worthy ruler, our portals are guarded." Oh, he hit the title right, even if he was asleep.—United Presbyterian.

Take for LaGrippe.

Add to a half-pint of good whiskey, one ounce compound fluid balmwort and two ounces glycerine, shake well and take in tablespoon doses three to six times daily. This will check, prevent and cure colds and lagrippe quicker than anything known. Any druggist can supply it.

A Whisper of Hope.

Knicker — Several thousand shirt waist makers are on strike.

Henpekt—Do you suppose it would do any good for the shirt waist buttoners to strike?

A woman may be as old as she looks, but it makes a difference whether it's before or after she is dressed to go out.

DEVELOPMENT OF CENTRAL CANADA

THE STORY OF BIG YIELDS OF GRAIN COMES FROM EVERY SECTION.

When the man in the States was told that he could get 160 acres of land in Central Canada—comprising the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—that under cultivation would produce from 20 to 30 bushels of wheat to the acre, or if seeded to oats the yield would be 40 to 60 bushels, he was skeptical. The same story was told the man who wished to get nearer to existing lines of railway, and was only asked to pay $10 to $12 an acre. But many tried it, some one plan and some another. The man who accepted the 160 acres as a free gift, as a homestead, and was willing to put in the required residence duties of three years has now a farm worth from fifteen to twenty dollars an acre. The man who chose to purchase, and did so, took up his residence just the same. He has land, that, in many cases, is worth twice the money he paid for it. Both have found that the story of splendid yields was verified. They have had crops exceeding that promised; they have seen oats that yielded 100 bushels to the acre, and have grown wheat that averaged 40 and as high as 50 bushels to the acre. Their wheat was not a 57 lb. to the bushel article but 62 and 63 lbs. They have seen within the past year or two trunk lines of railway constructed through their district, and throwing out branch lines to the gates of their farm. They have seen schools established in their neighbourhood and the Government contributing largely to their expense. Churches have been erected, villages have been established, towns have sprung into existence and cities are rapidly springing up, as if the magic hand of some unseen conjurer was at work. But it was not; it was the legitimate offering of the wealth of the field which made all these things come about, naturally, and easy. The prairie that three years ago was merely prairie, a patch of brown, just waiting for the ploughman, is to-day dotted with tilled farms and splendid homes. The line of elevators with their glistening metalled fireproof sides and roofs, indicate the location of the town and the railroad. There is the glow of newness about it all, but the elevator, the splendid store buildings and the comfortable hostelries denote wealth, beyond that of the strength of the man who fashioned and built them but the wealth of the soil, which means that the newness will be followed by a steady growth. The writer recently was a passenger over the Grand Trunk Pacific, the latest factor in this great marvelous field of development. The rapidity with which towns were being built up, the farmsteads occupied, was something even his experienced eye had not looked for. Everywhere along the line of this new transcontinental was the distinguishing mark of progress. There was not a mile of the length of the road from Winnipeg to Edmonton and west that did not bear token of its ability to pay tribute to the revenue of the road. Mention is made of this line, not because it is the last in the field, but because it is one of the best built roads on the Continent and traverses one of the best districts of an excellent country. It is well operated, and already has gone into active service as another means of making it possible to secure more speedily transit from the grain fields to the shipping centres. It had been the intention in this article to have spoken of some of the yields of grain that have made the farmers of Central Canada contented this year, but space will not permit, so that delightful task will be taken up in another issue. In the meantime it would be well for the reader, if he is interested, to put himself in touch with some official of the Canadian Government and get information that might be useful in making a selection for a home in Central Canada, and become one of those who will be instrumental in building up a great country to the north. In doing so, you will be assisting the United States. In a few years' time the United States will be a wheat importer. Canada will supply the wheat and you will be one of the producers.

Compasses in Sleeping Rooms.

It is a curious fact that no Japanese ever sleeps with his head to the north. The reason is that the dead in Japan are always buried with their heads in that direction. Consequently, in the sleeping rooms of many of the private houses of Japan, not to speak of hotels in larger cities, a diagram of the points of the compass is conspicuously posted on the ceiling for the information of guests.—The Sunday Magazine.

Ship's Figurehead.

Carvings for more than 500 vessels were made by William Southworth, who recently died at Bath. He made a specialty of the carving of figureheads for many years, and some splendid ones were the product of his skill. The rise of commercialism has blotted out the poetic significance of the figurehead and few figureheads are seen nowadays.—Kennebec Journal.

One Woman's Good Work.

Mrs. Jeanette Ryder, an American woman who has been doing humane work in Cuba for the last ten years, is said to have done more to suppress bull and cock fighting on the island than any other one person.

When doctors disagree they are apt to make sarcastic remarks about each other that savor of the truth.

FRED W. CARPENTER

Copyright, 1909, by Moffett Studio, Chicago.

Private Secretary to the President

Carpenter Visits Minnesota.

Washington, D. C.— Fred W. Carpenter, secretary to the president, is taking his first vacation in many years. Mr. Carpenter ever since he has been connected with President Taft has known nothing save work, but, with all his energy he has not forgotten Minnesota and he announced some time ago that he would pay a visit to the old folks, no matter what business might interfere. Accordingly, he has left for Sauk Center, Minn., where he will attend a reunion of the Carpenter family.

KREMER CONVICTED

FORMER ITASCA TREASURER IS CONVICTED OF GRAND LARCENY.

SHORTAGE WILL REACH $100,000

Charged With the Appropriation of County Funds to Own Use—Penalty Is Not to Exceed 10 Years in State Prison.

Grand Rapids—The jury in the case against A. A. Kremer, former county treasurer, brought in a verdict of guilty on the charge of grand larceny for appropriating county funds for his own use.

The defense had not admitted that the late treasurer had taken any funds of the county, but its principle contention was that the accused was suffering from morphine insanity.

The statutory penalty for grand larceny is not to exceed 10 years in state prison.

The trial had lasted all of the past week and most of the time was taken up with expert testimony as to the sanity of the accused. Dr. Arthur Sweeney of St. Paul testified that Kremer was not insane when he examined him Nov. 2. Dr. W. A. Jones of Minneapolis also gave testimony in the case.

Kremer was defended by Senator C. C. McCarey and the prosecution was conducted by Frank Price, county attorney.

The defalcations by Mr. Kremer were discovered early in October and reported to Attorney General George T. Simpson. He transmitted the matter to the public examiner and Deputy M. F. Kain was sent to Grand Rapids to make an examination. He reported that he had found a shortage of $8,000, and that $6,000 had been restored and that he had Kremer arrested and took charge of the office. Governor Eberhart at once suspended him.

When Mr. Kain went into the books further, he found more and more shortages, extending over a period of nearly three years. The latest report was that the shortage would be close to $100,000.

Marwick, Mitchell and company, expert accountants, are working, on the books and although they have not completed their work, it is intimated that the shortage will be even larger than supposed.

A large part of it will be restored and most of the remainder will be paid by the bonding company.

During his first term of office he was bonded by the Metropolitan Surety company, now defunct, and the county may lose some on that account.

KREMER GIVEN FIVE YEARS.

Former Itasca Treasurer to Serve At Hard Labor.

Duluth.—A. A. Kremer, of Grand Rapids, former treasurer of Itasca county, who was found guilty Saturday in district court in that village of grand larceny in the first degree, was sentenced by Judge Stanton to five years at hard labor in the penitentiary at Stillwater. This is a compromise between the minimum and maximum penalty, which is one to ten years.

KELLOGG IS KEEPING MUM.

Government Attorney Refuses to Discuss United States Senatorial Politics.

Frank B. Kellogg, the St. Paul attorney, who won the government's case against Standard Oil, securing the dissolution of that corporation is home after a conference at Washington with Attorney General Wickersham and other government officials relative to the continuation of the Standard Oil prosecution.

Nervious and busy, Mr. Kellogg's mind appeared to be occupied wholly with the preparation of the government side of the case as it shall be demonstrated in the supreme court of the United States on the hearing of the Standard Oil's appeal. Mr. Kellogg refused to discuss politics.

He shied at even a discussion of the political situation in Washington. Relative to the United States senatorship, for which it is generally supposed he will be a candidate against Moses E. Clapp, he was as silent as the tomb.

"I have absolutely nothing to say on the senatorship," was Mr. Kellogg's definite statement. "I am preparing my argument on the Standard Oil case which will be filed in the supreme court Jan. 1. On Jan. 3 we shall move in the supreme court to have the case advanced on the calendar and I have no doubt the arguments will be completed this winter."

RHODES SCHOLAR IS NAMED.

Joseph Tetlie, St. Olaf College, Wins Prize Course.

St. Paul.—Joseph Tetlie of St. Olaf college was awarded the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford university by the judges who met in Dr. Northrop's office at the university.

The other candidate for the honor was Theodore Buenger of the University of Minnesota. Mr. Tetlie is 21 years old and took the classical course at St. Olaf. He was graduated last year. He will leave for England next October.

The judges who made the award were Presidents Northrop of Minnesota, Bridgman of Hamline, T. M. Hodgman of Macalester, J. N. Kildahl of St. Olaf, Matson of Gustavus Adolphus and Donald J. Cowling of Carleton.

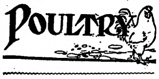
Mr. Tetlie was born in Nebraska. He was star pitcher on the college team for four years. He had an average of 94.48 per cent for his four years' studies. He received a freshman scholarship of free tuition for one year and in 1909 won the Henry Nelson Talla scholarship of $60.

Plainfield.—The farm house of Ed Rozell was burned while the parents were uptown. Two of their children perished in the fire, Ruth, aged fourteen years, and her sister, aged five years.

JUDGE DENOUNCES "MASHERS."

Two Men Fined for Accosting Women on Duluth Street.

Duluth.—Steinar Henson and Claus Erickson, of Duluth, were fined $25 each for accosting women on the street. Judge Windom, before whom the cases were brought in municipal court, urged the police department to go after mashers and fetch them in as fast as possible. "I wish the police would fill the county jail with mashers," exclaimed the judge.



POULTRY NOTES.

Fowls are great drinkers, especially the laying hens.

Do not keep poultry on the same ground year after year.

The best feed is whole corn, plenty of milk and meat scrap.

Generally a hen should not be kept on an egg farm after she is two years old.

Don't let chicks squeeze through slatted coops until their bodies are deformed.

Don't forget that wet and leaky coops do not tend to produce healthy chickens, but early death.

The house should be cleaned and whitewashed in the fall and new straw and filling put in the nests.

Ashes sprinkled in the nests first and two or three moth balls put in the nests will keep lice away.

Give plenty of warm water. A few rusty iron nails kept in the drinking water is good to keep hens healthy.

Kaffir corn and alfalfa hay (chopped) are good for the hens to scratch and pick in winter as they need exercise.

Those hens with the best appetites and the full crops, are usually the best layers, but they should not be permitted to get too fat.

Don't try to force hens to lay by feeding them red pepper or other egg forcers. Their digestive organs are liable to become inflamed.

PREPARE FOWLS FOR MARKET

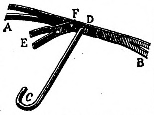
Method of Killing Affects Both Plucking and Quality of the Flesh of a Fowl.

(BY. C. K. GRAHAM.)

The method of killing not only affects the plucking of the fowl, but will to a large degree affect the quality of the flesh.

Chickens should not be chased or excited before killing, as this is thought to have an unfavorable effect on the flavor and texture of the flesh. To avoid this it is well to have a catching hook. The best method of killing is probably by bleeding, and is described as follows:

Hold the head of the bird with the left hand, back of the head up, keeping the hand on the back of the neck to avoid cutting yourself should the knife slip and pass through the top of the head. Take the knife in the right hand, the back of the blade toward your body. Insert the blade in the mouth, keeping the point to the right side of the bird's neck and as near the outer skin as possible until it is well past the neck bone. Then press the edge toward the bone and slowly draw the knife from the mouth, the hand moving from your body, so that the knife appears to pass across the neck. Repeat the process on the left side of the neck. This should cause the bird to bleed freely, but by holding the beak up the blood will remain in the neck, giving you plenty of time to pierce the brain. The latter is located just above the eye and can be easily reached through the upper part of the mouth by using a stiff steel blade, inserted in the mouth with the blade edge up and pointing slightly over the eye. With young birds little trouble is experienced in piercing the brain, but with older birds a very stiff blade is required, as the bones are much harder.



Hook used at Connecticut experiment station to hold birds for plucking—A. B. bar; C.-D, staff; E-F, arm.

When the point of the blade enters the brain, give the knife a quick twist to right or left to widen the aperture. If the brain has been reached the bird will attempt to squawk or will give a nervous jerk as the blade touches the spot, and this touching the brain or nerves not only loosens the feathers of the bird for dry plucking, but will greatly improve the appearance of scalded stock.

A weight which may consist of an old tomato can half filled with stones and cement is immediately attached by means of a wire hook to the lower mandible of the bird. Then by grasping the wings close to the back the bird will not be able to flutter, and can be easily and rapidly plucked. This, of course, should always be done while the bird is bleeding. The can catches the blood, and by hanging the bird over a barrel the feathers may easily be saved.

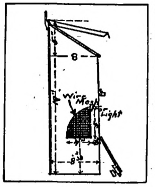
Since there is considerable difficulty in scalding birds properly and it is often improperly done, dealers usually pay a little more for dry-plucked birds.

The breast should be plucked first, starting near the crop. After the breast the thighs, then the back near the base of the tail, and last the wings. As soon as the feathers have been removed the wings should be twisted over the back and the bird taken from the hooks and the feet washed, after which the thighs and legs should be pressed to the body either by placing a brick on the bird's breast or by tying the body, the object of this being to give the bird a plump or blocky appearance.

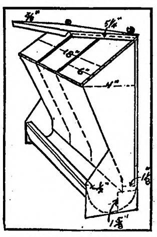
CORNELL FOWL FEED HOPPER

Illustrations Showing Devices Invented at Eastern Experiment Station—How They Are Made.

The accompanying cuts illustrate the feed and grit hoppers invented by Prof. James E. Rice and Rolla C. Lowry of the Cornell Experiment station, at Ithaca, N. Y. These cuts were made after those in Cornell Bulletin 248, which is now out of print, says Rural New Yorker. The feed hopper is made of No. 26 galvanized iron, and will hold about 60 pounds of meal or 100 pounds of grain. The back is made rounding near the bottom, so that the feed is forced downward without clogging. The openings are high enough to prevent waste of the feed, and cause the fowls to reach down for it. The door can be closed at will, thus preventing the fowls from overfeeding, and making the hopper rat-proof. The wire mesh at either end is for the purpose of affording light. The hopper is divided into three compartments for different kinds of feed if desired. It should be hung up by the hooks so that the bottom is about five inches above the floor. A platform should be made directly underneath, and extending about six inches, for the fowls to stand on while feeding. This prevents litter from being scratched into the hopper, while the sloping cover prevents roosting upon it. The total cost of construction is about $4.



End View of Hopper.



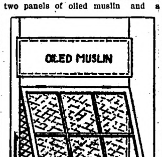
Force Feed Grit Hopper.

The grit hopper is made of the same material. Wire is hemmed in about the edges of all openings for strength and protection. The grit hopper is divided into three compartments for grit, shell and charcoal respectively. The rounded back forces the material down without clogging. The cost is about $1. The grit hopper can be enlarged considerably and used for a feed hopper very successfully.

VENTILATING POULTRY HOUSE

Door Frame with Two Panels of Oiled Muslin and Hinged Window Protected by Screen.

Nothing is more essential for the good health of poultry than proper ventilation. The accompanying illustration gives a good method. The door of the house consists of a frame with two panels of oiled muslin and a hinged window protected by wire screen. It can thus be adjusted for any kind of weather. Any convenient size can be made.



Ventilating Door Open.

Early Hatched Pullet Best.

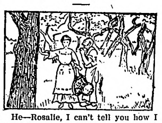
The early hatched pullet is the paying one. Don't let the huckster pick out the best of your early chickens for his wagons.

FAMILY COUGH SYRUP

Cures Any Cough in Five Hours.
NEW PRESCRIPTION HERE.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a body needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. This prescription not only relieves quickly, but it cures any cough that is curable. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. A few hours' treatment will cure and heal the throat and lungs of all but consumptives. Cut this out and give it to some friend who may need it to be saved from an early death by consumption.

AT FIRST SIGHT.



He—Rosalie, I can't tell you how I worship your almond eyes, your velvet cheeks, like peaches, and your cherry lips!

Rosalie—I suppose you are the new gardener.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Hubby Was Too Willing.

In the midst of her tears over a late disagreement she announced that she would take a trip of three weeks in the country for a rest from his abuse.

Hooray! Hooray!

He hurried to the station, bought tickets, hurried back home, pulled off his coat, plunged into the cellar, lugged out her trunks and commenced to pack.

Lying on a couch, she watched him through her tears with great curiosity. From time to time, in reply to many questions, she advised him what articles would be useful in the country, and they were eagerly included.

Perspiring and exhausted after some hours of preparatory detail for her departure, he sank into a chair and said:

"Everything is ready now. You have abundant time to catch your train."

"I have decided," she said, softly, "not to go."

Ready with Explanation.

A rector of Eltham once gave out the words: "Who art thou?" and, as he paused for a moment, an officer in uniform, who had just entered the church, suddenly halted, and taking the question as personal, promptly replied: "Sir, I am the recuiting officer of the Sixteenth Foot, and, having my wife and daughter with me, should be glad to make the acquaintance of the clergy and gentry of the neighborhood."

Salesmen—Best Commission Offer on Earth. New—all retailers—samples, coat pocket. "Boston," Dept. C 1, Iowa City, Iowa.

Some people's morals are like their best clothes—only worn on extraordinary occasions.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

The more talk it takes to run things the slower they move.

BREAK UP THAT COUGH
with Allen's Lung Balsam, the popular family remedy. It cures where other remedies fail. All dealers. 25c, 50c, $1.00 bottles.

One man's hobby may be another man's nightmare.

Dr. Pierce's pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

Gossips multiply everything they hear by two.

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs & Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed, as the best of remedies when required are to assist nature, and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally.
To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine,
MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA
FIG SYRUP CO.
SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS
ONE SIZE ONLY—REGULAR PRICE 50¢ PER BOTTLE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Happy Newyears to all our readers One and all

The appointment of A. B. Toupin for Register of the United States land office at Crookston was confirmed by the senate last week and he will go into the office next week.

There is a gigantic plan on foot to advertise Red Lake county, says The Red Lake Falls Gazette, by D M Cole, representing the land department of three railroad companies. Well this county certainly deserves it.

The Thief River Falls News seems to be in haste to fly to the defense of senator Hanson, and he will need some pretty good defending if he again becomes a candidate for a member of the legislature from this district. We don't care to discuss the question at this time, but if Mr. Hanson looms up as a candidate next year we will place some of his legislative record before our readers. In the meantime, why should he be defended by Thief River Falls? What about that state Normal school deal? And that county seat removel law? They are sleeping in the pigeon hole at St. Paul. Company for our bridge bill. There they lay as monuments to the stupidity of our representative and Mr. Eastman says they should be reelected. All right, put them up; elect them, if you can, for we certainly can stand it if Thief River Falls can, for we did not get it in the neck as bad as they did.

The strong movement being made by the farmers of this part of Red Lake county to put in big state ditches will make such an increase in the volum of water in Red Lake River that it will flood thousands of acres of the low medow lands along its banks and make them worthless. But the ditches will be put in and they are about all headed for Red Lake River. If the government does nothing to improve the river the next year there will certainly be heavy losses from floods, as the river can not take care of all the water that will be rushed into it by the big ditches after a heavy rain.

When the President Lost His Hat.

The Crystal palace exhibition opened at New York July 15, 1853, was the first affair of this kind in the country for which foreign exhibits were solicited. The "big show" began with a procession, in which President Franklin Pierce, mounted, was a conspicuous feature. The hero of the day rode a mettlesome steed, and while proceeding up Wall street the presidential headgear, a new silk hat of the prevalent style, was incontinently tumbled to the pavement. Another horse recklessly stepped upon the unfortunate tile, crushing it out of the semblance to itself, besmearing it with mud—real Wall street mud. What was left of the misshapen and bedaubed hat was worn by the president, to the great amusement of the spectators, until a substitute could be secured.

A Witty Retort.

One day while dining with the secretary of the admiralty William IV., then heir presumptive to the British crown, said: "When I am king, sir, you shall not be the secretary of the admiralty, I promise you. What do you say to that, eh?"

"All I can respond in such case," returned the witty official, "is, 'God save the king!'"—St. Louis Republic.

Fido's Tail a Mystery.

Little Willie was tugging at Fido's tail.

"What are you trying to do with the dog?" asked the child's father.

"I fink his tail is coming off."

"Oh, no, Willie. That's impossible. What makes you think so?"

"'Cause Fido's tail is so loose that [illegible]—New York Press.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, S. S.
District Court,
14th, Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ———Plaintiff.
Vs
Axel Engman, ———Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the obove named defendant.

You are hereby summond and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action, which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

E. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9,—1, 21,-10.

The Story of a Turtle's Meal.

A butterfly hunter tells the following story of swamp life:

"In the water right between my feet was a spotted turtle that had just captured an appetizing but by no means dainty morsel. This was a terrapin-like bug that was more than a mouthful. His body was already out of sight, but clawlike legs protruded from both sides of that isosceles triangle which a turtle's mouth makes when it is closed and waved a frantic farewell to the passing underwater world. The turtle was a long time in masticating his terrapin, but it was a happy time. His whole body blinked contentedly, and he waved his fore legs with a caressing outpush, a motion exactly like that of a child at the breast. Then he wagged his head solemnly from side to side, as a wise turtle might who feels that such good lunches are put up by fate only for the knowing ones of this watery world, and pushed himself halfway under the roots of a tussock for a nap."

A Daring Argument.

A quick witted and daring lawyer once saved a guilty client from sure conviction on a charge of poisoning. It was proved that the poisoning had been done by means of certain cakes, a portion of which was produced in court. When the counsel for the prisoner had finished his speech he said: "And these, gentlemen of the jury, are some of the alleged poisoned cakes. We declare to you, gentlemen of the jury, that they are not poisoned cakes. They are as harmless cakes as ever were made, and in order, gentlemen of the jury, to show you that these cakes are not poisoned I will eat one of them right here in your presence." And he did eat one. He took good care, however, to leave the room at the earliest opportunity and to make a bee line for an adjoining room, where he had an emetic in readiness and an antidote. But the jury never heard about the emetic or the antidote until the lawyer's client had been acquitted.

What He Saw.

"Do tell me something about Mr. Oldplot's latest play," said the young lady on the bottom stair at the dance "They say the climax at the close of the third act's superb. Won't you describe it to me as you saw it?"

"I will," grimly consented the young man with the split white kid gloves. "The heroine came slowly on and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of pink ribbons. Then the hero emerged from a large bunch of purple flowers, and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him twice with a handsome hatpin, and he sank back into a beautiful aigret."

"What in the world are you talking about?" exclaimed the fair listener.

"Well," replied the narrator, "you see, the lady in front of me refused to move her hat, and that is just how the scene appeared to me."—London Scraps.

One of Florence's Jokes.

That genial comedian W. J. Florence had a habit of promising a man a fish or some game when he was about starting on a hunting or fishing trip Day after day would pass, and the game would not be forthcoming. But almost every day a letter or telegram would come saying that Florence had not forgotten; that Florence was just about sending the game; that there was no cause for worry, as a fine fish or deer was on its way to the express office. At first this solicitousness would cause courteous letters and telegrams in return. As the delay got longer the victim would get impatient and would finally be literally haunted by huge fishes or deer, "with the compliments of W. J. Florence." Then some fine day, when it was least expected, the fish or deer [illegible] come.

Late Hour Explained.

"What kept you until this late hour?" asked the husband of his suffragette wife.

"Well, my dear," she answered meekly, "you see it took us an hour to greet one another, the meeting lasted thirty minutes, and the rest of the time was spent in saying goodby."—Detroit Free Press.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 10 1909.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 6th, 1909

Notice is hereby given that Daniel Reierson, of Highlanding Minn., who on November 15 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 896, Serial No 04390 for N.W. ¼ Section 35 Township 159 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn at Thief River Falls Minn, on the 11th day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben K. Fristo, Tallak S. Dale, Tobias Olson, Andrew Ellingson, all of Highlanding Minnesota.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th 1909.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 14th 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Lewis T. [illegible], of Plummer Minn., who on October 14th 1904 made Homestead entry No. [illegible] Serial No. 04010, for N. E. ¼ Section 17 Township 150 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John J. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. Johnson, Tom Mandt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th. 1904, made Homestead entry No. 285. Serial No 04116 for N. E. ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W 5th Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn on the 17th. day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter Flo, Haakon Nahlen, August Johnson John Carlson all of Thorhult Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec 17th. 1909

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909

Notice is hereby given that Andreas Anensen, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entry No. 1183, Serial No. 04482, for Lots 3, 4, & E. ½ N.W.¼ Section 6 Township 152 N Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th. day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn. Gunder Asbjernson, of Malone Minn. Elias Montue, of Sunbeam Minn. Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec 17th. 1909

Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota December 13 1909

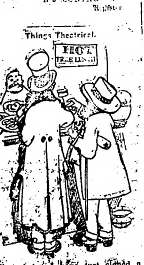
NOTICE is hereby given that Aslak [illegible], of Malone Minnesota who on October 4th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. [illegible] Serial No. 04251, for N.W. ¼ Section 12 township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office Crookston Minnesota, on the 20th. day January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Gunder Asbjornson, [illegible] Tanger, [illegible] T. Myrum, Ole Aasland all of Malone Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

Things Theatrical.



First Actor—I have just signed a contract for the season at a salary of $500 a week.

Second Actor — That's nothing. I have an offer of $50 a week in real money.

Eskimo Baby Talk.

With the ordinary Eskimo language consisting of such words as igloo, ahwe-li-ah and ka loo-loo-ka one can but wonder what their real baby talk sounds like.—Binghamton Republican.

Enough to Frighten One.

Tommy—Does your papa frighten you when he tries to make you go to sleep? Ethel—Yes; he sings to me!—Yonkers Statesman.

[illegible] Woman

SHOE SIZES.

How the Standard of Measurement Was Established.

It is most difficult for many persons to remember the sizes of their different articles of wearing apparel. Collars, shirts and gloves are easy enough, because in the case of these it is a matter of actual inches. But the hat and shoe numbers are what puzzle most people, to say nothing of the mystery why a No. 11 stocking goes with a No. 8 shoe.

This last puzzle is, however, easily explained. Stockings have always been measured by the inch from heel to toe, but the numbering of shoes was fixed a long time ago by a Frenchman.

The Frenchman permanently fixed the numbers of shoes for all Europe and America. He arbitrarily decided that no human foot could possibly be smaller than three and seven-eighth inches. So, calling this point zero, he allowed one-third of an inch to a size and accordingly built up his scale. It follows therefrom that a man cannot find out the number of his own shoe unless he be an expert arithmetician. Even then he is likely to go wrong, because all the shoe experts allow for the weight of the individual and the build of his foot before they try to determine what size shoe he ought to wear.

As far as women's shoes are concerned the problem is still more difficult, because many of the manufacturers instead of keeping to the regular scale have marked down their numbers one or two sizes in order to capture easily flattered customers. For this reason most dealers ask out of town customers to send an old shoe with their orders.

The system of measuring hats is much simpler. Any man can tell what size he wears simply by adding the width and length of the inner brim and then dividing by two. Orders can also be sent to the shopkeeper by stating the circumference of the head.—Boston Globe.

BURNED PAPER MONEY.

Source of Great Profit to the Government and Banks.

At the redemption windows of the treasury and of the subtreasuries of the country any silver coin that has not been mutilated willfully and which still is recognizable as from the mints of the United States will be redeemed at face value, this in spite of the fact that the silver in the worn coin may not be worth half its face value. As to gold coin, the government stands only a small portion of the loss from abrasion; but, according to weight, these worn gold coins always are redeemable.

In the case of the paper currency two-fifths of a note must be presented if it shall be redeemed or a new note issued, and, no matter what the evidence may be as to total destruction of this paper currency, the government regards it as the holder's individual loss with which it is no further concerned. Fire may melt $1,000 worth of silver coins and it is worth its metal value. It may melt $1,000 in gold coins and the mint will pay $1,000 in new twenty dollar gold pieces for the mass. But the ashes of $1,000 in paper currency is without value.

In the thousands of fires over the country every year involving office buildings, factories, business houses and family residences an untold total of legal tender notes of all kinds are destroyed. Every piece of such paper lost is loss to the holder and gain to the government or to a national bank. If is a promissory note hopelessly lost to the holder. It is even more, for in many cases an individual man might redeem his debt obligation if he were assured by the holder of it that the piece of paper to which he had signed his name had been destroyed by accident and by no chance could turn up again against him.—Chicago Tribune.

Pope as a Witness.

Pope, like Garrick, made but a poor figure in the witness box. He was cited to appear in defense of Bishop Atterbury when that prelate was tried for high treason in the house of lords in 1723. "I never could speak in public," he told Spence afterward, "and I don't believe that if it was a set thing I could give an account of any story to twelve friends together, though I could tell it to any three of them with a great deal of pleasure. When I was to appear for the bishop of Rochester in his trial, though I had but ten words to say and that on a plain point (how the bishop spent his time when I was with him at Bromley), I made two or three blunders in it and that notwithstanding the first row of lords (which was all I could see) were mostly of my acquaintance."—London Standard.

The Lost Company.

"Hungry, I suppose?" said the sharp faced woman as she opened the door just a little bit.

"Why, no," answered the ragged wayfarer. "I've clean forgot how to be hungry. But I'm out and out lonely."

"Lonely!"

"Yes. You see, I hain't had nothing to eat for so long that I've got so thin I can't cast no shadder, and you ain't no idea what company a man's shadder is to him while he is travelin' along the road."

Considerate.

Muggins is not handsome, and he knows it. When his first baby was born he asked, "Does it look like me?"

Of course they replied in the affirmative.

"Well," said he, with a sigh, "break it to my wife gently."—London Tit-Bits.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. Winton,
Manager.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Arrives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Intercollegiate.

"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amherst Four Leaf Clover.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.

C. L. Hansen......Pesident.
Daniel Patterson ..Vice Pres.
A. D. Stephens.......2nd Vice Pres.
B. E. Burkee..........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS

FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects.

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.
DR. MILES' Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

Our fine winter weather still continues.

Mr. and Mrs Henry Arndt will give a Newyears dinner to-morrow.

Ray Arndt returned home last Friday from Duluth on a holliday visit.

Miss Olive Cunningham slightly frosted her arms and feet on Wednesday, while going from Mr Clarks to Highlanding.

There will be a big ball at the Kolskie hall in Deer Park on Saturday evening January 8th. All are invited

Peat Gustafson, of Radner has bought the Thor Lande farm and now has more range for the large herd of cows which he has.

Nels Ofte, of Kratka was transacting business here today. He is to have an auction sale of his horses and farm impliments on Jan. 15th.

Eden Davis drove down to Thief River Falls Monday to take Mr. Ness and family and Miss Skeie to the train, who left for her home at St. Hilaire.

There will be a basket social at the Kratka hall on Saturday evening January 15th, for the bennifit of the Kratka school libriary. All are invited to come.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2 00 per cord.

Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

Mr. and Mrs. George Singer, made an Xmas visit with Stephen Singer at Kratka, and took in the Christmas tree intertainment Saturday evening, returning home Sunday.

The share holders of the Highlanding Creamery Association hold their regular anual meeting at Highlanding on Saturday January 8th.. Business of importance to transact. All come.

The farmers that faild to get their threshing done, instead of being unfortunate may be in luck for there has never been a better prospect for a big raise in the price of wheat than there is at this time.

There was a Christmas tree intertainment at the Swanson school house in Deer Park last Friday evening and another one at Kratka on Saturday evening, so old Santa must have been going some the past week.

Alfred Swanson passed by this way yesterday inquiring for the residence of Rev. Mostue, but when we asked him what he wanted of Mr. Mostue he got red in the face and answered:" Oh I just want to see him." But we are watching him and our readers may be sure of getting the news.

The school Christmas tree at Highlanding school house on last Friday evening was largely attended and the scholars gave a very good programme that was highly appreaciated. After the scholars had given their intertainment old Santa appeard with his big pack and distributed his presents, that made the little ones dance with glee.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaudry gave a Christmas dinner on Saturday to a number of invited guests among which ye editor was fortunate enough to be one, of the number. Notwithstanding we are in a new country up here we do sometimes have a good dinner. This year we started on Thanksgiving day, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress, and with Mr. and Mrs. Beaudry Xmas and expect to take New years dinner tomorrow with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt.

Wm. Bruckmann has sold his Clearwater county farm and will invest the money in realestate on the banks of Red Lake River.

Miss Henry returned to her home at Kratka today, after having closed a successful term of school in the Swanson District in Deer Park.

NOTICE OF MONEY FOR PAYMENT OF SCHOOL ORDERS.

NOTICE, is hereby given that there is money in the treasury of School District No 87, Red Lake County Minnesota, for the payment of school order No. 87, dated November 14th 1908 given to Ida Biorge for $50.00 for teaching school. Also school order No. 61 on above named district, dated January 16th 1909 for the sum of $100 given to Ida Biorge for teaching school.

The holder, or holders of the above discribed orders are hereby notified to present the same to the undersigned, within 10 days from the date of this notice at which time the interest will be stopped.

Dated this 31st. Day of December 1909

WALTER MCANDRESS,
Treasurer,
Sunbeam Minnesota.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Happy Newyears to all.

This has certainly been a quiete Xmas, but there has been a few Xmas fools haveing a circus at some places.

Mr and Mrs Rolandson visited with Mr and Mrs. Wm. Bruckmann on Sunday.

Mr. Jens Fore and mother left for Fosston to be present at the old home for Xmas.

There was a social dance given at the home of Mr. and Mrs Vetleson, on Monday evening.

Miss Annie Florence returned home last Wednesday for a holiday visit with the home folks.

Theaedore Legvold and his sister Mrs. Jenson spent Christmas with the families of Mr. Oscar and Herman Lillo.

Miss Maggie Short returned home from Plummer to spend the hollidays with the home folks at Lillo.

Mrs. M.J. Lillo and daughter Miss Ida visted with Mrs. Short on Sunday.

Miss Annibell Rolandson visited with Miss Nellie Short on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Hoveland came up from Sletten on Wednesday and left with his family on Saturday.

Herman and Oscar Lillo took a load of houshold goods down to Sletten for G Hoveland.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR DISTRIBUTION,

ESTATE OF Ole Overum.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole Overum Decedent.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO Barbra Overum, Geneva Overum, and Clifford Overum and all persons interested in the final account and ditribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court her final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, togeather with her petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for ditribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled; THEREFORE YOU AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms, in the City of Red Lake Falls in the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, on the 26th, day of January 1910, at 5 o'clock P.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, The Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 28th, day of December 1909.

S. A. SWANSON
[Court Seal] Judge of Probate.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS.

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to

Buy the Right Goods
At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2.50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing.

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Youre For Bneiness.-- SINGCR BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

She Was the Ghost.

"A certain lady and her family," says Sir Mountstuart Grant-Duff in his "Diary," "hired a place in Scotland which was haunted by the ghost of a woman who was to be seen constantly at night wandering through the rooms and passages. When the family arrived the lady was much struck with the place and said, 'I must have been here before, for I know this place so well, only there ought to be two rooms here, and there is only one.'

"The agent replied that within a few weeks the owner had caused a partition to be taken down and made the two rooms into one. Still the lady was puzzled at her knowledge of the place till she remembered that it was a house she used to go to in her dreams.

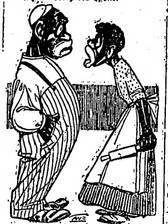
"Well, some time passed, and the agent was up at the house again, when the lady complained that one part of the contract had not been fulfilled. They had hired a house and a ghost for the summer, and no ghost had she seen. The agent replied: 'Of course not, because you are the ghost. We recognized you the moment we saw you.'"

Why They Were Selected.

It has been recorded that General Henry Knox in 1783 was the "greatest" of eleven distinguished officers of the army, weighing 280 pounds. Noah Brooks in his book entitled "Henry Knox" gives the following incident relating to the general's full habit:

With a Captain Sargent he was selected to present the hard case of the starving and naked men at Valley Forge to the attention of a committee of congress. One of the congressmen, wishing to show his wit and sarcasm, said that he had never seen a fatter man than General Knox nor a better dressed man than his associate. Knox managed to keep his temper and remained silent, but his subordinate retorted, "The corps out of respect to congress and themselves have sent as their representatives the only man who had an ounce of superfluous flesh on his body and the only other man who possessed a complete suit of clothes."

Sorry He Spoke.



Mr. Black—Jake Brown's wife am cummin' obeh to trade yo' chickens, an' you'll hab to gib her somefin' to boot. 'Dess gib her somefin' wuthless.

Mrs. Black—Somefin' wuthless? All right. Suppose Ah gibs her yo'?

Quaint Hymns.

For unreality of sentiment in hymns we must go back to the eighteenth century. Here is an instance:

> Ah, lovely appearance of death!
> What sight upon earth is so fair?
> Not all the gay pageants that breathe
> Can with a dead body compare.

It seems strange that death should have been the occasion for a touch of unconscious humor in a hymn. In the collection entitled "Hymns, Ancient and Modern," there was and possibly still is the following verse:

> They do not hear when the great bell > is ringing overhead;
> They cannot rise and come to church
> With us—for they are dead.

The list of things which "they" are unable to do might be indefinitely extended.—London Chronicle.

Had to Walk.

The intoxicated gentleman stared in a bewildered manner at the sign on the bridge. The sign read, "Loads Must Not Be Taken Across the Bridge Faster Than a Walk."

After giving the sign profound study he observed:

"Don't shee how fellersh wi' loadsh can do better'n a walk nohow."

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,

THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G HUNT,

Sunbeam Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

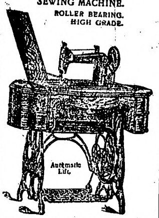
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton"

SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE

LIGHT RUNNING

NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.

Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.

Our guaranty never runs out.

Sold by authorized dealers only.

FOR SALE BY

Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS

Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. [illegible] every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. [illegible] any other make. Send for free catalogue.

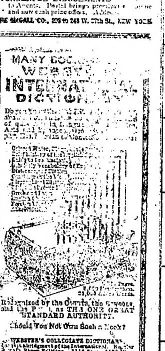
McCALL'S MAGAZINE

More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. [illegible] Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, [illegible] plain sewing, fancy needlework, [illegible] etiquette, good stories, [illegible] a year (worth double), [illegible] Subscribe today, or send for [illegible]

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS

to Agents. Postal brings premium [illegible] and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 239 to 249 W. 37th St., NEW YORK



MANY [illegible] WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

[illegible]

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press, as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. [illegible] abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages, 1400 Illus.

Write for "DICTIONARY WRINKLES," and Specimen Pages. Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

Wanted a Pattern.

A ragged Irishman was charged in a London court a short time ago with tendering a counterfeit shilling in payment for a penny loaf.

Though forlorn in aspect, he was not destitute of that shrewdness which is characteristic of his countrymen. He stated that he was sent for the loaf by a person at a public house close by, who gave him the coin to pay for it, and that on discovering it was not good he bought the coin for three halfpence.

The Magistrate—How came you to buy the shilling after you had discovered it was a bad one?

The prisoner, with much apparent gravity, replied:

"Sure, then, your honor, I bought it so that if I should happen to have a bad one offered to me I might know it by looking at the one I had with me!"

There was a burst of laughter, and the rogue was dismissed with a caution.

Bright Thought.

"Oh, dear," sighed small Elmer. "I wish I had another pocket!"

"You have several now," rejoined his mother. "Why do you want another?"

"I've looked through all of them for my knife," explained Elmer, "but couldn't find it. If I had another pocket it might be in that."—Chicago News.

A Calamity.

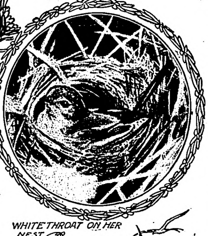
Tammas (to McTavish, whom he has just pulled out of the water)—Man, Donal', ye sud be lookin' happy! Are ye no' thankfu' yer life's saved? McTavish (sourly)—I dinna see nae cause to be thankfu'. The glass o' whisky I had afore I fell intil the water's gotten fair drooned!—London Tit-Bits.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

A FIELD AFTER FEATHERED SONGSTERS

By EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY W.A. PATTERSON



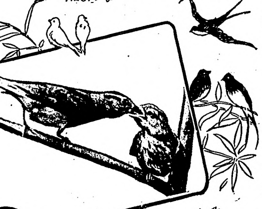
WHITETHROAT ON HER NEST

IT WAS Dr. Theodore S. Palmer, of the government biological survey, the man who stands between the birds of the country and extermination, who invited a sojourning stranger in Washington to leave the city behind him far a few hours to catch a glimpse of the wild, feathered friends which brave the Washington winter. The thought of an intended interview in the north wing of the capitol kept the invited one from an instant acceptance, but the delay ended when the doctor said: "Come! Is not one songbird worth many senators?"

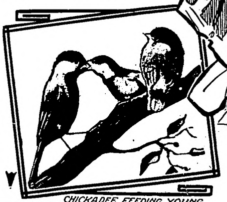
The displeasure of the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution must be braved for the next few lines. The host of this day's tramp asked his guest if he preferred to go to the south, there to follow a favorite Virginia hunting trail of George Washington, or go to the north, to follow the bird-searching tracks of Elliot Coues and John Burroughs. The answer was quick enough. "Let's strike the trail of Coues and Burroughs," for while the sojourner knew that the father of his country was first in nearly everything, he never heard that he was first in ornithology.

The tramp lay through the valley of Rock creek. The stream flows through a cleft in the wooded hills and forms one of the chief natural attractions of the zoological park and of the national park which lies beyond. Standing at the edge of a street in a thickly settled part of the city, one looks down deep in a rocky chasm through which tumbles the stream, washing in its course the roots of noble trees. It is as wild as a bit of the Adirondacks' heart and has all the beauty which attaches to the wilderness.

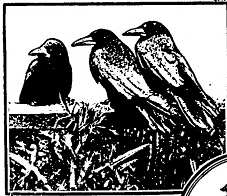
The two hunters of birds—hunters, though neither carried a weapon more deadly than a field glass—went down the winding, snow-covered path close to the edge of the bank of the singing stream. Rock creek sings aloud, but it can't drown the noise of the cawing crows. Corvus claims the capital and the district for his own. Until a few years ago there was a crow roost numbering fully 15,000 birds at Arlington, just over the river. The crows are roosting elsewhere now, but there are just as many of them as ever in the woods and fields along the Potomac. Corvus will not leave the capital. He feels that it is essentially his city, for is not his surname Americanus? The air was full of crows, and higher up, ever soaring, were the great buzzards—the birds to which above all others distance lends enchantment.



SONG SPARROW AND YOUNG



CHICKADEE FEEDING YOUNG



A GRAVE CONSULTATION

The path leads upward from the creek into a bit of wild, rough woodland tangled with smilax, laurel and honeysuckle, all giving a glad greenness to the waste of winter. It was here, where the rocks, the roots and the entangling underbrush make heavy the way, that General Funston took a walk that has as yet been unsung. General Funston came to Washington for a day. He called on President Roosevelt. The president said, "General, will you take a walk with me?" The general borrowed the president's favorite word and said, "Delighted." A carriage drove up to the White House door.

"I thought we were to take a walk, Mr. President," said General Funston.

"The walk will come later, general," answered Mr. Roosevelt.

They drove to the spot on Rock creek where begins the "rough path of riotous nature." They left the carriage and began to walk. The president set the pace. He went over rocks and windfalls, through thicket and through brush, at the gait he took when he led the secret service followers a race through the broad streets of Washington, and the pace was rapid and rough for miles.

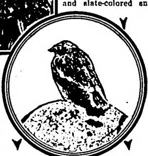
If General Funston had been a sailor instead of a soldier, he would have described his condition on coming to Washington for that visit as "flying light." He had brought only one pair of trousers with him. After the walk with the president was ended the carriage was again pressed into service and General Funston was dropped near his hotel.

The next day he was asked if he had enjoyed his walk with the president.

"Yes, I enjoyed it," he said, "after a fashion; but the next time I go walking with Theodore Roosevelt I'll ride all the way. I had to go into my hotel by the back door and get to my room by means of a freight elevator. I sent a bell boy out to buy me another pair of trousers and there wasn't enough left of the pair I had on to give the ready-made clothing man the size."

The zoological garden of the Smithsonian institution is situated in Rock Creek park. There is nearly everything there that a "zoo" should contain and little need is there of description. One curious bird event, however, marked the visit of the winter morning to the headquarters of the animals. In an outdoor cage were six turkey buzzards, asleep and as contented, apparently, as though they were fed upon their favorite "long-since-dead" dog, instead of fresh meat. Circling just above the buzzards' cage and eyeing them with apparent pity were several of their free brethren. The keepers at the park say that the wild buzzards pay daily visits of curiosity and condolence to their caged kinsmen.

Down again to the creek, and there was a sight for city eyes. A cardinal had come out from the woods and had alighted on a snow bank, his blazing body backed by the drift of white. No sight like that in other seasons, save when a scarlet tanager stops for a moment in springtime to rest in a blossom-burdened hawthorn. In the bushes near the cardinal were white-throats and slate-colored snowbirds, and farther up the creek were nuthatches, Carolina chickadees and tufted titmice.

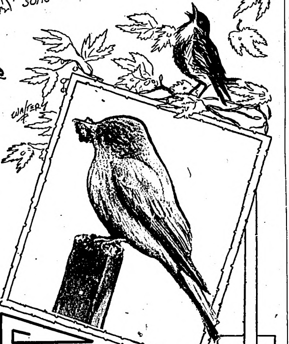


SNOWBIRD

Piney branch tumbles into Rock creek near the dividing line between Smithsonian park and the greater national pleasure ground. An old mill with its neighboring dam and waterfall stands not far away. The place is as beautiful to-day as it was 40 years ago, when John Burroughs haunted it and transmitted its beauties to the written page. Here it was that he had his inspiration for "Spring Notes at the Capital," an inspiration that dwelt in him and showed force and effect when he wrote of other and faraway fields. Burroughs has written of this spot, and it is a daring pen which would seek the ink for further words.

The change from woodland path to paved street is abrupt. A tufted titmouse with a voice as full-throated as in springtime called from an oak, but the note was lost in the rattle of a street car. Two woodland travelers had reached civilization, a fact that was still more impressed upon them when they boarded the street car and found that it was unheated.

Richard Kearton, an English ornithologist and photographer, although lamed badly as a result of an accident when cliff climbing, is engaged to-day in the work of making pictures of birds that make their nests in places inaccessible to any save the most daring men. Mr. Kearton came to Washington before President Roosevelt went out of office and he was entertained at the White House and was led through the woods, the ravines and fields near the capital city by the president of the United States in order that he might get knowledge of American bird life. Since his return to England the English people have paid marked attention to their fellow countryman. They had recognized him as a scientist worthy of consideration prior to the time of his visit to this country, but the attention that the strenuous president of the United States paid to the English bird lover brought to him additional attention and the marked consideration of some people who had been given to ignoring him on the ground that he was a photographer rather than scientist. Mr. Kearton is both a photographer and a scientist and his contribution of his knowledge of English bird life is of immense value to bird students.



In Washington members of the Geographic society, the biological survey, the Audubon society and some thousands of others of Washington residents viewed the Englishman's pictures with an interest that had in it a large percentage of amazement. This Briton has succeeded in going farther with his bird friends than have any other field photographers of whom one man at least knows anything.

President Roosevelt took Mr. Kearton through Rock Creek park and gave him practically his first glimpse of American wild bird life. The migrants had not yet come in full force to the northern woodlands when the president and his guest made through the valley and up and down the cliffs of the valley. They found the kingfisher looking for chubs or whatever the fish is that likes the Rock creek waters, and they found the cardinals and the Carolina chickadees, some white-throats, some slate-colored snowbirds and a few tuneful song sparrows.

Mr. Kearton's first introduction to the Potomac country birds gave him an appetite for further knowledge of their personalities. A few days after his Rock creek trip Mr. Kearton went up the Potomac valley with Dr. A. K. Fisher and E. W. Nelson of the biological survey, and I was allowed to bear them field company.

Dr. Fisher, of hawk and owl and much other bird fame, came into the tramping when the noon hour was near. Prior to that time Mr. Nelson acted as bird leader, if the bird can take the place of the bear in the term ordinarily used.

We had in Kearton an Englishman who knew American birds only from the books. Almost instantly the thought came of John Burroughs tramping all over southern England trying to find a nightingale, and to find him when he was in a tuneful mood. Richard Kearton was willing to tramp all over the Columbia district to see a mocking bird. He wanted also to hear him sing, but that at best was a matter of chance, for the singing season was yet young.

The mocker, to the European, unquestionably is our best-known bird. He fills in the interest place on the other side that is filled in on this side by the nightingale, or perhaps equally with the nightingale, the skylark, "whose tryst is in the clouds."

We crossed Cabin John bridge over the beautiful gorge, wavy with the greening treetops of early spring. Out of the depth of the valley came the song sparrow's music, almost if not quite the purest bird music that the American fields can call their own.

The Englishman went into a melting mood at the song sparrow's note. He kept it with him in cadence all day long, whistling it occasionally to make sure he was retaining it, and stopping every time that one of the birds sang from the roadside, to listen and to make sure that memory was holding the melody intact.

At the end of the Long bridge eight or ten birds were seen feeding in a tree-top. The foliage was not yet far enough advanced to obscure the vision. The birds were pinefinches, akin to our goldfinches. They did not know that they had a distinguished visitor from abroad, interested not only in their plumage, in their notes, in their habit of life, but in the humbler thing of what they were having for breakfast.

The pinefinches held us only a little while, and on we went along the early morning road, hoping for a mocking bird, and yet more than half content with chirping sparrows, bluebirds, robins, purple grackles and the rest of the early spring comers.

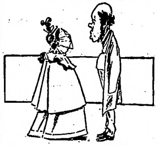
Down at the left of the road was a scrub growth of trees and beyond that were the canal and the broad river. We went into the trees, leaving the highway with its sparrows and bluebirds and other commoner folk, hoping that there some rarity would show itself to give our guest full payment for a 3,000-mile trip across the water to get acquainted with American bird life at its best, and American bird life is always at its best, and this we loyally told the British subject.

In the thicket we did not find the mocking bird, but we found something that in beauty at least more than compensated for the absence of the sober-clad southern songster. A male cardinal, fire red, crested and proud and tuneful, was there.

We caught a glimpse of the disappearing tail feathers of a bird that flashed into an evergreen tree, heavy-boughed and thick-leaved. I went over to the tree and knocked gently on the trunk. The bird came out and perched on a dead branch not 10 feet above our heads. It was a mocking bird. The fact was whispered to Mr. Kearton—who had found what he wanted.

The mocker paid absolutely no attention to us, save to turn his head once and to look down, probably curiously wondering what three hulking fellows found in him to arouse in them such an abundance of impertinent curiosity. He simply would not sing, but we stayed there, hoping against hope, until finally tiring of our company long before we tired of his, he left his perch and made for the Virginia shore.

SLIGHTLY AMBIGUOUS.



"Doctor, this is the worst attack I've ever had."

"Never mind, it will be your last."

Told in the Doctor's.

Dr. Arthur T. Holbrook is credited with the following:

A man by the name of Evans died and went to heaven. When he arrived at the pearly gates he said to St. Peter:

"Well, I'm here."

St. Peter asked his name. "John Evans," was the reply.

St. Peter looked through the book and shook his head.

"You don't belong here," he said.

"But I am sure I belong here," said the man.

"Wait a minute," said Peter. He looked again, and in a back part of the book found a name.

"Sure," said the guardian of the gate, "you belong here, but you weren't expected for 20 years. Who's your doctor?"—American Druggist.

To Spare His Neighbors.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, discussing in New York her book on the rearing of children, said:

"Children must be trained to be unselfish and tactful. Without this training the average child is as inconsiderate as a Dark Harbor fisherman the Maine folks tell about.

"This fisherman, walking along the road one day, saw a very ugly man sitting on a fence whittling a stick. He stopped and looked at the man for some time in disgusted silence. Then he said:

"'Well, you're ugly for fair.'

"'I can't help it, can I?' the ugly man asked, in a hurt tone.

"The fisherman thought a moment. Then he said, indignantly:

"'You could stay in the house, couldn't you?'"

The Doctor's Fault.

Judge—I am led to understand you stole the watch of the doctor who had just written a prescription for you at the free dispensary. What have you to say to this charge?

"Well, your honor, I found myself in a desperate quandary. His prescription said 'a spoonful every hour,' and I had no timepiece."

Doing Her Best.

"Kipling says that a woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

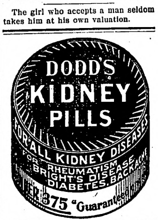
"Well, woman is traveling in the right direction. Haven't you noticed her present panatella shape?"

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

The bravest dentist isn't anxious to look into the jaws of death.

WE PAY HIGH PRICE FOR HIDES and furs & sell guns and traps cheap. N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis.

The girl who accepts a man seldom takes him at his own valuation.



The Army of Constipation
Is Growing Smaller Every Day.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 158-162 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

QUICKEST WITH SAFETY
PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
For the baby often means rest for both mother and child. Little ones like it too—it's so palatable to take. Free from opiates.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

An Absence Without Leave

By HENRY DE FORGE

(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

"Private Celestin Bridoux of the Tenth company is commanded to appear before a court-martial at headquarters of the Third division of the Sixth corps, to answer the charge of deserting his post and abandoning army property."

Such was the regimental order which was read by the sergeant-majors between an inspection of uniforms and the announcement of a coming inspection of quarters.

There was something very impressive indeed in the dignified and solemn group of officers in full uniform about the green-baize-covered table.

The president of the court was an old colonel with a benevolent expression despite his fiercely upturned mustache.

A voice cried: "Bring in the accused!" and Bridoux entered, guarded by two soldiers.

The charge against him was that during the grand maneuvers he had left his regiment without permission, taking with him his arms and uniform. Ten days afterward he had been found in civilian's dress, and arrested.

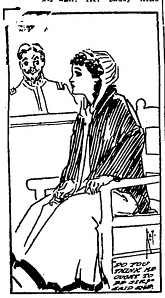
A lieutenant, in a monotonous voice, read the accusation.

"What have you to say in your defense?" the president asked.

Bridoux apparently had nothing to say, for he sat sobbing, with his face buried in his handkerchief, from which at intervals escaped a single word, always the same: "Fanchette!"

And as Bridoux obstinately refused, or rather remained unable, to give an account of himself, it was decided to call the sole witness in the case, who was set down as demoiselle Fanchette Chevalier.

A young peasant girl came forward, blushing like a rose. A starched and fluted white cap was poised daintily on her curly hair. Her saucy little tip-tilted nose was in striking contrast with her downcast eyes, veiled by long silky lashes.



"DO YOU THINK HE OUGHT TO BE, SIR?" SAID SHE.

For this important occasion she had arrayed herself in an immense black shawl that added greatly to the dignity of her appearance, but was forever getting in her way.

The old colonel addressed her kindly and told her to hold up her right hand to take the oath. Up went the chubby little hand bravely enough, but she had no sooner begun to give her testimony than she burst into tears, so that the clerk of the court had to lead her to a seat and pat her paternally on the shoulder.

The members of the court, perplexed and embarrassed, were gazing silently at the weeping witness and the sobbing prisoner, when the latter rose to the occasion and, in a quavering but determined voice, said:

"With your permission, colonel, I will tell you all about it. I cannot let that child go on crying like this. I am not a bad fellow, colonel. If you ask my corporal he will tell you that I am attentive to my duties and that I have had only five days' arrest, three for crying in the ranks, and two for losing my belt.

"Don't worry, Fanchette! These gentlemen are only trying to frighten us. You know that I haven't done anything wrong."

After this "aside" Bridoux resumed his narrative with greater self-confidence.

"Well, in the course of the maneuvers, my regiment had got to Quincy, over there near Favieres, you know. I was about played out. I had marched 25 miles that day, carrying not only my own kit, but half of my comrade Pingot's. The poor fellow is consumptive, you know, and he had a bad cough. My billet took me to a house at the end of the town, the house of Mam'selle Fanchette's father. Ah! he is a fine man! He received me with open arms, treated me like one of the family and nothing in the way of eating and drinking was too good for me. He cleaned and polished up my things himself, for I was half dead with fatigue, and Fanchette, who seemed to guess that I had a sweet tooth, made all sorts of good things for me. She spoke to me as affectionately as if I had been her brother, the dear little girl, and her words had an effect on me that I cannot describe. I am a soft one, I know. My eyes often leak—I even got the lock-up for it, you know—but the tears I shed that night were different. There was a good reason for them. I tried to argue with myself, and said: 'Come, Bridoux, brace up and be a man. You are an honest man and a good soldier—and an orphan. It is nobody's business but your own.' Then remembering that I should have to leave in the morning for another long march and that I should probably never see Fanchette again I decided that I must speak that night, both to her and to her father, who seemed to like me so well. I had it all arranged in my mind to speak during a stroll under the trees, but when the decisive moment came my courage failed me. And so all through the night I lay broad awake in the big bed in the best room, thinking what a fool I was and that it was now too late to speak. I tormented myself in this way until morning—and then I fell asleep! You see, colonel, I had 25 miles in my legs and we were at the far end of the town; I did not hear the bugle and when I did wake up the regiment was miles on its way. For a moment I was scared blue, but then I thought of Fanchette, and that now I should be able to say what I ought to have said last night. It would only mean a few days' arrest, after all. I told Papa Chevalier that I had orders to stay behind, and Fanchette seemed pleased. We walked and talked together all the morning, and at last I made my avowal, and Fanchette blushingly agreed to ask her father's consent as soon as he should return. For, as ill-luck would have it, her father, who was a mason, was away at work and would not return until night. But I said to myself that as I was already absent from my regiment without leave, another day would make no difference in my punishment. So I spent the evening very agreeably with Fanchette and her grandmother, and even helped wash dishes, as if I had been one of the family. When Papa Chevalier heard my confession next day, he grasped my hands heartily and asked me to step over to the cafe where, over a bottle of old wine, that he was polite enough to offer me, he told me that he felt highly honored by my proposal, but that a young man from a neighboring village had already asked for Fanchette's hand. The little one, who did not care much for her suitor, had asked time for reflection, but as the young man was prosperous and connected in business with her father the latter had as good as given his consent and promise.

"I was almost disheartened by this blow, but took courage and decided to go myself and have a parley with this Benoit Lulon, my rival. It would not take long and another day would not matter much. So I begged Fanchette not to change her mind, and set out on foot for my rival's home, several leagues away. When I got there I learned that Lulon had gone to a fair in another town and would not be back until next day. I waited for him, and at last we met.

"He did not beat about the bush at all, but told me plump and plain that it was not Fanchette's pretty face that he was after, but a piece of land that she would inherit from her grandmother, and that he had long had his eye upon. He would give up the girl and the ground, he said, for 400 francs.

"Very well," I answered, "I have a little money saved up and you shall have the 400 francs."

"It's a bargain!" said Benoit Lulon.

"A vile bargain it was, and I suppose I ought to have broken the fellow's head for proposing it, but I was so much in love with Fanchette that I would have stooped to any means

"I wrote to my aunt, who takes care of my savings, to send me the money, and then I went back to Papa Chevalier and told him all about it.

"The good man embraced me and I embraced Fanchette.

"I was having a glass with Benoit Lulon to seal the bargain when I was arrested. I was dressed like a farmer because my uniform suggested such unpleasant thoughts that I had left it at Papa Chevalier's.

"That is why I am here, colonel. It is all on account of Fanchette and her fine eyes. Look at them, colonel! Did you ever see prettier ones? If you send me to Africa I shall be the most wretched of men, and perhaps Benoit Luluon will—"

Bridoux broke down and began to sob again.

The officers regarded him sternly though they felt a strong inclination to laugh.

"Are you sorry for what you have done, my man?" the colonel asked.

Fanchette replied for her lover: "Do you think he ought to be, sir?" said she, with her impertinent little nose pointing skyward.

To the astonishment of everyone the court-martial of the Third Division of the Sixth Corps displayed unexampled leniency on this occasion, and Bridoux got off with 60 days in prison. His captivity was sweetened by the thought that he could marry Fanchette as soon as he should be released, and one morning, with his breakfast, the corporal on guard handed him a big envelope which contained four beautiful blue 100-franc notes, the gift of the old colonel.

PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Ban B. Johnson, who was always a friend of John A. Heydler, did what he could to keep Pulliam's successor in the presidency of the National league. Johnson declared several weeks ago that if John M. Ward was elected to take Heydler's place that the national commission would bar Ward. Johnson and Charles W. Murphy are far from friendly and they had hot words in New York before the National league elected its president.

FANS DON'T WANT A BASEBALL WAR

ROW OF THE MAGNATES NOT APPROVED BY PATRONS OF THE GAME.

CLEAN SPORT, THEIR DEMAND

Ban Johnson Looms Up as About the Biggest Man Connected with National Pastime—That New York Signal-Tipping Case.

Baseball fans all over the country want to see the magnates settle their differences and get down to business of strengthening their teams for 1910.

The average fan doesn't care whether John Heydler or John Ward is president of the National league. What the enthusiast wants is for his favorite team to have the best players it can get and when the good old summer time comes, for those players to put up the fastest article of baseball they can.

However, the recent muddle which was threshed out in New York was interesting to the fans in a way, for it threatened the greatest baseball war in the history of the national game. That such a thing may yet result is not impossible.

The magnates of the big leagues know the patrons of the game don't want to see a fight. The enthusiasts who support the great pastime with their money want clean sport and they will not stand for any throat-cutting tricks. From the magnate's standpoint the game of baseball is a business proposition. It is impossible for any person to point out one man who is at the head of a club that is there simply for his love of baseball. There is lots of money in baseball, even tail-end teams making fortunes for their owners, and the magnates know it is not policy for them to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

The recent battle in New York developed one thing and that is that Ban Johnson, president of the American league, is about the biggest man in baseball. Johnson was not only the power behind the throne in his own organization, but he was busy with the affairs of the National league. He and Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs, have been enemies for some time. When Murphy started out to get the scalp of Heydler because the National league president backed up Umpire Klem who fired Evers, Chance and Steinfeldt from the Labor day game in Pittsburg, Johnson at once went to the rescue of Heydler. This added fuel to the fire between the Cub boss and the American league mogul, and the battle waxed warm. Murphy dared Johnson to make known the name of the "man higher up," who was connected with the umpire-bribing scandal in New York and Johnson laughed at him.

When it was announced that the Philadelphia National league team had been sold and the report was circulated that Murphy was in the deal, Johnson likewise took a chance to hurl a shot at his foe.

The American league adopted a schedule of 154 games, the same as played last season. Murphy of the Chicago Cubs wanted both leagues to agree to a 168 game schedule, and in this was blocked by Johnson. The American also adopted a provision which will prevent a club carrying more than 35 men at any time, and from May 1 to August 1 the number must not exceed 25. The question of eliminating spikes has been left to President Johnson and Charles Comiskey of the Chicago club.

The national commission applied a nice coat of whitewash to the New York Yankees' signal-tipping case. It exonerated the club but adopted resolutions that left the matter unexplained. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, Charges have been printed in the public press to the effect that during the last season a sign-tipping bureau was operated on the grounds of the New York American league ball club, and

Whereas, The board of directors of the American league has considered carefully the evidence before it of the existence of such a bureau, therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the opinion of the board the New York club is free from all complicity in such tipping affair, and be it further

Resolved, That it is the sense of the board that any manager or official proven guilty of operating a sign-tipping bureau should be barred from baseball for all time.

The national commission disposed of the Torrey and Asmussen cases. In the former a decision was made not to reopen the case, which confirms the award, previously made, of Torrey of the Chicago Logan Squares to the Cincinnati club. That was contested by President Kinsella of the Springfield Three Eyes league club on the ground that Torrey belonged to him by contract and that the New York National league club was interested because it had purchased Torrey's services from Kinsella for a price said to have been $4,000.

Catcher Tom Asmussen, whose reinstatement was made some days ago, now will become a member of the Boston Nationals in all probability as soon as it can draft that player from Eau Claire, the commission having decided that the title rested with the Wisconsin team, but that he was subject to draft. It was Asmussen's attempt to play with the Doves a couple of years ago that led to his disability.

One of many deals rumored proved true. That was the purchase by the Pittsburg club of First Baseman Flynn of the St. Paul team for a consideration of $4,000. That is said to presage the departure of Bill Abstein from the ranks of the world's champions in the spring if the new player comes up to expectations.

Chicago led the American league teams the past season in fielding, according to the official averages announced by President Johnson. The White Sox stood .964, with Philadelphia next at .961. The champions of the league, Detroit, were third at .959. In the pitchers' game percentages Mullin of Detroit led with a percentage of .784. He won 29 and only lost eight games. Cicotte of Boston was second at .722, winning 13 and losing five. Smith was the best of the Sox pitchers at .600. He stood twelfth in the list. Walsh was thirteenth at .577. Isbell of the Sox led the first basemen of the league in fielding with .994, and Purtell of the locals was at the top of the second basemen with .970. Of the third basemen, Tannehill was fourth at .941. Parents of Chicago and Miller of Washington and 1.000 among the fielders, and Hahn was fourth with .990. Sutor, a Sox pitcher, had 1.000 among the pitchers.

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Food and
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Story of a Moving Pumpkin.

A pumpkin was seen to walk across the field by Mrs. Samuel H. Hight of Skowegan recently. When she saw it she thought her eyes were deceiving her, but she soon perceived that the pumpkin moved a little way, stopped and then turned in another direction. She watched this object for some time and told one of her neighbors. The mystery was solved, but the two women did not dare to go nearer the moving vegetable, but called a man who knocked the pumpkin over and found a polecat. The skunk had crawled under the pumpkin and stuck his head into a hole in it and was unable to extricate himself from it and had walked off as best he could with the pumpkin on his back.—Lewiston Journal.

Rough on Rats in Out Buildings.

In setting Rough on Rats in out buildings after mixing it well with any food decided upon, separate into small bits, place on several pieces of boards, and put these here and there under the floors. Close up all openings large enough for Dogs, Cats or Chickens to enter, but leave some small openings for Rats to get in and out. One 25c. box of Rough on Rats, being all poison, will make enough mixture to clear out in one or two nights settings, hundreds of Rats and Mice. 15c., 25c., 75c., at Druggists. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N. J.

Cupid's Cynicism.

"Is it so, that you used to call regularly on that girl?"

"Yes; she always sang a song to me that I loved."

"Why didn't you marry her?"

"I found I could buy the song for 50 cents."—The Circle.

Would Depend.

She—You've seen Charley's wife. Would you call her pretty?

He—I might if I were talking to Charley.

Hamlins Wizard Oil will knock the spots off a sore throat. It's use makes tonsilitis, quinsy and diphtheria impossible. It is simply great for the relief of all pain, soreness and inflammation.

When a man trades his money for experience, it is difficult to convince him that a fair exchange is no robbery.

PERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER
has an enviable reputation of over seventy years as a reliable remedy for lumbago, sciatica, pleurisy stitches, etc., 25c, 35c and 50c. At all druggists.

If you are ever beaten it will be by your own self. Nobody else can beat you.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

When some people talk it is a waste of time to yawn.

WESTERN CANADA
Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:
"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada will continue."
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with its Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming."
Iowa contributed largely to the 70,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of $170,000,000.00
Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts, 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, wood, water and building material plentiful.
For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Government Agent.
Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you.) (3)

CONCENTRATED FIR TREE OIL
pure, not a compound. Nature's natural remedy, made from the Douglas Fir Tree, has wonderful antiseptic and healing properties. On account of its penetrating power it is quickly taken up by the blood corpuscles and carried to all parts of the body, destroying and carrying off all impurities both in the flesh and bones and leaving the system in a purified condition. It is indispensable for all affections of nose, throat and lungs, such as colds, hoarseness, tuberculosis, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrhal troubles, rheumatism, eczema and all skin diseases, kidney, liver and bladder troubles; also for sprains, sore muscles and lame back. Mailed upon receipt of stamps or money order; bottles 25c, 50c and $1 sizes. Money refunded if purchaser is not more than satisfied. Agents Wanted.
PUGET SOUND WOOD PRODUCTS CO.
Anacortes, Washington

Worms
"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Freck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial for most any disease caused by impure blood."
Chas. E. Condon, Lewiston, Pa., (Mifflin Co.)
CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Illinois, and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE. 921

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 1–1910.

We Give Away Absolutely Free of Cost
The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified, by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, a book of 1008 large pages and over 700 illustrations, in strong paper covers, to any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in French Cloth binding for 31 stamps. Over 680,000 copies of this complete Family Doctor Book were sold in cloth binding at regular price of $1.50. Afterwards, one and a half million copies were given away as above. A new, up-to-date revised edition is now ready for mailing. Better send NOW, before all are gone. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.
DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION
THE ONE REMEDY for woman's peculiar ailments good enough that its makers are not afraid to print on its outside wrapper its every ingredient. No Secrets—No Deception.
THE ONE REMEDY for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots of well established curative value.

The Most Profitable Lands in the U. S.
are in the Gulf Coast Country, Cameron County, Texas. Why? Answer: Most southerly county in U. S. and the very earliest fruits and vegetables bring highest prices for big crops. Deep black soil, no gumbo. Artesian Well Irrigation. Climate nearly same, summer and winter; no extreme heat, no malaria. Profits on $30.00 land, several hundred dollars. Fact. Return fare, $32.50, first and third Tuesdays. Delightful trip. Write for details. Agents wanted in your town.
W. W. CLARK, Palace Building, Minneapolis

Woman Today in China

SISTER IN LAW OF THE PRESENT REGENT.

PRINCESS SU ONE OF THE HIGHEST LADIES OF THE CHINESE COURT.

THE LADY YU, THE BEST INFORMED LADY IN COURT AFFAIRS, AT HOME

PHOTOGRAPHS BY UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

AT A MOMENT when the women of the west have attained to complete liberty of action, and to equality with the male sex in all matters, save that of the political franchise; when that intellectual and accomplished band, who under the name of suffragettes are daily mustering under its banners recruits from all ranks of society with the rallying cry of "Votes for Women;" and slowly but surely evolving a plan of campaign, which leaving out of account the aggressive militant attitude of certain of their members, cannot but fail to appeal in the long run to that sex in whose political thralldom they claim to be, it may be pertinent to inquire what their sisters in the east, and especially in China are doing.

Woman in China has many obstacles to overcome before she can hope to reach the progressive freedom attained by the woman of the west. While she has more license in her actions and meets with more consideration than the dweller in the Indian zenana, she still, as from time immemorial in the history of her country, occupies a very inferior position to her lord and master. Theoretically she has no standing at all. She is but a mere chattel or household appendage. Yet in reality, when a mother, she exercises to the day of her death, a powerful and far-reaching influence over the destinies of her children—even should they reach the state of being grandparents, and in spite of the cast-iron customs of old tradition, which restrain her daily life from birth, she is able to make herself more or less comfortable and contented with her lot.

From an educational point, however, woman in the mass has no place in China. While the son of the house is given every advantage to become a man of letters, though in a manner which adheres to classical traditions, except in rare instances where outside influences are at work—e. g.—the German-Chinese High school which was opened at Tsingtan on October 25, woman has had no such opportunities. The Chines father looks upon the education of his daughter in this light: "This girl will be with me but a short time, till she is married. Why should I waste time and money for her husband's sake?"

The girl, who is often possessed of a mind which is susceptible to the highest education, sharp and quick-witted, as has been proven by those who have had the advantage of a new trend of thought, which is creeping in from the occident, but which as she grows up, becomes stunted in growth by her absolute illiteracy and limitation of outlook. Her energies seek no wider outlet than the petty cares of the household, her cooking, washing, sewing; and there it ends. Her life of drudgery coupled with the realization of her hopeless inferiority impressed upon her by her surroundings, breed in her a lack of hope and ambition, which transmitted by her to her family, must inevitably have a debasing influence upon the intellectuality of generations following. "Educate the mothers of France," was Napoleon's remedy for France; and it stands true for the China of to-day. As an unmarried woman, she is a valueless unit in the four hundred million inhabitants. As a wife, since she lives with her husband's mother she is no better than a slave, compelled to submit to the whims of her mother-in-law who wreaks upon her vengeance for her own sufferings as a bride. It is only on the birth of a son, whose coming spells release, that she shakes off the yoke and attains to a certain degree of honor. Yet to a Chinese woman marriage represents a desirable thing, and there are few unmarried; and that in spite of the fact that the husband is permitted to administer "wholesome correction," which she may not resent under the severest of penalties.

Once married, her privacy must not be intruded upon by a male stranger. She must recognize the existence of only two men in the world, her husband and her father. Such a thing as mixed society is forbidden. Her name must not be mentioned, and for a friend of her husband to inquire after her is to mark him as a person of no breeding.

As a clew to the correct estimate of her position, the Chinese language affords striking illustration. "Home" is represented by the symbol of a pig under a roof—the pig signifying plenty. "Marriage" is a pig and a woman under one roof. "Wife" is a woman under a broom. "Good" is a woman and a male child.

A startling exception to the rule was the late dowager empress, who broke through custom and climbed to the throne, where she wielded a despotic rule which rivaled that of Catherine of Russia in many of its aspects. Though a person of high intellectual capacity and an artist of no mean ability, she was opposed to reform of all sorts, and took no advantage of her position to ameliorate the conditions of her own sex. The first official recognition of the existence of woman took place but a short time ago in the publication of a semi-official book dedicated to "The Fathers and Mothers of the People."

There seems to be a new era in view, and educational systems are being revised. The ladies of the upper classes who have in many cases good educations, are awakening to their responsibilities, and one, the Princess Halachan, has founded a school for Mogul girls. Thanks to the influence of certain ladies of other nations who have interested themselves in the matter, girls' schools are springing up her and there, and the impetus given to education and freedom of thought is clearly shown in the happy faces in this photo of some girl scholars. Once released from the idea of inferiority, the girl must as a mother, exert a beneficial and enlightening influence upon the generation which follows her; and China having realized that the strength of a nation lies in the womankind, must surely discard her ancient prejudices.

Many centuries must elapse before then, for the east moves slowly, unless the woman of the west comes to the aid of her sister; and there seems to be no more noble field for the activities of the intellectual woman, as we know her, than that which seems to be presented by the masses of her sisters in China. Woman alone can appeal to woman, and the Chinese woman but awaits the moral backing to become a potent factor in the regenerency of her country.

Ancient German Buildings

The entry into Goslar is reminiscent of Nuremberg; for one comes at once upon a huge, round fortress tower guarding the approach. But instead of lingering here, one hastens to the farther end of town to see the building that is the very raison d'etre of Goslar, says a writer in the Century.

Goslar came into the world because it lay on the fringe of the Harz forests and at the foot of the silver-yielding Rammelsberg, both of which were owned by the ninth century emperors of the holy Roman empire. There they put up a succession of hunting lodges and small palaces until Emperor Henry III. built the Kaiserhaus, which is to-day the oldest secular building in Germany. Here Henry IV. began his ill-starred life. His preference for living at Goslar, and the number of castles he built in the neighborhood, roused the fears of the Saxon nobles, who tried to assassinate him one evening at the Kaiserhaus. And this was the opening scene of the drama that culminated at Canossa, when, barefooted, the emperor waited three days in the snow before Pope Gregory's portal.

The last holy Roman emperor in these spacious halls was Barbarossa. After him the noble building gradually fell into ruin until the coming of the new empire, when it was restored in a rather hard, Prussian style, and received into its halls the second great German leader, William I. Now, in bronze, the pair sit their war horses one on each side of the main flight of steps—Barbarossa and Barablanca, as the people call them.

The main hall is decorated with frescoes of the Sleeping Beauty and the Barbarossa legends, and with scenes from local and imperial history. Its principal attraction is the old Kaiserstuhl, seat of a long line of emperors.

In the chapel of St. Ulrich lies buried the heart of Henry III. It lay formerly in the famous cathedral which Henry built near his palace, and which was torn down in 1819. This piece of vanished glory possessed an extraordinary collection of treasures and relics. It made nothing of the bones of such saints as Nicholas, Lawrence, Cyril and Dionysius, for there were also important remains of the apostles themselves. There was half of the Apostle Philip, an arm of Bartholomew, and one of James; a hand, arm and the head of Matthew, and a great part of the bodies of Peter and Paul. There were also many other wonders.

Many of these valuables were stolen in the sack of Goslar in 1206, and more during the Swedish occupation in the Thirty Years' war. Others were sold to keep up the cathedral during the hard times brought on by the reformation, so that the only remnant of the building and its treasures to-day is a part of one transept near the Kaiserhaus, with some interesting statues, some of the oldest stained glass in existence, and an early Romanesque reliquarium borne by still earlier brazen figures of the four rivers of paradise, as old as the city itself. From this one fragment, with its splendid, sculptured portal, one can reconstruct the whole—ex pede Herculem—and realize the effect of a religious pageant on one of Goslar's chief holy days, such as the Feast of St. Matthew, when the bells in the twin towers went mad when Henry III., in his imperial robes, swept down the broad steps of the Kaiserhaus, heading a brilliant train of prelates, princes, knights and many a band of pilgrims, who had come from every part of the empire to bow at this famous shrine. And after the last amen had died away amid the groined vaulting of the cathedral, St. Matthew in his silver sarcophagus was carried with due rites about the city walls

* * *

Does it pay a King to be Democratic?

KING GEORGE OF GREECE AND MEMBERS OF HIS FAMILY IN THE PALACE GARDENS, TATOI PALACE COUNTRY RESIDENCE OF THE KING.

Photographs Copyright by Underwood & Underwood, N.Y.

"THE KING AT HOME" THE ROYAL PALACE AND CONSTITUTION SQUARE, ATHENS

A TOURIST in Athens wandering about the palace gardens noticed an elderly gentleman seated on one of the benches quietly smoking. Asking him for a match, and being answered in English, he sat down and entered into conversation with him. The talk veered round to the subject of the government, and the tourist asked casually:

"What do they think of the royal family, then?"

"Well," said the old gentleman, smiling: "The queen is beloved by all for her good deeds."

"And the king?"

"Um! I'm afraid he's not much use. He never seems to do anything very bad or very good. So we won't talk about him."

The tourist being invited to walk around the garden was surprised to see his guide being saluted, and beat a hasty and apologetic retreat on realizing that it was King George.

There are many such stories of the king's hatred of anything approaching formality or ostentation. But this is only fitting in the democratic king of the most democratic nation in Europe. It is not so many years ago since by constitution all degrees and titles of nobility were abolished, and in the eyes of the law all alike are equal.

King George has every desire for a peaceful life, for he has seen much happen since he was elected king of the Hellenes in 1863, but everything points at the moment to a political crises which may lead him to share the fate of his predecessor, Otho of Bavaria. The military force then, as the Military league will probably be now, was the moving power in establishing a new order. Otho and his consort having gone yachting in the Aegean, the moment was considered an auspicious one for effecting a change of rulers; and on the astonished king arriving at Salamis he was politely informed that his services were dispensed with, that the throne was now vacant and that he need not trouble to set foot in Greece again. He did not, but returned to Bavaria, and the throne of Greece was finally offered to George, second son of the king of Denmark, and brother to the queen of England. His marriage to one of the Russian princesses soon followed.

Their eldest son, Constantine, who has incurred the hatred of the army, whose head he is, is now 41. He married in 1889 Sophia, sister of the kaiser, and has now three sons, the eldest of whom, Prince Georgios, should by right, ascend the throne in the natural order of succession. It is the youngest of the boys, however, Prince Paulos, now eight years old, whom report points to as the people's chosen ruler in the event of the retirement of the king. Prince Paulos is already idolized by the royal guards, and is credited as being fixed upon by the Military league as the king's successor, since they fear that should the crown prince come to the throne he will take steps to repay the humiliations put upon him by their body.

Every Greek is a politician, and the cafes are hot beds of political discussion as to the trend of events. Should Paulos be chosen, then the constitutional royal authority must be exercised by the ministerial council until a regent is appointed.

Meanwhile King George drives about in his auto, thinking deeply. He is growing old now, and his 64 years, 46 of which he has spent on the throne, make him wish to spend his remaining days as a simple gentleman.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

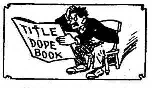
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1910. NO. 41.

At the National Capital

Gossip of People and Events
Gathered in Washington

How to Address Government Officials



WASHINGTON.—Most people on coming to Washington for the first time and about to meet a public official are greatly perplexed as to the form in which they shall address him. Naturally uniformity is desired in this respect by all government officials and for that reason there is an established manner in which to greet public officials with whom one may come in contact. The social code which governs social intercourse in the official set in the national capital supplies a prescribed form which it is necessary to follow if one would be correct in his dealings with officials, whether of a social or a business nature.

There are some titled officials in the army and navy who are granted a higher rank socially by courtesy than they are actually entitled to. For instance, lieutenant commanders in the navy are, by courtesy, in social life called commanders, while those below that rank lose thier official title and are addressed as plain "Mister."

The same rule applies to the staff officers of the navy. Likewise the assistant secretaries of executive departments are called "Mister," and the reason for this is obvious. It is not an easy matter to introduce a naval officer by the long and harsh-sounding title of "lieutenant-commander," or to refer to the first lieutenant of an executive department as "Mr. Assistant Secretary."

A list of titles which it is proper to use in Washington in personal intercourse is as follows:

The president—"Mr. President."

The vice-president—"Mr. Vice-President."

Members of the cabinet—

Secretaries of state, treasury, war, navy, interior, agriculture and commerce and labor—"Mr. Secretary."

The attorney general—"Mr. Attorney General."

The postmaster general—"Mr. Postmaster General."

An ambassador—"Mr. Ambassador," or "Your Excellency."

A minister—"Mr. Minister."

All other members of the diplomatic corps, unless they have titles—"Mr. ——."

The chief justice of the supreme court—"Mr. Chief Justice."

Associate justices—"Mr. Justice."

United States senator—"Senator."

General, major general, brigadier general—"General."

Colonel and lieutenant colonel—"Colonel.'

Majors and captains are given their respective titles. All officers of the rank below the line of captain are addressed as "Mr. ——." Officers of the medical department below the rank of captain are addressed as "Doctor."

Admiral and rear admiral—"Admiral."

Commodores, captains and commanders are addressed by their respective titles.

Recently the state department has promulgated an order that all correspondence addressed to the secretary of state shall read, "The Honorable, The Secretary of State."

Nagel's Department Caused Commotion

DIPLOMACY
OUCH!
McHARG
EXPEDIENCY

THERE was a commotion, almost consternation, in the state department a short time ago when the energetic and active Assistant Secretary McHarg of the department of commerce and labor went over and talked United States statutes against international law in the department.

There was Assistant Secretary Adee, who is so steeped in international law that it exudes from every pore, and Solicitor Hoyt, who has been so long a legal adviser of the government that he knows everythng in the way of law that ever pertains to the United States, and Commisioner of Navigation Chamberlain, who has been studying navigation interests ever since the first part of Cleveland's last term.

Into this gathering came McHarg in his forceful manner, and remarked that his department had decidde to let the ships plying between the United States and Central and South American ports clear for their destinations. Tomes of international law were brought forth and diplomatic etiquette produced and quoted to show that it invited grave international complications if American ships should sail from our ports during internecine conflicts and insurgent movements in the Central American states.

Then McHarg brought out the statutes of the United States and showed that the collectors of customs would be subject to damages if they held these ships when there was no state of war existing in any of the countries, but simply little insurrections.

Three Cornered Jar for Weather Man

WILLIS L. MOORE
WEATHER

"FUNNY organization, this weather bureau of ours!" exclaimed a member of a group of four in the smoking compartment of a Pennsylvania train bound east from Chicago. "I see it predicts general rains for today," and he held the paper sideways to dodge the glare of a brilliant Indian summer sun.

"Yes," said the man on the sofa. "I always take my rain coat when they promise fair weather and wear a panama if they say it's going to snow."

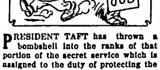
"At my home," interjected the third member of the group, "my wife has a standing order with our confectioner to send up ice cream whenever he sees the cold wave flag flying."

The mild-looking man with the twinkling brown eyes said nothing.

They were all strangers to one another. The three who had spoken were on thier way to New York. At Harrisburg the mild man with the brown eyes arose, gathered up his baggage and, bowing to the group, produced three visiting cards. He distributed them and, smiling, took an abrupt departure. Then the others looked at the cards. They read:

"Willis L. Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C."

Taft Baffles the Secret Service Men



PRESIDENT TAFT has thrown a bombshell into the ranks of that portion of the secret service which is assigned to the duty of protecting the chief executive of the nation from assassination. It is a soft job for the secret service men and often leads to something better, several of those who formerly guarded presidents now holding government positions that pay well and make the holder a man of some consequence in his home territory.

It is feared among Chief Wilkie's men that some of them will have to be looking for other jobs if the president continues to go out for long walks through the busiest streets of Washington unprotected. The president has "had the laugh" on several of the sleuths recently when, without making any announcement of his intentions, he left the White House and started out for a walk. Generally he has been accompanied by some cabinet official, but none of Wilkie's men was along.

On his last walk the president was accompanied by his brother, Charles P. Taft, the millionaire Cincinnatian. They walked up to the capitol and strolled through its wide halls.

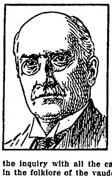
So far as runs the memory of Alonzo Stewart, deputy sergeant at arms of the senate, and that is a full generation, it was the first time that a president has visited the capitol on the Sabbath day.

On another occasion the president walked through Pennsylvania avenue, Washington's most prominent business street. He was wearing a sack coat and a gray sweater.

"That looks like President Taft," remarked one man as President Taft passed the five-cent theaters on the avenue. Brig. Gen. Clarence Edwards, who was with the president, giggled and the president smiled.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

GOT "THE MAN HIGHER UP"



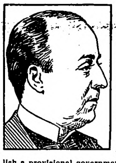
History may be doubtful as to the identity of the man who fastened the "Show Me" tradition on the state of Missouri, but she will not be in the case of the man who coined the expression, "the man higher up." At some indeterminate time in autumn it was discovered that the first use of this expression was made by Elmer B. Adams, judge of the federal bench in St. Louis. Even the very case in which he used the expression has been fixed and the archaeologists who have been carrying on the investigation defy the world to show them (being Missouri men) why and where they are wrong.

Certain claims that the phrase, "Get at the man higher up," or "Get to the man higher up," was first used by Theodore Roosevelt are scouted by the historians in question, who have gone into the inquiry with all the caution and precaution of true scientists. Nowhere in the folklore of the vaudeville stage or of the daily press can be found the slightest reference to the man higher up previously to the date in 1903, when Judge Adams, charging a federal grand jury in their investigation of certain naturalization frauds which were the talk of the country at that time, told the jury "to look not only for the little man who is made a tool, but for the man higher up."

One or two words about the personal history of the man who invented the legal principle of the man higher up will not be out of place as a protocol. Judge Adams was born and brought up as a farmer boy on a hillside in Vermont. He worked like a slave to get a little schooling and by the kind of frugality and labor familiar to some people who have come out of a college managed to worm his way through Yale. Almost as soon as he had got his degree he fell into a big piece of luck. A number of New England philanthropists had raised a fund to reorganize education in the south just after the close of the civil war. They hired Adams to go south on the work at a salary of $2,500 a year. The young man found when he landed in Atlanta that the most undesirable thing in the world just then in that part of the country was a carpet-bagger. It did not take him long, however, to prove to the satisfaction of everybody that, whatever else he might be, he was certainly not a carpet-bagger. He won the admiration and assistance of the most prejudiced persons in Georgia and some of the schools in Atlanta and Milledgeville to-day are monuments to his ability as an organizer.

Judge Adams proclaims himself a Democrat, but he has not as yet voted for Mr. Bryan. His last presidential vote was cast for Mr. Taft.

TAFT'S PREMIER A SCRAPPER

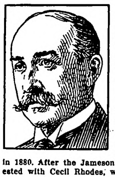


"The big little man" is what they call Philander Chase Knox, secretary of state, who through all the [illegible] years of his life has been carrying a chip, if not on his shoulders, at least somewhere about him. Just now it is the Nicaraguan affair that is giving Knox a chance to show his fighting qualities. Zelaya, in the Knox mind, is a degenerate disturber and has become a murderer. With quick perception the secretary seized upon the admission of Zelaya that Cannon and Groce, the Americans killed by Zelaya, were officers of the revolutionary army. So Mr. Knox has sent out a police alarm for the apprehension of a murderer.

If the Estrada government succeeds, Zelaya will be tried and punished for murder. If it becomes necessary for the United States to establish a provisional government, Zelaya will be tried for murder

As a matter of fact there is no logical reason to suppose that a five-foot-two man, even a statesman, who wears his hat at a careless angle, keeps his hands in his pockets and smokes constantly without removing the cigar for a puff, is belligerent. And when one goes into the barn-like room of the secretary of state and, after a search, finds the secretary sitting on the back of his neck in a chair built for a much larger man, looking up with the sleepy eyes of P. C. Knox, any indication of force of character seems impossible.

TO PROBE MINE DISASTERS

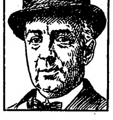


John Hays Hammond, the $200,000 a year mining engineer for the Guggenheims, near-candidate for vice-president of the United States and the reputed hero of Richard Harding Davis' "Soldier of Fortune," has been appointed chairman of a committee of the National Civic Federation which will investigate the causes of mining disasters such as recently occurred at the Cherry mine in Illinois.

Hammond has retired from active work at the age of 53, but still has the benefits of his experience in South Africa, South America, Alaska, Australia and all the states of the Union to aid him in such work.

He has been a recognized expert in mining affairs since he did special work for the government in the examination of California gold fields in 1880. After the Jameson raid in South Africa Hammond, who was interested with Cecil Rhodes, was arrested, tried and sentenced to death. The sentence, however, was afterward commuted to 15 years and finally to a fine of $2,125,000.

GREAT TASK FOR ARCHBOLD



The Standard Oil Company has started its final battle for life and the general who is directing operations in the field is John D. Archbold, who, since the death of Henry H. Rogers, has done most of the "heavy work" of the great corporation. True, John D. Rockefeller has reentered the harness and is the great genius of the country's biggest trust, but Mr. Rockefeller keeps himself in the background, and outside of a few of the money kings of the nation his hand is seldom seen in the affairs of the corporation.

It is Mr. Archbold who is the field general and the man who stands between the Standard and that portion of the public which is always crying, "Down with the trusts." The steps necessary for carrying the suit which recently was decided against the standard, to the supreme court of the United States were taken several days ago in St. Louis. Of course the company's legal department will handle the case in court and Mr. Archbold will have nothing to do with the case in the nation's highest tribunal, but there are things that he can do in the way of planning the battle and furnishing the lawyers ammunition for their fight.

Mr. Archbold has been connected with the Standard Oil Company since 1875. When John D. Rockefeller was a witness in the case now going to the supreme court, he gave much credit for the corporation's great success to Mr. Archbold. Mr. Archbold also was a witness in the case and it may be recalled that he showed himself a jovial, good-natured man, though a stubborn fighter when pressed, while he was being grilled by Frank Kellogg, chief counsel for the government. Mr. Archbold is 62 years old.

Odd News From Big Cities

Stories of Strange Happenings in the Metropolitan Towns

Hobo Sleeps in a Millinery Store

BUFFALO, N. Y.—It is not becoming to a millinery establishment to have a specimen of the genus hobo asleep in the display room.

"Didn't someone come in?" asked Miss Godfrey, milliner at Allen and College streets of one of her assistants one afternoon recently.

"Oh!" screamed the assistant, who stepped into the display room.

"A mouse! Is it a mouse?" cried Miss Godfrey.

"No. It's a horrid man, sleeping in the Morris chair," said the assistant, rushing breathlessly into the rear of the establishment.

Sundry peeps were taken at the sleeping man by everyone in the house. But the sleeper slept on and a few minutes developed his snoring powers. As his breath spread about, it became noticeable that he was not particular in the brand of liquor which he had imbibed. A kindly neighbor tried a hand at arousing the hobo, who snorted viciously. The telephone was resorted to and Tim Canty at police station No. 3 was notified.

Tim consulted the map and discovered that Allen and College streets were in the tenth precinct. He wired to Desk Sergeant Alt. There is no patrol wagon in the Tenth precinct, so Policeman Mahaney took a stroll over to the millinery store.

Customers had arrived at the store. Folk who were not customers were peeping through the windows and enjoying the sport. What might be the consequence if the sleeper were roughly aroused, was seriously discussed. He sank deeper into the chair and deeper in sleep until he was emitting a snore only once in every 45 seconds, when Mahaney arrived.

"Get up!" said Mahaney.

"Let me sleep," said the man.

"If there was a delivery wagon or a wheelbarrow handy, I'd take a chance on getting this fellow to the station," remarked Mahaney. "As it is, there is nothing left for me to do, but get a patrol wagon."

He called the wagon, which had to come from the Fifth precinct. While waiting, the Morris chair and its weary burden were switched into a side room. Three big policemen carried the man to the wagon. It was a heavy job.

How Much Is a Silk Kimono Worth?

LOUISVILLE, KY.—It took five men and three women at the custom house and the silk buyer of a Louisville department store to fix the value of a kimono which arrived at the office of the surveyor of customs for appraisement.

It was a dainty silken thing, lavender in color, which lay on the table of Cashier Thomas for two hours. The garment was sent to the customhouse by the postmaster at Somerset, Ky., who received it a few days ago through the mail from Japan. He did not send in the address of the owner.

This was aggravating to the young women experts called in. "I know every woman in Somerset," one said, "and I'd just like to know who is going to wear that."

For half an hour it puzzled Surveyor Taylor and two or three of his men assistants to discover what the garment was.

"It looks to me like the court gown of the Queen of Zanzibar," said Clay Miller, who measures steamboats and superintends the loading of merchandise at the customhouse depot.

"Don't you men know anything at all?" exclaimed one of the women clerks, pushing her way through the puzzled group. "Why that's a kimono."

Finally, when the officials decided that there was nothing dangerous about the garment, they started in fixing the value. It was estimated to be worth all the way from $1.50 to $150. The kimono was finally carried to a department store where the silk buyer said it was worth $14.

Later the kimono was bundled into a box and started back to the Somerset postmaster with instructions to charge the owner $8.20 duty.

Dyes Tails of Hens Purple and Green

DYE
NEVER AGAIN

NEW YORK.—It did not pay for Mrs. Frederick Albers of 30 Kings highway, Flatlands, Brooklyn, to de the tails of her white hens green and purple to distinguish them from neighbor Carey's hens.

One tragedy has occurred already as the direct result of the adornment and it is only a step now for those hens from the fresco to the fricassee. All simplicity of life in the hen yard has been destroyed. Each bird thinks she is a peacock and prefers strutting to laying.

Henrietta, the prize of the flock, is dead. She was an egg-a-day bird in the simpler times when hens went to roost early instead of sitting up so late to see the rays of the King's highway arc lights reflected from their dazzling tails that they were too sleepy to lay in the morning.

She strutted too far when she strutted across the road to Carey's place. She was distinguished all right, just as Mrs. Albers had intended. She was so unlike other cacklers that Carey's plain, old-fashioned hens would not stand for it.

They clucked about her at first and clucked things that would have caused most any other hen to run the straightest zigzag she knew how to her own roost. But pride had got such a strangle hold on Henrietta that the more they clucked the more she strutted. Finally they flew at and slew Henrietta.

Mrs. Albers is planning to whitewash the tails, possibly this week.

"Cop Has $1,000,000, Still Walks Beat

$ PENSION
$ INHERITANCE

NEW YORK.—Though "Diamond Billy" Burke received news that his uncle in Ireland had died and left him heir to $1,000,000 or more, Burke will continue to live the life of a policeman and remain with his married sister at 406 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, in order that he may receive his pension from the city of New York.

For 21 years Burke has worn the blue coat. He said to a reporter:

"This does not come to me as a surprise, for I knew that my sister and myself were the only relatives our uncle possessed. I've been over to the land of his birth three times and after a fas[illegible] I knew him. Without exception he was the most miserly man I ever heard of. He said to me continually:

"'My boy, always save a part of what you earn. If you earn $10, save at least one.'

"That sounded fine, but at the time I couldn't afford to save a cent. I know my uncle had stocks in many corporations, yet he continually pleaded poverty and railed at me for spending a farthing.

"What, I get married on the strength of this money? No, sir; I've lived to the age of 42 single and I guess I'll get along some more. Still, you never can tell. I suppose I'll be the talk of Tipperary and all the fond mothers will give me invitations galore to their homes. I have four years to go before I can receive my pension and I'll stick it out to the end, for I reason that the money is mine, even though I am a millionaire.

"I'll take more enjoyment in receiving my annual pension money than in getting a big check from my uncle's estate. I feel as if I'd earned the city's money."

The uncle was Martin Burke. He lived in Tallavara, Templemore, Tipperary.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.
W. G. HUNT, Publisher.
SUNBEAM. - - MINN

FOOTBALL PERILS FOR UNFIT.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota and institutions of like rank are not represented in the season's list of dead and the critically injured at football. Of the big teams in the country that at West Point lost Cadet Byrne, who died of his hurts, and that at Annapolis saw Cadet Wilson disabled by fractured vertebrae. Cadet Byrne received his fatal injury when he returned to the game in a weakened condition after having been retired for a slighter hurt, says New York World. From the rolls of the football dead and of those critically hurt it can be seen that the majority of victims came from high school teams and from amateur elevens of irregular training. We read of one death from lung trouble due to exposure on the field, of another from overexertion and of a student of Dickinson seminary in Pennsylvania who was prostrated by strychnine taken to stimulate his heart action during a contest. All these facts support the contention of those unwavering advocates of the game who contend that the supreme perils of football are chiefly for the unfit. Perhaps it is true that the direct road to a saving reform in football lies in a more rigid regard for physical fitness among players than in much tinkering with the rules.

The multiplicity of flying devices leads inevitably to discussion as to the advisability of establishing rules for regulating aerial navigation. One genius has suggested that certain strata be designated as routes for certain classes of airships, though just how these routes are to be marked or "buoyed" is not explained. But a complication difficult of adjustment may arise if the contention of some lawyers is correct. This is that under the common law, which comes from England and in turn was based on the old Roman code, a property holder owns the air above his head, with no limit to height. This, in English-speaking countries, at least, would make a trespasser of any aviator who flies above another's land, and if identified and caught the flying man could be punished accordingly. All these things are conjectures, of course. Still, it is evident that if travel by the air route shall ever become general there will be many novel points to be considered.

It sounds like older and not better times to hear of orders for the pursuit of pirates. The British ship Rowannmoore reported that she was attacked by a piratical schooner in Bahaman waters, and the United States government has directed that the revenue cutter Windom shall proceed from Galveston to the Bahamas in search of the rover of the seas. Other cutters will join the Windom and, adds the dispatch, "for the first time in many years American armed vessels will search for pirates." This smacks more of the times of the buccaneers and the black flag with skull and crossbones flung out by sailing vessels directed by skillful though wicked navigators than of the days of steam, wireless telegraphy and other modern improvements. But a fleet of modern revenue cutters would make short work of any pirate craft that offered resistance.

Every time that we make up our mind that there's no such thing as pirate gold buried hither and yon, something occurs to change our belief and to get us all on edge again, says Boston Herald. The recent severe storm along the coast of Yucatan is said to have uncovered thousands of last century English and Spanish coins buried by the old pirate Lafitte, and again into our soul comes that old boyhood unrest and belief that if we started out with a proper digging outfit and a reliable map we could unearth treasure galore. When people find a pot of gold why in the name of Captain Kidd can't they keep still about it and let us tend to our blissful knitting?

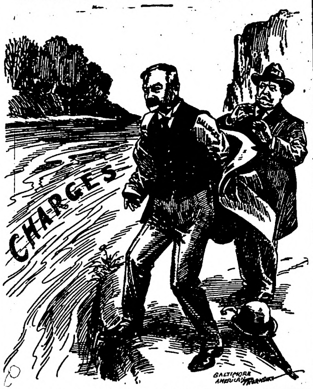
There is no longer the slightest doubt that China is well on the road to civilization of the modern brand—in fact, the most civilized civilization that can possibly be imagined. And as usual the impetus comes from the United States. The Chinese are developing a special liking for two first-class American institutions—phonographs and ice cream. The popularity of the latter article is said to be really phenomenal.

Thirty-eight hundred dollars for a small copy or two of Poe's poems comes rather late to relieve the monetary stringency which Poe experienced during his life.

A New York policeman has inherited $1,000,000. That is not the regulation way for a New York policeman to get so much money.

All football players except the dead ones will now devote a brief season to recovering.

NOT GOING TO WAIT FOR THE RIVER TO FLOW BY.



BALLINGER IS GOING TO DIVE IN AND BREAST THE CURRENT.

GEN. WEAVER A DIVINE HEALER

POPULIST PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE WILL HEAD MOVEMENT.

Is Convinced That the Sick May Be Healed Through Prayer and Faith.

Des Moines, Ia.—Firmly convinced that the Saviour's promise to heal the sick through prayer and faith is for literal interpretation, Gen. James B. Weaver, presidential candidate on the Greenback and Populist tickets at different times, has consented to head a movement for a national convention of Divine Healers to meet in Des Moines some time next spring.

Gen. Weaver has been giving a series of lectures on divine healing at a local church and the meetings have commenced to attract wide attention. He claims that his own health has been restored through prayer and that he has seen so much benefit to others through the same source that he proposes to devote the remainder of his days to the cause.

The general who has campaigned every state and perhaps nearly every congressional district in the nation, regrets that his eyes were not opened sooner to the truth.

RECORDS DEATH'S APPROACH

Lawyer Keeps Memorandum of His Condition When He Feels His Life Is Ebbing Away.

Kalamazoo.—Hearing the soft footsteps of death approaching him, Attorney William A. Luby, alone in his office, kept a memorandum of the reaper's approach while he fought for his life during the 13 hours before the end came.

When Luby failed to appear in court to try a case a bailiff went to his office and found the body on the floor, lying on its back, with the vest and shirt torn open and the hands clutching at the heart. On the desk were these notes:

"I am not feeling well. Dr. —— has told me that the next attack will finish me. The attack has begun. I am taking the medicine prescribed. It is one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. I am taking medicine every two hours.

"At 4:20 my condition does not improve. Am still taking my medicine.

"I must have been asleep the last two hours. I do not remember," wrote Luby shortly after seven o'clock.

At nine o'clock he wrote: "I am not feeling so easy."

There was no other notation until two o'clock in the morning, when he wrote:

"Cold; I know my condition is serious. It is hard to breathe. I am—"

Mr. Luby was widely known as an attorney and writer.

Bids Farewell to Lurton.

Nashville, Tenn. — Nashville took formal farewell Tuesday night of Associate Justice Horace H. Lurton of the United States supreme court. The occasion was an elaborate banquet at the Maxwell house, tendered by the board of trade of Nashville.

Cardinal Satolli Nears End.

Rome.—Cardinal Satolli, who is ill with nephritis, is failing rapidly. Life is being prolonged only by the artificial administration of oxygen.

Ray Lamphere Is Dead.

Michigan City, Ind.—Ray Lamphere, convicted of arson in the Gunness case, died here in prison Thursday. His death was due to consumption. He died without making any statement as to his guilt or innocence.

Alton Shopmen Get Increase.

Bloomington, Ill.—The Chicago & Alton Thursday granted the demands of the blacksmiths and helpers in the shops of that system, allowing an increase of two cents an hour and improved working conditions.

MONROE DOCTRINE MENACED

Mexico Rebels Against Dominance of United States as Guardian of All Americas.

Washington.—A crisis in Central and South American affairs not contemplated by the United States government has grown out of the Nicaraguan war.

The importance of the situation was realized thoroughly at the state department Thursday and Secretary Knox will consult with the presidentt on the latter's return from New York as to the best way of meeting it.

The new situation involves not only the rebellion of Mexico against the dominance of the United States as the guardian of all the Americans, but it also threatens the Monroe doctrine, in that European embassies and legations in Washington sympathize with Mexico.

Senor Creel, former ambassador to Washington, was sent here as a special envoy in the Nicaraguan affair. In spite of the statement of the state department that it would hold Zelaya personally responsible for murder Senor Creel succeeded in getting Zelaya out of Nicaragua into Mexico, from which country Zelaya is giving defiance to the United States.

Senor Creel has issued statements, saying that everything was peaceful between the United States and Mexico. The United States government learned that Mexico will insist that Madriz be recognized as president of Nicaragua.

The United States will regard the recognition of Madriz by any other government as an act of international discourtesy. Mexico, however, expects that such recognitions will be made.

TO PENSION CHERRY WIDOWS

Plan of Red Cross Awaits Only Sancton of Mine Workers and Legislature.

Chicago.—Maintaining that there exists no physical suffering or want at Cherry, Ill., and declaring that the real pinch among bereft families will come next spring, Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the Red Cross, announced that he would call a conference of foreign consuls in Chicago as a preliminary step to a final disbursement of funds to the widows of mine disaster victims.

He announced also that his organization had officially adopted a permanent relief plan for pensioning the dependent women, which now awaits the official sanction of the Illinois branch of the United Mine Workers of America and the state legislature.

CHARITIES GET MILLIONS

Chicago Grocer Leaves $2,500,000 for Charitable, Educational and Religious Institutions.

Chicago.—Between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000 was left to religious, educational and charitable institutions by the late Thomas Murdoch, president of Reid, Murdoch & Co., wholesale grocers.

The will, which was filed in the probate court Thursday, disposes of an estate which is estimated at approximately from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000.

Mr. Murdoch, who was a bachelor, left $900,000 to the widow and children of James Murdoch, a brother, and $400,000 to John Murdoch, another brother.

Finds Children's Bodies.

Indianapolis, Ind.—In the village of Santaclaus, two children were burned to death Thursday. Their mother found them with their clothing ablaze in a room where she had left them playing an hour earlier.

Light by Wireless Wave.

New York.—A wireless electric light run by current shipped from the producing plant over ether waves will supplant all the present methods of lighting within twenty years, according to Nikola Tesla.

TO FIX TRUST LAWS

TAFT IS PREPARING SPECIAL MESSAGE GIVING HIS VIEWS.

DISREGARDS OIL DECISION

Will Not Wait for Ruling by Supreme Court—Federal License for Corporations to Be Voluntary, Is His Plan.

Washington.—President Taft will send to congress next week a special message dealing with proposed amendments to the interstate commerce and Sherman anti-trust laws, the final details of which he and members of the cabinet went thoroughly over Tuesday.

At one time it was thought that the president might deal only with the interstate commerce act, leaving the anti-trust law to some future date. He has decided, however, that as the two subjects are so closely related he will adhere to his original intention of making his recommendations for changes in the two acts in one communication to congress.

He also will bring forward his ideas as to issuing federal licenses to corporations. The proposed license will be a voluntary one, to be taken advantage of by such corporations as desire to place themselves under federal jurisdiction, or left alone as the directors of the corporations see fit.

It had been currently reported for some time that President Taft might delay his anti-trust recommendations until the supreme court had finally passed upon the recent Standard Oil decision. Those to whom the president has talked within the past day or two say, however, he has decided to go forward with his legislative program regardless of the pending decision and that having determined that many changes were needed in the anti-trust law he will proceed to recommend these changes without regard to the Standard Oil case.

The president and the members of his cabinet, together with the interstate-commerce commissioners, have given more thought and study to the needed changes in the interstate-commerce and anti-trust acts than to any other subjects since the begining of the present administration. The president has outlined his views in general terms in speeches he has made from time to time since his inauguration and they have become pretty generally known.

ICE GORGE IN OHIO RIVER

River Traffic Is Entirely Abandoned —Bridges Across Stream at Pittsburg Threatened.

Pittsburg, Pa.—With tons upon tons of ice piled high against the piers of bridges spanning the Ohio river here and at points below Pittsburg, river traffic has been entirely abandoned and river men Tuesday prepared to cope with one of the worst ice packs ever experienced in the local harbor.

An estimated 10,000,000 bushels of coal has been diverted from its usual rover transportation to southern points, and cars are being asked for from all railroads by coal operators, who realize that it may be weeks before the packet owners can again take up the work of transporting the coal fleets down the Ohio.

Philadelphia.—With food products coming scarcer and prices higher, with street car traffic uncertain and slow abd with many railroad trains late, Philadelphia was Tuesday busy raising the blockade caused by the snowstorm. Eggs, vegetables and other food are scarce and prices have risen. It is expected, however, that the blockade will be raised sufficiently to make farm products more easily transported.

INDICT CHICAGO COAL MEN

Two Prominent Dealers Are Charged with Defrauding the City—Gamblers Are Also Hit.

Chicago.—James P. Connery, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Fire Appliance Company and secretary of the Miami Coal Company, and Michael H. Rogers, Democratic committeeman of the Thirteenth ward and head of the M. H. Rogers Coal Company, were indicted Wednesday by the December grand jury on charges of obtaining money from the city of Chicago by false pretenses in connection with the sale of coal to the city.

The return of the two indictments against the two coal dealers is the first step in State's Attorney Wayman's attack upon the alleged graft combination, which is charged with defrauding the city of Chicago out of many thousands of dollars.

Seven indictments were also returned by the grand jury against six well-known Chicago gamblers. This action is said to be the opening volley of a determined attack on the part of the state's attorney's office to crush out gambling in Chicago.

Bails Condition Is Improving.

Philadelphia.—The condition of Bernard H. Bail, second vice-president of the Philadelphia & Reading railway, who was taken to a hospital for the insane Tuesday, is such that it is hoped he will soon be able to leave the institution.

Kills Self Over Postmastership

Springfield, Ill.—W. E. Visden, for ten years an employe in the Taylorville post office, Wednesday blew out his brains when he learned he was not to be appointed postmaster.

SAYS PEOPLE ARE PLUNDERED

CHIEF FORESTER PINCHOT FLAYS "RICH CRIMINALS."

Declares Special Interests Have Made Repeated Attacks on U. S. Forest Service.

New York. — That the people of the United States have been the complacent victims of a system of plunder of the public forests—crimes often perpetrated by men of high station in commercial and social life—was the open declaration of Chief United States Forester Gifford Pinchot in an adress before a number of prominent publishers at the University club.

Condemning the methods of these "rich criminals," he said:

"But they have suffered from a serious moral perversion by which it becomes praiseworthy to do for a corporation things which they would refuse with the loftiest scorn to do for themselves. Fortunately for us, all that delusion is passing rapidly away."

"The American people have evidently made up their minds that our natural resources must be conserved," he said. "That is good, but it settles only half the question. For whose benefit shall they be conserved—for the benefit of the many, or for the use and profit of the few? The great conflict now being fought will decide. There is no other question before us that begins to be so important—or that will be so difficult to straddle—as the great question between special interest and equal opportunity; between the privileges of the few and the rights of the many; between government by men for human welfare and government by money for profit; between the men who stand for the Roosevelt policies and the men who stand against them.

PEACE TERMS ARE REJECTED

Gen. Estrada Rejects Proposals Offered by President Madriz for Suspension Hostilities.

Washington.—Gen. Estrada, revolutionary leader in Nicaragua, will not accept the extraordinary terms proposed by Madriz, new president, as a basis for peace.

A telegram from Bluefields Tuesday said that Madriz proposed to Estrada December 22 a suspension of hostilities pending the arrival of a committee which he was sending to Estrada to discuss an amicable and equitable settlement. In his telegram Madriz begged Estrada not to obstruct his efforts for peace.

Gen. Estrada, in his reply, expressed his willingness to meet the Madriz commissioners, but said the revolutionary party would not recognize the action of the legislative assembly in placing power in the hands of Madriz. He denied emphatically the assembly's right to deal with the election of president. He said that he saw in Madriz the usurper of the rights of the Nicaraguan people.

ROCK ISLAND STOCK SOARS

New York Exchange Appoint Committee to Inquire Into Alleged "Corner" in Common Shares.

New York.—Following one of the most sensational movements in stock exchange history, with Rock Island common shares as its subject—a movement, too, enshrouded in some mystery as to its direct cause—the governors of the exchange met Monday and perfected plans for a rigorous investigation.

The governors appointed a special committee of inquiry who began their labors at once to run down the men who "cornered" Rock Island, and gave Wall street a brief chill.

At the opening of the market Rock Island common, which had closed Friday at 49¾, started at 50⅝, and in one string of transactions amounting to 18,800 shares ran up to 80. A minute later it touched 81 at which price 2,000 shares changed hands. It then fell back, as rapidly as it had risen, to 50. The whole affair was over in less than half an hour.

SLAYS GIRL; KILLS SELF

Fondly Embracing Sweetheart Roy McKinney Shoots Her, Then Ends His Own Existence.

Peru, Ind.—Embracing her fondly as he placed a revolver against her body Roy McKinney of Indianapolis Wednesday shot and killed Dora Chapell in the dining-room of the Bearss hotel, and then ended his own life with the same weapon.

McKinney robbed a restaurant in Indianapolis, and it is believed that the daring hold-up was committed to gain funds to take him to Peru. Letters found in the dead man's pockets show that the murder of his sweetheart was planned a week ago.

Farmer Freezes to Death.

Bloomington, Ill.—The body of Martin Motts, a farmer of near Leroy, aged 60, was found in the road near his home. He had fallen from his sleigh and froze to death.

Woman Killed at Crossing.

Mason City, Ia.—Mrs. William Crosby, wife of a prominent farmer near Green, Iowa., was run over by a Rock Island passenger train on a crossing and instantly killed. Her husband escaped uninjured.

Engineer Makes Last Trip.

Joliet, Ill.—George W. Beiber of this city, one of the oldest engineers in America, made his last trip Friday. He has been in the continuous employ of the Michigan Central for 55 years.

SILHOUETTES OF WESTERN CANADA

The man from Iowa began to talk land before the train was well out of the C. N. R. depot in Winnipeg. The talk began in rather wide circles. The rush to the land, the bumper crop, the system of summer fallowing pursued in the semi-arid districts, were all discussed, and then, with a sort of apologetic smile, the Iowa man said: "I'm a bit interested in this country myself. Some of the men down home got a few sections up here along this line, and I'm going to have a look at them. Never been up in Canada before"— (it is curious how these mid-western Americans pronounce the name of the Dominion as if it was "Can'dy")—"but if it looks good we will be up to stay next fall."

"You see, it's like this," said the man from Iowa—quite manifestly continuing an argument that had been going on in his mind for some time. "Back in our State land has become dear. Anybody wanting to sell can get $70 or $80 an acre for it, and every farm that's offered is snapped up. In Saskatchewan we have just as good land that cost us $11 and $12, so that a man can take up five or six times as much there as in Iowa on the same investment of money.

"It isn't the money, though, that brings most of us up from Iowa. I'm not sure that money would be enough. The 'invasion' is a family affair. We have no chance of keeping our sons around us back home. They have to leave the farm and go into the big cities of the neighboring States to get work. To keep them on the farm and in touch with us, we come up here and make little colonies with the children around us, on homesteads or bought land. This makes it easier for the farmers back there in Iowa to get land for the stay-at-homes. The families that come to Canada are kept together and the families that buy the farms they leave are kept together, too. There won't be any slackening of the rush, either, for they still raise big families back in Iowa."

One could almost see the mental process of this typical American farmer in defending a step that meant a new flag, a new allegiance, a new land, and new associates. To abandon Old Glory of the Declaration of Independence for a good thing in cheap land would hardly be playing the game, but to go out into Saskatchewan to "keep the family together," was another and a quite higher motive.

Why seek too closely to analyze the reasons for the greatest land trek in the history of America? It is enough to know that the sons of the frontiersmen of Iowa, and Kansas, and Minnesota—the best blood of the mid-west—are pouring into the Canadian west in an ever-increasing stream, and are learning that "God Save the King" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee," are sung to the same tune.—Toronto (Ontario) Globe.

Slight Misunderstanding.

Mickey's mother visited a young school teacher on the East side the other day, says the New York Sun. As nearly as she could make out from the mother's splutterings the teacher had been calling Mickey "names that no lady would use and no dacint mother would stand for." The teacher thought hard, but could recollect no time when she had given way to an impulse to call Mickey dreadful names.

"Sure but you did," insisted the mother. "I don't know what you meant by it, but scurvy elephant is no nice name to call a boy. That's what he said you called him, a scurvy elephant."

"Scurvy elephant No," said the teacher, in a relieved voice "I didn't call Mike a scurvy elephant. I called him a disturbing element, and I reiterate my statement."

Mickey's mother went home partially satisfied, but not quite sure that the teacher hadn't been calling her names, too.

Where Is Bessie Hartman?

Rosanna and Bessie Hartman lived with their mother at Chapman, Nebr., in 1901, the year that their father was killed by a falling tree at Anada, Mo. Their mother, an invalid, being unable to care for them, the girls were sent to Omaha to school, being housed and mothered by a Mrs. Smith.

Finally, in 1903, Bessie, the younger of the two, was taken in charge by the Nebraska Children's Home society, who refused to tell her married sister, Rosanna, where she is. Bessie became of age last February. If she will send her address to P. O. Box 898, Omaha, Nebr., it will be forwarded to her sister Rosanna, who is now Mrs. Geo. Duerr.

Very Funny.

Borroughs—Mr. Merchant's out, you say? Why, he had an appointment with me here. That's very funny.

New Office Boy—Yes, sir; I guess he thought it was, too. Any ways he was laughin' when he went out.—Catholic Standard and Times.

This Will Interest Mothers.
Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, Cure Feverishness, Headache, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, Regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. They break up colds in 24 hours. Pleasant to take, and harmless as milk. They never fail. At all Druggists, 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Doubtless.

The Homebody—What's the industry in New York, near as ye could jedge, Agner?

The Traveled Man—Steppin' lively, I reckon.—Puck.

Those who claim that a woman isn't so apt to indulge in crooked work as a man evidently never saw a woman try to drive a nail.

FIRE AT UNIVERSITY

DEFECTIVE WIRING GIVEN AS THE CAUSE OF $75,000 LOSS TO STATE.

CAUSE OF FIRE NOT FOUND OUT

Dental Department Is the Chief Loser—Insurance Fairly Large—Inadequate Water Supply Blamed for Seriousness of Fire.

Minneapolis. — Defective electric wiring is said to have been the cause of a fire which practically destroyed the medical building at the University of Minnesota. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The building had been occupied by the dental department for the last few months and was filled with valuable apparatus and instruments. It is the third time that the same building has been on fire, but only slight damage was done on the former occasions. According to the firemen, it was owing to lack of a sufficient water supply that the blaze last night proved so disastrous.

All the students left about a week ago for their homes to spend the Christmas holidays. Dr. C. F. Dight, one of the instructors, was the only man in the building when the fire broke out. It started between the walls on the top floor and soon shot out through the roof. He opened a window and shouted a warning to the watchman, who immediately turned in an alarm.

When the firemen arrived the fire had gained such headway that little could be done, as there was not enough water to drown out the flames. A new valve had been installed in one of the other buildings during the day, which was the cause of turning off the water, at least this is the explanation given by the university authorities.

The building was built in 1893 at a cost of $56,000, but several improvements have been made since. It was known as Millard hall, and more familiarly as the old medical building. Only the upper floor was used by the medical department, however, while the rest of the hall was occupied by the school of dentistry. It was 65 by 125 feet in dimensions and constructed of brick and brownstone. The structure was of three stories and a high basement.

The fire was spectacular and attracted an immense crowd, but the police kept excellent order and the firemen were not hampered in their work.

RED WING CHURCH DEDICATED.

First M. E. Raises Last of Its Indebtedness.

Red Wing. — The beautiful new Methodist church, which has been in the course of erection for the past two years, has been for the first time used for regular service. At the opening services Bishop McIntyre preached an eloquent sermon on the significance of the church and its uniqueness amongst all the institutions of the earth. In the afternoon Rev. J. C. Craig, the new superintendent of the Winona district, spoke on the supreme need of manhood and the sheltering influence of Christianity. Rev. H. C. Jennings, D. D., of Cincinnati, gave a sermon on the utilizing of one's gifts for the good of the world and the dedication service was read by Bishop McIntyre.

The earnest effort to raise the large sum of $16,500, necessary to wipe off all indebtedness resting upon the property was successful. The edifice was built at an expenditure of $40,000.

Leaves Family To Freeze.

Duluth.—Believing that he had money coming from the government, Jacob Kariskas, of 924 West First street, went all the way to Washington to see President Taft personally, leaving his family in a terrible state of destitution.

Kariskas has been bothering Congressman Clarence B. Miller at the capital and it was upon receipt of a telegram from Congressman Miller that Captain Fiskett investigated and found the wife and three children half frozen and nearly starved. Kariskas is a laborer and has no money due him from the government.

Last State Bond Is Taken Up.

St. Paul.—The last of the old bonds that were issued by the state in 1858 to encourage the building of railroads through the state have been paid, when the state treasurer took up the last bunch of $141,000 of funding bonds. The original bond issue of $1,059,000 became due in 1881 and refunding bonds were issued and reissued in 1891. The state has been paying off a few each year by means of a special tax for that purpose.

ORPHANS BENEFITTED BY GIFT.

Bishop McGolrick Turns Over $7,000 Duluth People Gave Him.

Duluth. — The sum of $7,000 was the testimonial presented at the Cathedral auditorium to Right Rev. James McGolrick at the reception given in honor of the twentieth anniversary in the Duluth diocese. The bishop immediately turned over the entire sum to swell the funds for the new orphan asylum which is to be biult in Duluth.

DIVIDE ROYALTIES ON ORE.

Stockholders in Great Northern Iron Properties Will Receive $2,065,500 Jan. 10.

Duluth. — The stockholders in the Great Northern ore properties will divide among themselves $2,065,500 Jan. 10, from the United States Steel corporation as royalties on the ore lands leased from the Great Northern stockholders. The payment will be for the year 1909 and will aggregate about 1.37 per cent on outstanding certificates.

According to St. Paul advices, the steel corporation has taken some ore from the Great Northern properties during this year, but the amount is not large, and if any quarterly payments have been made, they were small.

The capitalization of the Great Northern ore properties is $150,000,000, and under the lease the steel corporation will have to pay approximately 2 per cent on that amount next year. The scale is then a rising one until in 1917 the payments will be 6.34 per cent.

The amount of ore mined will also have considerable effect, as the payments will have to made even if no ore is mined, unless the lease is allowed to lapse.

STATE FAIR PRESIDENCY.

Fight Over Furlong and Underwood Portends New Deal.

St. Paul, Minn.—A "dark horse" candidate for the presidency of the Minnesota state fair board may result from the present agitation revolving about John J. Furlong and of J. M. Underwood, the two leading candidates. Milton C. Griggs, of St. Paul, and F. L. Pandall, former secretary of the fair and now president of the Minnesota Trust company, are being mentioned as possibilities.

The situation at the state fair grounds in connection with the rival examinations being made by the governor's auditing committee and the state examiner's special representative, seems to be developing into a tentative struggle between the present administration and the previous administration.

Friends of John J. Furlong say that recent agitation has only cemented his support and they predict his election. Mr. Furlong himself is extremely confident.

Secretary C. N. Cosgrove denies he has any part in the presidency fight and says he is absolutely neutral.

INDIAN INSPECTORS SCORED.

Professor Moorehead Denounces Conditions Found in Minnesota.

Boston.—In an address before the American Anthropological Association, Prof. Warren K. Moorehead, of Phillips Andover Academy, said that in March of this year he was sent by the department of the interior, Washington, to Northern Minnesota, to study and report on the condition of the Ojibway Indian.

"On arrival at White Earth reservation," said Professor Moorehead, "I found that the Indian had been robbed and swindled out of upwards of $5,000,000 worth of property and that they were totally paupers as a result of the practices of 37 firms and individuals of Northern Minnesota.

"It seems to me that the inspectors from Washington spent too much time in the agency offices and not enough time among the Indians themselves."

$18,000 FIRE AT DULUTH.

Supposed to Have Originated From a Cigar Stub.

Duluth. — A disastrous fire of unknown origin did damage to the amount of $18,000 in the Watterworth and Fee block on West First street. The fire is supposed to have originated from a carelessly thrown cigar stub in the wings of the State in the Flaaten Conservatory of Music on the second floor.

Jens Flaaten suffered a loss of about $5,000 on musical instruments and furniture. The Northern Electrical company's loss was $8,000. The Gibson Barber Supply company's loss was $5,000 and other tenants suffered losses of a few hundreds. The losses were quite generally covered by insurance.

Duluth Pioneer Passes Away.

Duluth.—O. H. Simonds, aged 66 years, died suddenly, though he had been in poor health for a week. He had been a resident of Duluth for 25 years and had been prominent in numerous large enterprises here, one of which was the West Duluth Land Company. He leaves a widow and three grown children. Mr. Simonds was an influential member of the Duluth Commercial Club.

Hurled Off Bridge by Train.

Mankato.—An unknown man was struck by a passenger train on the Milwaukee road at Red Jacket, three miles south of Mankato. He was walking on the high bridge over the Deer river and was thrown into the water below and instantly killed. The body was badly mangled.

BITTEN BY A CAT AND MAY DIE.

Fairmont, Minn., Man Acts as Peacemaker to Own Misfortune.

Fairmont. — John Swanson aged twenty-five, lies at death's door as the result of a strange mishap. He tried to separate two tom cats which were fighting and was bitten by one of the cats in two places on his hand. The wound became painful and the arm swelled rapidly to great size and has the appearance of having been bitten by a rattlesnake.

Increased Price of Elk Teeth.

"During the last five years the value of elk teeth has more than trebled," said a western traveler at the Frederic, according to the St. Paul Dispatch. "In 1904 you could get any number of fine specimens in Idaho, Montana, Washington and bordering states for $2.50 apiece. Now you will pay from $7.50 to $10, and they are hard to get for even that. The Apache, Sioux, Comanche and Chippewa Indians used to have dozens of them in their possession and traded them for trinkets. But the redskin got wise to their value, and you can buy them from a regular dealer cheaper now than from the Indian. The passing of the elk and the great demand made by the members of the Elk lodge for teeth for emblems have boosted the price."

The traveler recited an incident of an Oklahoman who bought a robe covered with elk teeth from a Wichita Indian for $100. He cut off the teeth and cleaned up $2,200 on the deal.

A Drama on the Street.

A remarkable coincidence occurred at San Bernardino, Cal., one day lately, whereby a couple about to be divorced were happily brought together again. Mrs. Walter Preston was on her way to the court to secure a divorce against her husband when her little daughter darted in the path of an onrushing motor car. The mother's screams attracted the attention of a man who dashed in front of the machine, seized the little girl and leaped to safety as the automobile shot by. The rescuer proved to be the husband and father. Explanations were soon made, and the two made their way to the attorney's office, where Mrs. Preston tore up the divorce complaint.

A Lesson in Economy.

"I notice you always fling the driver your purse when we take a conveyance," said the heroine of the historical novel.

"I do," admitted the hero of the same.

"How do you expect to support a wife? Give him the exact legal fare hereafter."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Novice.

Old Lawyer (to young partner)—Did you draw up old Moneybag's will?

Young Partner—Yes, sir; and so tight that all the relatives in the world cannot break it.

Old Lawyer (with some disgust)—The next time there is a will to be drawn up, I'll do it myself!"—New York Sun.

Sorry He Spoke.

Mr. Dubbs (with newspaper)—It tells here, my dear, how a progressive New York woman makes her social calls by telephone.

Mrs. Dubbs—Progressive. Huh! She's probably like me, not a decent thing to wear.—Boston Transcript.

Would Surprise Him All Right.

First Girl—I want to give my fiance a surprise for a birthday present. Can't you suggest something?

Second Girl—You might tell him your age.

And Mother Officiates.

Eddie—Do you have morning prayers at your house?

Freddie—We have some kind of a service when father gets in.

Occasionally we meet people who spend half their time telling what they are going to do and the other half explaining why they didn't do it.

Knowledge Enough.

At the moment of their fall Adam and Eve, being innocent, were used to doing things in an unconscious manner.

That is to say, they didn't Fletcherize.

With the result that they failed of getting the full effect of the apple—all the proteids and carbohydrates.

However, in thier blind, blundering way, they attained to enough knowledge of good and evil to make them terrible bores to themselves forever after, and to all their descendants likewise unto the present generation.—Puck.

His Business.

"You see that man across the street? Well, you can always get cut rates from him for his work."

"What is it?"

"Trimming trees and hedges."—Baltimore American.

Taking No Chances.

Griggs—Odd that these doctors can't prescribe for themselves. There's Cuttem just gone to another physician to be treated.

Briggs—That's where he is wise. Cuttem knows how few of his patients recover.

On Time.

"That man spends his life in an endeavor to get people to do things on time."

"That's fine and philanthropic! What does he do for a living?"

"Sells book on the installment plan."

Happiness in marriage would be more prevalent if a man would handle his wife as tenderly and carefully as he does an old briar pipe.

Interesting Information.

In an interview published in the Kieler Neueste Nachrichten, Grossadmiral von Koster says many interesting things about his visit to New York, among them the following: "In the absence of President Taft, who was away on a trip to the Mexican frontier, the place of honor was taken by the vice-president of the United States, Secretary of State Sherman of New York."

Graphic Variations.

"Civilization," remarked the cannibal king, "promotes some strange ideas."

"To whom do you especially refer?" inquired the missionary.

"Among you the ultimate consumer is regarded with sympathy. Here he is considered very lucky."

All Kinds.

"It takes all kinds of people to make a world," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Certainly," answered the plain person; "look at explorers. Some of them excel with mathematical instruments and some with typewriters and picture machines."

Where Pepys Won Fame.

"Who was this fellow Pepys, and what is his claim to fame?"

"His claim to fame is well founded, my friend. He's the man who kept a diary for more than a year."

Mistakes Will Happen.

Lady (to her sister, a doctor)—There—I cooked a meal for the first time to-day and I made a mess of it.

"Well, dear, never mind; it's nothing. I lost my first patient."

If you see a fault in others, think of two of your own, and do not add a third one by your hasty judgment.

Don't Weep At The Ice House.

Some people swell up on "emotion" brewed from absolute untruth.

It's an old trick of the leaders of the Labor Trust to twist facts and make the "sympathetic ones" "weep at the ice house." (That's part of the tale further on.)

Gompers et al sneer at, spit upon and defy our courts, seeking sympathy by falsely telling the people the courts were trying to deprive them of free speech and free press.

Men can speak freely and print opinions freely in this country and no court will object, but they cannot be allowed to print matter as part of a criminal conspiracy to injure and ruin other citizens.

Gompers and his trust associates started out to ruin the Bucks Stove Co., drive its hundreds of workmen out of work and destroy the value of the plant without regard to the fact that hard earned money of men who worked, had been invested there.

The conspirators were told by the courts to stop these vicious "trust" methods, (efforts to break the firm that won't come under trust rule), but instead of stopping they "dare" the courts to punish them and demand new laws to protect them in such destructive and tyrannical acts as they may desire to do. * * * The reason Gompers and his band persisted in trying to ruin the Bucks Stove Works was because the stove company insisted on the right to keep some old employees at work when "de union" ordered them discharged and some of "de gang" put on.

Now let us reverse the conditions and have a look.

Suppose the company had ordered the union to dismiss certain men from their union, and, the demand being refused, should institute a boycott against that union, publish its name in an "unfair list," instruct other manufacturers all over the United States not to buy the labor of that union, have committees call at stores and threaten to boycott if the merchants sold anything made by that union. Picket the factories where members work and slug them on the way home, blow up their houses and wreck the works, and even murder a few members of the boycotted union to teach them they must obey the orders of "organized Capital?"

It would certainly be fair for the company to do these things if lawful for the Labor Trust to do them.

In such a case, under our laws the boycotted union could apply to our courts and the courts would order the company to cease boycotting and trying to ruin these union men. Suppose thereupon the company should sneer at the court and in open defiance continue the unlawful acts in a persistent, carefully laid out plan, purposely intended to ruin the union and force its members into poverty. What a howl would go up from the union demanding that the courts protect them and punish their law-breaking oppressors. Then they would praise the courts and go on earning a living protected from ruin and happy in the knowledge that the people's courts could defend them.

How could any of us receive protection from law-breakers unless the courts have power to, and do punish such men?

The court is placed in position where it must do one thing or the other—punish men who persist in defying its peace orders or go out of service, let anarchy reign, and the more powerful destroy the weaker.

Peaceful citizens sustain the courts as their defenders, whereas thieves, forgers, burglars, crooks of all kinds and violent members of labor unions, hate them and threaten violence if their members are punished for breaking the law. They want the courts to let them go free and at the same time demand punishment for other men "outside de union" when they break the law. * * * Notice the above reference to "violent" members of labor unions. The great majority of the "unheard" union men are peaceable, upright citizens. The noisy, violent ones get into office and the leaders of the great Labor Trust know how to mass this kind of men, in labor conventions and thus carry out the leaders' schemes, frequently abhorrent to the rank and file: so it was at the late Toronto convention.

The paid delegates would applaud and "resolute" as Gompers wanted, but now and then some of the real workingmen insist on being heard, sometimes at the risk of their lives.

Delegate Egan is reported to have said at the Toronto convention:

"If the officers of the federation would only adhere to the law we would think a lot more of them."

The Grand Council of the Provincial Workingmen's Ass'n of Canada has declared in favor of severing all connections with unions in the U. S., saying "any union having its seat of Gov't in America, and pretending to be international in its scope, must fight industrial battles according to American methods. Said methods have consequences which are abhorrent to the law-abiding people of Canada involving hunger, misery, riot, bloodshed and murder, all of which might be termed as a result of the practical war now in progress in our fair provinces and directed by foreign emissaries of the United Miners of America."

That is an honest Canadian view of our infamous "Labor Trust."

A few days ago the daily papers printed the following:

(By the Associated Press.))

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Characterizing the attitude of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor in the contempt proceedings in the courts of the District of Columbia, in connection with the Bucks' Stove and range company, as "a willful, premeditated violation of the law," Simon Burns, general master workman of the general assembly, Knights of Labor, has voiced a severe condemnation of these three leaders. Mr. Burns expressed his confidence in courts in general and in those of the District of Columbia in particular.

APPROVED BY DELEGATES.

This rebuke by Burns was in his annual report to the general assembly of his organization. He received the hearty approval of the delegates who heard it read at their annual meeting in this city.

"There is no trust or combination of capital in the world," said Mr. Burns, "that violates laws oftener than do the trust labor organizations, which resort to more dishonest, unfair and dishonorable methods toward their competitors than any trust or combinations in the country."

Mr. Burns said the action of "these so-called leaders" would be harmful for years to come whenever attempts were made to obtain labor legislation.

"The Labor Digest," a reputable workingman's paper, says, as part of an article entitled "The beginning of the end of Gompersism, many organizations becoming tired of the rule-or-ruin policies which have been enforced by the president of the A. F. of L."

"That he has maintained his leadership for so long a time in the face of his stubborn clinging to policies which the more thoughtful workingmen have seen for years must be abandoned, has been on account partly of the sentimental feeling on the part of the organizations that he ought not to be deposed, and the unwillingness of the men who were mentioned for the place, to accept a nomination in opposition to him. In addition to this, there is no denying the shrewdness of the leader of the A. F. of L., and his political sagacity, which has enabled him to keep a firm grip on the machinery of the organization, and to have his faithful henchmen in the positions where they could do him the most good whenever their services might be needed.

"Further than this, he has never failed, at the last conventions, to have some sensation to spring on the convention at the psychological moment, which would place him in the light of a martyr to the cause of unionism, and excite a wave of sympathetic enthusiasm for him, which would carry the delegates off their feet, and result in his re-election.

"That his long leadership, and this apparent impossibility to fill his place has gone to his head, and made him imagine that he is much greater a man than he really is, is undoubtedly the case, and accounts for the tactics he has adopted in dealing with questions before congress, where he has unnecessarily antagonized men to whom organized labor must look for recognition of their demands, and where labor measures are often opposed on account of this very antagonism, which would otherwise receive support.

"There is no doubt but what organized labor in this country would be much stronger with a leader who was more in touch with conditions as they actually exist, and who would bring to the front the new policies which organized labor must adopt if it expects to even maintain its present standing, to say nothing of making future progress."

We quote portions of another article, a reprint, from the same labor paper:

"Organized labor, through its leaders, must recognize the mistakes of the past if they expect to perpetuate their organizations or to develop the movement which they head. No movement, no organization, no nation can develop beyond the intellects which guide these organizations, and if the leaders are dominated by a selfish motive the organization will become tinged with a spirit of selfishness, which has never appealed to mankind in any walk of life at any time since history began.

"It can be said in extenuation of certain leaders of organized labor that the precarious position which they occupy as leaders has had a tendency to cause them to lose sight of the object behind the organization. The natural instinct in man for power and position is in no small measure responsible for the mistakes of the leaders, not necessarily in labor unions alone, but in every branch of society. This desire for power and leadership and personal aggrandizement causes men who have been earnest and sincere in their efforts in the start to deteriorate into mere politicians whose every act and utterance is tinged with the desire to cater to the baser passions of the working majority in the societies or organizations and this is undoubtedly true when applied to the present leaders of the Federation of Labor. We mention the Federation of Labor particularly in this article, because that organization is the only organization of labor which has yet found itself in direct opposition to the laws of the land. There are other organizations of labor whose leaders have made mistakes, but they have always kept themselves and their organizations within the bounds of the law and respected the rights of every other man in considering the rights of themselves and their constituency; whereas, the motto of the Federation is just the reverse, and unless the leaders conform themselves and their organization in accordance with the laws of the land, the leaders and the organization itself must be disintegrated and pass into history, for in America the common sense of mankind is developed to a greater extent than in any other nation on the earth, and the people, who are the court of last resort in this country, will never allow any system to develop in this country which does not meet with the approval of the majority of the citizens of the country.

"This must have forced itself upon the leaders of the Federation by this time. If it has not, the leaders must be eliminated. The organization which they head has done many meritorious things in times past and the people are always ready and willing to acknowledge the benefits which their efforts have brought to their constituency as a whole, but at the present time labor organizations in general, and the Federation of Labor in particular, stand before the bar of public opinion, having been convicted of selfishness and a disposition to rule all the people of the country in the interest of the few. The people are patient and awaiting to see if the object lesson which they have been forced to give to these leaders is going to be recognized and if they are going to conform themselves and their future work and actions in accordance thereto."

Let the people remember that comment, "The Federation of Labor in particular stands before the bar of public opinion having been convicted of selfishness and a disposition to rule all the people of the country in the interest of the few."

The great 90 per cent of Americans do not take kindly to the acts of tyranny of these trust leaders openly demanding that all people bow down to the rules of the Labor Trust and we are treated to the humiliating spectacle of our Congress and even the Chief Executive entertaining these convicted law-breakers and listening with consideration to their insolent demands that the very laws be changed to allow them to safely carry on their plan of gaining control over the affairs of the people.

The sturdy workers of America have come to know the truth about these "martyrs sacrificing themselves in the noble cause of labor" but it's only the hysterical ones who swell up and cry over the aforesaid "heroes," reminding one of the two romantic elderly maids who, weeping copiously, were discovered by the old janitor at Mt. Vernon.

"What is it ails you ladies?"

Taking the handkerchief from one swollen red eye, between sobs she said:

"Why we have so long revered the memory of George Washington that we feel it a privilege to come here and weep at his tomb."

"Yas'm, yas'm, yo' shore has a desire to express yo' sympathy but yo' are overflowin' at de wrong spot, yo' is weepin' at de ice house."

Don't get maudlin about law-breakers who must be punished if the very existence of our people is to be maintained.

If you have any surplus sympathy it can be extended to the honest workers who continue to earn food when threatened and are frequently hurt and sometimes killed before the courts can intervene to protect them.

Now the Labor Trust leaders demand of Congress that the courts be stripped of power to issue injunctions to prevent them from assaulting or perhaps murdering men who dare earn a living when ordered by the Labor Trust to quit work.

Don't "weep at the Ice House" and don't permit any set of law-breakers to bully our courts, if your voice and vote can prevent. Be sure and write your Representatives and Senators in Congress asking them not to vote for any measure to prevent the courts from protecting homes, property and persons from attack by paid agents of this great Labor Trust.

Let every reader write, and write now.

Don't sit silent and allow the organized and paid men of this great trust to force Congress to believe they represent the great masses of the American people. Say your say and let your representatives in Congress know that you do not want to be governed under new laws which would empower the Labor Trust leaders with legal right to tell you when to work, Where! For whom! At what price! What to buy! What not to buy! Whom to vote for! How much you shall pay per month in fees to the Labor Trust! etc., etc., etc.

This power is now being demanded by the passage of laws in Congress. Tell your Senators and Representatives plainly that you don't want them to vote for any measure that will allow any set of men either representing Capital or Labor to govern and dictate to the common people, who prefer to be free to go and come, work or not, and vote for whom they please.

Every man's liberty will disappear when the leaders of the great Labor Trust or any other trust can ride rough shod over people and mass their forces to prevent our courts from affording protection.

"There's a Reason."

C. W. POST, Battle Creek, Mich.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Looking For Trouble.

The Thief River Falls News has again dug into local matters in the Town of Highlanding, and to judge from his last weeks issue Johns liver must be out of order, and he wants another dose of Sunbeam pills His attact on Andrew Ellingson, at this time was entirely uncalled for, and will only stir up a lot of illfeeling that will do no good for him or the cause he represents. The trouble with Eastman is that he jumps into any thing of this kind without stopping to cosider the sourse of his information Had he glanced at the legislative maual he could have seen that at the last election this town cast 72 votes, divided as follows: 43 Republican. 23 Socialists and 4 Democratic. Now then Mr. Eastman the indorsement of Mr Ellingson for the post master at Highlandig came from them 43 Republican votes. The opposition to him came from the other voters. Which side should Halvor Steenerson indorse? This town has a number of pretty good fellows that want to do what they can for the socialist party and advise the republican congress man how to run his business, after the republicans have elected him. But we are pleased to note that the exrerience of the last campaign woke up the republican friends of Halvor Steenerson in this locality, and they don t propose to take any more chances of trying to be good fellows, while they are being slyly knifed in the back, but intend to fight this campaign from start to finish

Granting that Ellingson did breake a political promise, at the request of an old friend, when he did not understand what it might mean, we should think that YOU JOHN EASTMAN, would blush to twit him of it for there was an other promise made on the day of that convention by John W. Eastman, editor of the Thief River Falls News. Two weeks before the close of the primary election campaign, you broke that political promise, took your coat off, and turned it wrong side out, and wore it in that condition until the sun set on election day, and now you talk about Elingson breaking a political promise.

As to the local post office fight in Highlanding we want to say; that Mr. Setter, the opponent of Mr. Ellingson is a comparative stranger in this town, who appears to be a gentelman that we would like to see make his home here, and for that reason we did not take an active part in the, so called, post office fight, neither did Red Lake Falls, but it was a fight among the local patrons of the office and the decision was made for the reasons given above and when Mr. Eastman steped into the fight he is medling with something that is none of his business and looking for trouble, and when a man goes looking for trouble he is likely to find it.

The Supreme Court has handed down their decision in the case of the tax-payers in Red Lake county against the board of County Commissioners, in which the tax-payers held that the board had no right to issue the $35,000 bonds for the building of the court house, but the court decided they did have authority, and thus ends another law suit. and Mr. tax payer foots the bill.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, S. S.
District Court,
14th, Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ---Plaintiff.
Vs
Axel Engman, ---Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the obove named defendant.

You are hereby summond and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action, which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

E. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9, -1, 21, -10.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR DISTRIBUTION.

ESTATE OF Ole Overum.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole Overum Decedent.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO Barbra Overum, Geneva Overum, and Clifford Overum and all persons interested in the final account and ditribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court her final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, togeather with her petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for ditribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled; THEREFORE YOU AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms, in the City of Red Lake Falls in the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910, at 5 o'clock P.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, The Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 28th, day of December 1909.

S. A. SWANSON
[Court Seal] Judge of Probate.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec 17th, 1909
Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota December 13. 1909.

NOTICE is hereby given that Aslak Person, of Malone Minnesota, who on October 4th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 676. Serial No. 04251, for N. W. ¼ Section 12, township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 29th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Gunder Asbjornson, Targer Lahji, Salve T. Myrum Ole Askland, all of Malone Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE,
Register.

Where Hypnotism Failed.

When Daysey Mayme Appleton returned recently from a party where the influence of several minds over one had been the evening's entertainment and told her mother how six girls, with their minds bent on one thought, had made a man stand on his head, another man at their silent command had tried on a woman's hat and another man had tried to eat water with a fork. it put a suggestion into Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's brain. That evening when Lysander John came home his wife and four daughters sat in a circle with their hands covering their faces and their heads bowed. To all his inquiries they said nothing, and at last, fearing they had gone mad, he sent for the doctor. "We concentrated our minds on the thought that Lysander John must give us $5 each, and instead of that we have a doctor bill to pay," sobbed Mrs. Appleton, "and they said it would be particularly easy to work if the man's mind was a blank."—Atchison Globe.

To Get His Money's Worth.

In a village near Edinburgh there lived an old baker and his son. Their trade was in a flourishing condition, but unfortunately in the midst of their prosperity the old man, who had once been a great drinker, turned insane. The son, who was renowned for his love of money, was forced to put him in a lunatic asylum and, according to the terms of the establishment, to pay a fee for three months in advance, amounting to £30. The old man was scarcely in a fortnight, however, when he died. The son, thinking to raise an action against the establishment for the recovery of the, as he termed it, unused money, inquired of an old lawyer who was a bit of a wag whether he thought it would be prudent to try to recover the money or not. The chip of the law, putting on a grave face, replied seriously, "D'ye no think it wad be best to gang and put in the rest o' the time yersel'?"

AUCTION SALE.

Saturday January 15th, 1910.

At the farm of Nels Ofte, S.W. 1-4 Section 36 TOWN OF KRATKA,

The following property wil be sold to the Higest bidder

- 1 Horse 12 years old, weight 1400 lbs.
- 1 Horse 11 years old, weight 1400 lbs.
- One Mare, weight 1200 lbs.
- 1 Bay Horse, weight 1200 lbs.
- 1 Milch cow 6 years old.
- 1 Milch cow 5 years old.
- 2 set of double harness.
- 1 wide tired wagon.
- 1 Narrow tired wagon.
- 1 New Champion mower.
- 1 16 inch breaking plow.
- 1 Harrow.
- 1 Power hay sling.
- 1 Hay rack,
- 1 Road cart.
- 1 Gasoline cook stove.
- 1 Wood cook stove.
- 1 Heating stove.
- 1 Pair bob-sleighs.
- 6 Tons of hay, and some oats.

Other farming tools and houshold good to numerous to mention.

Terms of Sale

On all sums under $10. Cash. On sums of $10,00 or over time will be given to November 1st, 1910, on bankable papers.

Nels Ofte, Owner.
H. K. Homme, Auctioneer.
Oscar Sponheim, Clerk,

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 10, 1909.
Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. December 6th, 1909.

Notice is hereby given, that Daniel Relerson, of Highlanding Minn., who on November 15, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 806, Serial No. 04329, for N.W. ¼ Section 35 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 11th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben K. Kviste, Tallak S. Dale, Tobias Olson, Andrew Ellingson, all of Highlanding Minnesota.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th, 1909.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 14th, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that, Lewis T. Burgh, of Plummer Minn., who on October 14th, 1904, made Homestead entry No 671, Serial No. 04249, for N.E. ¼ Section 17 Township 152 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John L. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. John son, Tom Mandt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 285. Serial No. 04110 for N. E ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above descibed, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 17th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter Fio, Haaken Nabben, August Johnson. John Carlson, all of Thorwik Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th, 1909.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909

Notice is hereby given that Andreas Anensen, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entery No. 1103, Serial No. 04182, for Lots 3, 4, S.E. ¼ N.W. ¼ Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th. day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn. Gunder Asbjernson, of Malone Minn. Elias Mostue, of Sunbeam Minn, Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

Eskimo Baby Talk.

With the ordinary Eskimo language consisting of such words as igloo, ah we-li-gh and ka loo-loo-ka one can but wonder what their real baby talk sounds like.—Binghamton Republican

Enough to Frighten One.

Tommie—Does your papa frighten you when he tries to make you go to sleep? Ethel—Yes; he sings to me!—Yonkers Statesman.

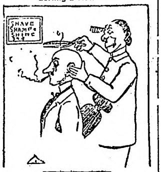
The man who can govern a woman can govern a nation.—Balzac.

The Generous Barber.

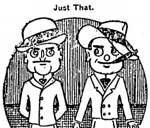
"Here, I say! Be a bit more careful with that razor. That's the second time you've cut me."

"Well, well, so it is. But there! I always deduct a ha'penny for every cut. Why, it's nothing for a man to go out of here having won fourpence off me."—London Tatler.

Getting a Hair Cut.



Just That.



"What do you suppose they will do with the north pole now that they've found it?"

"Paint it red, white and blue for a barber pole. Then any one who tries to take it will have a close shave."

A Disraeli Anecdote.

Sitting next Disraeli at dinner, Mrs Jeune said that Lord Sherbrooke must be allowed one virtue—namely, his patient and affectionate behavior toward his wife. "Do you think," said Disraeli in his deep tone, "that he has ever seen her?"—"Memoirs of Lady St. Helier."

Scientific.

"Why did you get a divorce?"

"My wife poisoned my whole life."

"But you hastened to marry again?"

"Well, I had an antidote coming to me, didn't I?"—Cleveland Leader.

Virtue that parleys is near surrender.—French Proverb.

Curious Laws In India.

Some of the old laws of Nepal, India, were curious. Killing cows ranked with murder as a capital offense, for instance. Every girl at birth was married with great ceremony to a betel fruit, which was then cast into a sacred stream. As the fate of the fruit was uncertain, the girl was supposed never to become a widow. To obtain divorce from a husband a wife had only to place a betel nut under his pillow and depart. In Nepal the day is considered to begin when it is light enough to count the tiles on the roof or distinguish the hairs on a man's hand against the sky.

Ancient Sacrifices.

Many Roman and Greek epicures were very fond of dog flesh. Before Christianity was established among the Danes on every ninth year ninety-nine dogs were sacrificed. In Sweden each ninth day ninety-nine dogs were destroyed. But later on dogs were not thought good enough, and every ninth year ninety-nine human beings were immolated, the sons of the reigning tyrant among the rest, in order that the life of the monarch might be prolonged.

A Far Sighted Man.

"Women vote! Never, sir, with my consent!"

"Why not?"

"What! And have my wife losing thirty dollar hats to other women on the election!"—Boston Transcript.

Particular.

"He's a very particular man."

"Yes. If the doctor told him that he was going to die he would want to telephone ahead for a good room."—New York Press.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. WINTON,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Intercollegiate.

"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amherst Four Leaf Clover.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants
State Bank,
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.
Officers.

C. L. HANSEN...... Pesident.
DANIEL PATTERSON ..Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS...... 2nd Vice Pres.
B. E. BURKEE......... Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA.
SCIATICA.
RHEUMATISM.
BACKACHE.
PAIN IN CHEST.
DISTRESS IN STOMACH.
SLEEPLESSNESS

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

Our Clearwater correspondent failed to show up this week.

For Sale: 20 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G. A. Hoveland, R. F. D No 1
Fossten Minn.

Rev. E. A. Mostue went down to Winger last Monday for a weeks visit with his former neighbors and friends.

There was a big ball at the Hilda hall last Friday evening. Those who attended report a first class time.

Alfred and Martain Swanson left for Minneapolis last Monday, where Martain will study gasoline engineering the rest of the winter.

Mike Kolski was an overnight visitor here last night on his way to Kratka to get his big bassviol to use at the Kolski ball tomorrow night.

The Ole Giving threshing rig have been threshing at Jim O'Briens this week, but it is rather uphill business threshing at this time of year.

Miss Rose Beaudry, and Miss Stella Arndt, returned to their high school duties at Thief River Falls on Monday, after their holiday vacation.

The Soo is now gradeing in the Gully hills. The line is near the Gully Landing mills, and Gully is going to one of the smartest little towns in eastern Polk.

We made a mistake in the date of the Highlanding creamery Association last week. The meeting will be held next Monday January 10th, instead of Saturday.

There was a surprise party given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt last night, in honor of Mrs. Arndts birthday, and a plesent evening was enjoyed by all.

Andrew Ellingson has been busy the past week arrangeing his store to make room for the handsome new post office cabinet which he expect to arrive in a few days.

There will be a basket social at the Kratka hall on Saturday evening January 15th, for the bennifit of the Kratka school libriary. All are invited to come.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2 00 per cord.
Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

Henry Henderson came down from Bena to attend the Kratka Newyers ball and a short visit wit old time friends. He is employed at that place in the engineer department of the new Soo line

There will be a grand masquerade ball in the Hanson hall, at Hilda on Saturday evening January 15th. Music by the Kolski string band. All are invited to come and have a good time.

Sam McMahn drove down to Thief River Falls Monday to visit Mrs. McMahn, who is still confined at the hospital at that place. His daughter Miss Gardo went down with him to resume her high school work after her holiday vacation with the home folks.

There was a large and enthusiastic crowd of dissapointed dancers at the Kratka hall on Newyears night, owing to the failure of the music to show up. There was about 80 coupels present, who enjoyed themselves as best they could under the circumstances, and did not blame Mr. Singer, the proprietor of the hall, who thought the music had only been delayed on the road, insted of going to bed at home, until the hour got to late to remedy the matter.

M. E. Hyland and Edward Singer, of Rhoda are transacting business at Kratka today.

Al Smith has put in a new hand made confort manufactory at Sunbeam.

The weather has been very fine the past week, and today the bright sunshine glistens on the snow. Who would not enjoy liveing in nerther Minnesota.

Owing to a slight error being made in the bonds of Andrew Ellingson, the transfer of the Highlanding post office was, delayed a week. W. G. Hunt done the Notary work and we mention this fact to save some of our friends the trouble of walking arround the country to tell about it.

That Christmas Dance.

There was a dance party at Beaudry's Saturday evening they surly must have enjoyed themselves.—Highlanding Cor to Thief River Falls Press.

The writer of the above must have dance on the brain, or softning of the brain, as we with a number of other invited guest were at the home of Mr and Mrs. Beaudry Xmas day, and had a very fine dinner and supper and passed a very plesent evening, but the above is the first we have heard about there being any danceing, and are of the opinion that the writer of it got mad because they were not invited; "filled up" on bean soup, went to bed and dreamed that there was a dance at Beaudery's.

NOTICE OF MONEY FOR PAYMENT OF SCHOOL ORDERS.

NOTICE is hereby given that there is money in the treasury of School District No. 37, Red Lake County Minnesota, for the payment of school order No. 37 dated November 14th, 1908, given to Ida Bjerge for $50,00 for teaching school. Also school order No 61, on above named district dated January 16th, 1909, for the sum of $100, given to Ida Bjorge for teaching school.

The holder, or holders of the above discribed orders are hereby notified to present the same to the undersigned, within 10 days from the date of this notice at which time the interest will be stopped.

Dated this 31st. Day of December 1909.

WALTER MCANDRESS.
Treasurer.
Sunbeam Minnesota

He Saw a Great Light.

Wrecks on the coast of Cornwall, England, were once a source of revenue to the natives. A writer says that in the local dialect "the folks on the coast taich their children to zay in their prayers night times, 'God bless father an' mother an' zend a ship ta shore vore mornin'.'" The Cornish folk were great smugglers too. The Rev. R. S. Hawker had in his service as man of all work old Tristram Pentire, the last of the smugglers. One day he made to the vicar this notable confession: "Well, sir, I do think, when I come to look back and to consider what lives we used to live—drunk all night and idle abed all day, cursing, swearing, fighting, gambling, lying and always prepared to shoot the gauger—I do really believe, sir, we surely was in sin!"

Brought Down the House.

On one occasion, when Arthur Roberts, the English actor, was performing the part of Captain Crosstree in the burlesque of "Black Eyed Susan" at Glasgow he converted an awkward contretemps into a hit. In one of the scenes Crosstree entered supposed to be inebriated and staggered about the stage. In doing so Mr. Roberts accidentally came in contact with the scenery of the inn, bringing the whole set down. The curtain had to be lowered, and the vivacious comedian came to the front and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, you see when we come to Glasgow we always bring down the house."

Belated.

"I understand that Frailman has come to the conclusion to contest his wife's will."

"Well, what is there courageous about that? She's dead, isn't she?"

The Touch of Fortune.

"What do you think, my dear? Such luck! We leave for Paris in an hour."

"Yes; we're going to Pasteur's. My husband has just been bitten by a mad dog."—Bon Vivant.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS,

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2.50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS.

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing

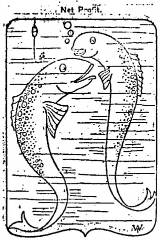
Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1 a year.

Net Profit.



"Good morning, Speckleboy. How is business?"

"Oh, it's all loss, no profit, nowadays! Why, only yesterday wifey's mother got tangled up in a net."

"Well, that's net profit, isn't it?"

Can't Beat a Woman.

"George never tells me a word about his business."

"Neither does my husband. But when I want to find out I invite some company, and he lets out everything."

ODD ELECTION SIGNS.

The Signs Are In Washington, the Elections Elsewhere.

"Of course we don't have any elections of our own," said a man from Washington, "but we have election intimations, if I may call them that, which can't be duplicated anywhere else in the country.

"You see, when we Washingtonians want to vote we've got to do it somewhere else, and as most of us have a lingering fondness for the franchise we are pretty likely to hang on to a residence somewhere outside the District.

"We especially like to do it because it makes us feel as if we had some sort of weapon to flourish before the observing eyes of the politicians who may have something to say about our hold on our jobs, and when the time comes to go home to vote we visibly swell with importance.

"Naturally a national election is the one that catches us all at once, and it is then that the intimations I spoke of do most abound. The papers are full of advertisements of loans for election expenses. Department clerks can be accommodated with sums covering their railway fare, new clothes for the trip and a substantial margin over and above necessary items. The interest is a bit high, but a clerk who is pining to go back home to splurge a bit is willing to mortgage his resources for the pleasure.

"These offers of loans fill columns of the daily papers. Alongside of them are other advertisements, all turning on the one theme, the election. 'Buy yourself a new suit to go home and vote in.' The grammar is a bit off, but the prices are asserted to be all right.

"In the shop windows there are dozens of election placards: 'Just the hat to wear when you go home to vote.' 'Specials in suit cases for the election.' 'Take a souvenir hatpin to your best girl when you go home to vote.' 'Swell suit for the election, only $1 a week,' and in a shoe store window, 'Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching—home to vote; wear ——'s shoes and you won't get sore feet!'

"The railways offer special rates to voters, and so it goes. You won't find anything like it in any other town."—New York Sun.

EASILY MANAGED.

The Clever Scheme Evolved by the Clock Winder.

The contract for keeping the church and town hall clocks in order was given to a new man. Unfortunately from the start he experienced a difficulty in getting the clocks to strike at the same time. At last the district council requested an interview with the watchmaker.

"You are not so successful with the clocks as your predecessor," he was told. "It is very misleading to have one clock striking three or four minutes after the other. Before you took them in hand we could hardly tell the two were striking. Surely you are as competent?"

"Every workman has his own methods, gentlemen," replied the watchmaker, "and mine ain't the same as H.'s were."

"I'm decidedly of the opinion that it would be for the general good if they were," remarked one of the councillors.

"Very well, sir, in future they shall be," came the reply. "I happened to write to him last week about the trouble I had with the clocks, and—but perhaps," he added as he produced a letter and handed it to the chairman, "you'd like to see what he said."

"Dear sir," ran the letter—"about them clocks. When you get to know what a cantankerous lot of busybodies the council consists of you'll do the same as I did for fifteen years—forget to wind up the striker of the town hall clock, and the blooming jackasses won't be able to tell that both clocks ain't striking together!"—London Titbits.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,

THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

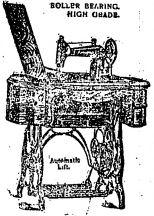
☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W. G. Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN.

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.



The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Automatic Lift.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEW HOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
THE McCALL CO., 236 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

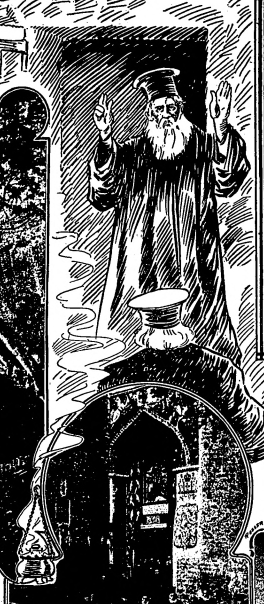
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

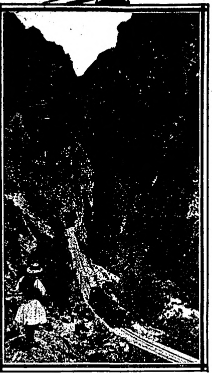
A Monastery in a Cave

PHOTO'S COPYRIGHT
UNDERWOOD AND UNDERWOOD

MEGASPELAEON MONASTERY ON MT CHELMOS



TRIUMVIRATE OF WARDENS AND THE BROTHERS



GORGE OF THE KALAVRYTA

SILENT YET ELOQUENT

"MEGASPELAEON-VER' wonderful," was the full extent of my host's nodding acquaintance with English, and as he said it ten times in one hour, while he fumbled with the rosary which every Greek carries as an aid to conversation, I in despair looked up my guidebook.

What I read there, scanty as it was, inspired me to brave the double terror of the heat and the rack and pinion railroad which has its origin in Diakopto. With a longing look at the glittering gulf of Corinth, I entrusted myself and my fortunes to the dusky one carriage, and puffing engine, in company with several other pilgrims. My destination was Zachlorou, some eight miles away. We did nothing more than crawl up the rocky gorge of the Kalavryta, with the stream tossing and tumbling below us, popping in and out of tunnels which magnified the gurgling of the locomotive to a weird thundering. Soon the ravine took on a friendlier aspect as it began to widen, and the pine clad tops of the mountains began to appear.

Now and again, a native would exchange courtesies with our driver, his fustanella or kilt white against the rock. From Zachlorou it was two miles to the monastery, and after nearly dislocating my arms in the effort to express my desire for a pony—I luckily recollected—"hippos" which worked. A pony and a boy appeared, seemingly from nowhere, and we commenced to climb the steep bridle path. Suddenly my guide stopped and crossed himself, pointing to the cliffs. There with an amount of imagination, we could make out dimly three crosses formed by natural fissures in the rock. Under them apparently clung to the cliff a white building, which with its many towers and turrets suggested the caves of a house with its hanging swallows' nests.

"Megaspelaeon," said my guide. I nodded my head and we pegged on up to the gate, which now that I was close to it, matched the rest of the building in squalor and ruin, which distance had hidden. A ring at the bell brought the porter-brother, who greeted us gravely and delivered us into the hands of the butler. His smiles were welcome itself, and he led me into the reception room, bustling about as he brought sweet, sticky coffee, which I could not refuse. The coffee was followed by Brother Stephanos who luckily knew English, constituting himself my guide right away.

"It is lucky you arrived before sundown. The gates are shut then, and no one goes out or in. But you must be hungry. Allow me—" here he poured water over my hands in the Homeric fashion—"I'm afraid you must put up with bread, cheese, beans and mastika—it takes a little to get used to the resin in the wine."

I reassured him on that point and we ate in one of the dining rooms.

"You would hardly believe you were in a cave now except from the light. It is the case, though. The biggest part of the monastery is in a great natural cavern, 100 feet deep and 200 feet broad. Why, within it is the church, numerous oratories, our living cells, storehouses, the kitchen and a great cellar, where we have some choice wines, some over a hundred years old, in huge casks."

"You have a good many rooms outside, too, I should imagine."

"Yes, we have, to. The monastery is the most famous in Greece, and pilgrims come to pray before the holy relic of St. Luke, and we lodge them here."

"I thought that—"

"Images were forbidden. Yes! But this is not a graven image, it is but a picture in relief, and we may adore the saints and relics. I sometimes wish music were permitted, but it is not. Come and see the church. I daresay you would find our services long, they last hours, and are very elaborate. The carving on those silver doors is rather fine. Wait—I will open them. This image of the virgin and child was made by blessed St. Luke and found by St. Euphresyne, one of the founders of the monastery, about the fourth century. Of course, this building was rebuilt about 300 years ago, but it is commencing to tumble down, and our revenues are decreasing year by year, though we own land in many parts."

"I notice you said 'we,' I said."

"Yes. That's right. We live here, each of us owning a share of the property, and a piece of ground, which we cultivate or superintend the cultivation of. We can dispose of the produce as we like, and as all we are allowed here is the barest food, it comes in very handy. We are just about due to elect our three wardens. No, there is no abbot here. He is only appointed in those monasteries where there is everything in common. There are about a hundred and forty of us. We used to be nearer three hundred, but times are growing harder. Our young men are emigrating and who knows what may happen in Athens."

"Then you are not allowed to marry."

"No, only the lower orders of the clergy are permitted. We meet but death here. Come with me," and we descended into the ossuary where the dead bones of the monks of yesterday were piled in rude heaps. "Many good men lie here, and here I, in God's good time, will leave all that is frail of me. How many centuries look us in the face, silent and yet eloquent." He knelt and prayed a moment. "You are young and life before you, but there is none that may not profit by this sight, and I often offer a prayer in this dusty chamber."

"See this is the wall—12 feet thick. If you come to this bastion you will get a splendid view—mind your feet. Yes, it is a cannon. We stood a siege here from the Turks, and though they rolled rocks down upon our roofs from the height above, they fell always clear, and Ibrahaim Pasha had to retire unsuccessful. So you see we are men of war as well as of peace—that was in 1827. I hope to end my days in peace here, but these are unsettled times, and rumors creep within our thick walls from the world without. However, we always have our cave to fall back upon."

"What would happen if the cave fell in?" I asked.

"I don't know. There's nothing between the wooden roof inside and the rock, but I don't think there's any fear of that."

I was led to bed at an early hour and roused early. The brothers were up before me and service was on. The photo shows the three wardens surrounded by the brothers, emerging from the church. I bade Brother Stephnos farewell, and recovering my pony and boy, who had been hidden in some part of the building, I dropped my offering into the offertory box, which serves the purpose of the office found in a hotel, and rode down the mountain.

But still I wonder what would happen if the cave fell in.

SOMERS VILLAGE

The Hamlet of Harvey Birch, of Cooper's "Spy" and Other Famous Characters.

In the early part of the last century Somers Village, or Somerstown Plain, as it was then called, where the two roads to the Hudson river branched off, one to Sing Sing and the other to Peekskill, was a busy place, with three hotels, three stores, a newspaper, the Somers museum, hat shops and other industries.

Hackaliah Bailey built and conducted the Elephant hotel, a substantial three-story brick structure, which is in good repair to-day. In front of it stands a granite shaft, on the top of which is a model of the first elephant brought to this country, "Old Bet." Mr. Bailey bought the elephant of his brother, who was captain of a sailing vessel. Securing a partner, he put them on the road, traveling from place to place at night and showing in barns in the daytime.

Not hearing from them in some time, Mr. Bailey started on horseback to look them up. Finding the elephant and man near Boston and asking for an accounting, he was told that the show did not make any money. Then said Mr. Bailey, "I will shoot my half and you can do what you like with your half."

From this small beginning the menagerie business grew to large proportions under the management of the Cranes, Baileys, Junes, Angevenes and Tituses, all residents of Somers or South Salem. The long barn on the Gerard Crane farm was built to house the animals in winter.

Enoch Crosby, the Harvey Birch of Cooper's "Spy," married a widow near Somers village. She was buried at Mount Zion beside her first husband and he at Gilead.

Luther Kinnicut, one of the strange, eccentric characters of those early days, was believed to be in league with the devil. The turnpike from Sing Sing to Sodom Four Corners passing through the village was the route of the rumbling stage coach and the farmers' wagons with their produce. The toll gates were unpopular and frequently destroyed, probably for a consideration. Finally Luther was arraigned in court and the indictment read charging him with cutting down the turnpike gate. He answered: "Not guilty. I did not touch the gate; I only sawed off the post, the gate hung on," and walked out of court. At another time a noted criminal lawyer asked him what made his face so black. He said: "My face is not as black as your character, for you put your sister in state prison."

In the Presbyterian church, near the center of the village, built before the memory of anyone now living, Dr. Ebenezer White was tried some 75 years ago for heresy because he refused to accept the doctrine of election. The clerk of the presbytery was one of the judges, and after reading the charges said he believed him guilty. Judgment before trial. The presbytery found him guilty, but the courts subsequently reversed the ecclesiastical tribunal.

SPANISH SOLDIERS UNDER FIRE

Method of Advance—Discipline More Lax in Camp than on the Field.

The Spanish soldier's behavior under fire is admirable. Only yesterday, as were were retiring down the slope of a hill under a desultory fire I saw a sergeant quietly stop in the open, roll and light a cigarette, and then proceed deliberately to rejoin his comrades, writes a correspondent of the London Mail.

Discipline is somewhat lax in camp, though I believe that with the material which the officers have to handle a little more strictness would be advisable, for the soldier of Spain is a cheerful, independent, devil-may-care fellow.

On the field, however, his obedience leaves nothing to be desired, unless it be his over-anxiety to continue firing after the "cease fire" has sounded. In direct opposition to our English methods, the non-commissioned officers have power to hit a man for slackness, stupidity or non-obedience of orders, whereas one soldier striking another is most severely dealt with, especially as Spaniards invariably "fight it out" with the knife.

The officers are keen and well informed, and their care for the men's comfort is notable. Here is an example: We had just returned from convoy duty and on returning to camp were glad to find an excellent cold soup, prepared with oil, water, vinegar and vegetables. The officers of each company stood around seeing that the men got their due portion, first having tasted it to assure themselves of the quality of the food.

Some of the Spanish methods in the field are unusual. The firing line, for instance, starts with a rifle a yard, but the advance, instead of being conducted in line, follows this plan: Each squad of six to 10 men under a corporal, on the signal to advance being given, wheels around and doubles toward the next cover in Indian file, extending into line as the cover is reached; in this way the whole line may advance simultaneously, or squad by squad, the advantage claimed being the smallness of target offered to the enemy during the rush forward.

As by force of experience we learned in South Africa the absolute necessity of using all cover, so the soldier here, after his first few fights, in which the losses were so altogether disproportionate to the successes gained, found that to compete with the Moors required all his cunning and was no mere field day. Now during the advance he makes full use of all stones and depressions in the ground. The only fault I note is that he is too prone to make use of the kneeling position from behind cover, thus exposing the head and shoulders to fire.

Temperamental Toilet Table.

A very aged Englishman many years ago gave this advice to his daughter in a letter as to what a lady's dressing table should contain:

The best beautifier a young lady can use is good humor. The best renovator truth; the best rouge is modesty; the best eyewater is the tears of sympathy; the best gargle for the voice is cheerfulness; the best wash for smoothing wrinkles is contentment; the best cure for deafness is attention; the best mirror is reflection, and the whitest powder is innocence.

There is no use going into a political campaign with any reputation, because you won't have any when you come out.

Constipation causes many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative, three for cathartic.

A woman who is perfectly stunning isn't always stunningly perfect.

THROW AWAY
the SIFTER

It's a nuisance
Always sifting ashes
Poking out clinkers
Fire gone out
Colder than Greenland
It's simply awful
When you burn coal
You can't help it
Be wise and change

Buy
Milwaukee
Solvay
Coke
"The Fuel without a Fault"

Practically pure carbon
Nothing but heat element
No ashes to sift
No clinkers or slate
Easy to start fire
Keeps all night
Cheaper than hard coal
Better than hard coal
Smokeless and sootless
Housecleaning made easy
Abolish fuel trouble
Be up-to-date

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke—all sizes—ask your dealer, and write for interesting booklet of coke information to

Pickands, Brown & Co.
Colby-Abbot Bldg.
Milwaukee, Wis.

Buy
Milwaukee
Solvay
Coke
"The Ideal Domestic Fuel"

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.
Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.
CARTER'S ITTLE IVER PILLS.
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

BROWN'S
BRONCHIAL TROCHES
Save the voice in all kinds of weather. Singers and public speakers find them invaluable for clearing the voice. There is nothing so effective for Sore Throat, Hoarseness and Coughs. Fifty years' reputation. Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Samples mailed on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

Children Like
PISO'S
CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
It is so pleasant to take—stops the cough so quickly. Absolutely safe too and contains no opiates.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

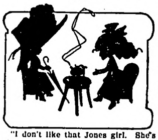
A LITTLE COLD.

He caught a little cold—
That was all.
So the neighbors sadly said,
As they gathered round his bed,
When they heard that he was dead.

He caught a little cold—
That was all. (Puck.)

Neglect of a cough or cold often leads to serious trouble. To break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable mix two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. You can buy these at any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle.

NATURAL INFERENCE.



"I don't like that Jones girl. She's always running people down!"

"Goodness! I didn't know she had an automobile!"

BOY TORTURED BY ECZEMA

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. I used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed, I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1823 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

His Little Mistake.

They stood beneath the stars, silent as the heart-beats of the night, looking into the diamond-studded shirt front of the sky.

"Is that Mars?" he whispered, as he slipped his arm round her taper waist, and gazed upon a glittering orb in the distant blue.

"No, it isn't," she exclaimed, jerking away; it's mine; and if you think you are hugging mother, I can tell you that you are very much mistaken."

The matter was amicably adjusted before anything serious resulted.—Exchange.

New Tonic Mixture.

At this season many people especially old folks need a tonic appetizer which will also relieve kidney and bladder troubles and strengthen the blood and tissues. A well known physician claims there is nothing superior as a winter tonic to the following taken three to six times daily in tablespoonful doses. To a half-pint of good whiskey add one ounce compound fluid balmwort and one ounce compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Coals of Fire.

One Christmas evening a Sunday school pupil appeared at church, only to be surrounded immediately by a number of deriding playmates.

"She's wearing her sister's coat!" cried one.

"And she's got her brother's gloves on!" cried another.

"Yes," was the retort that turned the tide of ridicule, "and I came with my mother's blessing."—Judge.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Restrained by Politeness.

"Prisoner, have you any reasons to present why the sentence of the court should not be pronounced upon you?"

"No, your honor. I feel as if I should like to say a few words about the defense my lawyer put up for me, but there are ladies present; you can go ahead with the sentence, your honor."

Exactly in the degree in which you can find creatures greater than yourself to look up to, in that degree are you ennobling yourself and in that degree happy.—Ruskin.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

One good thing about a fall that hangs on is that it keeps back the "beautiful snow" poems.

"KING OF UMPIRES," NOW LEAGUE PRESIDENT.

Thomas J. Lynch, who has been elected chief executive of the National League of Baseball Clubs, was for several years the best umpire in the business. He was chosen president in place of John A. Heydler and was sprung by John T. Brush as a compromise when it was impossible to elect John M. Ward.

LYNCH'S ELECTION PLEASING TO ALL

NATIONAL LEAGUE'S CHOICE OF PRESIDENT HAPPY SOLUTION OF GRAVE QUESTION.

SCHEDULE TO CAUSE CLASH

Two Leagues May Get Into Trouble Over the 168 Game Plan of Older Organization, the American Having Decided on 154.

The election of Thomas J. Lynch as president of the National league seems to have been a happy solution of a question which threatened to throw the great baseball leagues into a turmoil. Everybody seems satisfied with the selection of the former "king of umpires."

It was a victory for the Herrmann-Dreyfus faction of the league and a matter of joy to Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who worked to prevent the election of John M. Ward. The Brush-Murphy clique did everything in its power to elect Ward and failed and in addition to this consented to the retention of John A. Heydler as secretary-treasurer, the position he filled before he was elected to take the place made vacant by the death of Harry Pulliam. The magnates increased the salary for Heydler, and he now will receive nearly as much as he did in the office of president.

The National league did one thing, however, that may yet mean trouble with the American. That was the adoption of a schedule calling for 168 games. The American had decided on the 154 game schedule, and the action of the older organization will mean a conflict in dates which may cause trouble and keep the ill feeling that has been shown recently at the breaking point.

Charles Comiskey, president of the Chicago White Sox, was one of those who was willing to go into a fight with the National league. "Although I am in for about $300,000 for a new park next season," he declared, "I am willing to fight this thing out with the National league. Should we start war and fight for players, I'll go after Johnny Evers of the Cubs the first thing."

Think of the Cubs without Evers, who probably never had a superior in the baseball business as a heady player.

The National league umpires ought to, and no doubt do, feel pleased at the election of Lynch as president. When Tom Lynch was handling an indicator on Uncle Nick Young's staff several years ago, he was regarded as the best in the business, and a man who feared neither player, magnate nor fan. He did his duty as he saw it. When he called a man out he was out. If he called him safe he was safe. A ball was a ball and a strike was a strike. The wrath of player, manager, owner or "bug" could not make him change. If he is as good a president of the league as he was umpire, there need be no fear of anything but clean baseball in the National league.

Lynch will not stand for the bad umpire any more than he will permit abuse of the good ones. After he had been elected he addressed the baseball writers and asked them to treat his umpires fairly and if they saw one who was not the man for the position to tell him personally or write to him and he would investigate in his own way. If the man was not the proper person for the job he would fire him. It is safe to say the umpiring under Lynch will be the best, or as good as any, the National league ever had.

It was John T. Brush, owner of the New York Giants who elected Lynch. When Brush saw he could not land Ward, he wired Lynch who was at his home in New Britain, Conn., and had not been mentioned for the place. When Lynch arrived in New York, Brush asked him if he would accept the presidency. Lynch agreed to take the place if Heydler was elected secretary-treasurer. Lynch and Heydler had been umpires together and are old friends. Brush agreed and it was soon fixed. The magnates did better than Lynch had expected. They elected Heydler for three years and boosted his pay.

Concerning the longer playing schedule, Barney Dreyfuss a member of the schedule committee, said he was strongly opposed to it, but found he was the only one and decided to vote for it to let the others learn by experience the folly of their scheme.

"What's the use of voting one against seven," said the world's champion magnate, "when it does no good? They will be sick and tired of 168 games before next season is half over. I know, for I have figured it out. The best scheme that can be arranged under their ideas will compel them to schedule several double headers in the east in order to work in 168 games between April 14 and October 16. That is a bad thing for baseball and cheapens it. There are too many double headers at best when only the weather postponements make them. There will be only one year of the 168 game business I'll bet, and they will be glad to go back to the 154 game scheme."

The longer season advocates disclaim all intent to prevent the world's series and claim it can be played just as well as heretofore.

That the number of conflicting dates between the rival teams in the same city will be increased goes without saying, as the international series cannot be made to dovetail as heretofore on account of the additional game each club must play in each city under the National's 168 game schedule. Unless friction crops out on this head in the joint meeting of the schedule committees it will be due to Dreyfuss' ability as a peacemaker. The Pirate magnate said he thought he would draft a 154 game schedule anyway, so as to have it ready for the old league to adopt in February when it found 168 games impracticable.

Foreigners Won Bike Race.

Walter Rutt of Germany and Jackie Clark of Australia won the annual six-day bicycle race at Madison Square garden in New York from an exhausted and hopeless field. Their distance of 2,660.1 miles for 142 hours, which is 77 miles behind the record of 2,737.1 miles made last year by MacFarland and Moran, gives no adequate idea of a race which for broken records, broken precedents and broken teams has been the most exciting ever seen at the garden.

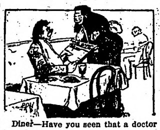
Salt Lake May Get Fight.

"Tex" Rickard, who with Jack Gleason, is the promoter of the Jeffries-Johnson battle, still insists that he will pull off the fight in Salt Lake City. Gleason wants the bout to go to San Francisco.

Hoppe to Play Demarest.

Willie Hoppe, former billiard champion, has agreed to the rules laid down by the powers that be in billiards and will play Calvin Demarest, the new champion for the title.

UNPROFESSIONAL.



Diner—Have you seen that a doctor intends to inoculate himself with the cholera virus so that the he may have the results of the experiment. Isn't that fine?

Proprietor—No, perfectly mad, I call it. Supposing I ate the same meals as my clients.

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

Till This Recipe Was Tried. Cure Followed in 5 Hours.

A prominent medical man, who suffered with a severe cough and cold on the lungs, often being kept awake all night, and weakened by loss of sleep, finally discovered a simple formula which will cure any cough in five hours by the clock. It is a laxative tonic cough syrup which can be made at home by anyone and the formula is here given for the benefit of those who pass sleepless nights in painful paroxysms. Those who have tried it say it is magical and beats any high-priced, slow-acting cough medicine ever sold.

Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age. This will tone up and rid the system of deep-seated coughs every time.

A Pessimistic View.

Among the patients in a certain hospital of Harrisburg there was recently one disposed to take a dark view of his chances for recovery.

"Cheer up, old man!" admonished the youthful medico attached to the ward wherein the patient lay. "Your symptoms are identical with those of my own case four years ago. I was just as sick as you are. Look at me now!"

The patient ran his eyes over the physician's stalwart frame. "What doctor did you have?" he finally asked, feebly.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

For Celestials.

I once visited a very rough boom town in Oregon, near Cottage Grove. In the leading saloon a man in a red shirt said to me:

"Ye wanter carry yerself almighty straight in these parts, stranger. Go wrong the least mite and, by crinus, we'll lynch ye as quick as look at ye."

I smiled.

"Would you lynch me," I asked, "if I killed a dog?"

"Would we?" he snorted. "Why, stranger, we've lynched fellers here for killin' Chinamen!"

Where Are Harry and Isabella Allen?

Harry is now aged 20 years, and his sister, Isabella, aged 18 years. The children were taken in charge by the Nebraska Children's Home society in 1897 from Grand Island, following the death of the father, Silas Allen. The mother is now in Oklahoma, and is distracted because she cannot locate her children, whom she has not seen since they were taken by superintendent of the society twelve years ago, who now refuses to tell their mother where they are. If the children will address P. O. Box 898, Omaha, Nebr., giving their own address, it will be sent to their mother.

Her Mistake.

A lady overtook a little girl of her acquaintance on her way to school. "Do you like decimals, my dear?" she asked.

Now the little girl had not gone very far in her arithmetic and she was unfamiliar with the word decimals. She shrank from acknowledging her ignorance, so, after a minute, she stammered: "Yes'm, I like them pretty well, but not as well as peaches."

Cruel.

"Isn't that a good joke? It's my own."

"Great Scott! are you so old as that?"—Lippincott's.

Quick as Wink.

If your eyes ache with a smarting, burning sensation use PETTIT'S EYE SALVE. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Financial.

Stella—Isn't Mabel going to marry the duke?

Bella—No; he rejected the budget.

HEAD, BACK AND LEGS ACHE?
Ache all over? Throat sore, with chills? That is La Grippe. Perry Davis' Painkiller will break it up if taken promptly. All dealers, 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

Any one who would take in the entire waterfront of New York would travel a journey of 341 miles.

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

There's a difference between dignity and pomposity, but some people don't seem to be able to realize it.

WE PAY HIGH PRICE FOR HIDES and furs & sell guns and traps cheap. N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis.

When you can't tell the truah, don't tell anything.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Shear the sheep, but don't flay them.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience —a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

FAME AND FORTUNE OFFERED

Rich Prize for Man Who Discovers the Long-Sought Cure for Tuberculosis.

Dr. George W. Bloomer of Yale university, acting as spokesman for an anonymous giver, has announced that a prize of $100,000 has been set aside, to be awarded to the first person anywhere in the world who discovers a cure for tuberculosis. The gift is unconditional as to time, place, or kind of cure, the only real condition being that the new cure must have been in constant use at least five years, and that the promoter of the cure convince the investigating board of the merits of his discovery.

A large number of physicians have been working for years to perfect vaccine, or anti-toxin for tuberculosis, or to find some agent, such as tuberculin, which will assist in the cure of the disease. Thus far, the experiments have not furnished a product which will either absolutely cure or prevent consumption, or render the patient immune against the disease. Many of these serums have proved effective in increasing the resistance of the patient and thus helping in the cure, but no scientist of repute to-day claims to have discovered a tuberculin which will produce a cure without the combined aid of fresh air, rest and wholesome food.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

The Difference.

Wifey—John, couldn't you let me have a little money this morning? Rattleigh's is advertising six puffs for a dollar.

Hub—Great Scott! And we men can get 60 delicious puffs for ten cents.

A great deal is heard of the art of remembering, and but little of the fine art of forgetting.

BARKING, HACKING, RASPING COUGH can be broken up quickly by Allen's Lung Balsam. This old, reliable remedy has been sold for over 40 years. Ask your druggist about it.

Don't be common. It's the uncommon man who causes the world to sit up and take notice.

DODD'S KIDNEY
PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, BACKACHE, DIABETES.
$875 "Guarantee"

We Buy Hides, Furs, Wool and Tallow. Write us for prices.
GOLDBORG & KRAM
300 First St. S., Minneapolis, Minn.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1880. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K. Washington, D.C.

CASH FOR PROPERTY wherever located. If you want to buy, sell or exchange write us. NORTHWESTERN BUSINESS AGENCY, Minneapolis, Minn.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use } Thompson's Eye Water

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Powers

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat

were harvested in 1900. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre), are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application), and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you). (4)

KOW-KURE

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow CURE. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without KOW-KURE. It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "Cow Money" sent FREE. Ask your local dealer for KOW-KURE or send to the manufacturers.

DAIRY ASSOCIATION CO. Lyndonville, Vt.

No Matter

what Liver or Bowel medicine you are using, stop it now. Get a 10c box—week's treatment—of CASCARETS today from your druggist and learn how easily, naturally and delightfully your liver can be made to work, and your bowels move every day. There's new life in every box. CASCARETS are nature's helper. You will see the difference! 883

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE.

A Clean Face Will be a Habit
NO STROPPING NO HONING
TRADE Gillette MARK
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

Virginia Farms and Homes.
FREE CATALOGUE OF SPLENDID BARGAINS
R. B. CHAFFIN & CO., Inc., Richmond, Va.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 2-1910.

Pain In Back
THAT'S LUMBAGO

Painful but not dangerous. Rub on a few times this well tried, old-time home remedy

ST JACOBS OIL

Pain goes! You'll be sorry you didn't try it sooner

IT CONQUERS PAIN

All Druggists 25c. and 50c.

St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL GREAT FOR PAIN
THE OIL THAT PENETRATES

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

UNCLE SAM TO PRINT HIS OWN POSTAL CARDS

By WALDEN FAWCETT

POSTMASTER-GENERAL HITCHCOCK

POSTMASTER GENERAL HITCHCOCK recently signed a contract for the supply of postal cards that will be used by the American people during the next four years. The mere magnitude of the manufacturing project involved is calculated to make this of general interest, for, be it known, the head of the postoffice department has ordered approximately three and one-half billion postal cards for use during the four years beginning January 1, 1910. This means that the American people who adopt the very convenient scheme of allowing Uncle Sam to furnish the stationery for their correspondence will purchase and send through the mails nearly a billion cards every twelvemonth. In other words, on an average, every man, woman and child in the United States will use 10 or 11 postal cards every year. In actual practice there are, of course, hundreds of thousands of persons, including young children, who never buy a postal card from one end of the year to the other, but, on the other hand, the above-mentioned average is attained through the firms and business houses which, in many instances, use hundreds or thousands of postal cards a day.

It will be understood that the trainloads of postal cards for which Postmaster General Hitchcock has just given the order are the regulation official cards which are sold in postoffices all over the land. This takes no account of the souvenir or picture postcards which are sold in the United States by the millions every year. Of course, there is nothing official about these illustrated postcards. They do not bear on their face, as do federal postcards, a stamp entitling them to transmission through the mails, and such souvenir card is carried in the mails only when a one-cent stamp is affixed to it. Consequently it is the enormous swelling of the sales of one-cent stamps and not the expansion of the governmental postcard trade that indicates the enormous and widespread popularity of the souvenir postcard fad in recent years.

The postmaster general is going to pay upward of a million dollars for the postal cards which will be issued to the patrons of our postal system between now and New Year day, 1915. However, this new contract is characterized by several features of great interest aside from the large amount of money represented. Foremost among these is the fact that Uncle Sam is, in effect, contracting to supply himself with postal cards of his own manufacture. Heretofore all the postal cards required in this country have been turned out by private manufacturers and, indeed, for years past, the manufacture of postal cards has been the principal industry of the little city of Rumford Falls, Me. Henceforth, however, the government will print its postal cards at the great government printing office in Washington, the largest printing plant in the world.

The postoffice department will continue to pay for the postal cards, just as it did when they were obtained from private manufacturers, but the process will amount to Uncle Sam taking money out of one pocket and putting into another. At the same time the government will save money by the new plan of obtaining its post card supplies. It has been realized for some time past by the postoffice officials that it would be a great convenience if the government could print its own postal cards at Washington (the point from which they are distributed to all parts of the country) instead of having them manufactured in Maine, with the consequent loss of time in sending them to Washington for distribution. The government had proven by years of practice that it could produce its postage stamps and its paper money more cheaply than if the work were given to outsiders, and accordingly Postmaster General Hitchcock, who is a live business man, determined to see if a similar saving, combined with more efficient service, could not be effected in the case of the postcards. The government printing office submitted competitive bids on the same basis as its outside rivals and it underbid them all.

A second important feature in connection with the new contract for postal cards is found in the fact that this new deal contemplates cards of better quality than have heretofore been in use. Especially will there be a marked improvement in the surface of the card and this will enable it to take ink more readily. In future, probably, there will be few complaints from people who are wont to find particles clinging to and clogging the pen while writing with ink on the present style card. While the new grade of postal card will be of finer quality than the old, it will also be lighter in weight and this latter consideration will mean hundreds and mayhap thousands of dollars saved to the government every year, for Uncle Sam has to pay for the transportation of all postoffice supplies by weight and the new postal cards will have reduced "traveling expenses" on all the journeys they make, from the time they leave the printing office until they reach the "ultimate consumer." It is also the ambition of Postmaster General Hitchcock to make our postal cards more artistic—to put them, in fact, on a plane with the very handsome postal cards issued by some foreign countries, and to that end he plans to change the tint of the card and to change the color of the ink in which it is printed. Just what tints and colors will be selected for the new color scheme cannot be determined until experiments have been made.

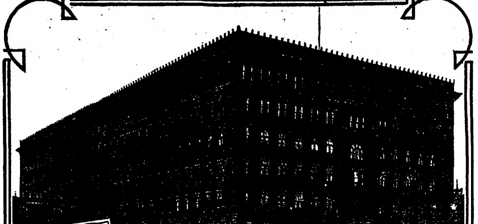
The new postal cards will be made in three different sizes although most people will never use or see anything except the one standard size that is in almost universal use. Practically all of the cards manufactured will be of the regulation size that has long been familiar to everybody, namely 3¼x5½ inches, but there will be provided some of the double or reply postal cards which have come into use in recent years and which enable a correspondent to send with his postal card a means of reply ready to hand. There will also be introduced a new style postal card, designed especially for the convenience of business men. This new card will be exactly the size of the standard "card index" card, or somewhat smaller than the regulation postal card and its advantage is found in the fact that it can be filed without trimming or trouble in any card index file or cabinet. This will make the new style card the handiest imaginable vehicle for announcement of price quotations, bulletins of all kinds, reports—as for instance the daily reports of traveling salesmen, etc.

Under the new system of postal card manufacture the work will not be so concentrated as at present. Under the plan now in vogue all the operations of manufacture, from the process of cutting down the forest trees and reducing them to paper to boxing up the completed postal cards for shipment, is carried on in the little Maine city, where about 900 men are employed, in one way or another, in postcard manufacture. Under the new scheme the government will buy the raw material, notably the paper or cardboard and the ink, but all the operations of postcard manufacture will be carried on in the great printing office under the shadow of the United States capitol, where 5,000 men and women are regularly employed. A contract that calls for the delivery of between two million and three million complete postal cards every working day in the year would swamp the biggest private printing plant in the country, but this new responsibility has been treated as merely an incidental at the model printery of the world. The force will have to be increased somewhat and perhaps some new printing presses will be installed—although the officials say the work can be handled with the equipment now in place.

The government has drawn with great care the specifications for the paper to be used for the new postal cards with a view to obtaining a grade of material with longer fiber than that heretofore in use and presenting a better surface for writing in ink. The paper will be delivered to the government printing office in 600-pound rolls, each containing the material for 90,000 cards, and the printing will be done on presses each of which will reel off 3,000 sheets of postal cards per hour, each sheet being made up of 100 separate cards. It can thus be figured that each press can print upward of one-third of a million postal cards per hour, and since several such presses can be employed if necessary and the government printing office is in operation night and day, there is no doubt but that the institution can keep the country supplied with postal cards no matter to what proportions the correspondence of the American people may grow.

Just as Uncle Sam guards very carefully the manufacture of postage stamps and paper money, so will he take every precaution against the possible dishonesty of employes in the manufacture, packing and distribution of postal cards. For one thing, the presses used for printing the cards will be controlled by an intricate system of locks, which will render it impossible to release or operate a press until several different officials are in attendance, each with a key that plays a part in unlocking the press. The dies or plates used in printing the cards and which are furnished by the postoffice department, are likewise carefully guarded. When such a plate is given to a printer for use in making impressions he must give a receipt for it to the official in charge of the vault where these precious plates are stored and the printer cannot leave the building at the conclusion of the day's work until he has returned to this depository the printing plates which have been in his custody. Finally the postal cards will be counted repeatedly during the process of manufacture—perhaps a score of times in all—and thus tab will be kept on the cards until they depart in sealed packages for the various postoffices throughout the country, where they will be issued to the public.

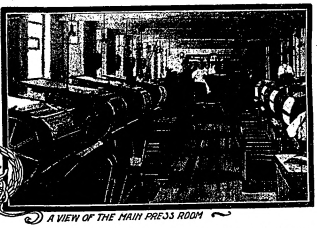
As delivered by the machines the postal cards are mechanically counted and automatically assembled in packs of 25—each pack being secured by a band of white paper. These packs are placed in pasteboard boxes, each of which will accommodate 20 packs or 500 cards. The pasteboard boxes, in turn, are packed in wooden cases, varying in size and ranging in capacity from 5,000 to 100,000 cards. It is in this form that they are shipped upon requisition to the postmasters throughout the land. In order that all orders for postal cards may be filled promptly the government printing office, once the new activity is under way, will constantly keep on hand in its fireproof, burglar-proof vaults a surplus stock of about 30,000,000 postal cards. The precautions that will surround the manufacture and dispatch of postal cards at the government printery will extend to the destruction of the misprinted or otherwise spoiled cards. Officials of the postoffice department will be on duty at the printery at all times to supervise the manufacture of the cards and more especially to inspect the raw material used and to see to it that it at all times and in all respects meets the requirements of the government.



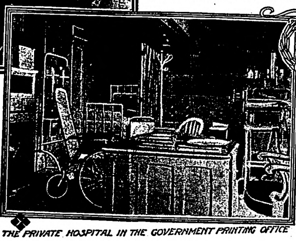
THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE

A VIEW OF THE BINDERY

A CORNER OF THE BIG COMPOSING ROOM



A VIEW OF THE MAIN PRESS ROOM



THE PRIVATE HOSPITAL IN THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE

Trade Organization of Printers

Some interesting information in regard to trade organization among printers appears in the Typographical Journal, the official publication of the International Typographical union. It is in the form of a review of a book by George E. Barnett, associate professor of political economy in the Johns Hopkins university. The book, which is just from the press, is entitled, "The Printers: a Study in American Trade Unionism." Mr. Barnett was in Indianapolis for a considerable length of time, several years ago, gathering information at the headquarters of the International Typographical union to be used in his book.

"A perusal of Dr. Barnett's book," says the review, "discloses the fact that mass meetings of printers for the purpose of considering trade questions were held in New York as early as 1776 and in Philadelphia in 1786. Continuous organizations were formed in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston before the close of the eighteenth century or shortly thereafter and the Typographical Society of New York was in existence from 1795 to 1797. In 1799 the Franklin Typographical society was organized in the same city. In 1809 the New York Typographical society was organized and is still in existence. The Philadelphia Typographical society was organized in 1802 and is also still active.

However, Dr. Barnett asserts that there is some evidence that there had been a printers' society in the Quaker city previous to this, known as the 'Asylum Company.' The date of the first Baltimore organization is equally uncertain, but probably as early as 1803. There was also a society in existence in Boston in that year. The author says that no societies appear to have been formed outside of the four cities named before 1810, in which year the Philadelphia society received a communication 'from the New Orleans Typographical society, inclosing a copy of their constitution.' In 1815 societies were organized at Washington and Albany. As far as the information of Dr. Barnett extends, these societies were formed primarily to 'raise and establish prices.'"

The article then refers to various local organizations that were formed in 1830 and directly following that date and continues by saying that about 1848 the organization of new unions began to go on more rapidly, and since 1850 have been in existence in practically all the larger American cities.

"The first suggestion that the local associations should form an organization was made in 1834, and two years later delegates from associations at Baltimore, New York, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Washington and New Orleans assembled in Washington and framed a constitution for the National Typographical society. The first session was held in New York in 1837, when the name was changed to the National Typographical association.

"In 1850 a call was issued for a convention which was to be held in New York, at which time delegates assembled from Albany, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Trenton and Louisville. The second convention was held in Baltimore in 1851, and the third in Cincinnati in 1852, which resolved itself into 'the first session of the National Typographical union.'

"Old Pete" Is Dead

Peter Morton, or "Old Pete," a colored man and a quaint character of antebellum days, died at his home in Geneva court recently, the Cincinnati Enquirer says. He did not know his exact age, which was about 80 years, and there is probably no one living who does.

"Old Pete," since the close of the civil war, has at different times been a family servant and man of all work in many prominent families on the hills, and in Avondale and varied his employment occasionally by doing porter work in downtown stores. It is related of him, and the story was confirmed by himself, that before the civil war he was the property of a Kentucky gambler, who went broke, and "Pete," with all other chattels possessed by the gambler, had to be sold to satisfy his creditors.

The officers of a bank in Maysville, Ky., who had taken a liking to the colored man on account of his genial good nature and strict honesty, offered to buy his freedom for him if he would execute his personal note in their favor and make his payments upon it, according as he was able, until they were repaid. This he agreed to do, but with the close of the civil war and the scattering of his friends far and wide, Pete fell into hard lines from the lack of a permanent home and steady employment, but he never forgot his financial obligations to his banker benefactors and he continued making his payments to them for 20 years after the close of the war, until the debt was finally paid.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1910. NO. 42.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Uncle Sam Put Ban on Taxicab Trips

EENY
MEENY
MINY MO

WASHINGTON.—Edward A. Moseley, secretary of the interstate commerce commission, is the most devoted labor union man in the public service. The charge is constantly made by non-union people that Mr. Moseley will have none but union men in the division of safety appliance inspectors, of which he is the head, and Mr. Moseley always admits the charge and defends his position, and he always carries his point, too.

Mr. Moseley is credited with having a big share of influence in convincing the railroad voters that Mr. Taft deserved their support. The other day he went to the White House to see the president, and, on leaving, a friend asked after his health.

"Never better," replied Mr. Moseley.

"You were mighty ill about two years ago," observed the friend, "but seem to be better than ever now."

"Yes," replied the secretary. "I am a firm believer in the brotherhood of man and in all good works, and no malicious animal magnetism ever gets action on me."

"Um! Yes," replied his friend; "but I guess you're a still more devoted believer in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers."

Economy in small things as well as in great is being impressed on officials in the government service whose work requires them to make expenditures from time to time chargeable to government funds.

A notable case is that of internal revenue agents and inspectors. Commissioner Cabell, in a circular of instructions, has given notice that cabs, taxicabs and automobiles are to be used only in cases of absolute necessity, which must be explained satisfactorily, or, otherwise such items of traveling expense will be disallowed.

Representative Walter Smith of Iowa says that every time he hears that a message is about to be sent to congress dealing with the relations of the United States with some Latin or South American republic it always reminds him of a speech made in congress by John Allen of Tupelo, Miss.

"You will all recall that after President Harrison sent to congress his message dealing with the trouble United States sailors had in the harbor of Valparaiso," said Mr. Smith, "Chile made ample apology and offered to make other reparation before congress got down to the consideration of the message. While this situation existed Allen got up in the house one day and without reference to the message or the action of Chile, told this story:

"'Mr. Speaker,' said Allen, 'I am reminded of three men who were working one day on a farm near my town of Tupelo. It began to rain and they all started for the barn. One of them broke into a swift run and never stopped till he got to the barn. When the other two reached the barn they found the runner stretched out on the floor, thoroughly exhausted.

"'John, what's the sense of running yourself to the point of exhaustion just to get out of the way of a little rain?' said they.

"'Well,' gasped John, 'I was afraid I wouldn't get here before it stopped raining.'"

Puckerless Persimmon Is Coming Next

UNCLE SAMS
NEW PUCKERLESS PERSIMMON
YUM. YUM

A puckerless persimmon is the hope of the future. Department of agriculture officials are figuring on a fruit that will not draw the jawbone out of place and yet can be transported a reasonable distance without spoiling. A blending of varieties or treatment by chemical processes are the means by which it is expected to eliminate the puckering qualities.

Japanese persimmons hold the record for size. They also have all medals for drawing the mouth through to the back of the neck. It is solemnly declared that their bite has not become less irritating than it was in 1828. It is proposed to mix the Japanese kind with some softer tongued brand from the south and thus gradually weaken the astringent properties. Much headway has been made in that direction. The Josephine style of American persimmons has been crossed with the Yemon type of Japan. The American flavor won out, while the Japanese hardiness and firmness remained.

On the theory that there cannot be too much of a good thing, the Japanese often heat their persimmons with the fumes of saki, thereby weakening the puckering power.

Vice-President Sherman Feels Obscure

THE VICE-PRESIDENT HEY? TELL IT TO THE COPENHAGEN UNIVERSITY
SHERMAN

VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN recently confided to a friend that he is not altogether happy. Mr. Sherman, during a recent visit to Albany, tried to identify a young man who wanted a money order cashed at the capitol postoffice, but payment was refused, the clerk declaring he did not know the vice-president. Writing to the secretary of state's secretary, Mr. Sherman asked:

"How can one be happy who finds it necessary to be identified at the United States postoffice in the capitol of his own state?" and tells of a subsequent experience in New York.

He had occupied a box in a theater with a party of friends when one of them thought it would be a joke to have the star direct some observations at Mr. Sherman. The friend sought out the doorman, told him the vice-president of the United States was in box A, and suggested that word be passed back to the stage.

"The doorman took kindly to the suggestion," writes Mr. Sherman, "and said: 'Let me see, that is Mr. Fairbanks, is it not?' My friend's efforts to perpetrate a joke then and there ceased, and in the shadow of obscurity I am unhappy."

House Insurgents Ignored by Cannon

INSURGENTS
BOMB
FUR CANNON

DESPITE the fact that Speaker Joseph G. Cannon declines to recognize the house insurgents when he meets them on the street, and despite the fact that the congressional committee is permitting literature to be sent out by one of its employes evidently with the intent of defeating the Republican insurgents for re-election, that merry band of trouble-makers continue to be about the breeziest lot of congressional mavericks at large in the legislative pasture. They have already begun to hold meetings to plan the deposition of the "czar of the house," and in the meanwhile the leaders of the house congressional committee are hastening to deny that they are responsible for the literature sent out against the insurgents.

Recently a group of the insurgents got together and swapped experiences.

"Representative Morse of Wisconsin met Uncle Joe in the office of a prominent government official this summer," said one of them, "and Uncle Joe completely ignored him. The official, who was more or less of a green hand in Washington, finally said: 'Mr. Cannon, this is Mr. Morse.'

"The speaker looked Morse over, without extending his hand, and dryly remarked: "What is your line of business, Mr. Morse?'

"'I am a member of congress,' replied Morse.

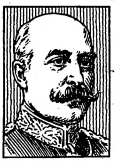
"'Oh,' replied the speaker. 'I have some Morses down in my district, and I thought you might be related to one of them. I want to say, however, that if La Follette is a Republican, I am a blamed old fogy.'

"'Well, LaFollette is a Republican all right,' replied Morse."

Another member of the group reported that he had met Mr. Cannon at the entrance of a hotel in St. Louis, and all he got out of him in the way of recognition was a good-sized grunt.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

MAY BE CANADIAN RULER

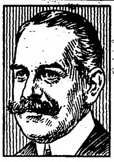


What to do with the duke of Connaught, brother of King Edward VII., is one of Great Britain's ever-recurrent problems. The latest of the rumors affecting him connects his name with the governor-generalship of Canada.

The reported intention of Earl Grey to retire early this year has given occasion for conjectural selections for his place. None, it is said, would meet with more general approval throughout the empire than the designation of the duke. For one thing, by reason of Connaught's relationship to the king, it would consolidate that "imperial partnership" which it is felt would make for the closer union of Great Britain with her dominions over the sea. Canadians, it is thought, would welcome the choice. The fact that he would have far higher rank than any former incumbent of the vice-regal post would presumably in itself be not unpleasing to the people of the dominion.

Only last February the duke's appointment to the lord lieutenancy of Ireland was talked of. His peculiar fitness for the office was urged on the ground of his acquaintance with Ireland and Irish affairs, acquired while he was commander-in-chief there. His popularity and that of his daughter, Patricia, current discussion had it, would have assured him a warm welcome from the Irish landlords and their families, with undoubted benefit to Irish trade.

MAKES SURGERY PAINLESS



If you want to—and of course you don't—you can have your legs or arms cut off without feeling any pain and without being unconscious. Prof. Thomas Jonnesco of Bucharest, Roumania, has made this possible through his discovery of stovaine.

Recently Dr. Jonnesco has been demonstrating the use of stovaine in Chicago, New York and other large cities and the surgeons who have seen the operationos performed have pronounced it a great success.

Even the treatment of heart disease is not beyond the powers of benzolethyldimethylaminopropanol hydrochloride—which is Dr. Jonnesco's solution—and he confidently believes it will supersede the use of ether, chloroform and other anesthetics now in use. Stovaine proper was injected chiefly at the base of the spinal cord and was useful only for operations below the waist line, but the professor claims his discovery enables him to operate on a patient from head to feet without pain and with consciousness preserved. By the Jonnesco system injections are made nearer the neck.

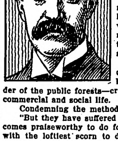
Dr. Jonnesco is many times a millionaire, coming from a family of land barons. He was graduated as a bachelor at law, when he formed a desire to study surgery. He was prosector of anatomy of the Medical School of Paris when stovaine was discovered six years ago.

It was found an ideal anesthetic for the lower limbs, but was too powerful to be used where its potency might reach the heart. In 1906 Dr. Jonnesco devoted almost his entire time to experiments with stovaine and late in the next year discovered that strychnine dispelled the dangerous effects of stovaine, but did not affect its anesthetic powers.

He was elected an honorary member of the Royal Society of Surgery of England, the same society which was bitter in denouncing him in his early experiments.

He is dean of the University of Bucharest and a director of the Bucharest Institute of Experimental Surgery, has been re-elected honorary president of the international congress of gynecology and surgery and is a member of the International Commission of Surgery.

PINCHOT KEEPS UP FIGHT



Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forestry division of the department of agriculture, is about the only member of the Roosevelt regime who is being pointed out to strangers on the streets of Washington these days. "There goes the man who is fighting Ballinger," is a common expression whenever Mr. Pinchot appears on the avenue.

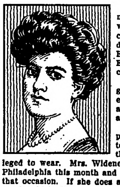
The Pinchot-Ballinger row began last summer and shortly before the president started on his long tour there was talk that Mr. Pinchot would be forced out of his position. Later came reports that Mr. Ballinger would resign as secretary of the interior, but both are still at work and the fight is going merrily on.

Recently in a New York speech Mr. Pinchot declared the people of the United States have been the complacent victims of a system of plunder of the public forests—crimes often perpetrated by men of high station in commercial and social life.

Condemning the methods of these "rich criminals," he said:

"But they have suffered from a serious moral perversion by which it becomes praiseworthy to do for a corporation things which they would refuse with the loftiest scorn to do for themselves. Fortunately for us all, that delusion is passing rapidly away."

GOT $750,000 XMAS GIFT



Probably the most costly and beautiful Christmas gift that any woman in the world received was a rope of magnificent pearls, said to have cost $750,000, which George D. Widener of Philadelphia presented to his wife, who was Miss Eleanor Elkins, daughter of the late William L. Elkins, the traction magnate. It is the most costly string of pearls in the world.

It is said that Mr. Widener intended the gems, some of which are nearly as large as pigeon eggs, and sufficient for a king's ransom, as a surprise for his wife, but news of the gift that a princess might well envy leaked out.

It is probable that society will have an opportunity to admire at first hand what is said to be the finest collection of pearls, gem for gem, that any woman in this country has been privileged to wear. Mrs. Widener is to give a ball at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia this month and it is presumed that she will wear the pearls on that occasion. If she does and she should wear at her throat the string of pearls which she has previously worn and which has been so much admired, the total value of her pearl adornments will be a round million of dollars The strand she now wears is valued at $250,000, the center stone alone being worth $65,000.

Mrs. Widener is known as one of the beautiful women in the society of Philadelphia, New York and the fashionable New England coast resorts. She is of the brunette type, tall, and noted for the beauty of her gowns and the grace with which she wears them.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Man Is Stripped of His Patent Shirt

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Rather than stay in jail with his offending shirt 48 hours, C. H. Buckley, an advertising man, who was proclaiming publicly the name of a certain brand of whisky, sent home for an unpatented shirt and left $10 with the desk sergeant at the Central Police station.

Advertising on the street is the only game Buckley is looking for. He did not know that in Los Angeles there is an ordinance which prohibits any person from "wearing, displaying or carrying on his or her person any sign, transparency or banner designed to advertise, publish or proclaim any article, goods or merchandise on the streets, alleys or public places of the said Los Angeles."

Buckley was in the advertising business, and he did not concern himself with ordinances. He was engaged to introduce a certain brand of whisky to the public of Los Angeles, and the more unique his method, the more effective the advertisement, as he had figured it out, judging from his statements at the police station.

Buckley devised an ingenious contrivance which, when he pressed a button in his trousers pocket, blazed in fire-red letters, two inches high, the name of the "goods" right across his shirt front. It was a long name, and in order to make room for it, Buckley wore a full dress suit with a top hat and cane.

At Fourth and Main streets, he stepped in front of a venerable old lady, who, at first, saw in him only a foppish sort of a middle-aged man, with a little bunch of spinach under his chin and a Mephisto look. As the good old woman dropped her eyes, she saw a bright red glare right in front of her, and as she looked again she saw, spread out in huge letters of fire, the name of a more or less popular brand of booze.

With a scream of dismay, the old lady staggered back, and the policeman on the corner came up on the run. Buckley went to jail.

"You'll have to leave that shirt here as evidence," announced Desk Sergt. White, after booking the prisoner.

"What, take off my shirt?" exclaimed Buckley in dismay. "Never This shirt is a valuable patent. I will put up any amount of bail you wish, any bond up to $1,000, but I will not take off my shirt, and I will fight this case to the end, to the bitter end, do you understand?"

"Guess you will have to begin fighting by going to jail," answered the sergeant, without batting an eye.

Carnegie Puts Up Mansion for Bail

AUTO SPEEDERS COURT
CARNEGIE

NEW YORK.—Orders were orders, and Andrew Carnegie had to stop recently to bail out his chauffeur, although he hadn't any money with him and the call of the golf links was pressing. With Judge Reid and another Pittsburg man Mr. Carnegie was on the way to St. Andrew's links when the car was held up and his chauffeur arrested on a charge of exceeding the speed limit.

"We weren't speeding," said Mr. Carnegie, "and we have an engagement at the golf links. Can't we go on?"

The policeman was no respecter of persons, so the retired ironmaster had to go to the police station. Mr. Carnegie and Magistrate Hermann had a pleasant little talk, the millionaire being assured that he wouldn't have his day's pleasure spoiled by delay. Mr. Carnegie was sure his chauffeur wasn't speeding.

"You know, your honor," said Mr. Carnegie, "I'm very careful with my chauffeurs. They have the reputation in Scotland of being the best chauffeurs there. I pay them good salaries, and in addition a bonus of ten per cent of their wages to abstain from liquor."

When the chauffeur was held for trial and it came to a question of bail Mr. Carnegie said he hadn't any money with him.

"I'll lend you some," volunteered the court, "but property will do."

Mr. Carnegie offered his $3,000,000 mansion at 2 E. Ninety-first street as security, which Magistrate Herrmann thought would be sufficient.

Husband Loves to Sew On His Buttons

CHICAGO.—"I love to sew buttons on my pants. I sew them on my son's pants, too."

If Prof. R. E. Blount, head of the physiology department at the Robert Waller high school, is the only man in Chicago who just dotes on making a good strong hitch between a blue steel button and the end of a pair of pantaloons, why, other residents of male persuasion ought to be ashamed of themselves.

"No man ought to make a valet of his wife, and that's what the majority of men are doing," he explained.

Recently Mrs. Anna E. Blount, who is a practicing physician, delivered an address before a club of Oak Park women in which she said that she made her husband sew on his own buttons when he "busted" them.

Yesterday Prof. Blount said she did nothing of the sort; that he sewed them on because he wanted to. It was inferred that there is a vast difference in sewing buttons on trousers because your wife makes you and because of an ethical principle.

Prof. Blount does it for ethical reasons, and so does his eldest son, Walter. Earl Blount, who is only old enough to scramble around the house and swallow buttons when he finds them, isn't mature enough to grasp the principles of ethics, so Papa Blount sews little white china affairs to portions of his attire where they belong.

"Beauty Spot" Case Puzzles Judge

SHELL OUT OR I WONT FINISH THE JOB BEAUTY DOCTOR

NEW YORK.—Magistrate Krotel in the Essex Market court has been again wrestling with what has come to be known as the "Beauty-Spot" case. He first made its acquaintance in November at the West side court. After hearing some more testimony about it he grew so bewildered that he had the case adjourned.

It all concerns exactly what Mrs. M. Ella Harris, beauty doctor, did to Mrs. Ella Houghton's face. Mrs. Houghton, who lives at the Ansonia, Seventy-second street and Broadway, met an actress some time ago whose complexion she thought simply grand.

Soon after Mrs. Harris set to work to make Mrs. Houghton beautiful. She begun by fixing up one side of Mrs. Houghton's face. Then trouble started. According to the beauty doctor, Mrs. Houghton had agreed to exhibit the beautified half of her face at a special matinee at the Ansonia, the spectators to pay so much a head, and the proceeds to be expended by Mrs. Houghton on the reconstruction of the other half of her face.

Mrs. Houghton maintains that she never agreed to anything the sort. Moreover, she declares that the beauty doctor not only failed to treat her face without roughness, but actually pushed it about to such an extent that the blood streamed from it.

When that occurred, Mrs. Houghton, giving up the discussion concerning the treatment of the other half of her face, went before the county medical board, which got after Mrs. Harris. Her case came into the hands of Assistant District Attorney Vanderveer, who soon became as bewildered as Magistrate Krotel.

He was prosecuting Mrs. Harris for treating one side of Mrs. Houghton's face, while at the same time he seemed endeavoring to force Mrs. Harris to treat the other half.

THE SUNBEAM.
W. G. HUNT, Publisher.
SUNBEAM, - - MINN

KANSAS, CORN AND BABIES.

Kansas has some reason to be proud of its record this year in the production of corn, wheat and oats, and especially of corn. The total of the three crops is placed at more by $15,000,000 than in any previous year in its history, and obviously that is a showing to be proud of. But singularly enough along with this proud showing the census bureau comes forward with the depressing information that the baby crop in Kansas has fallen off in the same year, says Manchester Union. There were 25,980 babies born in Kansas in the fiscal year 1907, and only 23,850 in the fiscal year 1908. Of course the first question that presents itself is what the fiscal future of a year has to do with such a matter anyway. Yet it is obvious that one must start from somewhere in such computations, and perhaps the beginning and end of the fiscal year are as good points as any. The thought that is sure to suggest itself is, were the Kansas farmers so busy planting their big crops of wheat, corn and oats that they overlooked the graver problem of population?

The cerulean "sky-piece" has made its jaunty appearance in our midst. Time was when a man attired himself only in sober hues, as befitted his dignity and importance, says Washington Herald. No frivolous frolicking in fanciful garb appealed to the masculine taste. A strong reaction from the days of silken hose and brocaded, gold-laced coats and small clothes swayed the balance in favor of Puritanical and Quakerish garb of the past two generations. But man is becoming emancipated from his somber thraldom; not all at once, but gradually, as is usually the case with great and important reforms. The necktie has long since succeeded to the inevitable, and its flamboyant brilliancy now shames the rainbow and the peacock. Masculine hosiery, too, has assumed the colors of the spectrum in weird and wonderful design. In hats we have passed the quiet black, brown and gray stage, apparently. The lurid college hatband was only the forerunner of the solid green hat which burst upon a startled public a year or so ago. It was a modest shade of green, to be sure, but green for all that.

If a man doesn't love his work, he would better get something else to do. But the trouble is that such people will hardly love any kind of work. The trouble is in them. They lack intelligence. If they knew enough to know good work they would soon learn to love it. The manual training scheme has this in view—to surround the job a man is doing with such intelligence and taste as will make it attractive to him. "The man who is in love with his job gets more contentment out of life than any other," says Brander Matthews; and he gets a great part of his contentment in doing his work right. No man can love his work who shirks. No man can be contented who is dishonest about his work. This is shirking or doing it negligently. So these things always go together—honest work, contentment and love of the job.

The Farmers' National congress, in session at Raleigh, N. C., passed resolutions asking for an amendment of the general parcels post regulations admitting to the mails parcels up to the weight of eleven pounds and reducing the rate to 12 cents a pound, and also for the adoption of the rural delivery parcels post for a local service at a lower rate, says Boston Herald. Professions of interest in the farmer, inspiring desire for rural uplift, and the effort to conserve the country life of the nation might find practical expression in this postal legislation which every organization of farmers throughout the country has indorsed, and which successive postmasters general have approved, and which the express monopolies have been most interested in opposing.

The death of the first Little Eva has just been announced. It must be a mistake. People who attended "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on its latest round are willing to swear that the first Eva is still on duty.

Flippant scribes may joke about pellagra, but it is no joke. They waxed facetious over the grip when it first made its appearance in this country.

Parisian scientists may try to solve the secrets of longevity, but the fact remains that coffins and undertakers wil be in demand long after these learned gents have departed hence.

Poultry is now so well masked as to its age in the cooking that no fowl, however venerable, may be discouraged from trying to be a chicken.

Anybody who wishes to do so may attribute this weather to the approaching comet.

State Capital Letter

Doings at St. Paul as Reported by Our Special Correspondent.

St. Paul.—In a little room in an out-of-the-way corner on the second floor of the old capitol—an apartment which for years gone by was used as a cloak room for the representatives in the legislature—is now located the nucleus of the state campaign against the Great White Plague, tuberculosis.

This office is occupied by Christopher Easton, executive secretary of the Minnesota Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. The start so far accomplished is small, yet the association is encouraged by the outlook; by the fact that their work is a public benefaction; and by the additional fact that the public is awakening from its lethargy and realizing that educational as well as practical work must be done to reduce the toll of thousands of lives which consumption is demanding yearly of Minnesota inhabitants.

The past holiday season brought with it a "merry" Christmas indeed for those who are behind this state campaign against consumption; for generous citizens during the festival period bought 1,100,000 "Red Cross" stamps for a penny each, thus contributing $11,000 toward this public work of relief and healing. Of this money, the local organizations to fight tuberculosis get forty per cent, the state organization gets forty per cent, and the national association receives twenty per cent. In other words, the sale of these Christmas stamps has raised $2,750 for the direction of the battle by the state association. This money —practically all the funds at the command of the state workers—will be used in organizing local committees and associations where they do not now exist, in stimulating and standardizing locals already formed, and in keeping up general public interest. At present there are only about a dozen "locals" in as many towns—so there is plenty of field open for the good work.

The most prosperous locals, as might be expected, are in the larger towns, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Winona and Northfield. In these places ten trained nurses are employed to give all their time to the care and direction of treatment for those suffering from consumption who otherwise would be unable to employ expert and proper treatment. These nurses have made easier the last hours of hundreds of tuberculosis sufferers, and in cases not too far advanced, have placed scores of discouraged invalids on the road to recovery and ultimate victory over a disease which a few years ago was considered incurable even in its elementary stages.

Locals are being organized as rapidly as possible in various towns, the most recent acquisitions being Fergus Falls, Cloquet, Red Wing, Faribault and St. Cloud. In each of these places named, it is probable a trained nurse will soon be employed ministering to the poor and needy.

In counties where large towns are not to be found, the workers contemplate organizing county associations with a view to carrying on the good work in the rural districts where—surprising as it may seem—there are nearly as many consumptives as in the cities.

The State association will hold its annual meeting in the old capitol Jan. 26, at which time reports of work during the past year will be rendered in detail, and also papers and addresses presented on the general subject of anti-tuberculosis work. Dr. H. A. Tomlinson, superintendent of the St. Peter state hospital for insane, president of the state association, will preside at this annual conference.

Examining State Fair Accounts.

A special commission of three, appointed by Gov. Eberhart, is now making a lengthy and detailed examination of the accounts and records of the state fair, under the management of the State Agricultural association. This commission consists of Deputy Public Examiner Stacy, Executive Clerk Preuss of the governor's office, and Chief Clerk Erickson of the state treasurer's department.

Women Nurses at St. Peter.

An interesting experiment is being tried at the St. Peter state hospital for insane—one that originated in some of the large eastern hospitals and met with signal and immediate success. That is, the employment of women nurses or attendants, in the care of insane male prisoners. Heretofore, women attendants in state institutions for insane, have only been permitted in the women's wards. It is claimed, however, that nursing and gentleness is more the natural element and characteristic of woman than man, and that the difference is more than appreciated by the insane.

The writer has a report of one instance said to be typical. A violently insane man was brought to the St. Peter institution in charge of three men, who had been compelled to handcuff him, and strap his legs. When the patient was brought in the institution, the order was at once given to release the patient from his bonds. The three men who brought him gave warning of danger as soon as the patient secured use of his arms and legs. The order was carried out, however, and a young women nurse was called to take the patient in charge. Taking him lightly by the arm and without any fear the girl asked the patient to come with her. Without any hesitation, the man did so, making no attempt to resist or injure his frail keeper.

Millions for Life Insurance.

Minnesota is yearly contributing increasing millions of dollars to the coffers of great life insurance companies—most of them located in the east. It seems hardly credible, yet a conservative estimate is to the effect that during 1909, the 12 months just concluded, Minnesotans have paid old line life companies nearly $7,500,000. The largest aggregate amount collected during the year by any one company, is $1,500,000.

Good Grain for Seeding.

The public generally is appreciative of the fact that Minnesota possesses a state agricultural college at which various experiments are constantly being made with new varieties of seed and crops with a view to increasing and bettering the yields of all grains and agricultural products grown within the state. Yet few seem aware that the results of years of study and experimenting at the agricultural school are to be had by any citizen for the asking, and that grain seed of the highest quality, which will yield larger and better crops, may be purchased from the state by one and all interested enough to do so.

True, this seed is sold in very limited quantities, because the supply of this product of years of work and experimenting is very limited. But those who buy seed from the state school to test its qualities above average seed grain, may secure from the same source names and addresses of farmers in their part of the state who have previously tested this special seed and who have large quantities on hand for sale to farmers desiring it for seed purposes at slightly above market price.

Inquiries for this special state grain should be sent to Prof. Andrew Boss, State Exxperimental Station, St. Anthony Park, Minn. The kinds of seed the state has on hand of superior quality in every way, the number of years tested, its average yield, the largest amount allowed any one customer, and the price, are designated in the following schedule:

Kind of seed.	Minn. No.	No. years tested.	Ave. yield per acre.	Largest amt. to one customer.	Price, per bu.
Wheat, Fife	163	14	26.4	2½ bu.	$2.00
Wheat, Bluestem	169	14	26.7	2½ bu.	2.00
Oats, White	6	15	60	5 bu.	1.00
Oats, White	26	15	66.6	5 bu.	1.00
Barley	105	11	51.9	4 bu.	1.50
Flax	25	7	16.4	2 bu.	2.50
Rye, Winter	2	9	39.8	Out	1.25
Corn, Com. Yel. Dent	13	6	52.8	1 bu.	2.50
Corn, Com.	23	2	44½	¼ bu.	2.00

Agriculture By Correspondence.

A few weeks will doubtless see the inauguration at the Minnesota agricultural college of the "agricultural education by correspondence" system provided for in the J. M. Hackney law enacted by the last legislature. Already the experimental department is preparing data for the first bulletins to be sent out. Gov. Eberhart has been consulting with the agricultural school authorities as to the securing of a man to act as editor of the educational bulletins, and has finally selected E. C. Huntington of Windom for the place. Mr. Huntington is a well known and experienced newspaper man and will no doubt prove a very satisfactory official.

J. C. MATCHITT.

$1,000,000 FOR 200 PERSONS.

Chicago Man Remembers Former Employes in Will.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Former employes, business associates, friends and personal servants—"all those who had served him and all from whom he had kindness"—are named as beneficiaries in the will of C. W. Marks, former millionaire shoe dealer. The document is to be filed for probate within a few days. About $1,000,000 will be divided among about 200 persons.

1 Dead, 1 Dying From Gas.

Belle Fourche, South Dakota.—Word has been brought here of the death by asphyxiation at his ranch near Reva of Ed Mireault, an early day settler of Harding county. Mireault, who was known as "French Ed," and a companion named William Black, went to the cellar with a pail of coals to keep some vegetables from freezing, and after stopping up all ventilation to keep out the cold, spent the night there. They were found the next day overcome. Black is near death. Mireault died the next day.

Lamphere Dies In Prison.

La Porte, Ind.—Ray Lamphere, 38 years old, slayer of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her children, died in the Michigan City penitentiary, where he was serving an indeterminate term for arson. Lamphere on April 28, 1908, set fire to the Gupnness home near La Porte and incinerated the family. He had formerly been employed by Mrs. Gunness as a workman on her farm. Following the fire, the bodies of several persons who had been murdered by Mrs. Gunness were unearthed in the farm yard.

STATE FAIR PROBED

MANAGEMENT COMMENDED, CUT ACCOUNTS SERIOUSLY QUESTIONED.

BY PUBLIC EXAMINER SCHAEFER

Changes Advised in Laws Governing the Management of Minnesota Exposition in the Future.

St. Paul, Minn.—No direct, but some indirect criticism of the management of the state fair, is contained in the report of the examination just made by Public Examiner Anton Schaefer. The report is a voluminous affair, covering over 50 typewritten pages. It states conditions at the fair with much detail. It shows the manner in which money is expended, tables of expenditures, touches on the matter of passes, insinuatingly refers to the expense account of John J. Furlong for "special work" quoting the words "special work" and calling attention to the fact that no report or explanation is made of the character of the "special work."

Public Examiner Schaefer's report, being made to the governor, can be used by the next executive as the basis of recommendations to the legislature, if he so chooses. In view of the coming election of officers of the state fair board, it will attract more than usual attention. The public examiner expressly states that all accounts are correct, but he dwells with a special emphasis on the matter of expense occaunts, so much so that it is clear that he intends the expenditures do not appeal to him as entirely proper, although he expressly refrains from saying so.

Anton Schaefer.

Refers to "Special Work."

Relative to the "special work" for which John J. Furlong was paid $750, it is understood that its character was in presenting the needs of the state fair to the legislature. The employment commenced January 19, and ceased after the adjournment of the law makers.

Mr. Schaefer also dwells upon the fact that Mr. Furlong took Earle C. May with him to Seattle, at an expense of $210.55. He also calls attention to the fact that the trip was not authorized until after the return of Mr. Furlong and of Mr. May.

Schaefer Makes Recommendations.

He advises that the legislature should fix salaries, and either eliminate or provide for the expense of the board of managers, abolish passes or establish limitations, regulate visits to other fairs, provide a contingent fund which should not be exceeded under penalty, provide for the handling of the receipts and disbursements by the state auditor and treasurer, and that sub-vouchers should be required for all expenditures of over one dollar.

MRS. LEDBETER ACQUITTED.

Only Three Ballots Taken and Verdict Rendered in One Hour.

Mankato.—Mrs. Grace Ledbeter, who has for nearly three weeks been on trial on charge of being implicated in the murder of her husband, walked out of the courtroom a free woman. At 4:15 the jury was brought in. Its verdict was "Not guilty." Judge Pfau thanked it for its patience and diligence, and discharged it.

When the verdict was announced Mrs. Ledbeter's head dropped and she covered her face with her hands, but as the jurors filed out of the box she arose and advanced and silently shook each by the hand. Some wished her a "Happy New Year" and others just pressed her hand feelingly. Later, the jurors gathered about her and spent a few moments in conversation. Her relatives also congratulated her.

Mrs. Ledbeter Leaves State.

Mankato.—Mrs. Grace Ledbeter, declared innocent of the murder of her husband, H. J. Ledbeter, left the city, accompanying her father to his farm near Spooner, Wis. Her departure occurred sooner than her attorneys had given out. Mrs. Ledbeter and her friends thought it would be wisdom on her part to leave the city. This she did quietly, and before the public was aware of it she was gone. She did not remain long enough to remove her belongings from the county jail, and they are there yet.

Rev James O'Reilly

Father James O'Reilley for many years pastor of the St. Anthony of Padua parish, Minneapolis, whom Pope Pius has elevated to the Bishopric of Fargo.

TO PROBE "PEONAGE" IN MINN.

Alleged Widespread System on Mesaba and Eastern G. N. Division.

Duluth.—The state labor bureau under the direction of W. E. McEwen, who is here, and the Great Northern road, are engaged in unearthing what is described as a widespread system of "peonage" on the Mesaba range, and the Eastern Minnesota division of the Great Northern.

It is claimed that thousands of dollars have been taken from Greek laborers by representatives of the railroad who have worked in collusion with employment agencies and Greek leaders of ability to interpret.

It is also claimed that the large sums were withheld from the railroad by the use of passes for laborers, who were charged with railroad fare.

The defrauding of the laborers is not a criminal offense in Minnesota, but civil action to recover moneys may follow.

FATHER OF ST. CLOUD DEAD.

John L. Wilson, Member of Territorial Legislature, Passes Away.

St. Cloud. — John L. Wilson, the father of St. Cloud, and one of the oldest pioneers in this section of the state, died at the hospital in this city, at the age of 90.

Coming to this city in the year 1853, he had lived here continuously, and up to the time of his retirement was prominently associated with every thing that led to the upbuilding of the city and country. He was born at Columbus, Me., Feb. 24, 1820.

John L. Wilson.

The first office held by Mr. Wilson was that of representative in the territorial legislature, to which he was elected for the terms of 1855, 1856 and 1857. He was again re-elected representative to the state legislature in the year 1870. He was the first president of the city council in this city. This city was named by Wilson, when it was platted in the year 1853. He built the first frame house in this city and Sauk Rapids.

Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Cordelia Morgan, daughter of Joshua Morgan, founder of the city of Buffalo, Minn., in May, 1847. She died in November, 1852. He was married again Nov. 13, 1855, to Mrs. Harriet N. Corbett, who died 10 years later. He is susvived by one daughter and several step-children.

Faribault.—A party of government civil engineers, working under the direction of the department of the interior, are engaged in surveying Cannon River in this vicinity and are making their headquarters in Faribault. The party consists of Robert Adams, W. W. Murphy, S. L. Rosing and E. D. Hide. The surveying is being done to locate the valuable waterpower sites along the river and estimate the horsepower they will furnish if developed. The engineers state that there are many valuable power sites along the river.

MARCH 1 FOR THE INCOME TAX.

St. Paul.—Minnesota corporations doing interstate business who come in the pale of the federal law which demands that a statement be filed at the end of each calendar year showing the volume of business done and the amount of profits, so that the income tax can be assessed, will have until March 1 to file these statements instead of Jan. 1.

H. F. Dains, deputy collector of internal revenue, will have charge of the collection in this city.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna
acts gently yet promptly on the bowels; cleanses the system effectually; assists one in overcoming habitual constipation permanently.
To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine,
MANUFACTURED BY THE
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SOLD BY LEADING DRUGGISTS 50¢ A BOTTLE

Fair, Fat and Tide-y.

A Kansan sat on the bench at Atlantic City watching a fair and fat bather disporting herself in the surf. He knew nothing of tides, and he did not notice that each succeeding wave came a little closer to his feet. At last an extra big wave washed over his shoe tops.

"Hey, there!" he yelled at the fair, fat bather. "Quit yer jumpin' up and down! D'ye want to drown me?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Tightness across the chest means a cold on the lungs. It means misery and discomfort every minute, if nothing worse. What's the answer? Rub the chest with Hamlins Wizard Oil quick.

Real Art.

"Smith's a born liar."

"Jones has him skinned. He learned his lying at college, and scorns the crude, natural methods."—Exchange.

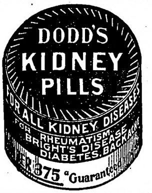
Don't blame the phonograph if it has a bad record.

PERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER
when thoroughly rubbed in relieves strains and sprains in joints or muscles from any cause. All druggists, 25, 35, 50c sizes. Large bottles the cheapest.

Sermons are based upon texts; political speeches upon pretexts.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A small boy never looks comfortable in his Sunday clothes.



WESTERN CANADA
What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

160 ACRE
FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA
FREE

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you.) (1)

"NOT ONE KNOWN FAILURE IN 8 YEARS."

No wonder we come to you boldly. We know, Know, KNOW that Stub-Roo Liquid will positively cure all skin diseases—eczema, salt rheum, running sores, any eruption or irritation of the skin. But are not magic, quack healers. It took 18 bottles of the Stub-Roo Liquid to cure Mrs. John Martin, Two Harbors, Minn., of eczema of 8 years' standing. The Rev. F. O. Carlson, Grantsburg, Wis., was cured by 2 bottles.

Stub-Roo

If your druggist doesn't carry it, we'll send you a large bottle express paid, for a dollar. Write Today to Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE
TRADE MARK
PLANTEN'S C&C OR BLACK CAPSULES
SUPERIOR REMEDY FOR URINARY DISCHARGES
DRUGGISTS OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 50c
H. PLANTEN & SON, 93 HENRY ST. BROOKLYN, N.Y.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS ON COMMERCE LAW AND THE TRUSTS

President Taft Recommends Amendments to Present Interstate Statute

FAVORS A SPECIAL COURT

Would Clothe Judges with Power to Act in Certain Specified Cases

CONTROL OF CORPORATIONS

Suggests Wisdom of Federal Incorporation of Industrial Companies—Object of Law Is to Suppress Abuses and Not to Destroy Legitimate Competition—Declares Opportunity for Legitimate Capital to Carry on Large Business Within Lines of Law Must Be Given If Supremacy Would Be Maintained.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The following is President Taft's message to congress on the subject of needed legislation regarding the interstate commerce law and the control of the trusts:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: I withheld from my annual message a discussion of needed legislation under the authority which congress has to regulate commerce between the states and with foreign countries, and said that I would bring this subject-matter to your attention later in the session. Accordingly, I beg to submit to you certain recommendations as to the amendments to the interstate commerce law and certain considerations arising out of the operations of the anti-trust law suggesting the wisdom of federal incorporation of industrial companies.

Interstate Commerce Law.

In the annual report of the interstate commerce commission for the year 1908, attention is called to the fact that between July 1, 1908, and the close of that year, 12 suits had been begun to set aside orders of the commission (besides one commenced before that date), and that few orders of much consequence had been permitted to go without protest; that the questions presented by these various suits were fundamental, as the constitutionality of the act itself was in issue, and the right of congress to delegate to any tribunal authority to establish an interstate rate was denied; but that perhaps the most serious practical question raised concerned the extent of the right of the courts to review the orders of the commission; and it was pointed out that if the contention of the carriers in this latter respect alone were sustained, but little progress had been made in the Hepburn act toward the effective regulation of interstate transportation charges. In 12 of the cases referred to, it was stated, preliminary injunctions were prayed for, being granted in six and refused in six.

"It has from the first been well understood," says the commission, "that the success of the present act as a regulating measure depended largely upon the facility with which temporary injunctions could be obtained. If a railroad company, by mere allegation in its bill of complaint, supported by exparte affidavits, can overturn the result of days of patient investigation, no very satisfactory result can be expected. The railroad loses nothing by these proceedings since if they fail, it can only be required to establish the rate and to pay to shippers the difference between the higher rate collected and the rate which is finally held to be reasonable. In point of fact it usually profits, because it can seldom be required to return more than a fraction of the excess charges collected."

In its report for the year 1909 the commission shows that of the 17 cases referred to in its 1908 report, only one had been decided in the supreme court of the United States, although five other cases had been argued, and submitted to that tribunal in October, 1909.

Of course, every carrier affected by an order of the commission has a constitutional right to appeal to a federal court to protect it from the enforcement of an order which it may show to be primafacie confiscatory or unjustly discriminatory in its effect; and as this application may be made to a court in any district of the United States, not only does delay result in the enforcement of the order, but great uncertainty is caused by contrariety of decision.

The questions presented by these applications are too often technical in their character and require a knowledge of the business and the mastery of a great volume of conflicting evidence which is tedious to examine and troublesome to comprehend. It would not be proper to attempt to deprive any corporation of the right to the review by a court of any order or decree which, if undisturbed, would rob it of a reasonable return upon its investment or would subject it to burdens which would unjustly discriminate against it and in favor of other carriers similarly situated. What is, however, of supreme importance is that the decision of such questions shall be as speedy as the nature of the circumstances will admit, and that a uniformity of decision be secured so as to bring about an effective, systematic and scientific enforcement of the commerce law, rather than conflicting decisions and uncertainty of final result.

Recommends "Court of Commerce."

For this purpose I recommend the establishment of a court of the United States composed of five judges designated for such purpose from among the circuit judges of the United States, to be known as the "United States court of commerce," which court shall be clothed with exclusive original jurisdiction over the following classes of cases:

(1) All cases for the enforcement, otherwise than by adjudication and collection, of a forfeiture or penalty, or by infliction of criminal punishment, of any order of the interstate commerce commission other than for the payment of money.

(2) All cases brought to enjoin, set aside, annul or suspend any order or requirement of the interstate commerce commission.

(3) All such cases as under section 3 of the act of February 19, 1903, known as the "Elkins act," are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

(4) All such mandamus proceedings as under the provisions of section 20 or section 23 of the interstate commerce law are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

Reasons precisely analogous to those which induced the congress to create the court of customs appeals by the provisions in the tariff act of August 5, 1909, may be urged in support of the creation of the commerce court.

In order to provide a sufficient number of judges to enable this court to be constituted it will be necessary to authorize the appointment of five additional circuit judges, who, for the purposes of appointment, might be distributed to those circuits where there is at the present time the largest volume of business such as the second, third, fourth, seventh and eighth circuits. The act should empower the chief justice at any time when the business of the court of commerce does not require the services of all the judges to reassign the judges designated to that court to the circuits to which they respectively belong; and it should also provide for payment to such judges while sitting by assignment in the court of commerce of such additional amount as is necessary to bring their annual compensation up to $10,000.

Only Second to Supreme Court.

The regular sessions of such court should be held at the capitol, but it should be empowered to hold sessions in different parts of the United States if found desirable; and its orders and judgments should be made final, subject only to review by the supreme court of the United States, with the provision that the operation of the decree appealed from shall not be stayed unless the supreme court shall so order. The commerce court should be empowered in its discretion to restrain or suspend the operation of an order of the interstate commerce commission under review pending the final hearing and determination of the proceeding, but no such restraining order should be made except upon notice and after hearing, unless in cases where irreparable damage would otherwise ensue to the petitioner. A judge of that court might be empowered to allow a stay of the commission's order for a period of not more than 60 days, but pending application to the court of its order or injunction, then only where his order shall contain a specific finding based upon evidence submitted to the judge making the order and identified by reference thereto that such irreparable damage would result to the petitioner, specifying the nature of the damage.

Under the existing law, the interstate commerce commission itself initiates and defends litigation in the courts for the enforcement, or in the defense of its orders and decrees, and for this purpose it employs attorneys, who, while subject to the control of the attorney general, act upon the initiative and under the instructions of the commission. This blending of administrative, legislative and judicial functions tends, in my opinion, to impair the efficiency of the commission by clothing it with partisan characteristics and robbing it of the impartial judicial attitude it should occupy in passing upon questions submitted to it. In my opinion all litigation affecting the government should be under the direct control of the department of justice; and I therefore recommend that all proceedings affecting orders and decrees of the interstate commerce commission be brought by or against the United States eo nomine, and be placed in charge of an assistant attorney-general acting under the direction of the attorney general.

Would Permit Agreements.

In view of the complete control over rate-making, and other practices of interstate carriers established by the acts of congress, and as recommended in this communication, I see no reason why agreemnts between carriers subject to the act, specifying the classifications of freight and the rates, fares and charges for transportation of passengers and freight which they may agree to establish, should not be permitted, provided, copies of such agreemnts be promptly filed with the commission, but subject to all the provisions of the interstate commerce act, and subject to the right of any parties to such agreemnt to cancel it as to all or any of the agreed rates, fares, charges, or classifications by 30 days' notice in writing to the other parties and to the commission.

Under the existing law the commission can only act with respect to an alleged excessive rate or unduly discriminatory practice by a carrier on a complaint made by some individual affected thereby. I see no reason why the commission should not be authorized to act on its own initiative as well as upon the complaint of an individual in investigating the fairness of any existing rate or practice; and I recommend the amendment of the law to so provide; and also that the commission shall be fully empowered, beyond any question, to pass upon the classifications of commodities for purpose of fixing rates, in like manner as it may now do with respect to the maximum rate applicable to any transportation.

Existing Law Powerless.

Under the existing law the commission may not investigate an increase in rates until after it shall become effective; and although one or more carriers may file with the commission a proposed increase in rates or change in classifications, or other alteration of the existing rates or classifications, to become effective at the expiration of 30 days from such filing, no proceeding can be taken to investigate the reasonableness of such proposed change until after it becomes operative. On the other hand, if the commission shall make an order finding that an existing rate is excessive, and directing it to be reduced, the carrier affected may by proceedings in the courts, stay the operation of such order of reduction for months, and even years. It has, therefore, been suggested that the commission should be empowered whenever a proposed increase in rates is filed, at once to enter upon an investigation of the reasonableness of the increase, and to make an order postponing the effective date of such increase until after such investigation shall be completed. To this much objection has been made on the part of carriers. They contend that this would be in effect to take from the owners of the railroads the management of their properties and to clothe the interstate commerce commission with the original rate-making power—a policy which was much discussed at the time of the passage of the Hepburn act in 1905-6, and which was then and has always been distinctly rejected; and in reply to the suggestion that they are able, by resorting to the courts, to stay the taking effect of the order of the commission until its reasonableness shall have been investigated by the courts, whereas, the people are deprived of any such remedy with respect to action by the carriers, they point to the provisons of the interstate commerce act providing for restitution to the shippers by carriers, of excessive rates charged in cases where the order of the commission reducing such rates are affirmed. It may be doubted how effective this remedy really is.

Experience has shown that many, perhaps most shippers do not resort to proceedings to recover the excessive rates which they may have been required to pay, for the simple reason that they have added the rates paid to the cost of the goods, and thus enhanced the price thereof to their customers, and that the public has in effect paid the bill. On the other hand, the enormous volume of transportation charges, the great number of separate tariffs filed annually with the interstate commerce commission, amounting to almost 200,000, and the impossibility of any commission supervising the making of tariffs in advance of their becoming effective on every transportation line within the United States to the extent that would be necessary if their active concurrence were required in the making of every tariff, has satisfied me that this power, if granted, should be conferred in a very limited and restricted form.

Commission Should Probe Change.

I therefore recommend that the interstate commerce commission be empowered whenever any proposed increase of rates is filed, at once, either on complaint or of its own motion, to enter upon an investigation into the reasonableness of such change, and that it be further empowered, in its discretion, to postpone the effective date of such proposed increase for a period not exceeding 60 days beyond the date when such rate would take effect. If within this time it shall determine that such increase is unreasonable, it may then, by its order, either forbid the increase at all, or fix the maximum beyond which it shall not be made. If, on the other hand, at the expiration of this time, the commission shall not have completed its investigation, then the rates shall take effect precisely as it would under the existing law, and the commission may continue its investigation with such results as might be realized under the law as it now stands.

The claim is very earnestly advanced by some large associations of shippers that shippers of freight should be empowered to direct the route over which their shipments should pass to destination, and in this connection it has been urged that the provisions of section 15 of the interstate commerce act, which now empowers the commission, after hearing on complaint, to establish through routes and maximum joint rates to be charged, etc., when no reasonable or satisfactory through route shall have been already established, be amended so as to empower the commission to take such action, even when one existing reasonable and satisfactory route already exists, if it be possible, to establish additional routes. This seems to me to be a reasonable proposition. I know of no reason why a shipper should not have the right to elect between two or more established through routes to which the international carrier may be a party, and to require his shipment to be transported by such routes as he may designate for that purpose, subject, however, in the exercise of this right to such reasonable regulations as the interstate commerce commission may prescribe.

The Republican platform of 1908 declared in favor of amending the interstate commerce law, but so as always to maintain the principle of competition between naturally competing lines, and avoiding the common control of such lines by any means whatever. One of the most potent means of exercising such control has been through the holding of stock of one railroad company by another company owning a competing line. This condition has grown up under express legislative power conferred by the laws of many states, and to attempt now to suddenly reverse that policy so far as it affects the ownership of stocks heretofore so acquired, would be to inflict grievous injury, not only upon the corporations affected but upon a large body of the investment holding public.

Plan to End Rail Combine.

I, however, recommend that the law shall be amended so as to provide that from and after the date of its passage no railroad company subject to the interstate commerce act shall, directly or indirectly, acquire any interests of any kind in capital stock or purchase or lease any railroad of any other corporation which competes with it respecting business to which the interstate commerce act applies. But especially for the protection of the minority stockholders in securing to them the best market for ther stock, I recommend that such prohibition be coupled with a proviso that it shall not operate to prevent any corporation which, at the date of passage of such act, shall own not less than one-half of the entire issued and outstanding capital stock of any other railroad company, from acquiring all or the remainder of such stock; nor to prohibit any railroad company which at the date of the enactment of the law is operating a railroad of any other corporation under lease, executed of a term not less than 25 years, from acquiring the reversionary ownership of the demised railroad; but that such provisions shall not operate to authorize or validate the acquisition, through stock ownership or otherwise, of a competing line or interest therein in violation of the anti-trust or any other law.

The Republican platform of 1908 further declares in favor of such national legislation and supervision as will prevent the future over-issue of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers, and in order to carry out its provisions I recommend the enactment of a law providing that no railroad corporation subject to the interstate commerce act shall hereafter for any purpose connected with or relating to any part of its business governed by said act, issue any capital stock without previous or simultaneous payment to it of not less than the par value of such stock, or any bonds or other obligations (except notes maturing not more than one year from the date of their issue), without the previous or simultaneous payment to such corporation of not less than the par value of such bonds, or other obligations, or, if issued at less than their par value, then not without such payment of the reasonable market value of such bonds or obligations as ascertained by the interstate commerce commission; and that no property, service, or other thing than money, shall be taken in payment to such carrier corporation, of the par or other required price of such stock, bond or other obligation, except the fair value of such property, services or other thing ascertained by the commission; and that such act shall also contain provisions to prevent the abuse by the improvident or improper issue of notes maturing at a period not exceeding 12 months from date, in such manner as to commit the commission to the approval of a larger amount of stock or bonds in order to retire such notes than should legitimately have been retired.

Such act should also provide for the approval by the interstate commerce commission of the amount of stock and bonds to be issued by any railroad company subject to this act upon any reorganization, pursuant to judicial sale or other legal proceedings, in order to prevent the issue of stocks and bonds to an amount in excess of the fair value of the property which is the subject of such reorganization.

By my direction the attorney general has drafted a bill to carry out these recommendations, which will be furnished upon request to the appropriate committee whenever it may be desired.

ANTI-TRUST LAW AND FEDERAL INCORPORATIONS

Government Control of Big Industrial Corporations Favored—Asserts Scope of Present Law Is Too Wide.

There has been a marked tendency in business in this country for 40 years last past toward combinations of capital and plant in manufacture, sale and transportation. The moving causes have been several: First, it has rendered possible great economy; second, by a union of former competitors it has reduced the probability of excessive competition; and, third, if the combination has been extensive enough, and certain methods in the treatment of competitors and customers have been adopted, the combiners have secured a monopoly and complete control of prices or rates.

A combination successful in achieving complete control over a particular line of manufacture has frequently been called a "trust." I presume that the derivation of the word is to be explained by the fact that a usual method of carrying out the plan of the combination has been to put the capital and plants of various individuals, firms, or corporations engaged in the same business under the control of trustees.

The increase in the capital of a business for the purpose of reducing the cost of production and effecting economy in the management has become as essential in modern progress as the change from the hand tool to the machine. When, therefore, we come to construe the object of congress in adopting the so-called "Sherman Anti-Trust Act" in 1890, whereby in the first section every contract, combination in the form of a trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, is condemned as unlawful and made subject to indictment and restraint by injunction; and whereby in the second section every monopoly or attempt to monopolize, and every combination or conspiracy with other persons to monopolize any part of interstate trade or commerce, is denounced as illegal and made subject to similar punishment or restraint, we must infer that the evil aimed at was not the mere bigness of the enterprise, but it was the aggregation of capital and plants with the express or implied intent to restrain interstate or foreign commerce, or to monopolize it in whole or in part.

Trust Not Necessarily Bad.

Monopoly destroys competition entirely and the restraint of the full and free operation of competition has a tendency to restrain commerce and trade. A combination of persons, formerly engaged in trade as partnerships or corporations or otherwise of course eliminates the competition that existed between them; but the incidental ending of that competition is not to be regarded as necessarily a direct restraint of trade, unless of such an all-embracing character that the intention and effect to restrain trade are apparent from the circumstances or are expressly declared to be the object of the combination. A mere incidental restraint of trade and competition is not within the inhibition of the act, but it is where the combination or conspiracy or contract is inevitably and directly a substantial constraint of competition, and so a restraint of trade, that the statute is violated.

The second condition of the act is supplement of the first. A direct restraint of trade such as is condemned in the first section, if successful and used to suppress competition, is one of the commonest methods of securing a trade monopoly, condemned in the second section.

It is possible for the owners of a business of manufacturing and selling useful articles of merchandise so to conduct their business as not to violate the inhibitions of the anti-trust law and yet to secure to themselves the benefit of the economies of management and of production due to the concentration under one control of large capital and many plants. If they use no other inducement than the constant low price of their product and its good quality to attract custom, and their business is a profitable one, they violate no law. If their actual competitors are small in comparison with the total capital invested, the prospect of new investments of capital by others in such a profitable business is sufficiently near and potential to restrain them in the prices at which they sell their product. But if they attempt by a use of their preponderating capital, and by a sale of their goods temporarily at unduly low prices, to drive out of business their competitors, or if they attempt, by exclusive contracts with their patrons and threats of non-dealing, except upon such contracts or by other methods of a similar character, to use the largeness of their resources and the extent of their output compared with the total output as a means of compelling custom and frightening off competition, then they disclose a purpose to restrain trade and to establish a monopoly, and violate the act.

Law to Suppress Abuses.

The object of the anti-trust law was to suppress the abuses of business of the kind described. It was not to interfere with a great volume of capital which, concentrated under one organization, reduced the cost of production and made its profit thereby, and took no advantage of its size, by methods akin to duress, to stifle competition with it.

I wish to make this distinction as emphatic as possible, because I conceive that nothing could happen more destructive to the prosperity of this country than the loss of that great economy in production which has been and will be effected in all manufacturing lines by the employment of large capital under one management. I do not mean to say that there is not a limit beyond which the economy of management by the enlargement of plant ceases; and where this happens and combination continues beyond this point, the very fact shows intent to monopolize and not to economize.

The original purpose of many combinations of capital in this country was not confined to the legitimate and proper object of reducing the cost of production. On the contrary, the history of most trades will show at times a feverish desire to unite by purchase, combination, or otherwise, all the plants in the country engaged in the manufacture of a particular line of goods. The idea was rife that thereby a monopoly could be effected and a control of prices brought about which would inure to the profit of those engaged in the combination. The path of commerce is strewn with failures of such combinations. Their projectors found that the union of all plants did not prevent competition, especially where proper economy had not been pursued in the purchase and in the conduct of the business after the aggregation was complete. There were enough, however, of such successful combinations to arouse the fears of good, patriotic men as to the result of a continuance of this movement toward the concentration in the hands of a few of the absolute control of the prices of all manufactured products.

Refers to Sugar Trust Case.

The anti-trust statute was passed in 1890, and prosecutions were soon begun under it. In the case of the United States vs. Knight, known as the "sugar trust case," because of the narrow scope of the pleadings, the combination sought to be enjoined was held not to be included within the prohibition of the act, because the averments did not go beyond the mere acquisition of manufacturing plants for the refining of sugar, and did not include that of a direct and intended restraint upon trade and commerce in the sale and delivery of sugar across state boundaries and in foreign trade. The result of the sugar trust case was not happy, in that it gave other companies and combinations seeking a similar method of making profit by establishing in absolute control and monopoly in a particular line of manufacture, a sense of immunity against prosecutions in the federal jurisdiction, and where that jurisdiction is barred in respect to a business which is necessarily commensurate with the boundaries of the country, no state prosecution is able to supply the needed machinery for adequate restraint or punishment.

Following the sugar trust decision, there have come along in the slow but certain course of judicial disposition cases involving a construction of the anti-trust statute and its application, until now they seem to embrace every phase of that law which can be practically presented to the American public and to the government for action. They show that the anti-trust act has a wide scope and applies to many combinations in actual operation, rendering them unlawful and subject to indictment and restraint.

Amendment Unnecessary.

The supreme court in several of its decisions, has declined to read into the statute the word "unreasonable" before "restraint of trade," on the ground that the statute applies to all restraints and does not intend to leave the court the discretion to determine what is a reasonable restraint of trade. The expression "restraint of trade" comes from the common law, and at common law there were certain covenants incidental to the carrying out of a main or principal contract which were said to be covenants in partial restraint of trade, and were held to be enforcible because "reasonably" adapted to the performance of the main or principal contract, and under the general contract, and under the general language used by the supreme court in several cases, it would seem that even such incidental covenants in restraint of interstate trade were within the inhibition of the statute and must be condemned.

In order to avoid such a result, I have thought and said that it might be well to amend the statute so as to exclude such covenants from its condemnation. A close examination of the later decisions of the court, however, shows quite clearly in cases presenting the exact question, that such incidental restraints of trade are held not to be within the law and are excluded by the general statement that, to be within the statute, the effect upon the trade of the restraint must be direct and not merely incidental or indirect. The necessity, therefore, for an amendment of the statute so as to exclude these incidental and beneficial covenants in restraint of trade held in common law to be reasonable, does not exist.

In some of the opinions of the federal circuit judges, there have been intimations, having the effect, if sound, to weaken the force of the statute by including within it absurdly unimportant combinations and arrangements, and suggesting, therefore, the wisdom of changing its language by limiting its application to serious combinations with intent to restrain competition or control prices. A reading of the opinions of the supreme court, however, makes the change unnecessary, for they exclude from the operation of the act contracts affecting interstate trade in but a small and incidental way, and apply the statute only to the real evil aimed at by congress.

The statute has been on the statute book now for two decades, and the supreme court in more than a dozen opinions has construed it in application to various phases of business combinations and in reference to various subject matter. It has applied it to the union under one control of two competing interstate railroads, to private manufacturers engaged in a plain attempt to control prices and suppress competition in a part of the country, including a dozen states, and to many other combinations affecting interstate trade. The value of a statute which is rendered more and more certain in its meaning by a series of decisions of the supreme court furnishes a strong reason for leaving the act as it is, to accomplish its useful purpose, even though if it were being newly enacted, useful suggestions as to change of phrase might be made.

For Government Control.

Many people conducting great businesses have cherished a hope and a belief that in some way or other a line may be drawn between "good trusts" and "bad trusts," and that it is possible by amendment to the anti-trust law to make a distinction under which good combinations may be permitted to organize, suppress competition, control prices, and do it all legally if only they do not abuse the power by taking too great profit out of the business. They point with force to certain notorious trusts as having grown into power through criminal methods by the use of illegal rebates and plain cheating, and by various acts utterly violative of business honesty or morality, and urge the establishment of some legal line of separation by which "criminal trusts" of this kind can be punished, and they, on the other hand, be permitted under the law to carry on their business. Now, the public, and especially the business public, ought to rid themselves of the idea that such a distinction is practicable or can be introduced into the statute.

Certainly under the present anti-trust law no such distinction exists. It has been proposed, however, that the word "reasonable" should be made a part of the statute, and then it should be left to the court to say what is a reasonable restraint of trade, what is a reasonable suppression of competition, what is a reasonable monopoly. I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to just judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden that they have no precedents to enable them to carry, and to give them a power approaching arbitration, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster.

An Aid to Business Virtue.

In considering violations of the anti-trust law we ought, of course, not to forget that that law makes unlawful, methods of carrying on business which before its passage were regarded as evidence of business sagacity and success, and that they were denounced in this act not because of their intrinsic immorality, but because of the dangerous results toward which they tended, the concentration of industrial power in the hands of the few, leading to oppression and injustice. In dealing, therefore, with many of the men who have used the methods condemned by the statute for the purpose of maintaining a profitable business, we may well facilitate a change by them in the method of doing business, and enable them to bring it back into the zone of lawfulness, without losing to the country the economy of management by which, in our domestic trade the cost of production has been materially lessened, and in competition with foreign manufacturers our foreign trade has been greatly increased.

Through all our consideration of this grave question, however, we must insist that the suppression of competition, the controlling of prices, and the monopoly or attempt to monopolize in interstate commerce and business are not only unlawful, but contrary to the public good, and that they must be restrained and punished until ended.

Asks National Corporation Law.

I therefore recommend the enactment by congress of a general law providing for the formation of corporations to engage in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations, protecting them from undue interference by the states and regulating their activities so as to prevent the recurrence, under national auspices, of those abuses which have arisen under state control. Such a law should provide for the issue of stock of such corporations to an amount equal only to the cash paid in on the stock; and if the stock be issued for property, then at a fair valuation ascertained under approval and supervision of federal authority after a full and complete disclosure of all the facts pertaining to the value of such property and the interest therein of the persons to whom it is proposed to issue stock in payment of such property. It should subject the real and personal property only of such corporations to the same taxation as imposed by the states within which it may be situated upon other similar property located therein, and it should require such corporations to file full and complete reports of their operations with the department of commerce and labor at regular intervals. Corporations organized under this act should be prohibited from acquiring and holding stock in other corporations (except for special reasons upon approval by the proper federal authority), thus avoiding the creation, under national auspices, of the holding company with subordinate corporations in different states which has been such an effective agency in the creation of the great trusts and monopolies.

If the prohibition of the anti-trust act against combinations in restraint of trade is to be effectively enforced, it is essential that the national government shall provide for the creation of national corporations to carry on a legitimate business throughout the United States. The conflicting laws of the different states of the union with respect to foreign corporations make it difficult, if not impossible, for one corporation to comply with their requirements so as to carry on business in a number of different states.

To the suggestion that this proposal of federal incorporation for industrial combinations is intended to furnish them a refuge in which to continue industrial business under federal protection. It should be said that the measure contemplated does not repeal the Sherman anti-trust law and is not to be framed so as to permit the doing of the wrongs which it is the purpose of that law to prevent, but only to foster a continuance and advance of the highest industrial efficiency without permitting industrial abuses.

Sure to Meet Opposition.

Such a national incorporation law will be opposed, first, by those who believe that trusts should be completely broken up and their property destroyed. It will be opposed, second, by those who doubt the constitutionality of such federal incorporation and even if it is valid, object to it as too great federal centralization. It will be opposed, third, by those who will insist that a mere voluntary incorporation like this will not attract to its assistance the worst of the offenders against the anti-trust statute and who will therefore propose instead of it a system of compulsory licenses for all federal corporations engaged in interstate business.

Let us consider these objections in their order. The government is now trying to dissolve some of these combinations and it is not the intention of the government to desist in the least degree in its effort to end these combinations which are today monopolizing the commerce of this country; that where it appears that the acquisition and concentration of property go to the extent of creating a monopoly of substantially and directly restraining interstate commerce, it is not the intention of the government to permit this monopoly to exist under federal incorporation or to transfer to the protecting wing of the federal government of a state corporation now violating the Sherman act. But it is not, and should not be, the policy of the government to prevent reasonable concentration of capital which is necessary to the economic development of manufacture, trade and commerce. This country has shown power of economic production that has astonished the world, and has enabled us to compete with foreign manufacturers in many markets. It should be the care of the government to permit such concentration of capital while keeping open the avenues of individual enterprise, and the opportunity for a man or corporation with reasonable capital to engage in business. If we would maintain our present business supremacy, we should give to industrial concerns an opportunity to organize or to concentrate their legitimate capital in a federal corporation, and to carry on their large business within the lines of the law.

May Doubt Constitutionality.

Second—There are those who doubt the constitutionality of such federal incorporation. The regulation of interstate and foreign commerce is certainly conferred in the fullest measure upon congress, and if for the purpose of securing in the most thorough manner that kind of regulation, congress shall insist that it may provide and authorize agencies to carry on that commerce, it would seem to be within its power, this has been distinctly affirmed with respect to railroad companies doing an interstate business and interstate bridges. The power of incorporation has been exercised by congress and upheld by the supreme court in this regard. Why, then, with respect to any other form of interstate commerce like the sale of goods across state boundaries and into foreign countries, may the same power not be asserted? Indeed, it is the very fact that they carry on interstate commerce that makes these great industrial concerns subject to federal prosecution and control. How far as incidental to the carrying on of that commerce it may be within the power of the federal government to authorize the manufacturer of goods, is perhaps more open to discussion, though a recent decision of the supreme court would seem to answer that question in the affirmative.

Even those who are willing to concede that the supreme court may sustain such federal incorporation are inclined to oppose it on the ground of its tendency to the enlargement of the federal power at the expense of the power of the state. It is a sufficient answer to this argument to say that no other method can be suggested which offers federal protection on the one hand and close federal supervision on the other of these great organizations that are in fact federal because they are as wide as the country and are entirely unlimited in their business by state lines. Nor is the centralization of federal power under this act likely to be excessive. Only the largest corporations would avail themselves of such a law, because the burden of complete federal supervision and control that must certainly be imposed to accomplish the purpose of the incorporation would not be accepted by an ordinary business concern. The third objection, that the worst offenders will not accept federal incorporation, is easily answered. The decrees of injunction recently adopted in prosecutions under the anti-trust law are so thorough and sweeping that the corporations affected by them have but three courses before them:

First, they must resolve themselves into their component parts in the different states, with a consequent loss to themselves of capital and effective organization and to the country of concentrated energy and enterprise; or second, in defiance of the law and under some secret trust they must attempt to continue their business in violation of the federal statute, and thus incur the penalties of contempt and bring on an inevitable criminal prosecution of the individuals named in the decree and their associates; or

Third, they must reorganize and accept in good faith the federal charter I suggest a federal compulsory license law, urged as a substitute for a federal incorporation law, is unnecessary except to reach that kind of corporation which, by virtue of the considerations already advanced, will take advantage voluntarily of an incorporation law, while the other state corporations doing an interstate business do not need the supervision or the regulation of federal license and would only be unnecessarily burdened thereby.

The attorney general, at my suggestion, has drafted a federal incorporation law, embodying the views I have attempted to set forth and it will be at the disposition of the appropriate committees of congress.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The White House, Jan. 7, 1910.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Farmers that have not threshed should endeavor to save all the flax, as it is worth about its weight in gold this year

A. P. Tounin has assumed his duties as Register of the U. S. Land office at Crookston, and we are of the opinion that he will earn his salery for the next month or so

There is likely to be another republican convention in Red Lake county this year at which the clever towns delegates will not be voteing against each other but togeather, solid to a man

The action of the County dads in letting the county printing shows that they have no intention of trying to serve the people and tax payers, but it was to hl with the people we are running the business. Well that's what old king George said but he got put out of business on July 4th 1776.

Postmaster Elie Steenerson, of Crookston has been made defendant in a $10,000 law suit brought by a rural mail carrier who got fired last fall. Mail carriers must be getting pretty big pay down there when it is $10,000 damage to them to get fired. He had better come up on Red Lake reservation and get a job of cutting cord wood, and make money.

The Highlanding Correspondent to the Thief River Falls Press is likely to be called on to prove some of the statements they have been making in District court, or suffer the penelty of libel. Are you prepared to prove, before a jury of 12 men that there was a dance at Mr. Beaudrys on Christmas night? Are you prepared to prove before a jury of 12 men in court that Andrew Ellingson is running a blind pig? If you can prove these statements Mr. Correspondent you had better look up your witnesses and get ready for business, or quit writeing such rot, and "go way back and sit down."

The share holders of the Highlanding Creamery Assoa. held their anual meeting at the creamery on Monday last and the following board of directors were elected: Alfred Hammersteen, Ole Howard, Ole Overson, P. P. Palmer, G. Swenson, P.H. Thorson, Sever Nelson and John Poloni, A resolution was passed, to have each individual share holder provide for the payment of the shares subscribed by him. The report of the officials shows that the creamery is in a healthy and prosperous condition, and have been running through the entire winter, and will make a large increse in the business the comming

Trouble Ahead.

A north country coroner is said to be waiting the suicide of a local poet who wrote about clasping "the two tremulous hands" of his ladylove, but which the printer made to read "the two tremendous hands."—London Mail.

A Queer Question.

Small Harold (at the zoo)—What is that funny looking bird, papa? Papa—That is a bald eagle, Harold. Small Harold—How long does an eagle have to be married before he gets bald, papa?—Chicago News.

Usually Has To.

"Say, paw, what is a genius?"

"A genius is a man who can do his own washing, sewing and cooking, my boy."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota.
County of Red Lake, S. S.
District Court.
14th. Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ———Plaintiff.
Vs
Axel Engman. ———Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the above named defendant.

You are hereby summond and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

E. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9.—1. 21.-10.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR DISTRIBUTION.

ESTATE OF Ole Overum.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE. IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole Overum Decedent

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO Barbra Overum Geneva Overum, and Clifford Overum and all persons interested in the final account and ditribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court her final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, togeather with her petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for ditribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled: THEREFORE YOU AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms, in the City of Red Lake Falls in the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910, at 5 o'clock P.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, The Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 28th, day of December 1909.

S. A. Swanson
[Court Seal] Judge of Probate,

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec 17th. 1909
Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota December 13. 1909.

NOTICE is hereby given that Aslak Person, of Malone Minneesota, who on October 4th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 676. Serial No. 04251, for N.W. ¼ Section 12, township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 20th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Gunder Asbjornson, Targer Lanji, Salve T. Myrum Ole Askland, all of Malone Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE,
Register.

The Fate of the Oneida.

One of the most extraordinary catastrophies that have befallen vessels of the United States destroyed the sloop of war Oneida in 1869. She was bound homeward, with a jolly ship's company, eager to see wives and sweethearts and native land once more, when not far out of port she was struck by the British steamer Bombay coming in. The stem of the Bombay cut off the stern of the Oneida. The ship was sinking rapidly, and guns of distress were immediately fired, but the Bombay steamed on her way and left the vessel to her doom. She went down, and all but one or two of her crew were drowned. The captain of the Bombay gave no other reason for his conduct than that he had Lady Eyre, the wife of a distinguished British satrap, on board and did not wish to disturb her nerves with scenes of shipwreck. He was mobbed when he reached Yokohama, dismissed from the service, socially tabooed from that time on, and died in disgrace a year or two later.

An Arbitrary Classification.

"So you think every patriot has a more or less clearly defined ambition to hold public office?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "As a rule, patriots may be divided into two classes—the appointed and the disappointed."—Washington Star.

New South Wales.

In New South Wales the seasons are Spring—September, October, November; summer—December, January, February; autumn—March, April, May; winter—June, July, August.

The Generous Barber.

"Here, I say! Be a bit more careful with that razor. That's the second time you've cut me."

"Well, well, so it is. But there! I always deduct a ha'penny for every cut. Why, it's nothing for a man to go out of here having won fourpence off me."—London Tatler.

AUCTION SALE.

Saturday January 22nd, 1910.

At the farm of Nels Ofte, S.W. 1-4 Section 36 TOWN OF KRATKA.

The following property wil be sold to the Higest bidder

1 Horse 12 years old, weight 1400 lbs.

1 Horse 11 years old, weight 1400 lbs.

One Mare, weight 1200 lbs.

1 Bay Horse, weight 1200 lbs.

1 Milch cow 6 years old.

1 Milch cow 5 years old.

2 set of double harness.

1 wide tired wagon.

1 Narrow tired wagon.

1 New Champion mower.

1 16 inch breaking plow.

1 Harrow.

1 Power hay sling.

1 Hay rack,

1 Road cart.

1 Gasoline cook stove.

1 Wood cook stove,

1 Heating stove.

1 Pair bob sleighs.

2 Tons of hay, and some oats.

Other farming tools and household good to numerous to mention.

Terms of Sale

On all sums under $10. Cash. On sums of $10,00 or over time will be given to November 1st, 1910, on bankable papers.

Nels Ofte, Owner.
H. K. Homme, Auctioneer
Oscar Sponheim, Clerk.

Notice For Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. January 7, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 25th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 300, Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above describe; before Wilhelm Michelet: U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Carl Uebelank, August Ristau, of Thief River Falls Minn. Jacob Jonas, Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Abraham P. Torpin,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th. 1909.
Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 14th, 1909.
Notice is hereby given that, Lewis T. Burgh, of Plummer Minn., who on October 14th, 1904, made Homestead entry No 671, Serial No. 04249, for N.E. ¼ Section 17 Township 152 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to, the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John L. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. Johnson, Tom Mandt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13. 1909.
Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 285, Serial No. 04116 for N. E ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 17th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter Flo, Haaken Nabben, August Johnson, John Carlson all of Thorwik Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th, 1909.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909
Notice is hereby given that Andreas Anensen of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entery No. 1183, Serial No. 04482, for Lots 3, 4, S.E. ¼ N.W. ¼ Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th, day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn. Gunder Asbjernson, of Malone Minn. Elias Mostue, of Sunbeam Minn. Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

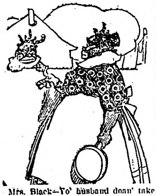
The Color of Lakes.

Some lakes are distinctly blue, others are of various shades of green, so that in some cases they are scarcely distinguishable from their level, grass surrounded banks. A few, too, are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green, while the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The Lake of Brienz is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Thun, is blue.

Fashion, Not Health.

In nine cases out of ten, says the Iowa Health Bulletin, if a physician tells a woman that in order to improve her health she must wear her clothes in a certain way she will follow the advice of her dressmaker instead.

The Drone.



Mrs. Black—Yo' husband doan' take much interest in baseball, do he, Mrs. Brown? Now, my husband am always talkin' about de home plate.

Mrs. Brown—Huh! De only plate mah husband talks about am de dinneh plate.

Three Tightwads.

Speaking of tightwads, a Texas paper says: It is reported that three of the stingiest men in the state were in town yesterday. One of them will not drink as much water as he wants unless it is from another man's well. The second forbids any of his family from writing anything but a small hand, as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops his clock at night in order to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of them decline to take their county paper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read newspapers even in the daytime.

Food Scarce.

"This circular describing the Mountingside says you can sit at the dinner table and see the beautiful mountain peaks," said the man who contemplated going.

"That is true," replied the one who had been, "and that's just about all you can see."—Yonkers Statesman.

He Saw a Great Light.

Wrecks on the coast of Cornwall, England, were once a source of revenue to the natives. A writer says that in the local dialect "the folks on the coast taich their children to zay in their prayers night times, 'God bless father an' mother an' zend a ship to shore vore mornin'.'" The Cornish folk were great smugglers too. The Rev. R. S. Hawker had in his service as man of all work old Tristram Pentire, the last of the smugglers. One day he made to the vicar this notable confession: "Well, sir, I do think, when I come to look back and to consider what lives we used to live—drunk all night and idle abed all day, cursing, swearing, fighting, gambling, lying and always prepared to shoot the gauger—I do really believe, sir, we surely was in sin!"

Brought Down the House.

On one occasion, when Arthur Roberts, the English actor, was performing the part of Captain Crosstree in the burlesque of "Black Eyed Susan" at Glasgow he converted an awkward contretemps into a hit. In one of the scenes Crosstree entered supposed to be inebriated and staggered about the stage. In doing so Mr. Roberts accidentally came in contact with the scenery of the inn, bringing the whole set down. The curtain had to be lowered, and the vivacious comedian came to the front and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, you see when we come to Glasgow we always bring down the house."

Weak men never yield at the proper time.—Latin.

Late Hour Explained.

"What kept you until this late hour?" asked the husband of his suffragette wife.

"Well, my dear," she answered meekly, "you see it took us an hour to greet one another, the meeting lasted thirty minutes, and the rest of the time was spent in saying goodby."—Detroit Free Press.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors. Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY:

D. N. Winton,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.
Officers.

C. L. Hansen...... Pesident.—
Daniel Patterson ..Vice Pres.
A. D. Stephens.... ...2nd Vice Pres.
B. E. Burker.........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

If you have Headache Try One

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 80 tons of upland hay. in the Town of Deer Park
G.A.Hoveland, R.F. D No. 1
Fosston Minn.

There is to be a grand public ball at the Kolski hall in Deer Park on Saturday evening Jan. 22nd,.

There was a load of the young people drove over from Lillo to attend the Kolski ball on Saturday evening.

Edward Singer and Oscar Nesland have started up their gasoline wood saw rig, and doing a rushing business.

The Ole Giving threshing rig tried to start up Wednesday, but broke the cogs in the traction of the enjine and are again laid up for repairs.

George Singer left for Gully yesterday, where he went to settle with the Soo railroad for the right of way accross his farm over there.

Knut Sannes, of Ma'one is getting out our summers wood for us this week, and him and the horse are busy go'devling from the woods to the door yard.

This is fine weather for chopping cord wood and the farmers who have a surpluss of wood should get it chopped and piled up for they can sell it at a good price this year

Oscar Nesland and sister Miss Guneld Nesland made this office a plesent call on Monday. Oscar was going over to Kratka to run a gasoline enjine for Singer bros. and his sister was taking him over with a team, and said she was chargeing him 10 cents a mile.

The board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county still stand three to two, so in refering to our county "dads" in another colum we mean the "shadwo of three," and not the manority of two, and it does seem as if the people that pay the taxes had ought to be considered a little. but the way the circulation of the official proceeding of the County Commissioner of this county is arranged they will be read by only about 20 per cent of the tax payers.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2.00 per cord.
Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

At the anual meeting of the Red Lake River Transportation Co. held at the Highlanding school house last Monday the follow board of directors were elected: A.D. Brown, Gundor Asbjornson, Walter McAndress, Alfred Hammersteen, P. C. Wold, Andrew Ellingson, Stephen Singer, Peter Hedeen, D. A. Kolstrand, T. S. Jacobson, and W. G. Hunt. Most of the members of the board was present and qualified and they will meet at Highlanding tomorrow to organize and elect officers, and the R.L.R. T. Co. may yet be a lively corps.

Might Be on One's Nose.

"Don't get down in the mouth, old man," said the optimist. "Look on the bright side of things."

"That's all very well," mournfully replied the sufferer, "but what is the bright side of a gumboil?"

Answering A Foolish Question.

Lecturer—Mr. Committeeman, I want a glass of water placed on a small table on the stage tonight. Committeeman—To drink? Lecturer—No; I make a high dive in the second paragraph.—Chicago News.

All is holy where devotion kneels.—Holmes.

It Quieted Mother.

The house was all paid for. Mother was exultant, jubilant, reiterative. "Say, mother," burst out six-year-old Paul eagerly, "print it on your cards, mother, print it on your cards!"—De[illegible]

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

News are searse this week.

Mr. Mrs. H Simonson, from Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. E.Siminson of Mineapolis, visited with the family of A.Rolandson on Thursday last.

Mr. Ole Legvold made a business trip to Plummer Wednesday.

Miss Annie Green left for Red Lake Falls Monday, where she will attend high school

Mr. Knut Sunsdahl left for McIntosh Monday for a visit with his uncle Ole Sunsdahl.

Mr. Andrew Leivig returned to his work last Friday after spending Xmas with the home folks at St.Hilaire.

Andrew Rolandson, Jens Fore. and Knut Erickson transacted business at Red Lake Falls last Thursday.

The Clearwater Young peoples society will meet at the home of Ida Lillo next Sunday, Every body invited.

There was a little party at the home of Ida Lillo on last Sunday night and a very plesent evening was spent by all.

Christ Lindberg left for his home at Beltrami last Saturday. after a short visit with friends in this locality.

There will be religious services at the home of E V. Carlson next Sunday at 2 o'clock p m All are invited to come,

There was a little party at the home of A Rolandson last Saturday evening and we guess every body had a good time,

NOTICE OF MONEY FOR PAYMENT OF SCHOOL [illegible] ORDERS.

NOTICE, is hereby given that there is money in the treasury of School District No. 87, Red Lake County Minnesota, for the payment of school order No. 37, dated November 14th, 1908, given to Ida Bjorge for $50,00 for teaching school. Also school order No. 61, on above named district, dated January 16th, 1909, for the sum of $100, given to Ida Bjorge for teaching school.

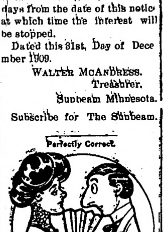
The holder, or holders of the above discribed orders are hereby notified to present the same to the undersigned, within 10 days from the date of this notice at which time the interest will be stopped.

Dated this 31st, Day of December 1909.

WALTER MCANDRESS.
Treasurer,
Sunbeam Minnesota.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

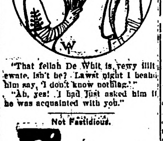
Perfectly Correct.



"That fellah De Whit is vewy illitewate, isn't he? Lawst night I heard him say, 'I don't know nothing.'"

"Ah, yes! I had just asked him if he was acquainted with you."

Not Fastidious.



The Heiress (in a rage)—Leave my presence or I shall make you quail.

The Duke (smiling)—I'm not particular about the quail, miss. I'd be satisfied with a ham sandwich.

Not Unanimous.

She—There's Mrs. Toozle. She seems quite reconciled to the death of her first husband. He—Yes, but I'm afraid her second never will be.—Illustrated Bits.

NEWS! News!
Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.
SINGER BOS,
RHODA & KRATKA,
Is the cheapest and best place to
Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices
Clothing.
WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS. UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS
We can save you money on Shoes & Cloching
Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce
Youre For Bsciness.-- SINGCR BROS.
Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

A Happy Compromise.

"What a beautiful little baby he is!" exclaimed the neighbor who had called. "He isn't six months old yet, either," said the proud young mother, "and he weighs over twenty pounds."

"What have you named him?"

"Well," hesitated the mother, "Henry and I differed a little about that. He wanted to give him one name, and I wanted to give him another, but we finally compromised and agreed to call him John Wesley."

"I see. You named him after the great founder of Meth"—

"No, indeed," quickly interrupted the mother. "That name, as I said, is a compromise."

"But how?"

"The 'John' is for John Calvin, and the 'Wesley' is for John Wesley."

"Oh, I see."—Youth's Companion.

Harold Chose the Easier Way.

Maynard had been naughty, and his father, after showing him his fault, had sent him up to his room to ask God to forgive him for being a bad boy. Three-year-old Harold was present, but seemed to take no notice of the conversation. It was his turn, however, before many days to receive punishment, and his father took him across his knee. "Oh, don't, papa," he said. "I would rather go upstairs and pray."—Delineator.

John's Great Loss.

"For goodness' sake, Harriet, why so sad?"

"The cook's left, but that isn't the worst of it. She took with her the recipe book for all the things John's mother used to make."—Brooklyn Life.

Nocturnal Tragedy.

It is a dark night. It is also a dark kitchen. The kind hearted man in his stocking feet is after a drink of water for his fretful youngster. He thinks he can find his way in the inky darkness. He is mistaken. He turns to the left instead of to the right and falls down cellar.

Another good man gone wrong.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ODD ELECTION SIGNS.

The Signs Are In Washington, the Elections Elsewhere.

"Of course we don't have any elections of our own," said a man from Washington, "but we have election intimations, if I may call them that, which can't be duplicated anywhere else in the country.

"You see, when we Washingtonians want to vote we've got to do it somewhere else, and as most of us have a lingering fondness for the franchise we are pretty likely to hang on to a residence somewhere outside the District.

"We especially like to do it because it makes us feel as if we had some sort of weapon to flourish before the observing eyes of the politicians who may have something to say about our hold on our jobs, and when the time comes to go home to vote we visibly swell with importance.

"Naturally a national election is the one that catches us all at once, and it is then that the intimations I spoke of do most abound. The papers are full of advertisements of loans for election expenses. Department clerks can be accommodated with sums covering their railway fare, new clothes for the trip and a substantial margin over and above necessary items. The interest is a bit high, but a clerk who is pining to go back home to splurge a bit is willing to mortgage his resources for the pleasure.

"These offers of loans fill columns of the daily papers. Alongside of them are other advertisements, all turning on the one theme, the election. 'Buy yourself a new suit to go home and vote in!' The grammar is a bit off, but the prices are asserted to be all right.

"In the shop windows there are dozens of election placards: 'Just the hat to wear when you go home to vote,' 'Specials in suit cases for the election,' 'Take a souvenir hatpin to your best girl when you go home to vote,' 'Swell suit for the election, only $1 a week,' and in a shoe store window, 'Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching—home to vote; wear ——'s shoes and you won't get sore feet!'

"The railways offer special rates to voters, and so it goes. You won't find anything like it in any other town."—New York Sun.

THE MERCHANTS
State Bank,
OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,
THAT RAISE CROPS.
For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.
☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.
Call on, or adress, W. G HUNT,
Snnbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN
It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.
Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING. HIGH GRADE.
Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

A Singular Meal.

One of the most singular meals ever eaten was that given to a select few by an antiquary named Goebel in Brussels some years ago. The bread was made from wheat grown before the children of Israel passed out of Egypt, and it was spread with butter made when Elizabeth ruled England. For fruit there were apples which ripened before the Christian era, and the wine was older than the white man's knowledge of the new world. The bread was made from wheat taken from a chamber in one of the pyramids, the butter (of which there were several pounds) had been found in an earthen crock on a stone shelf under the icy waters of a well in Scotland. A pantry in the ruins of Pompeii had furnished the jar of apples (which were as sweet and finely flavored as if only a few months old), and the flagon of wine had been recovered from an old vault in Corinth. Six guests enjoyed this amazing meal.—Chicago News

Reminders.

Mrs.—He said I reminded him of a Greek goddess. Mr.—Huh! Mrs.—What do I remind you of? Mr.—Of every darned thing I overlook that you ask me to do.—Cleveland Leader.

The temple of fame stands upon the grave. The flame that burns upon its altars is kindled from the ashes of dead men.

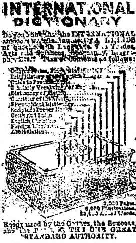
The Poet's Son.

"Why, Freddy, how dirty you are, and only yesterday you wrote a verse for papa's birthday, promising always to wash your hands clean."

"Well, mamma, that was only a poetic license."—Fliegende Blatter.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOME
If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co.
Thief River Falls; Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN
McCALL PATTERNS Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. [illegible] any other make. Send for free catalogue.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK



MANY BOOKS [illegible]
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
[illegible]
2,380 Pages. 5,000 Illustrations. 25,000 Added Words.
Regularly used by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.
Should You Not Own Such a Book?
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. [illegible] 1116 Pages, 1400 Illus.
[illegible] "DICTIONARY WRINKLES," and Specimen Pages. Mention in your request this publication [illegible] of the United States, Cuba, [illegible], China, Japan, Etc. Free.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

Stops Lameness

Much of the chronic lameness in horses is due to neglect.

See that your horse is not allowed to go lame. Keep Sloan's Liniment on hand and apply at the first sign of stiffness. It's wonderfully penetrating — goes right to the spot — relieves the soreness — limbers up the joints and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Resaca, Ga., R.F.D. No. 1, Box 43, writes: — "I have used your Liniment on a horse for sweeney and effected a thorough cure. I also removed a spavin on a mule. This spavin was as large as a guinea egg. In my estimation the best remedy for lameness and soreness is

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kans., R.F.D. No. 3, writes: — "Your Liniment is the best that I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one 50c. bottle of Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it around all the time for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

Sloan's Liniment will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, sweeney, founder and thrush.

Price 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan,
Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

WHAT BECAME OF THE BUTTON

Naive Confession of Little Girl Proved Her to Be True Daughter of Eve.

Lole Fuller, the noted dancer, told at a luncheon a story about her class of dancing children.

"I gave the children a Christmas party last year," she said, "and when the pudding came on I said to them:

"'I have put in this pudding a coin, a little china doll and a button. Whoever gets the coin will be rich. Whoever gets the doll will be married before the year is out. But whoever gets the button will be an old maid.'

"Well, the pudding disappeared rapidly, and the little girls soon found the coin and the china doll. But the button did not turn up. No one got the button. This amazed me.

"That night I said to my favorite little girl, as we sat alone by the fire in my room:

"'I can't understand what became of that button. I put it in the pudding myself.'

"'I'll tell you,' the little girl confessed, turning rosy with confusion. 'I dot the button. But I didn't want everybody to laugh at me—tho I thwallowed it.'"

Anticipation Safer Than Realization.

"It is not always necessary to make a direct accusation," said the lawyer who was asking damages because insinuations had been made against his client's good name. "You may have heard of the woman who called to the hired girl, 'Mary, Mary, come here and take the parrot down stairs—the master has dropped his collar button!'"—Everybody's Magazine.

A noble life, crowned with heroic death, rises above and outlives the pride and pomp and glory of the mightiest empire of the earth.—Garfield.

A WOMAN DOCTOR

Was Quick to See that Coffee was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and suffered untold agony. When I first began to have them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110. I went to many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day a woman doctor told me to use Postum. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned.

"So I began to drink Postum and I gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and continued to gain, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks — long enough to get the coffee poison out of my system.

"Since I began to use Postum I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that made me well. Before I used Postum I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go alone and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Campeador's Donkey-Man

By HAROLD BINDLOSS

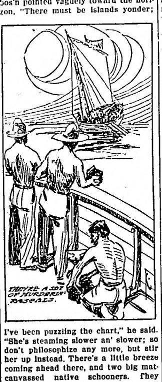
(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

The pitiless rays of the tropic sun beat down upon the Campeador's iron decks, as, with complaining engines, she shouldered her way at four knots an hour over a flaming sea.

She had not been a handsome vessel when she first took the water, and now she was very old, while the present owners had bought her in difficulties among the Philippines. They ran her as a free-lance tramp, prowling among the islands of the Southern seas until the worn-out engines gave serious trouble, and when they anchored to repair them under a mangrove-shrouded coast, her crew went down with malaria, and even worse things still. Then one night, when the most sickly had gone to recruit inland, a sudden typhoon blew her out to sea, and there being no navigator of sound mind on board, those who were left could not find that island again.

Perched up on the broken skylights of the engine room, a gaunt skeleton clad in dungarees alternately laughed deliriously, and hurled incoherent invective at some one below. This was all that fever had left of the chief engineer, and he was there because, being the biggest man on board, none of the sickly crew felt fit to take him away. Conroy, the little donkey-man, lay spread out in the shadow by an open gangway, spitting contemplatively at the gray shape which flitted without apparent motion through the lap of transparent swell.

There was a growl from the hollow-eyed seamen who lounged about the deck, for all of them were hungry; and most of them were sick, but the bos'n pointed vaguely toward the horizon. "There must be islands yonder; I've been puzzling the chart," he said. "She's steaming slower an' slower; so don't philosophize any more, but stir her up instead. There's a little breeze coming ahead there, and two big mat-canvassed native schooners. They aren't a nice lot generally to fall among short-handed."



THEY'RE A SET OF MURDERIN' RASCALS.

Conroy crawled below, and the old Campeador wallowed sluggishly across the shimmering sea, while, with a fitful breeze behind them, the tall mat sail came nearer, until at last toward sunset, one, with two long sweeps splashing drove straight toward her.

But the white seamen had no liking for such guests, and hungry, haggard and savage, they swarmed along the rail, or hung out from the davits with lumps of coal in their hands. Also Conroy, who ascended, dripping with rancid oil from the engine-room, said: "They're a set of murderin' rascals, an' might do somethin' nasty if they got hold of us. Take her away home before we fire into you."

Whether the others understood did not appear, but a group of naked men swung steadily over the sweep, and the craft rolled in nearer the steamer's side, until one huge sail almost brushed her rail, when with a creak of cumbrous tackle it slowly lumbered down. Then a ten-pound lump of coal fell on the helmsman's head, and the carpenter's grindstone, descending with violence, doubled two of the rowers up, after which there was a howl of fury from the would-be visitors and her dripping side crashed against the Campeador. But the air became thick with coal lumps and the ends of broken fire-bars, while Conroy, the donkey-man, howled fierce encouragement to his comrades, and shoveled hot cinders from a bucket on to those below, so that wild panic broke out among them. Dusky men fell over each other, some thrust with naked limbs against the steamer, and, rasping and bumping along the plates, their vessel slid astern.

Thereupon the donkey-man addressed the gathering at length, and in spite of many digressions the rest found his counsel good. "The chief's cleverer mad with an engine than many men sane," he said, "so I'll coax him below, and, even if he can't do anythin', there's always me. Little wind now! but when it comes after sunset those vermin will creep up again, and we haven't any reason for bein' too civil to them. We've only rotten harness beef an' crawlin' water here—they'll have lots of good fish, palm wine and guavies. Say, suppose instead of waitin' till they board us, we turn round an' board them."

Then Conroy, chuckling grimly, pulled the link-motion over, the engines whizzed and thudded, and there was a sudden whirl of green flame about the plunging screw which swept seething forward as the Campeador sidled stern-first toward the pursuers. The naked crews it was evident did not understand this, or perhaps had never seen a steamer handled in that fashion, for the nearest vessel rolled on unchecked until the poop of the steamer hung right over her, when amid an excited howling, they strove to trim over the yard of the half-lowered sail. It was too late, however, for the intense glare of a blue light broke out across the sea, showing the thin, hard edge of the steamer's rudder, and the iron tip of the thrashing screw scarcely a fathom away. Then there came a crunching shock, the crazy fabric shivered, and with a crash the mast snapped off by the Campeador's counter fell along the deck, while the green glare turned to crimson as another port-fire was lit. So some were buried under the cumbrous sail, and some leapt into the sea, while the fierce white devils, who even when sick did unaccountable things, dropped one after another upon the littered deck. There some smote with handspikes which outstretched the knives, and others grievously burned naked bodies with furnace prickers, while here and there and everywhere the little donkey-man scrambled and shouted, until he cast his greasy arms round a tall man's neck and fell backward with him into the open waist.

"What are you going to do with him?" a seaman asked, and Conroy answered:

"This pleasant gentleman was skipper of that enterprising craft, he's goin' to be useful, that's what I caught him for. If he can take his own ship somewhere he can take ours, too, you see. Now we'll go ahead again before his friends come up. All that kind swim like fishes, and a wash will do them good."

The man of mixed Malay origin probably spent a most unhappy time on board the Campeador, for they kept him always standing near the wheel, while Conroy sat close beside, and supplied interesting details of his personal history with edifying comments, also, on the evil ways of engineers. His comrades had evidently had quite enough of that ship, for when daylight came their sails were hull-down upon a sparkling sea, and so, unmolested, next morning the unwilling pilot brought the steamer in through the surf-swept opening of an island's circling reef. In case he had any hereditary hankering after casting them ashore, the bos'n stood beside him with a capstan bar, and he conned her circumspectly with the fear of death before his eyes. So, though the long green rollers burst apart with a crash like thunder into a tumultuous spouting on either side, the old Campeador crept safely through the still, deep passage with the spray driving across her, into an oily lagoon, beyond which the serried palms rose steeply from the rim of glistening sand. Also close in beneath them lay a little, cream-funneled gunboat, and Conroy chuckled, as he said: "Now the trouble's over, or just beginnin'. Fetched up under the pertection of the British navy! Good old navigator—good old me!"

Hardly had the grinding roar of cable died away, repeated from the step hillside, than a white gig came flashing through the green transparency of shimmering water, and the gunboat's lieutenant interviewed two unabashed worthies in the Campeador's chartroom.

Then a wrathful apparition, wearing a seaman's coat over garments of primitive fashion, stalked in, and in reply to a question in a familiar tongue told a tale of grievous wrongs.

"You are an extraordinary pair," said the officer, when he had done. "Fever and piracy, quite a romance in itself, and, from your own account, an exhibition of reckless bravery—but this man solemnly declares he only wanted to sell you fish. No, you needn't begin it all again, the proof of one side of the story is plain on the face of it, and I'll make it my business to investigate this gentleman's antecedents. Still, your mate had probably better try to settle with him, for if he happens to hail from some outlandish place under Dutch protection, wicked persons may make out it was you who did the piracy. I'll send over my surgeon and artificer, and I suppose I must waste a week's coal on the pinnace bringing the rest of you across."

The gunboat's officer was subsequently justified, for, though the Malay gentleman's record was not quite above suspicion, nothing definite could be proved against him, and it cost the Campeador's mate a good round sum by way of recompense. Thus for the rest of that voyage the two heroes sailed under a cloud, and it was some time before either talked much about the pirate they caught in the southern seas. Still, there were beach-combers who said that matters might have ended differently but for the resistance they made.

POULTRY

POULTRY NOTES.

Geese must have freedom to thrive well.

Two or three year old geese are more profitable than yearlings.

Texas is credited with having more turkeys than any other state in the union.

Board floors in the chicken house are better than wet ground, but dry ground is best of all.

A sprayer that will force kerosene into all the cracks of the poultry house is better than a brush.

The man who said "the best poultry men on most farms are women" knew what he was talking about.

Have the drinking trough deep, so the duck can get its head in the water. Neglect of this will result in sore eyes.

The bulk of poultry comes from the farm and not the fancier, but the best poultry usually comes from the fancier or small farmer.

The tiny mite becomes a mighty factor in reducing the egg supply unless it is constantly kept down. Halfway measures will not do.

If you allow eggs for setting to stand around for two weeks before putting them under the hen do not blame the dealer if they do not hatch.

White China geese are very gentle. They are also good watchers in the poultry yards, as any unusual disturbance is soon told by the noise they make.

A house 8x12 is a very convenient size for a small flock of fowls. If a large flock is to be housed two or more small ones would be better than a very large house.

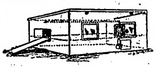
The incubator is always on the job, never has to leave the eggs for feed or water and requires less time and care than the average busy old sitting hen.

COMBINATION FOWL HOUSE

Detailed Instructions for Erecting Structure That Can Be Put to Several Purposes.

An illustration is given below of a 100-chick brooder, a colony house and mating pen, all in one, together with detailed instructions for erecting the same.

It is made 7 feet long, 4 feet high at the front and 3 feet at the back, and is built of ½-inch boards. A floor is put in 15 inches from the bottom along the dotted lines shown.



Combination House.

Two small windows are placed in front and a door in one end. There is also a small door in front to get at the lamp. Over the lamp in the false floor is a hole 5 inches in diameter, which is covered with a heating drum made of a 5-pound coffee tin with small holes punched near the bottom. A tin speaking tube is attached to the drum and runs across the brooder to carry off smoke and gas.

Take a piece of felt 4x5½ feet and tack it on 3 inches above the can the width of the brooder and 3 feet across the front. This will let it reach down to the floor, giving the cricks a hover containing 12 square feet, with 16 square feet left to feed and scratch in. Put a piece of wire netting and asbestos paper around the heating drum to keep the chickens from the extreme heat.

The sides and top of the house should be covered with heavy roofing paper. If the brooder is put together with screws or hooks it can be taken apart in a few minutes and packed away.

To make a colony house or mating pen remove the heating apparatus and lower the floor to the bottom.

Labor Cost.

On the general farm, where from 50 to 300 laying hens are kept, the labor item is practically nothing; but on large poultry plants it is an important item, and, if care is not exercised, the cost of labor will eat up the profit of the business. The work must be systematized so that one man can successfully care for a large number of fowls. On one large farm which was visited two men were caring for 4,000 fowls; on another one man was caring for 2,500. A minimum number for one man would be about 1,000. Mr. Channy, who keeps about 800 fowls, is realizing a profit of about $1,200 a year, which is considerable more than many men are supporting large families with. This would naturally show us that it is more economical to keep about 1,000 hens and perform the necessary labor yourself, rather than keep a larger number and be compelled to hire outside labor, which is often very unsatisfactory.

Handling Geese.

In handling geese they should always be taken by the neck, and when lifted from the ground the body should be turned with the back toward the person handling it. In that position they cannot strike, and will remain quiet and docile. The body can be partly supported by seizing the first joint of the wing with one hand If the goose is held facing one it will strike hard blows with its wings or scratch with its feet.

"QUANTITY, QUALITY AND PRICE"

THE THREE ESSENTIALS THAT ARE GIVING WESTERN CANADA Greater Impulse Than Ever This Year.

The reports from the grain fields of Central Canada, (which comprises the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta) are to hand. The year 1909 has not only kept pace with previous years in proving that this portion of the Continent is capable of producing a splendid yield of all the smaller grains, but it has thoroughly outstripped previous seasons. There is quantity, quality and price and from all parts of an area of about 320,000 square miles there comes the strong refrain of contentment and satisfaction. In the distribution of the conditions causing it no district has been overlooked.

Various estimates of the total yield of wheat for the country have been made, but it is not the vast total that influences the general reader so much as what has been done individually. The grand total—say 130 million bushels—may have its effect on the grain price of the world; it may be interesting to know that in the world's markets the wheat crop of Canada has suddenly broken upon the trading boards, and with the Argentine, and with Russia and India, is now a factor in the making of prices. If so today, what will be its effect five or ten years from now, when, instead of there being seven million acres under crop with a total yield of 125 or 130 million bushels, there will be from 17 to 30 million acres in wheat with a yield of from 325 to 600 million bushels. When it is considered that the largest yield in the United States but slightly exceeded 700 million bushels, the greatness of these figures may be understood. Well, such is a safe forecast, for Canada has the land and it has the soil. Even today the Province of Saskatchewan, one of the three great wheat growing provinces of Canada, with 400,000 acres under wheat, produces nearly 90 million bushels, or upwards of one-tenth of the greatest yield of the United States. And Saskatchewan is yet only in the beginning of its development. As Lord Grey recently pointed out in speaking on this very subject, this year's crop does not represent one-tenth of the soil equally fertile that is yet to be brought under the plough.

Individually, reports are to hand of yields of twenty-five, thirty and thirty-five bushels to the acre. Scores of yields are reported of forty and some as high as sixty bushels. The farmer, who takes care of his soil, who gets his seed-bed ready early, is certain of a splendid crop.

The news of the magnificent crop yield throughout the Canadian West will be pleasing to the friends of the thousands of Americans who are residents in that country and who are vastly instrumental in the assistance they are rendering to let the world know its capabilities.

Lightning Change.

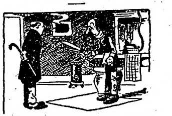
"Maria, who is the spider-legged gawk that comes to see Bessie two or three times a week?"

"Why, don't you know, John? That's young Mr. Welloph, the junior partner in the firm of Spotcash & Co."

"Well, confound her, why doesn't she give him a little more encouragement?"

The happiness of our later life is in great part made up of the pleasurable memories of early years.—Dr. Alexander Bain.

COULDN'T WAIT.



Tailor—I cannot make you a new suit until you haf paid for your last one, yet.

Mr. Nopay—But I can't wait so long. Winter is here and I need something warm.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Question to Be Considered.

"Do you consider plagiarism permissible under any circumstances?"

"Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "it's pretty hard when you find yourself compelled to make a choice between being interesting or original."

Free to Our Readers.

Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago, for 48-page Illustrated Eye Book Free. Write all about Your Eye Trouble and they will advise as to the Proper Application of the Murine Eye Remedies in Your Special Case. Your Druggist will tell you that Murine Relieves Sore Eyes, Strengthens Weak Eyes, Doesn't Smart, Soothes Eye Pain, and sells for 50c. Try It in Your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Scaly Eyelids and Granulation.

"Off His Feed."

Diner (to his neighbor after having three helpings of fish and meat)—I've got no appetite to-night.

Neighbor—You hide it very well, then.

WE PAY HIGH PRICE FOR HIDES and furs & sell guns and traps cheap. N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis,

When a fellow feels like throwing himself down and worshiping a girl he should wait. She will probably throw him down herself.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

It is harder for a woman to pray her husband into heaven than it is to nag him into the other place.

Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—harsh—unnecessary. Try
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS
Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 158-169 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery —the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

A SET OF ANIMAL TRACKS
IN SNOW OR MUD

TO EVERYONE INTERESTED IN HUNTING OR TRAPPING

who will cut out this advertisement and mail it to us with your name and address plainly written on coupon below, together with 2c for postage, we will send absolutely Free a set of Animal Tracks in Snow or Mud showing the foot prints of Rabbits, Deer, Muskrat, Skunk, Mink, Squirrel, Fox, Coon and Otter, running, walking or leaping, and also pattern sheet of sizes for Mink and Skunk. For 4 cents we will send you the above articles and our 40 page Trappers Book. For 6 cents we will send you all these articles and picture of 46 Wild Animals in natural colors with Key, Trap Catalog and Price List of Hide and Furs. We pay the highest market price for Hides and Furs and make prompt settlement for each shipment. We also sell Hunters and Trappers supplies cheap. Write your name and address plainly so these articles may be sure to reach you.

Yours always for a Square Deal, the Old Reliable
Northwestern Hide & Fur Co.
ESTB. 1890
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

COUPON
NAME TOWN STATE ROUTE

WULFSOHN GANSS FUR CO., Inc.
216 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
Pays Highest Prices for Raw Furs. Ask Your Neighbors About Us

PLAYER WHO EMBARRASSED MICHIGAN.

J. Joy Miller, after being elected captain of the Wolverine football team, was found to be ineligible because he was not a bona fide student of the university. Michigan sent apologies to the five teams against which Miller played last season and deprived him of the captaincy and the "M" that had been conferred upon him.

MILLER HUMBLES MICHIGAN'S PRIDE

PLAYS ON FOOTBALL TEAM WHILE INELIGIBLE AND CAUSES APOLOGY.

SOCCER GAME IS SCHEDULED

J. Joy Miller certainly put the University of Michigan in an embarrassing position. He played star football and helped to win several games, among them the Pennsylvania and Minnesota contests, and wasn't even a bona fide student of the school.

Now the football management of Michigan has had to apologize and say how sorry it is for the actions of one of its players, who had no right in the game under the intercollegiate rules.

On the strength of the good work he had done Miller was elected captain of next year's team and received the university "M." He has been shorn of both of these honors and a new leader is to be chosen.

Announcement of the action taken against Miller was made by Prof. George W. Patterson, chairman of the board of control of athletics.

The question of Miller's eligibility first came under the attention of Dean Cooley, of the engineering department of the university. Miller was absent from Ann Arbor and a letter requesting his appearance before the board in control brought no reply. It was given out that Miller appeared before the eligibility committee during the season and signed a statement that he was a bona fide student and eligible to play on the team.

The action against him was taken upon the ground that while he had registered in the engineering department he had not been enrolled in any classes until after the close of the football season, when he induced several professors to accept his enrollment tentatively, with the understanding that he would make up the work that he had missed. Miller lives in Detroit.

The games in which he played were those against Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Syracuse and Marquette.

Just what the ultimate outcome of this mess will be has not been determined. Michigan won all of the games in which Miller played except that with Notre Dame. The teams that lost to the Wolverines would seem to have good grounds for protest, but the critics agree that they cannot be thrown out and will stand. Michigan is in none too good standing in the west, anyway, and Miller's conduct certainly has not helped any.

The question of Michigan's return to the fold of the Western conference was not discussed at the "Big Eight" meeting in Chicago last month and nothing was done about Minnesota having scheduled a game with the Wolverines for next season.

One of the important things that came out of the meeting was the boost given to soccer football stock, when Director Huff of Illinois asked Director Stagg to raise this sport to a position of intercollegiate importance. The idea so appealed to Stagg that he challenged the Illini to a game on Marshall field next fall.

This game will be the first intercollegiate clash of its kind in the middle west. The Illini took it up in earnest among themselves last fall and found it to their liking. At the Midway it lasted two seasons, being dropped in 1907.

Coach Stagg presented to the meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic association in New York some remedies to cure the evils of football, among which were the following:

Not to allow pulling or pushing of the man carrying the ball in order to prevent mass plays and striking with the force of two or three men in a compact body.

To remove the penalty for an uncompleted forward pass on the first and second down. Let the ball be brought back to the point from which it was thrown without penalty, to encourage open and spectacular play.

To put a penalty on a player for crawling with the ball and to enforce the penalty for dropping on a man that is on the ground.

To protect the receiver of forward passes and onside kicks from hard body checking.

To legislate as far as possible for the removal of players suffering from exhaustion by urging upon coaches and trainers to remove such men and by having a rule that a man who takes out time the second time be put out of the game by the referee.

To limit the halves in high school, preparatory school and all untrained teams to no more than 25 minutes.

Unless changes are made Tom Barry, coach of the Wisconsin team, may follow the lead of C. P. Hutchins, athletic director, and give up his position. While Director Hutchins' resignation came as a result of his offer from a western fruit land company, it is said he would not have remained much longer at Madison even if he had had nothing else in sight. Wisconsin students say he was not at all pleased by the manner in which the faculty members of the athletic board interfered with his plans and that he was discouraged long before the recent football season started, with all its trials.

Barry is said to have the same complaint to make and Coach Ten Eyck of the crew, report says, is dissatisfied.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Mordecai Brown does not find the climate of Cuba unhealthful and will spend the balance of the winter there.

Hans Wagner tried to buck a blizzard with his big automobile, but was struck out by the speed of the gale. A rescue party started out to find him and dug him out of a huge drift.

The New York American league club has placed two pitchers with minor league teams for next season. George McConnell was released to Rochester and Peter Wilson was sent to Montreal. McConnell is a right-handed pitcher, Wilson a southpaw.

According to reports from Cincinnati President Murphy of the Cubs has been unable to make a trade with Clark Griffith.

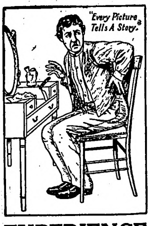
"I should not be surprised if Peter Lister played first base regularly for the Tigers next year," said Hughey Jennings at the New York baseball meeting. "Lister looked good to me when he was with Cleveland, and he has been improving both in batting and fielding ever since."

"Criger will make the Highlanders win next year," says James McAleer, manager of the Washingtons. "The veteran catcher is not all in by any means, for he caught great ball for me in St. Louis last season. He has always been anxious to play in New York, and I know he is delighted with the deal just made."

President Horace Fogel of the Phillies says that every share of stock of the club is held in Philadelphia and that Murphy and Taft do not own a scrap of it.

BACKACHE—A SIGNAL OF DISTRESS

A WARNING THAT MUST NOT BE IGNORED



"Every Picture Tells A Story."

Pain in the back is the kidneys' signal of distress. If this timely warning is ignored, kidney disease silently fastens its deadly grip—for kidney sickness first shows itself in pains and disorders in other parts, and the real cause is too often hidden until fatal Bright's disease or diabetes has set in. Suspect the kidneys if you are rheumatic and nervous or have lame back, painful, too frequent or scanty urination, weak heart, dizzy spells, headaches, bloating or neuralgia. What you want is a special kidney medicine — not an experiment, but one that has stood the test for years. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve weak, congested kidneys — cure backache — regulate the urine.

A KIDNEY REMEDY OF 75 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS began curing lame backs and sick kidneys 75 years ago. The demand lead a nearby druggist, James Doan, to prepare it for sale. From him the magic formula passed to the present proprietors. Now, as in those early days, Doan's Kidney Pills are made from only the purest drugs and are absolutely non-poisonous. They are used and praised all over the civilized world.

"Every Picture Tells A Story."

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKE LASTING CURES

J. R. Black, 1005 E. Sixth street, Topeka, Kansas, says: "In the spring of 1899 Doan's Kidney Pills brought me such great relief that I did not hesitate to make the fact known and give this remedy my most earnest endorsement. In my statement I said that for three years I had suffered from kidney complaint. I had a dull grumbling ache across the small of my back that greatly inconvenienced me when reaching and straining in doing my work. An annoying kidney weakness was also in evidence and it was out of the question for me to sleep well. In the morning I was all tired out and it can be seen that I was in bad shape. The use of Doan's Kidney Pills quickly and surely drove away these symptoms of kidney complaint and I have since been in good health.

The foregoing statement was given in March 1905, and when Mr. Black was interviewed on Nov. 12, 1908, he said: "I have never had a return attack of kidney complaint and I know that my cure is a permanent one. My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is stronger than ever.

Mrs. James Crooks, First St., N. W., American Fork, Utah, says, "I had kidney complaint for ten years or more. Sometimes a twinge darted through the small of my back and I often became so helpless that I was compelled to go to bed with my clothes on. The attacks often lasted for days at a time and I could not even stoop to put on my shoes. My condition was certainly alarming. The secretions from my kidneys were irregular in passage and contained a heavy sediment after standing. I well know what the misery kidney complaint causes and I can therefore appreciate the merits of a remedy that cures this disease. Doan's Kidney Pills lived up to the claims made for them in my case and effected a cure. My kidneys were restored to a normal condition and my health greatly improved." (Statement given Aug. 22, 1907.)

On Aug. 24, 1909, Mrs. Crooks was interviewed by one of our representatives and she said: "It gives me pleasure to reendorse Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured my backache and my health is now good. Other members of my family have taken this remedy with decided benefit."

A TRIAL FREE Test Doan's Kidney Pills Yourself

Cut out this coupon, mail it to Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. A free trial package of Doan's Kidney Pills will be mailed you promptly. W.N.U.

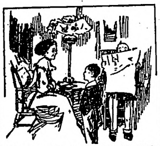
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS If the Pain Is There It's Your Kidneys

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents. FOSTER-MILBURN CO. Buffalo, N. Y. Proprietors.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS If the Pain Is There It's Your Kidneys

THAT'S RIGHT.



Tommy—Say, auntie, what did Uncle John marry you for?

Aunt—Why, for love, of course.

Tommy (meditatively)—H'm! Love will make a man do almost anything, won't it, auntie?

A BURNING ERUPTION FROM HEAD TO FEET

"Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor I was advised to try Cuticura Remedies. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Nenning, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., Apr. 11, 1909."

Point of View.

Senator Beveridge, apropos of the old-fashioned snowy Christmas, said the other day:

"Snow, of course, has its disadvantages from some points of view.

"'Snow is beautiful in its season,' Solomon said that. But I know an old Indianapolis man who, on hearing this remark of Solomon, grumbled:

"'Oh, yes, no doubt it was beautiful to you, sittin' with all the wives and lasses of Jerusalem beside you; but if you'd been a poor stone cutter you'd never have said any such thing.'"

Sarcastic.

"I am afraid Dulby is putting an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brains."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne; "and it's a case of petty larceny, at that."

An Obvious Proposition.

"Have you a plain cook?"

"You bet she is. My wife wouldn't have any other kind in the house."

COUNTRY AWAKE TO DANGER

Immense Amount of Money Spent Last Year in Fight Against Tuberculosis.

A report issued recently by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis shows that for the treatment of tuberculous patients in sanatoria and hospitals $5,292,289.77 was expended during the year 1909. The anti-tuberculosis associations spent $975,889.56, the tuberculosis dispensaries and clinics $640,474.64, and the various municipalities, for special tuberculosis work, spent $1,111,967.53. The anti-tuberculosis associations distributed the most literature, spreading far and wide 8,400,000 copies of circulars, pamphlets and printed matter for the purpose of educating the public about consumption. The health departments of the different cities also distributed more than 1,056,000 copies, which, with the work done by state departments of health, brings the number of pieces distributed during the year well over 10,000,000. The largest number of patients treated during the year was by the dispensaries, where 61,586 patients were given free treatment and advice. The sanatoria and hospitals treated 37,758 patients, while anti-tuberculosis associations assisted 16,968.

Truth "Sassier" Than Fiction.

Most southerners are gallant. An exception is the Georgian who gave his son this advice:

"My boy, never run after a woman or a street car—there will be another one along in a minute or two."—Everybody's Magazine.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Calumny is not only the greatest benefit a rogue can confer on us, but the only service he will perform for nothing.—Lavater.

A TRIFLING COUGH will become a permanent one unless stopped. Allen's Lung Balsam will surely stop it. A 25c bottle is large enough for that. Sold by all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.

After a man has flattered a woman she begins to think it over and decides that he really meant it.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels and cure constipation.

Sometimes a man's wisdom is due to the possession of a clever wife.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c

Absence of occupation is not rest; a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp
Once a Rayo user always one
THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

Mayer Martha Washington Comfort Shoes
MILWAUKEE Mayer CUSTOM MADE

Genuine comfort—that's what it means to wear the stylish Martha Washington Comfort Shoes. They fit like a glove, and insure complete rest and relief. No buttons or laces—just slip them on and off like a slipper. Elastic at the sides provides perfect fit over any instep. You will never know how comfortable a good looking shoe can be until you have worn

MARTHA WASHINGTON COMFORT SHOES

Beware of Imitations. Only the genuine have the name Martha Washington and Mayer Trade Mark stamped on the sole. Refuse substitutes. Your dealer will supply you; if not, write to us.

FREE—If you will send us the name of a dealer who does not handle Martha Washington Comfort Shoes, we will send you free, postpaid, a beautiful picture of Martha Washington, Size 15 x 20.

We also make Honorbilt Shoes for men, Leading Lady Shoes, Yerma Cushion Shoes, Special Merit School Shoes and Work Shoes.

F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co. MILWAUKEE, WIS.

When You're Hoarse Use PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS

Gives immediate relief. The first dose relieves your aching throat and allays the irritation. Guaranteed to contain no opiates. Very palatable. All Druggists, 25c.

PIMPLES

"I tried all kinds of blood remedies which failed to do me any good, but I have found the right thing at last. My face was full of pimples and black-heads. After taking Cascarets they all left. I am continuing the use of them and recommending them to my friends. I feel fine when I rise in the morning. Hope to have a chance to recommend Cascarets." Fred C. Witten, 76 Elm St., Newark, N. J.

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Illinois, and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE. 922

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package —other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

FACING DEATH in the FROZEN NORTH

Heroic Self-Sacrifice of Peary's Surgeon

by EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT BY W. A. PATTERSON

SOME DAY it may be Commander Robert E. Peary will tell in his own words the story of the self-sacrifice of Dr. Edward E. Vincent, the youthful surgeon who accompanied the Peary arctic expedition of 1898. All the stories of heroism in the arctic regions have not yet been told. The leaders of the polar expeditions have not been the only men to show high courage and devotion to duty in the face of danger.

Dr. Edward E. Vincent was killed accidentally not long ago in the city of Detroit. He was the brother of Judge William A. Vincent of Chicago. The story of the young physician's devotion and self-sacrifice has been told by one man, James Davidson, who until recently was in the United States consular service. Davidson was a member of the arctic expedition of 1898 and it was on his behalf that Vincent looked death in the face.

It is a simple tale, this, yet it is one that strengthens faith in human nature and makes the most unemotional of us give thanks that such men as this young Illinois physician sometimes live. Peary and his party of 10 men started from Etah in early April of the second year of the expedition to make the dash for the pole. April—the spring month—the thermometer registered 60 degrees below zero when the little band of hardy spirits reached a place about 140 miles from their starting point. One night they pitched their two tents and turned in.

A storm arose. It was a howling blizzard without the snowfall—a blizzard with the thermometer 92 degrees below the freezing point. The tent in which one-half of the explorers slept was ripped by the blast into threads. The occupants made their way as best they could to their comrades' shelter. The distance was not great, but in covering it the feet of one of the men, Davidson, were frozen. It became necessary almost at once to amputate portions of both extremities. The operation was performed by Surgeon Vincent.

It was, of course, impossible for Davidson to proceed with the party on the dash to the pole. To leave him where he was meant death. There was but one thing to do, and that was to send him back over the wastes and the ice floes and through the awful bitterness of the cold to the place whence they had come. Seven miles back were some natives and something like adequate shelter. Peary could spare but one man to go back with Davidson. It was obviously the place of the surgeon to go on the return journey with his patient, a journey that everyone in the band believed meant death for the two men who would undertake it.

Edward E. Vincent gave up without a murmur that for which he had so longed—the chance to be one of the men to reach that goal of the explorers' ambition, the north pole. His duty was to Davidson and with Davidson he stayed. Peary gave the two men a sledge, four dogs and some supplies. They turned their faces in the direction of Etah and set out through that region of frozen silence. Davidson was unable to walk. He was a big man and his weight proved a burden to the dogs. For two days they went on slowly. On the evening of the second day they made their small fire and started to brew some tea. The bottom fell out of the pot and it could not be fixed. It was the only vessel of any kind that they had with them. In it they had heated their pemmican and steeped their tea. That accident, apparently trifling in itself, those two men felt might mean their death. From that time on they ate frozen food and had no warming beverage.

On, on they went and at last there came a realizing sense that they were lost. There was no food left which could be spared to keep up the strength of the dogs. Vincent led two of the creatures away and killed them that they might serve as food for the two remaining animals. Both men were weak to the point of exhaustion. Vincent kept up his good cheer and rallied his patient by his hopefulness. Then he went into the harness, taking the place of the animals that he had slain, and used his remaining strength to help drag the sledge onward. The two remaining dogs gave out. There would have been the blackness of despair had it not been for something in the spirit of those two men that made them see light.

"Doctor," said Davidson, "you can't drag me further. There is no reason why both of us should die. Unencumbered, perhaps you can make your way to the old camp. Try it."

Vincent's answer was the fitting of the harness over his shoulders once more and the trudging onward, dragging the sledge with its weakened burden behind him.

"Doctor," said Davidson once more, "you'd better go." Vincent turned with a sort of half smile. "Davidson," he said, "it's barely possible, as a mere matter between men, I might find it in my heart to desert you and leave you here to die. You must remember, however, that I am a doctor and you're my patient, and it would be unethical to the last degree for me to go away and leave you, so I'm afraid you'll have to put up with me."

The physician dragged his patient on through the horror of the awful stillness. Finally the end was at hand. Vincent was tottering and Davidson, weakened as the result of the operation he had undergone, coupled with the exposure and lack of food, was practically in a fainting condition. The sledge had been brought to a point from which swept away for over a mile a gentle declivity, smooth with snow and ice. Vincent sat down on the edge of the sledge.

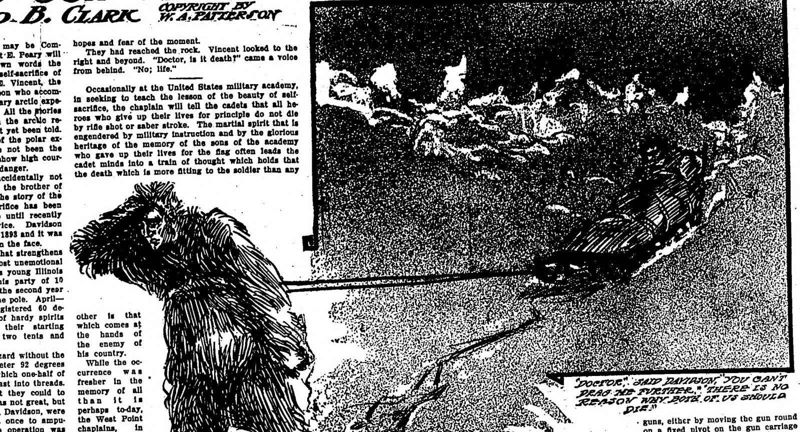
"Old fellow," he said, "I'm sorry, but I'm afraid it's almost up with me." Then he turned away his head, but in a moment was on his feet. Far down to the right of the sloping plain he saw a grim-looking rock which held his gaze. Then he turned to Davidson again. "I don't want to raise any false hopes," he said, "but that rock looks like one that stood not far from the place where the natives are. It is like a thousand others and probably I am wrong, but God knows it's our last hope. I can't drag you further, but I'll not leave you. We'll go together. We can slide down this declivity with our sledge. We may go into a crevasse, as you know, and that means death, but it's death anyway unless when we pass that rock we see some huts beyond and to the right."

Then those two men kissed each other, but spoke not a word.

Vincent used his last remaining strength to start the sledge. It went slowly with its own momentum down the barely perceptible incline. Occasionally the accelerated speed would be checked by a smooth billow of ice over which they rode smoothly. They were approaching the rock which to Vincent had looked familiar. They were almost up to it. On what the first look around the rock should reveal the physician knew meant life or death. He turned and looked at his comrade. Davidson's eyes were closed tight in the agony between the hopes and fear of the moment.

They had reached the rock. Vincent looked to the right and beyond. "Doctor, is it death?" came a voice from behind. "No; life."

Occasionally at the United States military academy, in seeking to teach the lesson of the beauty of self-sacrifice, the chaplain will tell the cadets that all heroes who give up their lives for principle do not die by rifle shot or saber stroke. The martial spirit that is engendered by military instruction and by the glorious heritage of the memory of the sons of the academy who gave up their lives for the flag often leads the cadet minds into a train of thought which holds that the death which is more fitting to the soldier than any other is that which comes at the hands of the enemy of his country.



"DOCTOR," SAID DAVIDSON, "YOU CAN'T DRAG ME FURTHER." "THERE IS NO REASON WHY BOTH OF US SHOULD DIE."

While the occurrence was fresher in the memory of all than it is perhaps to-day, the West Point chaplains, in the pressing of their point, loved to speak of the death of Lieut. James E. Bell, who died because of his devotion to duty. "Jimmie" Bell, lovingly called "Jingle" by his fellow cadets, was a brother of Maj. W. W. Bell of Chicago and an uncle of Lilian Bell, the writer. When Lilian Bell wrote her story, "The Under Side of Things," with its pathetic ending, she wove the tale about the career of her uncle, Lieut. Bell, and gave to the story the depth of pathos that truth compelled.

One of James E. Bell's classmates at West Point once said that when a man was fighting with another man he had something to grapple with, but that when a man was fighting disease the disease did all the grappling. You can't wound a disease adversary. Against him parry and thrust are nothing. Adjutant-Gen. E. D. Townsend once said that in all his army career he had never known such honors to be paid to a subaltern as were offered to the memory of First Lieut. James E. Bell. Two general orders were issued from headquarters of the army, each paying tribute to the devotion of the young officer of artillery who had died on the Dry Tortugas of yellow fever.

Fort Jefferson on the Tortugas in August of the year 1873 was garrisoned by Battery M, First United States artillery. Outside of the surgeons there was only one officer, Lieut. Bell, at the post. Capt. L. L. Langdon had been granted a leave of absence to go north to the bedside of his dying father. On August 28 yellow fever appeared at the post. Within two days four of the garrison had died. Upon the first announcement of the appearance of the scourge Lieut. Bell sent all the women and children and some of the married men to an island three miles away. Within a day or two he sent to the same place nearly all the well men of the garrison, retaining only enough to nurse the sick. There could have been no criticism of Bell's course had he gone with the garrison, leaving the sick to the care of the surgeons and nurses. He stayed and devoted himself to the care of the sick in the hospital, assisted by the men who had volunteered.

The heat was fearful. There was not a pound of ice on the island and many of the deaths that followed one after another were due to the lack of this necessity.

There were 20 cases of the fever and for whole days and nights continuously the devoted lieutenant, the surgeons and the nurses knew no rest. With their own hands they dug the graves for the dead and with their own lips repeated over them the burial service.

Capt. Langdon in the far north heard of the yellow fever at Fort Jefferson. He instantly relinquished his leave of absence and hastened to return to his station. Some months before the outbreak of the fever Lieut. Bell had put in an application to be detailed as instructor of military science at the University of Vermont. The application had been granted and Capt. Langdon, hurrying south to join his command, carried in his pocket the order relieving Lieut. Bell from duty at Fort Jefferson and detailing him for work in Vermont. Langdon reached his post. He called in his first lieutenant and said: "I have here orders transferring you immediately to Vermont. You have done a noble work here. There is no reason why you should stay longer. You have been through enough of the awful thing. Go."

Bell said: "Captain, I don't want the order. If I read it I suppose I shall have to obey simply because it is an order. You keep it in your pocket until the fever is over and then I'll read it and go."

Langdon shook hands with him.

Bell went on with his work. In a few days he felt the hot hand of the scourge on his brow. He went to his tent, pulled up his little camp table and wrote an official letter to the assistant adjutant-general at headquarters of the Department of the Gulf, Holly Springs, Miss. It was a long letter, covering many pages. There was in Bell's heart that day the fear that he might die and leave undone an act of duty to others. He cherished the thought of the loyalty of the surgeons and the enlisted men who had so nobly performed their duties to the sick and dying, facing the fever and death itself without flinching. He mentioned in the official communication each doctor and man by name, recommending them for recognition at the hands of the department. Of himself he said nothing, his whole thought was that recognition should be given others.

"HE DIED IN THE FAITHFUL DISCHARGE OF A SOLDIER'S DUTY."

Lieut. James E. Bell put down his pen, went to the hospital and in three days was dead.

The closing paragraphs of one of the general orders touching this man and his love of duty are these:

"The only officer in an isolated post when it was visited by a dangerous epidemic, he seemed to multiply himself in his ever-present care and watchfulness for the men of his command, and it is doubtless due to the exhaustion and fatigue resulting from his anxious discharge of duty that he finally fell a victim to the disease.

"He died in the faithful discharge of a soldier's duty."

Way up north were wife and child. The little one crept up to the black-robed mother and said: "Is my darlin' foddy tummin' home to-day?"

"Not to-day, dear. Perhaps to-morrow."

BALLOON ARTILLERY PROBLEM

While One Inventor Constructs Air Craft, Another Builds Guns to Destroy Them.

A writer in the Star has the following to say on the subject of aerial war craft:

Germany's government has been induced by the wonderful flights accomplished by the Zeppelin, Parseval and Gross airships to form an air fleet which already numbers six cruisers, but this very success has also awakened the German military authorities to the necessity of improving German's artillery with a view to combating hostile air fleets, and, therefore, just as Germany was first in the field with an aerial navy, so she leads the way with balloon artillery. This year both the Krupp and Ehrhardt works have placed balloon guns on the market.

The inventors of balloon artillery had several things to bear in mind. The objective is very mobile, can develop great speed and change its direction, up or down and to all points of the compass very rapidly and with comparative ease. Therefore the guns had to be capable of the most rapid laying while their projectiles had to be made to travel at a very high velocity. Again, since a scouting airship, when nearing the hostile zone, will ascend to the greatest height attainable, the guns had to be made so as to fire practically perpendicularly to an immense height.

It is obvious that the field artillery method of training guns, either by moving the gun round on a fixed pivot on the gun carriage or by altering the direction of the carriages, would be out of place here as being too slow. So Krupps, in the case of balloon artillery mounted on wheels, have designed the wheels so as to be pushed forward out of the way, with handles attached to either axle, which in a couple of simple revolutions can alter the entire direction of the gun. For fortresses the balloon guns can be mounted with other ordnance on a pivot, and the same mounting is used for balloon-artillery fixed on the platform of armored motor cars, which would pursue the air cruiser until a suitable range was obtained.

Opinions are still divided as to the nature of projectile to be discharged. For spherical balloons shrapnel is undoubtedly the best, but as a cruiser of the Zeppelin type might sustain but little damage from a few shrapnel pellets Krupp, in contrast to Ehrhardts, who pin their faith on shrapnel for all types of balloon artillery, have invented special shell fitted with a slow match which ignites a gas with the object of causing an explosion in the hostile airship.

The shell on striking the airship's envelope immediately sets fire to the filling gas and the resultant explosion would totally annihilate the aerial vessel. These deadly shells are moreover designed to give off a very dense smoke so as to leave a wake which, with the aid of a glass, is distinctly visible and of immeasurable importance in sighting for a second shot, supposing the first to have missed. The distance is taken by a special apparatus set up by the side of the balloon gun, while the actual sighting is done by means of an apparatus something similar to the periscope of the submarine.

Krupps have constructed hitherto three makes of balloon guns—a 6.5 centimeter field gun, which fires a 4-kilogram projectile with an initial velocity of 620 meters, or about 2,100 feet a second, attaining at a maximum angle of discharge of 60 degrees and a height of 17,000 feet; a fortress 7.5 gun, firing a 6½-kilogram shell and a heavy gun of 10.5 caliber, primarily intended for use on board warships.

The fortress gun can hit and destroy an airship at a height of 24,000 feet from a discharging angle of 75 degrees, so that as, on the evidence of Count Zeppelin himself, an airship only in case of emergency rises to a height of 5,000 feet, the range the new balloon artillery covers all cases. The naval gun can reach a height of 35,000 feet.

SOLVES MYSTERY OF HAUNTED CHAMBER.

Sir William Henry Perkins, the inventor of many coal tar dyes, was talking in New York before he sailed for England about the Psychical Research society.

"Crookes and some other scientists go in for psychical research," he said, "though I confess that to me the subject makes no great appeal.

"Personally I have come in contact, during a fairly long career, with but one ghost story. Its hero was a man whom I'll call Snooks.

"Snooks, visiting at a country house, was put in the haunted chamber for the night. He said he felt no uneasiness; nevertheless he took to bed with him a revolver of the latest American pattern.

"He fell asleep without difficulty, but as the clock was striking two he awoke with a strange feeling of oppression.

"Lifting his head, he peered about him. The room was wanly illuminated by the full moon, and in that weird, bluish light he saw a small hand clasping the rail at the foot of the bed.

"'Who's there?' he demanded, tremulously.

"There was no reply. The hand did not move.

"'Who's there?' said Snooks again. 'Answer or I'll shoot.'

"Again there was no reply, and Snooks sat up cautiously, took careful aim and fired.

"He limped from that night on, for he shot off two of his own toes."—New York World.

A Man of Vim.

"Wagsby never stays longer than he finds necessary to borrow some money."

"I suppose a man of what you might call 'touch' and 'go'."—Baltimore American.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

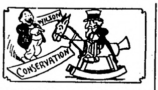
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1910. NO. 43.

At the National Capital

Gossip of People and Events Gathered in Washington

Ex-Senator Wilson's Joke on New York



WASHINGTON, D. C.—Former Senator John L. Wilson of the state of Washington was one of the most peppery members of congress that ever sat in either house. Mr. Wilson's reputation extends over both sides of the capitol, he having served in the Fifty-first congress in the house as the first representative from the then new state of Washington, and in 1895 he was elected to the senate, where he served one term. Mr. Wilson is now the owner of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, and at the same time is heavily interested in Washington state industries and real estate.

While in Washington recently, Mr. Wilson delivered himself of some astounding facts with respect to the resources of the state of Washington and the general attitude of its people toward the question of conservation.

"The issue of conservation with us is merely the question of the removal of friction between the national government and the state," said Mr. Wilson.

"When Gov. Hughes of New York came out to see our fair at Seattle he made a speech in which he said that we of the west would probably be surprised to know that the state of New York had set aside 1,000,000 acres of land for a forest reserve. It fell to me to reply to the speech of the governor and I told him that we were indeed surprised that anybody in the state of New York would let that much get away from him. Then I told the governor that if the forest reserves of the state of Washington were placed side by side in one contingent body of land the entire Empire state of New York could not only be put down in the middle of it, but a man could walk around the boundaries of the forest reserve and still be unable to see the boundary of the state of New York."

Peary and Family Dug Out of a Drift

WASHINGTON. — Commander Robert E. Peary, U. A. N., who sledded to the north pole and back about a year after Dr. Cook of Brooklyn made the trip on the Imagination Limited, had an arctic experience a few nights ago within seven miles of Washington that was almost as bad in some respects as anything he experienced in latitude 90 or thereabouts.

As a result of the unique adventure the explorer was inconvenienced for several days.

"I ab nod sure," he told a friend, "bud I thig I toog gold. By doze Id ill dubbed ub. Aid Id siddy?"

Bound for Dinner Party.

Commander Peary, Mrs. Peary and Mrs. Peary's sister were on their way to keep an eight o'clock dinner engagement at the country home of Ralph P. Barnard, son of Justice Job Barnard of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The taxicab in which they were riding skidded, bucked a couple of times, and hopped off the road into a six-foot snowdrift. The chauffeur managed to keep his seat, but the Pearys involuntary assembled in one corner of the vehicle.

Whereupon the commander, although in evening garb and wearing low-cut patent leathers, started off across country in the direction of the nearest light.

The next day he intimated in nasal tones that it was one of the meanest trips he ever made. He plowed and wallowed through drifts of snow that sometimes reached his knees, sometimes his vest, and, on one memorable occasion, his shoulders.

The explorer knocked at several doors before he arrived at the hospitable home of Mr. Barnard.

The work of digging out the taxicab took more than an hour, and the Pearys and the other guests sat down to a dried up eight o'clock dinner at half past ten o'clock.

Threat to Blow Up the U. S. Senate

U.S. SENATE
BOMB SCARE

MEMBERS of the United States senate showed more than ordinary interest in the report from Chicago that a newspaper in that city had received a letter from a man signing himself "C. Hodges," declaring he intends to blow up the upper branch of congress with notro-glycerin.

Some of the insurgents are hoping that "C. Hodges" will put off the painful operation until they have had an opportunity of "surging." Senator Tillman says he hopes to be in South Carolina when the blow off comes.

The letter follows:

"To the Editor in Chief: I am going to blow up the congress with nitroglychein.

"My only reason for giving you this information is that I do not wish to injure or kill innocent people.

"This dishonorable body called the United States senate has plundered the public long enough, and it's time something was done to learn them a lesson—one they will remember for some time to come.

"The physicians inform me that I can only live about six months as I am suffering with incurable internal trouble and nothing will save me.

"I intended taking morphine and ending my existence until reading an article giving the history of the senate and its corruption.

"It determined me to change my plans on self-destruction for the time being and plot how I will wipe out the gang of grafters and also end my miserable life also.

"I have secured enough nitroglycerin to blow up h—l, and God help the so-called detectives who try to stop me.

"I will not write you again, but wait for results that are going to happen.

"Yours,

"C. HODGES."

Servian King Wants an American Heiress

WHERE is Count Pablo Mysky Treskaya, also known as Capt. Kardoff? He is supposed by his friends in Washington to be in Chicago in the interest of the Karageorgeovitch family, which now sits on the Servian throne, and is planning to marry into money. A rich Chicago bride for future queen of Servia would be just about what King Peter would like.

Both sons of King Peter are preparing to travel early in the new year, and the itinerary includes a two months' stay in the United States, unless the agent's report makes it inadvisable. One of them will succeed to the throne. Count Treskaya is a mysterious stranger, about whom Washington's ultra-exclusive set has been talking. Upon his appearance here he was believed to be a secret agent for some Balkan nation.

Now it turns out that King Peter commissioned him to come to this country and report what opportunity his two sons might have toward making an alliance with American girls.

Servia does not maintain a diplomatic representative in Washington, and this may have made the count's business difficult to transact. He is well supplied with funds by the house of Morgan, Harjes & Co., the Paris branch of J. P. Morgan & Co.

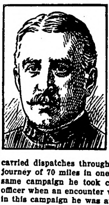
A report that the Servian princes want to marry American girls reached Washington last spring. Czar Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph and King George of Greece tried to plan an alliance for the sons of King Peter, but none of these would consider an alliance with any princes to whom they were individually related.

This is why the prince will seek to marry merely money.

A charity ball covers a multitude of sins—although it wears few clothes.

Prominent People

WOOD TO BE CHIEF OF STAFF



Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, now in command of the department of the east, will be the next chief of staff of the army. Secretary Dickinson made this announcement recently.

Gen. Wood will succeed Gen. J. Franklin Bell, whose term at the head of the general staff will expire next spring.

Gen. Wood's rise in the army has been one of the most spectacular in its history. Entering the medical corps as an assistant surgeon in 1886, he has been promoted by leaps and bounds, so that, next April, when he assumes his new duties at the war department, he will be at the head of the local army. He is only 49 years of age.

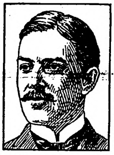
Attention was called to Wood before he had been in the army six months. While serving in the capacity of assistant surgeon he voluntarily carried dispatches through a region infested with hostile Indians, making a journey of 70 miles in one night and walking 30 miles the next day. In the same campaign he took command of a detachment of infantry without an officer when an encounter was hourly expected with Geronimo. For his action in this campaign he was awarded a medal of honor in 1898.

During the Spanish-American war he was colonel of the Rough Riders. For his services at Las Guaimas and San Juan Hill he was made a brigadier-general. Later he was promoted to be major-general and was made governor general of Cuba.

After the withdrawal of the American forces from Cuba Gen. Wood was sent to the Philippines, where he finally became commander of the Philippine division.

Although Gen. Wood always has been a capable officer and has fulfilled his duties as a soldier, it was the Roosevelt influence that pushed him forward with leaps and bounds. As is well known, when Theodore Roosevelt likes a man, he likes him, and when he dislikes a person he hates him. There is no half-way business about "Teddy."

JOHN D., JR., A GRAND JUROR



John D. Rockefeller, Jr., heir to the greatest fortune in the world, has been earning $3 a day as a grand juror here. He was appointed foreman of the special body called before Judge O'Sullivan to investigate the "white slave" traffic in New York City. He has had two weeks of work and at the end received a voucher for $24. That will be as much as his regular income for a few minutes.

Charged with the task of inquiring into the traffic in women, with a view to rigid prosecution or an end to sensational slanders against New York City, Mr. Rockefeller entered the work with the Rockefeller spirit, which knows no failure.

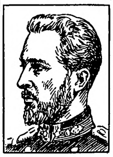
Charles S. Whitman, the new district attorney, began a similar inquiry on his first official day in office. He assigned a special assistant to examine witnesses and in a statement given out urged that the public come forward with any and all evidence that such traffic exists.

When Judge O'Sullivan observed Rockefeller's name among those drawn for the special grand jury he immediately asked him to assume the foremanship.

Rockefeller begged to be excused, pleading ill health and a stress of personal business matters.

"We have a very important inquiry to pursue," said Judge O'Sullivan, "and I believe you owe the community this duty."

THE NEW KING OF BELGIUM



The new king of Belgium, formerly Prince Albert, is 29 years of age and stands six feet three inches in his stocking feet. The new king is said to be in every way the antithesis of his notorious uncle. Despite the fact that his uncle and his father did not speak, he contrived in a diplomatic way to retain the friendship of both, and at the same time to propitiate the powerful socialistic element in his prospective kingdom.

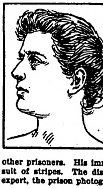
The prince's marriage to Duchess Elizabeth of Bavaria, daughter and assistant of Duke Charles Theodore, the celebrated oculist, who died recently, was a love match pure and simple. The married life of the two has been free from scandal.

The new king is an athletic young man and has undergone extensive military training under both Baron Wahis, who was one of the principal officers of the army of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, an uncle by marriage of the prince, and Gen. Harry Jungbluth, a Belgian officer, who has English blood in his veins.

He already has been pledged to stop all atrocities in the Congo. Inasmuch as the Congo will become the property of the nation next year, reforms may soon be accomplished.

Prince Albert visited America for eight months in 1898.

WORKING TO FREE HUSBAND



Charles W. Morse, formerly ice king of New York, was barely inside the federal prison walls at Atlanta, Ga., before his wife, who has sacrificed her home, jewels and sealskins to help him in his battle for freedom, began work to bring about his pardon by the president.

Mrs. Morse has started a petition for clemency and says she will work night and day to get signers. She has received letters from many persons she never heard of before, offering aid and promising to sign the petition now being circulated in several parts of the country.

Morse has been assigned to the tailor shop, where his work will not be hard.

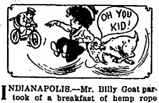
He is registered as convict No. 2,814 and occupies a steel cell not in the least different from those to which are assigned the several hundred other prisoners. His immaculate tailored garments gave way to a regulation suit of stripes. The distinguished prisoner did not escape the Bertillon expert, the prison photographer, the regulation bath and the barber.

Mrs. Morse followed her husband to Atlanta to visit him in his cell and returned to New York to seek a pardon for him. She has been the steadfast aid of Morse throughout his indictment and conviction. Early in his struggle against prosecution she sold her furs and other personal property to raise money for him. Mrs. Morse is the second wife of the convicted and sentenced New York financier and before her marriage to him in 1901 was Mrs. Clemence Cowles Dodge.

Odd News From Big Cities

Stories of Strange Happenings in the Metropolitan Towns

Men and Women Shocked by Billy Goat



INDIANAPOLIS.—Mr. Billy Goat partook of a breakfast of hemp rope and started out for a little recreation from a shed in the rear of 916 Fowler street. It was a fortunate incident for several persons who met Mr. Goat that they had eaten their breakfasts before leaving home, thus avoiding the trouble of eating from the mantel or top of the kitchen cabinet. The animal was in a joyful mood, and liberty and fresh air made him frisky.

The goat made no distinction as to sex. In his playfulness he enjoyed seeing a woman just as much as a man, and the result was that two women were badly frightened and shocked by having their bonnets shaken violently when they felt a sudden shock from the rear.

It was stated to the police that one man was shaken loose from his false teeth by the unexpected greeting of the goat, but the bicyclemen who investigated failed to learn his name.

Clara Langsdale, 710 East Eleventh street, made the acquaintance of the goat, according to the police, and, although given a jolt by the animal, she maintained her footing and escaped injury.

In answer to an excited telephone call Bicyclemen Rodemacher and Rowe were sent to the place from the substation in East Seventeenth street. The goat by that time had moved over in Ashland avenue and persons in the avenue, including men, women and children, were giving the animal plenty of room. Rodemacher had never wrestled with goats before, but instinct warned him that the only manner in which to hold a goat successfully was by his horns.

"Just hold on, Roddie, until I get up this tree, and then let go," was Rowe's jest.

Rodemacher needed no advice, and he held on until Mr. Goat came to the conclusion that he was violating the law. A goat with better manners could not have been found after he seemed to realize that he was "pinched."

One Policeman Who Couldn't Get Fat

FOUR DOZEN EGGS A GLASS OF MILK AND A BALE OF HAY. QUICK
BILL OF FARE

ST. LOUIS.—Dismissed from the police force because he was too thin to present a formidable appearance to offending humanity, John Higgins, although not one whit larger in circumference and just as tall as he ever was, has been restored to his job.

It was merely a question of the police board coming around to Higgins' viewpoint.

In the Dayton street district Higgins had a record which his superior officers declared any policeman should be proud of. He never shirked; was always on his beat; was a terror to evildoers, and loved police work as few patrolmen of St. Louis live it.

But the police surgeons didn't see it that way when Higgins came before them for examination. They cast a withering eye upon him, looked at each other and shook their heads.

Higgins was fired.

Not enough weight to so great an altitude was the verdict of the surgeons.

Encouraged by the plaudits of his superior police officers, Higgins went away to get fat. He ate often and abundantly, planning in a short time to return to the exacting doctors and present a girth which any St. Louis patrolman might carry with pride.

After weeks of experiment, Higgins, feeling puffy, weighed himself. The scales registered the same number of pounds the surgeons had frowned upon. There was nothing to do but eat more, and Higgins ate.

The board took cognizance of Higgins' thinness and of his inability to get fat. They said they thought he had been punished enough for being lean, particularly as he couldn't help it.

Higgins was restored to his job. They said any man who worked that hard eating to get fat, would work hard at his duties as a police officer.

"Smile Club," the Latest in New York

NEW YORK.—Miss Sara Carolyn Stright is the originator of the club which has just been started. In its few weeks of existence it has gained 75 members and they are widely scattered.

Florida is represented and California. There is a Wisconsin man who has joined and this is how his joining came about: A New York city man went to Buffalo on business and was asked by a stranger with whom he was talking: "What order are you?"

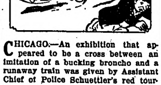
"Smile," returned the New Yorker, beaming on the questioner and pointing to the tiny gold pin with the words "The Smile Club" on it.

"I'd like to be a Smile myself," and so the Wisconsin man joined the ranks of the Smile club.

"There is a great demand for such a club and we are trying to fill it," said Miss Stright at her home, 241 Park place, Brooklyn, according to the New York Evening Telegram. "We appeal to the best in every one, and we appeal to all classes. The uneducated are seeking happiness as earnestly as the most highly developed persons. We are working out the ideal of innumerable people in the simplest way possible.

"It is somewhat misleading to call ourselves simply the Smile club. But if people would only realize the real meaning of 'smile' it wouldn't be misleading at all. We shall help people to forget themselves, to eliminate all destructive criticism and thoughts and to see good, and good only, in people. They must love life—animal life as well as human life—and God's out of doors above all things.

Chicago Chief's Automobile Ran Amuck



CHICAGO.—An exhibition that appeared to be a cross between an imitation of a bucking broncho and a runaway train was given by Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler's red touring car in front of the temporary city hall on Randolph street one morning a few days ago.

While John Upton, chauffeur, was cranking the machine he was surprised to see it start backward. He made a wild dash for the brake, but the auto got away from him. It swept backward at increasing speed, crashed into a Milwaukee avenue car, swung completely around, and, heading west, went over the curbstone and knocked down several signs. It was heading for the basement door of a building at 211 Randolph street, but suddenly changed its mind and plunged off down the street.

Upton chased the runaway to Franklin street, where he succeeded in getting control of the brakes. His victory was applauded loudly by a crowd of pedestrians who had fled to places of safety in near-by stores when the auto headed down the street.

Chauffeur Upton doesn't think the auto itself is to be blamed for "running amuck." In a written report to the assistant chief, Upton gives it as his professional opinion that while he was cranking the machine, somebody released the brakes and gave her full speed backward, just to see what would happen.

Upton had driven the assistant chief from his home, 3453 Bosworth avenue, to the temporary city hall. The auto was stopped on the south side of the street, heading east. The engine had "gone dead," and after Mr. Schuettler had stepped out the chauffeur started the cranking process. Then the excitement began.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - MINN.

LESSONS IN FORESTRY.

The world is fast learning the value of its forests and is taking steps to protect or reclaim them. Wanton waste during centuries of ignorance has brought many once fertile regions to the verge of a desolation like that of the Sahara, but repentance and reforestation have in every instance been followed by immediate rewards. Take the case of the Karst, a stretch of barren limestone land along the Austrian shores of the Adriatic. The navies of Venice were built of timber from the Karst, and most of eastern Italy drew its supplies of wood from the same supposedly inexhaustible source. The result was depletion—the Karst was turned into a seemingly irredeemable waste. At last Austrian foresters turned their attention to the 600,000 barren acres; taxes were remitted and money was remitted to tree planters; technical advice and encouragement was supplied. This work began in 1865. To-day over two-thirds of the Karst, or 400,000 acres, has been reclaimed. Germany, France, Denmark, Russia, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland have given special attention to their forests recently, Germany being the pioneer and leader in the work. But France has lately done so much in legislation and active assistance that special attention should be given to her efforts.

The change from steam to electricity on what have been steam railroads is so gradual, and the roads themselves make so little fuss about it, that the public is not in a position to realize the extent to which so marked a change in the application of power to transportation is being brought about. For example, it will be a surprise to most people, even within a comparatively short distance of New York, to learn that the Long Island railway already has 140 miles of electrically equippped track in readiness for operation. It is expected that by the first of next February trains will be running directly from the Pennsylvania terminal at Seventh avenue and Thirty-fourth street, Manhattan, to Jamaica. It will not be long before the territory at the western end and along the north shore of Long Island will be included in the through service.

A London dispatch announces that Hermann Klein, who is a teacher of singing in New York, has entertained an English audience with a lecture entitled "The Truth About Music in America." Musical enthusiasm, he declared, is largely a pose of American women. No musical educatior exists in the country. Ragtime is really preferred to chamber music. American artists are only appreciated by their countrymen after they have achieved success elsewhere. Finally, he attacked the star system in opera, church music and concerts as it exists in the United States.

The younger element among military and naval men will approve the condemnation of the existing organization of the military establishment of the United States by the board appointed several months ago to institute comparisons between methods in this country and in Europe, and to make a report. The report will recommend the establishment of an advisory board with duties and powers similar to those of the British admiralty. A thorough reorganization of navy yard administration will also be advised.

A wooden vessel 350 feet long over all will be launched at Bath, Me, within two weeks. She will be the largest vessel of American registry, and probably one of the last wooden vessels of large size to be constructed in the United States. Steel has come to be the material for both steam and sail craft, the world over.

In less than ten years' time every part of Central America will be in daily touch with the commercial world and the people peaceful and happy in all the provinces, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, with no fear of revolutions, political murders or official demands for their lives and their property.

More irregularities have been discovered in the supply department of the German navy at Kiel. This time it is in the matter of meat that crookedness is alleged. Germany can no longer laugh at the revelations of irregularities in the French navy.

Now there is an unprofitable difference of the returns on the point whether the loss of life in this season's football is 29 or 31. Yet why make a fuss over a little matter like two lives in their bearing on the glory of the game?

If Rameses knew that his present valuation was only $30,000 at the Boston custom house he would wish he were back in Egypt where his full worth was better appreciated some 3,000 years ago.

URGES CONSERVATION OF THE NATION'S RESOURCES

President Taft Sends Special Message to Congress Recommending Prevention of Land Frauds, Control of Water Power, Fostering of Soils and Kindred Subjects

Washington, Jan. 14.—Following is the complete text of the special message on the conservation of the nation's resources sent to the senate and house of representatives by President Taft to day:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my annual message I reserved the subject of the conservation of our national resources for disposition in a special message, as follows:

In several departments there is presented the necessity for legislation looking to the further conservation of our national resources, and the subject is one of such importance as to require a more detailed and extended discussion than can be entered upon in this communication. For that reason I shall take an early opportunity to send a special message to congress on the subject of the improvement of our waterways; upon the reclamation and irrigation of arid, semi-arid and swamp lands; upon the preservation of our forests and the re-foresting of suitable areas; upon the re-classification of the public domain with a view of separating from agricultural settlement mineral, coal and phosphate lands and sites belonging to the government bordering on streams suitable for the utilization of water power.

In 1860 we had a public domain of 1,055,911,288 acres. We have now 731,354,081 acres, confined largely to the mountain ranges and the arid and semi-arid plains. We have, in addition, 368,035,975 acres of land in Alaska.

Disbursement of Public Lands.

The public lands were, during the earliest administrations, treated as a national asset for the liquidation of the public debt and as a source of reward for our soldiers and sailors. Later on they were donated in large amounts in aid of the construction of wagon roads and railways, in order to open up regions in the west then almost inaccessible. All the principal land statutes were enacted more than a quarter of a century ago. The homestead act, the pre-emption and timber-culture act, the coal land and the mining acts were among these.

The rapid disposition of the public lands under the early statutes, and the lax methods of distribution prevailing, due, I think, to the belief that these lands should rapidly pass into private ownership, gave rise to the impression that the public domain was legitimate prey for the unscrupulous and that it was not contrary to good morals to circumvent the land laws. This prodigal manner of disposition resulted in the passing of large areas of valuable land and many of our national resources into the hands of persons who felt little or no responsibility for promoting the national welfare through their development.

Fraudulent Titles.

The truth is that title to millions of acres of public lands was fraudulently obtained and that the right to recover a large part of such lands for the government long since ceased by reason of statutes of limitations. There has developed in recent years a deep concern in the public mind respecting the preservation and proper use of our natural resources. This has been particularly directed toward the conservation of the resources of the public domain. A vast amount of discussion has appeared in the public prints in generalized form on this subject, but there has been little practical suggestion. It has been easy to say that the natural resources in fuel supply, in forests, in water power, and in other public utilities, must be saved from waste, monopoly, and other abuses, and the general public is in accord with this proposition, as they are with most truisms. The problem, however, is how to save and how to utilize, how to conserve and still develop, for no sane person can contend that it is for the common good that nature's blessings are only for unborn generations.

Noteworthy Reforms.

Among the most noteworthy reforms initiated by my distinguished predecessor were the vigorous prosecution of land frauds and the bringing to public attention of the necessity for preserving the remaining public domain from further spoliation, for the maintenance and extension of our forest resources, and for the enactment of laws amending the obsolete statutes so as to retain governmental control over that part of the public domain in which there are valuable deposits of coal, of oil, and of phosphate, and, in addition thereto, to preserve control, under conditions favorable to the public, of the lands along the streams in which the fall of water can be made to generate power to be transmitted in the form of electricity many miles to the point of its use, known as "water power" sites.

The investigations into violations of the public land laws and the prosecution of land frauds have been vigorously continued under my administration, as has been the withdrawal of coal lands for classification and valuation and the temporary withholding of power sites. Since March 4, 1909, temporary withdrawals of power sites have been made on 102 streams and these withdrawals therefore cover 229 per cent. more streams than were covered by the withdrawals made prior to that date.

The present statutes, except so far as they dispose of the precious metals and the purely agricultural lands, are not adapted to carry out the modern view of the best disposition of public lands to private ownership, under conditions offering on the one hand sufficient inducement to private capital to take them over for proper development, with restrictive conditions on the other which shall secure to the public that character of control which will prevent a monopoly or misuse of the lands or their products. The power of the secretary of the interior to withdraw from the operation of existing statutes tracts of land, the disposition of which under such statutes would be detrimental to the public interests, is not clear or satisfactory. This power has been exercised in the interest of the public, with the hope that congress might affirm the action of the executive by laws adapted to the new conditions. Unfortunately, congress has not thus far fully acted on the recommendations of the executive, and the question as to what the executive is to do is under the circumstances, full of difficulty. It seems to me that it is the duty of congress now, by a statute, to validate the withdrawals which have been made by the secretary of the interior and the president and to use the secretary of the interior temporarily to withdraw lands pending submission to congress of recommendations as to legislation to meet conditions or emergencies as they arise.

Properly to Classify Lands.

One of the most pressing needs in the matter of public-land reform is that lands should be classified according to their principal value use. This ought to be done by that or department whose force is best adapted to that work. It should be done by the interior department through the geological survey. Much of confusion, fraud, and contention which has existed in the present has arisen from the lack of an official and determinative classification of the public lands and their contents.

It is now proposed to dispose of agricultural lands as such, and at the same time to reserve for other disposition the treasure of coal, oil, ashphaltum, natural gas and phosphate contained therein. This may be best accomplished by separating the right to mine from the title to the surface, giving the necessary use of so much of the latter as may be required for the extraction of the deposits. The surface might be disposed of as agricultural land under the general agricultural statutes, while the coal or other mineral could be disposed of by lease on a royalty basis, with the provisions requiring a certain amount of development each year; and in order to prevent the use and cession of said lands with others of similar character so as to constitute a monopoly forbidden by law, the lease should contain suitable provision subjecting to forfeiture the interest of persons participating in such monopoly. Such law should apply to Alaska as well as to the United States.

Statute Difficult to Frame.

It is exceedingly difficult to frame a statute to retain government control over a property to be developed by private capital in such a manner as to secure the governmental purpose and at the same time not frighten away the investment of the necessary capital. Hence, it may be necessary by laws that are really only experimental to determine from their practical operation what is the best method of securing the result aimed at.

The extent of the value of phosphate is hardly realized, and with the need that there will be for it as the years roll on and the necessity for fertilizing the land shall become more acute, this will be a product which will probably attract the greed of monopolists.

Public Land Along Streams.

With respect to the public land which lies along the streams offering opportunity to convert water power into transmissible electricity, another important phase of the public land question is presented. There are valuable water power sites through all the public land states. The opinion is held that the transfer of sovereignty from the federal government to the territorial governments as they become states, included the water power in the rivers except so far as that owned by riparian proprietors. I do not think it necessary to go into discussion of this somewhat mooted question of law. It seems to me sufficient to say that the man who owns and controls the land along the stream from which the power is to be converted and transmitted, owns land which is indispensable to the conversion and use of that power. I cannot conceive how the power in streams flowing through public lands can be made available at all except by using the land itself as the site for the construction of the plant by which the power is generated and converted and securing a right of way thereover for transmission lines. Under these condition, if the government owns the adjacent land—indeed, if the government is the riparian owner—it may control the use of the water power by imposing proper conditions on the disposition of the land necessary in the creation and utilization of the water power.

Value of Water Power.

The development in electrical appliances for the conversion of the water power into electricity to be transmitted long distances has progressed so far that it is no longer problematical, but it is a certain inference that in the future the power of the water falling in the streams to a large extent will take the place of natural fuels. In the disposition of the domain already granted, many water power sites have come under absolute ownership, and may drift into one ownership, so that all the water power under private ownership shall be a monopoly. If, however, the water power sites now owned by the government—and there are enough of them—shall be disposed of to private persons for the investment of their capital in such a way as to prevent their union for purposes of monopoly with other water power sites, and under conditions that shall limit the right of use to not exceeding thirty years with renewal privileges and some equitable means of fixing terms of rental and with proper means for determining a reasonable graduated rental, it would seem entirely possible to prevent the absorption of these most useful lands by a power monopoly. As long as the government retains control and can prevent their improper union with other plants, competition must be maintained and prices kept reasonable.

Soils Must Be Conserved.

In considering the conservation of the natural resources of the country, the feature that transcends all others, including woods, waters, minerals, is the soil of the country. It is incumbent upon the government to foster by all available means the resources of the country that produce the food of the people. To this end the conservation of the soils of the country should be cared for with all means at the government's disposal. Their productive powers should have the attention of our scientists that we may conserve the new soils, improve the old soils, drain wet soils, ditch swamp soils, levee river overflow soils, grow trees on thin soils, pasture hillside soils, rotate crops on all soils, discover methods for cropping dry land soils, find grasses and legumes for all soils, feed grains and mill feeds on the farms where they originate, that the soils from which they come may be enriched.

A work of the utmost importance to inform and instruct the public on this chief branch of the conservation of our resources is being carried on successfully in the department of agriculture; but it ought not to escape public attention that state action in addition to that of the department of agriculture (as for instance in the drainage of swamp lands) is essential to the best treatment of the soils in the manner above indicated.

The act by which, in semi-arid parts of the public domain, the area of the homestead has been enlarged from 160 to 320 acres has resulted most beneficially in the extension of "dry farming" and in the demonstration which has been made of the possibility, through a variation in the character and mode of culture, of raising substantial crops without the presence of such a supply of water as has been heretofore thought to be necessary for agriculture.

But there are millions of acres of completely arid land in the public domain which, by the establishment of reservoirs for the storing of water and the irrigation of the lands, may be made much more fruitful and productive than the best lands in a climate where the moisture comes from the clouds. Congress recognized the importance of this method of artificial distribution of water on the arid lands by the passage of the reclamation act. The proceeds of the public lands creates the fund to build the works needed to store and furnish the necessary water, and it was left to the secretary of the interior to determine what projects should be started among those suggested and to direct the reclamation service, with the funds at hand and through the engineers in its employ, to construct the works.

No one can visit the far west and the country of arid and semi-arid lands without being convinced that this is one of the most important methods of the conservation of our natural resources that the government has entered upon. It would appear that over 30 projects have been undertaken, and that a few of these are likely to be unsuccessful because of lack of water, or for other reasons, but generally the work which has been done has been well done, and many important engineering problems have been met and solved.

Funds Inadequate for Service.

One of the difficulties which has arisen is that too many projects in view of the available funds have been set on foot. The funds available under the reclamation statute are inadequate to complete these projects within a reasonable time. And yet the projects have been begun; settlers have been invited to take up and, in many instances, have taken up, the public land within the projects, relying upon their prompt completion. The failure to complete the projects for their benefit is, in effect, a breach of faith and leaves them in a most distressed condition. I urge that the nation ought to afford the means to lift them out of the very desperate condition in which they now are.

This condition does not indicate any excessive waste or any corruption on the part of the reclamation service. It only indicates an over-zealous desire to extend the benefit of reclamation to as many acres and as many states as possible. I recommend, therefore, that authority be given to issue, not exceeding $30,000,000 of bonds from time to time, as the secretary of the interior shall find it necessary, the proceeds to be applied to the completion of the projects already begun and their proper extension, and the bonds running ten years or more to be taken up by the proceeds of returns to the reclamation fund, which returns, as the years go on, will increase rapidly in amount.

There is no doubt at all that if these bonds were to be allowed to run ten years, the proceeds from the public lands, together with the rentals for water furnished through the completed enterprises, would quickly create a sinking fund large enough to retire the bonds within the time specified. I hope that, while the statute shall provide that these bonds are to be paid out of the reclamation fund, it will be drawn in such a way as to secure interest at the lowest rate, and that the credit of the United States will be pledged for their redemption.

I urge consideration of the recommendations of the secretary of the interior in his annual report for amendments of the reclamation act, proposing other relief for settlers on these projects.

New Law Requisite.

Respecting the comparatively small timbered areas on the public domain not included in national forests because of their isolation or their special value for agricultural or mineral purposes, it is apparent from the evils resulting by virtue of the imperfections of existing laws for the disposition of timber lands that the acts of June 3, 1878, should be repealed and a law enacted for the disposition of the timber at public sale, the lands after the removal of the timber to be subject to appropriation under the agricultural or mineral land laws.

What I have said is really an epitome of the recommendations of the secretary of the interior in respect to the future conservation of the public domain in his present annual report. He has given close attention to the problem of disposition of these lands under such conditions as to invite the private capital necessary to their development on the one hand, and the maintenance of the restrictions necessary to prevent monopoly and abuse from absolute ownership on the other. These recommendations are incorporated in bills he has prepared, and they are at the disposition of the congress. I earnestly recommend that all the suggestions which he has made with respect to these lands shall be embodied in statutes and, especially, that the withdrawals already made shall be validated so far as necessary and that doubt as to the authority of the secretary of the interior to withdraw lands for the purpose of submitting recommendations as to future disposition of them where new legislation is needed shall be made complete and unquestioned.

Disposition of Forest Reserves.

The forest reserves of the United States, some 190,000,000 acres in extent, are under the control of the department of agriculture, with authority adequate to preserve them and to extend their growth so far as that may be practicable. The importance of the maintenance of our forests cannot be exaggerated. The possibility of a scientific treatment of forests so that they shall be made to yield a large return in timber without really reducing the supply has been demonstrated in other countries, and we should work toward the standard set by them as far as their methods are applicable to our conditions.

Upwards of four hundred millions acres of forest land in this country are in private ownership, but only three per cent. of it is being treated scientifically and with a view to the maintenance of the forests. The part played by the forests in the equalization of the supply of water on watersheds is a matter of discussion and dispute, but the general benefit to be derived by the public from the extension of forest lands on watersheds and the promotion of the growth of trees in places that are now denuded and that once had great flourishing forests, goes without saying. The control to be exercised over private owners in their treatment of the forests which they own is a matter for state and not national regulation, because there is nothing in the constitution that authorizes the federal government to exercise any control over forests within a state, unless the forests are owned in a proprietary way by the federal government.

Improvement of River.

I come now to the improvement of the inland waterways. He would be blind indeed, who did not realize that the people of the far west, and especially those of the Mississippi valley, have been aroused to the need there is for the improvement of our inland waterways.

The Mississippi river, with the Missouri on the one hand and the Ohio on the other, would seem to offer a great natural means of interstate transportation and traffic. How far, if properly improved they would relieve the railroads or supplement them in respect to the bulkier and cheaper commodities is a matter of conjecture. No enterprise ought to be undertaken the cost of which is not definitely ascertained and the benefit and advantage of which are not known and assured by competent engineers and other authority. When, however, a project of a definite character for the improvement of a waterway has been developed so that the plans have been drawn, the cost definitely estimated, and the traffic which will be accommodated is reasonably probable I think it is the duty of congress to undertake the project and make provision therefor in the proper appropriation bill.

One of the projects which answers the description I have given is that of introducing dams into the Ohio river from Pittsburg to Cairo, so as to maintain at all seasons of the year, by slack water, a depth of nine feet. Upward of seven of these dams have already been constructed and six are under construction, while the total required is 50. The remaining cost is known to be $63,000,000.

It seems to me that in the development of our inland waterways it would be wise to begin with this particular project and carry it through as rapidly as may be. I assume from reliable information that it can be constructed economically in ten years. I recommend, therefore, that the public lands, in river and harbor bills, make provision for continuing contracts to complete this improvement, and I shall recommend in the future, if it be necessary, that bonds be issued to carry it through.

What has been said of the Ohio river is true in a less complete way of the improvement of the upper Mississippi from St. Paul to St. Louis to a constant depth of six feet, and of the Missouri, from Kansas City to St. Louis to a constant depth of six feet and from St. Louis to Cairo of a depth of eight feet. These projects have been pronounced practical by competent boards of army engineers, their cost has been estimated and there is business which will follow the improvement.

As these improvements are being made, and the traffic encouraged by them shows itself of sufficient importance, the improvement of the Mississippi beyond Cairo down to the gulf, which is now going on with the maintenance of a depth of nine feet everywhere, may be changed to another and greater depth if the necessity for it shall appear to arise out of the traffic which can be delivered on the river at Cairo.

Cheap Rail Rate Necessary.

I am informed that the investigation by the waterways commission in Europe shows that the existence of a waterway by no means assures traffic unless there is traffic adapted to water carriage at cheap rates at one end or the other of the stream. It also appears in Europe that the depth of the streams is rarely more than six feet, and never more than nine. But it is certain that enormous quantities of merchandise are transported over the rivers and canals in Germany and France and England, and it is also certain that the existence of such methods of traffic materially affects the rates which the railroads charge, and it is the best regulator of those rates that we have, not even excepting the governmental regulation through the interstate commerce commission. For this reason, I hope that this congress will take such steps that it may be called the inaugurator of the new system of inland waterways. For reasons which it is not necessary here to state, congress has seen fit to order an investigation into the interior department and the forest service of the agricultural department. The results of that investigation are not needed to determine the value of, and the necessity for, the new legislation which I have recommended in respect to the public lands and in respect to reclamation. I earnestly urge that the measures be taken up and disposed of promptly without awaiting the investigation which has been determined upon.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

A Bird's Savings Bank.

In California the woodpecker stores acorns away, although he never eats them. He bores several holes, differing slightly in size, at the fall of the year, invariably in a pine tree. Then he find an acorn, which he adjusts to one of the holes prepared for its reception.

But he does not eat the acorn, for, as a rule, he is not a vegetarian. His object is storing away the acorns exhibits foresight and a knowledge of results more akin to reason than to instinct. The succeeding winter the acorns remain intact, but, becoming saturated, are predisposed to decay, when they are attacked by maggots, which seem to delight in this special food.

It is than that the woodpecker reaps the harvest his wisdom has provided, at a time when, the ground being covered with snow, he would experience a difficulty otherwise in obtaining suitable or palatable food.

His "Penitentiary Den."

"And now I must show you what I call my penitentiary den," said a popular author. "This," he continued, as he drew open a door, "is where I occasionally spend an hour or so when I am developing symptoms of that by no means uncommon malady among successful men called 'swelled head.'"

The room was a charming little snuggery about seven feet square, the only remarkable feature of which was the wall-covering. "If you look closely," explained the host, "you will see that my wall paper consists, on two sides of the rom, of those too-familiar and unwelcome printed forms on which editors express their regrets at declining one's pet manuscripts."

Zoological Puzzle.

Italian zoologists have a puzzle to solve, owing to the discovery on Mount Blanc of the body of a white bear, which has been brought to Aosta. It was thought at first that the bear must have died some three hundred years ago, and must have been preserved by the ice, since it has always been held that white bears vanished from the Alps three centuries ago. But it has since been demonstrated that death could only have taken place a few days previous to discovery. As this would seem to show that there are still white bears in the Alps, expeditions are to be sent to test the theory.

Tooly Lural!

"How far is it between these two towns?" asked the lawyer.

"About four miles as the flow cries," replied the witness.

"You mean as the cry flows."

"No," put in the judge, "he means as the fly crows."

And they all looked at each other, feeling that something was wrong.—Everybody's Magazine.

LAMPHERE TOLD ALL

BEFORE DEATH HE CONFESSED HELPING MRS. GUNNESS IN WHOLESALE CRIMES.

DETAILS OF TRAGEDY TOLD

How the Borgia Lured Victims to Death Told by Accomplice—Confesses to Killing of Arch Murderess and Three Children.

St. Louis.—According to a copyrighted story in the Post-Dispatch Thursday Ray Lamphere, who died recently in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City while serving a term for setting fire to the home of Mrs. Bella Gunness, at Laporte, Ind., did not carry the secrets of the charnel farm to the grave with him.

The confession was made to Rev. Dr. E. A. Schell, formerly pastor of the Laporte Methodist church, now president of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant, Ia., and held by him inviolate as a secret of the confessional.

The Post-Dispatch says Rev. Mr. Schell would verify, if he would consent to break the silence, the confession it publishes. The Post-Dispatch, however, says the confession it publishes was made to a man of unassailable character.

Lamphere, according to the confession, had a guilty knowledge of the murder of three men in the Gunness home during the time he lived there, about eight months in 1907, and he assisted Mrs. Gunness in disposing of the bodies of the three men.

He said he thought he had not received as much of the profits of the transaction as he considered himself entitled to, and he went to the farmhouse at night with a woman, chloroformed Mrs. Gunness, her three children and Jennie Olson. He and the woman then searched the house, finding between $60 and $70. The light they used was a candle, and they left the house without knowing they had left behind a spark that soon burst into flames.

Mrs Gunness' method of killing her victims, Lamphere said, was first to choloform them as they slept and then if the drug did not itself kill, to sever the heads with an ax. Each time a man was to be murdered, according to Lamphere, she sent him to purchase chloroform. Lamphere said he saw one of them killed and aided in burying all three. These men were Andrew Helgelein and probably Ole Budsberg and Tonness Petersen Lien.

Lien, Lamphere thought, was the third husband of Mrs. Gunness. At the time of the Lamphere trial it was thought Jennie Olson had been killed by Mrs. Gunness. Lamphere, however details how Mrs. Gunness had secreted her in the house after she returned from a visit and she was choloroformed by Lamphere and his accomplice.

A few nights after they came back there was another burying. Lamphere received money once more from Mrs. Gunness, and he said he became the trusted ally of Mrs. Gunness.

24 DROWNED IN SHIPWRECK

Steamer Czarina Goes on Coos Bar Near Mansfield, Ore.—Two of Crew Saved.

Marshfield, Ore.—Of 31 men on the steamer Czarina, which Wednesday night struck on the Coos bay bar and was wrecked, two have been rescued, and there is a possibility that five others, including Capt. Dugan and Harold Millis, will be saved. Harry Kentzell, first assistant engineer, was found unconscious in the breakers, and J. Robinson, second assistant, was washed ashore.

Several hours after Kentzell was rescued he regained consciousness and said that Capt. Dugan and Millis, the only passenger, had been bound to one of the masts. Robinson added that when the forward mast, to which he and five others had climbed, went by the board, the master, the first officer, Miller, and two seamen, were alive in the after rigging. These were the only ones left on the ship.

PASS WHITE SLAVE BILL

House Adopts Drastic Measure Which Will Go Far Toward Breaking Up Infamous Traffic.

Washington.—Representative Sabath of Chicago scored against Representative Mann when the Bennett-Sabath white slave bill was passed by the house Wednesday. That action, in effect, sends the Mann bill on the same subject to the house waste basket.

The Bennett-Sabath bill is perhaps the most drastic measure of the kind ever adopted by any state or nation, and if it is passed by the senate will go far toward breaking up the white slave traffic. It makes it a felony to import any person for immoral purposes, and then provides that any alien found in any disorderly house, or profiting in any way therefrom, may be deported.

Lazy Negro Harms Race.

Atlanta, Ga.—That the idle, shiftless negro is the greatest menace to his race was the assertion made by Booker T. Washington in an address before a large audience, a large part of which was white people, here Thursday.

Y. M. C. A. Home Burned.

Boston.—The Young Men's Christion Association building, Boylston and Berkeley streets, Back Bay district, burned Thursday. The loss exceeds $200,000.

"DEATH EXAMPLES" IN ARMY AND NAVY

SUMMARY EXECUTIONS FOR GOOD OF THE SERVICE

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY W.A. PATTERSON

By EDWARD B. CLARK

IN THE war and navy department there are many records of courts martial ordered by the regular authorities to consider the cases of soldiers and sailors charged with capital offenses. There are other records of courts martial which were conducted and the punishment found and executed before the Washington authorities knew anything about the offenses with which the accused were charged.

One of the earliest of "death examples" set by commanding officers in the field, who constituted themselves the last reviewing authority, was that of a quarter-breed Seminole Indian who, enlisting in the United States army, endeavored to betray the brave little band of Maj. Dade to the hostile reds in the everglades of Florida. The story of this execution and of the circumstances leading to it is but little more to-day than an army tradition, the whole thing being involved in much mystery. Not long after the shooting of the quarter-breed, Dade's entire command was annihilated by the Seminoles.

Almost the only thing on public view to-day which recalls that tragedy of the swamps, is a plain white marble shaft, which rises at West Point not far from Kosciusko's garden, to commemorate the death of Dade and of his 200 intrepid followers.

Osceola, the chief of the Seminoles, saw a number of his subordinate leaders sign a treaty with the whites, by which the Indians' land was to be given up. Osceola, asked to sign the paper, stepped forward, drew his hunting knife and stuck its blade through the document and deep into the desk upon which it lay. "There is my signature," he said, and strode from the room. From that instant war was on. One of the witnesses of this fearless act was the soldier whose blood was one-quarter Indian. It stirred in him an admiration for Osceola that made him swear to himself later to aid the Indian chief's cause.

A familiarity with the country on the part of the quarter-breed led Dade to select him as guide. The soldier led the command straight to an ambush, which was discovered by a fortunate circumstance, just in time to save the command from the annihilation which, however, came later. There was a drumhead court martial. The guide was sentenced to be shot at sunrise. His last request was granted. He removed from his person all signs of the uniform of the United States. He put on leggings and hunting shirt of deerskin. Then this man, three-quarters white and only one-quarter red, sang the death song of the Seminole Indians, and died with five bullets in his breast.

If a man will picture to himself the sensation that there would have been in the United States if Admiral Dewey had strung up to the yardarm "until he was dead," the son of the secretary of war, on the charge of mutiny, and had done this without communicating with the authorities at Washington, he may get some adequate idea of the excitement of the American people in the year 1843, when it was learned that Capt. Alexander Slidell Mackenzie, of the brig Somers, had hanged Ensign Philip Spencer, the son of President Tyler's secretary of war, John C. Spencer.

This execution took place on the high seas, and with Ensign Spencer were hanged Ordinary Seaman Small, and Boatswain's Mate Cromwell. Prior to being ordered to the Somers, Spencer had been on a vessel in the south Atlantic squadron, and while there had become involved in some practices which secured his removal from his vessel. He was saved from dismissal from the service by sheer force of his father's political influence. When he was ordered to Capt. Mackenzie's brig, that officer objected to the assignment, saying that he had no use for the "base son of an honored father." Spencer went along, however, and for a while behaved himself fairly well. There were 12 officers on the brig with a crew of 12 able seamen, and about 90 apprentice boys. The Somers' destination was the African coast, where it was to aid in the protection of American commerce. When it was about half way across it was noticed that Spencer was hobnobbing with the crew; that he was giving some of the men money, and others brandy and tobacco.

One night a seaman named Wales imparted secretly to Mackenzie the details of a plot concocted by Spencer to murder all the officers and to seize the brig for the purpose of entering upon a career of piracy. The story that Wales told was so horrible in its outlines that Capt. Mackenzie treated it at first with ridicule, but the actions of certain members of the crew soon showed that there was something in the wind. The officers held a consultation and agreed that Spencer's arrest was imperative. The crew was assembled at evening quarters, when the son of the secretary of war was arrested. Upon his person was found the details of the plan for killing the officers, seizing the ship and the throwing overboard of the younger apprentices, whom the paper referred to as "useless biscuit consumers." The document was written entirely in Greek, Spencer being a classical scholar. Luckily there was another officer on board who read the language.

After the seizing of Spencer, many of the crew became disobedient, sullen and mutinous in action. Then Capt. Mackenzie ordered the arrest of Small and Cromwell. After this the sullen ones among the crew behaved worse than ever. The officers held a consultation, and it was agreed that unless an example were set, the Somers would meet the fate of the Bounty. They signed a recommendation that the three ringleaders be hanged at the yardarm. The three culprits were strung up, Spencer and Small confessing their guilt, and saying that they deserved their fate. When the Somers reached New York, Capt. Mackenzie communicated with the navy department. A court of inquiry was ordered and he was cleared of any blame. In spite of this fact, his chief, the secretary of the navy, ordered his arrest on the charge of murder. He was tried and acquitted by a board of officers, and President Tyler approved the verdict.

After the close of the civil war, Gen. Custer was ordered to western Kansas to check the ravages of the Kiowas, Comanches and Arapahoes. He was then a lieutenant-colonel in the regular establishment, but he had an independent command in the field. Custer was a long distance from headquarters and with no means of communication. During months of campaigning he was practically a law unto himself. He crushed the Indians, and, to use his own words, he expected when he returned to civilization to at least have it said to him: "You have done well."

Instead of this verbal patting on the back from his superiors, however, Custer was ordered into arrest on charges of exceeding his authority in the field. It was declared at the time that Custer had ordered a detail of men under a non-commissioned officer to go out from camp and bring back some men who having secured some liquor, were having a jollification at a distance, on the prairie. It was charged that he gave the sergeant certain orders which were carried out, and they were of a nature to anger the authorities. Despite Custer's magnificent career in the civil war, this taking of the law into his own hands was not condoned, and he was sentenced by a court martial to two years' suspension from rank, pay and command.

The army execution most pathetic in detail and surroundings, and yet which was wholly justifiable apparently by the circumstances, was the shooting of Private C. B. Henry, by order of Lieut. Greely, in the far north. Greely's party was starving to death. Its condition was getting more terrible each day. A few shrimps and a little edible moss was all that the explorers could get to sustain life. Some of the men were already dead from starvation. Henry was detected on several occasions stealing more than his share of food. He was warned three times, and his offense was condoned. The other members of the party saw Henry gaining in strength day by day, while they weakened with starvation. Then once more he was detected stealing food. Greely wrote out an order of execution, loaded three rifles, two with ball, and one with blank cartridge, and gave the weapons with the death warrant, to three men. An hour later, from far over the ice floe came the reports of three rifles. Henry was dead. After the rescue the report of the execution was sent to Washington. One of the shortest orders ever issued from the war department was the answer: "No court of inquiry necessary. R. C. Drum, adjutant general."

When the second sergeant in charge of recruits at Fort Myer, Virginia, called the reveille roll one day, at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, he dwelt momentarily on the last name in the list, the name of a man now dead. The recruit who answered, "Here," on that morning, as a private in the ranks, was an elderly man, a West Point graduate, an ex-United States engineer officer, and an ex-United States paymaster. He is dead, I believe, and he shall be nameless here, for he lived down his past and fought for his country in an attempt to redeem his career. I have said that he shall be nameless, but I will call him Williams.

It is hard to define just what was passing in Williams' mind while the sergeant in the gray light of the Virginia morning was running through his roll call. It was his first attendance at military duty in 18 years. It was the first time that he had stood in ranks to answer his name in almost 30 years. The last time that he said "Here," he was in the area of the old barracks at West Point, when as a gray-clad cadet, standing side by side with his chum and classmate, Frederick D. Grant, he had listened to the pattering call of names by the cadet first sergeant. He had attended reveille as an officer of engineers in the United States army, and later, after resignation from the service of this country, as an officer high in the service of Japan, where he won medals and honor for bravery.

Williams' next glimpse of the service was as a paymaster in the army of the United States, a position to which Gen. Grant had appointed him after his return from the far east. Then came the temptation, then the fall, and Williams was cashiered from the service of his country. Eighteen years of repentance and upright life followed, and now at the age of 54, by special permission of the war department, and by special request of old-time classmates and friends, Williams, one time colonel, had enlisted in the service as a private, with the firmly expressed determination to wipe out by good service, the one act which disgraced his past.

It took all of Private Williams' fortitude to stand without flinching, the changes in his life which the change in his rank entailed. When Williams was a paymaster his was the easy-going life of a staff officer. Stationed more than nine-tenths of the time in the great cities, he lived a life of luxury and ease.

During Williams' career as a paymaster, the troops were paid every 60 days, and the sum of his actual duties comprised possibly four or five short railroad trips, or at worst, a few stage trips, taking up about five days of every two months. He was "Williams" to all his equals and superiors in rank, and "Major" to all his juniors, and he was an honored guest at every army social affair.

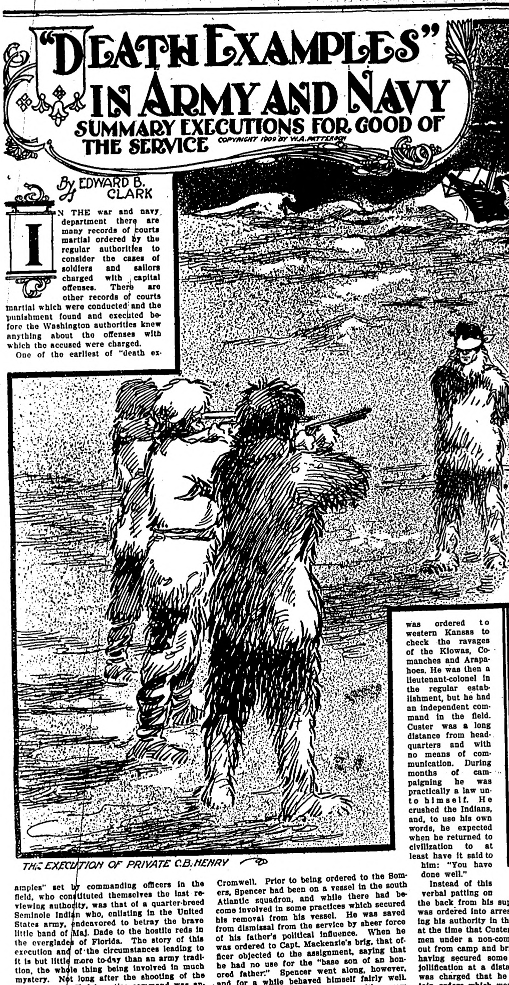
Private Williams, Third cavalry, Fort Myer, Va., met the major of his squadron. The major and he walked post together at West Point. They may have been the most intimate friends. In the army it is possible that they messed together. Private Williams looked at his major, his right went to his cap in the salute which every inferior must pay to his superior in rank. The salute is returned formally, and Private Williams and the major have passed each other as if they never met before, and had never heard of each other.

Private Williams, in attending stable call groomed his horse under the eye of a second lieutenant who was unborn when Williams wore the shoulder straps of an engineer officer. It may be that the stripling soldier, meanly inclined, some day may have spoken harshly to the veteran. By going back into the ranks for the express purpose of doing what he could to redeem his past, Williams showed that he was one of the kind who will suffer and make no sign.

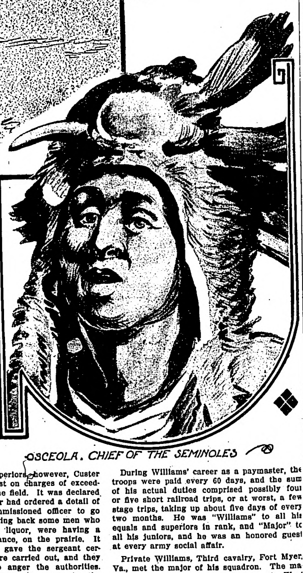
It is possible that the man grooming his steed on Williams' right or left may have been some veteran soldier who at one time served under his command. There probably Private Williams did not look in vain for sympathy and help.

Private Williams' club life of former years, his short hours, and his luxurious living as a staff officer gave place to a routine which included rising at six o'clock, breakfast of hash coffee and hard bread at 6:30, and drill and fatigue work for the rest of the day. There was wood sawing, rubbish raking and ditch digging for Private Williams, and it may be that some of this work was done by Private Williams within full range of the windows of his major's quarters, where his menial toil was seen by women with whom in the dead years he danced or dined.

For 18 years Williams' career in civil life had been above reproach. He had stood much when, in certain places, the history of his wrong-doing leaked out, but the hardest struggle of his life was to come. His squadron went to the Philippine islands, and there, under the eyes of scores of his old army chums, Private Williams worked to win on the field of battle the credit which would restore him to that place in man's ranks from which a court martial of his fellows once deposed him



THE EXECUTION OF PRIVATE C.B. HENRY



OSCEOLA, CHIEF OF THE SEMINOLES

HER POINT OF VIEW.

Sweet Maid—You must remember that ours was a summer engagement.

The Man—That means, if you see anyone you like better, you'll break it?

Sweet Maid—Yes.

The Man—And if I see anyone I like better—

Sweet Maid—I'll sue you for breach of promise.

SOFT, WHITE HANDS

May be Obtained in One Night.

For preserving the hands as well as for preventing redness, roughness, and chapping, and imparting that velvety softness and whiteness much desired by women Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, is believed to be superior to all other skin soaps. For those who work in corrosive liquids, or at occupations which tend to injure the hands, it is invaluable.

Treatment.—Bathe and soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, and in severe cases spread the Cuticura Ointment on thin pieces of old linen or cotton. Wear during the night old, loose gloves, or a light bandage of old cotton or linen to protect the clothing from stain. For red, rough, and chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, and shapeless nails with painful finger ends, this treatment is most effective. Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world, Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass.

Fight Against Plague Goes On.

Although the survey of the past year's anti-tuberculosis work shows that much has been done, the reports from all parts of the country indicate that this year the amount of money to be expended, and the actual number of patients that will be treated will be more than double that of the past year. For instance, special appropriations have been made in the various municipalities for next year's anti-tuberculosis work, aggregating $3,976,500. In addition to these appropriations over $4,000,000 has been set aside by the different state legislatures for the campaign against tuberculosis this year. Besides these sums, a large number of the present existing institutions and associations are planning enlargements of their work, and new organizations are being formed daily.

Rich Territory Opened Up.

The development of the Brazilian Amazon valley must in time amount to untold wealth. In the states of Para and the Amazonas and the federal territory of Acre there are near the water's edge 10,000,000 rubber-bearing trees of the Hevea variety. These trees, if properly tapped, will live indefinitely and steadily increase their yield. The state of Para is considerably larger than Texas, and much of it will grow excellent cotton.

Excused.

"Shame on you You came home last night actually tipsy."

"So I did, my dear. I just couldn't resist the pleasure of seeing two of you at once."

Easily Distinguished.

"This," remarked Mr. Cane, "is my photograph with my two French poodles. You recognize me?"

"I think so," said Miss Softee. "You are the one with the hat on, are you not?"

How loafers grate upon the nerves of a busy person.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advanse. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn, under th. Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

John Peterson, receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston, Completes his first term of four years next month and according to press dispatches from Washington, Secretary Ballinger has assured Congressman Steenerson that he will be reappointed to his present position. Mr Peterson has made a very efficient officer and is highly regarded by the department.

The petition for a rehearing in the case of Martin V. Eveson vs. W.C.L Demman et. al. has beendenied by the supreme court and thus ends another chapter in the county seat war, as it will mean that three of the board of County Commissioners can bond this county for money enough to build a new court house There is no strong sentiment in this part of the county against the building of a new court house, provideing the three Commissioner, who now have the power to bond and build, will consider the interests of the tax payers of the county and build within their means. But if they get up on their high horse and go into extravagance, just to show Thief River Falls that they are boss of the situation, there is likely to be a kick made by "the ballance of power" in this county, that would leave you with an extravagant court house and 12 Town ships to pay for it. This county seat fight is being watched by a large number of voters and tax payers in this caunty that are not realestate owners in either Red Lake or Thief River Falls, but are sizeing up the situation from the stand point of the farmers who pay the bulk of the taxes, and they have a vote comming, and they will place it where it will do the most good.

That Resolution.

The Thief River Falls News seems to be up to Eastmans old game of "railroading" resolutions through Highlanding organizations, and we presume that if we were to try the same scheme in Thief River Falls that we could easily pass a resolution in almost any club, or organization to the affect, "that Eastman had better go way back and sit down and keep his nose out of the Highlanding peopels business."

As to Steenersons campaign in this township we are not aware that he made any campaign although Andrew Ellingson and ye editor loyaly supported him, and would have made a stronger campaingn if we had not been assured of the support of the former runners of the Highlanding post office, and the men that are now "bucking" Elingson of their support, instead of useing the Highlnding U.S. post office for meeting to slyly knife him in the back, and now you talk about Steenerson nursing post masters in the town of Highlanding.

As to Congressman Steenerson doing a little investigateing we want to say; that when we are hit in the dark, with a stuffed club, if we are fortunate enough to wake up the next morning we are likely to start an investigation to find out who did the dirty trick, and you bet this post office appointment has been investigated by men that are friends of Steenerson, are on the ground, and understand the situation, and don't propose to take any more chances of being "did" as they were in the last campaign, and now that's what they are mad about, and if Congressman Steenerson wants to do anymore investigating, at the instigation of John Eastman, THE SUNBEAM, and Hunt is ready to step out of the next Steenerson campaign in eastern Red Lake county and allow him. Eastman and the socialist club to run it, as we don't propose to stay in a proposition where we know we are going to get our political throat cut, and be told as a reward that we are no good. For whether we are any good or not we know a man about the size of J. W. E that has been very glad to have us with him in a couple of political deals since our residence in Red Lake county.

SUMMONS

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, S. S.
District Court,
14th, Judicial District.
Bessie Engman, ---Plaintiff.
Vs
Axel Engman, ---Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To the obove named defendant.

You are hereby summond and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in above entitled action, which said complaint is on file with the Clerk of the above named Court at his office in the City of Red Lake Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this snmmons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the Relief demanded in the complaint herein.

E. M. Stanton,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Thief River Falls Minnesota.

12, 17-9.—1, 21,-10.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR DISTRIBUTION.

ESTATE OF Ole Overum.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole Overum Decedent.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO Barbra Overum, Geneva Overum, and Clifford Overum and all persons interested in the final account and ditribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court her final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, togeather with her petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for ditribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled; THEREFORE YOU AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms, in the City of Red Lake Falls in the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910, at 5 o'clock P.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, The Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 28th, day of December 1909.

S. A. SWANSON
[Court Seal] Judge of Probate.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 21, 1910.

Department of The Interior U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota January 14th, 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole [illegible] Ostenaa, of Neptune Minnesota, who on November 7th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 849, Serial No. 04306 (for S.W. ¼ Section 10 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 24th, day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Siver Haugo, of Neptune Minn. Nels Resin, of Rudell Minn. Knut Jorstad, of Wanke Minn. Julious K. Halverson, of McIntosh Minn

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Three Kinds of Cigars.

What is a Havana cigar? George Augustus Sala, who had studied Cuban cigarmaking on the spot, once set forth that three kinds of cigars come from Havana itself—first, genuine Havanas, made of tobacco grown, cured and rolled in the island of Cuba; second, cigars composed, inside, of United States or European tobacco imported into Cuba, with an outside wrapper of Havana leaf; third, cigars brought ready made from Europe, mostly from Bremen and Switzerland, and re-exported from Havana to Europe, where they pay duty and are sold to the unwary as "Havanas."

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. January 7, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 25th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 800, Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above describe: before Wilhelm Michelet: U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Habedank, August Ristan, of Thief River Falls Minn. Jacob Jonas Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN.
Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th 1909

Department of the Interior U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn December 14th, 1909.

Notice is hereby given that, Lewis T. Burgh, of Plummer Minn., who on October 14th, 1904 made Homestead entry No. 871, Serial No 04249, for N.E. ¼ Section 17 Township 152 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses;

John L. Larson, Ed Miller, John P. Johnson, Tom Mandt, all of Plummer Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE. Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub in the Sunbeam Dec. 17, 1909

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909. Notice is hereby given that Carl August Carlson, of Germantown Minn. who on June 25th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 285, Serial No. 04116 for N. E ¼ Section 7 Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above descibed, before J. M. Bishop municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 17th, day of January 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter Flo, Haaken Nabben, August Johnson, John Carlson all of Thorwik Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE. Register

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 17th, 1909

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 13, 1909

Notice is hereby given that Andreas Ahensen, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 27th, 1905, made Homestead entery No. 1193, Serial No. 04482, for Lots 3, 4, S.E. ¼ N.W. ¼ Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 19th. day of January, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Overvold, of Highlanding Minn. Gunder Asbjernson, of Malone Minn. Elias Mostue, of Sunbeam Minn. Andrew Knutson, of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague,
Register.

The Fate of the Oneida.

One of the most extraordinary catastrophies that have befallen vessels of the United States destroyed the sloop of war Oneida in 1869. She was bound homeward, with a jolly ship's company, eager to see wives and sweethearts and native land once more, when not far out of port she was struck by the British steamer Bombay coming in. The stem of the Bombay cut off the stern of the Oneida. The ship was sinking rapidly, and guns of distress were immediately fired, but the Bombay steamed on her way and left the vessel to her doom. She went down, and all but one or two of her crew were drowned. The captain of the Bombay gave no other reason for his conduct than that he had Lady Eyre, the wife of a distinguished British satrap, on board and did not wish to disturb her nerves with scenes of shipwreck. He was mobbed when he reached Yokohama, dismissed from the service, socially tabooed from that time on and died in disgrace a year or two later.

A Nice Wedding Present.

A reproduction of a picture called "The Coming Storm" was advertised for sale in a Berlin shop window, and under the title there were the words in large type, "Suitable for a wedding present."

Thinking Oneself Old.

If at thirty you expect to be an old man or woman at fifty-five you will be one, because the mind makes the material correspondence of whatever it gets itself permanently upon.—Health Record.

Columbus' Oversight.

That was a wise schoolboy who when the master asked, "Why was it that his great discovery was not properly appreciated?" promptly replied, "It was because he didn't advertise, sir."

One day is worth two tomorrows. Have you something to do tomorrow? Do it today.—B. Franklin.

A Nice Bird.

"Do you like a nice bird?" asked the host as they sat down to the table.

"Oh, yes!" responded the guest immediately and enthusiastically.

"You ought to call on my sister," explained the other. "She's got one of the finest canaries you ever saw. Well, what kind of a sandwich do you think you can eat?"—London Telegraph.

THE HARP CAME BACK

Incident In the Career of an Old Time Opera Manager.

A SURPRISE FOR MARETZEK.

It Came at a Time When Max Was Broke and the Sheriff Had Levied Upon All His Stage Properties—Mme. Maretzek's Thanks to the Carpenter.

In the old days in New York city, before there was a Metropolitan or a Manhattan Opera House and when the center of the theatrical world was around Fourteenth street, Max Maretzek and Strakosch were prominent at the old Academy of Music. There was a keen rivalry between them. Strakosch had Nilsson, and Maretzek was exploiting Di Murska.

By some error of dates both were booked for New York at the same time. Strakosch was at the Academy and Maretzek, having closed a poor season elsewhere, had halted in New York before going to Philadelphia and secured a week at the Lyceum theater on Fourteenth street. There were strong bills at both places. Each manager had his friends, and the billposters had a busy time of it. A round of bills for one company was no sooner posted than the rival billposter covered up the poster with the rival company's sheets.

At last, for the matinee on Saturday, bills at both houses were suddenly changed, every vacant fence place plastered over quickly, and with a pelting storm in the morning the managers began to put out "paper" to fill the houses. Alfred Joel was the business man for Maretzek and an adept at "papering" when necessary. With a house packed from parquet to gallery Joel had counted the boxes, found only $100 in the house and announced it to Max when the curtain fell between the acts.

This was serious to Max. The ever ready money lender who had "put up for him" had a lien on the box office, a sheriff's officer was in waiting on the stage, and it was a question of replevin before the properties and costumes could be liberated to follow the company to Philadelphia early next morning.

"Well, Alfred," quietly said Max, "I guess I'm used to trouble. But there is a good, big house anyway!" Then, turning to his wife, who was the harpist of the orchestra, he clasped both her hands, kissed her and remarked: "Let your fingers do their best. I want to hear you play. It does my heart good, you know, even when there's trouble."

There was hustling after the performance. Legal talent was at a premium, creditors were obdurate, everything that was supposed to be Maretzek's was temporarily in "hock," and Mme. Maretzek in tears, with longing looks at the harp she valued.

The scene of negotiations was transferred to the greenroom just as the officers making the levy were searching for more, and when their backs were turned the old stage carpenter hurried Mme. Maretzek away, then called her back again five minutes after and pointed to the orchestra.

The harp had disappeared. Clearing out everything on Sunday morning, while the boxes of properties were being taken away, Max and his wife stood in the center of the darkened stage. Both were crying. The instrument they valued most had been taken from them. Other things had been liberated, but no harp, and with a scene of grief that no others than themselves could have appreciated they were silent.

Then Old Man Guernsey stood between them and waved his hand above them into space. There were a creaking of pulley wheels, an injunction from the carpenter to "look out for your heads," and, lowered from above, came Mme. Maretzek's harp, landing on the stage between them.

"Now, you've got it again, get it away quick!" said Guernsey. "Stop crying and be thankful. That's all."

He moved off without waiting for thanks, and a pathetic scene with Max and his wife closed the incident. To them the harp was as a part of themselves. To lose it was more than a misfortune, and in a broken voice the lady called the carpenter back to her.

"Please let the harp thank you," said she, "and listen. It will speak with my hands on this Sunday morning."

She placed herself beside it, seated on a box, and, with a smile that chased away tears, gave for a moment or two, as only she could give it, the air of the doxology, "Praise God, From Whom All Blessings Flow."—New York Times.

The Color of Lakes.

Some lakes are distinctly blue, others are of various shades of green, so that in some cases they are scarcely distinguishable from their level, grass surrounded banks. A few, too, are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green, while the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The Lake of Brienz is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Thun, is blue.

Fashion, Not Health.

In nine cases out of ten, says the Iowa Health Bulletin, if a physician tells a woman that in order to improve her health she must wear her clothes in a certain way she will follow the advice of her dressmaker instead.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors. Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY:

D. N. WINTON,
Manager.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS,

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,
ST HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.
C. L. HANSEN...... Pesident.
DANIEL PATTERSON ...Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS........2nd Vice Pres.
J. K. BURKEE..........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

DR. MILES' Anti-Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale! 80 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G.A.Hoveland, R F D No 1
Fosston Minn.

Rev. E A. Mosine made this office a plesent call Monday.

There is to be a grand public ball at the Kolski hall in Deer Park on Saturday evening Jan. 29th..

Mrs.Ole Overum has been visiting freinds and relation at Grafton N.D. the past two weeks

Mike Kolski will go to Plummer tomorrow night, to play the clarionet at the grand masqurade ball.

The farmers are haveing very fine winter weather for threshing and they are improveing it to the best of their ability.

The Ole Giving threshing rig has finished threshing for John Quirk and will start moveing over to Walter Mcandress today.

The ball at Mike Kolskies has been ajourned to Saturday evening January 29th.. Remember the date and be sure to attend.

Martain Hyland is again stocking up his farm in Deer Park and will again take hold of the plow to raise some high priced wheat and flax.

We regret that so small a matter as the appointment of a 4th. class post master at Highlanding should stir up war, "but if we must have war let it come." "I repeat it Sir: Let it come,"

The farmers around Hilda Rudell have rented A.D.Browns threshing machine and put it on skies to move it from one farmer to another and expect to finish threshing before spring.

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2.00 per cord.
Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anderson and Will Rodman, of Deer Park made us a plesent visit on Wednesday. They are old Polk county neighbors of ours, Mr, and Mrs. Anderson haveing worked one winter for us in THE SUNBEAM office at Gully.

There was a large attendance at the Kratka hall basket social on Saturday evening last, and an enjoyable time was had. A good sum was realized from the sale of the baskets, for the bennefit of the school libriary.Lillo Bros. string band furnished the music and that fine ball room floor was kept well warmed up until morning.

Ye editor took an evenings trip to the masqurade ball at Hilda last Saturday,and was well repaid for our trouble by meet a jolly crowd. The hall was well filled with masked dancers, and there were many pretty and comic customs. A fine lunch was served at midnight and the dance went merrily on until broad daylight in the morning. Music was furnished by the Kolski string band,and was first class.

THE FARMERS BOAT,

At the meeting of board of directors of The Red Lake River Transportation Co., held at the store of Andrew Ellingson, at Highlanding last Saturday, A D. Brown was elected peesidant,and Alfred Hammersteen secretary. As soon as the books are turned over to the new officials a meeting of the board will be called to decide what action to take for the redemption of the farmers boat.

"Oh weigh the vessal up, and she will plow the seas again, but Campfelt and his band of braves will plow the waves no more."

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Mr.Jarmn Underdahl had a runaway Monday on his return from Rhoda.

Mr. Nystrom came from Hill River to attend the meeting at S.V.Carlsons on Sunday.

Mr. Torger Torgerson from Lost River is visiting with the families of Mr. Hansen and Carlson this week.

Mr. Brookman, from Kittson County is visiting friends in Deer Park.

The farmers threshing machine started up Monday at A.Rolandsons place.

Mr. George Singer and son Johny made a flying trip to Gully Sunday, returning Monday.

Mrs. A. Rolandson made a short visit with Mrs. Underdahl on Friday.

Mr. Legvold, from Thief River Falls is visiting friends and relatives near Lillo.

Herman and August Lillo was at Kratka last Saturday night to play for the big ball.

The children of Dan Stonehouse are down with the hooping cough.

Miss Anniebell Rolandson is laid up with a sore hand.

There will be meeting in the school house north west from Carlsons next Sunday.

A. good pair of 8 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E. A.Mosue, one mile south from Sunbeam.

They Got Caught At It.

Anthony Dannaker and Sever Nelson went down to Thief River Falls Wednesday to interview the News editor about that farmers club resolution, from the town of Highlanding, Mr, Dannaker is town clerk of this township, and Mr. Nelsen is town treasurer. Both of them are members of the Highlanding farmers club, Both of them signed the petition for Andrew Ellingson for post master, and Mr. Nelson signed his bond, and now comes John Eastman with the statment that "The farmers club with a membership of thirty seven at a meeting held recently passed a unanimous resolution dissaproveing the appointment of Ellingson." Oh what a lie!

THE COLD FACTS.

The facts of the matter is: That no such resolution was passed at a regular meeting of the farmers club, and if it was passed at all it was done by a flew members that are trying to use the farmers club of Highlanding for Eastman to grind his political ax on, and that kind of business don't go in this neck of the woods, this year. The farmers club is not a political organization but if this matter was to be brought up for them to act upon with all members present, we are sure that Andrew Ellingson would receive their lindorsement for post master at Highlanding.

Eskimo Baby Talk.

With the ordinary Eskimo language consisting of such words as igloo, abwe-il-ab and ka-loo-loo-ka one can but wonder what their real baby talk sounds like.—Binghamton Republican.

Enough to Frighten One.

Tommie—Does your papa frighten you when he tries to make you go to sleep? Ethel—Yes; he sings to me!—Yonkers Statesman.

The man who can govern a woman can govern a nation.—Balzac.

Why Women's Minds Are Cleaner.

"Of course women should vote," he said. "Women deserve the suffrage as much as men—more, because their minds are purer and cleaner."

"Cleaner?" cried the sweet young thing he had taken in to dinner. "Of course they are, ever and ever so much cleaner! But how do you know that?"

"Because they change them so much oftener," said he solemnly.—Exchange.

The Poet's Son.

"Why, Freddy, how dirty you are, and only yesterday you wrote a verse for papa's birthday, promising always to wash your hands clean."

"Well, mamma, that was only a poetic license."—Fliegende Blatter.

NEWS! News!
Cut this out and paste
it in your BIG hat,
SINGER BOS,
RHODA & KRATKA,
Is the cheapest and best place
to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices
Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT
WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS,
UP TO FIRST CLASS
TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money
on Shoes & Clothing

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill a Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.
Yours For Bnciness,-- SINGCR BROS.
Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

The Poor Bridegroom.

"Even the English language emphasizes the insignificance of a man at his own wedding," said the prospective bridegroom disconsolately. "There isn't an independent word to designate him. He is merely called the groom of the bride, as if he were just about on a level with the bridesmaids and a little below the maid of honor. Best man, of course, means the bridegroom's best man, but the phrase itself tends to exalt this individual at the expense of his superior.

"Then there's no adjective to describe what pertains to the male half of the affair. You can't speak of the 'bridegroomal' trousers or necktie. On the other hand, 'bridal' applies not only to the possessions of the girl, but to what relates to both of them equally, like the trip and the bridal chamber. The very words 'matrimony' and 'matrimonial' are from the feminine side only. 'Patrimony' has nothing to do with the nuptials. It applies only to wealth and signifies that a man's part in the affair is to get out and hustle for the cash."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Craving For Sweets.

Advocating the use of sweet fruits, preserves, sugar and good candy by children, Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Success says that a craving for sweets is nature's call for the substance which is "a full blown member of the great trinity of nutrient materials, sugar (carbohydrate), meat (protein) and fat. Sugar is wood, coal, gasoline for the muscle engine. Every time the tiny engine gives one of its rhythmical explosions—that is to say, when a muscle contracts—a certain amount of sugar is burned up. It is fortunate for people whom a mistaken conscience deprives of sweets that the human body can manufacture sugar out of many foods, out of meat, milk, vegetables and grains; otherwise the body would go into the desperate business of manufacturing sugar out of its own tissues, which is precisely what diabetics did in the days when this disease was supposed to be due to too much sugar in the food and physicians tried to cure it by cutting sweets and sweetmakers out of the patient's diet

How Standing Armies Originated.

The earliest European standing army was that of Macedonia, established about 358 B. C. by Philip, father of Alexander the Great. It was the second in the world's history, having been preceded only by that of Sesotris Pharaoh of Egypt, who organized a military caste about 1000 B. C. Of modern standing armies, that formed by the Turkish janizaries was first, being fully organized in 1362. It was a century later that the standing army of France, the earliest in western Europe, was established by Charles VII. in the shape of "compagnies d'ordonnance," numbering 9,000 men. Rivalry thereupon compelled the nations to adopt similar means of defense. In England a standing army proper was first established by Cromwell, but was disbanded under Charles II., with the exception of a few regiments called the guards, or household brigade. This was the nucleus of England's present army.

A Girl's Preparedness.

There is something very pitiful about a girl. She wears calico, but talks knowingly about the latest styles in silks. Her home is furnished plainly, but she knows the latest styles in furniture; she knows how the silverware should be arranged at dinners, the latest stitch for the marking of monograms on the finest table damask, the etiquette to be observed at a dinner, a reception or a ball, although she never attended anything more than a neighborhood party in her life. Her father's monthly income is not as large as the pin money a rich girl would spend in a day, but she knows what the rich girl should wear and buy to be in touch with the times. She is, in short, prepared at any time to marry a rich man and become a society leader.—Atchison Globe.

A Famous Poem.

J. C. Francis, the publisher of London Notes and Queries, has brought out a volume of reminiscences. One of his quotations records the editorial rejection of Campbell's "Hohenlinden" by the Greenock Advertiser. It runs thus:

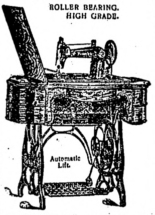
T. C.—The lines commencing "On Linden when the sun was low" are not up to our standard. Poetry is evidently not T. C.'s forte.

THE MERCHANTS
State Bank,
OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.
J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,
THAT RAISE CROPS.
For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County,
We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain,
Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN
It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.
Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Why the Judge Paid.

A physician, says a medical journal that vouches for the truth of the story, was once summoned in haste to attend the child of a family that lived in two rooms in the heart of a large American city—not New York. The child had been seized suddenly and seriously and just at election time. The mother was in despair, and when the doubtful prognosis was given she broke into wailing and violent self condemnation for some horrible sin of the family to which she said the child's illness was due—a direct punishment for their crime. She would go and curse the magistrate for it all, her husband should resign from "the force," and such evil ways should be renounced forever.

Curious to know how the magistrate could be held responsible for the child's illness, the doctor finally secured the confession that the crime of the poor, conscience stricken woman consisted in allowing the names of many fraudulent voters to be registered as residing in her house, in swearing to the lie, etc. The magistrate also had demanded this of all the neighbors in return for indescribable political favors.

The child recovered, and the magistrate paid the physician's bill.

Belated.

"I understand that Frailman has come to the conclusion to contest his wife's will."

"Well, what is there courageous about that? She's dead, isn't she?"

The Touch of Fortune.

"What do you think, my dear? Such luck! We leave for Paris in an hour."

"Yes; we're going to Pasteur's. My husband has just been bitten by a mad dog."—Bon Vivant.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN
McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, plain sewing, fancy needlework, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL
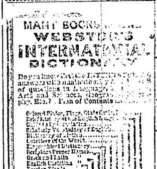
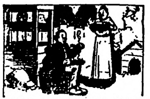
DICTIONARY
Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of questions in Language, Art and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:



Recognized by the Courts, the Schools and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.
Should You Not Own Such a Book?
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular and Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages, 1400 Illus.
Write for "Dictionary Wrinkles," and Specimen Pages. Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT.



Kind Lady—It must be hard to find that you have inherited a taste for beefsteak.

Sandy Pikes—Yes, mum; especially when yer find dat yer haven't inherited de beefsteak.

Sold Again.

Little Willie was fond of springing surprises on his parents by announcing some terrific happening, and then, when excitement was at fever point, declaring that nothing of the kind had occurred. But he played the trick once too often. A new and very pretty governess came to stay at the house for Willie's benefit a few weeks back, and a day or two after her arrival Willie rushed to his mother saying:

"Mamma, there's a strange man upstairs who has just put his arm around Miss Wilson's waist and kissed her several times—"

"What?" said the mother, as she jumped up to pull the bell for the butler.

"Sold again, mamma!" said Willie, in great glee. "It wasn't a strange man at all. It was papa!"

Did you ever have a good, old-fashioned boy's stomach ache? Of course you have. A little dose of Hamlins Wizard Oil will chase away a colicky pain in the stomach like magic.

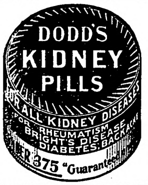
Though a man may become learned by another's learning, he can never be wise but by his own wisdom—Montaigne.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us dare to do our duty as we understand it.

DON'T NEGLECT THAT COUGH
It certainly racks your system and may run into something serious. Allen's Lung Balsam will check it quickly and permanently. For sale at all druggists.

One way to acquire a reputation for amiability is to agree with every simpleton you meet.



BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
An immediate relief for Hoarseness, Coughs, Sore Throat, Bronchial and Asthmatic Troubles. An article of superior merit, absolutely free from any harmful ingredient.
Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1,00 per box.
Sample mailed on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair.
Promotes a luxuriant growth.
Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color.
Cures scalp diseases & hair falling.
50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

90,000 AMERICAN SETTLERS GO TO CANADA

THE YEAR 1909 HAS SHOWN AN INCREASE OF OVER EIGHTY PER CENT IN AMERICAN SETTLEMENT.

Recent advices from Canada, our next door neighbour, the neighbourly country across the boundary line, are that upwards of ninety thousand settlers from the United States went into Western Canada during the past year, most of them for the purpose of taking up and settling upon the vacant lands, 160 acres of which are given free by the government, and lands adjoining held by railway and land companies are selling at from nine to fifteen and twenty dollars per acre. Even if thirty and forty dollars per acre were paid, the price would be low, as the lands produce wonderfully, and at these higher figures there is a large interest on the money and labor invested. The ninety thousand settlers of last year, followed about sixty thousand of the previous year, and for several years the number has been running into these large figures. There must be a reason for it. It may be found in the single phrase, "they are satisfied." Nothing attracts people more than the success of others, and the news of this reaching other thousands, causes them to investigate. The investigation in this case is always satisfactory. The splendid land of Iowa, of Indiana, of Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and other States has risen to a high value, and it is worth every dollar asked for it. But there is not room now for all on these lands. With the ever increasing demand for grain, there comes the ever increasing demand for land. Canada is the only country on the continent in a position to supply it. Land there that costs, say fifteen dollars an acre, produces on a reasonable calculation, 25 bushels of wheat to the acre, or about $20.00. The most liberal calculation as to cost makes the cost to produce $7.50 per acre, leaving a balance of $12.50 per acre. The $7.50 carries good wages for the farmer, and all other conceivable contingencies. With conditions like this, covering the entire area of about 500,000 square miles, it is readily understood why 90,000 Americans should follow the sixty thousand of the previous year. Canadian Government Agencies at different points in the Union are always ready to give information regarding the free homestead lands, ready to advise the settler as to the districts which would suit him best.

A Woman's Diplomacy.

It was the Chicago man's turn, and he told this one:

"Diplomacy, you know, is a remarkable agent. The other day a lady said to her husband:

"'James, I have decided to do without a new fall dress, and with the money it would cost I shall have mother here for a nice long visit.'

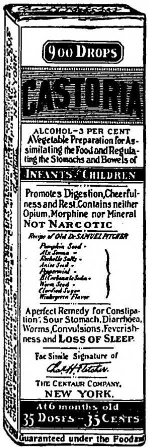
"James turned on her excitedly. 'What, wear that old brown cloth thing another season? I guess not!' he exclaimed, vehemently. 'You go right down to your tailor's to-day and order something handsome. Remember, please, that as my wife you have a certain position to maintain!'

"The wife bowed her head in submission. On her lips played a peculiar smile."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Question of Time.

"How much does it cost to get married?" asked the eager youth.

"That depends entirely an how long you live," replied the sad-looking man.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES - 35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Food and

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

JOHNSON MEMORIAL

CAPITOL SITE IS CHOSEN FOR THE MONUMENT FOR JOHN ALBERT JOHNSON.

WORK TO BEGIN WITHOUT DELAY

Memorial Commission Will Engage Noted Sculptor.—Nearly Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars Contributed to Memorial.

Minneapolis, Minn.— Approximately $25,000 will be expended on a magnificent bronze statue of Governor John Albert Johnson, designed by a distinguished sculptor, and placed on the state capitol grounds at St. Paul. This was decided upon by the Governor J. A. Johnson Memorial commission in a meeting at the Minnesota club. The statue will be of heroic size, eight of the 14 commissioners present voting in favor of the standing posture.

The commission decided not to have an open competition, but authorized the executive committee to select a sculptor of world-wide prominence, requesting him to submit a sketch and design. The selection of the exact site on the capitol grounds was left to the executive committee, acting with Governor Eberhart and Cass Gilbert, final powers resting with the commission.

Treasurer B. F. Nelson's report showed a total of $23,950.40 subscribed This probably will be augmented to some extent before the completion of the statue, as a resolution was passed that the fund be left open as long as the commission exists, although there will be no canvassing.

The report of the subscriptions by counties showed Ramsey in the lead, with $6,810.12, or more than one-fourth of the total collected. Hennepin is second with $3,605.99; St. Louis county third, with $2,407.37. Jackson county was the most backward of all with but $4.50 to its credit. Minnesota school children showed their love for their dead governor by sending in $2,478. Contributions from points outside the state footed up to $856.50.

An entirely different fund being raised in Nicollet county, the home of Governor Johnson, practically estopped the citizens of that district from participating in the larger movement for the monument at the state capitol. St. Peter, the county seat of Nicollet county, was the only other bidder for the location of the state memorial, but, in view of the fact that another monument was being provided for the grave side, the capitol was given the unanimous preference.

Those present at the meeting of the commission were: President C. D. O'Brien, St. Paul; Vice President A. C. Weiss, Duluth; Treasurer B. F. Nelson, Minneapolis; Secretary C. W. Ames, St. Paul D. M. Neill, Red Wing; Elmer E. Adams, Fergus Falls; L. J. Bougnher, Minneapolis; H. G. Day, Albert Lea; W. H. Hunter, St. Paul; Mrs. C. G. Higbee, St. Paul; H. V. Jones, Minneapolis; S. B. Nelson, Luverne; A. J. Sackett, St. Peter.

LAKE BEING ROBBED OF FISH.

Hundreds of Barrels Are Taken From Water Near Sauk Center.

Sauk Center.—Sauk lake is being robbed of all its fish and will soon be without any, if action is not taken immediately. The lake presents the appearance of a little settlement of huts, from which barrels of fish are being taken every day. Local merchants are being supplied and shipments are being made to the cities. Most of this fishing is illegal, as many of the men are fishing without licenses.

The present state of enormous illegal fishing is partly due to the failure of the state to prosecute or secure a conviction of the men who used nets in the lake in the spring, and the feeling that they will not be prosecuted by the game wardens.

This lake is seven miles long and formerly abounded with game fish. It has a magnificent shore line and is very picturesque, both in winter and summer.

JOHN LIND OUT OF POLITICS.

Former Governor Writes He Will Never Be Candidate.

New Ulm. — "No, you will never have an opportunity to vote for me again. I shall not be a candidate for office. Such time as I can spare for public work I give to the university, and really a good deal more time than I can afford to spare. I don't know of any better way in which to show, in fact, at least my gratitude to the people of the state for the many honors I have enjoyed at their hands in the past.

("Signed) JOHN LIND."

The foregoing letter was received this week by a close personal friend of Mr. Lind who resides in this city, in response to an urgent request that he enter the gubernatorial race.

DROPS FAIR EXAMINATION.

Governor Says He Is Satisfied With Auditor's Report.

St. Paul, Minn.—Governor A. O. Eberhart will take no further action to investigate the state fair. He expressed himself as satisfied with the report made yesterday by the state board of auditors, of which he is ex-officio chairman. "The report seems to be along right lines," he said. "I have not had the time to examine it closely, but I agree with its main features.

Joseph Tetlie.

Graduate of St. Olaf college at Northfield, Minn., who was awarded the scholarship by the presidents of the University of Minnesota and the other universities and colleges in the state. This will entitle him to a course at Oxford university, England.

NO WATER POWER GIFT.

Not Likely That Twin Cities Will Profit by High Dam.

Washington, D. C. — Consideration that is being given to participation by private and public corporations in the activities of the United States in water power and conservation questions at this time gives rise to the belief among members of the commerce committees of the two houses that it will be impossible for Minneapolis and St. Paul and the state university ever to obtain the consent of the engineer department of the government or of congress to donate the power which would result from the proposed 30 foot dam.

It is believed here that the engineers and the river and harbor committee will favor the high dam, but the agitation that has taken place over water power rights and the desirability of saving to the United States profits accruing from such power rights makes it certain that strong objections will be raised to making any gift of power either to cities or to private parties.

Under the terms of the bill introduced Wednesday by Senator Nelson, strict provisions are made to care for water power rights and all privileges connected therewith in lands or waters owned or controlled by the United States.

In connection with the discussion of the new features of this bill and what is expected to come from the consideration which the river and harbor and commerce committees will give to the matter it is regarded as doubtful, even with the most favorable arrangement, for the high dam project and all facilities for government utilization of power that more can be secured to the Twin Cities than the first beneficial use of the power after the government is cared for.

The prediction is now made that the river and harbor committee will favor the high dam project with a substantial appropriation and also a sum sufficient to construct the foundations of the proposed power plant.

ROOSEVELT WRITES LETTER.

Former President Sends Sympathy To Late Governor's Widow.

St. Paul.—Written with a common indelible pencil on an ordinary sheet of note paper, a letter was received by Mrs. John A. Johnson from former President Roosevelt, under date of Nov. 15, stating that he had just heard of Gov. Johnson's death and offering sympathy. The letter follows:

"On Safari near Mt. Elgon, Central Africa, Nov. 15, 1909.

"My Dear Mrs. Johnson:

"While out here, far from all chance of hearing news with any speed, I have learned of the death of your honored and distinguished husband. I trust you will not think me intrusive if I write a word of respectful sympathy. I greatly admired your husband as an upright and honorable public servant and as one of those Americans whom we like to believe are typical of our people as a whole. He is a loss to us all; a loss to good citizenship.

"With assurances of my profound sympathy and respect, believe me.

"Very sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

School at Melrose Is Burned.

St. Cloud. — The parochial school at Melrose was totally destroyed by fire. The blaze started in the basement and was not discovered until the children saw the smoke rising through the floor. All of the children escaped injury, but many lost their wraps and books. The loss is estimated at $5,000 and is covered by insurance.

SMITH TO BE SENTENCED SOON.

Convicted Slayer of H. J. Ledbeter Will Hear Fate Next Tuesday.

Mankato.—Frank Smith, who was convicted of the murder of the late H. J. Ledbeter, is to receive his sentence net Tuesday afternoon. His attorney has taken steps to secure a new trial for him, claiming that the jurors learned of his past record while in the jury box, and alleging errors in the court's rulings. The motion will be argued in a few days.

A GOOD COUGH MIXTURE.

Simple Home-Made Remedy That Is Free from Opiates and Harmful Drugs.

An effective remedy that will usually break up a cold in twenty-four hours, is easily made by mixing together in a large bottle two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. This mixture will cure any cough that is curable, and is not expensive as it makes enough to last the average family an entire year. Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.

She Wants a Bonnet.

The manager of a department store received the following order from one of his out-of-town customers, who wanted a bonnet:

"Mazure of head from ear to ear over top of head 12 inches; from ear to ear under my chin nine and one-half inches; from forehead to back hair, seven inches. I want a black lase bonnet with streamers and rosette of red or yaller satting ribbon and would like a bunch of pink Rozes or a blue plume with a black jet buckel. If artifishels are still the stile I want a bunch of grapes or a bird's tale somewhere. I do not want anything to fansy, but if you think a wreath of pansies would look good why put one on. I have some good pink ribbon here at home so you need not put on strings."—Lippincott's Magazine.

SMART MAN LEFT PONDERING

For Once He Had Asked Question and Received Answer That Floored Him.

He was a regular patron of the restaurant. Perhaps that is why he felt justified in making clever remarks to the waitresses, remarks which they were puzzled how to answer. One day, however, the smallest and tiniest girl happened to be serving this irritating customer, and it fell to her to answer him in kind.

"I'll have some steak," he said, coming in late for dinner, "and some squash, and some—got some baked potatoes, fine, brown, baked potatoes?"

"Baked potatoes are all over," said the girl.

He leaned back in his chair and gazed at her quizzically.

"Baked potatoes all over, are they?" he repeated. "All over what?"

"With," she replied, simply.—Youth's Companion.

After the Hunt.

Provided with some trophies of the chase in the shape of rabbits, Rev. Sanford C. Hearn, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Yonkers, proceeded to dress them for dinner in the parsonage cellar. His small son watched the father's work with interest. Going upstairs, the youngster called his mother.

"Oh, mamma," said he, "what do you suppose papa is doing?"

"I can't guess, child. What is he doing?"

"Well, he's just skinning, shaving and cutting up cats."

LYDIA E PINKHAM

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irasburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the sixth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed a great change."—Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irasburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful —or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

☛ Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Neuralgia
Nerve Pains. They torture you, destroy your sleep, wreck your physical health. Stop it. Rub with
ST. JACOBS OIL
Rub it in vigorously, it will stop the biting pain immediately. It will cure you.
BEST LINIMENT for NERVE PAINS
ALL DRUGGISTS, 25c. and 50c.
St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

Save the Baby—Use
PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS
Should be given at once when the little one coughs. It heals the delicate throat and protects the lungs from infection—guaranteed safe and very palatable.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS
Electrotypes
IN GREAT VARIETY FOR SALE AT THE LOWEST PRICES BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION
554 W. Adams St., Chicago

State Capital Letter

Doings at St. Paul as Reported by Our Special Correspondent.

St. Paul. — That the "good roads" movement is but just started in Minnesota seems demonstrated by statistics forthcoming in the report of the state highway commission, now in course of preparation. But on the other hand, it will also show that the people throughout the state are becoming more alive every day to the benefits to be derived from better roads, and with one and all awake to this, the battle is half won.

The highway commission estimates that there are 79,329 miles of wagon roads at present in Minnesota. Of this mileage, there is but 150 of macadam—the best of all country roads—but 10,000 miles of gravel roads; and the great balance—69,175 miles—is but ordinary earth roads—mere "trails."

Up to date, there are only 12 counties which have as yet failed to designate "state roads" under the special law which is aimed to thereby give them special road building aid from the state. These 12 counties are Becker, Cottonwood, Dodge, LeSueur, Mower, Otter Tail, Pope, Rock, Wilkin, Yellow Medicine and Jackson. And it is believed that before long, most of these dozen slow ones will "get into line."

State funds in the hands of the highway commission for distribution among the respective counties for road betterments, are yearly increasing. These funds are derived from a special one-twentieth of a mill general tax, five per cent from government land sales, and the interest each year from the internal improvement land fund. No county is allowed more than three per cent of the total amount, no matter how progressive it may be in road building; and no county can be allotted less than one-half of one per cent, no matter how slow its officials may be in actions toward bettering travel conditions.

The maximum amount allowed counties in 1907 under highway commission allotment was $1,600—the three counties drawing this amount being Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis. In 1908, the maximum amount was $2,100, drawn by the same three counties. But during the year 1909, the maximum amount was $1,500 and each of sixteen counties received this sum.

In 1907 the amount of state money available through the highway commission allotment, was $54,000. Of this, only $17,000 was drawn out by the various counties for the reason that it was not then available until after August 1. But in 1908, when the amount available for the year was $56,000, the counties drew out $61,000—some overlapping from the year before. During 1909, $75,000 was available and although the reports from the various counties are just beginning to come in it looks as though nearly all of this money has been spent for road work the past working season. It is estimated that in 1910, $80,000 will be distributed by the state.

State Highway Engineer George W. Cooley, of Minneapolis, looks for a most liberal growth of the good roads movement with the breaking of spring. This will be given impetus when the State Roadmakers' Association meets at the Auditorium in St. Paul, March 16, 17, 18, 19,—at the same time as the much-talked-of conservation congress projected by Gov. Eberhart. At that time, the state highway commission will have an elaborate exhibition, consisting of miniature model roads, demonstrating their construction in detail. There will also be a lecture delivered either by Mr. Cooley or by M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of the public roads office at Washington, D. C. This lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

More Good Crop Statistics.

George Welch, Minnesota commissioner of immigration, and representing in his work the state immigration board, has just completed an interesting tabulation comparing the Minnesota crops with those of surrounding states, both as to amount produced and the average yield per acre. The table is surprising in the things it sets forth.

For instance, Iowa, which has a reputation as being such a wonderful corn producing state, does show an immense crop (289,800,000 bushels), but it averaged but 31.5 bushels to the acre, compared with 34.8 bushels of Minnesota corn to the acre. Minnesota's flax crop (4,500,000 bushels) averaged 10 bushels to the acre, compared with an average of but a fraction over 9 bushels in Iowa, North and South Dakota. And as to potatoes, there are a number of states which produced more in the aggregate of bushels than did Minnesota (18,400,000 bushels), but none of them can touch Minnesota with her wonderful 1909 record of an average of 115 bushels to the acre. Minnesota also shows up with an apple crop during 1909 of 78 per cent of a 100 per cent crop—the best showing of any middle or northwest state so far as this fruit is concerned.

Minnesota also retained her supremacy as the largest wheat producing state in the middle and northwest during 1909—94,080,000 bushels. This crop was secured through an average yield of 16.8 bushels per acre—exceeded by but one state, Wisconsin, which averaged 19 bushels. But Wisconsin, it should be borne in mind, produced but a total of 2,280,000 bushels.

Minnesota also took the northwest lead in barley production, 31,600,000 bushels, with an average per acre of 23.6 bushels—an average not touched by any state producing barley in any large amount. Minnesota's hay crop last year was but 1,622,000 tons—exceeded in amount by a number of neighboring states—but the average per acre column demonstrates that Minnesota once more leads them all, with an average of 1.75 tons.

In short, the comparative showing prepared by the immigration commissioner seems to demonstrate that old Minnesota is not such a bad state along agricultural lines, after all; and that in many directions, the North Star is an easy winner.

Profit in Fish Culture.

That an acre of water can be made to produce just as much, if not more, commercially, than an acre of land, is the unique statement of Carlos Avery, who recently retired as executive officer of the state game and fish commission. And surprising as it may seem to those who have not given the matter thought, Mr. Avery is able to back up his claims with material proof.

He figures that one-fifteenth of the total area of the state is water—or, in round numbers, about 9,500,000 acres. Mr. Avery asserts that with scientific culture and raising of fish, this water area could make a return of $10 per acre. Or, figuring it another unique way, he explains that the water area averages a lake of 1,600 acres for each township in the state, and that this is sufficient to supply water food for every inhabitant of the state many times over.

A conservative estimate is to the effect that $1,000,000 worth a year of the rough grades of fish, are shipped east each year from Minnesota lakes, rivers and boundary waters. And nearly half of this is in shipments of the German carp—a fish originally imported here, but which has multiplied most rapidly and which is generally rejected in the west as a food fish. North shore and boundary fishing is largely lake trout, and from the fact that this fishing is being overdone, unless there is government interference, it looks as though lake trout would become as scarce as has whitefish, and for the same reason.

Correspondence School of Agriculture.

E. C. Huntington, former editor and publisher of the Windom Reporter, and also former president of the Minnesota Editorial association, has been appointed editor at the State Agricultural college, St. Anthony Park, for the new department about to be established under the Hackney law for a correspondence course in agriculture, and the issuance of educational bulletins. Mr. Huntington was appointed after a conference between the University Board of Regents and Gov. A. O. Eberhart, as the best available man for the place.

The law creating the new department was enacted by the legislature of a year ago, but for some reason there has been a delay in putting it into effect until the present time. Prof. Wilson, superintendent of the farm institute work, will be in charge of the work. This will include the sending out of experts with the coming of spring for the establishment of scientifically prepared tracts of land under actual cultivation by agents of the agricultural college, to demonstrate to farmers in every part of the state what can be gained by the application of the most advanced agricultural principles.

J. M. Hackney, the St. Paul member of the senate, whis is father of the law in question, resides at Hamline near the state agricultural college, and is anxious that the coming year shall see the law given a most thorough trial this year, and has been given every assurance that such will be the case.

Conservation Congress Headquarters.

Curtiss L. Mosher, as secretary for the preliminary organization in charge of the proposed conservation congress in St. Paul next March, has been assigned headquarters in the lieutenant governor's office at the new capitol, St. Paul. Mr. Mosher is also secretary of the State Federation of Commercial clubs, and most of the correspondence is being handled by him at present as representing the commercial interests of the state. Gov. Eberhart, however, who projected the talked-of congress, is also keeping his eye on all the preliminary work and will use the powers of his office to make the gathering a notable one for the future progress of the state. At present, about $25,000 seems to be in sight for expenses of the congress.

J. C. MATCHITT.

Dies While on a Visit.

Hastings.—William J. O'Brien died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Ryan, in Marshan, from pneumonia, after only a week's illness. He arrived from his farm in the vicinity of Jamestown, N. D., a couple of days before being stricken, to spend the holidays with relatives. He was born in Hastings, Jan. 25, 1871, and was unmarried. He was a member of Hastings Division No. 1, A. O. H. Besides his mother five brothers and seven sisters survive him, two of the brothers being John P. and Maurice of this city.

SOME NEW RECORDS SET BY THE HARNESS HORSES

Season of 1909 Produced Exceptionally Speedy Trotters and Pacers In All Classes.

Reviewing the season in the harness horse world, the most notable feature in connection therewith is the great number of world's records that were lowered during the past year; not only the number, but the high quality of the achievements is noteworthy. Foremost among these may be placed the mile by Native Belle in 2:07¾, which has been held by Arion since 1891, and was the one record which horsemen agreed would stand for many years to come, but the daughter of Moko not only reduced it by a flat three seconds, but did it in a race. Hamburg Belle reduced the two-heat race record of 2:03¼ and 2:6¼ held by Cresceus to 2:01¼ and 2:01¾, but the great daughter of Atworthy survived only three months after acquirthis great honor, as she died at Macon, Georgia, in November.

The following is the list of new world's record holders together with their breeding:

Yearling trotter—Miss Stokes, b. f., by Peter the Great, dam by Guy Wilkes, 2:19¼.

Two-year-old trotter—Native Belle, b. f., by Moko, dam by Gen. Wellington, 2:07¾.

Fastest heat in race by two-year-old trotter—Native Belle, 2:07¾.

Five-year-old gelding trotter—Uhlan, b. g., by Bingen, dam by Sir Walter, Jr., in race, 2:04½.

Fastest heat, gelding—Uhlan, as above, 2:03½.

Fastest two-heat race by gelding—Uhlan, 2:04¾, 2:00.

Fastest heat in race by five-year-old trotter—Uhlan, 2:03½.

Fastest five-year-old stallion—Bob Douglass, gr. h., by Todd, dam by Cyclone, 2:06¼.

Fastest heat, trotting, in race—Hamburg Belle, b. m., by Axworthy, dam by Simmons, 2:01¼.

Fastest two-heat race—Hamburg Belle, 2:01¼, 2:01¾.

Fastest two miles, trotting, to wagon—Pelagon, b. g., by Milrol, 4:33.

Fastest three-heat race, trotting, by gelding—Paderewski, b. g., by Constenaro, dam by Port Leonard, 2:05¼, 2:06¾, 2:05¾.

Fastest mile, trotting, under saddle—Country Jay, ch. g., by Jayhawker, dam by Parkville, 2:08¾.

Fastest two-year filly, pacing—Fleeta Dillon, b. f., by Sidney Dillon, dam by Wilkes Boy, 2:08¾.

Fastest three miles, pacing—Elastic Pointer, b. h., by Brown Hal, dam by Snow Heels, 7:21½.

Fastest three-year-old filly, pacing—Maggie Winder, b. f., by Oratorio, dam by Direct, 2:06¼.

Fastest two-heat pacing race, by mare—Darkey Hal, br. m., by Star Hal, dam by Hamlet, 2:03¼, 2:02¼.

Fastest team pacing—Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C., by Chitwood, dam by Norris, 2:02¾.

Fastest three-year-old trotter, half-mile track—Muda Guy, b. f., by Guy Axworthy, dam by Stamboul, 2:12¼.

WON WITH A JUMP SHOT

Calvin Demarest, the New Billiard Champion, Amazed the Experts with His Audacity.

The balls were lying close to the side rail, neither more than an inch away and not more than six inches apart. The red was in the middle. There was no chance for a masse. A shot to the cushion was impossible. With his head cocked on one side the flaxen-haired youth, just on the verge of becoming the 18.2 balkline billiard champion of the world at the age of 23, was studying the situation.

"He should play it safe," whispered Alfredo De Oro, a master, to his companion in the gallery.

"There is no chance to make it," observed John Daly, the three-cushion expert. "What can he be figuring on?"

For a minute there was absolute silence around the green-covered table in Madison Square Garden Concert hall, New York.

The youthful face of Calvin Demarest suddenly broke into a boyish smile, and his friends knew that he had decided on some daring scheme. He deliberately chalked his cut and learned over the table as if to try a draw shot. The experts sat back astounded.

Still smiling, the youth drove his cue into the bottom of the white ball with a downward twist. The ivory leaped three inches from the table, fell on top of the red ball and rolled accurately until it clicked against the other white ball. The shot had counted! The experts actually gasped at the youth's nerve.

Demarest had attempted a jump shot in a tight place and had made it. Such a shot had never been attempted before in a championship game. In the past its sole use has been in exhibitions.

Andrews Issues Sporting Annual.

The 1910 Sporting Annual Record Book issued by T. S. Andrews, sporting editor of the Evening Wisconsin, Milwaukee, is out. The book contains some excellent pictures of the world's great pugilists, their records and the marks of the trotters, pacers, runners, bowlers, athletes, baseball players, aviators and automobilists.

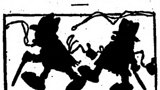
Herrmann Commission's Chairman.

Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati will continue to preside over the national baseball commission. He was elected by Ban Johnson and Thomas J. Lynch, the other members of the commission, at the Cincinnati meeting. The commission awarded "Happy" Smith, who had been claimed by Oakland, to the Chicago cubs.

Johnson Has Fortune Told.

Jack Johnson doesn't believe in dreams, but is quite willing to believe the mumblings of those who profess to "see things." A fortune teller has predicted that Jack will beat Jeffries. Strange to say, the negro believes him.

ALL SERENE.



"De minister, he says dat at der last day every man will be judged by his works!"

"Well, dat needn't worry us any. We never worked!"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

He Was an Old Hand.

"Do not anger me!" she said, sternly.

"How am I to know when you are angry?" he asked.

"I always stamp my feet," she answered.

"Impossible," he said. "There isn't room for a stamp on either of them!"

That fetched her.—Lippincott's.

Money talks in spite of the fact that lots of men want to keep it quiet.

If You Are a Trifle Sensitive
About the size of your shoes, many people wear smaller shoes by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder to shake into the shoes. It cures Tired, Swollen, Aching Feet and gives rest and comfort. Just the thing for breaking in new shoes. Sold everywhere, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The Worst Of It.

"Oh, she's awful. Whenever she tries to sing a song she simply murders it."

"But that's not the worst of it. If she'd only murder it outright I wouldn't mind, but she tortures it so long."

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Nothing that was worthy in the past departs—no truth or goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die.—Carlyle.

DAVIS' PAINKILLER
has no substitute. No other remedy is so effective for rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness neuralgia or scid of any sort. Put up in 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

Every time we see a sponge it reminds us of some men we know.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Hope is a magic lantern which often shows impossible pictures.

WOULDN'T MAKE ANY TROUBLE

Mrs. Betsy Baxter a Type of Visitor Many of Us Have Been Called on to Entertain.

"La, now, Miss Doolittle, don't you go to a mite o' trouble on my account," said Mrs. Betsy Baxter when she arrived unexpectedly for dinner at the home of Mrs. Dorcas Doolittle. "You know that I'm a person for whom you can just lay down an extra plate an' set before me anything you happen to have in the house. If you just fry a chicken same as you would for your own folks, an' make up a pan o' your tea biscuits that no one can beat, an' open a glass o' your red currant jelly, an' have a dish o' your quince preserves, an' some o' that pound cake you most allus have, some pipin' hot apple fritters, with hot maple syrup to go with 'em, an' some o' your good coffee an' any vegetables you happen to have in the house. I like sweet potatoes the way you bake 'em mightily, but, la, just have anything else you happen to have. I'm one that expects an' is willin' to eat what's set before me, an' no questions asked nor fault found when I go visitin'. So don't you put yourself out a mite for me. If you have what I've mentioned an' anything else you want to have I'll be satisfied. I ain't one that cares very much about what I eat, anyhow. As the sayin' is, 'any old thing' will do for me."—Puck.

Made It Clear.

Jim had never learned to read by the ordinary methods the face of the old eight-day clock. It pleased his long-time employer, however, to ask him the hour and hear his answers.

"Jim, what time does the old clock say?" he asked one evening, when he had callers. "Step out in the hall and see."

Jim was gone several minutes, but returned with a beaming face.

"Ah—Ah—waited jes' a minute to see which'd get ahead, de sho't one or de long one," he said. "W'en I went out dey was bofe on de lef' han' winding place, sah. But de long one, she clip it up good an' libely w'en she see me watchin' out, an' now she's 'bout a inch ahead, sah."—Youth's Companion.

That's the Question.

Wife—You were late last night.

Hub—Beg pardon, my dear. As I came in the front door the clock struck 11.

Wife—But what time did you arrive at the head of the stairs?

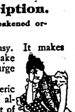
Pettit's Eye Salve for Over 100 Years has been used for congested and inflamed eyes, removes film or scum over the eyes. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

What a glorious country this would be to live in if turkeys were as easily raised as cats!



When He Courted You

He didn't complain if you were a little despondent or irritable at times. Now he does. He's the same man. He didn't understand then. He doesn't now. Then he thought it was caprice and liked it. Now he thinks it is caprice and doesn't like it. But now he's busy getting money.

If he realized the full truth he would be more than anxious to have the wife he loves take the right remedy to restore her to true womanly health. Most men don't know that when a woman is weak, nervous, irritable and despondent, there is invariably something radically wrong with the delicate feminine organs with which her entire physique is in sensitive sympathy.

There is one, and just one remedy, tried and proven, that will put things right when the feminine organism is weak or diseased. It is

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This medicine restores perfect health to the weakened organs, and makes them strong.

It makes wifehood happy, and motherhood easy. It makes child-birth short and almost painless. It helps to make real "new women." An honest druggist won't urge upon you a substitute.

This "Favorite Prescription" is a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal roots and contains no alcohol, injurious or habit-forming drugs. A full list of its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper and attested as full and correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Easy to take as candy.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp
Once a Rayo user always one

The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house.
Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the
STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(Incorporated)

"California Now or Never!"
If ever you wished for a home in California send for free information about the greatest irrigation, colonizing and home-making enterprise ever undertaken. In addition to their great success in irrigating 400,000 acres in the Twin Falls Country, Idaho, the Kuhns are irrigating 250,000 acres in the Sacramento Valley. Send names of friends. Easy terms to settlers. We want you. Send 10c for 48-page book in colors. H. L. Hollister, Dept. K, 205 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

KOW-KURE
is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow CURE. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without KOW-KURE. It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "Cow Money" sent FREE. Ask your local dealer for KOW-KURE or send to the manufacturers.
DAIRY ASSOCIATION CO. Lyndonville, Vt.

THE AWFUL TORTURES OF SKIN-DISEASE.

If you've ever been afflicted, that topic needs no enlargement. The bright side of the picture is the record of Stub-Roo Liquid. It's just bed-rock fact, and here it is:

Stub-Roo REMEDIES

"Not one Known Failure in 8 Years."

That record is the result of years of scientific study and localized work with our remedy. Our testimonials are not "canned," they're personal thank-offerings.

Prove our claims yourself. Ask your druggist today for Stub-Roo Liquid. If he doesn't carry it, send $1.00 and we'll pay express. Write Today to
Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

Constipation Vanishes Forever
Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

WESTERN CANADA
What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:
"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (800 miles north of the International boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly 70,000 Americans
will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year.
1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.
Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.
Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.
Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.
For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.
Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N. D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S. D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you) (2)

WHAT'S Your Health Worth?
You start sickness by mistreating nature and it generally shows first in the bowels and liver. A 10c box (week's treatment) of CASCARETS will help nature help you. They will do more—using them regularly as you need them—than any medicine on Earth. Get a box today; take a CASCARET tonight. Better in the morning. It's the result that makes millions take them. 881
CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE.

An Ideal Present
NO STROPPING NO HONING
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

296 Acres Beef Pasture
Close to Big Horseshoe Lake, on main highway and R. F. D., near Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. If taken at once $2.50 down, balance of $7.50 on long time, 6 per cent. Good clay soil; easy clearing, great grass land. A SNAP. Address owner, H. B., Box "A," St. Croix Falls, Wisconsin.

50,000 Persons wanted at once to sell the wonderful VETERINARY SCIENCE also my wonderful Coal Saving Preparation. Knowledge is power and the saving of many dollars. From $3 to $15 per day easily made according to ability. M. T. TRUMAN, MARSHALL, MINN.

Virginia Farms and Homes.
FREE CATALOGUE OF SPLENDID BARGAINS
R. B. CHAFFIN & CO., Inc., Richmond, Va.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1880. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K. Washington, D.C.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use } Thompson's Eye Water

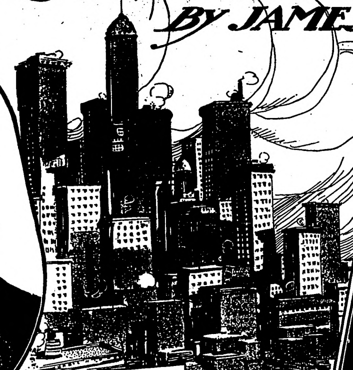
Little Old New York

By JAMES CREELMAN

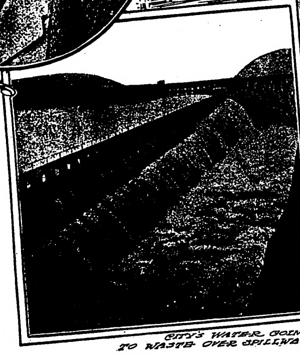
COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUBLISHING CO.

WILLIAM JAY GAYNOR MAYOR OF NEW YORK

Copyright 1908 by Pach Bros.



BOSS MURPHY AT HIS DESK IN TAMMANY HALL



CITY'S WATER GOING TO WASTE OVER SPILLWAY

SCENE IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIVISION OF INSPECTION COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE

IT IS 300 years since restless Europe first saw Manhattan island and its painted Indians through the eyes of bold Henry Hudson and his tired Dutch sailors; and to-day the great city of New York presents the most staggering problem of government in the world.

London is English, Paris is French, Berlin is German, St. Petersburg is Russian, Naples is Italian and Canton is Chinese.

But New York, the second city of the world, is not American. It is the only cosmopolis in existence. With a population of 4,500,000 inhabitants, it has nearly 2,000,000 who were born in foreign countries. There are vast districts in the city, some of them miles in extent, where the English tongue is used by few and even the street signs and newspapers are in strange languages.

The officers of the mighty city spend more than $200,000,000 a year, nearly one-third as much as the United States government. Of this amazing sum $156,545,148 is raised by direct taxation. The rest piles up in bonded debt.

The municipal officials and employes alone number more than 60,000 persons, drawing something like $70,000,000 a year in salaries.

How the American heart beats high at the sight of the greater city which only 10 years ago was divided into a hundred cities, towns and villages!

Its buildings rise like cliffs, steep towering above steep; immensities of stone, brick and steel—red, yellow, gray, brown, with the sunlight reflected in hundreds of thousands of windows, and steam and smoke drifting across the dizzy tumult of roofs. As the evening comes on and the lights are lit, New York sparkles and flashes in her lofty masses, all the brutalities of modern masonry fade and a shining fairy city set on a great mountain seems to rear itself between the two rivers.

With what wonder, hope and fear one looks upon such a city! Yet who understands it?

It is possible to go 40 miles in a straight line without leaving the city. The streets of New York placed end to end would reach to San Francisco and several hundred miles out into the Pacific ocean.

More than 126,000 persons are born in New York in a year, as many as the inhabitants of Columbus, the capital city of Ohio. More than 73,000 New Yorkers die in a year, enough to make three cities as large as Macon, Georgia.

Not even Babylon, that perished ere Christ was born, was so wonderful—Babylon, with its hanging gardens resting on arches 75 feet high, and with its 56 miles of city walls reaching 340 feet into the air, set with 250 fair towers and pierced through a hundred gates of brass!

In those precipices of brick and stone, supported by miles of steel, New York has built many cities on top of each other and the hill of the Caesars in Rome seems a small affair compared to the majestic bulk of the business palaces that rear themselves against the sky, with vast populations living so high above the streets that no sound of the roaring city reaches them.

Two hundred and eighty-three years ago the whole of Manhattan island was bought by Peter Minuet, the New York governor of the West India Company, for a few trinkets valued at $24.

Several years ago ground at the corner of Broadway and Wall street sold at $24 for six square inches, when a lot measuring 30 by 39 feet brought $700,000.

In a sense the tall sides that lift themselves out of the busiest part of New York are without loveliness, save when the changing light turns them into many-colored cliffs. It is the sense of an immense life conveyed by the multitude of windows that invests the monstrous piles with a thrilling interest; the density of humanity, the costliness of its ways and the mightiness of the surrounding community.

There rises the reddish tower of the Singer building, 642 feet high. The tower alone cose $3,000,000 to build.

Below it spreads the white mass of the City Investment building, which cost $10,000,000 and whose 23 elevators can carry 10,000 persons an hour. That one structure houses the population of a small city.

Close by are the twin Trinity buildings, valued at $16,000,000 and opposite to them stands the Equitable Life Insurance building, a property representing $20,000,000.

Even the ground of the small Trinity graveyard, set at the head of Wall street, is worth $25,000,000.

Away in the distance the white marble tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance building lifts its noble mass 700 feet above Madison square. That vast edifice represents an investment of $20,000,000 and contains more than 8,000 inhabitants. Its cost exceeds the assessed value of all the taxable property in the thriving city of Little Rock, Ark., and its dwellers equal the whole population of Emporia, Kan.

And beyond is seen the snowy tallness of the Plaza hotel, an investment of $12,000,000.

Here, there, everywhere are massive structures, in each of which are populations large enough to make whole towns. So tremendous is the city's growth that one year's building plans represent a cost of $130,000,000.

There are nearly 10,000 policemen in the 3,200 miles of streets. Their pay alone amounts yearly to $12,865,258. They made 244,822 arrests last year. To clean the streets they guard costs $7,418,299 for a single year.

The parks of the amazing city cover 14 square miles, including some of its choicest ground. It is said that they contain more than 2,500,000 trees and are valued at $1,500,000,000. In other words, the parks owned by New York contain more land than the big city of Rochester, N. Y., and could be sold for enough to pay the entire national debts of Holland, Switzerland, Sweden and Turkey.

Think of a city that has built 514 schoolhouses at a cost of about $100,000,000 and that has more than 16,000 teachers and superintendents educating 651,000 children, the salaries alone being $17,581,000 a year! The department of education spent $27,470,736 this year.

And if the giant skyline of New York staggers the imagination, what of the marvelous network of pipes and wires and tunnels under the streets? The separate wires buried under the pavements of the metropolis would reach 20 times around the world.

Down beside the myriad electric channels hidden under the city rushes a daily supply of about 480,000,000 gallons of sparkling water, of which 325,000,000 gallons come from a clear mountain lake through two aqueducts, one of them tunneled through rock and earth for 28 miles. New Yorkers pay their city $11,000,000 a year for drinking water.

One would think that the government of a city that spends $200,000,000 a year and employs 60,000 persons would be in the hands of its ablest and most trustworthy business men.

It would be natural to expect its four and a half million inhabitants to be excited over the fact that the annual cost of maintaining the municipality has in 10 years grown from $93,520,082 to $156,545,148—an increase of $43,025,066 a year, not to speak of something like $500,000,000 added to the city's debt in those 10 years.

Yet the more the taxpayers are plundered the prouder they are and the mere dimensions of government, measured in terms of millions of dollars, makes the New Yorker lift his head haughtily when he should hang it in shame.

A citizen's bureau of municipal research has for three years been digging into the city's accounts and publishing thrillers for the taxpayers, who smile and get ready to vote for a government to be proposed by the same old gangs of saloon-keepers, grafters, professional office-seekers and the omnipotent financiers who direct them through stained but high-priced lawyers.

Who do you think are the three principal backers of this bureau of municipal research, to which the people of New York seem to be looking for light on public affairs just now?

John D. Rockefeller, of the oil trust.

Andrew Carnegie, of the steel trust.

Robert Fulton Cushing, of the sugar trust, whose family recently managed to sell a profitless ferry to the city at an enormous price.

When the "greater New York" was organized 12 years ago the voters delivered the city again to the mercies of Tammany hall, or, rather, into the hands of Richard Croker and his friends.

Never was there a more astonishing illustration of the demoralizing effect of prospective office-holding upon the forces of political reform.

When a Republican legislature passed the charter creating the greater city by uniting Brooklyn, Richmond county and Queens county with the old city of New York, the political reformers felt so sure of keeping Tammany out of power that the term of the mayor was increased from two to four years.

Mr. Croker, the Tammany boss, who had been living abroad while a regent directed the organization, came back to New York and nominated Robert A. Van Wyck for mayor.

The anti-Tammany forces at once divided. The Republicans nominated Gen. Tracy; the Citizens' Union nominated Seth Low; the Jefferson Democrats nominated Henry George and there were three minor candidates.

Mr. Van Wyck was elected mayor and Mr. Croker became the absolute master of the city.

Through over-confidence and feather-headed jealousy the reformers had surrendered New York to the looters.

Then followed the most appalling orgy of municipal debauchery since the Tweed ring boldly stole $20,000,000 from the taxpayers. Mr. Croker ruled the community like a king from his club in Fifth avenue. The mayor was a mere creature in his powerful grasp. Even the most distinguished judges of the supreme court sought the presence of the boss and humbly sued for his friendship.

In the midst of this shameful condition of things the now historic Mazet legislative investigation occurred. On the witness stand Mr. Croker, the Tammany boss, admitted that "it is the theory of the city government right through that the organization in control should have all the offices in every department—judicial, executive, administrative and everything."

With Mr. Croker in opulent exile, Charles F. Murphy in time became the boss of Tammany. As the political creator of Mr. McClellan, the ninety-fourth mayor of New York, and the sponsor of his successor, Judge Gaynor, this burly, obtuse, silent and arrogant product of machine politics is a picturesque and sometimes a pathetic figure.

Mr. Murphy was originally a ship-calker in Roach's shipyard, where he gained some notoriety as a "slugger." Then he became a street car driver. That was before the day of the bell punch. Mr. Murphy saved money rapidly. He started a saloon. It was well patronized by the street car drivers and conductors, shipyard workers, gas-house men, dock laborers and petty politicians of the "gas-house district."

Mr. Murphy opened another saloon in the neighborhood. It was a success. Then he opened another, and still another. So that presently the man who was yet to be the master of the great city of New York found himself managing four saloons in one district—a noble preparation for a great civic destiny. Here he gathered the wisdom and strength that enabled him to hurl a mere university president out of the City hall.

Little old New York! It is hardly a city, but a federation of neighboring communities. From the very beginning it has been polyglot. With great tides of immigration sweeping over it, the wonder is that it is not a worse place; for its problems are complicated beyond the power of words to express.

Yet it contains the richest man in the world and it is estimated that 5,000 of its residents possess wealth amounting to $5,000,000,000. Its taxable property is assessed at more than $7,260,000,000. Wall street disputes the financial hegemony of London. It is the second part of the world. It is the commercial metropolis of the hemisphere.

The city is divided into five boroughs. The presidents of these boroughs, who are elected in their own jurisdictions, constitute, with the mayor, comptroller and president of the board of aldermen, the all-powerful board of estimate and apportionment.

This board of estimate and apportionment, which is presided over by the mayor, controls the appropriations of the entire city. It also possesses power over public franchises which was stripped from an unworthy board of aldermen.

So astoundingly loose is New York's methods of purchase and accountancy that distinguished experts, who have examined the situation within a few months, declare that a private business conducted in such a way would bankrupt itself within a month or two. The truth is that different departments have paid widely different prices for articles bought from the same persons on the same day.

Mightiest among the forces that paralyze the civic life of New York is the traction trust, with its 865 miles of tracks and its aggregate stock and bond capitalization of $701,135,911.

Ever since the Tammany-hatched Ramapo company conspiracy to sell $200,000,000 worth of water to New York the agitation for an additional water supply had been steadily carried on in a systematic way.

Out of this continued agitation came the great Catskill water supply enterprise.

It was useless to point out that billions of gallons of the city's water supply were wastfully flowing over the Croton dams, that perhaps a third of all the water brought to the city was either stolen or allowed to run to waste through preventable leaks.

The legislature passed a law authorizing the mayor to appoint a board of water supply to organize and manage the enterprise. This board worked out a plan for a water supply in the heart of the Catskill mountains, with a gigantic reservoir and an aqueduct to bring the water 90 miles to New York, the whole to cost $161,857,000.

And now, before the Catskill project is much more than well begun, the mayor and his associates have indorsed a demand for $47,000,000 more for a new reservoir in Suffolk county to supply the imperiled people of Brooklyn!

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

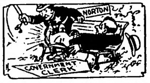
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1910. NO. 44.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Uncle Sam Gets After the Loafers



WASHINGTON. — The comprehensive economies in the executive departments of the government which the administration is seeking to apply, will penetrate to the remotest sections of the country. Not only is the work of the departments in Washington being analyzed, but every public office in every state will receive the same treatment. This will include every mint, especially the big mint at Philadelphia, every custom house, every internal revenue office, every post-office and all other offices where the public money is expended. The promise was made by Senator Aldrich, during the tariff debates, that a saving of from 25 to 40 per cent. is possible and the administration is aiming to reach those figures.

This means that preparations are being made to make many consolidations where work heretofore has been duplicated. In fact, some of these consolidations are accomplished already. Also it means that the business of each borough and office is being scanned, all with a view of increasing their efficiency and at the same time reducing the cost. The administration has gone far enough to know that this can be done.

The work of investigation is under charge of Charles D. Norton, assistant secretary of the treasury, who handles the annual estimates for all departments, and he has not yet examined a single public office without finding faults to be cured and the expense to be cut off. The trouble lies largely in an unnecessary number of employes and a consequent system of loafing and shirking that would not be tolerated in any private business.

Mince Pie Story Interests Dr. Wiley

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY, government chemist, was greatly interested in the story which has reached Washington, of a Polish coal miner in Ohio, who, biting onto a slab of Pittsburg mince pie, struck a rivet and broke off seven teeth; but, being extremely hungry and having no money to buy actual food, kept at his grim task. A minute later he struck a stick of dynamite in the core of the same pie and was buried from his late residence the next day, leaving a wife in Poland and another in Ohio.

Thus lives are wiped out and homes are made desolate by the ordinary mince pie of commerce—a dubious and sinister victual, in whose dark depths a million dangers lurk.

The average mince pie manufacturer, we have no doubt whatever, starts out in business with high ideals and a real love for his art. It is his firm intent to devise only the best and purest pies and to use in them nothing but genuine fruit, honest soup meat, choice brands of fourth-rate flour, clean bacon rinds and chemically pure glucose, magnesia and aniline dyes.

But as he goes on and the mad thirst for opulence seizes him the temptation to sophisticate his product becomes irresistible. His first false step may seem harmless—it may be nothing worse, indeed, than the addition of some sterilized wood pulp to his pie filling—but that first false step is fatal. Ere long he is launched upon a dizzy career of chicanery and subterfuge. Abandoning apples and peaches entirely, he begins to fill his pies with carrots and turnips. Instead of flour, he tries plaster of paris; instead of soup meat, cat meat; instead of sugar, New Orleans molasses; instead of magnesia, manganese. Finally, instead of baking his pies, he merely varnishes them with shellac.

No wonder the ordinary mince pie of our hostelries and eating houses, our public banquets and our cook stands bears an evil name. No wonder it is avoided as a pestilence, even by shoe drummers. And yet mince pie, per se, is not nefarious. Made at home, and without too great a dependence upon left-overs and other culinary debris, it may be both nourishing and palatable—a sound and even delightful viand, with something of lobster salad's hearty solidarity and something of the wiener schnitzel's haunting mystery. Made upon the eastern shore of Maryland, where pieology is an art as noble as piano playing or therapeutics, it may rise even higher than that, becoming a true victual of the first-class and ranking with Smithfield ham salad and fried smelts.

Woman Makes Bugs for the Government

THE HOTELS MUST A BIN A FRIGHT IN THEM PREHISTORIC DAYS
GOVERNMENT BUGOLOGY DEP'T

MAKING models of bugs for Uncle Sam's use in teaching agriculturists and "bugology" students how to distinguish between insects that are harmful and those that are useful is the novel occupation of Mrs. Otto Heidemann, well known as a sculptor in Washington.

It is no easy task that Mrs. Heidemann has. All the skill of the sculptor is necessary in the dexterous fashioning of the queer looking models, for although they are made on a gigantic scale in comparison to the life size insects, a close microscopic study of the subject and the ability to shape the different parts on identical lines are details of Mrs. Heidemann's work that must be followed each time she molds a reproduction.

Mrs. Heidemann as a sculptor has produced busts of some of the celebrities of the day, but she says her art has never been more severely taxed than it is through her employment for the bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture. The models of insects cover virtually every known form of life in the world of bugs.

The models are a true reproduction, fantastic in some cases and hideous in others, and they furnish exceptional means for persons interested in agriculture to study both the insects that destroy crops and the others that preserve agricultural products.

Prosperity Shown in Diamond Imports

PROSPERITY

PROSPERITY has returned, according to import and export records for 1909, published recently by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The surest indication of ready money, officials declare, is the diamond market, and during the first 11 months of 1909 this has boomed, the importation of cut diamonds amounting to $25,214,541, three times as much as during the corresponding period last year, and nearly $6,500,000 more than during that time in 1907.

Imports of cut diamonds this year, with December omitted, amounted to more than $1,000,000 above those in the 12 months of 1907, this banner year in the importation of cut gems. On these diamonds the government this year collected $2,500,000 in duties. Belgium and the Netherlands are the countries selling most of the stones to the United States.

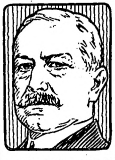
More than $40,000,000 worth of diamonds and other precious stones were imported the first 11 months of 1909. These are the correct figures and represent an increase of $28,000,000 over the total of 1908 and more than $3,000,000 over 1907, this country's record year for imports of jewels.

During the calendar year the foreign commerce of the United States exceeded in value that of any earlier year with the exception of 1907. Imports were larger than in any previous 12 months, but exports will fall somewhat below those of 1906 and 1907.

A subject of interest in the report is the statement that exportation of foodstuffs, both raw and manufactured, has fallen lower than any other time for a decade. This gives rise to apprehension, especially as it is accompanied by the statement that, while other countries are selling to the United States, this nation's trade with other lands has suffered.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

HARD FIGHT FOR BALLINGER



Richard Achilles Ballinger, secretary of the interior, has prepared to put up the greatest fight of his career. When Gifford Pinchot threw down the gauntlet and forced President Taft to oust him as forester he did not make things easier for Mr. Ballinger. With Pinchot in office Ballinger felt that he could do less harm than if he was free to express his opinions openly as he is now out of the government's employ.

Consequently Mr. Ballinger recognized at once that his fight with Pinchot became all the harder when Pinchot wrote the letter to Senator Dolliver that brought about his discharge. Pinchot is now placed in the position of prosecuting witness against Ballinger, and when he goes on the stand before the congressional investigating committee he will not be merely a government witness.

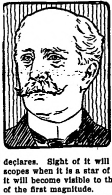
Then the insurgents in the house took the bit in their teeth and ran away with "Uncle Joe" Cannon's vehicle that might have been convenient in case there was any desire to haul a load of whitewash into the affair. The power of appointing the house committee was taken out of Speaker Cannon's power, and Mr. Ballinger recognized at once that there was grave danger that men friendly to his interests would not be members of the committee.

Therefore Mr. Ballinger prepared to fight. If he is a friend of the "interests," as has been charged by Glavis and others, Mr. Ballinger is sure to have the support of the Guggenheims and the people with whom they associate in business. Likewise, judging from the report of Attorney General Wickersham on the Glavis charges, Mr. Ballinger can expect aid from the administration.

Arrayed against him are what may be termed the Roosevelt forces. There is no gainsaying the fact that Pinchot's great strength lies in the fact that he is a friend and protege of Col. Roosevelt. It is not because Pinchot was a good forester and did the work well because of his love for it and a desire to conserve the natural resources of the nation for the people that he is dangerous to Ballinger.

Mr. Ballinger is a native of Iowa and is 52 years old. He is a great lawyer and the author of several legal works. He was mayor of Seattle, and was appointed commissioner of the general land office in 1907.

WAR OVER HALLEY'S COMET



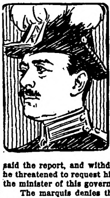
Prof. Percival Lowell, who watches the stars from Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., has started an astronomical controversy that bids fair to put the Cook-Peary bitterness in the candy class.

Prof. Lowell smiled when it was suggested to him that Halley's comet, now the big thing in the skies, might wreck the earth. "Halley's comet will in all human probability not affect the earth in this way," Prof. Lowell replied.

Then he proceeded to elucidate his now controverted theory of the earth's finish in the melting pot of the sun. Floating around somewhere in the ether is a dead, cold, icy star which is rushing toward the earth, Prof. Lowell theorizes. It may take millions of years to get here, the universe is so vast, but it is on its way. Prof. Lowell declares. Sight of it will first be obtained through the most powerful telescopes when it is a star of the eleventh magnitude. Twenty-seven years later it will become visible to the naked eye and three years later it will be a star of the first magnitude.

In two years and three months more it will be as close as Jupiter is and the brightest star in the sky. Forty-five days later those still alive will witness the beginning of the end of the earth, for the dead world will draw this earth after it as it plunges into the sun.

SPAIN'S MINISTER RECALLED



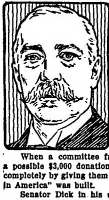
"The marquis de Villalobar, Spanish minister to Washington, has been transferred to Lisbon." This brief dispatch sent by the Associated Press from Madrid caused a stir in diplomatic and state department circles, coming, as it did, on the heels of a story that the marquis had considered himself insulted by President Taft.

The marquis is said to have taken exception to the new rule which separates the ministers from the ambassadors and to have felt such annoyance that he has reported to Madrid.

The president, with members of his cabinet, received the ambassadors behind an inclosure roped off from the passageway in which were the ministers. The marquis desired to pass back of the inclosure and different versions of what occurred are given. Anyway, the marquis was offended, said the report, and withdrew somewhat ruffled. Some of the diplomats say he threatened to request his home government to remember the incident when the minister of this government attends the court receptions of Alfonso.

The marquis denies the story and declares: "About a month and a half ago," he said, "my government asked me if I would go to Lisbon and take up a number of important matters between Spain and Portugal. I replied that I preferred to remain as minister to the United States. While I would be glad to go if my government required it, I informed the king, I had been happy here and every relation with this government was most pleasant."

"MATCH KING" IN POLITICS



Ohio Columbus Barber, head of the "match trust," and the most prominent citizen of Akron, O., is out for revenge upon Senator Charles Dick. He has challenged that statesman to give a public platform explanation of what he means by "standing pat" on certain tariff schedules of the tariff bill and why he isn't for government control of railroads.

The "match king" is nursing a grudge of 20 years' standing against Dick. Dick as county auditor, sued him, as manufacturer, for $100,000 back taxes and the match king had to transfer the residence of his Ohio person to Illinois to fight the suit. The "match king" was chased from his native city.

When a committee from St. Paul's Episcopal church came to him for a possible $3,000 donation for their new church in 1906, he surprised them completely by giving them a $400,000 subscription with which "the best church in America" was built.

Senator Dick in his speeches against Barber has raised the issue that the "match king" is not a citizen. "Who's Who in America," says Mr. Barber was born in Middlebury, O., April 20, 1841, and when 15 years old began work in his father's match factory at Akron, O. He worked up rapidly and became a partner in 1861. It was in 1881 that he arranged a combination of match manufacturers, and formed the Diamond Match Company, of which he became vice-president. Seven years later he was made president, and since then has been known as the "match king."

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Hist! Shirt Mystery Puzzles Police

CHICAGO.—The Woodlawn police have been working on a deep mystery to solve.

It concerns three woolen shirts. Two of the garments are size 15 and the other is 16, according to a message sent to all police stations by Capt. John McWeeney.

The shirts were found by Patrolman Hogan at Sixty-third street and Madison avenue. They were strewn along the sidewalk. Hogan called the patrol wagon and the shirts were sent to the station.

Close examination of the garments revealed their size. After the lieutenant and sergeant and "fly cops" discussed the mystery for 15 minutes a message was framed and telephoned to the central station. Later it was transmitted to each of the 44 stations in the city. This was the message:

There is at this station three woolen shirts. Two are size 15 and one 16.

Capt. McWeeney's name was signed to it.

Patrolman Hogan modestly told of the "find" as follows:

"I was traveling my post about eight o'clock when my attention was attracted by the shirts lying on the sidewalk. As near as I can judge, they were about three feet apart. I won't be positive, but I think the first one that I picked up was size 16. The other two were one size smaller.

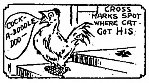
"I at once scented a mystery of some kind. Either the shirts were part of the proceeds of a burglary or they had been lost was the theory that first suggested itself. There was no laundry marks on the shirts, proving that they had never been worn.

"I called the wagon and sent the garments to the station. That is all I know about the mystery."

Lieutenant and Detective Sullivan was asked what he thought about the shirt mystery and replied:

"Not having seen the shirts I wouldn't care to express an opinion offhand. There certainly is some mystery there. I am acquainted with Policeman Hogan, who found the shirts, and know him to be an efficient, level headed man. Something might develop in a few hours that will assist in clearing up the mystery."

Kick on Rooster's Early Crowing



COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO
CROSS MARKS SPOT WHERE CAT GOT HIS

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Harry Wentworth's trained Brahma rooster crows lustily every morning before dawn and struts proudly forth from the little coop in which he is kept in a yard opposite police station No. 3 in Pearl street. The trained Brahma hen occasionally looks around, and, if she sees no signs of the daylight over which her lord so proudly crows, she draws back into the snug coop again.

Now the hen goes to sleep; but the neighbors can't. Six months ago the rooster whipped a cat on the steps of the Asbury M. E. church. The neighbors admired the rooster for the feat, because cats have been a nightly nuisance in the neighborhood. For a week after the fight with the cat the rooster crowed every morning. It was summer and folks did not mind it so much. Then Wentworth took the rooster for exhibition in a circus. They got back three weeks ago. The neighbors knew that Brahma was back the very next morning. They have known it every morning since. A committee called upon Capt. Gilligan and made complaint.

"We might stand it if the blamed bird crowed around sunrise," said one man to the captain. "But I'll be hanged if I'm going to put up with a racket that began this morning at 3:45."

The captain recommended the board of health. The delegation wanted more immediate action. Patrolman Conley was detailed by the captain to see Wentworth.

"If he can't put something over the rooster's bill," said the captain, "ask him if he'll keep it in the basement or some other place until this thing is straightened out."

"Wentworth told me," said Conley, "that he could not understand what had got into that rooster. He never crowed before he whipped the cat. He did not crow all summer long; but he began to crow again just as soon as he got sight of the church steps, where the battle was fought. He's going to board him in a livery stable for a few days and see how that works."

Lost Appetite Cause of Bank Merger

MERCHANTS NATIONAL FIRST NATIONAL
OH WE'RE HAPPY AS CAN BE

CINCINNATI.—A tired man, and a lost appetite are responsible for the formation in Cincinnati of the last bank in the Ohio valley and one of the 12 greatest financial institutions in the United States, a bank which will have a capitalization of $6,000,000 and deposits of $26,000,000.

M. E. Ingalls, for years at the head of the Big Four railroad; once head of the Cincinnati & Ohio; organizer, president and managing head of the Merchants National bank, worn out by his long years of service, slowly walked into the Queen City club dining room recently. He had been there but a few minutes when W. S. Rowe, president of the First National, caught sight of Ingalls dining alone, and walked over and took a seat across from him. Both chatted pleasantly until Ingalls' luncheon was placed upon the table.

"What's the matter? Don't seem to be eating very much to-day," said President Rowe.

"Oh, I don't know. Seems as if my appetite has failed me."

"Why don't you take a trip? What is keeping you?" suggested Mr. Rowe.

"The bank at the corner of Fourth and Vine streets," was the direct answer.

"Sell it to me," said Rowe, without a moment's hesitation, looking directly into Ingalls' eyes as he spoke.

"Make us a proposition," said Ingalls, finally.

Would Let College Girls Have Beaus

COME RIGHT IN CO-ED
ALLOPATHIC DOSE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—"The amount of attention a 'co-ed' should receive from a young man, the time of his arrival and departure, and the necessity of a chaperon, depend entirely on conditions," said Dean Lebaron R. Briggs, president of Harvard college and a dean of Harvard university. Dean Briggs, who is the most popular of the instructors at Harvard and beloved by the college girls at Radcliffe, makes this declaration in answer to the question, "How should a 'co-ed' be courted?"

Says Dean Briggs, "The college girl is no different than any other of her sex. She craves company and social entertainments. To my mind it is perfectly proper that the 'co-ed' should entertain gentlemen callers while at college if they do not interfere with her studies. A gentleman in the true sense of the word always knows when it is time to take his departure, so there is no need for the college girl to burn the midnight oil in efforts to make up for time lost in entertaining a friend which should have been given over to study."

"The social world with all its bright and dazzling lights finds but little sympathy with studious pursuits and is an enemy to the college girl and her studies," continued Mr. Briggs.

"A chaperon is, of course, a necessary evil, and while I approve of them in the house when a young lady receives callers, I can hardly imagine one seated in a room when a young man calls to see a lady friend with serious intent. At Radcliffe we try to make the girls as happy as we can. They have their fraternities, athletic associations and little social affairs, which make them there withal better during their alloted study work.

"A young lady herself is the best chooser of her friends of the opposite sex, and his habits should suit her."

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - MINN

USES OF A COLLEGE.

Whatever critics may say to the contrary, it never was and probably never will be the purpose of the standard college to train young men for business, says Boston Globe. Colleges do not even train men for the professions. There are professional schools for that purpose, and in the days when no such schools existed medicine was taught in the offices of physicians and law in the offices of lawyers, just as business was and still is taught in places of business. Colleges were not instituted to make physicians nor to make lawyers. Neither were they instituted to train men for business. Schools for special training have multiplied rapidly the world over. Even business schools are not lacking, although the business school which shall be in fact a post-graduate one to a regular academic course has not yet arrived. Meanwhile the commercial college or business school is doing excellent work. There is no reason why it should not be expanded as the professional and technical schools have been. Meanwhile let the idealist still cherish his dream of a college devoted to the cultivation of a lofty ethical standard, the propagation of knowledge, the fostering of the arts and the dissemination of the spirit of fraternity.

As an indication of the strength of the pure food movement in the direction of sanitation, it is stated by the health commissioner of New York city that 10,783 tons of food were ordered destroyed by his department during the past year. This ought to be pleasing to consumers, who are paying enough for supplies at the present time to entitle them to articles that will stand inspection. Oyster consumers will be pleased to learn that the New York health department has established close supervision of the oyster supply, particularly as to the so called "drinks" in which oysters are put prior to being packed for the markets. These "drinks" are all charted with relation to the sewerage outlets, and a card index is kept of the sources of supply of all dealers. It is only by supervision of this kind that conscienceless oyster dealers can be prevented from "freshening" their stock in brackish water concerning whose purity there is serious question.

Abdul Hamid, the deposed sultan of Turkey, is reported to be writing a book. If the volume should tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the ex-sultan's long and eventful reign it should readily take high rank among the "best sellers." But if books are to be written by all the "exes" why would it not be a good idea for Abdul Hamid, the ex-shah of Persia, Castro of Venezuela, and a few more of that class to form a syndicate, pool their issues, hammer out a whole lot of entertaining literature and make their everlasting fortunes? Or have they already achievedg the fortunes?

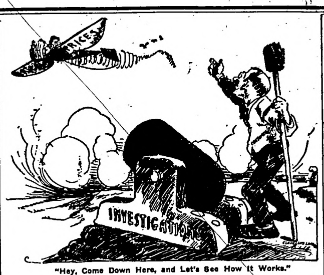
"Boys will be boys," but there are some things done by boys which show a perversion of high spirits and cannot be excused on the plea of boyish prankishness. At Trenton, N. J., a few nights ago boys tied a rope across a sidewalk after dark, and William Steinmetz, a blacksmith, tripping on the rope, while on his way home, fell heavily to the pavement, fractured his skull, and was picked up dead. The Trenton police are unable to identify the boys who tied the rope. It is a good practice for policemen everywhere to keep an eye on every boy gang that frequents the streets after dark.

People who feel that the orders given in various cities through the country that the girl operators in telephone exchanges shall not wear "rats" in their hair are tyrannical may have their minds relieved when they know the managers object to the "rats," not for esthetic reasons, but because they interfere with the adjustment of the head receivers that the operators wear.

Denmark and the Scandinavian countries are taking up the subject of interchange of college professors with this country. The scope of interchange is steadily growing. Whatever else interchange may accomplish, it at least leads to better understanding and better feeling between the countries that exchange their professors.

Some of the facts in the marriage statistics published by the government are startling. One is the coming proportion of one divorce in twelve marriages. Another is that three out of every four divorce petitions are granted. That divorce is thus comparatively easy is no doubt a factor in its rapid and threatening increase.

France is trying to find some substitute for horse meat and planning to build dreadnoughts—two sure sign of progress.



"Hey, Come Down Here, and Let's See How It Works."

WOMAN RECLUSE MURDERED

BODY OF MRS. M'INTOSH FOUND TERRIBLY MUTILATED.

Robbery Is Believed to Have Been Motive for Crime—Slayer Disembowels Victim.

Rockford, Ill. — Winnebago county authorities are confronted by a murder mystery that promises to parallel the unsolved Grippen case of last spring in the finding of the body of Mrs. Mary E. McIntosh in her home at 1239 West State street Thursday.

The victim's head was crushed in, her throat cut and great gashes in the abdomen allowed the bowels to protrude, while one lung was cut out and thrown on the floor. Evidence of any struggle was absent, the terribly mutilated body being found just inside the front door of the room in which the deceased lived. The rest of the house was closed off, and the other occupants were not molested by the murderer.

A close survey of the house failed to reveal weapon or instrument of murder, which evidently was carried off. Discovery of the crime was made by Henry Branthauer, a milk man. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive, as a ridge on the body would indicate she wore a money belt, and that in getting it off the murderer disemboweled the victim.

Mrs. McIntosh lost part of her fortune through a dishonest agent years ago, since which time she has been most eccentric and lived as a recluse.

Clinton St. Clair and wife were later arrested as suspects and under police pressure St. Clair confessed he killed Mrs. McIntosh.

Chicago. — A murder rivaling the atrocious Whitechapel outrages committed in London a quarter of a century ago, was revealed Thursday with the finding of the headless body of Mrs. Jennie Cleghorn, 48 years old, a woman of former wealth, in a cheaply furnished room at 54 West Seventeenth street.

The body was grewsomely mutilated. The head had been cut from the woman's shoulders and carried away by the murderer. The heart and other organs had been cut out and then replaced.

A hundred detectives searched scores of houses within the radius of a mile of the house for the missing head. Fully half a hundred women and men were taken to the Twenty-second street police station and questioned.

Eight persons were held. The first one arrested was Tillie Taylor, an elderly negress who runs the house where the Cleghorn woman was slain.

SLAYER HAS COLD HEART

Alleged Murderer of Girl Spurns Offer of Forgiveness from Victim's Mother and Sister.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Mrs. Susan Lee, a Dowieite, of Zion City, Ill., and her daughter came here to forgive George L. Marion, the New York theatrical man, who, it is alleged, murdered her daughter here last August, but she was spurned by Marion, who declined to pay any attention to her.

Mrs. Lee as a Dowieite believes in forgiving those who have wronged her. When Marion was brought into court she advanced, extended her hand and murmured that she had come to tell him she forgave him. Marion ignored her and turned away and then her daughter, Miss Grace Lee, also extended her hand. "We forgive you and have come to help you," she said. Marion turned away exclaiming "I don't know who you are."

Begin Action in Cherry Cases.

Joliet, Ill. — Clark Johnson, assistant to State Factory Inspector Davies, said he had filed an information against the St. Paul mine in Bureau county for employing ten boys under 16 years of age. Three of these boys perished in the fire last fall at the Cherry, Ill., mine.

Lectures in Seventeen Tongues.

Paterson, N. J.—State Senator John D. Prince of this city, a professor of modern languages in Columbia university, delivered a lecture at Lodi, a suburb of Paterson, in 17 languages. His audience was drawn from factories, where most of the workers are foreigners.

"Chew" May Cost Life.

Joliet, Ill.—In an endeavor to cut off a chew of tobacco John Carlin of Minooka, Ill., Friday, cut an artery in his wrist and may die.

ALLEGE THEY LOOTED ROAD

Charged in Civil Bill That Three Prominent Chicagoans Obtained $850,000 Railroad Money.

Chicago.—Purchases of millions of dollars' worth of real estate by the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad for a new depot and freight yards may be held up pending the investigation by State's Attorney Wayman into real estate deals through which Benjamin Thomas, former president of the road; John C. Fetzer and Charles R. Kappes, real estate dealers, are aleged to have obtained $850,000 of the railroad company's money for their own purses.

The three men, two of them representatives of the railroad, are accused of obtaining titles to real estate sought by the railroad and then of turning the properties over to the road at prices far above the actual purchase prices and putting the difference in their pockets. Sometimes, according to the bill filed in the civil suit Wednesday, the railroad was charged twice what the property cost.

Whether the charges against the three men will be taken before the grand jury State's Attorney Wayman would not say.

Denial of the charges was made by Fetzer and Kappes. The former said all his transactions with the road had been made in good faith.

1,000 SIGN AT WILMINGTON

All Classes Are Pledging Themselves to Abstain from Meat Until Price Is Lowered.

Wilmington, Del. — It is estimated that 1,000 Wilmingtonians already have signed the petitions agreeing to abstain from meat for 30 days, or until the price is lowered to a reasonable figure. The petitions are being signed by lawyers, physicians and business men, as well as workingmen.

Local meat dealers are becoming alarmed.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 21.—Fifteen thousand men in Omaha refusing to eat meat for one month is the number for which the labor unions of this city are striving as members of the Anti-Meat Eating club, which they have formed as a protest against the high price of meats and the exactions of the beef trust.

ARREST TWO BANK OFFICERS

President and Secretary of Cleveland Banking Company Are Charged with Perjury.

Cleveland, O.—President U. Grant Walker and Secretary W. G. Duncan of the South Cleveland Banking Company were arrested on indictments for perjury. The men are out on bail.

The bank of which they were active officers failed recently because of loans aggregating $1,144,000 made to the Werner Publishing Company of Akron, now in the hands of a receiver.

Tribesmen Slay 200.

Tangier, Morocco.—Two hundred of the sultan of Morocco's troops have bene killed in a terrific battle with tribesmen, according to news received from Fez. The tribesmen attacked the government forces, defeating them sharply. The attackers fled, pursued by soldiers.

Big Firm Suspends.

New York.—Following the suspension of the firms of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., and J. M. Fiske & Co., as a result of the sensational drop on Wednesday of 63 points in the price of the stock of the Columbus & Hocking Coal and Iron Company, President R. H. Thomas of the New York stock exchange shortly after the opening of the exchange Thursday announced the failure of the firm of Roberts, Hall & Criss, brokers, with offices at 52 Broadway. In a general way the failure of Roberts, Hall & Criss represents $3,000,000; that of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., something like $1,000,000, and that of J. M. Fisk & Co., $2,000,000, or about $6,000,000.

Conscience Fund in School.

New York.—The New York board of education has started a conscience fund. Several anonymous contributions have been received from persons who said they had mischievously damaged school property.

Push Patent Appeal Bill.

Washington.—A free-for-all hearing on a bill creating a court of patent appeals, in which many attorneys throughout the country are interested, will begin before the house judiciary committee January 27.

REPORT 46 KILLED

CANADIAN PACIFIC PASSENGERS CRUSHED, BURNED, DROWNED WHEN TRAIN IS DERAILED.

CARS PLUNGE INTO RIVER

One Coach and Diner Sink in River, Flames Sweep Other Debris, Dealing Death—100 Are Reported Injured.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—Canadian Pacific train No. 7, west-bound, due here at 4:15 Friday evening, when crossing the bridge at Spanish river, near Espanola, 140 miles from here, was thrown from the track, and 46 people killed and about 100 injured. It is supposed the derailment was due to spreading rails.

The accident evidently occurred as the last cars were going over the bridge, and the first-class coach and diner were precipitated to the river below.

News from the scene of the wreck is hard to obtain, the railway company, who control the only telegraph wire, not allowing much information to trickle through. From the crew of a freight train which arrived here, however, it is learned that the dead are in the cars in the river, and also in the second-class cars, which were derailed after crossing the bridge, and which afterwards caught fire, adding to the horror of the accident. Eighteen are said to have been burned in the second-class coaches.

It is supposed the engine was safely across the danger point, and after the accident took the news to Webwood, a distance of three miles. A relief train was at once dispatched from Sudbury, which is 42 miles east of the scene, with physicians and nurses. A majority of the injured were taken to Sudbury as soon as possible.

There is a fall of 35 feet to the water at the place where the accident occurred, and the ice is very thick, so that the names of those imprisoned in the cars will not be learned until the diver arrives there. A special train with submarine diving outfit left here for the scene. The Pullman car did not go off the track, remaining safely on the other side of the bridge.

TO INVESTIGATE PACKERS

Grand Jury Will Inquire Into Charges That National Packing Company Is Combine.

Washington.—The government is preparing to summon the Chicago beef trust to the bar of justice.

Criminal prosecution is contemplated and if the plans do not go astray some of the men responsible for the rapidly increased cost of living will be landed behind the bars.

This information was obtained here in connection with an announcement that the attorney general has received a full report of the investigation which he recently ordered into the relations existing between the National Packing Company of Chicago and Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morris & Co., the three concerns which jointly control the National Packing Company.

Within a couple of weeks, or as soon as the details can be arranged, the attorney general will institute a grand jury proceeding in Chicago, the intent of which is to ascertain whether or not the National Packing Company is a combination in restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust law. Inasmuch as the grand jury proceedings are only resorted to where criminal proceedings are contemplated, the inference is plain, though Mr. Wickersham will make no statement that his hope is to land somebody in jail.

That the beef trust is alarmed over the outlook is also evident, because it is known that agents of the trust learned that a report on its operations had been received here in advance of the information being made public. It was the fact that the trust had got hold of this information that brought out the story of the contemplated proceedings.

Tom Taggart Wounded.

Natchez, Miss.—Thomas Taggart of Indianapolis, Ind., national Democratic committeeman for that state and former national Democratic chairman, was accidentally shot while hunting quail near here by his private secretary, Harry Norton. Birdshot from Norton's gun struck Mr. Taggart in the face and his right shoulder. He was brought here and was taken to Indianapolis for medical treatment. The wounds are not fatal.

Nelson Knocks Out Lang.

Memphis, Tenn.—Battling Nelson celebrated probably his last appearance in public prior to meeting Ad Wolgast in California next month by delivering a knockout to Eddie Lang, the Chicago lightweight, Friday night in the Memphis Athletic club's new arena.

Fined $500 for Killing Prisoner.

St. Louis, Mo.—Patrolman James O'Hearn was found guilty of manslaughter in the fourth degree, Friday, by a jury and fined $500, the minimum punishment. O'Hearn in making an arrest hit Ralph Collins on the head. Collins died within 24 hours.

Re-elected Head of Miners.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Thomas L. Lewis of Ohio was re-elected president of the United Mine Workers of America over William Green of Ohio, his only opponent, by 23,597 majority.

JOHN R. WALSH IS NO. 6861

ENJOYS MANY LUXURIES NOT GIVEN TO OTHERS.

Is Given an Easy Task of Clipping "Criminal News" from the Newspapers.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan. — Even behind the bars of the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth the powerful influences that kept John R. Walsh out of a cell for two years after he was proved a felon have prevailed. John R. Walsh, convict No. 6,861, is enjoying practically every luxury that was enjoyed by Walsh, the possessor of $40,000,000 and an income that could satisfy the wishes of any human being.

From the moment that Walsh passed the threshold of the great national penitentiary those influences were evident. Walsh was not compelled to pose for a "rogue's gallery" picture. His measurements were not taken for the Bertillion system. He has not been forced to eat of the coarse fare nor off the common wooden tables of the 996 other convicts.

But of greatest importance, Walsh has not and probably will not be compelled to sleep in one of the iron-grated cells during all of his five years' stay at the prison.

Even in the matter of labor, Walsh has been peculiarly favored. While other federal offenders, including nearly a score of former millionaires and bankers, are handling brick and sawing stone, Walsh will be reading the newspapers. His daily task will be to handle newspapers and clip "criminal news" to be pasted into a book provided for the purpose.

12 PERISH IN FACTORY FIRE

Girls Among Victims of Blaze in Philadelphia—Scores Jump from Windows.

Philadelphia.—The six-story building at 200 and 202 Chancellor street, in the heart of the produce market, was destroyed by fire Wednesday, and a dozen persons, most of them young women, lost their lives.

About 20 men and girls are in hospitals suffering from burns and injuries received in jumping out of windows. There were 100 men, women and children employed by various small firms in the building, the interior or which was burned.

The fire is said to have started on the third floor, either from a slight explosion or the blowing out of a fuse in an electric switchboard.

Those on that floor were thrown into a panic. The cry of fire was spread. When the excitement reached the three upper floors a wild rush for life ensued. Many of the girls were young and became helpless in the panic.

The workers on the first and second floors and most of those on the third escaped, but those in the upper portion of the building were blocked at the third floor, which was a mass of flames.

The stairway was blocked with a solid mass of persons fighting for life. Some got through, others fell unconscious on the stairs and others rushed to the windows to jump.

MINIMUM RATES FOR SIX

Taft Proclaims What European Countries Are Entitled to Preference in Tariff Duties.

Washington.—Italy, Spain, Russia, Turkey, Switzerland and some parts of the British empire are favored as trade customers of the United States in proclamations issued under the Payne tariff law by President Taft.

Germany and France, the two chief commercial nations with which Uncle Sam has been having trouble over tariff duties, are on the outside, with Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Canada, Australia, India and all other portions of the British empire not described on the map of Europe.

MARJORIE GOULD TO MARRY

Her Parents Announce Her Engagement to Anthony Drexel, Jr., of Philadelphia.

New York.—Miss Marjorie Gould, the beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, is to be the wife of Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., of Philadelphia.

The engagement was announced by the parents of the bride-to-be at the dance which they gave last night in their new home, 857 Fifth avenue.

Thirty Governors Confer.

Washington.—Governors from 30 states of the union gathered in the national capital Tuesday to discuss problems of state and of national interest. Gov. Willson of Kentucky, chairman of the committee on arrangements, in a brief introductory speech referred to the first conference of state heads, invited in May, 1908, by President Roosevelt to meet in the White House. This year's conference is on the governors' own initiative.

To Recall Hengelmuller.

Washington.—The formation of the new Austrian cabinet is expected to lead to the early transfer of Ambassador Hengelmuller. Baron Hengelmuller's going is slated to take place within the next few weeks.

Gorges Imperil Bridges.

Bloomington, Ill.—All central Illinois bridges are in peril, due to gorging of ice at every structure, and at Lawndale and Mason City dynamite is being used to break up gorges that have formed.

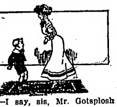
TO CURE RHEUMATISM

Prescription that Cured Hundreds Since Published Here.

"One ounce syrup of Sarsaparilla compound; one ounce Toris compound; Add these to a half pint of good whiskey: Take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time; Shake the bottle well each time."

Any druggist has these ingredients in stock or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. Good results are felt from this treatment after the first few doses but it should be continued until cured. This also acts as a system builder, eventually restoring strength and vitality.

AND TOMMY GOT BIFF.



Tommy—I say, sis, Mr. Gotsplosh wanted to know what you had in your stocking this morning.

Sis—Indeed; and what did you say?

Tommy—I said the usual things, you know.

EPIDEMIC OF ITCH IN WELSH VILLAGE

"In Dowlais, South Wales, about fifteen years ago, families were stricken wholesale by a disease known as the itch. Believe me, it is the most terrible disease of its kind that I know of, as it itches all through your body and makes your life an inferno. Sleep is out of the question and you feel as if a million mosquitoes were attacking you at the same time. I knew a dozen families that were so affected.

"The doctors did their best, but their remedies were of no avail whatever. Then the families tried a druggist who was noted far and wide for his remarkable cures. People came to him from all parts of the country for treatment, but his medicine made matters still worse, as a last resort they were advised by a friend to use the Cuticura Remedies. I am glad to tell you that after a few days' treatment with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, the effect was wonderful and the result was a perfect cure in all cases.

"I may add that my three brothers, three sisters, myself and all our families have been users of the Cuticura Remedies for fifteen years. Thomas Hugh, 1650 West Huron St., Chicago, Ill., June 29, 1909."

President Taft on Discontent.

President Taft, in one of his addresses to the farmers of Florence, N. C., told a story about discontent.

"No man," he said, "can really understand chronic discontent after having eaten one of those famous pine stews of North Carolina. Chronic discontent does, however, exist. Now and then we find a case or two among farmers when the weather goes wrong.

"'Ah, yes, Joseph, you have cause to complain,' a lawyer said to a farmer. 'The harvest has been very bad, no doubt of that. But you should remember that Providence cares for all, and even the birds of the air are provided for.'

"'Yes,' said the discontented farmer, so they are—off my potatoes.'"—Washington Post.

He Asked Too Much.

They had been engaged for exactly 47 seconds by the cuckoo clock.

"Clara, dear," queried the happy youth, who had a streak of romance running up and down his person, "will you promise to love me forever?"

"I'd like to, George," replied the practical maid, "but I really don't expect to live so long."

Uses of Oddity.

"Isn't your hat rather curious in shape?" asked the uninformed man.

"Certainly," answered his wife. "It has to be. Any hat that wasn't curious in shape would look queer."

Slightly Altered.

"All the world's a stage."

"And most of the men and women merely supers."—Cleveland Leader.

INSOMNIA

Leads to Madness, if not Remedied in Time.

"Experiments satisfied me, some 5 years ago," writes a Topeka woman, "that coffee was the direct cause of the insomnia from which I suffered terribly, as well as the extreme nervousness and acute dyspepsia which made life a most painful thing for me.

"I had been a coffee drinker since childhood, and did not like to think that the beverage was doing me all this harm. But it was, and the time came when I had to face the fact, and protect myself. I therefore gave up coffee abruptly and absolutely, and adopted Postum as my hot drink at meals.

"I began to note improvement in my condition very soon after I took on Postum. The change proceeded gradually, but surely, and it was a matter of only a few weeks before I found myself entirely relieved—the nervousness passed away, my digestive apparatus was restored to normal efficiency, and I began to sleep, restfully and peacefully.

"These happy conditions have continued during all of the 5 years, and I am safe in saying that I owe them entirely to Postum, for when I began to drink it I ceased to use medicine."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Why does Great Britain buy its oatmeal of us?

Certainly it seems like carrying coals to Newcastle to speak of exporting oatmeal to Scotland and yet, every year the Quaker Oats Company sends hundreds of thousands of cases of Quaker Oats to Great Britain and Europe.

The reason is simple; while the English and Scotch have for centuries eaten oatmeal in quantities and with a regularity that has made them the most rugged physically, and active mentally of all people, the American has been eating oatmeal and trying all the time to improve the methods of manufacture so that he might get that desirable foreign trade.

How well he has succeeded would be seen at a glance at the export reports of Quaker Oats. This brand is recognized as without a rival in cleanliness and delicious flavor. 51

WHERE IT WORKED.

"While we were on our honeymoon, I always spoke French to my husband, so that no one should understand us."

"So you went to France, did you?"

BREAKS A COLD IN A DAY

And Cures any Cough that is Curable. Noted Physician's Formula.

This is said to be the most effective remedy for coughs and colds known to science. "Two ounces Glycerine; half ounce Concentrated Pine; Put these into half a pint of good whiskey and use in doses of teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours. Shake bottle well each time." Any druggist has these ingredients in stock or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. The Concentrated Pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce vials each enclosed in an air tight case: But be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." This formula cured hundreds here last winter.

The Ruling Passion.

An old Irishwoman, in describing a "gone but not forgotten," said: "Mike was the foine man entoirely and he'd be living now, if it wasn't for the dhrink. He had a dog and sure that baste would bring him home from the saloon whin he was so blind wid liquor he couldn't see a shtep before him. And whin he died—'tis the truth I'm shpaking—his ghost walked at night, both back and foorth, betune the saloon and his house—and bedad 'twas so dhrunk his dog knew him!"

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO. Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists. 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Professional Conduct.

One of the best stories told about Mr. Birrell concerns a poor client, whose case he took up for nothing. When the case had been won, the client gratefully sent him the sum of 15s, which he accepted in order not to give offense. A colleague reproached him however, for this "unprofessional conduct" in taking less than gold. "But I took all the poor beggar had," said Mr. Birrell, "and I consider that is not unprofessional."—M. A. P.

Free to Our Readers.

Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago, for 48-page Illustrated Eye Book Free. Write all about Your Eye Trouble and they will advise as to the Proper Application of the Murine Eye Remedies in Your Special Case. Your Druggist will tell you that Murine Relieves Sore Eyes, Strengthens Weak Eyes, Doesn't Smart, Soothes Eye Pain, and sells for 50c. Try It in Your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Scaly Eyelids and Granulation.

Limited Belief.

"Do you believe in a future punishment of everlasting fire and brimstone?" asked the man with the question habit.

"Only for my neighbors," replied the party of the egotistical part.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Interesting Problem.

Knicker—New brooms sweep clean.

Bocker—Will new vacuums, also?

We are not to blame because you suffer from Rheumatism or Neuralgia, but you are if you do not try Hamlins Wizard Oil. It quickly soothes and allays all pain, soreness and inflammation.

Cheap notoriety often turns out to be an expensive luxury.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

One fisherman ought to believe the stories of another, but he seldom does.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Low shoes and high heels may be fashionable extremes.

FOR DEEP-SEATED COLDS and coughs, Allen's Lung Balsam cures when all other remedies fail. This reliable medicine has been sold for over 40 years. 25c, 50c, $1.00 bottles. All dealers.

A poor excuse is better than none—if it works.

State Capital Letter

Doings at St. Paul as Reported by Our Special Correspondent.

Minnesota Bank Statistics.

St. Paul.—Records in the office of the superintendent of banks at the state capitol tell an interesting story of Minnesota's financial progress and prosperity. A comparison of condition of state banks of deposit and discount, showing financial statements of 1907, compared with those of 1909 (up to about two months ago), is as follows:

RESOURCES.	Call No. 91 Dec. 3, 1907, 502 State Banks.	Call No. 101 Nov. 16, 1909, 646 State Banks.
Loans and Discounts	$58,923,557.32	$76,395,798.43
Overdrafts	395,232.27	641,181.35
U. S. Bonds	5,500.00	17,750.00
Other Stocks, Bonds and Securities	1,296,776.52	2,085,257.86
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	2,660,587.80	3,367,879.05
Other Real Estate	738,701.00	1,025,472.38
Due from Banks	11,360,370.83	14,579,907.85
Checks and Cash Items	696,764.35	567,031.23
Cash on Hand	5,865,571.45	4,546,997.50
Other Resources	66,300.59	116,177.65
Totals	$82,009,362.13	$103,343,453.30

LIABILITIES.
Capital Stock	$10,436,100.00	$12,257,500.00
Surplus	2,437,658.61	2,671,137.78
Undivided Profits, net	1,492,760.95	1,232,328.26
Bills payable	569,632.79	481,939.96
Time Certificates	35,879,503.20	50,311,268.36
Dividends Unpaid	6,126.72	6,387.69
Deposits Subject to Check	27,414,256.68	32,054,244.35
Demand Certificates	933,824.36	908,858.39
Certified Checks	31,248.36	27,720.26
Cashier's Checks	959,797.42	1,274,457.01
Due to Banks	1,819,191.31	1,986,905.86
Other Liabilities	29,261.73	130,705.38
Totals	$82,009,362.13	$103,343,453.30

Possibly the most interesting feature of this showing is the increase in "time deposits." In 1907 they were $35,879,503.20; and in 1909 (up to Nov. 16 last) they had increased to $50,311,268.36. This means "prosperity," in that the people during the past two years have (in round numbers) accumulated $15,000,000 additional money that they do not need for present use and have placed it on time deposit in the banks that it may draw the increased interest thereby allowed.

The superintendent of banks has also an interesting showing in the way bank deposits as a whole have increased year by year from 1898 to date. In this connection, the word "deposits" is taken to include time certificates, dividends unpaid, deposits subject to check, demand certificates, certified checks, cashiers' checks, and cash due to banks. This comparison show deposits to have increased $62,000,000 in Minnesota in 11 years—or about 300 per cent—and the number of banks of discount and deposit to have increased from 149 to 646. The self-explanatory tabulation follows:

July	14th, 1898,	149 banks with deposits of	$22,415,801.54
June	30th, 1899,	171 banks with deposits of	28,379,723.99
July	31st, 1900,	187 banks with deposits of	30,464,179.63
April	30th, 1901,	205 banks with deposits of	34,194,511.91
July	16th, 1902,	238 banks with deposits of	45,348,237.78
June	9th, 1903,	266 banks with deposits of	44,136,188.90
July	16th, 1904,	325 banks with deposits of	44,664,971.74
May	29th, 1905,	385 banks with deposits of	53,774,248.91
June	18th, 1906,	427 banks with deposits of	63,742,787.46
May	20th, 1907,	466 banks with deposits of	73,674,290.22
July	15th, 1908,	607 banks with deposits of	73,918,847.77
June	23rd, 1909,	627 banks with deposits of	78,299,793.68
Nov.	16th, 1909,	646 banks with deposits of	84,569,941.92

Profits in Farming.

That the Minnesota farmer has found the right thing and spot, in this state and its fertile soil, was demonstrated in a talk recently given the implement dealers' convention by former state senator W. W. Sivright, of Hutchinson. He explained that it is a mistake to assert that many boys do not remain on the farm but wander to the cities because the farm is not sufficiently profitable. He explained that the Minnesota farmer who 'tends to business, is sure of a "good thing," and his boy is much better off to continue to cultivate the soil than run his chances in the crowded business world of the large cities. He told of how five farmers, whom he personally knew, came to the cities not long ago, and went home in autos each had purchased. He also cited the success of land agents who, instead of working in the cities, had gone among the farmers and sold their lands by personal solicitation; and that these men had gone home, not with mortgages or promissory notes, but with the actual cash paid by the men who till the soil so successfully. Former Senator Sivright is a great believer in the future of farming for the rising generation—the only trouble being that the rising generation does not apparently appreciate its advantages in the country and longs too much for the lime-light of city life and activity.

Pardons Denied.

Gov. A. O. Eberhart has taken his moral stand to the effect that he does not believe personally in the death penalty for murder, but that he has sworn to do his duty in taking his oath of office, and consequently he must and will set dates for the hanging of men sentenced to death. The governor, however, does not believe in the pardoning of murderers who have "saved their necks" by going to prison for life. This he demonstrated (as did the other two members of the board of pardons) at the board's recent session. A number of applications for pardon or clemency and reduction of sentences, were considered at the capitol, and one and all turned down. R. L. Underhill, colored, in prison for life for killing a policeman, must remain there. Capt. John Clark, of the St. Paul police, told of criminal "gratitude" in this connection, stating that Underhill's companion, released on Underhill's confession, had shown his gratitude by a few day's later burglarizing the very home of Gov. Clough. The board also declined to extend clemency to Philip Rice, who killed a St. Paul saloonkeeper 15 years ago; to John P. Quirk, who killed Wm. A. Dowell, of the Minneapolis Tribune, 3 years ago; and also to Thomas May, who killed his uncle in Wright county in 1903.

School For Blind Investigated.

An investigation was made a few days ago of conditions at the state school for blind at Faribault by the secretary of the state board of visitors. Complaints had been made by students therein to a Minneapolis daily paper. The editor in turn asked the governor to have an investigation. And the governor instructed the secretary of the board of visitors with a representative of the paper (for the complainants) to visit the institution and see if there was anything wrong. Most of the reports published of what was found by the investigators (like Mark Twain said of the reports of his death) "were grossly exaggerated." In brief, the conditions found open to question were as follows: First, that a boy, Albert Neumann, age 22 years, weak-minded, had been whipped on one hand until it bled. Second, that the diet was poor, students objecting generally to all the cooking and a number of them stating they had not infrequently been served meat somewhat tainted. It is understood that the evidence which was taken will soon be turned over to Gov. A. O. Eberhart by Dr. S. G. Smith, chairman of the board of visitors, without recommendation, for the governor to take such action as he deems best on his own conclusions based on reading the testimony of the nine students who were examined.

Jeffries and the Governor.

Jeffries, he of the mighty fist, called on Gov. Eberhart at the state capitol a few days ago, and the two spent a half hour together, the governor consenting to have his picture taken on the capitol steps with the pugilistic champion. Standing side by side, the two men looked about the same height—a little over 6 feet—but Jeffries is much the heavier built of the two men. Mr. Jeffries reminded the governor that the last time he was in St. Paul he had called at the capitol and been entertained by the late John A. Johnson. He invited Gov. Eberhart to be present at the athletic exhibition he and Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler, were to give in St. Paul that evening, but Gov. Eberhart declined with thanks as he had an engagement to deliver an address that evening before the Minneapolis Commercial Club.

S. G. Iverson Back On Duty.

Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor, has returned to his desk and office at the new capitol after being confined by sickness to his home for almost two weeks. Mr. Iverson suffered with several carbuncles, all of them gathering on his neck at the same time and holding a "union meeting," much to his general discomfort. His friends are trying to console him with the statement that it is better to "get it in the neck" with carbuncles than with things politically—but Mr. Iverson, who had to do the suffering, apparently has his doubts.

Can't Run For Lieutenant Governor.

George T. Simpson, attorney general, recently gave a private, although written, opinion to a member of the legislature, to the effect that no legislative member of the last session can run for the office of lieutenant governor the coming campaign, because of the application of the constitutional provision that no legislator can be a candidate for any office the emoluments of which have been increased during his term of office, until a year after the expiration of such terms—in this instance, being a year from next Jan. 1. The constitution says the salary of the lieutenant governor shall be twice that of a state senator, and last session the salaries of the senators (as well as house members) were doubled.

J. C. MATCHITT.

HILL FOR PRESIDENT

REGENTS WOULD LIKE TO HAVE HIM SUCCEED PRESIDENT NORTHROP.

NOW AT UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI

Most of Them Believe He Will Accept—Visit to Columbia Mo., to Be Paid by Committee on Successor.

Minneapolis. — Prof. Albert Ross Hill, president of the University of Missouri, has been offered the presidency of the University of Minnesota to succeed President Cyrus Northrop. The general opinion of those who are seeking him is that he will accept the offer.

For a time the regents expected to bring Dean Frederick S. Johns, formerly of the engineering college of the University of Minnesota, now of the college of arts and sciences at Yale, back to this state, but opposition caused the withdrawal of the name.

Although there are several educators on the list of the regents, the name of President Hill is declared to be almost their unanimous choice. It is expected that the selection will be made within the next few weeks, though the committee of the regents appointed to visit the various educators under consideration may take action in a week. Of this committee ex-Governor John Lind, is chairman, and the other members are B. F. Nelson, President Northrop, Pierce Butler, and Dr. William J. Mayo. Messrs. Lind and Nelson, and possibly Mr. Butler, were to go to various institutions of the country to discuss the topic of a new president, but they may go to no other place than Missouri.

President Hill is among the best educators of the country. He was born in Nova Scotia, Oct. 4, 1869, and received his first education in a country school. He went to Pictou, N. S., academy and to Dalhousie university, Halifax, where he received A.B. honors in 1892. Following this he went to Cornell, where he received his Ph. B., in 1895. He was at Heidelberg, Berlin and Strassberg in 1893-4 and at Clark university, Worcester, Mass., in the summer of 1896. He received his LL. D. at the University of South Carolina in 1905.

His first tutoring experience came in Nova Scotia from 1885 to 1887. He was professor of psychology at the state normal school at Oshkosh, Wis., in 1895 and 1897, and following this he was made associate professor of philosophy, in 1897, of the University of Nebraska.

From 1898 to 1903 he was professor of philosophy and director of the psychological laboratories at the same institution. In 1903 he went to the University of Missouri as professor of educational psychology and dean of the teachers' college. Since then he has advanced to the head of that institution. He is a member of Sigma Xi fraternity and numerous educational organizations.

SWINGING HOOK KILLS MINER.

McKinley Ore Lander Instantly Dies at Kellogg Mine.

McKinley.—Gust Mattson, single, twenty-two years old, was instantly killed while acting as a lander on the ore stock pile at the Kellogg mine. Mattson's duty was to attend to the dumping of the ore on the stock pile when the cars were sent out. A hook became detached from the end of a cable and struck the man. Death was instantaneous.

MRS. LEDBETER DENIES THREAT.

Returns to Mankato But Attorneys Say Her Stay Will Be Brief.

Mankato. — Mrs. Grace Ledbeter, defying the threat to blow up the building where she was negotiating for rooms, has returned to this city from Spooner, Wis., but her attorneys give it out that her stay will be brief. They say that she returned merely to pack and ship her household effects. The police have been trying to trace the writer of the threat.

Train Wrecked Near Afton.

Hastings.—An extra freight train, in charge of Conductor C. P. Upton, of Minneapolis, was wrecked near Afton. The caboose and five cars loaded with coal were derailed. The accident was caused by a flange of the fifth car breaking. The caboose turned over twice and the occupants, Conductor Upton, John Black, brakeman, and Bat Staffen, proprietor of the Phoenix hotel of this city, were injured. Upton received a sprained back, and severe bruises and Black and Staffen were rendered senseless.

NEW BANK ORGANIZED.

Fairfax Will Have a National and Two State Institutions.

Fairfax.—For many years this village has supported two state banks with combined capital and assets of more than $400,000; a third one is in process of organization. E. F. Sell, Fairfax's pioneer merchant, is the principal promoter, and will become the active head of the concern. It will be organized under the federal law and will be capitalized for $25,000.

Prof. Albert Woods.

Assistant chief, bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., who has accepted the position as dean of the Minnesota School and College of Agriculture. He will take charge in February.

REDWOOD FALLS IS DRY.

For First Time in Thirty Years, There Is "Nothing Doing."

Redwood Falls.—For the first time in thirty years Redwood Falls is without a single licensed saloon. The power to grant or withhold license here is vested wholly in the city council.

For several years anti-license voters have succeeded in electing one alderman, and last year an attempt to elect a "dry" alderman in each ward came near being successful, the license candidates having only four majority in the First ward and six in the Second.

This year two of the license candidates and the mayor, heretofore sustaining license, agreed to be governed by a direct vote on the question of licensing saloons, stipulating that the anti-license vote should carry both wards. At the election a clause was added to the ballot for a direct vote on the issue, and the result was a majority of twelve against license in the First ward and one in the Second.

"Wets" Try to Shape Ballot.

In the Second ward an attempt was made by the license supporters to go behind the returns on account of a ticket which had been passed upon as "dry" by the judges, but which, it was contended, should have been thrown out.

When the council met and was required to act on the applications for license, however, only one alderman, who was unpledged, voted yes.

Citizens generally have accepted the result without excitement, and many believe that the city will not again license saloons.

EXPRESS AGENT GRAFTED.

Minneapolis Man Used Unique "Kiting" Scheme.

Minneapolis.—A criminal charge of embezzlement in the sum of $914.22 has been made by the American Express company against Herman Hanscome, a former agent. The county attorney is charged with the prosecution of the case and the authorities are awaiting the return of Hanscome from a business trip to serve the warrant.

It develops that Hanscome, as one of the hundred city agents of the American Express company, issued money orders among his other duties as agent, and the alleged appropriation of a number of the sums recited on such money orders constitutes the basis for the charge.

Names Fictitious.

Investigation by the company shows that a short time after Hanscome's accounts were checked up, on October 27, a number of money orders for $50 were issued by Hanscome in favor of a number of names. The company alleges that these names were fictitious and that their agent cashed them himself at some of the principal dry goods houses of the city and placed the money to his account in his bank as against the day when he would again have to give the company a check for the funds he had supposedly taken in for money orders issued.

MINNESOTA "U" AS MODEL.

High Officials of West Virginia to Visit State University.

Mormontown, West Virginia.—Governor W. E. Glasscock, President Burling of the University of West Virginia, and members of the state board of control have left on a tour of educational institutions of the Middle West. Western colleges and universities are to be studied with a view to modernizing the University of West Virginia. The Universities of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Chicago and a number of normal schools will be visited.

FAIL TO GET TIME EXTENSION.

Citizens of Minneot., Minn., Give Reasons For Not Erecting High School.

Marshall.—The residents of Minneota have failed to gain another extension of time in the matter of erecting a high school, which they were requested to do two years ago by George A. Alton, state high school inspector. The arguments advanced are that there is not enough attendance to warrant it and that the diplomas granted by it would not be as good as those from other schools.

A NEW TOWN EVERY WEEK

AND A NEW SCHOOL EVERY SCHOOL DAY.

The above caption about represents the growth of Central Canada. The statement was made not long since by a railroad man who claimed to have made the remarkable discovery that such was the case. There is not a district of a fair amount of settlement in any of the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, but has its school, and the railways have stations every seven or eight miles apart, around which group the towns, some large and some small, but each important to its own district. Schools are largely maintained by public funds and the expense of tuition is but a nominal sum.

The final returns of the grain production for Central Canada for 1909 is now in, and the figures show that the value of the crops to the farmers of that country is about 195 million dollars, as compared with 120 million last year. American farmers or those who have gone from the United States, will participate largely in these splendid returns, and these comprise those who have gone from nearly every State in the Union.

One of the many proofs that might be put forward showing the immense wealth that comes to the farmers of Central Canada is seen in the sum that has been spent during the past two or three months by the farmers who have for the time being ceased worrying over the reaper and the thresher, and are taking to enjoying themselves for two or three months. It is said that fifty thousand people of these Western Provinces spent the holiday season visiting their old homes. Most of these passengers paid forty and some forty-five dollars for the round trip. Some went to Great Britain, some to the Continent, others to their old homes in Eastern Canada, and many thousands went to visit their friends in the States. The amount paid alone in transportation would be upward of two million dollars. Some make the trip every years. It need not be asked, "Can they afford it?" With crops yielding them a profit of $20 to $25 per acre, and some having as much as twelve hundred or more acres, the question is answered. The Canadian Government Agents at different points in the States report that they have interviewed a great many of those who are now visiting friends in the different states, and they all express themselves as well satisfied, and promise to take some of their friends back with them. There is still a lot of free homestead land in splendid districts, and other lands can be purchased at a reasonable price from railway and land companies.

The Usual Way.

Smith—Did the lawyer get anything out of your uncle's estate?

Jones—Get anything? He got it all.

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Oronogo, Mo.—"I was simply a nervous wreck. I could not walk across the floor without my heart fluttering and I could not even receive a letter. Every month I had such a bearing down sensation, as if the lower parts would fall out. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done my nerves a great deal of good and has also relieved the bearing down. I recommended it to some friends and two of them have been greatly benefited by it."—Mrs. MAE MCKNIGHT, Oronogo, Mo.

Another Grateful Woman.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered terribly with a female weakness and had backache, bearing down pains and pains in lower parts. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly and used the Sanative Wash and now I have no more troubles that way."—Mrs. AL. HERZOG, 5722 Prescott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

Don't Cough!—Use PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS

Will instantly relieve your aching throat. There is nothing like it for Asthma, Bronchitis and lung troubles. Contains no opiates. Very pleasant to take.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 3? 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn. under th Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

We have not much to say editorialy this week,as we are in an ugly mood and are waiting to see which way the cat jumps.

We regret that so small a matter as the appointment of a 4th. class post master at Highlanding should stir up war, "but if we must have war let it come." "I repeat it Sir: Let it come." The first blood was drawn last week when one of our farmers got "slugged" in Thief River Falls because he dared to express his opinion and of course it was all right as long as the farmer got the worst of the deal, but if the result had been the opposit Mr. Farmer would have been promptly sued for personal injury "Such is life in the far west."

Every time E. L. Quist editor of the Thief River Falls Press has been a candidate for office in this county Andrew Ellingson has been in the front ranks of the pushers for him, without money, or price. His store was always loaded with Quists cards and he would stop attending to his own business at any time to speak a good word for him, but when Andrew Ellingson wanted anything, yours truly E.L. Quist was in the front ranks trying to throw mud on him, even going to the extent of publishing articles in his paper that he knew was not true. That's what we call gratitude, but if you want to find out the brand of it, go ask Quist.

Do You Really Love Dogs?

Perhaps the final test of anybody's love of dogs is willingness to permit them to make a camping ground of the bed. There is no other place in the world that suits the dog quite so well. On the bed he is safe from being stepped upon, he is out of the way of drafts, he has a commanding position from which to survey what goes on in the world, and, above all, the surface is soft and yielding to his outstretched limbs. No mere man can ever be so comfortable as a dog looks. Some persons object to having a dog on the bed at night, and it must be admitted that he lies a little heavily upon one's limbs, but why be so base as to prefer comfort to companionship? To wake up in the dark night and put your hand on that warm, soft body, to feel the beating of that faithful heart—is not this better than undisturbed sloth? The best night's rest I ever had was once when a cocker spaniel puppy, who had just recovered from stomach ache (dose one to two soda mints) and was a little frightened by the strange experience, curled up on my shoulder like a fur tippet, gently pushed his cold, soft nose into my neck and there slept sweetly and soundly until morning.—H. C. Merwin in Atlantic.

Absentminded Dyer.

Charles Lamb had a friend named George Dyer who was perhaps the most absentminded man on record. It was Dyer who, leaving Lamb's Islington home at broad noonday, walked straight into the New river. He was known to take up a coal scuttle instead of his hat, to walk home with a footman's cockaded hat on and even to leave one of his shoes under the table and get well on his homeward way before discovering his loss. He called at a friend's one morning, heard that the family was away in the country, left his name in the visitors' book, and a few hours later called again, asked for the book again and was astonished to see his own freshly written name. Once, when Proctor breakfasted with him, Dyer forgot the tea. The omission being noted, he filled the teapot with ginger. Proctor left as soon as he could to get a better breakfast at a coffee tavern, and there Dyer strolled in and asked him how he did, quite unconscious of having seen him earlier.

Reaching Conclusion.

"I imagine from your speech that you are a taxidermist."

"What makes you think so?"

"Principally because you tell me I am as wise as an owl and then try to stuff me."—Exchange.

Peaceful.

Mrs. Frost—Who was it that said "Peace, perfect peace"? Frost—Some one whose telephone was out of order.—Life.

VERBAL MISHAPS.

Dickens Once Made Two Bad Breaks the Same Evening.

Charles Dickens once wrote to a friend: "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately. I took a young lady, unknown, down to dinner and talked to her about the bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. Later I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, thinking him to be an Irish member, on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and the Marylebone representative."

Two such mishaps in one evening were enough to reduce the most brilliant talker to the condition of the three inside passengers of a London bound coach who beguiled the tedium of the journey from Southampton by discussing the demerits of William Cobbett until one of the party went so far as to assert that the object of their denunciation was a domestic tyrant, given to beating his wife.

Much to his dismay the solitary woman passenger, who had hitherto sat a silent listener, remarked:

"Pardon me, sir. A kinder husband and father never breathed. And I ought to know, for I am William Cobbett's wife."

Mr. Giles of Virginia and Judge Duval of Maryland, members of congress during Washington's administration, boarded at the house of a Mrs. Gibbon, whose daughters were well on in years and remarkable for talkativeness.

When Jefferson became president Duval was comptroller of the treasury and Giles a senator. Meeting one day in Washington, they fell to chatting over old times, and the senator asked the comptroller if he knew what had become of "that cackling old maid, Jenny Gibbon."

"She is Mrs. Duval, sir," was the unexpected reply.

Giles did not attempt to mend matters, as a certain Mr. Tuberville unwisely did. Happening to observe to a fellow guest that the lady who had sat at his right hand at dinner was the ugliest woman he had ever beheld, the person addressed expressed his regret that he should think his wife so ill looking.

"I have made a mistake," said the horrified Tuberville. "I meant the lady who sat on my left."

"Well, sir, she is my sister."

This brought the frank avowal, "It can't be helped, sir, then, for if what you say be true I confess I never saw such an ugly family in the course of my life."—Youth's Companion.

A SMALL WORD.

It Has Only Two Letters, Yet It Is Not Easy to Define.

To define one word in the English language one modern dictionary takes eighteen columns of small type. And this solitary word upon which the dictionary bestows such a wealth of elucidation is one that hardly anybody except a dictionary maker can define at all. The ordinary educated, English speaking person's knowledge of it could be expressed in about half a single line.

This fecund word is "of." If you were asked to define it—unless you are a dictionary maker or of an allied trade—probably you would have to reply: "Of? Why, of just means of." You might add defensively, "I always comprehend perfectly what it means when I see or hear it and can use it correctly in speech, so what do I want to define it for anyway?"

But if you were a child your actual mastery of "of" would stand you in no stead whatever. You would be set to digging out and memorizing the things the dictionary had to say about it, or the driest and least informing of them, as, for instance, that in some cases it is such a kind of preposition and in other cases some other kind and that prepositions have such and such properties when they don't have some other, every bit of which you would absolutely and mercifully forget at the first possible moment. Look over a child's grammar or "language" lesson, with its ghastly array of useless bones.—Saturday Evening Post.

Persian Prayer Rugs.

About 200 years ago small embroidered rugs were largely made in Persia, chiefly at Ispahan. These were prayer rugs, and on each of them near one end was a small embroidered mark to show where the bit of sacred earth from Mecca was to be placed. In obedience to a law of the Koran, that the head must be bowed to the ground in prayer, this was touched by the forehead when the prostration was made, and so the letter of the law was carried out. The custom still prevails. The Persian women who weave the finest prayer rugs seldom weave any other kind of rug.

What He Wished to Know.

"Here's an article in this magazine entitled 'How to Meet Trouble,'" said Mrs. Wedderly. "Shall I read it to you?"

"No, thank you," replied his wife's husband. "How to dodge trouble is the brand of information I'm looking for."—Chicago News.

No Consolation.

First Golfer (who is beating the curate all hollow)—Never mind, Sanders. You wait till you are saying the burial service over my grave. Sanders—But, my good man, even then it will be your hole!—London Opinion.

[illegible] Domestic [illegible]

"Does your husband ever speak harshly to you?" [illegible]

"No! Thank heaven, my husband and I are not on speaking terms."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. January 7, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 25th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 300, Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above describe; before Wilhelm Michelet; U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Habedank, August Ristau, of Thief River Falls Minn. Jacob Jonas, Valentino Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,

Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 21. 1910.

Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota January 14th. 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole P. Ostenas, of Neptune Minneesota, who on November 7th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 849, Serial No. 04806, for S. W. ¼ Section 10 Township 152 N. Range 32 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 21th, day of February 1910.

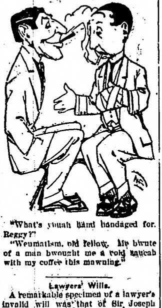
Claimant names as witnesses:

Siver Haugo, of Neptune Minn. Nels Resin, of Rudell Minn. Knut Jerstad, of Wanke Minn. Julious K. Halverson, of McIntosh Minn

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,

Register.

Shocking.



"What's youah hand bandaged for, Beggy?"

"Weumatism, old fellow. Me bwute of a man bwought me a cold saucah with my coffee this mawning."

Lawyers' Wills.

A remarkable specimen of a lawyer's invalid will was that of Sir Joseph Jeckyll, master of the rolls, who died in 1738 and bequeathed his fortune after his wife's death to pay off the national debt. "Sir Joseph was a good man and a good lawyer," was Lord Mansfield's comment, "but his bequest was a very foolish one. He might as well have attempted to stop the middle arch of London bridge with his full bottomed wig." The testator's patriotic intentions were therefore treated as proof of mental weakness, and his will was promptly set aside. Among the many blundering wills that lawyers have made for their clients, if not for themselves, the strangest on record was that of a Dublin gentleman who left all his money to the elder son of his brother and, if he had no elder son, to the second.—London Chronicle.

Raindrops.

Drops of rain vary in their size perhaps from a twenty-fifth to a quarter of an inch in diameter. In parting from the clouds they precipitate their descent till the increasing resistance opposed by the air becomes equal to their weight, when they continue to fall with uniform velocity. This velocity is therefore in a certain ratio to the diameter of the drops; hence thunder and other showers in which the drops are large pour down faster than a drizzling rain. A drop of the twenty-fifth part of an inch in falling through the air would, when it has arrived at its uniform velocity, acquire a celerity of only eleven and a half feet per second, while one of a quarter of an inch would have a velocity of thirty-three and a half feet.

A Peacemaker.

It is a commonly accepted belief that nothing short of being pried loose will induce a bulldog to give up his grip on another dog or on an intruder, but this is a mistake. A little household ammonia poured on him as near his nose as circumstances will allow will make him let go immediately. The fumes of ammonia are so overpowering that a dog cannot possibly maintain his grip and his breath at the same time.—Country Life in America.

A Word to Parents.

Never amuse your children at the expense of other people; never allow your children to ridicule other people. Neglect this advice and the time will assuredly come when these children will amuse themselves with your foibles and ridicule your authority.—Exchange.

Which Was the Worse?

"When I returned from our poker party last night my wife just looked at me, not a word was spoken."

"My wife looked at me, too, and I don't believe that a word was unspoken."—Houston Post.

A MARK TWAIN STORY

Showing What May Be Achieved by Nerve and Reiteration.

A LESSON IN PERSEVERANCE.

Going to Prove That Repetition Will Work Wonders if a Man Has Only the Necessary Amount of Cheek to Stand Up and Keep on Talking.

Mark Twain once told a reporter that if a man says the same thing often enough people will begin to listen to him.

"Now," said the great humorist, "there was that story about Hank Monk. That was the oldest, stalest, driest, deadest bit of alleged humor that any man ever heard. It had been circulated around Nevada and California until there wasn't a man left who would even listen to it. I had heard it so many times that I knew it by heart. It told how Hank Monk got Horace Greeley over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville.

"I was about to deliver my second lecture at Platt's hall in San Francisco—the second one I had ever delivered. It occurred to me that I might begin that lecture with the worst story I had ever heard and by telling it often enough start the lecture with a big laugh. I took that story and memorized it so that it would not vary in the telling, and I made it just as pointless and just as dull and just as dry as I could.

"When it came time for me to talk I stood up and with a few introductory remarks began that story. If I remember it went something like this:

"'Horace Greeley once went over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville. When he was leaving Carson City he told the driver, Hank Monk, that he had an engagement to lecture at Placerville and was very anxious to go through quick. Hank Monk cracked his whip and started off at an awful pace. The stage bounced up and down in such a terrific way that it jolted the buttons all off Horace's coat and finally shot his head clean through the roof of the stage, and then he yelled to Hank Monk and begged him to go easier—said he warn't in as much of a hurry as he had been awhile ago. But Hank Monk said, "Keep your seat, Horace, and I'll get you there on time!" And he did, too—what was left of him.'

"Now, that was all there was to the story. It was bad enough to begin with, but I made it worse in the telling. I droned it out in a flat, monotonous tone, without a gesture to mar its depressing effect. The people received it in dead silence. I had insulted every man in the audience—I had 'graveled' them with a story that was not only stale and pointless, but one which they had heard at least a thousand times. I waited a few seconds for the laughter, and then I began to hem and haw and shift my feet. I tried to appear just as embarrassed as I could, and after floundering about helplessly for a few sentences I cheered up a little and said that I would tell a funny anecdote which might be new to them. It began:

"'Horace Greeley went over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville'—

"I told it in exactly the same miserable, pointless way that I had told it before, and when I got through I waited a longer time for the applause, but there wasn't any applause. I could see that several men in the house were growing quite indignant. They had paid money to hear a humorous lecture. I took a long breath and plunged in a third time, more embarrassed and flustered and worried than ever, and by and by I worked around again to the time when Horace Greeley went over Glennbrook grade to Placerville.

"This time some of the smarter ones began to laugh, and this encouraged me so much that I thanked them and started right in to tell the story over again, never varying the delivery so much as a pause to take breath. The fourth time fetched 'em, and at the end of the story they stood up and whooped and yelled and cheered for some time.

"You see, I thought that if a man had sand enough to stand up before an audience and tell the oldest, stalest and most uninteresting story in the world he could make people laugh if he had the nerve to tell the story often enough. The rest of my lecture went very well. They were willing to laugh at my anecdotes the first time I told them. Maybe they were afraid I would tell them a second time.

"I felt so sure that I had discovered a new phase in human character that I tried the same thing in New York years afterward. There was an authors' reading bee one afternoon, and most of the authors read selections from their works. I sat on the platform beside James Russell Lowell. He asked me what I was going to read. I said that I wasn't going to read anything. I intended to tell an anecdote.

"'Is it a funny one?' he asked.

"I said it would be if I lasted long enough.

"I started out without any preamble and I told the Hank Monk anecdote. There was an awful silence at the end. I took a drink of water, mopped my forehead and told the story again. Same effect. Young man, I told that story five times before I landed 'em. When I sat down at last Mr. Lowell whispered to me:

"'You have cost me dear. I have been sitting here and wasting sympathy on you.'

"That's the point, young man. Repetition will do anything if a man has the sand to stand up and keep on talking."—New York American.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors. Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY

D. N. WINTON,

Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call.

Merchants State Bank,

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.

C. L. HANSEN...... Pesident.
DANIEL PATTERSON ..Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS.........2nd Vice Pres.
J. E. BURKEE..........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS
FOR Headache
FOR NEURALGIA
SCIATICA
RHEUMATISM
BACKACHE
PAIN IN CHEST
DISTRESS IN STOMACH
SLEEPLESSNESS
DR. MILES' Pain Pills
Take ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.
If you have Headache Try One
They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects
25 Doses 25 Cents
Never Sold in Bulk

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 30 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G.A.Hoveland, R F. D No. 1
Fosston Minn.

Rev. E A. Mostoe made this office a plesent call Monday.

Nels Ofte had a big crowd at his auction sale last Saturday

School is to commence in this district the first Monday in February, being the 7th.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Knut Sannes, of Malone on Saturday evening last

Mrs. Ole Overum returned home yesterday from a visit with friends and relatives at Crafton N.D.

There is to be a grand public ball at the Kolski hall in Deer Park on Saturday evening Jan. 29th.

If the present plesent weather continues the reservation farmers will finish threshing before spring.

We understand that the farm known as the Grace homestead has been sold to Frank Jeffers, register of deeds.

Andrew Ellingson is improving the good roads to get in big stock of goods to last him through the spring breakup

James O'Brien was a little over a month doing his threshing and he did not have a very big job either.

There will be a big raffel, and ball at the Hilda hall on Saturday evening Feb 5th. All are welcome to come. trixie.

We received a letter from Even J. Sund yesterday stateing that he had been sick all winter, but was geting better now.

George Beard, the Erie merchant and Theaedore Hyland were transacting business here Monday, and made this office a plesent call

Walter McAndress finished threshing Wednesday. He moved all his grain to the machine, that was set in a grove, which is the only way to do at this time of the year when there is so much snow

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1.00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2.00 per cord.
Yours for wood; Otto R. Stacy
Hilda post office.

The farmers telephone line is now connected at Thief River Falls and the reservation people can now talk with the outside world. The line will be connected with Sunbeam as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

George Singer was at Gully last week looking after his real estate intrests. He was the guest of Mr. S. Pelka over there who now has a railroad accross one corner of his farm, but gave sun another boost to keep posted on what his old neighbors are doing up on Red Lake

Sam McMahn fired the Ole Giving threshing enjine this week, while they were threshing for Walt McAndress, and you bet he kept "the old kettle" hot They talk about the man behind the gun, but it takes a full grown man behind the fireing fork to keep steam on a threshing enjine at this time of the year.

The Ole Giving threshing rig was moved over into the Magnus and Carl Olson neighborhood south of the river from Kratka yesterday. It is about as hard a proposition to move a threshing machine at this time of year as it is a county seat, the only difference being that there is no injunctions served, as the farmer who has not thrashed is anxious to get them and the one who has threshed won't object to them going.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Oscar Neshind and Edward Singer returned home from a business trip to Dakota on last Thursday.

The Clearwater young peopels society will meet at the home of Herman Lillo on February 6th. All are welcome.

Sall Bros. closed up threshing on Monday It is about time, but farmers have not stoped yet.

Mrs. Carlson from Bill River is up here visiting friends in the town of Deer Park

The Ladies Aaid will meet at the home of Gunder Hefstad on Wednesday Feb. 2nd.

A Rolandson and Otto Dahl made a business trip to Plummer on Monday.

Mrs. G Underdahl is visiting friends in Deer Park this week.

Mr. Knut Severude is moveing his household goods and stock up on his farm near Rhoda

There will be services in the Carlson school house in District No. 58, next Sunday at 2 o'clock p m. All are welcome

A good pair of 3 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E A M [illegible] mile south from Sunbeam.

Won by His Wit.

A story is told of an English clergyman who owed his appointment to a rich living to a lucky pun. He was tutor to the son of a nobleman and had not long taken orders when he attended the funeral of the rector of the parish in which the nobleman's seat was situated. The father of his pupil was patron of the living and was also present at the funeral of the deceased rector. There was a young clergyman present also whose grief was so demonstrative that the noble patron was much affected by the sight and asked if the young man was a son of the deceased gentleman.

"Oh, dear, no, my lord—no relation at all," said the tutor.

"No relation!" exclaimed the nobleman in a surprised tone.

"None, my lord. He is the curate, and I think he is not weeping for the dead, but for the living."

His lordship, who was something of a wit and a cynic himself, was so delighted with the bonmot that he conferred the living upon the ready punster.

Through a Big Telescope.

The first look through a great telescope is disappointing, but the novice soons sees that the flat appearance which the heavens present to the naked eye is replaced by a curious concavity; the moon and stars seem to be hung in space rather than spread out on a flat surface. For a moment one feels at the telescope like a child watching the swift moving balls kept in the air by a juggler and expecting to see one of those great, bright bodies fall. Then comes the thought, What keeps them there, apparently suspended in space with absolutely nothing to hold them firm? The explanation of the learned astronomer causes the brain of the layman to whirl, and he sees himself, perhaps for the first time, as a child gathering pebbles on the great shores of the sea of knowledge or as "an infant in the night, an infant crying for the light, and with no language but a cry."—National Magazine.

The New Hen.

Of the late Atherton Blight, one of the founders of fashionable Newport, a Philadelphian said:

"Mr. Blight was amused by the antics of the militant suffragettes. At a luncheon at the Bellevue he once sat next to a lady with suffragette notions. Plovers' eggs, hard boiled, formed one course, and the lady called Mr. Blight's attention to the high cost of plovers' eggs that year.

"'Even though,' she said, 'they have to be shipped from England, I don't see why their price should have nearly doubled, do you?'

"'Well—er—not exactly,' murmured Mr. Blight, 'though, they do say the hen plovers have taken to acting very oddly of late—strutting around, and growing topknots and spurs, and even trying to learn to crow.'"—Exchange.

Court Dress of Laureate.

Tennyson's court dress when he received the laureateship did not cost him much, for it was the same court dress worn by Wordsworth, who in turn had it from the old poet Rogers, and it is still in the Wordsworth family. It is a wonder how Tennyson and Wordsworth got into it, for Rogers was a little fellow. Tennyson had no passion for courts, and so he went in second hand to save cost.—New York Press.

Hot Air Rates.

Benham—I wish you wouldn't use the telephone so much for out of town calls.

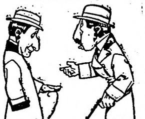
Mrs. Benham—I like to talk to mother.

Benham—That's what I object to! [illegible]

NEWS! News!
Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.
SINGER BOS.
RHODA & KRATKA,
Is the cheapest and best place to
Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices
Clothing.
WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING FROM $2.50 EVERY DAY SUITS UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS
[illegible] on Shoes & [illegible]
Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce
Yours For Bnsiness.—SINGER BROS.
Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscribtion while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

A Case of Realizing.



Harold—Say, old boy, do you realize you owe me $3.25?

Reginald—Yaas, I wealize; but can you?

Why He Searched.

The old man had evidently dropped something in the muddy road, and he began searching for it. In three minutes about thirty strangers had joined in the search, and every additional minute brought additional searchers, till at last one, bolder than the rest, plucked up heart and spoke:

"What are you looking for?" he inquired.

"My friend," mumbled the old man, "I have dropped a piece of taffy candy."

"But, great Scott," cried another of the crowd angrily, "why do you go looking for it when it will be covered with dirt?"

"Because, my inquisitive friend," replied the old man, "my false teeth are sticking to that taffy."

Perseverance.

Perseverance is more prevailing than violence, and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together yield themselves up when taken little by little.

Strict Obedience.

Salesman—Shirt, sir. Will you have a negligee or a stiff bosom? Customer—Negligee, I guess. The doctor said I must avoid [illegible] things.—Boston Transcript.

Temples of Siam.

Once a year all the Buddhist temples in Siam are visited by the king or his deputies, bearing the phra kathin (yellow robes), in conformity with an ancient custom by which the priests were made to seek their apparel for the ensuing year. During the lifetime of Buddha monks and priests were sent out to beg for old castoff garments, which were afterward dyed yellow and patched together to form the required robes. This ancient mendicant custom gradually gave place to the present one of making the garments from a new cloth of a bright canary yellow, provided by joint contributions of king, princes, nobles and commoners. When the king goes in the royal throne barge to present the robes in person he does so with great pomp and ceremony. The priestly garments, folded in bundles, are carried to the door of the temple to await the appearance of his majesty and his suit. The king on arriving takes a priestly robe and places it on a decorated altar. The chief priest then lays his hands on the garment and chants an acknowledgment.—Wide World Magazine.

Strange Hiding Place.

False teeth are occasionally used for secretive purposes. An eccentric old lady boasts of a roof plate which consists of two thin sheets of gold between which a miniature copy of her will is inserted. In a similar manner a dyer preserves a prescription which he declares he would not disclose for a large sum.—London Mail.

Envious.

"Just think of it!" said the student of immigration. "Many men who come to this country cannot write their own names."

"Yes," answered Mr. Pinchpenny, "and when I get down my check book on the first of the month I am inclined to envy them."—Washington Star.

Fixing the Break.

"They were both broken up by their separation."

"But I understand they've effected a reconciliation and are now re-paired."—St. Louis Star.

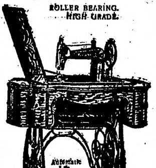
There is no teacher like necessity: it has been the making of man; it wakes up his dormant faculties and stimulates to action his latent talents.

THE MERCHANTS
State Bank,
OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,
THAT RAISE CROPS.
For Sale in Eastern Red Lake County.
☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highland ding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.
Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN
It is not necessary to make the trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.
Special attention given to Probate Court work.

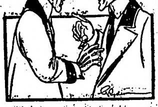
The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

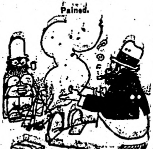
Natural Deduction.



"Poor Speeder is in hard luck. He has one arm in a sling, a black eye, two teeth missing and a mortgage on his home."

"You don't say! How long has he had the auto?"

Pained.



First Hobo—Why did yer refuse it?

Second Hobo—Why, when she said "chop suey" dat word chop reminds me too much of de time when I had ter chop three cords of wood [illegible]

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread (Chain Stitch) Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN
McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL
DICTIONARY
Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of questions in Language, The Trades, Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:

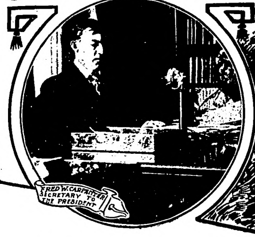
Colored Plates, Flags, State Seals, Etc.
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Scripture Proper Names
Greek and Latin
English Christian
Foreign Words
Abbreviations
2,380 Pages.
5,000 Illustrations.
25,000 Added Words.

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.
Should You Not Own Such a Book?
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages. 1400 Illus.
Write for "DICTIONARY WRINKLES" [illegible] of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

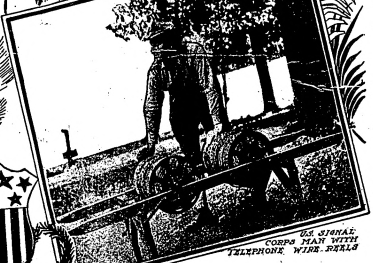
DEFECTIVE PAGE

HOW UNCLE SAM USES THE TELEPHONE

BY WALDON FAWCETT



FRED W. CARPENTER SECRETARY TO THE PRESIDENT



U.S. SIGNAL CORPS MAN WITH TELEPHONE WIRE REELS

THE TELEPHONE MOTOR CAR OF THE U.S. SIGNAL CORPS

THE SWITCHBOARD IN THE TELEPHONE ROOM AT THE WHITE HOUSE

UNCLE SAM has been quick to adapt to his own uses all the notable inventions and innovations of the age. The telephone, wireless telegraphy, the automobile, the flying machine and all the other notable scientific and mechanical advances of the generation have been pressed into service by the federal government as quickly or almost as quickly as spheres of usefulness have been opened to them in the commercial field. Of all the nineteenth and twentieth century revolutionary creations, however, no one has come to have such dependency placed upon it by the national government as has the telephone. Certain it is that there would be occasion for universal surprise were it possible to compile statistics that would show what proportion of the government business is now transacted by telephone.

Every federal official, from the president to the most subordinate of the nation's public servants, has a telephone on his desk, and considerations of time saving and monetary economy, to say nothing of the conveniences, impel the almost universal employment of the "instantaneous" communicative system. It has, to a great extent, displaced the mails and telegraph Washington, our national capital, is famous as the "best telephoned city in the world," and it is likewise known far and wide as the "City of Magnificent Distances"—two circumstances which combine to influence heavy dependency upon the telephone by the 30,000 federal employes at Uncle Sam's headquarters. More than this, however, the executive branch of the government is coming to rely more and more upon the telephone for the transaction of official business between the seat of government and federal offices in other cities. Aside from this extension of long-distance telephone operations, Uncle Sam, thoroughly abreast the times, is now conducting practical experiments with wireless telephony.

Perhaps the most convincing evidence that could be offered of the degree of dependency which Uncle Sam now places on the telephone is to be found in the attention paid to the installation of telephone facilities in the new $50,000 office building recently completed for the use of President Taft and his business staff. Ever since the Spanish-American war the telephone room at the executive offices has been considered one of the most important features of this model business establishment, but the equipment of the reconstructed White House annex is infinitely superior to the telephone facilities in the old structure, and is, indeed, probably the finest and most complete to be found in America—that, is the most notable that has been provided in any private residence or corporate business office, or elsewhere than in the up-to-date telephone exchanges in our largest cities.

The new telephone room at the White House adjoins, on one hand, the general staff room—the working quarters of the president's clerks and stenographers—and, on the other hand, the office of the secretary to the president. Just beyond this is the president's private office, so that the chief executive of his "right-hand man" can reach the telephonic nerve center with very little trouble. The private branch exchange in the matter of switchboard and all the details of equipment, represents the latest approved practice and the wiring of the office is thoroughly up-to-date. By no means the least important feature of the telephone room is a specially designed telephone booth, claimed to be the finest booth and the only one of its kind in the world. This is for the use of the president, when using the long distance telephone, and the structure is sound proof in the highest degree.

In general appearance the president's new telephone booth conforms very closely to the usual type of booth found in hotels, railroad stations and business houses all over the country. To be sure, the oak wood of which it is constructed has been specially selected for its beautiful grain and the plate glass in the door and windows is unusually heavy, but in general appearance the booth conforms closely to prevailing standards. The distinctive characteristics is the roominess of the interior. Not only will the booth accommodate satisfactorily so big a man as President Taft, but there is ample space for a stenographer to sand beside the president's chair inside the booth in case the executive should desire to have a memoranda taken down in shorthand as he received it over the telephone. There are also facilities whereby if desired, this booth can in warm weather, be connected with the novel air cooling system which has been installed in the new White House offices for the purpose of making them habitable to a weighty president during the dog days.

Through the medium of this telephone clearing house—with an operator on duty night and day—the president has the entire official world at his ear. First of all, it serves as the "central" of the White House private telephone system. This system has 18 "inside stations" as they are known in technical jargon—that is, it controls a dozen and a half different telephones distributed about the presidential mansion, the White House offices and the grounds, and thereby linking the business offices, the living quarters, the kitchens, laundry, stable and garage, etc., etc., not forgetting the headquarters of the police froce of 32 men that guard the White House, and the members of which may be needed at some point quickly, to control a crowd or remove a crank. Via the president's private exchange his 'phone or any of the other 18 may be quickly connected to any of the thousands of 'phones—official and non-official—embraced in the public telephone system of the city of Washington.

However, the higher circles of officialdom are by no means dependent upon the public service for their telephone facilities. They have a very ingenious system of their own. It is a secret network of wires, and, very naturally, it is centered in the White House. Primarily, this confidential telephone web consists of a special private telephone wire leading from the White House to each of the nine departments of the government. The main purpose of this is to enable the chief magistrate to at any moment consult with any of his nine cabinet officers without any danger of eavesdropping, but of course, should the president desire to communicate confidentially by 'phone with any subordinate in any of the departments, it is a simple matter to summon such individual to the secret 'phone, rather than to have him communicate with the White House via the regular telephonic channels.

Equally important as arteries of quick communication, are the two special telephone wires leading from the White House to the United States capitol. One of these lines leads into the great exchange at the big white-domed building, and through this "central" the president can get connection with the private office of any senator or representative, or with the cloak rooms or other rendezvous of the lawmakers. The other line from the White House to the capitol is a strictly secret line. Not only does it not lead into the exchange at the capitol, but the terminal is not accessible to any person save with the president's sanction. It is safe to say that there are men who have been in congress for years, who do not know of the existence of this secret line to the White House, much less know the location of its terminal. However, the line serves a most important purpose, for it enables the president to at any time, confer with the vice-president or with any senator or representative—for instance, the administration spokesman or floor leader—in absolute security as to the confidential character of the verbal exchanges. Not even a "hello girl" can overhear what is said.

In number of connected telephones, and in point of the average number of calls handled daily, the greatest private telephone exchanges in the world are those at the United States capitol, and in the most extensive government departments at Washington, as, for instance, the war and navy departments, and the department of agriculture. Such an exchange covers hundreds of 'phones, and there is a "night service" which enables communication with all the more important officials at their homes. The equipment of the more notable of these governmental exchanges is perfection itself. The switchboards, for instance, are of the illuminated type. That is, instead of the receipt of each call being marked by the fall of a small metal tab—something that may easily be overlooked by a "hello girl"—the summons for "central" to make a connection is given by the illumination of a small electric lamp—something that cannot readily escape notice. The switchboard of this type provides, of course, one little incandescent light for each subscriber in the system. The expense of such installation may be surmised however, from the fact that the switchboard of this pattern recently placed in one of the governmental exchanges cost $5,000.

Some few public men in Washington who do not wish to be bothered with business after office hours, have adopted the expedient of having secret or unlisted telephones at their residences. Under this scheme the public man confides the number of his confidential 'phone to intimates or others whom he is willing to have call him up, but so far as the telephone directories show, he has no 'phone at his residence, and "central" is forbidden to connect persons who cannot give the confidential number that acts as a password. A possible disadvantage of this system was illustrated in the recent predicament of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who, in endeavoring to call his own residence by 'phone, discovered that he had forgotten the number. After several unsuccessful attempts at a solution of the difficulty, he was finally obliged to call up the White House and obtain his number from the operator in charge there, who, fortunately, recognized the senator's voice.

The United States army and navy have for some time past placed great dependence upon the telephone. Aside from the extensive use of the invention at navy yards, the telephone has been employed universally for interior communication aboard our battleships, and the keynote of the new fire control system on the reconstructed battleships is found in the telephone installation which permits quick communication between the officers at the top of the new fire control towers and the officers who are directing gunnery operations from protected stations in the heart of the ship.

The army similarly, has utilized the telephone for all sorts of communicative purposes at forts and military posts, probably the most important being its employment for communicating determinations of range from the fire control and batttle direction stations to the various batteries. The army has also employed the telephone for a variety of field operations, including experiments with the motor telephone and telegraph car of the United States Signal corps, and a particularly mobile system which has enabled the laying of telephone wires and communication by telephone between horsemen riding at a gallop in opposite directions.

Latterly both the army and the navy have taken up the wireless telephone. It may be remembered that during the round the world cruise of the battleship fleet, the wireless telephone was employed extensively for communication between the various ships. Now the United States Army Signal corps is taking up wireless telephony with long distance installations, with a view to determining the utility of the system for field service. With the instruments in use it is possible to communicate in an ordinary conversational tone for a distance of 15 to 20 miles. The army experiments are designed especially to develop apparatus that will combine compactness and lightness.

VIEW OF SELF-SACRIFICE

A question which frequently arises in social relations is to what extent should one sacrifice one's self to oblige one's friends. More than half the social pleasures entail a sacrifice on somebody's part. Money has to be spared that can ill be afforded, people whom one doesn't like have to be met and health has to be disregarded in order to keep an engagement.

The life of the average woman seems to demand of each successive day just a little more of her time and consequently of his vitality, and when she adds to her own burdens those of other people, by filling in a place at the last moment, or by doing any one of the multitudinous other little things that oblige socially, she is on the road to destruction and had better learn to say "No" before she has to go to a sanatorium. Every social leader has on her list some of these tried and true mortals whom she can coax into working overtime. For this reason her dinners are never clouded by a vacant place; her entertainments are always a success. But the woman upon whom she leans pays for it all, even though she has her good time.

OMAHA PEOPLE GREATLY EXCITED

THE GREAT COOPER AS HE IS CALLED HAS STIRRED UP THAT CITY TO A REMARKABLE DEGREE.

Omaha, Nebraska, January 26.—This city is at present in the midst of an excitement beyond anything that it has experienced in recent years.

Old and young, rich and poor, all seem to have become beside themselves over an individual who was a stranger to Omaha up to two weeks ago.

The man who has created all this turmoil is L. T. Cooper, President of the Cooper Medicine Co., of Dayton, Ohio, who is at present introducing his preparations in this city for the first time.

Cooper is a man about thirty years of age and has acquired a fortune within the past two years by the sale of some preparations of which he is the owner.

Reports from eastern cities that preceeded the young man here were of the most startling nature, many of the leading dailies going so far as to state that he had nightly cured in public places rheumatism of years' standing with one of his preparations. The physicians of the East contradicted this statement, claiming the thing to be impossible, but the facts seemed to bear out the statement that Cooper actually did so.

In consequence people flocked to him by thousands and his preparations sold like wildfire.

Many of these stories were regarded as fictitious in Omaha and until Cooper actually reached this city little attention was paid to them. Hardly had the young man arrived, however, when he began giving demonstrations, as he calls them, in public, and daily met people afflicted with rheumatism, and with a single application of one of his preparations actually made them walk without the aid of either canes or crutches.

In addition to this work Cooper advanced the theory that stomach trouble is the foundation of nine out of ten diseases and claimed to have a preparation that would restore the stomach to working order and thus get rid of such troubles as catarrh and affections of the kidneys and liver, in about two weeks' time.

This statement seems to have been borne out by the remarkable results obtained through the use of his preparation, and now all Omaha is apparently mad over the young man.

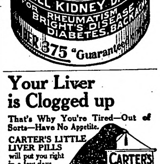
How long the tremendous interest in Cooper will last is hard to estimate. At present there seems to be no sign of a let-up. Reputable physicians claim it to be a fad that will die out as soon as Cooper leaves.

In justice to him, however, it must be said that he seems to have accomplished a great deal for the sick of this city with his preparations.

The policeman, like the rainbow, appears when the storm is over.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

Extremes meet when the hairdresser is introduced to the chiropodist.



Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days.

They do their duty.

Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER
PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

GENUINE must bear signature:

Brent Good

STRONG WORDS FROM A MINISTER

The Rev. F. O. Carlson, of Grantsburg, Wis., suffered with eczema for 2 years. He had tried ten different doctors and answered all advertisements when was brought to his notice. Two bottles of Stub-Roo Liquid cured him.

Stub-Roo REMEDIES

Here are his very words: "The works of this medicine are next to the miracles of God."

Too strong? Well here's our record: "Not One Known Failure in 8 Years."

At your druggist's, or send a dollar for a large bottle, express paid. Write today to

Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 155-158 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

The Girl Who Came Back

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyright, 190 by Associated Literary Press.)

The little mother sat and sewed. There was the party dress for Emily. She knew she wasn't making it well. It needed the more artistic finish of one who kept in touch with styles. The little mother was too busy to go out into the world and see things. Since Jean had left there had been so many things to do.

She snipped off a thread and surveyed the garment. Jean could have tied the bows differently. But she must not wish her back when she was so happy in her life in the city. In the store where Jean worked people came to be fitted and tried on, and there was always life and excitement and plenty of money.

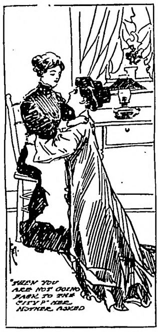
"She is very happy," the little mother told Andy Wentworth when he had come in the night before.

Andy had said, thoughtfully, "I hope so," and had stared into the fire.

The little mother wished that Jean might have cared for Andy. The big, double house on the hill would have held them all—Jean and Andy living on one side, and Emily and her mother on the other. And in the spring they would have looked out on the blossoming dogwood and would have heard the birds sing and in the fall there would have been the flame of the trees and the sunsets over the lake.

There was no view of sunset from the little mother's window. Only the squalid streets of the mining town and a bit of bleak north sky.

When the lamps were lighted it was better and the little mother sewed in a circle of light until Emily came. Emily's hair was like spun gold and when she tried on the new pink dress she looked like a rose. But the little mother didn't think of that. She was worried about the fit. Emily's figure seemed to bulge out in the wrong places or else the dress did.



"WHEN YOU ARE NOT GOING BACK TO THE CITY?" HER MOTHER ASKED

Emily's face showed her dissatisfaction. "It's wrong," she said, downheartedly, "and I'm not blaming you, mother, only you and I haven't the knack of getting things right, as Jean had—"

"If Jean were only here," sighed the little mother, and then, taking it back quickly, "Of course I ought not to wish it if she is happy.'

"Well, I wish she would ask me to come and see her," Emily sighed. "I don't think it is fair that she should have all the fun, do you, mother?"

"She works for it," the mother excused, "and of course she's away all day."

"Yes," Emily agreed, "but we could go places in the evenings and she knows so many men."

"Yes," the little mother agreed, abstractedly. She was ripping at the sleeves in Emily's dress with a view to making them shorter.

"I think that's why Andy Wentworth didn't want her to go to the city," Emily said. "He was jealous."

"Well, Jean never would have been contented to settle down on a farm," the mother said. "You can try this on again, Emily."

When Emily had eaten her supper and had gone to bed so that she might be wide awake on the night of the dance, the little mother worked late. And all the time her thoughts were with Jean—Jean, who was working in the city.

Suddenly she stopped and raised her head—in the midst of the wind and storm she heard a call.

She went to the door and looked out. The lamplight shining on the path showed a dark figure.

"Mother," said a voice, tremulously.

"Jean!" In another moment the little mother had her in and before the fire. She took off the velvet wrap and handled the plumed hat with reverence, revealing thereby Jean's slender figure clothed in modish black, her hair a golden crown of puffs and curls.

"How pretty you are," said the little mother, rapturously "It's such a joy to have you, Jean."

"I had to come," Jean began, then stopped and laughed a little. "I am hungry and I know you have some cookies in the little jar. You always have them, you know."

So Jean sat and ate cookies and talked in her gay, light way of everything except the reason why she came back.

She examined Emily's dress and offered to fix it. "I'll run in the bedroom and take off this gown and be comfy."

When she came back she wore a pale gray kimono.

"Now you look like my own little Jean," her mother said, brightly, and suddenly Jean clung to her, sobbing. "Oh, mother, mother," she said, "I have come back to be your own little Jean—always."

"Then you are not going back to the city?" her mother asked.

"No—let me tell you why."

It was a simple little tale of the effort to preserve high ideals amid sordid surroundings. "All of the girls wanted pretty clothes, and we would do almost anything to get them. We lived in poor, little rooms and cooked our sausages and ham and eggs over the gas jet—and we bought silk stockings and puffs with the money we saved. We didn't have enough to eat sometimes, but we could sweep the length of our silk petticoats across the floor and we consoled ourselves that way."

"But you wrote that you were happy—"

"At first I was," Jean said. "I was just silly enough to think that looking well would make up for it all. But after a while it seemed to me that I should die if I didn't see the fields and hear the birds—oh, you don't know how I wanted to run right out to Andy's farm, mother."

"I thought you hated the farm."

"I did—because I didn't know."

She came over and knelt by her mother's side. "There was a man in the city—he was rich and generous, and he took me out to suppers when I was hungry—and to ride in his motor car when I was tired. At last he asked me to marry him and I said, 'Yes.' But I didn't tell you, because somehow I couldn't see you welcoming him to this shabby little home. Not because he was too fine for it, but because you were too fine for him, mother—with all of his money I was ashamed of him. And that wasn't all. It seemed to me that instead of wanting me to live up to the best that was in me he wanted to drag me down to his level. He liked to have me amuse him with my brightness. But the real me, the real woman of me, that you know, mother, he didn't care to understand.

She stopped and went on, slowly. "And last night—last night I had a letter from Andy Wentworth. For all that he really knew, I was happy and prosperous, but his heart had told him that I needed him. He begged me to let him know if anything troubled me, that he might help. Even though I would not have him in my life, he wanted to care for me—to protect me from evil."

She stood up with shining eyes. "And that's why I came back, mother. To be your own little Jean again. To marry Andy. To live in God's country and forget the things I have learned in the city. I wish I could tell all girls to stay near their mothers and the good men who love them—for there's nothing that makes up for it in the whole wide world."

She was sobbing again in her mother's arms. But presently she sat up. "Let's finish Emily's dress," she said. And when she had put a stitch here and there and had tied the bows she held it up. "She shall wear my pink corals and my gold comb," she said, "and she will be the belle of the ball, but I will stay home with you, and Andy shall come, and you shall give us your blessing, and please God we will all live happy ever after, mother, dear."

Clever Police Dogs.

One of the smartest police constables in Wales has four feet. He answers to the name of Wallace, and people who did not know better would mistake him for an ordinary dog.

Wallace belongs to Albert Savage of the Glamorganshire constabulary, who has trained him for police duty.

"He works the backs of houses while his master works the fronts, and vice versa," says the Police Review and Parade Gossip. "He never misses a man if there is one about, and his warning bark soon makes known to his master the presence of tramps loitering or sleeping in the farmyards."

Bob, the dog of a Newport, Isle of Wight postman, who accompanies his master to the Newport railway station for the mails, has developed a fondness for traveling by train, alone and without a ticket, to Mill Hill, a suburb of Cowes.

There he always detrains and waits for the next train back to Newport.

Spot, the collecting dog at Bexley Station, on the Southeastern & Chatham railway, was presented recently with a silver-mounted collar and enrolled a member of the Brotherhood of Hero Dogs.—London Express.

Covering an area of 2,450 acres, the largest hydraulic gold mine in the world is in Trinity county, California

NEARING TIME FOR THE SPRING PRACTICE

BALL PLAYERS SOON TO START ON WESTERN AND SOUTHERN TRIPS.

LYNCH BARS FAMILIARITY

Games in the National League Likely to Be Pink Tea Affairs—Players Must Call the Umpire "Mister" —Dreyfuss for 154 Games.

It will not be long before the spring practice of the baseball players will begin. Cities in the south will swarm with ball tossers of the big leagues and the work of getting into condition, after several months of ease, will be on. In the latter part of February the managers and players will take to the trains after a visit to Hot Springs and West Baden. Some go to Florida, others to Louisiana and Texas, and some to Georgia. Each manager has his own idea concerning the most beneficial climate in which to start the spring work.

For several seasons Charles Comiskey has been taking the Chicago White Sox to California on a special train. This probably will be the last for the Old Roman has about decided to take his men to Excelsior Springs, Mo., next year. Comiskey recently visited the springs and was cured of rheumatism. He has had his team there before, and he believes it will be best to go back next season. Comiskey has been spending enough money to have a real baseball team, and if he can get his boys to hitting the Sox ought to finish well up.

An American league authority is responsible for the statement that the National league may be obliged to return to a schedule of 154 games for this season, regardless of the recent vote at the New York meeting in favor of 168. It is pointed out that an article of the league's constitution provides that the schedule committee shall have the say regarding the number of games to be played, and that the club owners, as a body, have nothing to do with it.

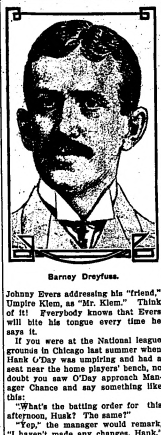
Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburg, one of the members of the schedule committee, is known to be in favor of the shorter schedule, and he may be able to persuade his fellows not to extend the season as the league voted to do.

"It is hard for me to see a single reasonable argument in favor of extending our present schedule," Dreyfuss said. "Baseball is a dead proposition after the last week in September, unless two clubs are fighting neck and neck for the pennant. At least six clubs are sure to lose by the plan, and possibly eight.

"The weather is bound to be bad for baseball, and the fans are ready to turn their attention to football, anyway, at that time."

If reports are true, Tom Lynch, new president of the National league, will have the games in that organization conducted like a society tea. Lynch is a stickler for propriety. He doesn't like familiarity between the umpire and the players. When he was handling an indicator for Uncle Nick Young Lynch wouldn't allow a player to call him "Tom" on the field. The first offense meant a caution, the second a five-dollar fine, and the third ten dollars. About that time the player saw the wisdom of saying "Mr. Lynch."

This year we may expect to hear Johnny Evers addressing his "friend," Umpire Klem, as "Mr. Klem." Think of it! Everybody knows that Evers will bite his tongue every time he says it.



Barney Dreyfuss.

If you were at the National league grounds in Chicago last summer when Hank O'Day was umpiring and had a seat near the home players' bench, no doubt you saw O'Day approach Manager Chance and say something like this:

"What's the batting order for this afternoon, Husk? The same?"

"Yep," the manager would remark, "I haven't made any changes, Hank."

Hank would stroll over to the bench of the visitors. He would go through the same program and the game would begin.

Not so with Lynch as the chief executive. Hank, if he obeys instructions, will wait until one minute before time for the game to begin. Then with a martial tread he will march to the coop of Chance.

"Mr. Manager, will you favor me with a lineup of to-day?" he will say.

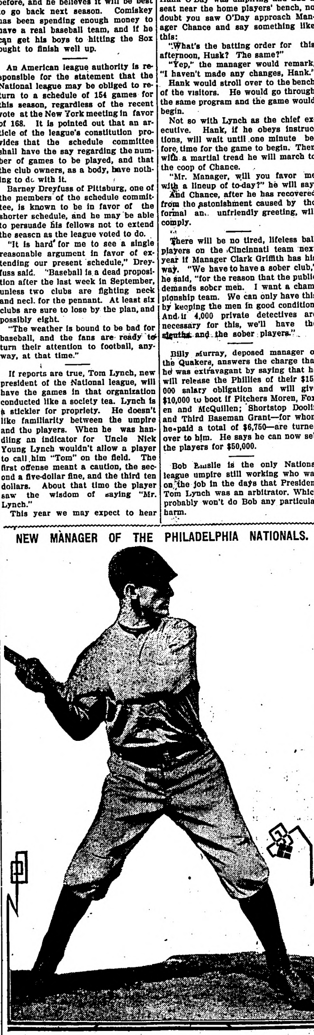
And Chance, after he has recovered from the astonishment caused by the formal and unfriendly greeting, will comply.

There will be no tired, lifeless ball players on the Cincinnati team next year if Manager Clark Griffith has his way. "We have to have a sober club," he said, "for the reason that the public demands sober men. I want a championship team. We can only have this by keeping the men in good condition. And if 4,000 private detectives are necessary for this, we'll have the sleuths and the sober players."

Billy Murray, deposed manager of the Quakers, answers the charge that he was extravagant by saying that he will release the Phillies of their $15,000 salary obligation and will give $10,000 to boot if Pitchers Moren, Foxen and McQuillen; Shortstop Doolin and Third Baseman Grant—for whom he paid a total of $6,750—are turned over to him. He says he can now sell the players for $50,000.

Bob Emslie is the only National league umpire still working who was on the job in the days that President Tom Lynch was an arbitrator. Which probably won't do Bob any particular harm.

NEW MANAGER OF THE PHILADELPHIA NATIONALS.



Charles Dooin, the star catcher of the Phillies, has been made manager of the team by President Fogel. Dooin's friends hope the managerial berth will not spoil his playing as it did that of Billy Sullivan who managed the sox last year.

WHY PEOPLE SUFFER.

Too often the kidneys are the cause and the sufferer is not aware of it. Sick kidneys bring backache and side pains, lameness and stiffness, dizziness, headaches, tired feeling, urinary troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills cure the cause. Mrs. N. E. Graves, Villisca, Iowa, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for years. The secretions were disordered, there were pains in my back and swellings of the ankles. Often I had smothering spells. I had to be helped about. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me five years ago and I have been well since. They saved my life."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Modest Doctor.

While on his vacation, a city doctor attended the Sunday morning service at a little country church. When the congregation was dismissed several of the members shook hands with him, and one, wishing to learn if he were a Methodist, inquired: "Are you a professor, brother?"

"Oh, no, indeed," answered the physician, modestly; "just an ordinary doctor."—Lippincott's.

Occasionally a girl discovers that the young man after her own heart isn't after it at all.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Give married women a fighting chance and they'll do the rest.

DAVIS' PAINKILLER
should be taken without delay when sore chest and tickling throat warn you that an annoying cold threatens. At all druggists in 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

Occasionally the human race is run over the course of true love.

160 ACRE
FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA
FREE

WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:
"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada will continue."

Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with its Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming."

Iowa contributed largely to the 70,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of

$170,000,000.00

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts, 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.

(Use address nearest you.) (3)

Bad Breath

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can willingly and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles."—Chas. H. Halpern, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Illinois, and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon FREE. 923

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 5–1910.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

Stops Neuralgia Pains

The shooting, tearing pains of neuralgia are caused by excitement of the nerves. Sciatica is also a nerve pain.

Sloan's Liniment, a soothing external application, stops neuralgia pains at once, quiets the nerves, relieves that feeling of numbness which is often a warning of paralysis, and by its tonic effect on the nervous and muscular tissues, gives permanent as well as immediate relief.

One Application Relieved the Pain.

Mr. J. C. LEE, of 1100 Ninth St., S. E., Washington, D. C., writes:— "I advised a lady who was a great sufferer from neuralgia to try Sloan's Liniment. After one application the pain left her and she has not been troubled with it since."

Sloan's Liniment

is the best remedy for Rheumatism, Stiff Joints and Sprains and all Pains.

At All Druggists. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

Sloan's Treatise on the Horse sent Free. Address

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, BOSTON, MASS.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT
KILLS PAIN

"California Now or Never!"

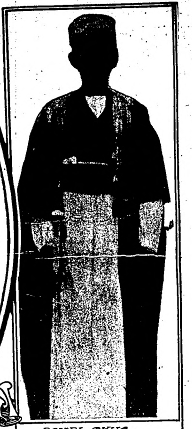
If ever you wished for a home in California send for free information about the greatest irrigation, colonizing and home-making enterprise ever undertaken. In addition to their great success in irrigating 400,000 acres in the Twin Falls Country, Idaho, the Kuhns are irrigating 250,000 acres in the Sacramento Valley. Send names of friends. Easy terms to settlers. We want you. Send 10c for 48-page book in colors. H. L. Hollister, Dept. K, 205 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

FREE We Will Send Upon Application to Every Farmer FREE
PROF. THOMAS SHAW'S Directions for Planting
Garden, Flower and Field Seeds in our Catalogue of Home Grown Seed
NORTHERN SEED CO., Seed Growers. 11th St., Valley City, N. D.

Four Boys Who Rule Five Hundred Millions

MANUEL, KING of PORTUGAL

Photographs by UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.



DAUDI CHUA. KABAKA of UGANDA

AHMED MIRZA THE SHAH of PERSIA

PU YI BOY EMPEROR of CHINA

FIRST among the four in importance is undoubtedly the baby emperor of China, little Pu Yi, who was born so lately as 1906. Only as may be surmised, the actual reins of state are not held by his tiny hands, but by those of his uncle, who is acting as regent till his majority. Even his power, though he represents in theory an absolute monarchy, is yet in practice, limited by several advising boards, composed of the grand council, the government council, the board of censors and many viceroys, who all have a voice in the settlement of affairs of state.

The three-year-old emperor who holds in his hands the lives and fortunes of over four hundred and fifty millions, is of course, yet in the nursery with his toys, but already a scheme of education upon broad western lines is being planned for him in order to fit him for his position on the throne. Progress is capable of doing strange things in China, and by the time he ascends to the throne, his country may be one for western nations to cope with in the field of industry, or of military supremacy in the east. Already China is making vast strides, and assimilating ideas in every branch of civilization, which cannot but threaten with the passage of years, to put her neighbor, Japan, in the shade. It is to be hoped that the emperor, when he does come to occupy that position, which has proved so often ill-fated to many of his ancestors of the Ja Ching or "Great Pure" dynasty, of which he is the sixteenth in the canonized series; may exert all the influence at his command in the interests of peace.

Meanwhile, he is learning of the wonders of the west, in the shape of toy trains and other mechanical toys sent him by other juvenile royalties, and being taught that to rule well one must learn first of all, to be obedient to the rules which guide man through life.

Next comes Ahmed Mirza, the boy king of Persia, which holds within its 635,000 square miles, a scattered population of nine millions. He too, is under the care of a regent, Assad Vi Mulk, who is head of the powerful Kajar tribe, of which the shah's mother was a princess; and to whose influence he owes his position, since he is not the eldest son of the deposed Ali Mirza. He is only 13 years old, and another three years will have to pass before he is crowned.

It is no wonder that with the example before him of his father, who was removed from the throne after a brief and troubled reign of two years, that he wept bitterly when the news of his succession was brought to him in the Russian legation, for he was extremely fond of his father, and could not understand why he was not allowed to go to him. It was only after his vizier had scolded him harshly that he dried his tears and prepared to accept the honor which had been done him. Now he is practically a prisoner in his own palace, in the enervating atmosphere of the women's apartments, where his education is being carried on in a way contrary to the wishes of the national reform party, who brought about his sudden change from the position of a spoiled child to that of a king. His native tutors endeavor to teach him Persian, Arabic, history and writing, but his attention is allowed to be distracted by the interruptions of the many chamberlains and courtiers who are permitted to be present. His only companions are a few young slaves and there is nothing being done to prepare him for the lofty duties which he must fulfill at an early date.

The throne and the many attendant ceremonies appealed to him merely as parts of a new game and he soon tired of the obsequious homage with which he was surrounded and to-day he is no more than an unhappy child.

A change, however, is promised by the reformers, who are only awaiting the voting of funds to put their intentions in execution. He will be removed from the influence of the woman's apartments foreign tutors will instruct him in their language; the best of the Persian scholars will be chosen to inculcate in him the precepts which are thought best, with oriental languages and history; and he will be given companions of more suitable birth chosen from the noble families of his kingdom. All these advantages will be used to transform him into a ruler such as Persia ought to have to fitly revive the glories of Alexander and Darius.

Manuel, king of Portugal, is just on the border line of manhood and is of such boyish appearance that he may well be included among boy kings. He celebrated his twentieth birthday last month and is consequently the youngest monarch in Europe. It will not be forgotten that he was the second son of King Carlos and that he was suddenly called to the throne by the tragic assassination of his father and his elder brother, Luiz. Although his own inclinations guide him toward an artist's life, he was always possessed of a high ideal of the duties imposed upon him by his royal birth and a reserve of will power to carry out his ideals at all costs.

The area over which he rules, including the islands of Azores, covers a total of 35,490 square miles and his people number five and a half millions. Though Manuel ascended the throne at a time when there was nothing but the murmur of anarchy in his ears and his thoughts were assailed by sad recollections, he has come through the events which succeeded his accession with an equanimity and diplomatic grasp of the situation which does infinite credit to him and his training.

As it is the duty of a king to his people to marry, he has lately been going a-wooing in England, but there has been a distinct hesitancy on the part of his princesses to share his fortunes, which may or may not, as time will show, be checkered with misfortune, if not with tragedy, and he left England with nothing decided. But sooner or later he must make up his mind, and meanwhile matchmaking Europe is discreetly but earnestly making plans for his future.

His Highness Daudi Chua, Kabaka or King of Uganda, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa, is a minor under a regency of three native chiefs, who are assisted in the government by a native assembly or Lukiko. Besides that there is a British commissioner, as Uganda is a protectorate of Great Britain, who helps to keep things in order with the aid of a battalion of the King's African Rifles and about a thousand armed constabulary.

The Kabaka, however, is allowed perfect freedom, for the people of Uganda are unique among the native races of Africa. They are an amiable, polite and intelligent race, as is shown by the fact that out of a population of three and a half millions one million are Christians while 200,000 of them can read and write.

The dynasty of Uganda, of which Daudi Chua is the thirty-seventh representative, in its earlier origin was a king to the inhabitants of Egypt, though as intermarriage took place with the native race who have always inhabited the kingdom the present representative is in appearance negro with a slightly paler skin than the average and large, clear eyes. That there is good ground for the belief in Egyptian origin is proved by the fact that a certain portion of his people in feature (though with curly hair) and in their traditions have much in common with the Egyptians. The Kabaka lives in Mengo, a straggling city of about 80,000 inhabitants, built like Rome on seven hills, most of them of great steepness, round which are marshy tracts. The quarter inhabited by the king and his court and the people of higher degree is clean and picturesque, surrounded by trees and gardens, while a cathedral opened a few years ago helps to give it the appearance of a capital city, which it will probably resemble more and more as the improvements now in progress are carried out.

The protectorate administration is carried on at Entebbe, which is renowned for its beauty, surrounded by lofty incense trees, which have always a load of chattery parrots and monkeys in search of the plums they bear at certain seasons of the year.

The boy Kabaka, though his kingdom is the smallest of the four, is probably most to be envied, for his position is free from the many cares which will assuredly beset the emperor of China and the shah of Persia in later years.

SHRINKS FROM POMP

When Princess Victoria of England, daughter of Queen Alexandra, was a girl of 14 it became her duty one day to act as hostess at a juvenile entertainment at Marlborough house. In the middle of it she suddenly disappeared. A messenger was dispatched to Buckingham palace to see if the truant had run away to "grandma," but she wasn't there. At last a letter from her to the princess of Wales was discovered in the schoolroom, begging "mother" not to be angry; she did "hate parties" so, and she had gone to stay with the duchess of Teck till this one was over.

Not liking parties has been a charactertistic of this princess ever since, though, having a strong sense of duty, which developed as she grew older, she doesn't run away from them any more, says the Strand. But those who know her know that if she could choose her life it would be one far from court—a life free from demands of etiquette and spent among the friends she loves. Whenever she can escape from the formalities that surround her she does so. Stories are told of her planning visits incognito with her sisters or other members of the court to some tearoom or shop, where for a little while she can do just as other women do. She likes to drop little anonymous surprises on the children she encounters, as once when she was shopping in Penrith and saw three small boys looking longingly at the toys in a window. The priscess immediately took the part of Santa Claus and for once in their lives those small and ragged boys had all the toys they wanted.

Princess Victoria has a good deal of tact, says the Gentlewoman, and while she cares little about court life, her influence has brought about several needed changes there. The queen's ladies in waiting have special reason to be grateful to her. Up to the time of King Edward's accession the breakfast hour for the ladies in waiting was seven o'clock in the summer and 7:30 in the winter. They didn't like it, of course, but in so great a household changes are not easily made. Princess Victoria, however, got the hour changed to eight o'clock for all the year round. It was she, too, who secured a much more comfortable breakfast room for them than the one at their desposal during Queen Victoria's reign.

True to her nature, she has always refused to have a lady in waiting. When she goes to any public function she is accompanied by one of the queen's, as etiquette for bids her appearing alone. She has, by the way, several faithful attendants who always like going about with her when they can. They are her nephews and nieces, with whom she has been a great favorite ever since they were little things.

The SULTAN of OMAN

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE CITY OF MUSCAT, CAPITAL OF OMAN

Photographs by UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

SULTAN of OMAN AND HIS SON AND HEIR

YOU have heard of the sultan of Turkey, the sultans of Morocco and Zanzibar, but but who on earth is the sultan of Oman? If you imagine that his kingdom is bounded on the south by the footlights, on the east and west by the wings, and on the north by the backcloth of a Broadway stage you are wrong. He has nothing at all to do with musical comedy. On the contrary, he is a very much alive personage who holds sway over the independent state of Oman, which is set like another Gibraltar at the entrance to the Persian gulf.

Though nominally Seyyid Feysal bin Turki, which is the name of the sultan, is a free agent in the management of the affairs of his kingdom, yet the Indian government, in the person of a British consul and political agent, keeps in very close touch with him, and for all practical purposes Oman is a protectorate of India. There is a reason for this. Oman is a convenient basis for any operations which may be necessary to check the agressive advances of any other power in the Persian belt, and as by its position it dominates the entrance to the Persian gulf, by its port Muscat, which is the only share of British influence between Aden, the island of Socotra, and India, it is of great value in the eyes of the British government, who are presently eyeing askance the German commercial invasion of Persia with the Bagdad railway, as a menace to the safety of India.

The seat of government is Muscat, a picturesque rock-bound port, containing some 25,000 inhabitants, and carrying on a trade in the export of fruit, fish, mother o' pearl and the import of Indian goods including arms and ammunition in large quantities. The sultan, though he nominally exercised an absolute sway over a strip of a thousand miles of coast line, extending along the Persian gulf as far as Katar and containing 80,000 square miles, yet in reality, owing to the mountainous nature of the country, his power is confined to the immediate neighborhood of Muscat.

Oman was once a Portuguese possession but finally became an independent state through the influence of an ancestor of the present sultan in 1741 and added to the domains, taking in territory as far south as Zanzibar. It gradually lost its conquests and Zanzibar is now a separate sultanate under British protection.

There is no danger of the line of sultans or inmans, as they are called, dying out as there is a large royal family, the eldest of whom is Seyyid Taimur bin Feysel. The sultan is extremely proud of his family of eight youngsters, and is not at all averse to facing the camera in their company. He is a man who though he may not have heard of the originator of it, yet firmly believes in the Roosevelt creed of bidding the stork welcome, and the stork on its Omanese equivalent is a frequent royal guest.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

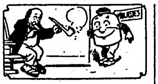
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1910. NO. 45.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Molasses Makes Tobacco Burn Tongue



WASHINGTON.—"Say, I'll have to drop this brand of smoking. It nearly burns the tongue off me. What's the matter with it?" said the smoker to a Washington tobacconist.

"It's been made up with a little bit too much molasses," said the tobacconist. "The tobacco intended for winter sale always has a little more molasses in it than summer tobacco.

"They've several reasons for adding molasses to tobacco," he continued, coming back to the end of the counter. "In the first place, if the leaf wasn't made just the least bit sticky it would be apt to crumble to a very fine powder that would choke up your pipe, especially in winter, when tobacco gets extremely dry.

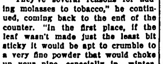
"So when they add a little molasses to the cut leaf they make a thin, sticky film over it. This keeps the tobacco in good shape and the molasses locks the nicotine in the body if the leaf as well.

"Nicotine, you know, will evaporate and be lost if the tobacco is exposed long enough. Then when the nicotine is gone you might as well smoke the cabbage leaf the comic papers talk about so much about for all the satisfaction you get.

"Plug tobacco is simply leaf glued together with molasses and then pressed into a block. If you'll take a plug of smoking and put it in a damp place outside somewhere and then come back after a week or two to look at it you'll see a pile of square cut leaves, perhaps five or six inches high. This is because the tobacco will have lost the molasses glue, not from the molasses having been washed off the leaf, but from its having fermented into vinegar.

"The film of molasses keeps the leaf moist and pliable. This is because of the sugar crystals in it. If you've ever noticed salt in wet weather you'll often have seen how it gathered the wet. The sugar crystals act exactly like the crystals of salt, but to a less degree."

How Nick Longworth Earned a Dollar



REPRESENTATIVE LONGWORTH might have been expected to tell this story some years ago when he was "Nickler" than he is to-day; but its truth is vouched for by a Washington newspaper that never—well, hardly ever tells a lie. Thus it is:

Tucked away among the valuable trophies of Representative Nicholas Longworth is a dollar bill.

"The first and only dollar I ever earned," says Mr. Longworth, "always excepting the $7,500 per annum that Uncle Sam is good enough to pay me for the honor of representing, in part, the city of Cincinnati in the house of representatives.

"It happened in a political campaign several years ago. I had been on the stump around the state of Ohio. One night I made a speech in a little town which supported a small but comfortable hotel. I was well known in the town, but as I had to make an early start, I preferred the hotel rather than trouble my friends with an early breakfast.

"I was sitting in the parlor about midnight, talking over old times with the proprietor. Just as I was ready to retire an automobile stopped in front, and a couple of men much the worse for wear came in. They bought wine freely. One of them demanded that the piano be played.

"Champagne buyers are rare birds at that hotel, and the proprietor did not want to lose his good customers. He turned to me. 'Nick,' he said, 'just beat the box a few minutes. They'll never know who you are.' I played ragtime, grand opera and love songs while the men bought more wine. As they were about to go one of them came over to me with his wallet in his hand.

"'Here, profes,' he said, 'you're the goods as a piano player. Buy a little present for yourself.'

"He handed me a dollar bill. I have it framed at home as a certificate of my ability as a workingman."

It is well known that Nicholas can "beat the box" in pretty creditable shape.

Live Man Has a Funeral "Cortyzha"

THERE is a man in Washington who at some stage of his drinking becomes very melancholy. The joys of life go hence then. He shuns his companions, be they never so boon. His thoughts—his black thoughts—suffice. He does odd things. One night he had been at a club with a number of friends. Along about 'steenth drink time he rose, donned his overcoat and left. His friends, knowing his moods, did not seek to detain him. He went over on Pennsylvania avenue.

"Keb, sir? Carriage?" asked on of the many who pilot seagoing hacks over the pavement.

"Yes, I want a keb, sir, a carriage," said the bibulous one, with indignation in his tone, though there was no occasion for it. "I want three kebs. Let 'em prophesy about me."

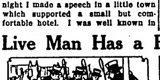
The cabman scampered his horse down the avenue till he found two of his like. All three trotted their horses back to where the generous one was waiting. The generous one eyed the equipages sadly as they drew up to the curb. The first hackman descended and opened the door of his vehicle.

"Where are your friends, sir?" he politely inquired.

"Friends?" the customer repeated. "I have no friends, I'm going to use all these wagons myself. This is a cortyzha my boy, a cortyzha. Proceed."

And in single file the three cabs proceeded to the Blank apartment house. The generous one paid the bill of all three cabmen. He was almost happy to think that he had pulled off something while alive that, according to his friends, he would not get when he was dead, if he kept his present pace.

Burkett Bill Would Abolish Something



SENATOR BURKETT of Nebraska has a bill pending in the senate judiciary committee to prohibit the use of telegraph lines for interstate transmission of news to be used for gambling purposes—reports of races, especially.

There was a hearing on the measure recently and sentiment in its favor was developed.

"Everybody's in favor of the bill," said Burkett. "They all conceded it's a good bill and ought to be passed."

"When do you expect to get it out of committee?"

"Can't tell anything about it."

"But aren't they for it?"

"Every one of 'em."

"Why don't they report it then?"

"Well, you see," the senator explained, "they say it's all right and ought to pass, but they're afraid it's not constitutional. They're for the bill, but against its enactment on constitutional grounds."

"Had you thought of abolishing the constitution as a means of getting rid of the difficulty?"

Burkett looked savagely down the corridor towards the rooms which the committee of constitutional sharps meet in.

"I have thought mighty seriously that it would be a good thing to abolish the constitutional lawyers," he said.

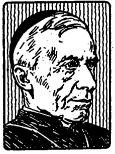
Senator Burton gets many an odd appeal for information. Here's one:

"Dear Congressman: Will you kindly send me some literature on the central bank scheme. How can a C. B. be kept from political caprice? Is the United States too vast for a C. B.? If not, how can the supporter of such a view be answered?"

The answer which H. B. Fuller, Mr. Burton's secretary sent, was filled with all the courtesy that our language knows.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

GIBBONS HITS HIGH PRICES

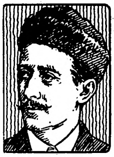


The high cost of living, which seems to be getting higher right along without any apparent prospect of relief, has attracted the attention of one man who is powerful enough to do something toward checking it. The man is Cardinal Gibbons, head of the Catholic church in the United States. One word from the cardinal and millions of his people would stop eating meat. The effect of such a thing on the meat trust can well be imagined. It is hardly probable that Cardinal Gibbons will take such action, but he says he is ready to do anything in his power to make the necessaries of life cheaper for the people.

"Something must be wrong with economic conditions in the country," he said, "when wages and salaries remain the same, when at the same time food supplies continue to increase in price. I feel," continued the cardinal, "that something ought to be done to correct this evil. I myself have felt the weight of the high prices of the necessaries of life. For a long time I have noticed that prices of supplies of all kinds seemed to be getting higher, but while I have thought over the matter I do not know just what causes the advance in prices.

"Of one thing I am certain, prices of necessaries have not kept pace with wages, that is, wages have not increased in proportion to the increased cost of living."

PAULHAN A DARING AVIATOR

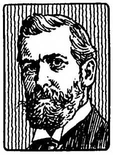


Louis Paulhan, the daring French aviator, has been running a sort of aerial 'bus line out at Los Angeles, Cal. In addition to breaking some records and taking a 20-mile trip out over the Pacific ocean, Paulhan has been coolly carrying some distinguished passengers around among the clouds. Among these was William Randolph Hearst, publisher, and sometimes spoken of as a possible candidate for president. Mr. Hearst enjoyed the ride so thoroughly that he wrote an account of it for his own papers and it was published, every line of it.

This man Paulhan seems to have uncrowned our own Wright brothers as "kings of the air." From New York recently came the announcement that the Wrights have given up flying themselves and will henceforth devote their attention to building machines for some one else to soar among the clouds in. This seems like a sensible thing to do, so the Wrights, Orville and Wilbur, probably do not care how high Paulhan goes, what speed he attains or how many hours he stays in the air. It will only boost the airship game.

Mrs. Paulhan often accompanies her daring husband on his flights and a ride in the air is now as common to her as a spin through a city park is to the wife of a trust magnate. Paulhan uses a Farman biplane in his flights. He operates it as coolly as a mother rocking the cradle of her sixth baby and doesn't seem to know what the word fear means. Many predictions has been made that the airship is the coming vehicle of transportation. It will not be long, say some enthusiasts, before a Chicagoan and his wife will eat luncheon at home, then start out in their airship and have six o'clock dinner with a friend in St. Louis, returning to Chicago by midnight. It may be a long time before such a thing is possible, but to watch Paulhan skim through the air it doesn't seem unreasonable.

HUGHES TO QUIT POLITICS



Gov. Hughes of New York is going to get out of politics. He will not be a candidate for office again. This is good news to a certain class of people, especially the race track ring of New York. Racing flourished in New York when Hughes took hold as governor. The man who brought the insurance companies, with their billions of dollars, to terms and made them be good, didn't jump at the racing barons right away. He bided his time and then went after them right. As a result the betting end of the business, which has become the real issue, was practically killed. The oral betting system, through a decision of court, is still in existence, but through it the "piker" is not much in evidence. The clerk who earns only a few dollars a week and had been wont to lose it on the races instead of devoting it to his family, has little or no chance to throw away his money at the race tracks. True, there are pool rooms where he can bet, but most men like to see the horses run for their money and do not play in the pool rooms.

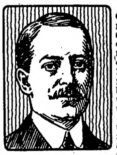
Gov. Hughes attended the meeting of governors in New York and took a prominent part in the affairs of the conference. Asked if it were true that he intended to retire to private life at the expiration of his present term, Gov. Hughes said:

"That statement is absolutely correct. I shall resume the practice of law when I leave the executive office."

"What about the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1912?"

"I can say in reply to that question only that I intend to resume the practice of law when I retire as governor." To a friend Gov. Hughes is quoted as having said he supported the Taft administration, when the subject of the presidency was mentioned to him.

GRAVES THE NEW FORESTER



When President Taft appointed Henry S. Graves forester of the United States to take the place of Gifford Pinchot there were many expressions of surprise in Washington. It was not because there was any belief that Mr. Graves will not fill the bill, or of any doubt that he is not entirely competent, but because Graves is one of Pinchot's henchmen. To fire Pinchot and then put Graves, a man who was made by Pinchot, in his place was rather unexpected of the president, to say the least. It must have been gratifying to Pinchot.

Mr. Graves gives up the position of head of the Yale forestry school to work for the government. He was a Pinchot protege and entertains substantially the same views and advocates the same policies as his predecessor in office.

However it is not expected that he will be quick to enter into a controversy with a cabinet officer. He is not as wealthy as Pinchot by any means and has to work for a living, while Mr. Pinchot had lots of money and didn't need the salary Uncle Sam paid him each month.

After a course of graduate study at Harvard Mr. Graves joined Mr. Pinchot at Biltmore, N. C., where upon the Vanderbilt estate the first application of scientific forestry to American conditions was made. When Mr. Pinchot became forester of the department of agriculture in July, 1898, Mr. Graves became his first assistant.

In 1900, when the Yale forest school was founded, he left his position as assistant chief to become the head of the school.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Some Wants of a Big Hotel's Guests

ME FOR A NEW INN

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Advocating a federal law which would compel hotels to furnish nothing less than nine-foot blankets, a son of Anak at the Statler hotel told his troubles to the management in a letter from which this is an extract:

"I stand six feet, four inches in my stocking feet and I am 5 feet, 6½ inches from my chin to the floor. Now I have failed to find in this hotel a blanket which is over six feet, six inches long. Unless I have the blanket tucked in around my neck I catch cold; and if I do tuck these short blankets around my neck, why, then I have to pull them up from the bottom and my feet get cold.

"I believe there is a law in Texas which compels hotel proprietors to furnish nine-foot blankets. I could do with a blanket seven feet, ten inches long. However, I'd like to see a federal law passed fixing the nine-foot limit"

The complaint was found in the complaint and suggestion box of the hotel and afforded quite a bit of amusement to Mr. Statler and his manager, Mr. Larabee. Some weeks ago when the plan of asking guests to make suggestions and criticisms was inaugurated it was expected that the guests would take kindly to the idea, but nobody expected so many suggestions would come in.

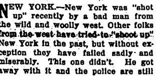
Bouquets and brickbats, little and big suggestions, peculiar requests—all sorts of missives have been dropped in the box. One man wrote:

"Do not change a thing. Your hotel is the best anywhere for the money, and there are few better at any price."

"Would it not be a good idea," wrote another, presumably a woman, "to have, either free or at a nominal cost, rubber caps that may be put on the head when getting under the shower?" This suggestion probably will be adopted.

"I would like a hook put at the head of my bed," wrote an idiosyncrous marvel, "to hang my vest on, so that when I wake up in the morning I could reach out and get my watch to see what time it is."

"Shoots Up" New York in Western Way



NEW YORK.—New York was "shot up" recently by a bad man from the wild and woolly west. Other folks from the west have tried to "shoot up" New York in the past, but without exception they have failed sadly and miserably. This one didn't. He got away with it and the police are still looking for him.

It happened in an up-town hotel. A tall and angular stranger with flaunting black locks and an untamed look in his eye—the kind of individual that the gold brick salesman regards as "fresh meat"—drifted into the lobby and let his gaze fall witheringly on a group of soft and well-fed drummers who lolled in the easy chairs.

"Huh," he snorted, contemptuously, "a bunch of stall-fed steers."

"I beg your pardon," said a neatly dressed youth. "Did you speak?"

The stranger took in the neat looking young man with one piercing glance. His wild eye traveled from the top of that young man's head to the toes of his shoes and there it stopped.

"I did," he vouchsafed. "I spoke, and now I'm going to shoot."

Thereupon he drew a large blue pistol from his hip pocket.

"You infernal yap," he inquired, "where did you get those shoes. Dance, you tenderfoot, dance!"

It is, perhaps, needless to add that the neat young man danced. He danced and he jigged! alas, he did a buck and wing, not to speak of a fandango and a Cubanola glide.

"Faster," said the stranger, firing a shot at the ceiling. "Faster, you dude, faster!"

The young man tried to dance faster and the stranger accelerated the tersichorean movement by firing four more shots at the electric lights. Then the neat young man stopped from sheer exhaustion.

One bullet remained in the bad man's gun, and he fired that into the neat young man's ankle. Then he strolled out into the street, and disappeared.

Spook, in Hurry, Loses False Teeth

CHICAGO.—"Let me talk a minute. I have an important engagement on another planet, and must hasten," demanded in sepulchral tones the spirit of Detective Philip Fitzsimmons' departed grandfather at a spiritualistic seance at 3156 Indiana avenue a few nights ago.

Perhaps Fitzsimmons' departed grandfather was unaware that since his departure the grandson had joined the Chicago police force. At all events, neither the "spirit" nor the "sitters" were prepared for what ensued.

Fitzsimmons, groping his way in the darkened room to the cabinet, seized a hand outstretched from it and dragged the spirit forth, struggling violently and emitting shrieks in a feminine voice, strangely in contrast with that which had announced the important engagement on another planet, until the spirit's set of false teeth fell to the floor.

Simultaneously, five other detectives had turned on the lights and the illumination revealed a woman of muscular build struggling with Fitzsimmons, four other women vainly seeking egress at a door guarded by a detective, and other men and women, one of the former more than 70 years old, cowering in their chairs.

Mrs. C. B. Green's materialization of those in the beyond had been eminently successful from the standpoint of the detectives, resulting in the arrest of five persons besides Mrs. Green, who is 50 years old, and who had impersonated the detective's grandfather.

Eats Two Dozen Eggs to Win a Wager

ST. LOUIS.—With eggs 40 cents a dozen, Fred Parker ate two dozen fried and asked for more.

Fred Parker is not the J. Pierpont Morgan of St. Louis, as might be thought from his costly epicurean feat. He is not even the owner of a paltry million, and while he does not have to walk or hang on street car straps in his travels about the city, his riding is done, not in an automobile tonneau, but on the seat of an express wagon.

He was "turning in" at the headquarters of his employers, at 4971 Delmar boulevard, when he heard the other drivers discussing the increase in the price of food.

"I carried a crate of eggs on my wagon to-day," said one of the men, "and if anything had happened to them it would have been me to the woods. My next month's envelope wouldn't have paid for them."

"What's that?" demanded Fred Parker, breaking into the conversation. "Why, I eat a dozen eggs before breakfast every morning, just to get my appetite up. I could eat two dozen in ten minutes now."

"We've got ten dollars that says you can't," said one of the men. "You're on," said Parker, and it was then agreed that he should have a loaf of bread, all the coffee he wanted, and 15 minutes to "clean up" the repast.

The first five minutes showed the other drivers that they were losers. At 7:43, two minutes before his time was up, Parker had consumed the eggs, the loaf of bread and a bottle of catsup, and had drunk two quarts of coffee.

"Now," he remarked, as he pocketed the ten dollars, "I'm going out and get dinner."

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. . . MINN

STEAMSHIP TIPPING.

As a ship nears land after a trip across the Atlantic inexperienced travelers are always in a ferment in regard to the proper tips to give their various stewards. Of course, one may give what one chooses, and, no matter how small, the amount will never be questioned by the recipient, though his looks may mean much. I may say, however, that it is customary to give the table steward about three dollars. Your bedroom steward should receive not less than two dollars, the steward that polishes your boots of a morning one dollar, and your bath steward two dollars. In the very large boats in which there are lifts that run between the E and A decks, saving you the climb of five flights of stairs, should your cabin happen on E deck, it is now customary to give a "pourboire" to the boys who operate the cars. It is advisable, by the way, to engage a position for your deck chair and indicate the time at which you desire to take your morning tub at the time when you engage your passage.

Twelve or fifteen years ago the American automobile was hardly known, and those desirous of purchasing high-grade machines had to buy them abroad and import them. To-day the best autos in use are of American make, the capital invested in automobile manufacturing aggregates hundreds of millions of dollars and the business is increasing rapidly. The Wrights, like Zeppelin, have capitalized their success, and find any amount of American money ready for investment in their own and other schemes of aviation. A company in which the brothers are interested has a capital of $1,000,000, and doubtless others of equal or larger amount will be started. There are still many problems to solve in connection with aerial navigation. But the business assuredly has become commercially possible.

With food products of all kinds extremely high in price, the people of Long Beach, L. I., may account themselves fortunate in experiencing a visitation of whiting, also known as "frost fish," which were cast upon the beach recently in such numbers that the coast for five miles was a solid ridge of fish. Residents along the beach gathered as much as they could eat immediately and pack away for future use, and then hauled tons of the fish to their gardens and farms to enrich the soil. The whiting is one of the best food fishes of the winter season, and the surfeit at Long Beach would have made many a lover of fish happy if it could have been shared without expense that would have made the distribution profitable.

China would be better off if its emperor could disabuse his mind of the foolish notion that he represents God on earth, and is of too fine a substance bodily and otherwise to be more than looked at, if even that, by the common people, says Brooklyn Citizen. For, after finding from his own observation how little real difference, except in opportunity, there is between the common people and the uncommon exceptions, he might be convinced that his own position would be safer with a community that had something to do with its own ordering, and thus be willing to enlarge the liberties of the new provincial assemblies elected recently.

The landing at Vancouver, B. C., of a consignment of 116 barrels of eggs from China reveals the alertness of the Chinese for commercial opportunities. Eggs have ruled at high prices throughout the year, and if it is possible to get them from China without inordinate loss through decay in shipment, there may be a movement from the far east that will put out of business those who buy up the product so freely that eggs remain firm and high even at the season when the hens are the busiest.

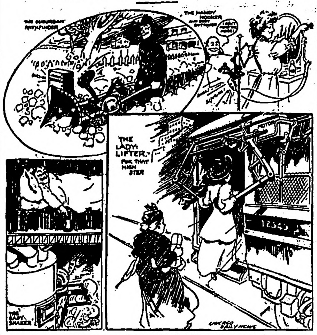
Football remedial legislation is talked of in several states. The fatality attending the game this season has shocked and alarmed college authorities and families of players. Either a way must be found to play the game with more security to life and limb or aroused public sentiment will demand its abolition. Established as it is in the national sports, it is hardly worth the sacrifice of human life for its continuance.

"The average Nicaraguan soldier shoots in the air," laughs a New Orleans writer. In a few years all nations will be doing that—if flying machine development continues.

A wanderer calling himself the king of tramps has arrived in this country. The American police are no respecters of kings.

If Zelaya is a real man of affairs he will find some way to utilize the advertising he has been getting lately.

SUGGESTED BY THE ELECTRICAL SHOW.



THE SUBURBAN PATHFINDER
THE HANDY SPOONER'S ELECTRIC ...
THE LADY LIFTER FOR THAT HIGH STEP
THE EASY SHAKER
CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

A Few Inventions Which Will Doubtless Come Ere Long.

TAFT PUTS STOP TO RUMORS

WILL NOT ATTACK CORPORATIONS INDISCRIMINATELY.

After Talk with James J. Hill President Puts Quietus on Sensational Market Stories.

Washington.—Concerning his reported crusade against corporations President Taft Tuesday made public the following statement:

"No statement was issued, either from the attorney general's office or the White House, indicating that the purpose of the administration with reference to prosecutions under the anti-trust law is other than as set forth in the message of the president of January 7, 1910.

"Sensational statements as if there were to be a new departure and an indiscriminate prosecution of important industries have no foundation.

"The purpose of the administration is exactly as already stated in the president's message."

The statement was issued after the president had talked with James J. Hill, railway magnate, and had received information that prices were crumbling in New York under the various reports published.

New York.—Reports of the government's anti-trust program and the belief that the government would win the decisions expected in the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases before the supreme court caused a flood of liquidating sales which broke prices severely in all directions and caused great disorder in trading.

"SOCIETY OF THE BANANA"

Existence of Organization Is Developed at Trial of Ohio "Black Hand" Prisoners.

Toledo.—That there was an organization known as the Society of Banana, with rules and regulations prescribing horrible penalties for disobedience of its mandates was shown in the federal court during the "Black Hand" trial.

Most of the session was taken up with the reading of documentary evidence to the jury.

Included in the mass of documents were "Black Hand" letters to prospective victims, receipts for money extorted, letters, telegrams and other communications between the men who are now on trial.

Many of the letters demand various sums, ranging from $500 to $10,000, under penalty of death if the demand is not complied with.

Among the important documents admitted is a book found in Joe Lima's safe, Marion, in which are the rules and regulations of the "Society of the Banana," together with a list of the members for central Ohio. This list includes the names of all the defendants and a number of others.

PRIMARY BILL IS PASSED

Dailey Measure, with Blanket Ballot Plan, Goes Through Senate by Vote of 28 to 13.

Springfield, Ill.—By a vote of 28 to 13, the state senate Tuesday passed the Dailey primary bill with the Gibson blanket ballot amendment.

In the debate preceding the passage of the Dailey bill the Gibson amendment, providing for the blanket ballot, was the chief topic.

The passage of the measure was marked by considerable discussion and there was much explaining of votes.

Twenty-six votes were needed to pass the bill in the senate. On the first roll call and before the absentees were called 26 votes were recorded in the "yea" column.

Taft Sends $50 for Dixie School.

Atlanta, Ga.—One of the latest donors to the fund being raised for the "development of the industrial department" of Morris Brown college, a negro institution here, is President Taft, who sent his check for $50 to the president of the institution.

Texas to See Paulhan.

El Paso, Tex.—Arrangements have been completed for a three-days' aviation meeting here in February. Louis Paulhan will be the principal attraction

INDICT 11 FOR CONSPIRACY

Chicago Officials and Others Are Charged with Defrauding City Out of $254,000.

Chicago.—Paul Redieske, former deputy commissioner of public works; Michael McGovern, contractor; Otto Neihof, his secretary; Richard Burke and John McNichols, inspectors for the city, were indicted by the grand jury on charges of conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses and three other offenses in connection with the construction of the Lawrence avenue sewer.

In addition to these the following were also indicted: Ralp Bonnell, engineer, who O. K.'d the work on the sewer; Joseph Maher, city sewer inspector; J. C. Parks, assistant city engineer; Max Languth, superintendent for McGovern, and Robert Green, foreman for McGovern.

The men are charged in the true bill with having obtained $254,000 from the city through the conspiracy. There are four counts in the indictment.

The bond of McGovern and Redieske was fixed at $20,000 each, and those of the other indicted men at $5,000 each. They are specifically accused of conspiring to defraud the city by laying but one-sixth of the concrete and brick work called for in the contract for the construction of the sewer.

The indictment was the sequel of weeks of investigation by State's Attorney Wayman and his aids and was voted after several stormy scenes in the grand jury room.

NAVY BOYCOTTS BIG TRUST

Department Purchases Its Plug Tobacco from an Independent Virginia Concern.

Washington.—The navy department emphasized the fight of the government against the tobacco trust by making its purchase of plug tobacco from the Booker Company of Lynchburg, Va., a concern not affiliated with the tobacco trust. The contract made by the navy department with the independent concern was for 30,000 pounds at 35½ cents per pound.

It was stated that, even if the trust, in order to make the point, had put in bids less than 35½ cents per pound, the government would not have dealt with it.

MUST SETTLE FOR HER FURS

Court Rules Divorced Wife of Howard Gould Must Pay Bill for $3,165.

New York.—Katherine Clemmons Gould will have to pay $3,165 for the furs and millinery she purchased from one firm, although she claimed the purchases were made before the separation and that Gould should pay the bill. A supreme court jury found a verdict against Mrs. Gould for the entire amount claimed, with interest. Mrs. Gould receives $36,000 alimony a year from Howard Gould.

Twentieth Century Is Wrecked.

Utica, N. Y.—The engine of the New York Central Twentieth Century limited, the 18-hour train from Chicago to New York, was overturned a quarter of a mile west of St. Johnsville Tuesday. It slid 300 feet before it stopped. Under the engine pits Fireman Handville of Syracuse was crushed beyond recognition. The engineer, John Scanlon of Fort Hunter, attempted to leap when the engine left the rails, but was caught between the engine tender and cut and crushed in a terrible manner.

Most of the passengers were thrown from their berths and some were slightly injured.

Subway Employes Get Increase.

New York.—On account of the increase in the cost of living Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough announced Friday an increase in wages for 6,000 subway and elevated railroad employes to take effect February 1.

Consular Surgeon Transferred.

Amoy, China.—A. D. Foster, surgeon of the Marine hospital here, who was appointed American vice-consul in this city last Ocotober, has been transferred to Hongkong.

BIG FLOOD BROKEN

SEINE CEASES TO RISE AND PARIS IS PROBABLY SAVED.

NEWS BRINGS GREAT RELIEF

Thousands Pour Out Prayers of Thanksgiving—Danger Not All Past—Food Fight on—Quarter of Paris Is Under Water.

Paris.—Paris is saved. The Seine ceased to rise at 2:30 Saturday morning. Its tributaries are slowly falling.

This bulletin, issued officially, spreading over the darkened city by word of mouth faster than ever went message by the click of telegraph key, brought relief at the end of a day of greater suffering, more desperate fighting than any since the inexorable river began to send its waters through the streets of the city.

Thousands have already gathered to pour forth thanksgiving for the word of hope. The danger is far from over, but the cry of "Will the end never come?" has been answered.

Practically all hope had gone when the Seine gained its last inch and then stood still. Rain began in driving downpour and great cakes of ice, liberated from above, swept down and choked the river at the city's bridges, spreading the flood over a quarter of the city.

Hourly danger still threatens the city. The water has begun to fall in all of the affluents of the Seine above Paris, but the passage through the city is clogged by bridges and an immense accumulation of drift, and the seething waters have spread over new areas. Choked underground rivers and sewers are bursting their confines and playing havoc with the street, swamping more cellars and threatening more foundations of buildings.

President Fallieres and Premier Briand drove in automobiles to the flooded suburbs where distress is greatest, speaking words of comfort to the homeless and encouraging the soldiers and others engaged in salvage and rescue work.

Nevertheless numerous pitiful instances are cited of women and children who had refused to leave their homes in the submerged districts, shrieking from their windows for bread.

It is difficult to present a mental picture of the geographical limits of the submerged area of Paris, but, roughly speaking, it is estimated that the surface inundated from the Seine, which must not be confounded with the overflow in the back streets from burst sewers and subterranean rivers, covers about nine square miles, or one-quarter of the city.

A commission of doctors was summoned Thursday to perfect plans to avert what they fear will be an epidemic of plague when the waters subside. The turbid streams in the torrential course have washed out graveyards.

The loss is estimated at $200,000,000. Hundreds of lives have been lost in the provinces; 100,000 people are homeless in Paris alone and already an epidemic of scarlet fever has appeared among the refugees at Ivry.

Countless dead cattle have been swept along in the current and the great sewerage systems are dammed. This dreadful burden has been borne into the great underground passages which underlie Paris, and with this situation the city will have a dread accounting to make.

All the military barracks and public school buildings have been thrown open to the refugees. There are now 100,000 homeless people within the city limits and the problem of sheltering and feeding them during the unusual conditions is one which has taxed the government to its limit. The public subscription has reached $200,000, $1,400 of which was contributed by the American chamber of commerce.

ZEIGLER MINE TO REOPEN

Colliery Which Has Been Closed Since Disastrous Explosion Changes Ownership for $8,000,000.

Duquoin, Ill. — Local coal operators have been notified that the famous Leiter coal property in Franklin county east of here has changed hands. An eastern corporation, it is said, has purchased the property which is composed of the famous Leiter mine, the town of Zeigler and about 10,000 acres of coal lands. The consideration is $8,000,000. The new company is to open the mine in the near future and put it in shape for operation. The mine at Zeigler has been sealed up since early in 1908 when 28 men were killed in an explosion. Eight of the bodies are still in the mine.

Will Sue Standard Oil.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Independent oil producers in session here say they will bring suits to recover $281,500,000 from the Standard Oil Company.

Enlarging Harriman Mansion.

Arden, N. Y.—A large force of carpenters and artisans has been put to work on the Harriman estate here and the construction of a new wing to the big mansion planned by the late magnate has been begun.

Frank A. Burrelle Dies at Sea.

New York.—A wireless dispatch brought the news that Frank A. Burrelle, pioneer in the press-clipping business, died at sea last Tuesday on the way from Costa Rica to New Orleans.

GLAVIS ASSAILS BALLINGER

DECLARES THE SECRETARY TRIED TO STOP PROBE.

Told to Get Men "Higher Up" and Then Ordered to Let Up, He Says.

Washington.—When the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry was resumed Friday all the members of the investigating committee, together with Mr. Pinchot and his dismissed assistants of the forest service, were promptly on hand. Secretary Ballinger was not present.

Attorney Brandeis, representing Glavis, presented to the committee a long list of papers and documents to be introduced in evidence, and a list of witnesses to be summoned.

The attorney said he also wanted to call attention to certain letters which showed the part Mr. Ballinger played as commissioner in directing the inquiry. His purpose in this, he said, was to indicate that President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham were mistaken when they reached the stated conclusion that Mr. Ballinger's participation in the matter had been "merely formal."

Glavis told of a visit to Washington in December, 1907, when he took up with officials of the land office the subject of the claims. He told Mr. Schwartz that people in Seattle were saying that there would be no further investigation of the claims in Alaska and that the patents would be granted.

After his interview with Mr. Schwartz Glavis was conducted to Ballinger's office and as a result of his visit to Washington and the story he told was immediately placed in charge of all the Alaska cases.

"What did you say to Commissioner Ballinger?"

"I told him I thought we could cancel all the Alaska claims; that a lot of well-known people had formed a pool and that the evidence would prove it."

"What did Mr. Ballinger say to you?"

"He said a number of the claimants were friends and former business associates of his and that there had been a lot of talk that they would get their patents.

"'Now, Glavis,' he said to me, 'when you get back to Seattle, I want you to let it be publicly known that you have started this investigation and that I want it to be thorough. No matter whom it hurts, you are to go right after them, whether they are friends of mine or not.'"

Glavis said he went back to work happy and satisfied that there was to be a thorough investigation and that he had worried unnecessarily about a scandal.

Glavis declared that December 13, 1907, he had his interview with Commissioner Ballinger. January 7, 1908, less than a month after he had been directed to make the investigation, a letter was addressed to him by Mr. Ballinger stating that the Cunningham claims had been "clear-listed" from the investigating division for patent. January 22, 1908, Glavis sent a telegram and letter protesting against the clear-listing of the claims and they were withdrawn and sent back to the investigating division.

B. & O. MAY HAVE A STRIKE

Trainmen and Conductors Threaten to Quit Because Company Refuses to Grant Their Demands.

New York. — The trainmen and conductors on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad threaten to go on strike. Their demands for increase in part have been refused, the officials of the road declaring that under no circumstances will they accede to the demands of the men.

There is, however, a slight hope that something will intervene to prevent a rupture between the company and the employes when the two big chiefs of the brotherhoods go to Baltimore to do all in their power to avert a strike.

SWOPES DIED FROM POISON

Attorney for Millionaire's Heirs Receives Telegram That Toxicologists Have Completed Analysis.

Kansas City, Mo. — Col. Thomas H. Swope, multi-millionaire, and Chrisman Swope, his nephew, died from strychnine poisoning. This information was contained in a telegram received from Chicago by John G. Paxton, a private attorney for the Swope heirs. Mr. Paxton will leave for Chicago to return immediately with the official report of the toxicologists, who for the past ten days have been making an anlysis of the vital organs of the two men. No arrests are expected until next week.

Cohen Back in Prison.

Philadelphia. — Ferdinand Cohen, the hotel waiter, who left this city with Roberta B de Janon, the young heiress, and was arrested in Chicago on a charge of abduction, was given a hearing and again committed to prison without bail to await trial on a charge of kidnaping.

Smallest Man Is Dying.

Putnam, Conn.—Reuben Steere, whom Barnum called "the smallest man in the world, is dying of pneumonia at his home near here. He is now 72 years old. Steere weighs 55 pounds and is 47 inches tall.

Women Gain Concession.

New York.—For the first time in the history of Columbia university women are to be admitted to the courses in law and medicine. They will be received at the summer session which opens in July.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

"CROPE THROUGH A CRACK"

Uncle Eph Had at Least One Idea of How His Hogs Might Have Got Away.

Uncle Ephraim had two hogs, which be kept in a pen at the rear end of his little lot. They were of the "razor-back" variety, and although they were fed bountifully with kitchen waste, it seemed impossible to put any fat on their attenuated frames. One morning when he went out to feed them they were not there. They had disappeared, leaving no clew to the manner in which they had made their escape.

"What's the matter, Uncle Eph?" inquired a neighbor, noticing the deep dejection with which the old man was looking down into the empty pen.

"My hawgs is done gone, sah," he answered.

"Stolen?"

"No, sah. I don't see no signs dat anybody tuck 'em."

"Did they climb out over the top?"

"No, dey couldn't 'a done dat."

"How do you think they got away?"

"Well, sah," said Uncle Ephraim, "my 'pinion is dat dem hawgs kind o' raised deirselves up on aidge an' crope through a crack." — Youth's Companion.

One on the Judge.

A newly qualified judge in one of the small towns of Tennessee was trying one of his first criminal cases. The accused was an old darky who was accused of robbing a hen-coop. He had been in court before on a similar charge and was then acquitted.

"Well, Tom," began the judge, "I see you're in trouble again."

"Yes, sah," replied the darky; "the last time, jedge, you was ma lawyer."

"Where is your lawyer this time?" asked the judge.

"I ain't got no lawyer this time," answered Tom. "I'm going to tell the truth."

HARD TO DROP
But Many Drop It.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee: "It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ails.

"At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and I gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble for I was very fond of it. At that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum!'

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more with insomnia.

"I, myself, have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit coffee that caused our aches and ails and take up Postum."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

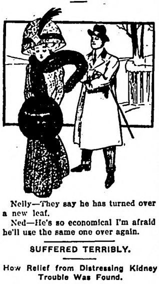
Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WORTH KNOWING.

Simple Remedy That Anyone Can Prepare at Home.

Most people are more or less subject to coughs and colds. A simple remedy that will break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. You can get these in any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle. The mixture is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing.

VERY LIKELY.



Nelly—They say he has turned over a new leaf.

Ned—He's so economical I'm afraid he'll use the same one over again.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY.

How Relief from Distressing Kidney Trouble Was Found.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wolf, 388 W. Morgan St., Tipton, Mo., says: "Inflammation of the bladder reached its climax last spring and I suffered terribly. My back ached and pained so I could hardly get around and the secretions were scanty, frequent of passage and painful. I was tired all the time and very nervous. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking a few boxes was cured and have been well ever since."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Rather Tall.

"That," said Senator Tillman of an opponent's argument, "is an amusing exaggeration."

He smiled.

"In fact," he continued, "it is as bad an exaggeration as the story about Ben Johnson's height. They said of Ben, you know, the candidate for sheriff, that when he made a stump speech, instead of getting a stump ready for him to mount, they would, because he was so tall, dig a hole for him to stand in."

CLIP THIS OUT

Renowned Doctor's Prescription for Rheumatism and Backache.

"One ounce Syrup Sarsaparilla compound; one ounce Toris compound; Add these to a half pint of good whiskey: Take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time; Shake the bottle before using each time." Any druggist has these ingredients in stock or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. This was published previously and hundreds here have been cured by it. Good results show after the first few doses. This also acts as a system builder, eventually restoring strength and vitality.

Not the Proper Atmosphere.

Overheard outside St. Ann's church yesterday:

First City Man—Are you going in to hear the archdeacon to-day?

Second City Man—No, I think not. It puts me in the wrong frame of mind for business for the rest of the day.—Manchester Guardian.

Dr. A. A. Ames, four times Mayor of Minneapolis, the well known and very successful physician, who has practiced his profession for the past forty years in Minneapolis, is still actively engaged in practice and may be seen at his offices, 54 So. 3d St., opposite Post-office, daily. All patients receive personal care and attention of Dr. Ames.

Counter Irritants.

Fuddy—Well, I suppose men and women both have their troubles.

Duddy—Yes, and I've noticed that the chief trouble of one is generally the other.

Impolite Papa.

"Mamma, what makes papa make that funny noise?"

"He's snoring, dear."

"But you always tell me it ain't polite to blow my noise out loud."

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will cure not only a fresh cold, but one of those stubborn coughs that usually hang on for months. Give it a trial and prove its worth. 25c. 50c and $1.00.

He who gives better homes, better books, better tools, a fairer outlook and a better hope, him will we crown with laurels.—Emerson.

WHY suffer with eye troubles, quick relief by using PETTIT'S EYE SALVE, 25c. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

He loves his country best who strives to make it best.—Ingersoll.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Time cannot remove kindly acts from a grateful heart.—Royston.

For the Love of Lem Yet

By MARGUERITE STABLER

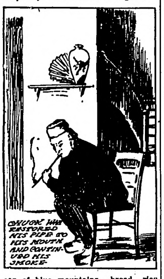
(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

The street was almost deserted. Dismal little gleams of yellow light trickled through the dripping fog, giving to the few skurrying figures a ghost-like dimness. The pavements shone wet and slippery under the flaring lamps and threw back a faint-hearted reflection elongated by the slope of the hill. The gaudy signboards that flanked the door-ways with their loud, discordant colorings were hushed into neutrality by the encroaching mist; but amid it all Chuck Wah sat serene and philosophical, placidly pulling away at his long-stemmed pipe. His face, a graven wooden image of barbaric hideousness, was turned toward the doorway and his slant-eyed glance never taken from the wicket.

The daily round of San Francisco shoppers and tourists was over and it was still too early for the frequenters of the gambling dens to be abroad, so in the interim the street was almost deserted save for the occasional figures flaring into visibility under a lamp and fading into mist-men the next moment. The feeble shafts of light threw grotesque shadows down the dark alleys, making them more black and forbidding than ever, and the sodden pavement that muffled the hastening footsteps into a half heard shuffle gave back a wraith-like echo. All Chinatown, like Chuck Wah, seemed holding its breath in anticipation of the later revelries. And old Wah could well afford to wait patiently, knowing the tide of prosperity that, with the coming night, would set toward his gambling den.

But all Chuck Wah's vigilance was needed on this occasion, even more than he dreamed, for there was sedition in the rear of his shop and hot revolt.

Wing Tee's pitiful story, was the usual one and no less tragic for its frequency. She had a fading memory of blue mountains, broad rice fields, freedom. Then there was the coming of the strangers, promises, transportation, disillusionment and—worse than death. So much worse that Siva the destroyer had been diligently courted by the few rude means she could devise, but she was too young and strong and healthy.



CHUCK WAH RESTORED HIS PIPE TO HIS MOUTH AND CONTINUED HIS SMOKE

Lem Yet had brought her a tiny dagger she could keep concealed in her sleeve, but no sooner had he given it to her than he had extracted a promise from her not to use it. And strangely enough since she had known Lem Yet she had not been so anxious to die. And now she knew his reason. He had told her one day a better way to escape. A way by which she still might live—and life had once been very sweet and still might be, she hoped—and Lem Yet might still be able to fill her eye as he did now.

The plan had seemed very easy as she had first heard it. The directions she knew she could not forget because Lem had pictured them out for her on a card. "Two turns to the right, one to the left, fourth door from the corner" and—safety. Now all that was required of her was patience to wait for an opportune time and caution when it came.

So while Chuck Wah sat and from force of habit watched the wicket, pulling away in deep draughts at the "portable ecstasy" in which he dealt, he did not dream how needful it was to keep all his faculties on the alert. His gains were heavy and these idle moments were at times he chose to count up his increasing wealth in his head. He was a strong tongsman, he had much influence with the six companies, he also had no fear of being molested by the "Chinatown Squad" for reasons known only to himself and them, so as he sat and gloated over his affairs he waxed complaisant and—drowsy. Still, from force of habit his eyes were pointed toward the wicket. But as he sat there little did he dream that at that moment, not three yards from him, down the dark, rickety stairway, the trembling, crouching, frightened little figure of his most valuable slave-girl was stealing out into the street.

Once, to be sure, the sound of a creaking plank had caused him to start and prick up his ears to listen. His was a very old building, human souls were crammed so tightly into it there was scarcely breathing room between them, so it was small wonder if the boards sometimes gave a little, as if to stretch its capacity of holding tenants and increasing rents. On the other side of the wall, half way down the dark stairway, the little fugitive stood half paralyzed with fright, knowing only too well what the sound of that creaking plank might bring upon her. As she waited in an agony of suspense she crouched against the wall, fearing the blood rushing through her veins and the loud thumping of her heart would arouse the whole community. But as nothing untoward followed and the sound was not repeated, Chuck Wah restored his pipe to his mouth and continued his smoke, telling himself it was a rat, and the frightened little slave ventured another step.

When at last, by crawling and sliding, scarcely daring to move, yet realizing haste was her only hope, she reached the foot of the stairway, she stopped, and before emerging from its protecting shadow quickly took off her little wooden-soled slippers and tucked them under her arm.

Then suddenly Wah thought he saw a figure flit past his wicket. He jumped up, and in his clumsiness overturned the table as he rushed for the door. Turning an instant to save the lamp, the next flash of the figure was lost upon him, and when he reached the door the fugitive was swallowed by the friendly fog.

Down the street she pattered, unnoticed by the hurrying passers except to be jostled out of their way. Two turns to the right she had made in safety. Already she began to feel free and secure. What would old Wah think when he found she had escaped? she asked herself. On the instant a sudden thought struck her, making her catch her breath in a quick, painful gasp. He would undoubtedly suspect Lem, and what would be the result?

She knew too well the work of the "hatchet men" to be in doubt as to what the end would probably be. The See Yups were the strongest tong on the coast and Chuck Wah one of the strongest See Yups in the tong. Against his influence the efforts of the "Chinatown Squad" would be futile. Lem would quietly disappear and no one be the wiser.

At the turn to the left she hesitated. The glee in her heart had died out. It was not the prospect of her safety in the mission home she thought of now. What would rescue and safety or anything else mean to her if Lem Yet lost his life in accomplishing it? The chill of the night crept into her heart as she realized that every step she was taking toward her safety might be also toward Lem's undoing.

As she waited, irresolute, a tall figure loomed up in the mist before her. Instinctively she again flattened herself against the wall as it approached. The next instant with a smothered cry of joy she was about to spring toward him. Lem Yet at last! But the cry was strangled in her throat. On he came, peering, listening, searching for her, as she knew. Crouching in the angle of the wall she let him pass. She almost felt his breath, he was so near, yet the next instant gone.

The fourth floor, her home of refuge, now only a few steps away, gleamed with a friendly light. Lem ran hurriedly up the steps to inquire whether the little fugitive had reached it. The calm-eyed little mother of the fold shook her head as she explained that no one had been there that evening.

Wing, motionless as a little Satsuma idol, saw it all and shrank still deeper into the shadow. Her life was not of much account, she told herself with a choking sob, one more or less of her kind was of no consequence. The open doorway sent out a hint of hospitable warmth to the shivering little waif. Here within half a dozen steps was an escape forever from the horror and degradation of the life behind her. She clasped her hands so tight over her breast and dug her sharp pointed nails so deep into her flesh the blood came in tiny crescent-shaped gashes.

As Lem, baffled and disappointed, turned from the door and made his way back to the corner again, his garments almost brushed against the quivering little Wing. As his figure disappeared into the dimness, with heart and soul she strained after the one gleam of happiness that had come into the horror of her life. Lem, she knew, now thought her heart was bad and that she did not want to escape, so he was lost to her.

When the mission door was closed and Lem out of sight down the street, the piteous little atom straightened her limbs from their cramped position and turned to retrace her steps.

The streets were still quiet. Back to the corner, one turn to the right, two to the left, she turned. The fog seemed denser, the darkness more cruel and bold.

Again as Chuck Wah sat in his shop he heard a plank creak. He listened suspiciously, but as it was not repeated, he again restored the pipe to his mouth with a malediction upon the rats.

Softly the door closed behind her. No one had discovered the little slave's escape and no one heard her return.

ILLINOIS ASKS FOR LATE DATE WITH THE MAROONS

WANT THE ANNUAL FOOTBALL GAME LAST OF OCTOBER—WISCONSIN MUDDLE STILL UNSETTLED.

Coach A. Alonzo Stagg has organized a minor national football rules committee. The new body met at the Reynolds club of the University of Chicago and drew up a code of football statutes preliminary to the gathering of the United States committee in New York February 4 and 5.

The Midway schedule progressed favorably with the announcement that Illinois had applied for a game and would be given a date in October. Coach Huff asked for the third Saturday in October, and while Coach Stagg could not make any agreement before a board meeting, it is understood that that date will be kept for the down staters.

Coach Huff's request disposed of the complaints of some of the Illinois alumni, who objected to the early date last fall on the grounds that Illinois could not prepare for the Maroons early in October. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Cornell will follow the Illini, according to the latest draft of the tentative schedule.

The Wisconsin faculty again straddled the seven-game football schedule proposition and, instead of voting for or against two extra games for next fall, referred the petition of the students back to the athletic council.

The failure of the faculty to act favorably on the petition was a complete surprise, as President Van Hise had stated unofficially that there would be little opposition to it. The action will cause delay in making the football schedule for 1910, as the earliest possible consideration of the question again will be in March.

While Yale's eleven has been surpassed on the gridiron at different times, the Elis never were kept down for any length of time, and Yale ranks head and shoulders above Harvard and the rest of the colleges when it comes to football, Yale has had a remarkable succession of football stars and since 1889 the New Haven institution of learning never has been headed by any other college in its production of football wonders.

The mighty guard, Heffelfinger, came in 1889, and the next year McClung was developed. These two made Yale football history until 1891.

Then the good work was taken up by Hinkey, who starred until '94. Then came Murphy, who was a hero for two seasons. In '93 and '94 Butterworth and Hickock also performed brilliantly.

Other stars on the gridiron followed in the manner stated below: Holt, 1901 and '02; Hogan, the tackle star, in '02 and '03; Shevlin, '04 and '05; Bigelow, '06 and '07, and Capt. Coy for the last two seasons.

Old-Time Pitcher Is Dead.

Harry Staley, at one time a member of the Boston National champions, died recently in a sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich. Staley in the early '90s was considered one of the greatest pitchers in the business. In 1891 Staley was a big factor in winning the championship for Boston, leading the pitching staff in percentage of victories won. He won nineteen games that year and lost eight. Clarkson and Nichols were his teammates. After that year his arm began to grow weaker, although he continued in the game for several years. Staley was 44 years old. His home was in Springfield, Ill.

Grand Circuit Racing Dates.

The Grand circuit racing season for 1910 will open in Kalamazoo, Mich., July 25. The dates for the races in the different branches of the circuit as approved by the stewards are: Kalamazoo, July 25 to 29; Detroit, August 1 to 5; Cleveland, August 8 to 12; Buffalo, August 15 to 19; New York, August 22 to 26; Readville, August 29 to September 2; Hartford, September 5 to 9; Syracuse, September 12 to 16; Columbus, September 19 to 30. Robert N. Newton of Billings, Mont., was chosen presiding judge for the coming season.

Illinois to Play in South.

Arrangements have been closed whereby the University of Illinois baseball team will open the season with games March 25-28 against the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, Ark. Arkansas will play return dates at Urbana. Games are also listed with Chicago and Notre Dame.

Naps to Meet Cardinals in Series.

Announcement was made in Little Rock, Ark., that the Cleveland Americans and the St. Louis Cardinals would meet in a spring series there, beginning March 20. Four games will be played.

To Avoid Clash of Dates.

President Pat Powers will not make out the Eastern league schedule until the Canadian Racing association has selected its dates. Last year Eastern league baseball suffered through conflict with racing at Montreal, Toronto and Fort Erie.

Plans Two-Umpire System.

Tom Chivington, the new president of the American association, is thinking of trying out the double-umpire system, with eight officials on the staff.

Nil Desperandum.

Percy Parkington rose and brushed the dust from his knees. Then, drawing himself up to his full height, he gazed resentfully upon the form of Miss Muriel Muggins, who nonchalantly fanned herself the while.

"Very well, Miss Muggins," came in bitter tones from Percy. "Oh, very well! You have spurned me, it is true! Indeed, you have spurned me twice! But, though despair eats my heart, I shall not die! I mean to go into the busy world. I will fight! I will win! My name shall become known, and my riches shall become envied—"

"Pardon me for interrupting you, Mr. Parkington," interjected Miss Muggins, "but when you shall have accomplished all that, you may try me again."—Lippincott's.

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when you could see a change and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about 18 months old.

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves and medicines without effect until we used Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. H. Kiernan, 663 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909."

The Latest Scheme.

"That new hotel will have red wall-paper in all the rooms."

"Heavens! Why?"

"So that when the guests kill—er—anything, it won't show."

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE." That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

To act with common sense, according to the moment is the best wisdom I know.—Horace Walpole.

We would all write our names on the scroll of fame but for the innumerable tribe of elbow joggers.

Associate with men of good judgment, for judgment is found in conversation. And we make another man's judgment ours by frequenting his company.—Fuller.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES
1875 "Guaranteed"

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
A convenient and effective remedy for Coughs and Hoarseness. Invaluable in Bronchial and Lung Troubles and to Singers and Speakers for clearing the voice. Entirely free from opiates or any harmful ingredient. Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Sample mailed on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

A Lifetime of Good Service
NO STROPPING NO HONING
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

296 Acres Beef Pasture
Close to Big Horseshoe Lake, on main highway and R. F. D., near Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. If taken at once $2.50 down, balance of $7.50 on long time, 6 per cent. Good clay soil; easy clearing, great grass land. A SNAP. Address owner, H. B., Box "A," St. Croix Falls, Wisconsin.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1880. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K. Washington, D.C.

California Would you like to live there? The San Diego Union will interest you. Sent 6 mo.—weekly, 75c; Sundays, $1.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 6–1910.

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R.V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

"OUCH, OH, MY BACK"
IT IS WONDERFUL HOW QUICKLY THE PAIN AND STIFFNESS GO WHEN YOU USE
ST. JACOBS OIL
For stiffness, soreness, sprain or bruise
Nothing is better that you can use;
Lumbago's pain, rheumatic twinge,
Your back feels like a rusty hinge;
Sciatic aches all pleasures spoil,
For happiness use St. Jacobs Oil.
25c. and 50c.
CONQUERS PAIN
St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL GREAT FOR PAIN
THE OIL THAT PENETRATES

Children's Coughs Cause the Little Ones Much Unnecessary Suffering
PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
Gives instant relief—soothes and heals the little throats and prevents more serious illness. Children like it too—so pleasant to take and does not upset the stomach.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

Do it Now
Tomorrow A. M. too late. Take a CASCARET at bed time; get up in the morning feeling fine and dandy. No need for sickness from over-eating and drinking. They surely work while you sleep and help nature help you. Millions take them and keep well.
CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month. 894

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

We are in receipt of an announcement from Hon H. Steenerson which we did not have time to set in type this week, but which will appear later, as it is early in the campaign.

Hon Henry O. Bjorge, of Becker county has announced himself as a candidate for the republican nominantion for congress man from this District in opposition to Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston. His announcement starts a mud slinging campaign rather early in the season, which is likely to get worse when the frost leaves the ground, for if it is mud throwing he wants he will have a chance to get plenty of it before next September.

Red Lake County will now have a new court house, as the commissioners have advertised for bids which they are to meet and consider the 17th, and let the contract, and the work of construction will start in the early spring. The commissioners will issue bonds in the sum of $37,000, which they deem sufficient to build a modest up-to date court house, that will be within the means of the county to build at this time.

Steenerson's bill granting an extension of two years to the settlers on this reservation to make final proof and payment has been reported favorably by the house committee, and will undoubtly become a law, which means that the settler will have seven years in which to prove up and pay for this land. Whether Steenerson is an insurgant or not he certainly has his coat off transacting business in the interest of his constituents.

Reliable information comes from Washington to the affect that Representative Steenerson, who, with Mr. Hanna, of North Dakota, is urging legislation for a survey of the Red River of the North with a view to the construction of resivors for the prevention of floods and the improvement of navigation, has received assurance from the members of the committee that the provision will be inserted in the river and harbor bill now being prepared.—Crookston Times.

This means that we are pretty certain to get the improvement of Red Lake River for navigation started this summer.

A Lively Office.

In his recollections in Blackwood's Magazine Sir Robert Anderson tells an amusing story of the days when he was employed at the home office. On his arrival one morning at the office he found a note from Sir James Fergusson's private secretary—his intimates called him "Creeper"—announcing that at 3 o'clock precisely an old hat, lately the property of the chief clerk, would be kicked off from the end of the corridor and requesting the favor of Sir Robert's presence. When Big Ben struck 3, Sir Robert heard Creeper's cheery voice ring out. "All on side; play!" They all turned out and the game began. On emerging from an unusually hot scrimmage Sir Robert became conscious of the presence of a stranger at his side, a timid little Frenchman, who meekly inquired, "Is this ze office for ze naturalization?" Sir Robert adds, "It was!"

Why He Cried.

The sympathetic neighbor asked: "Is your little brother ill this morning, Johnnie? I heard him crying in the most heartrending manner."

"No; not exactly," Johnnie explained, "but Willie pulled down a jug of molasses on himself in the pantry, and mother has been trying to comb his hair."—Exchange.

THE WRECK MASTER.

He Does Some Tall Hustling When the Line Is Blocked.

When a wreck blocks the line the wreck master is the biggest man on the railroad. Even the president, if by unhappy chance he happens to be there, steps aside and keeps silent after the wreck train halts with a jerk of grinding brakes and hissing air before the indescribable confusion of shattered wood and twisted steel which clutter the tracks. The wreck master's feet are on the ground before the shrieking wheels have ceased turning. There follow at his heels a half score of men, all experts, but of less degree than their leader.

He shouts an order that seems as unintelligible as a drillmaster's command, then another and another. There is instant action. At one end of the train a locomotive begins to creep cautiously away with the coaches that have stayed on the rails. An express car up toward the forward end of the passenger train is tilted tremblingly on its trucks. It is loaded with bales of silk perhaps or with other costly merchandise. The wreckers do not stop to inquire. To them it is simply an obstruction that has to be removed immediately. There is a heaving chorus, and it plunges down the embankment. A hundred yards away a loaded freight car in the opposite train is hanging over the edge. Fifty crowbars give it a tip that sends it down to the foot of the hill. As it lands there is a crash of discordant, tortured strings, an inharmonious outburst as though half a hundred cats had landed simultaneously on half a hundred keyboards. "Pianos," remarks one of the panting workmen to another standing at his shoulder. They do not pause even to grin. An instant later they are heaving away at something else.—Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

CHINA'S GREAT WALL.

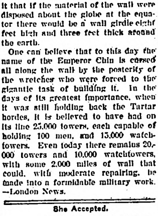
It Would Be a Mighty Task to Duplicate It Today.

What man has done, we are told man can do. But to erect today a great fortification comparable to the Great wall of China would be a heavy tax on both the resources and the resolution of Europe. A score or two of warships are all very well, but the cost of labor and the will involved in building fleets can hardly be compared to those devoted to the building of that great barrier about two centuries before the coming of Christ, when Rome was struggling with Hannibal.

Two thousand five hundred and fifty miles, including spurs, arms and loops, is the length ascribed to it by Dr. W E. Gell, the only white man, we believe, who has traveled the whole length of it. It has been said that the Great wall is the only object of man's handiwork which could be discerned from the moon, and one calculation has it that if the material of the wall were disposed about the globe at the equator there would be a wall girdle eight feet high and three feet thick around the earth.

One can believe that to this day the name of the Emperor Chin is cursed all along the wall by the posterity of the wretches who were forced to the gigantic task of building it. In the days of its greatest importance, when it was still holding back the Tartar hordes, it is believed to have had on its line 25,000 towers, each capable of holding 100 men, and 15,000 watchtowers. Even today there remains 20,000 towers and 10,000 watchtowers, with some 2,000 miles of wall that could, with moderate repairing, be made into a formidable military work.—London News.

She Accepted.

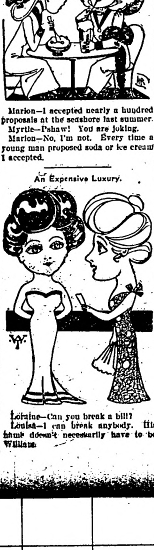


Marion—I accepted nearly a hundred proposals at the seashore last summer.

Myrtle—Pshaw! You are joking.

Marion—No, I'm not. Every time a young man proposed soda or ice cream I accepted.

An Expensive Luxury.



Loraine—Can you break a bill?

Louisa—I can break anybody. His name doesn't necessarily have to be William.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. January 7, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 28th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 890. Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 9. Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet; U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Habedank. August Ristau. of Thief River Falls Minn. Jacob Jonas. Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN.
Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 21. 1910.

Department of The Interior: U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota January 14th. 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole P. Ostenaa, of Neptune Minnesota, who on November 7th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 849. Serial No. 01306, for S. W. ¼ Section 10 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 24th, day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Siver Haugo, of Neptune Minn., Nels Resin. of Rudell Minn., Knut Jorstad, of Wanke Minn. Julious K. Halverson, of McIntosh Minn

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

The Pip and the Slip.

Too much mince pie had done the trick.

Little Maimie got a pain in her sash and had to go to bed.

The family physician and his top hat called and prescribed a pill. Maimie's mother said very well, but the family physician did not know Maimie, and she was quite sure Maimie would not take the pill. The family physician said he would make it a sweet pill, but Maimie's mother replied that so long as it was a pill it would be no use.

Then the family physician was struck with a brilliant idea. The pill should be craftily concealed in the center of a preserved pear and sent up to little Maimie to eat.

An hour later Maimie's mother went to see how her sweetest dear was going on. She appeared to be going on excellently.

"And did my pet eat all her pear?" inquired the fond mother.

"Yes, mumsie," replied the little darling, "all but the nasty seed."

There's many a slip 'twixt the pear and the pip.—London Answers.

Bituminous Coal.

The first bituminous coal mined in the United States, states the United States geological survey, was taken from what is usually termed the Richmond basin, a small area in the southeastern portion of Virginia, near the city of Richmond. This basin is situated on the eastern margin of the Piedmont plateau, thirteen miles above tidewater, on the James river. It lies in Goochland, Henrico, Powhatan and Chesterfield counties. The coal beds are much distorted, and the coal is of rather low grade when compared with that from other districts with which it has to come into competition. The occurrence of coal was known in the Richmond basin as early as 1700, and in 1789 shipments were made to some of the northern states. At present what little coal is produced in this field is for local consumption only.—Scientific American.

Movement of Icebergs.

In the investigation of the currents round the coast of Newfoundland it has been observed that there is at times a wide difference in the direction of the drift of icebergs and that of the flat or pan ice, which, having no great depth, is governed in its motions by the surface currents and the winds whereas the icebergs, the larger parts of which are submerged to a great depth, follow only the movement of the ocean water as a whole and are uninfluenced by the winds. In consequence a huge berg may often be seen majestically maintaining its slow advance in opposition to the wind and across the general motion of the fields of flat ice surrounding it. The sealers often take advantage of this fact by mooring their vessels to an iceberg in order to prevent a drift to leeward.—Philadelphia Record.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

When brought to bay the kangaroo jumps like a flash for the hunter's chest and tries to crush it in with his fore feet. To prevent this each man wears across his breast a two or three inch thick matting. Armed with a spear, with a club attachment at the other end, they ride upon swift horses into a herd. With the agility and equipoise of circus riders they stand erect upon their horses and use their spears and clubs.

The kangaroo is able to jump clear over a horse. As the game is bagged it is skinned, and the skin is stretched on the ground and pegged down to prevent shrinkage. The flesh furnishes meat for the camp. Each man places his private mark upon his booty, and when they have 100 apiece they return back to civilization.

Family Ties.

Old Gentleman—Have you any family ties? Willie—Oh, yes, sir. Father makes me wear all his old ones.

THE CABMEN OF PARIS

Hailing One Is the Same as a Declaration of War.

THEY ARE INSOLENT ROGUES.

Sneers and Caustic Advice Are Showered Upon Those Who Engage Them. On Wet or Festal Days the Cabbies Spurn Those Who Want to Ride.

Among Anglo-Saxons there is a general, and instinctive desire to do business on the basis of an entente cordiale. In Paris the hailing of a cabman is looked on by both parties to the transaction as an implied declaration of war. The cabman takes your measure, and you take his number if you are wise. At once he will give you a reason to remark that he has a rooted and premeditated objection to drive you where you wish to go. Perhaps he prefers the opera quarter because it is central, or should the weather be fine his heart is probably set upon driving in the Bois, while you may have business at the bourse. He explains his views on the subject selfishly and rudely.

A foreigner alighted recently from the Calais train at the Northern railway station in Paris and ordered a typical Parisian cabman, bloated, pale and absinth soaked, to drive him to the Rue Blomet, which is a street in the relatively distant Vaugirard quarter. "Peut on habiter la Rue Blomet?" ("Is it possible to inhabit the Rue Blomet?") exclaimed the ragged ruffian in an epigrammatic note of disdain which would have done honor to Beau Brummel.

But it is when the Paris cabman has once started on his "course," a warpath in the strict sense of the term, that he proves to what a limitless extent he is the enemy of mankind. His hatred of the "bourgeois," the "man in the street," in spite of and indeed because of his being a potential client, is expressed at every yard. He constantly tries to run him down, which makes strangers to Paris accuse the Paris cabman of driving badly, while in point of fact he is not driving at all, but playing with miraculous skill a game of his own which suggests cannon billiards in the hands of a world's champion.

But it is not with the public alone that he is at war. On all other cabmen whose path he crosses, on omnibus drivers, motorcar men, bicyclists, private coachmen, costermongers with barrows and (sotto voce) the police he heaps deadly insults, the least outrageous of which are "Ours!" ("Bear!") and "Fourneau!" ("Oven!"), the latter containing a subtle double meaning, intelligible only to those who have Paris "argot" or slang at their finger ends and too long to explain.

The cabman's wild career through the streets, the constant wavering and slashing of his pitiless whip, his madcap hurtlements and collisions, the frenzied gesticulations which he exchanges with his "fare," the panic stricken flight of the agonized women whose lives he has endangered, the ugly rushes which the public occasionally makes at him with a view to lynching him, the sprawlings and fallings of his maddened, hysterical, starving horse, contribute as much as anything to the spasmodic intensity, the electric blue fire diablerie, which are characteristic of the general movement of Paris.

All that can be said in mitigation of the Paris cabman's method is that "he has them in the blood." Every Parisian (and the cabman is no exception) has the soul of a dictator and the spirit of an artist. To exercise autocratic power and, failing this, to enjoy the maximum of personal freedom from all restraint, moral or social, is the goal at which he is ever aiming, openly or secretly.

Watch a Paris cabman, for instance, on a wet day or on some festival occasion, such as the New Year, when there is a big demand for his services. With what haughty disdain does he drive along the streets, deaf to every appeal, refusing every fare, rejoicing in the discomfort and inconvenience he is causing, triumphant in the thought that at last he has "the bourgeois" at his feet; that the clientele which he detests and which detests him is now a humiliated, bemuddled or bedraggled mob of supplicants waiting on his will, whom he can enrage to boiling point with his sneers and his silence or lash with his sarcasms as cruelly as he beats his horse.

Cheerfully does he sacrifice half a day's earnings to the enjoyment of this exquisite revenge, for at least he can say to his hungry wife and children when he gets home, "J'ai vecu." They may not have dined, but he has lived.

It is because the Parisian recognizes in himself a certain community of sentiment with the cabman in this attitude toward life that he tolerates him, though he does not forgive him.—Harper's Weekly.

Her Only Course.

Lady Anne Lindsay, the author of the old poem "Auld Robin Gray," was not only a delightful conversationalist but she was a great story teller.

This gift made her not only a welcome guest abroad, but a valuable member of the home circle, for it is related in "A Group of Scottish Women" that at a dinner party which she was giving to some friends an old housservant caused some amusement by saying in a perfectly audible undertone:

"My lady, you must tell another story. The second course won't be ready for five minutes!"

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick,

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Cek. as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. WINTON,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p. m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants
State Bank,
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.
Officers.

C. L. HANSEN...... Pesident.
DANIEL PATTERSON ..Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS.... ...2nd Vice Pes.
B. E. BURKEE..........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS
FOR Headache
FOR NEURALGIA.
SCIATICA.
RHEUMATISM.
BACKACHE.
PAIN IN CHEST.
DISTRESS IN STOMACH.
SLEEPLESSNESS
DR. MILES' Pain Pills
TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.
If you have Headache Try One
They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects
25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 20 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.

G. A. Eveland R F D No 1
Fosston Minn.

Winter is half gone.

Percy Arndt is here this week getting home his summers wood from Sunbeam.

There will be a grand ball at the Kistle hall on Saturday evening February 19th.

C. L. Clark went down to the city of Thief River Falls yesterday on a business trip.

The weather continues to be mild and fair with just enough snow to make fine sleighing.

Walter McAndrews and George Cunningham went down to St Hilaire with two big loads of wheat Monday.

There was a large crowd at the Kolski ball in Deer Park on last Saturday night, who all had a first class time.

School is to commence in this district the second Monday in February being the 14th,. We made a mistake in the date last week.

Miss Hilda Lindberg will give a grand ball at the Hilda hall on next Tuesday evening, February 8th,. All are welcome, to come and have a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ellingson are the proud and happy parents of a baby girl, born on Friday last. Mother and baby are doing well and Andrew busy setting up the cigars.

Ye editor was an overnight visitor with Mr. and Mrs. George Singer, of Rhoda last Sunday night. Mr. Singer will increase the size of his dairy this season to the extent that it will be second to none in the county.

There was a large crowd attended the basket social given at the Kratka hall last Saturday evening and the baskets sold way up in "g". Lille Bros. furnished the music and that fine ball room floor was kept warm ti'll broad daylight in the morning.

We have just about completed getting out our next years fire wood and expect to start the gasoline saw tomorrow. There is some expense in getting up a years fire wood, but when you are busy with other work you don't have to stop to cut wood to cook your dinner.

The last Sundays Pioneer Press gave the Red Lake River a good write up with illustrations of all the boats that hawl freight up the river, except the Dan Patch, that got caught and froze in at Kratka last fall. But Old Dan will thaw out in April, and come up the river, "just the same."

John Polopi made this office a plesent call yesterday. He informs us that he has bought the Ellingson ferry at Highlanding and would rig it up in first class order this spring, and that the Highlanding Creamery Association had made arrangements for free ferrying of all patrons of the creamery liveing on the south side of the river.

The answer of the Eleven Towns, to the Highlanding correspondent of the Thief River Falls Press, regarding graded schools was very concise, and right to the point. It is funny that the people of this town can not call a meeting to listen to our county Superintendent, on educational questions for the bennefit of their children, can not do so without being criticised by some peaked headed yaup through the Thief River Falls newspapers.

C B Merz and John Patterson of St Hilaire, Joe Belair, of Red Lake Falls and P. C. Wold of Kuchpel made this office a plesent call today,

Thief River Falls may win the Highlanding post office fight as it is a pretty hard proposition when a city of that size jump on a little Norwegian country store keeper. But say Never for they may say: "We won the Highlanding post office fight but at what a cost." Sometimes a little mouse can make a big elephant crazy by crawling in his ear,

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

News are scarce this week.

Miss Alma Free visited with the family of A. Bolandsen on Thursday

The Clearwater Young peoples society will meet at the home of F. N. Lille February 6th,. All are welcome.

Oscar Nesland and Martain Hyland made a business trip to Gully Wednesday, returning on Saturday.

Mrs. A. Bolandsen visited at the homes of Mrs Christ Lindberg and Mrs Ralph Green on Friday.

There will be services in the Ericksen school house next Sunday at 10 o'clock a m. All are invited.

We Don't Hedge.

The Highlanding post office controversy has not been settled and there has been lots of talk about the different applicants we will say, that we indorsed Andrew Ellingson for the office because we considered him well qualified for it and justly entitled to it, as the pioneer merchant and buisness man of this township and a persistent and hard worker for the republican ticket. We have not done any more than what we considerd fair and right, and have not done any dirty work nor do not intend to but conclude the argument by saying, that Ellingson is justly entitled to this office and WE DON'T withdraw our indorsement, but stay right by it, and if our ship goes down we go down with it, and others word is better than ours

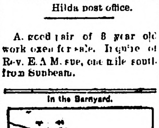
"Ben Battle was a soldier bold, and used to war's allarm;
But a cannon ball took off his leg, and he lay down his arm.
Now as they bore him off the field;
Sid he; LET OTHERS SHOOT!
For here I leave my second legs
And forty second foot."

FOR Sale: Nice dry poles, piled up, at $1 00, a load. Also dry cord wood, at $2 00 per cord.

Yours for wood, Otto R. Stucy
Hilda post office.

A good pair of 8 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E. A. M. sue, one mile south from Sunbeam.

In the Barnyard.



The Calf—Get out of my way. You don't amount to anything.

The Old Hen—Don't I? If you could hear folks grumble when they find veal in their chicken salad you'd change your tune. Run along now and take your milk.

Woman's Way.

Slobbs—Have you ever noticed that the average woman gets off a trolley car backward? Slobbs—That's the way she gets off a joke too.—Philadelphia Record.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS,

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2. 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

A Reluctant Candidate.

During a local election in a German town only one man appeared at the nomination desk.

"Whom do you nominate?" inquired the official.

"Myself," was the answer

"Do you accept the nomination?"

"Well, no."

The officer laughed and said:

"Then we must try again. Whom do you nominate?"

"Myself."

"You accept the nomination?"

"No."

A subdued "Donnerwetter!" escaped the lips of the perplexed official, but he went on:

"For the third time, whom do you nominate?"

"Myself," came the invariable reply

"Do you accept the nomination?"

The man rose up, and a smile of satisfaction spread over his face as he answered proudly:

"Having been three times solicited by my fellow citizens to accept the nomination, I can no longer decline to accede to their wishes." He then retired.

The Opal.

In judging an opal color is of the greatest importance. Red fire or red in combination with yellow, blue and green is the best. Blue by itself is quite valueless, and the green opal is not of great value unless the color is very vivid and the pattern very good. The color must be true—that is to say, it must not run in streaks or patches, alternating with a colorless or inferior quality. Pattern is an important factor, the several varieties being known as "pin fire" when the grain is very small, "harlequin" when the color is in small squares, the more regular the better, and the "flash fire," or "flash opal," when the color shows as a single flash or in very large pattern. Harlequin is the most common and is also popularly considered the most beautiful. When the squares of color are regular and show as distinct minute checks of red, yellow, blue and green it is considered magnificent. Some stones show better on edge than on top.—Exchange.

Giants and Dwarfs.

In the seventeenth century all the abnormally large and small folks of Austria were assembled in Vienna in response to a whim of the empress. As circumstances required that all should be housed in one building, there was a fear that the imposing proportions of the giants would terrify the dwarfs. But the dwarfs teased and tormented the giants so that these overgrown mortals complained with tears in their eyes, and as a consequence sentinels had to be placed to protect the giants from their pygmy persecutors, for the smallest men had the biggest brains and the longest tongues.

Corrupted His Style.

"The late Richard Watson Gilder," said a New York poet, "always opposed the reading of light literature. A poet, he said, could not read such literature without corrupting his literary style.

"He once told me that the poet in this respect was like Brown's parrot.

"Brown bought a parrot for $20 from a pet stock dealer and a week or two later returned to the shop and insisted that the bird be taken back.

"'What's the matter with it?' the dealer asked.

"'W-w-why,' said Brown, 'the durned c-c-critter st-stutters.'"

Expert Opinion.

"What do you think made Hamlet so suspicious of the ghost?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes.

"He probably thought," answered the psychic researcher, "that no well regulated ghost would manifest himself without ringing bells or tipping tables."—Washington Star.

Putting Him Wise.

"I'd like to make you my wife," said the practical young man, "but they tell me you can't keep house."

"Don't you believe all they tell you," rejoined the girl in the case. "You get the house and put it in my name, and I'll prove to you that I can keep it."—Exchange.

A Careless Man.

Father—Why have you quarreled with Harry? Daughter—Because he proposed to me last night. Father—Well, there was no harm in that, was there? Daughter—But I had accepted him the night before.—Illustrated Bits.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,

THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G HUNT,

Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.

ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.

Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Kept Them Dancing.

A Washington official, speaking of blunders in the diplomatic service, told of a mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan. He said:

"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suit of rooms in his house. The morning of the shahzada's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely; but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet. The host ventured to ask the reason of this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:

"'You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess.'"

Livingstone.

Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never fired a shot in anger, never "clubbed or clouted or banned or blasted." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old man who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.

Unkempt Smith—Mister, would youse kindly help a poor man as is all in, down and out? Jocular Citizen—Why, certainly. Just climb the fire escape on that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then you will be all out, all in and in.—Judge's Library.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE

LIGHT RUNNING

NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.

Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.

Our guaranty never runs out.

Sold by authorised dealers only.

FOR SALE BY

[illegible] Co

Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL
DICTIONARY

Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of questions in Language, the Trades, Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:

Colored Plates, Flags, State Seals, Etc.
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Scripture Proper Names
Greek and Latin
English Christian
Foreign Words
Abbreviations

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages. 1400 Illus.

Write for "Dictionary Wrinkles," and Specimen Pages, Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

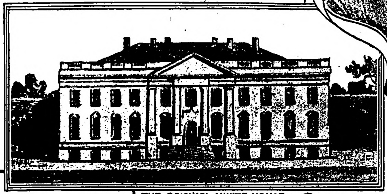
THE FIRST LADY OF THE WHITE HOUSE

MRS. JOHN ADAMS, WIFE OF THE SECOND PRESIDENT, MOTHER OF THE SIXTH.

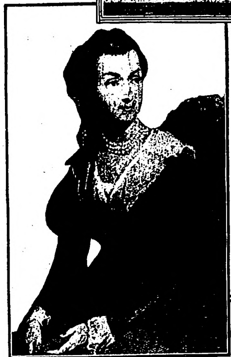
By HELEN BARRETT SMITH

THE White House in all its beauty and completeness ready to receive its new mistress; the pomp and pageant attending her reception; the military splendor of Pennsylvania avenue, the din of music, the shouts of the multitude—all this is far and away from the home coming of that remarkable first mistress who was lost in the forest while trying to find the new capitol.

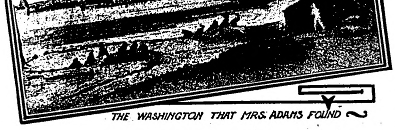
In June, 1800, the seat of government moved from Philadelphia to Washington, but it was November before Mrs. Adams left her home in Quincy for the White House. Did ever a president's wife have such a journey! It was up hill, down dale and through the woods by post chaise, stage coach and private equipage; long waits for relays, delayed on the highways by breakdowns; lost in the woods outside Baltimore until a straggling black was found to extricate the lady and her party with difficulty; on and on through forests; nothing to be seen but trees and occasionally a cot "without a glass window," and, as Mrs. Adams writes, "You can travel for miles without meeting a human being." Finally Washington—a city in name only. Pennsylvania avenue, a "muddy, wagon-rucked road," New Jersey avenue just cut through; scattered buildings in various stages of completion, and, at last—the White House.



THE ORIGINAL WHITE HOUSE



MRS. ADAMS, FROM THE PICTURE BY C. SCHESSELE



COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUB. CO.

THE WASHINGTON THAT MRS. ADAMS FOUND

No lawn, no fence, no yard, no approach, the principal staircase not up, nor a single apartment finished, no bells, no lights, no grates, no means of heating the building. Mrs. Adams sits shivering and writes, "Surrounded by forests, can you believe that wood is not to be had because people cannot be found to cut and cart it!" It appears that our labor problem has always been with us. The faithful Brisler is the most distracted man in Washington; he has used all available wood to dry out the newly plastered walls of the White House. No more fuel at any price. Small wonder that Mrs. Adams exclaims, "We have indeed come into a new country!"

But this first mistress is by no means overwhelmed by the chaotic condition of the Executive Mansion. She declares buoyantly, "I am a mortal enemy to anything but a cheerful countenance and a merry heart, which, Solomon tells us, does good like a medicine." A New Englander by birth, the daughter of a clergyman, Abigail Adams had none of the austerity or puritanic prejudices of her day. What does it matter if there are only six rooms tenantable in the White House—Mrs. Adams is resourceful and self-reliant. When a woman has been through the revolution, her home surrounded by spies, her husband's letters intercepted, her supplies cut off; when she has been left on a farm with five children and tills the soil to support the family; when she has faced the terrors of Bunker hill and the siege of Boston; when famine and pestilence have spared none, and she has been robbed of her mother and her baby; when this agony and misery has been endured and the woman, through her sublime faith in God, retains sweetness of character—then the unfinished city of Washington is a trifle not likely to disturb her peace of mind. Mrs. Adams' chief concern is a desire to make it pleasant for those about her. Thus she cautions her daughter Abby, "You must keep all this to yourself and when asked how I like it say that I write you the situation is beautiful—which is the truth."

The fates made a happy selection in choosing Mrs. Adams for the first lady of the White House. No woman of her day had such a varied experience in establishing official residences. It was Mrs. Adams' love of family that gave her the courage to cross the ocean and join her husband and boys—John Adams was in France with Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin negotiating peace with England. Mrs. Adams took a little house at Auteuil, a suburb of Paris, renowned for the homes of its famous men. The gay court of Versailles, brilliantly artificial, the perfection of its polished surface hardly concealing the rottenness of its foundation, was a revelation to the American visitor. Very charitably Mrs. Adams wrote, "Manners differ exceedingly in different countries." Yet the little house at Auteuil became a social center. Diplomats, princes and artists gathered at her board. At one of these dinners an American lady, horrified by the Marquise de la Fayette's unpretentious appearance, whispered to Mrs. Adams, "Good heavens, how awfully she is dressed," to which Mrs. Adams replied, "The lady's rank sets her above the formalities of dress." Mrs. Adams' breezy comment on her countrywomen is refreshingly up to date; she writes, "I have seen none who carry extravagances of dress to such a height as the Americans here." But Mrs. Adams' home retained its democratic simplicity and she left to the French aristocracy the remembrance of a household that was typically American.

Grosvenor square, London, was Mrs. Adams' next residence. She became presiding lady of the first American legation in Great Britain—alas and alack, what empty honor! The English were smarting under the humiliation of losing the colonies. The king and queen were civil to the point of boorishness, the people arrogant and insulting, the press scurrilous and abusive, the nobility in absolute ignorance of the new nation across the ocean. Mrs. Adams declared that Mr. Pitt and Lord Carmarthen were the only two men in England who seemed to have liberal ideas concerning America. When, after a three years' stay in Grosvenor square, Mr. Adams was recalled to become vice-president of the United States, Mrs. Adams, in commenting on their coming departure, says, "Some years hence it may be pleasant to reside here in the character of American minister; but with the present servility and the present temper of the English no one need envy the embassy."

To New York City Mrs. Adams next moved her household goods. The vice-president's residence was Richmond Hill mansion, once the headquarters of Gen. Washington. Mrs. Adams was delighted with the situation of her new home. The city has stretched for miles to the north of this spot, now Varick and Charlton streets, but Mrs. Adams wrote that Richmond Hill was a mile and a half from New York. Wandering through the neighborhood of Varick street, with its Trinity tenements, and over to the shipping activity of West street and the Hudson river, one finds it hard to realize that here were once "fields beautifully variegated with grain and grass to a great extent like the valley of Honiton in Devonshire." These fields were to the right of the mansion and continuing her description Mrs. Adams writes: "Upon my left the city opens to view, intercepted here and there by a rising ground and an ancient oak. In the back is a large flower garden, enclosed with a hedge and some handsome trees. Venerable oaks and broken ground with shrubs surround me, giving a natural beauty to the spot which is truly enchanting. A lovely variety of birds serenade me morning and evening, rejoicing at their liberty and security." It was at this beautiful home that Mrs. Adams gave her informal garden parties and delightful teas. With characteristic deference she left the brilliant levees, state dinners and dignified minuets to Mrs. Washington at the presidential residence, No. 4 Franklin square—as hostesses never were two women better qualified.

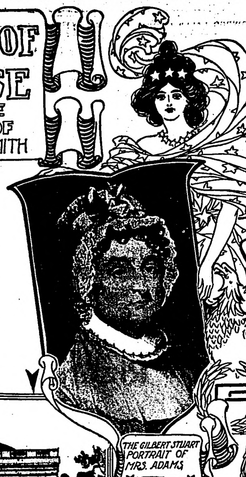
Bush hill became Mrs. Adams' home when the capital moved to Philadelphia. Unfortunately, the climate did not agree with the vice-president's wife; she suffered from malaria and had to take many trips to Quincy to regain her health. Although Mrs. Adams found her home on the Schuylkill peaceful and serene, she writes regretfully, "When all is done it will not be Broadway." So the allurement of "dear old Broadway" had not its beginnings yesterday; the famous thoroughfare had attractions distinctly its own 120 years ago.

Mrs. Adams had hardly arrived at the White House when a servant appeared from Mount Vernon. He presented Mrs. Washington's compliments, a haunch of venison, a billet from Major Custis, the son of Mrs. Washington, a congratulatory letter from Mrs. Lewis, in which Mrs. Washington sent her love and a warm invitation to Mount Vernon. Nor did Mrs. Adams put off the visit—she went the next week.

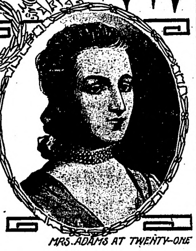
Oh, for the era of motor cars and good roads! Poor Mrs. Adams is appalled by the time required to pay calls in the wilderness city. Her nearest neighbor is Mrs. Otis, the senator's mother, who lives half a mile from the White House and many of the ladies are in Georgetown, three and four miles apart. Freight transportation, too, has its vexations. Mrs. Adams laments, "The vessel which has my clothes and other matter has not arrived. The ladies are impatient for a drawing-room." To add to her distress she had no mirrors, nor a twentieth part lamps enough to light the house. In moving, many of her things have been broken or stolen, her precious china set, so dear to the feminine heart, is more than half missing—How did the lady ever preserve a cheerful countenance and a merry heart?

Yet, in spite of all inconveniences, President and Mrs. Adams gave their New Year's reception at the White House in 1801, thereby establishing a custom that has since been followed on the first of every January. Mrs. Adams used for a drawing-room what is now the library. In entertaining she endeavored to keep up the standard set by the Washingtons. The first lady of the White House dispensed her hospitality with a lavish hand and was particularly proud of the showing made by the ladies at her levee. She declared, while in England, that the beauties of the court of St. James, the duchess of Devonshire, the countess of Salisbury and Lady Talbot, had formidable rivals in Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Phelps and Miss Hamilton. Mrs. Adams was especially happy to welcome Mrs. Bingham to the White House—this lady, "the most beautiful woman of her day," passed most of her time abroad. In discussing the expatriated Americans Mrs. Adams expressed sorrow that they should "allow frivolity of amusement to wean them away from their native land."

During her stay at the White House Mrs. Adams watched with interest the workings of the first congress that assembled in Washington. She was always a keen observer of the political situation. John Adams kept no secrets from his wife. In sending some important documents for her inspection, he writes, "I daresay there is not a lady in America treated to a more curious dish of politics than the papers I enclose . . . by no means let them go out of your hands or be copied." Thus trained by one of the greatest statesmen of his day, Mrs. Adams had a complete understanding of the game of politics as played in all parts of the world. She was shocked by Marie Antoinette's fate. She grieved for her as one woman grieves for another; but this climax of the great French tragedy was not reached in a single setting. Of the many scenes that led up to that awful execution Mrs. Adams wrote with deep knowledge: "Were you to witness the spectacles of wretchedness and misery which these older countries exhibit, crowded with habitudes, loaded with taxes, you would shudder at the sight." In London she saw the great army of the unemployed, encountered the beggars at her doorstep, the homeless in Hyde park, and, in comparing this state of affairs with conditions at home, she says, "The liberal reward which labor meets with in America is another source of our national prosperity; population and increasing wealth result from it. The condition of our laboring poor is preferable to any other country. Comparatively speaking, we have no poor, America is in her early vigor . . . in a cheerful flourishing state."



THE GILBERT STUART PORTRAIT OF MRS. ADAMS



MRS. ADAMS AT TWENTY-ONE

Mrs. Adams had implicit faith in the future greatness of her native land; she writes to John Adams when he is chosen chief executive:

"My thoughts and meditations are with you, although personally absent; and my petitions to heaven are 'that the things that are made for peace may not be hidden from your eyes.' My feelings are not those of pride and ostentation on this occasion. They are solemnized by a sense of obligation, the important trusts and numerous duties connected with it. That you may be able to discharge them with honor to yourself, with justice and impartiality to your country, and with the satisfaction of this great people, shall be the daily prayer of

yours,
A. A."

Standing at the cradle of the young republic, Abigail Adams "dipped into the future, far as human eye could see, saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that could be—" and to-day the present generation witnesses the truth of her words: "America has much to do ere she arrives at her Zenith; she possesses every requisite to render her the happiest country on the globe."—To-day may the spirit of the First lady linger within the White House walls; for, if the radiance of her personality be felt, it makes for happiness.

THE ESKIMO'S PIPE

The pipes used by the Eskimos are quite different from those of any other North American race and in the shape of the bowl more resemble the opium pipes used by the Chinese than anything else. The old pipes were very small in the amount of tobacco that they would hold.

There was, therefore, a wide, flaring margin to the pipe to catch any grains of tobacco that might be spilled in filling it; then there was a hollow which would hold a pinch of tobacco half as large as an ordinary pea and a rather wide hole passing down through the base of the bowl which fitted into the pipe-stem. The bowl of the pipe was of ivory, stone, brass or copper.

The pipe-stem was curved and had a mouthpiece. It is said that the small hole running down through the base of the bowl and into the pipe-stem was usually plugged with caribou hair to save any grains of tobacco that might otherwise have passed down through this aperture and so be lost. The smoking of such a pipe would not last long and we may presume that a very few draws would exhaust it. The smoke was of course taken into the lungs.

The Eskimos are known to be extremely skillful in the representation of scenes and objects, while the Indians of Queen Charlotte's sound and generally all the natives of the northwest coast of America are famous for their carving in wood and in a black slate. Handsomely carved Eskimo pipes of walrus ivory from northwestern Alaska have on each side of the pipe, that is to say, on four more or less long, flat surfaces, scenes from the daily life of the Eskimo.

Quaker Oats
is the world's food

Eaten in every country; eaten by infants, athletes, young and old.

Recognized as the great strength builder.

52

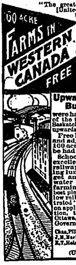
Delicious and economical.

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Power:

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.



Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat

were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre), are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application), and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.

(Use address nearest you). (4)

"LET ME HELP MY FELLOW MEN."

"That's what John Beck, 614 E. 5th St., Duluth, writes us. He wants to tell All Sufferers From Skin-Trouble about

Stub-Roo
REMEDIES

Mr. Beck had suffered with open sores for Twenty years. A daughter of his had eczema for 14 years. After using doctors', surgeons', and all kinds of medicines they heard of Stub-Roo Liquid. In 4 months it cured them.

Ask your druggist for it Today. If he hasn't it, send us $1.00 for large bottle, express paid, today, Today.

Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

KOW-KURE

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow CURE. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without KOW-KURE. It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "Cow Money" sent FREE. Ask your local dealer for KOW-KURE or send to the manufacturers.

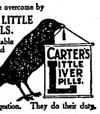
DAIRY ASSOCIATION CO. Lyndonville, Vt.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.



Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

GENUINE must bear signature:

Brent Good

ATTENTION! HOMESEEKERS

Come to the FAMOUS YAKIMA VALLEY, the home of the BIG RED APPLE.

YAKIMA

offers unlimited opportunities for success in the growing of high grade fruit.

Choice irrigated land in this prosperous section can still be had at low prices and on easy terms.

We also plant and care for orchards for non-residents.

Write for our illustrated booklets giving full information.

Yakima Realty & Investment Co.
12 E. Yakima Avenue, North Yakima, Washington.
317-319 Palace Bldg, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
805 Third Avenue, Seattle, Washington.

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE
PLANTEN'S (TRADE MARK)
C & C OR BLACK
CAPSULES
SUPERIOR REMEDY FOR URINARY DISCHARGES ETC.
DRUGGISTS OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 50c
H. PLANTEN & SON, 93 HENRY ST BROOKLYN N.Y.

Virginia Farms and Homes.

FREE CATALOGUE OF SPLENDID BARGAINS
R. B. CHAFFIN & CO., Inc., Richmond, Va.

UNCOOKED MEAT VERY DANGEROUS

FEARFUL SUFFERING CAUSED BY EGGS OF PARASITE WHICH IT MAY CONTAIN—STATEMENT BY A PRIEST.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 2.—Probably the most unusual feature of the excitement that has been created by L. T. Cooper's visit to this city is the removal of parasites or tape worms by his preparations.

During the early part of Cooper's stay in Omaha individuals who were taking "New Discovery," as it is called, brought either to himself or to physicians throughout the city immense parasites that had left the system after using the medicine.

Many of these people were frightened, and cases of this sort became so numerous that Cooper finally made the following statement for publication:

He said: "In every city I visit these things are brought to me within a few days after my medicine is sold in the city. They are what is known as the tape-worm, and grow to an enormous size.

"Few, indeed, realize how prevalent these creatures are. I think I have been the first to demonstrate what a large factor they are in the poor health of this generation. I believe that fully one-half of the chronic stomach trouble now so universal is caused by these parasites.

"Individuals may have them for years and not be aware of the reason for their continued ill-health, but attribute it to many different diseases, when in reality one of these creatures is robbing them of their vitality.

"These parasites are taken into the system in uncooked food or raw meat, in the form of an egg, which hatches almost immediately. People suffering from them experience a feeling of lassitude and are extremely nervous. The action of Cooper's 'New Discovery' seems to be fatal to these great worms, and in most cases a few doses of the medicine drives the creatures from the system. I will have hundreds of them brought to me before I leave the city."

This grewsome prophecy has been amply verified, for not only hundreds but thousands of Omaha people have been relieved of some of these fearful parasites since taking Cooper's preparation, and the entire city has been aroused by the fact.

Some of these parasites are of such enormous size as to startle the imagination. The statement of Father John Baptist Arnolis, one of the best known and best beloved priests in this section of the country verifies this. His statement, among others given to a reporter, was as follows:

"For years I suffered from what I thought was a general run-down condition of the system caused by stomach trouble. I felt extremely tired all the time, and it was a great effort to attend to my duties. I would wake up in the morning feeling as worn out as when I went to bed. If I stood for any length of time I would have pain in the lower part of my back, and would have to sit down.

"I was very nervous and depressed in spirits, and was troubled with dizzy spells. I would see spots before my eyes when I stooped over and raised up quickly. I had a very irregular appetite, and would have palpitation of the heart after ascending the stairs.

"The talk about Cooper's preparations was so universal that I decided to try some, although I do not take patent medicines as a rule. I took four doses of the 'New Discovery' as it is called, and a tape-worm about sixty feet in length left my system.

"I am very thankful for this great relief, and now I know what has been the cause of all my suffering."

The story of Father Arnolis is a fair sample of the experience of an astonishing number of Omaha people, and Cooper's preparations are selling here in immense quantities. It is now estimated that he has sold one hundred thousand bottles to date in this city alone, and the sale is still increasing.

All in the Name.

Phyllis (up from the country)—But, Dick this is just like the last piece you brought me to see here.

Dick—My dear Phyllis, don't be absurd. This is "The Naughty Girl of Nice," and the other was "The Grasse Widow." Surely you know that Nice and Grasse are two entirely different places.—Punch.

DOCTOR'S BEST FORMULA

For Remarkably Quick Action on Colds and Coughs.

This prescription will frequently cure the worst cold in a day's time and it is a sure cure for any cough that can be cured. "Two ounces Glycerine; half ounce Concentrated Pine; Put these into half a pint of good whiskey and use in doses of teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours. Shake bottle well each time." Any druggist has these ingredients in stock or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. The Concentrated Pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce vials each enclosed in an air tight case; But be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." This formula cured hundreds here last winter.

They Win.

"Do you look for a favorable outcome to your lawsuit?"

"No, but the lawyers do."—Houston Post.

At any rate the prodigal son acquired more fame than the virtuous brother who stayed home and was decent.

TO LIVE 1000 YEARS

ELDER STWART OF MINNEAPOLIS TO OUT-DO METHUSALEH'S RECORD.

MAKES LEASE FOR THAT TERM

And Declares He Will Be On Hands in 2910 A. D. to Renew For Another Thousand.

Minneapolis.—Elder Levi M. Stewart expects to live one thousand years more.

Paul C. Hirsch, also of Minneapolis, will endeavor to "go him" for the same little period, if he likes certain properties just leased from Mr. Stewart so well that he shall wish to renew the leases when they expire—for said leases run an even thousand years, and contain a provision that the lessee may secure extensions by appearing personally in the presence of the lessor for the latter's signature.

In other words a little business meeting between Mr. Stewart and Mr. Hirsch may be looked forward to by the members of the Minneapolis longevity club, to take place on June 1, 2910.

The veteran real estate man has signed leases which expire Jan. 1, 2910, with Mr. Hirsch, whom he characterizes as the senior member of his firm, although the latter is fully 50 years younger.

Three leases were signed, one being for 40 acres of land extending from St. Alban's bay, Lake Minnetonka, to Christmas lake, the annual rental during the first 20 years amounting to $300. Thereafter the rate will be increased 3½ per cent each score of years, based on the present valuation of the property. The property is valued at $500 per acre.

The other two leases comprise a lot on Tenth avenue south between First and Second streets, valued at $17,000, and the entire State addition, owned by Mr. Stewart and located on Lake street between Portland avenue and Third avenue south. These leases were made on the same basis and for the same period as that of the Minnetonka property.

The valuation of the State addition property on which the lease was based is $100,000. The rental will be increased on a graduated scale every 20 years during the life of the lease.

These leases are record-breakers in the United States so far as the number of years is concerned.

ROAD SEEKS FRANCHISE.

President MacKenzie, Canadian Northern, Coming to Duluth.

Duluth.—William McKenzie, president of the Canadian Northern, is coming to Duluth in the interest of his road in the fight the Canadian Northern is making to secure entrance into this city along the route chosen by the company's engineers through the residence section of West Duluth.

Mr. McKenzie left Winnipeg tonight. He is accompanied by D. B. Hanna, third vice-president, F. H. Phippen, general counsel, and Hugh Sutherland, chief Western executive of the road. Just what they hope to be able to effect in Duluth is not known, as the franchise ordinance will not again come up before the city council till one week from Monday.

It is probable the railroad officials will confer with the representatives of the road in an effort to obtain a comprehensive first-hand grasp of the Duluth situation, and decide definitely just how much they will concede to popular demand of the citizens of West Duluth. It is improbable that the franchise will be acted upon finally until after the city election, Feb. 1. It is scheduled to come up with before election, but it is probable that the meeting of the council the night it will again be sidetracked for political reasons.

There is a possibility that the Canadian Northern officials may wish to meet the members of the city council and discuss the right-of-way situation with them in detail. Some other route may be chosen or the details of construction along the route already selected decided upon. It is probable that a bargain will be struck between the railway officials and the aldermen before the former leave the city.

ZENITH COMPANY CAN ELECT.

Augusta, Maine. — Difficulties existing between the Zenith Telephone company, a Maine corporation doing business at Duluth, Minn., and the Lake Shore Telephone company, also a Duluth concern, were ended so far as the Maine courts are concerned, when Associate Justice Whitehouse, in the supreme judicial court, dissolved an injunction against the Zenith company which had prevented that concern from holding its annual election of officers.

L. P. BAKER HEADS PINE MEN.

Northern Manufacturers' Association Holds Annual Meeting.

Minneapolis.—L. P. Baker was elected president of the Northern Pine Manufacturers' Association at the annual meeting held at Hotel Radisson. Fully 50 members attended. The other officers are: First vice president, T. L. Shevlin; second vice president, C. A. Barton; secretary, H. S. Childs. J. E. Rhodes, former secretary, read a paper on "The Burning of Slashings."

REDWOOD FALLS IS DRY.

For First Time in Thirty Years, There is "Nothing Doing."

Redwood Falls.—For the first time in thirty years Redwood Falls is without a single licensed saloon. The power to grant or withhold license here is vested wholly in the city council.

For several years anti-license voters have succeeded in electing one alderman, and last year an attempt to elect a "dry" alderman in each ward came near being successful, the license candidates having only four majority in the First ward and six in the Second.

This year two of the license candidates and the mayor, heretofore sustaining license, agreed to be governed by a direct vote on the question of licensing saloons, stipulating that the anti-license vote should carry both wards. At the election a clause was added to the ballot for a direct vote on the issue, and the result was a majority of twelve against license in the First ward and one in the Second.

In the Second ward an attempt was made by the license supporters to go behind the returns on account of a ticket which had been passed upon as "dry" by the judges, but which, it was contended, should have been thrown out.

When the council met and was required to act on the applications for license, however, only one alderman, who was unpledged, voted yes.

Citizens generally have accepted the result without excitement, and many believe that the city will not again license saloons.

BRINGS EUROPE'S FARMERS.

Bishop McGolrick Imports 100 Belgians Into Minnesota.

Duluth.—One hundred Belgians will come to America in the coming spring to take up farms in Becker and Hubbard counties in a big Catholic colony to be established there by Bishop McGolrick of this city.

Most of them have means enough to equip a dairy farm or a truck garden plot. The Belgians are especially adapted to gardening work, while the Hollanders are the great dairymen of Europe.

In the meantime, representatives of the bishop are scouring all the large cities of the United States for prospective settlers. They are searching for men who have enough money to make a first payment on a small farm, buy the necessary tools and erect enough buildings to begin farming.

Bishop McGolrick says the European farmers, who, for the most part, are experienced, will be scattered in settlements among the American colonists in order that their methods of farming may serve as models for the emigrants from the great cities, who have little practical knowledge of land cultivation.

Everything points to a large migration of settlers to the lands of the bishop's company early in the spring, and before the summer is passed the promoters expect to see many clusters of prospering settlers' homes in Hubbard and Becker counties.

HARRINGTON DIRECTS FARM.

Succeeds Supt. Robertson, of Crookston, Who Died on Train.

Crookston.—Prof. L. P. Harrington, for two years connected with the state experimental farm and agricultural schools, and with central Minnesota schools before coming here, has been placed in complete charge of the state institution here for the rest of the school year. Supt. William Robertson, whom he succeeds, died in a berth on the train between Crookston and St. Paul two weeks ago while on his way with the Crookston delegation to the state fair board meeting to elect the president and other officers.

Enjoins Village From Buying.

Bemidji.—Judge B. F. Wright has filed an order granting a permanent injunction against the village of International Falls and the trustees of that village, enjoining the village and the trustees, and each of them, from carrying out the provision of a contract and from further buying or purchasing for and on account of the village, from Robinson, Carey & Sands Company, the waterworks plant at International Falls, or receive or take any of said property under a certain contract, said to have been entered into between the village and Robinson, Carey & Sands Co.

This injunction has been issued at the request of John T. Stone, acting for the so-called "municipal league" of International Falls, which objected to the village considering purchasing the waterworks paraphernalia without having first called for bids on the same; then awarding the contract to the lowest bidder.

The question involved in this case, according to Judge Wright, was not a right of the village to purchase these waterworks supplies, but the objection was made to the method employed by the village to do so; that the contract could only be made with the lowest bidder, after published notice of time and place of receiving bids.

HEATWOLE IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Former Congressman Not Allowed To See Visitors.

Northfield. — No visitors are allowed to see Joel P. Heatwole, who is seriously ill with chronic gastritis. Mr. Heatwole has been ill for about a week and physicians say his illness will not be fatal, but it is not denied that it is extremely serious. He is editor of the Northfield News, and was formerly congressman from the Second district.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO HE HAD LESS THAN 3 DOLLARS

HE IS NOW ONE OF THE RICHEST FARMERS IN SASKATCHEWAN, CENTRAL CANADA.

Arriving in Canada in 1891, just eighteen years ago, E. A. Guillomin could speak but his native language. He is a Frenchman. He had but a little over two dollars in his pocket, thus being short over seven dollars of the ten dollars required to secure entry for a homestead of one hundred and sixty acres. He eventually borrowed the money and near Forget, Saskatchewan, he started life in Canada on the homestead in which to-day he is the fortunate possessor of fifty quarter sections of land, or 8,000 acres.

Now Mr. Guillomin did not acquire all these acres as a result altogether of his farming operations, which were extensive. He looked with satisfaction upon what he was doing on his limited area, he was saving, careful, and had foresight. Surrounding land could be had for about $3.00 per acre, and he continued buying as his savings would permit, until now he has fifty quarter sections, some of which he can sell at $25.00 per acre.

Threshed Fifty Thousand Bushels.

This year he was engaged in threshing on his place for 54½ days. He threshed out 50,000 bushels of wheat, of which he sold 34,000 bushels, one train load, at a price varying from 84 to 87 cents per bushel. He has on hand still 16,000 bushels. In addition to wheat he raised 30,000 bushels of oats, 7,000 bushels of barley and 500 bushels of flax. He owns 104 horses and a number of cattle, but since the construction of the railway he has been engaged chiefly in raising wheat. This year he bought his first threshing machine, paying for it the sum of $2,100. He estimates that the machine earned for him this fall $3,000, thus paying for itself in one season and leaving $900 to the good. The weather was very propitious for farm threshing, not a single day being lost in the two months which were spent in this work. The wheat averaged 23 bushels to the acre and graded No. 1 and No. 2 Northern. In the past nine years seven good crops have been harvested on this farm. For six successive years the returns were excellent, that is in the years 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906. In the two following years there was a partial failure. As the years have passed the quality of the buildings on the farm have been steadily improved, and are now as good as can be found in the district. About $10,000 has been invested in this way by Mr. Guillomin. The farm consists of 6,880 acres, of which about 6,000 acres were under crop this season.

An Educational Problem.

Little Margery has just begun to go to the kindergarten, and is filled with a due sense of the importance of her studies there and the solemn value of the attainments that have thus been put within her reach. The other afternoon, after coming home from school, she remained in a brown study for a time, and then said: "Mamma, do I know as much now as I don't know?"

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

His Broad Charity.

Imogene—I know papa is cross and surly sometimes and says things that are unjust, but you should judge him, Philip, by his best.

Philip—Oh, I do, dear. You're his best.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Probably a Female Doctor."

"My wife looks very poorly, you think, doctor?"

"Yes, I do."

"What do you think she needs?"

"A new hat and a new dress!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Children Who Are Sickly.

Mothers should never be without a box of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children. They break up colds in 24 hours, cure Feverishness, Constipation, Headache, Teething Disorders and Stomach Troubles. Over 10,000 testimonials. At all Druggists, 25c. Ask today. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The world is all gates, all oportunities, strings of tension waiting to be struck.—Emerson.

DOCTOR YOURSELF

when you feel a cold coming on by taking a few doses of Perry Davis' Painkiller. It is better than Quinine and safer. The large 50c bottles are the cheapest.

It might improve the pound cake to hit it with an ax.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

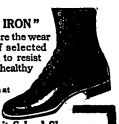
We are never too old to acquire the latest wrinkle.

Pleasant, Refreshing, Beneficial.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and the healthy because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In its production a pleasant and refreshing syrup of the figs of California is united with the laxative and carminative properties of certain plants known to act most beneficially, on the human system, when its gentle cleansing is desired. To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine, for sale by all reputable druggists; one size only, price fifty cents a bottle. The name of the company — California Fig Syrup Co.—is always plainly printed upon the front of every package of the genuine.

California Fig Syrup Co.

LOUISVILLE, KY. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. NEW YORK, N. Y.



Mayer Special Merit SCHOOL SHOES

"WEAR LIKE IRON"

They wear best where the wear is hardest. Made of selected leather specially tanned to resist exactly the kind of wear a healthy boy or girl will give them.

Two layers of leather are sewed in at the tip instead of one, to prevent the toes kicking out. The soles are of extreme toughness.

Mayer Special Merit School Shoes

are made to fit a child's foot in a comfortable, natural way that will prevent foot trouble in later years, yet they are stylish and good looking. Only the genuine have the Mayer Trade Mark stamped on the sole.

FREE—If you will send us the name of a dealer who does not handle Special Merit School Shoes, we will send you, free, postpaid, a handsome picture, size 15x20, of George Washington.

We also make Honorbilt Shoes for men, Leading Lady Shoes, Martha Washington Comfort Shoes, Yerma Cushion Shoes and Work Shoes.

THEY WEAR LIKE IRON

F. MAYER BOOT & SHOE CO.
MILWAUKEE WISCONSIN

THE Famous Rayo Lamp

Once a Rayo user always one

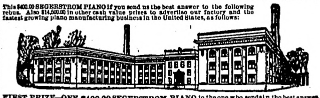
The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the

THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

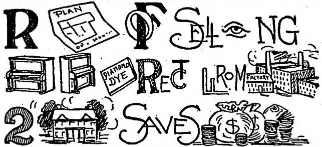
STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(Incorporated)

FREE—TO YOU—FREE

This $400.00 SEGERSTROM PIANO if you send us the best answer to the following rebus. Also $14,500.00 in other cash value prizes to advertise our factory and the fastest growing piano manufacturing business in the United States, as follows:



FIRST PRIZE—ONE $400.00 SEGERSTROM PIANO to the one who sends in the best answer.



THEN—$14,500.00 will be divided in amounts from $25.00 to $150.00 according to merit. These awards are good just the same as so much money towards the purchase of any new piano in our store.

IMPORTANT—No one who has been awarded a prize in any of our former contests will be illegible to compete in this contest. Only one answer will be received from any one family, otherwise the contest is free and open to anyone in the United States.

We are spending a fortune each year in advertising the SEGERSTROM PIANO direct from the homes of satisfied customers which, after all, is the very best advertisement and we intend to accomplish in one year what other manufacturers have taken fifty years to do.

Lipton spent a million dollars in advertising the products of his manufacture. Wise guys pronounced him a lunatic. Today he is heralded by the crowned heads of Europe, proclaimed the King merchant. It pays to advertise when your goods are right. We sell more pianos wholesale and retail than any other manufacturing concern in the country and our plan appeals to the thinking buyers on account of our system of selling pianos direct from factory to home which eliminates all middleman's profits.

Every contestant will be answered by mail, but be sure and enclose a self addressed envelope to assure that your award will not be missent or lost in the mail.

SEGERSTROM PIANO MFG. CO.
804 NICOLLET AVENUE MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA

FREE We Will Send Upon Application to Every Farmer FREE
PROF. THOMAS SHAW'S Directions for Planting Garden, Flower and Field Seeds in our Catalogue of Home Grown Seed
NORTHERN SEED CO., Seed Growers. 11th St., Valley City, N. D.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY

BY PROF. STEPHEN SHELDON COLVIN

SCHOOL CHILDREN LEARNING SERIES OF NON-SENSE SYLLABLES

PSYCHOLOGY, the newest of all the sciences, has been discovering and relating its principles during the last quarter of a century. It has by no means found all of its facts and is far from a complete interpretation of those which it has discovered. Nevertheless there are some things that it has worked out with absolute certainty and many others concerning which it is in a position to make definite hypotheses. The time has now arrived when it is attempting to apply its facts and principles to the solution of some of the most important problems of our daily life.

THE PLAYERS REMEMBER THE GAME IN TERMS OF THE MOVEMENTS THEY MADE

It is a matter of common knowledge that during the last few years there has been an ever growing attempt to cure diseases, both of the mind and of the body, through the tremendous power of suggestion. Prof. Munsterberg, in this country and others abroad, through experiments and practical applications, have conclusively shown that our knowledge of the laws of mind may be used to relieve human life of some of its greatest ills. Probably no discovery in physical science promises to be of as great and lasting benefit to the world as the discovery of the power of suggestion as a law governing a large part of the life of every individual. The time is soon coming when no reputable physician will dare to practice medicine without some knowledge of the facts of psycho-therapeusis.

Recently, and very largely under the leadership of Prof. William Sterm, of the University of Breslau, extensive investigations have been carried on in regard to the psychology of testimony. These investigations have thrown important light upon a vital phase of court procedure and have shown its great weakness in many particulars. Soon this new field of applied psychology will be able to lay down definite laws in the conduct of the examination of the witness. The time is not, probably, far distant when every court will have some officer attached to it who is an expert in the psychology of testimony and who will be able to correct many misunderstandings that are now current in regard to the essential elements of the witnesses' report and the extent of its belief.

In Zurich Dr. Jung has devised a method for discovering some of the most important facts in regard to the mental makeup of an individual. This procedure he calls the "diagnostical association's method." He gives to the subject to be tested, in succession, a list of 100 words, to which the subject is to respond with the first association that comes into his mind after the presentation of the original word. The character of the associations formed and the time which intervenes between the presentation of the stimulus word and the response are important elements in diagnosing the mental condition of the individual and in discovering essential facts in his previous history. This method has been used with marked success in the discovery of crime and it promises to be of great importance in the diagnosis of nervous diseases and in the detection of the criminal.

While the application of psychology to the treatment of diseases, to the discovery of truth and to the detection of the criminal is tremendously important, another field of its application, while less spectacular and while not calculated to excite immediately so great popular interest, promises to be of more far-reaching consequence in the regulation of our daily life. This last-named field is in the psychology of learning and applies to the work of our entire school system, from the kindergarten through the university. The leader in this movement is Prof. Meumann, of the University of Halle. During the last decade Meumann and his pupils have been attempting to discover the most direct and economical methods of the acquisition of knowledge and a large amount of material has been brought together, many facts have been established and conclusions of practical value obtained. It is in this phase of the work of applied psychology that the University of Illinois is particularly interested. For the last four years experiments have been carried on under the direction of the psychological laboratory at Illinois, in regard to determining some of the most important facts concerning memory and kindred topics, the thought being that if the department of psychology were to be of maximum service to the state in which it is situated and to which it owes its support, it should be able to show how the theoretical work of the laboratory can be applied to the bettering of human conditions.

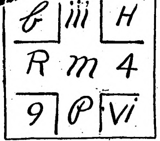
The agricultural and the engineering experiment stations at the university have been attempting to give the practical men of the state information in regard to the best means of preventing wastes and of obtaining the greatest efficiency in the various fields of their endeavor. A similar attempt is being made by the department of psychology of the university to show to the schoolmen of the state how they can save time and how they can so regulate the environment of the school as to get the greatest results with the least possible expenditure of energy.

All knowledge is based fundamentally upon memory and it is quite obvious that if the most economical methods of learning are discovered and applied tremendous wastes in the schoolroom will be saved. It is a striking fact that most students who come to the university do not know how to properly memorize their material. They lose a very large amount of time that might be saved greatly to their advantage, if they had the simple knowledge of how to go about their work before them. What is true of the university student is undoubtedly true even to a greater degree of the pupils in the public schools. It is clear that if the teachers knew what was the best method by which the pupil could memorize a certain material and could train that pupil in such methods of memory highly beneficial results would be accomplished.

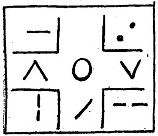
Working along this line, some years ago the department of psychology at Illinois instituted a series of experiments to determine as far as possible the exact facts concerning what is technically know as the ideational types of school children and the relation of these types to the memorizing of different kinds of material. By the ideational type the psychologist understands the sort of mental imagery in which a person thinks—for example, if a child recalls in imagination a bird he may do so by having a mental picture of the bird as a visible object or he may recall the bird in terms of the song that it sings. It is further possible that he may not, in thinking of the bird, see it mentally or recall its song, but that he may merely see the word, bird, written or hear it spoken, or attempt to pronounce it himself. If he actually sees the bird in his mind's eye he is said to have concrete visual imagery. If he hears the song that it sings mentally, he is said to have concrete auditory imagery. If he sees not the bird but the word, he is said to have verbal-visionary imagery, and if instead of seeing the word or hearing it he simply has the mental imagery of pronouncing the word, he is said to have verbal-motor imagery.

It is then possible for the person in his ordinary thinking to employ either concrete imagery, in which he recalls the actual object as presented through some of his senses or to employ verbal imagery, in which latter case he does not recall the object at all, but in which he recalls the printed symbol for that object either in visual, auditory or motor terms. It is possible also to have not only concrete visual and auditory imagery but to have concrete motor imagery as well. A person, for example, in mentally recalling a foot race, may think of the runner as he appears ready for the starting signal, or he may think of the starting signal, or, finally, he may think of the muscular sensations which come in running the race. In this latter case he would think of the runner in terms of concrete motor imagery.

Probably the football player, in recalling the experiences of the game in which he has taken a part, does not see the plays as the spectator does from the grandstand, but recalls them in terms of the movements which he makes in executing them.



A TEST TO DISTINGUISH VISUAL FROM AUDITORY IMAGERY



A SET OF NON-SENSE CHARACTERS FOR TESTING VISUAL IMAGERY

It doubtless makes a good deal of difference just what sort of imagery the school child uses in memorizing his material, as to whether the best results are to be obtained or not and it is obviously important that the teacher should know the character of this imagery if he is to deal adequately with the pupil. The results of the experiments by the department of psychology at the University of Illinois clearly indicate that most children in the beginning grades of the school think predominantly in terms of objects seen, that is, they possess concrete visual imagery and probably, to a certain extent, also concrete auditory and motor imagery as well. Later on this concrete form of imagining dies out. They think in terms of words and the actual experience behind these words becomes dim and obscure. The whole process is to make their learning a thing of books and not a thing of vital, pulsating life. This is a great advantage in abstract thinking. It is, however, a distinct hindrance in appreciation of culture and art. If we wish to train our children to think accurately and abstractly we must train them, as the schools evidently are now training them, in the direction of verbal imagery. If, however, we wish to develop artists, poets, men of letters, inventors and those with technical skill in the various professions, we must see to it that this concrete imagery is not lost; for if this loss takes place it will mean tremendous waste and disaster for many.

The experiments further showed that those children who thought in visual terms were best able to memorize material with a visual content and that those who thought in auditory or motor terms were best able to learn material with an auditory or motor content. This, of course, means as far as the application of results to school work is concerned that the material which the child learns must be in some way adapted to his ideational type, if the best results are to be accomplished.

This, perhaps, is not so vital a fact with the average child who has many ways, it may be, in which he can imagine his experience, but there are always in every schoolroom numbers of exceptional children who are very slow to get on in certain fields and who, nevertheless are far from being mental defectives. To take a concrete illustration, there are children who have great difficulty in learning to read and yet who are often bright in other school subjects. It is probable that such children have not developed the type of verbal-visual imagery. The printed word fails to carry its proper significance. Such a child, obviously, must be treated differently from the average individual. In the first place, he may be helped in his reading by being instructed to spell and pronounce words. The method of showing him words and having him grasp them as visual signs will be a hopeless method of procedure in his case. Further, the child may be aided by a systematic attempt to strengthen his verbal-visual imagery. There is ample evidence that children can be trained in any type of imagery and it is the business of education to see that those who are defective in an essential type are trained to overcome this defect.

We cannot think for a moment of demanding the same sort of thing from the child whose eyesight is poor that we demand from the child of normal visual acuity. It is just as foolish to expect the child who is defective in a certain ideational type to do the work of a normal child as it is to expect the child who is defective in his visual sensibility to accomplish the same results under the same conditions that the child of normal sensibility accomplishes.

Another important problem which has been undertaken by the psychological laboratory at the university is to discover the most advantageous conditions, besides those relating to the ideational type, under which certain kinds of school material may be memorized. At the outset of such an investigation the psychologist is confronted with the difficulty of selecting the sort of material for memorizing which will be sufficiently uniform to be tried on many children and on the same child at various times. It is quite evident that if we use the ordinary materials of the schoolroom, such as the child has had in his reading, geography and history room, that this material will not be of the uniformity desired. It was to avoid this difficulty that the psychologist, Ebbinghaus, nearly 25 years ago, tried a memory experiment, in which he used for material nonsense syllables, that is, certain syllables which could be pronounced and which yet had no significance; syllables, for example, like nec-doz-hux. Here we have a relatively uniform material that has, for the most part, little or no significance.

Using this kind of material, several thousand school children in Urbana, Champaign, Bloomington, Danville and in some of the normal schools of the state have been tested to determine certain conditions under which they learn most advantageously. One of the questions asked in these investigations has been this: Suppose the child is given something to learn and is asked to recall it later on, under what conditions during the interval between learning and recall will his memory be most retentive? The data obtained has been so extensive that it has not been completely worked over as yet. Some very interesting conclusions, however, have been reached—among these this, that writing serves as a great distraction and that the child can recall material better when the interval is filled with such a strenuous activity as number work, than when it is filled with the writing of some familiar phrase, as "My Country, 'tis of Thee." The greater distracting tendency of writing than of other school occupations shows itself particularly in the lower grades. It has also been found out that when young children are required to learn by keeping perfectly still they are at a disadvantage. If you wish to have the child learn under the most disadvantageous conditions, require that child to keep perfectly still.

The experiments at the University of Illinois clearly show that oral composition is the most satisfactory method of developing real power of expression in young children.

If it is finally determined how the interval between learning and recall can be most advantageously filled, then the arrangement of the school program of studies can be worked out on a psychological basis and not on the more or less haphazard basis which seems to be the present plan.

Among other problems in this field of applied psychology which the department has undertaken or proposes to carry out in the near future may be mentioned the following:

1. What are some of the most advantageous conditions of learning to spell correctly?
2. In learning, is it better to give all of the time to a study of the subject matter to be learned, or is it better to devote a portion of the time in the attempt to recall material that has already been mastered?
3. Is it better, in learning, to attempt to memorize the material by commencing at the beginning and running through to the end consecutively and by repeating this process until the whole has been mastered or is it better to learn a part and then another part, and so on?
4. What method of presentation is more advantageous in learning? By this is meant, specifically, is it better to present to the child material to learn orally or visually, and is it better to present the material simultaneously or successively—that is, should the whole thing that he is to learn be given at once or is he to study one part and then the next and so on?

In considering the first of these problems it may be said that results at Illinois clearly point to the fact that the method of teaching children to spell by giving the word as a whole and not breaking it up into syllables is not the psychological method and that the old method of syllabication with some of its obvious faults had distinct advantages over some of the extreme methods of to-day.

Apropos the second problem it is clearly established by experiments at Illinois that there is great advantage in not spending the entire period of learning on studying the material presented, but that it is of very great advantage to spend part of this time in attempting to recall what has been shown. Train the pupil to look at the page that he is trying to memorize for a period and then to turn his gaze away and in his mind's eye recall the printed matter.

It is generally held by investigators that the best method of memorizing is to learn the material by commencing at the beginning and running through the whole process to the end. The Illinois experiments brought out this fact, that in such consecutive learning there are certain parts that are mastered more quickly than others and that it is advantageous to first go over the whole material consecutively until the more easily acquired material is mastered and then to spend some time in learning those parts that are more difficult and to finally relearn the whole consecutively.

Now, in attempting to answer the fourth question, experiments have been carried on at Illinois which show rather clearly that the most advantageous way to present material to little children is visually and in succession. The reason for this, in part at least, is because successive presentation secures better attention than simultaneous presentation and that the word when seen, especially if it is difficult, can be better comprehended than if it is merely heard.

The foregoing account gives a statement of some of the most typical and important experimental investigations now in progress in the psychological laboratory at the University of Illinois. As has already been said, the main emphasis is being placed upon the psychology of learning, more specifically on technique and economy in our processes of acquisition. At the same time ample scope is given for the theoretical aspects of the subject so that the field in a general way may be covered and that those who wish to obtain higher degrees in the subject may find ample opportunity for research in the direction which interests them most.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1910. NO. 46.

Gossip of Washington

What Is Going On at the National Capital.

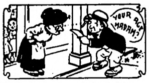
Oh My! Women Must Tell Their Age



YOUR AGE MADAM?

WASHINGTON.—"Pardon me, madam, the government of the United States would like to know your age."

With that remark the census enumerator will politely display his badge and prepare to make an entry in the official census papers. The question is, will every woman in the United States when they start taking the census April 15 disclose her real number of years, or will she reply that it is none of the government's business? The sporting editors says the betting is about even.

Willard E. Hotchkiss, supervisor of the First district of Illinois, which includes Chicago, was in Washington recently to confer with supervisors of other large cities on this and other problems in taking the census.

Another question necessitating considerable tact is that regarding the "head" of the house. The man, of course, is the ostensible head of every household, but when it comes to making an official report to the government there may be a difference of opinion.

Supervisor Hotchkiss said another of the most important question discussed was that of fully acquainting foreigners of the real purpose of the census.

"A display of official papers and badges tends to frighten the foreigners," said Mr. Hotchkiss. "They fear it has something to do with deporting them or forcing them to give up money, and their instant refuge is to give untruthful replies to the questions put by the enumerators.

"To guard against this we decided to try to educate the foreigners beforehand so that when the enumerator calls they will know just what to expect. We are educating them through their children in the schools, through the churches, the foreign newspapers and settlements and societies in various parts of the country.

"A carelessly taken census shows a smaller population than a carefully taken one. An enumerator often finds people in his district are not at home, and instead of returning there later he passes them up entirely.

Senator Dick's Experience in a Bank

"WHEN I was a young fellow," says Senator Dick, "I worked in a bank. One day—a Saturday, when, for some reason or other, I was anxious to get away early—it was found that the cash was 25 cents short. We worked for an hour trying to find that money. My time was growing shorter every minute.

"At length I dug down into my pocket and pulled out a quarter. 'Here,' I said, and I tossed the money down on the counter. I didn't see why that wouldn't settle things. But my employer was very strict. 'Young man,' he said, 'take that money back. We will find that quarter if it takes all night.

"Well, we worked till midnight. Then the banker told us to come back the next day—Sunday. We did, and it was noon before we found the error. Of course, I've since learned that it wasn't merely the fact that a quarter was missing that caused the concern; it was the fact that that one error might lead to others, which wouldn't be discovered possibly for a week. Then the confusion would have been almost endless."

A treasury official was at a function the other night and was presented to a charming young woman. As soon as she learned he was in the treasury department, she said:

"I want to complain to you about that inquisition over there."

"What inquisition?"

"The examination of baggage at the port of New York."

"But I'm not in charge of the customs."

Made no difference to the young woman. She forced the official to listen to her story. She had come over from Europe with a lot of ribbon in her trunk. An inspector ordered the trunk opened. He asked her what she was going to do with the ribbon. She told the truth, though she was a good deal embarrassed.

"Why," said the official, "he only wanted to know if you were going to sell the ribbon or use it yourself. You need have given him no more information than that."

Pictures of Ex-Speakers Like Chromos

NEVER AGAIN
CHAMBER OF HORRORS

NEXT to the Hall of Horrors, where the marble and bronze and plaster effigies of dead and gone statesmen, jurists and warriors speck the walls around what was once the old house of representatives, the painted effigies in the lobby back of the house of representatives arouses the risibilities of every lover of real art who passes through. That gallery of equal horrors is now up for attack.

Hanging upon the walls are rows and rows of pictures of former speakers of the house of representatives. That is, they are called pictures.

Many of them are flamboyant things in colored crayons, that would make a kindergarten kid weep to gaze upon them. A lot more of them are done in black crayon, and they are certainly the limit. A few of the latter ones are done in oils, and the poor speakers whom they represent look as though they had been boiled in oil while sitting for those same portraits, so pained and injured is the expression on the faces of most of them.

In the latter class are Speaker Reed and Speaker Crisp. Speaker Reed, when gazing upon the canvas that represents him one day, turned to a friend and said: "Sa-ay, I don't wonder the Democrats hate me if I look like that to them." The picture of Charles S. Crisp is a smug, fat looking customer as little like the genial-faced, clear-eyed Speaker Crisp as anything could well be imagined.

Indians Don't Want to Be Citizens

U.S. HANDOUT
WHO WANTS TO BE A CITIZEN

EUFAULA Harjo, who is the representative in Washington of the four tribes of Indians in Oklahoma, is in Washington trying to induce congress to take some action to protect the Chickasaws, Cherokees, Creeks and Choctaw Indians in Oklahoma from the operation of Oklahoma laws, which make the Indians citizens of the state. Mr. Harjo declares that his people do not want to be citizens. He says they want to continue to be wards of the government. He says:

"The red man is not fitted for citizenship. This government takes far more care to guard the rights of the negro than it does those of the Indians. Surely the Indians have as much, if not more, claim on the United States than the negro. We want the United States to live up to the treaty of 1823, which guaranteed that the Indians should be wards of the government and be taken care of as long as grass grows, water runs or the sun shines, meaning forever. The government is not living up to that treaty with the Oklahoma Indians."

Mr. Harjo hits Indian education as it now stands some hard knocks. He says: "The education of the Indian is a farce. Schools accomplish nothing. All we ask is our rights under the treaty of 1823."

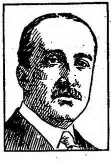
Mr. Harjo being an Indian and, like all the other "wards of the government," dead sure of clothes and food while the Indians are wards of the government, much prefers for that condition of things to stand.

It is a heap easier to draw annuities from the government to live upon than it is to get out and hustle, and that has been one of the chief faults of the treatment of the Indians in this country.

No work is so small but that faithfulness in it will sooner or later be seen and rewarded.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

ARMOUR ON THE HIGH PRICES



"The exodus from the farm to the city and the natural law of a supply that has not kept pace with demand are to blame for the increased cost of living which recently has caused such a furore in the United States as well as other countries," says J. Ogden Armour, president of Armour & Co., packers, and owner of the Armour Grain Company.

Strange as it may seem, Mr. Armour says he welcomes the boycott that has been declared against meat in many parts of the country.

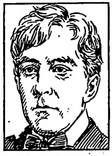
"I welcome such a movement," he is quoted as saying, "because I think it may make for lower prices. I want to see lower prices."

Mr. Armour said he believed increased production is the only remedy for the existing high prices and when asked what he considered a practical way of obtaining it replied:

"James J. Hill has been making some practical suggestions along that line. The people must go back to the farms and farms must be made more productive. Movements which, like land congresses, have for their object to lead people from the cities to the farms, are economically more important than anything else just now.

"Whether by irrigation, reclamation, fertilization or colonization, the production of grain and live stock must be increased. Few of the thousands of foreigners who immigrate to the United States each year settle on the farms. They crowd the cities, increasing the demands on production, while adding nothing to it. Statistics show that."

LANDIS IN CALCIUM RAYS



Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, of the United States district court at Chicago has gotten back into the limelight with a great splash. The calcium rays are on the judge as strong as they were the day the news flashed to the world that he had fined the Standard Oil Company $29,240,000. It's the beef trust this time that gives the fearless jurist a chance to bask in the limelight and before the matter is settled the rays promise to cover other well-known persons.

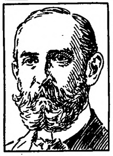
Judge Landis is only 44 years old and when he put the staggering fine on the books against the "daddy of trusts" some said it was the impetuosity of youth. Anyway, the court of appeals didn't take kindly to the fine and Rockefeller didn't have to dig down in his pocket to pay it.

Several days ago a grand jury was impaneled in Chicago. Everything went along smoothly and the alert reporters gathered in the court room didn't have material for a scare until during the course of his instructions Judge Landis paused and said:

"Having in mind the duty of the district attorney, I notified that officer that on your assembling here to-day the court would direct your attention to the subject to which I have heretofore specifically referred. It is a source of profound regret that two days thereafter there began widespread newspaper publication of matter purporting to come from Washington and expressing the intention and determination of certain government functionaries there as to this proceeding, and alleging, in that connection, their purpose with respect to certain individuals residing in this district.

"Without assuming here officially that there is anything behind these publications except journalistic enterprise, I caution you to pay no attention whatever to them, as it will be your duty to conscientiously refrain from making any disclosure of matters transpiring in your jury room."

EGAN PRAISES THE DANES



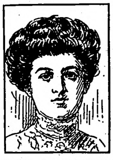
Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, American minister to Denmark, who will return in a few days to his post at Copenhagen after a 60-day leave of absence, says the Danes are "from Missouri" now. They have joined the "show me" class since their experience with Dr. Frederick W. Cook.

Dr. Egan has been United States minister to Denmark since 1907 and is nationally known among Roman Catholics as a writer and teacher. Before his appointment to Denmark he was professor of the English language and literature at the Catholic University of America and had been professor of the same subjects at Notre Dame university. Dr. Egan was born in Philadelphia May 24, 1852. He was educated at La Salle college and Georgetown college and in early life engaged in the work of editing various Catholic publications of the country. He has written and edited a large number of books.

"Of course when Dr. Cook came to Copenhagen and told us that he had been as far as the pole we all believed him," said Dr. Egan. "Everybody believed him. But the Danes especially were enthusiastic, not only because they worship learning and are intensely interested in polar research, but also because they love Americans and all things American.

"Let me correct one false general impression. Cook was not given any decoration by the king of Denmark. He has no decoration from the king at all. He was given the gold medal of the Geographical society and the honorary doctorate of philosophy of the University of Copenhagen, but nothing else.

NAVY ROW OVER THIS GIRL



United States naval circles are all stirred up by a row which was caused by the photograph of a pretty girl. The young woman is Miss Dorothy Hesler of Evanston, Ill., and it seems that she is the innocent cause of the trouble. She has gone to Boston, where she intends to testify in behalf of Paymaster George P. Ault and Assistant Surgeon Ansey H. Robnett, who are to be court-martialed. They are charged with disrespect to a superior officer, assumption of authority, falsehood, insult and conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen. Dr. Edward Cowles of Back Bay, Mass., makes the charges.

Miss Hesler, who, report says, is the affianced bride of Dr. Robnett, thus explains the affair:

"I was the innocent cause of the trouble. The unwelcome attentions of Dr. Cowles caused the trouble. I went to Boston last November to visit my uncle and I met Dr. Cowles. Once after he had left I discovered that my picture was gone. I wrote him a note asking him to return it, but I received no answer. I called him up on the telephone and he said he would return it as soon as he found it, as he had misplaced it.

"On the night of the dance at the home of Dr. Howard E. Ames, which was the twenty-seventh, he made a remark about the picture. Two of my father's friends took exception and demanded an apology. That is how this disgraceful thing started."

Miss Hesler is a daughter of the late Dr. F. A. Hesler, who died while in the service in the Philippines. She is popular in Evanston society.

Dr. Cowles is a relative of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

Odd News From Big Cities

Stories of Strange Happenings in the Metropolitan Towns

Philadelphian Hates a Telephone Now

AW NOW DARLING

PHILADELPHIA.—There is a man in West Philadelphia who is going to throw his telephone out of the house, unless his wife gets a divorce to save him the necessity of doing so. It happened through an extension 'phone, and it wasn't his fault at that, but his spouse refused to allow him to establish an alibi.

When the bell rang the other evening his wife was in the sitting room on the second floor, where there is an extension 'phone, and he was in the study, where there is another. Each took down the receiver, thinking to answer the call, but the wife maintained a discreet silence and "listened" when she heard a feminine voice in dulcet tones inquire:

"Is that you, John?" Hubby's name was John, and, being masculinely human, and not thinking about the extension 'phone, he replied: "Yes, dear, how are you?"

"Oh, I'm just heartbroken. I haven't seen you for so long, sweetheart; you know it's been just a week to-night since you were here, and you said you'd call up last night and you didn't."

"Just a week ago," "John" had attended a lodge. He didn't remember this, but the woman on the "extension" did.

Thinking to carry out the joke for awhile the doomed man replied in most sugared accents: "Well, darling, I wanted to, but there was something sitting near me all the evening, and you know I wouldn't like any one else to overhear our little conversation—" Here a voice that was neither sweet nor tender interjected:

"No! You wouldn't like it; but I've been listening to this brazen, shameless creature, and to you; you deceitful, vicious, two-faced wretch—this man sitting all last evening with his wife and two innocent little children, pretending to be happy, and all the time chafing because he couldn't call up a designing creature without a particle of modesty or womanly reserve."

Here there was heard a feminine shriek from the other end of the wire, while the joker sat with the receiver in his nerveless fingers and great beads of cold perspiration gathering on his unhappy brow.

Caught a Lion, Thought It a Giraffe

ST. LOUIS.—"The bravest man I ever saw," said Maj. James Jay Brady, retired circus representative, "was an old negro in the southern part of Illinois, and his boldness was due entirely to his ignorance.

"Our circus train had been in a collision, and a dozen or more animals escaped and were roaming through the neighboring woods. Several of our men were left in a near-by town, and a reward of five dollars was offered in the country paper for each animal captured and returned. With the advertisement was a caution concerning the ferocious royal Nubian lion, which was among the animals missing. The instructions were to kill him on sight and take no chances.

"We had been in the town several days and recovered most of the animals, when one morning an aged negro sauntered up to the hotel and inquired if the circus man who was giving five dollars for animals was around. On being answered in the affirmative, he said:

"'Did you all had a guyraffe in yore succus?'

"'We had a giraffe,' I replied, 'but he escaped.'

"'Wall, I done cotch 'im,' said the darky. 'Does I get them air five dollars?'

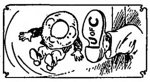
"'You certainly do, if you can deliver the goods.'

"'You all jes' stay yere, 'till I go over yander to my place, whar I'se got dat air guyraffe tied up, and I'll fotch 'em yere and get them five dollars.'

"When he came in sight with one end of a rope in his hand and the animal (which he was alternately jerking and kicking) tied to the other end, you can imagine our astonishment when we discovered in the negro's 'guyraffe—'

"The ferocious royal Nubian lion."

Are Told to Beware of the Doughnut



CHICAGO.—The humble doughnut has been placed under the ban as an after-the-dance refreshment.

A committee of faculty and student social authorities at the University of Chicago spent three hours in discussing the merits of the "sinker" as a light refreshment for an informal charity ball, and then announced that the well-intentioned test for optimists had been cast from the menu.

For doughnuts, eaten close to the magic midnight hour, make you dream. Worse than this, you would speak more correctly should you say that doughnuts eaten at this period of the night give you the nightmare.

And to put an end to all doubts on the subject the golden-crusted confection was tried last year, the charitably disposed students ate generously between dances of the tempting array of doughnuts offered for sale, and two days following doctors in the neighborhood of the Midwaw did a rush business.

And over the same route this revolutionizing committee sent the cider which, from time immemorial, has been the accompaniment of the charity dance. Soft cider, the committee argues, is all very well and a pleasant harmless and refreshing drink, but the troublesome question always bobs up, "Is it soft, or, horrible thought, has it passed that stage?"

And if it is soft when the committee goes out to purchase it, will it still be in that harmless state during the progress of he dance? And Hyde Park is a prohibition district.

Kicked by a Hog and Bitten by Horse

NEW YORK.—Kicked by a hog, bitten by a horse and quizzed by the community Brewster Conklin of Huntington, L. I., former highway commissioner, feels like joining Col. Roosevelt—in Africa and assisting in the extermination of all kicking and biting animals. He isn't happy.

It was only a few days ago that Mr. Conklin had a fine fat hog to be slaughtered. He had looked after the fattening of that particular hog himself and he determined to have an eye on its sticking. The hog resented the proceeding by kicking her owner in the lip.

Mr. Conklin wears Dundreary whiskers, and the wound on his lip made shaving out of the question. His friends pretended to take a grain of salt when he informed them his injury was due to a kick in the mouth delivered by a fat hog.

"Ah, gwan! Is the other fellow in the hospital?" some unfeeling ones are said to have inquired.

More than the kick of a hog is required to make Farmer Conklin stop working. A few days later he was in his barn hitching up his old sorrel. The horse had been a family pet for years—more years, 'tis said, than Conklin would like a prospective buyer to reckon up by the animal's teeth. But it disregarded all considerations of gratitude and regard, and reaching around as he was adjusting the headstall, chewed off a portion of Conklin's ear.

Now, Mrs. Conklin has some pride in her husband's appearance. She had not been pleased over the pig episode, and when she saw the earmarks of the horse upon her husband, she asked for an explanation.

"Gee, whiz! How should I know? D'y' s'pose I asked the horse?" said the suffering husband.

THE SUNBEAM.
W. G. HUNT, Publisher.
SUNBEAM. - - MINN.

MORE SPUNK NEEDED.

We need here in the United States a little more of that good old English bluntness on the part of modest men and women who know their own worth, when men and women of the arrogant sort get in the way or try to be patronizing, says New York Independent. Our observation is that nowhere in the world are men and women of exceptional intellectual attainments so lacking in self-assertion as they are in the United States. This phenomenon is a comparatively new one in American life. Wherever one opens the documents of American history before the civil war he is sure to discover interesting incidents proving the sense of dignity and real self-respect of the American farmer, mechanic, merchant, teacher, physician or clergyman. It was something in man himself that in those days was regarded as worth while and worthy of respect. It takes a certain amount of courage for an individual, face to face with a person politically or financially prominent, to tell him to stay on his own reservation and mind his own business. Americans have been inclined to regard the Englishman's habitual manifestation of this particular kind of courage as a disagreeable quality. Perhaps it is. But we are convinced that it is a necessary quality, and that its cultivation is an essential part of that eternal vigilance which is the price of liberty.

Many crimes diminish. Defalcations, in spite of a popular impression to the contrary, are far less in amount than they were. Wealth has grown and fiduciary responsibilities swell, but the total amount of defalcations annually are below those of a few years ago, says Philadelphia Press. Skilled bank burglaries are less numerous. The safe, electric light and electric alarms have got the better of the bank burglar. Counterfeiting notes does not compare with the amount, number and risk, under the old bank note system half a century ago, or in the first 20 years of the national note system, bank or treasury, from 1863 to 1883. Every bank had to watch once for counterfeits, as it does not now. Today counterfeiting is on a petty scale. Post office thefts by officials have almost disappeared. Instead of hunting for them, as its members once did, the postal secret service or force of inspectors is principally dealing with the use of mails for swindles.

New Jersey is about to commemorate properly the most stirring and dramatic episode of the revolution occurring within the borders of that state. A commission appointed by the governor is preparing to create a park at the point where Washington and his troops crossed the Delaware on that wild winter night and, with soldiers many of whom left marks in the snow from their ill-protected and bleeding feet, struck a blow which amazed an enemy too self-confident to be alert. The battle of Trenton was one of the few famous victories in a war for independence abounding in hardships and reverses, and New Jersey, now a rich and happy state, does well thus to set apart the scene.

Nikola Tesla is said to have practically perfected a new system of wireless telegraphy and telephony which will virtually eliminate the element of distance, making it as easy to communicate with the other side of the world as with the man next door. Mr. Tesla can be depended on to come to the front at stated intervals with a tremendous idea, but somehow or other it never seems to get into actual operation. The last time he emerged before this was to say he was arranging a plan for communication with Mars. But Mars has not yet been heard from.

The United States consul at Malaga, Spain, reports that there is no market for American safes there, because there are no burglars and few fires. This is likely to cause envy for the Andalusian honesty; but it may be mitigated by the further reflection that there is not much business growth and comparatively little money to put into safes.

Some finicky person is trying to drive the word "galore" out of the language. He will encounter the determined opposition of the poets. They need it in their business.

This is the day of startling discoveries in medicine. The management of a Virginia hospital for the insane have found that kind words and gentle treatment produce surprising benefits for their charges.

Now that it has been discovered that the bookworm is not detrimental to health, every family should adopt one.

This is the era of the aeroplane, not of the cobblestone.

MEAT PROFITS BIG

SENATOR M'CUMBER DECLARES FARMERS GETS INADEQUATE RETURNS FOR PRODUCTS.

WILSON COMPARES PRICES

Secretary Shows Enormous Advances Both by Wholesaler and Retailer—Says Rates on Sugar, Tea, Spices. Crackers Have Been Reduced.

Washington.—"That the farmer gets an inadequate return for his products," was the declaration of Senator McCumber of North Dakota, Friday, while discussing the question of increased foodstuff prices in the senate.

The senator made some statements which, if they are founded on fact, show that the packers, wholesalers and retailers of meat are making profits beyond the conception of the human mind in their enormity. He used his own knowledge, a report of Secretary Wilson and a price card of the senate restaurant to prove his contention.

"An average beef animal on a Dakota ranch brings $70," he said, "but, according to the prices here," pointing to the senate restaurant bill of fare, "it is sold to the consumers who eat there for the enormous sum of $2,500, enough to buy half a farm. And prices in the ordinary restaurant show that the $70 beef animal is sold for $2,000. The fact that the farmer gets but $70 shows that he does not get the money, and the effect of the bills to take the tariff off meat and the products of the farm would be to establish a legislative boycott against the tiller of the soil."

The comparison of prices submitted by Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture show enormous increases by both wholesaler and retailer—the advance being greater for the retailer in one product and for the wholesaler in another, but mostly the big advance was by the wholesaler. Here are some samples:

Bread—Wholesale, 25.1; retail, 4.9.

Butter—Wholesale, Elgin, 29.8; creamery extra, 27.5; dairy, 24.6; retail, 30.6; no quality indicated.

Cheese—Wholesale, 26.9; retail, 20.3.

Coffee—Wholesale, 3.9; retail, 5.0.

Eggs, new laid—Wholesale(39.8; retail, 36.2.

Wheat flour—Wholesale, spring, 43.6; winter, 26.8; retail, 24.4; no quality indicated.

Lard—Wholesale, 63.3; retail, 38.2.

Beef—Wholesale, fresh, 11.8; salt, 41.9; retail, fresh, 14.9; salt, 10.6.

Dressed Mutton—Wholesale, 21.4; retail, 26.8.

Bacon—Wholesale, 54.4; retail, 52.9.

Ham—Wholesale, 21.9; retail, 31.8.

Milk—Wholesale, 30.0; retail, 18.1.

Potatoes—Wholesale, 70.6; retail, 25.5.

The report shows that prices on sugar, tea, spices and soda crackers have been slightly reduced.

The advances shown by the secretary were for the year 1907 over the year 1899, which was regarded as normal. And great as those advances are, they have been greatly swelled by advances since 1907.

In the report of the secretary, which was in response to the resolution of Senator Crawford, he shows in a measure why advances by the wholesalers were generally greater than those by retailers. The substitution of poorer goods in the case he gives, the report says:

"It is not possible, in taking the retail prices over a large area, to secure results standardized with the same degree of accuracy as in the case of wholesale prices. It was known that in the retail trade, as prices advance, substitutions are made of the same name but of inferior grade. It is impossible to determine to what extent this process of substitution may have taken place in the various articles."

HALT IN BALLINGER CASE

Postponement Is Made Until Feb. 17 to Permit Secretary's Counsel to Make Preparations.

Washington.—To permit the arrival in the city of counsel for Secretary Ballinger and to allow counsel to become familiar with the case, the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee Friday adjourned its hearings until February 11.

John J. Vertrees of Nashville, Tenn., and Carl Rasch, formerly United States district attorney for Montana, have been formally selected to represent Secretary Ballinger, Land Commissioner Dennett and Field Agent Schwartz in the investigation.

It developed at the brief public session of the committee that under date of February 2, Senator Nelson, chairman of the committee, wrote to Secretary Ballinger that he had been directed by the members to suggest to him the importance of being represented by counsel to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to present in orderly fashion such evidence as would be material to "the other side."

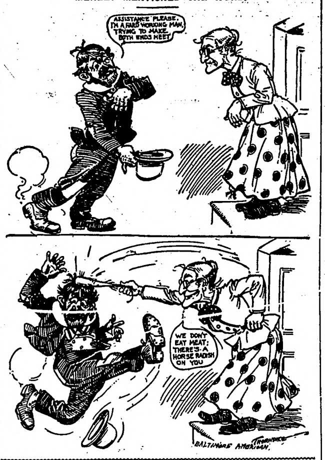
Missouri Men Get Busy.

Kansas City, Mo.—Feeling that immediate action is necessary to have the Missouri river appropriation, a committee of business men left here Friday for Washington to press their claims before the senate and house committees.

Congressman Lovering Dead.

Washington.—Representative William C. Lovering of Massachusetts died at his residence in this city Friday. He was 75 years old, a Democrat, and cotton manufacturer.

MERELY MENTIONED THE WORD.



ASSISTANCE PLEASE, I'M A HARD WORKING MAN, TRYING TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET
WE DON'T EAT MEAT; THERE'S A HORSE RADISH ON YOU
BALTIMORE AMERICAN
THORNDIKE

CONVICT HERO IN PRISON FIRE

NEGRO MURDERER LEADS 200 IN FIGHT ON FLAMES.

Burning of Power House Will Lead to Idleness of 1,000 Prisoners.

Joliet, Ill.—When fire broke out in the power house of the Illinois state penitentiary in this city, over 1,000 convicts were at work.

The alarm was sounded and many of them were detailed to fight the flames while the others were marched to their cells.

Before the arrival of the local fire department the prison fire-fighters, who have been organized into a company, did effective work in preventing the flames from spreading. Tucker Ballard, a life prisoner, was the hero of the day.

He led the fire fighters into the burning power house and directed the work. When the roof of the building fell in Ballard refused to quit his post and fell unconscious. He was rescued by other convicts and is in the hospital in a dangerous condition.

Ballard was sent up from Wilmington, Ill., for murder and has been 27 years behind the prison walls.

Some of the convicts who were placed in cells after the fire broke out were badly scared and begged to be allowed to remain in the prison yard.

The night and day guards were called out but no effort was made to escape by any of the prisoners. The power house with its valuable machinery is a total wreck and the institution is crippled. The quarry, shirt factory and shoe plant, together with the other industries of the prison, are out of business and it will be several weeks before they will be in operation.

In the meantime over 1,000 convicts will be idle. Warden Murphy estimates the damage at $100,000. The state carries its own insurance.

BIG EXPRESS MERGER IS ON

Reported That Southern Pacific Has Sold Its Holdings in Wells-Fargo to American.

New York.—What is believed to be virtually a merger of two of the largest and wealthiest express companies in the United States was revealed when the secret got out that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company had sold its holdings of stock in the Wells-Fargo Express Company.

The name of the purchaser could not be ascertained positively, but in authoritative circles it was said to be the American Express Company. If that is correct the purchase means virtually a merger.

Brokers Are Indicted.

New York.—The grand jury indicted three men on charges of grand larceny in the first degree in connection with the failure of the stock exchange firm of Tracy & Co. of 40 Wall street. The firm went to smash on May 17, 1909 with liabilities of $1,500,000. Seven indictments were returned against each of the men, and were filed with Justice Goff in the criminal branch of the supreme court. The justice immediately issued bench warrants.

Victim Last of Aldens.

Salt Lake City.—Harry Alden, whose mutilated body was found by a railroad track at Cucamenga, Cal., Friday, was the last descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, made famous by Longfellow.

Steamship Fire Extinguished.

Galveston, Tex.—Fire which was discovered in the hold of the Morgan steamer El Dorado while at sea and which was still burning Friday when the vessel reached Galveston, was extinguished.

WARSHIPS SAIL FOR ATHENS

British Fleet Hurries to Greece as Cretan Question Is Raised—Turkey Issues Warning.

Malta.—The British battleship Duncan, flagship of Rear Admiral Sir George Astley Callaghan, second in command of the British Mediterranean fleet, with the cruisers Lancaster, Minerva and Barham, and four torpedo boat destroyers, left here Thursday for Piraeus, the port of Athens.

Constantinople.—It is stated that the government has informed the powers protecting Crete that if the Cretans go to the Greek national assembly it will be regarded by the porte as a casus belli. Among the many warlike statements current are assertions that part of the army of Epirus and the Third army corps at Saloniki, are ready to cross the frontier and enter the plain of Larisso. The Turkish fleet also is ready to start for Piraeus.

London.—Should the Cretans attempt to send delegates to the Hellenic national assembly, convoked by King George, which would be considered a serious threat to peace in the near east, or in any other way disturb the status quo, international troops will be landed on the island. One of the conditions under which the troops were withdrawn was that the Cretans should take no steps against the sovereignty of Turkey. The sending of delegates to the Greek assembly would be a breach of the agreement.

The danger is not considered imminent, however, as the national assembly is not expected to meet for months and responsible Greeks and Cretans have assured the powers that they will do nothing to disturb the peace.

BOND FIRM IS BANKRUPT

Fisk & Robinson Fall with Liabilities of $6,735,324—Unable to Meet Loans.

New York.—Wall street was astonished Tuesday to get the news over the ticker that Fisk & Robinson, one of the most reputable bond and banking houses in the street, had been thrown into bankruptcy on the petition of three small creditors.

The firm liabilities are given at $6,735,324, while the assets are claimed to be $112,644 in excess of that figure. In view of the fact that the firm was unable to meet the call of the banks for loans made on some of its securities, it is likely that the depression following the failure will cause a loss of from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 to the creditors. The cash from depositors alone totals $1,212,349.12.

The failure is directly due to the financing of the Buffalo & Susquehanna railway, a short line running from Buffalo into Pennsylvania.

Hold 36,000,000 of Eggs.

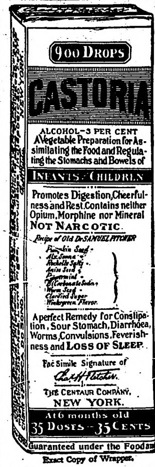
New York.—There are 36,000,000 eggs in one cold storage warehouse in Jersey City, according to the information placed before the Hudson county (N. J.) grand jury in its investigation of the big packing and other concerns which maintain extensive warehouses on the other side of the Hudson river. The eggs have been there since last March, it was learned, together with 100,000 pounds of poultry stored since April last.

Swedish Vessel Sinks; Six Drown.

Hamburg.—The Swedish steamer Annie was in collision with the German ship Susanna near Gluckstadt, on the Elbe, 29 miles northwest of here Thursday. The Annie sunk immediately. Six of her crew were drowned.

Broadens Texas Harbor.

Washington.—A plan for a 24-foot channel of the Arkansas Pass harbor, Texas, to cost $277,500, has been recommended to congress by the war department.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Food and
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

A ROYAL SPENDER

Uncle (to Marjorie, who has married a millionaire)—I really think you'd be happier if you had married a man who had less money.

Marjorie—He will have less after a few years with me.

RAW ECZEMA ON HANDS

"I had eczema on my hands for ten years. I had three good doctors but none of them did any good. I then used one box of Cuticura Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and was completely cured. My hands were raw all over, inside and out, and the eczema was spreading all over my body and limbs. Before I had used one bottle, together with the Cuticura Ointment, my sores were nearly healed over, and by the time I had used the third bottle, I was entirely well. To any one who has any skin or blood disease I would honestly advise them to fool with nothing else, but to get Cuticura and get well. My hands have never given me the least bit of trouble up to now.

"My daughter's hands this summer became perfectly raw with eczema. She could get nothing that would do them any good until she tried Cuticura. She used Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks they were entirely cured. I have used Cuticura for other members of my family and it always proved successful. Mrs. M. E. Falin, Speers Ferry, Va., Oct. 19, 1909."

Young America.

The H.'s lived in the country, kept chickens and lived the simple life. One of their daily diversions was to sit on the front veranda and watch the sunset and Roberta, aged four, sat and watched with them, but it was a rather tedious as well as solemn occasion for her and one day, after watching in silence for quite a while, an explanation of the whole thing suddenly dawned upon her and with the delighted enthusiasm of a discoverer she exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, I know now why it takes the sun so long to set. It has to hatch out so many little stars!"—Los Angeles Times.

Sometimes a man is as badly frightened by an imaginary snake as a woman is by a real mouse.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
WESTERN CANADA
What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:
Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:
"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."
125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909
Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.
Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.
For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.
Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you.) (1)

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
The Army of Constipation
Is Growing Smaller Every Day.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

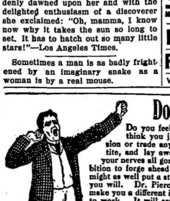
Readers of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

WANTED Agents to sell land in central South Dakota. Write us for information.
McKINNON, CLARK & CO. Gettysburg, So. Dak.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 158-160 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 7-1910



Do You Feel This Way?
Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.
Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from roots without alcohol. Contain no habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

FREE We Will Send Upon Application to Every Farmer FREE
PROF. THOMAS SHAW'S Directions for Planting Garden, Flower and Field Seeds in our Catalogue of Home Grown Seed
NORTHERN SEED CO., Seed Growers. 11th St., Valley City, N. D.

THE KENTUCKIAN WAS PLEASED

HE SECURED A GOOD HALF-SECTION IN CENTRAL CANADA.

It is not only from Kentucky, but from thirty-five to forty different States that there comes the expression of satisfaction from those who have taken up lands in Central Canada as a free homestead or have purchased lands.

Mr. E. K. Bell, of Frankfort, Kentucky, writes to a Canadian Government Official, and says: "I have just returned from Alberta, overjoyed with my trip. Your literature was very flattering, but not half what I found it. I bought a half section between Calgary and Edmonton, one mile from railroad, near a good town. This is the best country I ever saw or ever expect to see. I will go in the spring and get to work on my place. I think it is the coming Country of the World." Some of the papers describe the settling of the Canadian West as "becoming a fever with a great many people. The lure of its golden promises is creeping into their hearts and many are they who are answering the call of that unsettled territory." This paper editorially cautions its readers to exercise care and thought before moving to a distant country. This would be a wise precaution, and is exactly what the Canadian officials ask.

The success of the settler who has made Canada his home for years is the best evidence that can be offered. And of the large number of Americans who have made their homes in Canada, very few have returned. All are satisfied.

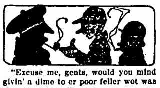
ANGRY PROTEST OF BOYHOOD

"Valentine Night-Gown" Offended Sensibilities of Small Masculine Humanity.

William, a little country boy of six, was snowbound with his mother at the house of an aunt, 20 miles from his own home. The two, who had driven over in a sleigh just to spend the day, were forced to remain three nights, and were supplied by the hostess with garments to sleep in. There being no small boys in his aunt's family, William was put to bed in one of his little cousin Deborah's nightgowns, very indignant at having to wear anything with so many frills and lace trimmings around the neck and on the sleeves.

"I won't stand it, mummer," he loudly protested on the second night, "I won't wear anything so girly! I'll run away, you see if I don't, and perrush in a snow drift before I'll put that thing on again. Why, rather than wear that—that valentine night-gown—I'll sleep raw!"

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE



"Excuse me, gents, would you mind givin' a dime to er poor feller wot was shot in der war?"

"Where were you shot?"

"In der spinal column, sir!"

"Beat it! There wasn't any such battle!"

The Cagey Bachelor.

The woman who wanted the bachelor to come to dinner called him up at his rooms.

"Hello," she said, adding in the irritating way of women, "do you know who this is?"

The tactful bachelor didn't, but he was too diplomatic to admit it.

"Hello, beautiful lady," he made answer.

All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.—Christian.

GET POWER.
The Supply Comes From Food.

If we get power from food, why not strive to get all the power we can. That is only possible by use of skillfully selected food that exactly fits the requirements of the body.

Poor fuel makes a poor fire, and a poor fire is not a good steam producer.

"From not knowing how to select the right food to fit my needs, I suffered grievously for a long time from stomach troubles," writes a lady from a little town in Missouri.

"It seemed as if I would never be able to find out the sort of food that was best for me. Hardly anything that I could eat would stay on my stomach. Every attempt gave me heartburn and filled my stomach with gas. I got thinner and thinner until I literally became a living skeleton and in time was compelled to keep to my bed.

"A few months ago I was persuaded to try Grape-Nuts food, and it had such good effect from the very beginning that I have kept up its use ever since. I was surprised at the ease with which I digested it. It proved to be just what I needed.

"All my unpleasant symptoms, the heart-burn, the inflated feeling which gave me such pain disappeared. My weight gradually increased from 98 to 116 lbs., my figure rounded out, my strength came back, and I am now able to do my housework and enjoy it. Grape-Nuts did it."

A ten days' trial will show anyone some facts about food.

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Monsieur Le Marquis

By ISABELLE KAYSER

(Copyrighted by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

She was an actress, he a marquis. They neither loved nor knew each other. The theater was the scene of her triumphs, while his triumphs were over. She was a star in its zenith; every evening the people raved over her at the Theater Lyrique. His sun had set; no one greeted him when he passed, for his name, although one of the proudest borne by the nobility of France, could not be read in his face. Her naked shoulders were bedecked with diamonds at night, fortunes were squandered for her—he had lost his own for others.

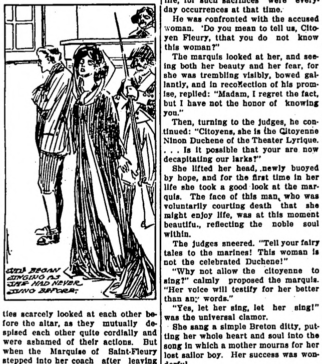
But in spite of all that she only remained Demoiselle Duchene of the Theater Lyrique, while he was still the Marquis of Saint-Fleury, and had he only possessed the clothes befitting his rank, those doors of the Boulevard St. Germain, which would forever remain closed to Demoiselle Duchene, in spite of her youth and beauty, would have flung wide to allow the representative of so illustrious a name to enter.

While the singer lived in luxury, the nobleman almost starved; and when the woman heard of the sad plight of the poor marquis, a most singular plan evolved in her mind. She cared not so much about regilding this ancient crest, but rather wished to make it her own.

She communicated with him by means of a letter. Admired and courted on all sides, she desired to exchange her plebeian name without weighing herself down with a husband; and he, bereft of everything, yea, almost of the necessaries of life, submitted to the humiliation of accepting money and in return giving his name to the young woman.

It did not take them long to arrive at an understanding; the wanton transaction was made, the particulars being drawn up by the lady.

A week later the marriage was consummated, all conditions being scrupulously observed. The contracting parties scarcely looked at each other before the altar, as they mutually despised each other quite cordially and were ashamed of their actions. But when the Marquise of Saint-Fleury stepped into her coach after leaving the church, she carried her head still higher than Ninon Duchene had ever done, while the marquis walked to his simple abode, bowed down by the weight of the action he had just performed, an action dictated only by the most urgent necessity.



SHE BEGAN SINGING AS SHE HAD NEVER SUNG BEFORE.

Several years after this event the Revolution swept over France with such might as to cause all social institutions to totter and to crumble. Everything, such as classes, fortunes, ranks and names were shaken up as forcibly as if they had been mere seeds in the hands of a farmer. One day—it was in the Thermidor of 1794—she was requested to appear in the court of the conciergerie. Her name was among those on the list which had been presented to Fouquier Tirville, the public accuser. This proved to be her pass for the guillotine.

When she entered this place, which meant the antechamber of death, she trembled all over so that she tottered more than she walked. Two guards had to support her. Suddenly she grew pale unto the lips; a name, her name, that of the Marquise de Saint-Fleury, was called out in the loud, sharp voice of the terrible man. She remained silent—her throat parched with fear—and advanced slowly. But already another voice had responded. It came from among the spectators, perched on the high wall outside the prison, and proudly answered "Here!" The judges, nonplussed, looked up in the direction from which the voice had issued, and a guard exclaimed: "Be quiet up there, you wag!"

The judges frowned, and resuming their gravity, repeated:

"Marquise de Saint-Fleury!"

And a second time the voice from above was heard in loud, clear tones, repeating somewhat impatiently: "Here, I say!"

Confusion ensued. Threats were uttered against the disturber who dared to interrupt such important proceedings.

"Bring him here!" commanded the judges.

In a moment more two heavy hands were laid on the stranger's shoulders, who willingly followed the guard. A slight commotion ensued as the former entered the court, for the crowd voted him either a lunatic or one not much better off, to thus foolishly risk his life by voluntarily entering this place which meant sure death to him.

"What right had you to disturb the proceedings?" was the question sternly put to him.

"Citoyens, you called my name. I answered. I am the Marquis de Saint-Fleury!"

"You? You are crazy!"

"I beg your pardon, citoyens! I haven't lost my head yet, but no doubt you will attend to that!" And he bowed mockingly to the judges.

He drew some papers of identification from his pockets and handed them to the judges with unmistakable gratification. The latter examined them rapidly, and recognizing their validity, harshly accosted the man:

"Is this your wife?"

Looking at her with a keen glance, the marquis turned to the judges and said:

"I beg your pardon, citoyens, but I have lived alone all my life."

This reply was given in so simple and straightforward a manner that no one doubted it for an instant; nay, more than this, its veracity was confirmed by one of the guards, who, recognizing our friend, hastened to explain that it was in truth the Citoyen Saint-Fleury, who happened to live next door to him, quite alone, and who, though poor, shared with those poorer than himself. The guard was interrupted. This counted for nothing, they told him, for why did he thus expose himself in such a reckless manner? The woman was undeniably beautiful, and many believed that he disclaimed her in order to save her life, for such sacrifices were everyday occurrences at that time.

He was confronted with the accused woman. 'Do you mean to tell us, Citoyen Fleury, tthat you do not know this woman?"

The marquis looked at her, and seeing both her beauty and her fear, for she was trembling visibly, bowed gallantly, and in recollection of his promise, replied: "Madam, I regret the fact, but I have not the honor of knowing you."

Then, turning to the judges, he continued: "Citoyens, she is the Citoyenne Ninon Duchene of the Theater Lyrique. . . . Is it possible that your are now decapitating our larks?"

She lifted her head, newly buoyed by hope, and for the first time in her life she took a good look at the marquis. The face of this man, who was voluntarily courting death that she might enjoy life, was at this moment beautiful, reflecting the noble soul within.

The judges sneered. "Tell your fairy tales to the marines! This woman is not the celebrated Duchene!"

"Why not allow the citoyenne to sing?" calmly proposed the marquis. "Her voice will testify for her better than any words."

"Yes, let her sing, let her sing!" was the universal clamor.

She sang a simple Breton ditty, putting her whole heart and soul into the song in which a mother mourns for her lost sailor boy. Her success was wonderful.

"Release her!" commanded the judges. Ninon Duchene was saved.

The marquis had scornfully turned his back on her, ready to deliver himself up.

"Why this delay, citoyens?" he queried. "I am the last of my race, and wish to go the way my sovereign went."

After his uneventful life and his inglorious marriage, this voluntary death, it seemed to him, would somewhat redeem the honor of his noble family. He felt a freer man than he had been in leading a dependent life. This woman, bah—so beautiful and yet so cowardly.

She must have read his thoughts. Her face crimsoned with shame.

"Marquis! I release you from your promise!" He looked at her in astonishment, pretending not to understand her.

"Citoyenne, you are free; what more do you wish? Be still."

She blushed painfully, comprehending the deep scorn with which he treated her, and became possessed of the ardent desire to win the esteem of this man, who now despised her. Her face shone with a new and exalted sentiment, that love, inspired by the noble action of this man.

"I do not wish to owe my life to a deception; I am the Marquise de Saint-Fleury, your wedded wife!"

The judges laughed scornfully, furious at having been deceived by this couple. "Enough of this nonsense! Decide; either one or the other!"

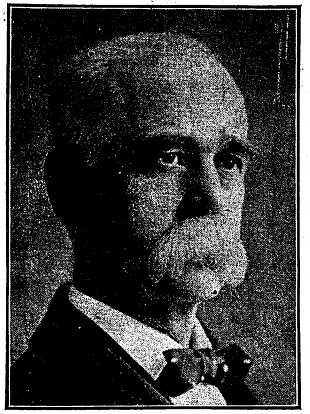
"We are both ready!" exclaimed the young woman fearlessly, and in spite of the opposition of her husband and the indecision of the judges, she called out in the frensy of her young heroism:

"Long live the king!"

Thus she pronounced her own doom.

As to his inner life every man is, under God, the master of his fate.

THE LATE SIDNEY M. OWEN



SYDNEY OWEN DEAD

FAMOUS FARMER, EDITOR AND POLITICAL LEADER GOES QUIETLY TO REST.

DEATH CAUSED BY MALARIA

Arduous Campaign For the Governorship On the Populist In 1894 Weakened Him.

Minneapolis.—Sidney M. Owen, soldier, editor, politician and good citizen is dead after an illness of some weeks.

About a year ago Mr. Owen contracted malaria while on a pleasure trip in Florida, and he had never fully recovered. A weakness of the heart developed. It was aggravated by a severe cough which caused him gradually to grow weaker.

Mr. Owen is believed by many to have been the victim of the strenuous campaign he waged in 1894, when he unsuccessfully championed the People's party of the state against the Republican and Democratic forces for the governorship. The earnest fight he waged left him exhausted and weakened.

Sidney M. Owen was born in Ohio, August 11, 1838, and he received the common school education of that time and completed his studies at Oberlin university. In 1860 he married Helen A. Feagler, who survives him. He served as first lieutenant in the Fifty-fifth Ohio regiment during the civil war.

In 1885, the year after his brother, Horatio R. Owen, founded the Farm Stock and Home, he came to Minneapolis and assumed editorial charge of the publication.

His editorial policy and convictions were such that it gave him the support of the insurgents of that time as typified in the Farmers' Alliance and forced him unwillingly into the state campaign in 1890. He took the field as their candidate for governor, but without a party organization to back him and lacking newspaper support, he was not successful. However, he made an excellent run, polling more than 58,000 votes and made a name for himself as a political leader.

In 1894 he again apepared as candidate for governor on the Populist ticket. The Democratic party stood ready to nominate him and to make the campaign on the basis of fusion. Mr. Owen declined the indorsement of the democracy, though he might have been elected.

Mr. Owen will best be remembered for his conection wth the development of agricultural education in Minnesota. He worked to prevent the separation of the farm school from the university, thereby alienating his friends of the Farmers' Alliance, as that organization strenuously backed the separation program.

Through the columns of the Farm, Stock and Home, and by means of personal work, he has been able to secure large appropriations from the legislature for the upbuilding of the agricultural college. He was appointed regent in 1893 to fill out an unexpired term and was reappointed for a full term in 1895, serving until 1901, when he was retired.

Arbogast Estate Not $20,000.

St. Paul. — The report of the appraisers of the estate of the late Louis Arbogast, who was murdered in his home, St. Paul, May 13, 1909, has been filed with Judge Bazille in the probate court, showing that nearly all the real property is in the name of Mrs. Arbogast. The total valuation of the remaining property, including bonds, mortgages, the homestead where the family lives on West Seventh street, and the merchandise and equipment of the meat market, is less than $20,000.

BIG FIRE AT SPOONER, MINN.

Hotel, Saloon and General Store Destroyed by Flames.

Rainy River, Ontario. — A disastrous fire broke out in the village of Spooner, Minn., and as a result the Spooner hotel, Kyler & Young's saloon and Egan's general store are a total loss, and but for the timely arrival of a fire-fighting apparatus from Beaudette, many more buildings would have been added to the list.

The fire originated in the Spooner hotel, a frame building, and within a few minutes the building was beyond saving. The hotel was owned by P. Bordeen. The loss is estimated at $10,000, with small insurance.

Kyler & Young's saloon was one of the finest in northern Minnesota. Their loss will be about $8,000, insured.

Egan's loss is $15,000, with $7,000 insurance.

HEATWOLE IS SINKING.

Condition of Former Congressman Is Serious.

Northfield.—Hon. Joel P. Heatwole, the well known editor and politician, is in a critical condition.

Mr. Heatwole is suffering from acute Bright's disease and has been confined to his bed for some weeks. Last summer he took an extended southern trip hoping to benefit by the change and returned much improved.

In the fall the Northfield man gave it out that he intended to take an active part in the coming state campaign and followed it with a vigorous attack on Governor A. O. Eberhart's gubernatorial candidacy. He has been prominent in Minnesota politics for years and was the immediate predecessor of Congressman Charles Davis, of St. Peter, as congressman from the third district.

SMITH MUST GO TO PRISON.

Slayer of H. J. Ledbeter Is Sentenced For Life.

Mankato.—Judge Pfau filed an order denying Frank Smith's application for a new trial on the charge of murdering H. J. Ledbeter and followed this by filing a certificate that he believed this was a case where a death penalty should not be imposed because of the recommendation by the jury for clemency and because of exceptional circumstances.

County Attorney Plymat moved for a sentence and Smith had nothing to say why it should not be pronounced, as his attorney had only intended to argue against life sentence. Court then sentenced Smith to life imprisonment at Stillwater and remanded him to the custody of the sheriff.

URGES CARE OF FRANCHISE.

Neill of Red Wing, Speaks Before Crookston Commercial Club.

Crookston.—The annual meeting of the 25,000 Commercial club was one of the largest rallies of citizens held in this city for many years. The guest of honor was Hon. D. W. Neill of Red Wing, president of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs.

Mr. Neill confined his remarks to "Municipal and Community Waste and Conservation." He pointed out places where every community is guilty of gross waste in granting of franchises and turning over to public service corporations valuable privileges, in reality a waste of the people's resources.

PEONAGE FOUND TO EXIST.

State Labor Bureau Getting Results In Northern Minnesota.

St. Paul. — "We are getting some real live information in the peonage charges in Northern Minnesota," said W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner. "Of course, the information is far from finished," he continued, "but we are finding things of vital importance every day. We now have two inspectors in the field and some interesting statements will be out soon."

NOT WHAT HE HAD PICTURED

Athletic Girl Hardly the Domestic Jewel That Fond Fancy Had Pictured.

Not long ago a man married an athletic girl, thinking how fine it would be to have a wife who would be able to wait on herself and build the fires, if necessary, and keep the dust demon on the jump without bringing on an acute attack of nervous prostration. Said he to himself: "A girl who swims and rows and plays a rattling good game of tennis, not to speak of her fondness for walking and driving, is sure to be a domestic jewel. If we happen to be without a servant, she can keep the household machinery humming." Somebody must have told that girl she was marrying a man with money. Anyhow, she hasn't been able to dress herself without the assistance of a maid, and the only time she has ever had the broom in her hands was one day when she picked it up to hit the cat with. If she'd clean house for as much as half an hour she'd have to go away to some fashionable springs to recuperate. And yet, to look at her, you wouldn't think she was so delicate.—Exchange.

This Contractor got results.
He knew how to feed his men.

Some years ago a contractor building a railroad in a warm climate was troubled a great deal by sickness among the laborers.

He turned his attention at once to their food and found that they were getting full rations of meat and were drinking water from a stream near by.

He issued orders to cut down the amount of meat and to increase greatly the quantity of Quaker Oats fed to the men.

He also boiled Quaker Oats and mixed the thin oatmeal water with their drinking water.

Almost instantly all signs of stomach disorders passed and his men showed a decided improvement in strength and spirits.

This contractor had experience that taught him the great value of good oatmeal. 53

Asking Too Much.

The mother of little six-year-old Mary had told her a number of times not to hitch her sled to passing sleighs, feeling that it was a dangerous practice. It was such a fascinating sport, however, that Mary could not resist it and one day her mother saw her go skimming past the house behind a farmer's "bobs."

When she came in from play she was taken to task, her mother saying severely: "Mary, haven't I told you that you must not hitch onto bobs? Besides, you know, it is against the law."

Mary tossed her head. "Oh," she said, "don't talk to me about the law. It's all I can do to keep the ten commandments!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Teamster's Punishment Earned.

Apparently it pays not to be cruel to horses out in Chicago. A teamster who admitted abandoning his horses for six hours on a recent stormy day was fined $50 by a magistrate. The humane society prosecuted the case vigorously and promised to report the matter to the driver's employers. Presumably he will lose his job, as he was unable to pay the fine and will have to serve a jail term.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

In Bad Shape.

The Missus—Jim, you've been drinking again!

The Mister—Mabel, m' dear, I cannot tell a lie—I—

The Missus—Goodness! Then you must be worse than I thought. Go to bed in the other room.

Free to Our Readers.
Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago, for 48-page Illustrated Eye Book Free. Write all about Your Eye Trouble and they will advise as to the Proper Application of the Murine Eye Remedies in Your Special Case. Your Druggist will tell you that Murine Relieves Sore Eyes, Strengthens Weak Eyes, Doesn't Smart, Soothes Eye Pain, and sells for 50c. Try It in Your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Scaly Eyelids and Granulation.

So Touching.

Anxious Suitor—But, sir, I thrill at your daughter's slightest touch.

Practical Father—Young man, I find her slightest touch is usually for a hundred dollars.

Nothing endures but the eternal commonplace; and if one departs from that it is to run the most perilous risks.—Charles Wagner.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

It's a pity that wisdom doesn't grow on a man like whiskers.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

Few men put off until to-morrow the meanness they can do to-day.

WHEN YOU'RE AS HOARSE as a crow. When you're coughing and gasping. When you've an old-fashioned deep-seated cold, take Allen's Lung Balsum. Sold by all druggists, 25c. 50c and $1.00 bottles.

Pompadours are responsible for many a high-brow.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Some local celebrities are famous and some are notorious.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Samuel G. Iverson is out early looking for a renomination for state auditor. Sam must like the job.

It seems to us that Bjorge has announced himself as a candidate for congress against the wrong man. He should run against Ole Sageng, the gentelman plow man, from Ottertail county, as the Republican party of the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota do not propose to be stampeded into the democratic party, under the name of anti-Cannoism or any other isisims, and a candidate that makes the announcement that he will bolt the republican party after they have elected him to congress is not fit to be considerd as a candidate of that party. Halvor Steenerson went plenty far enough in his fight against the majority rule of congress, and no true republican could expect him to do more, for had he done so this district might just as well had no representative in congress at all, as to have a man there voteing with the minority party

She Wasn't Afraid.

A crowd gathered on the street to watch a handsome fox terrier that was running about, nose in air. White froth was running from the dog's mouth.

"He's mad!" yelled a fat man.

The fox terrier stood in the center of the group with wide open eyes, either too mad or too frightened to move.

At this juncture the policeman arrived. A dozen voices began to tell him that the dog was mad; that it must be killed; that it had been snapping at the children; that it began to froth when it passed a pool of water, and how best to shoot.

A tall, quiet looking woman pushed through the crowd and started toward the dog. A dozen men yelled at her Two or three men grabbed at her.

She picked the dog up and started out of the crowd. The policeman stopped her with:

"Madam, that dog is mad. He must be shot. Look at the foam coming out of his mouth."

"Foam!", she said contemptuously. "That's a cream puff he was eating."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Printing a Coin on Linen.

The print of a silver coin or medal may be made on silk or linen by dipping the fabric in a solution of nitrate of silver and stretching it over the face of the coin until the image is imprinted. The linen is sensitized by dipping it into a solution of nitrate of silver, made by dissolving sixty or eighty grains of nitrate of silver in one ounce of water. Wet the portion of the cloth which is to receive the impression in the solution and when nearly dry draw it over the face of the coin and tie it at the back. Expose to a weak light, and in a few minutes the raised design of the coin will appear on the linen. As soon as the print is dark enough remove and wash in clear water. When nearly dry iron it smooth with a warm iron, placing a piece of tissue paper over the print. In printing from the coin or medal it is advisable to paste a piece of paper on the reverse side, so that the silver will not come in contact with the sensitized fabric.

Student of Shakespeare.

The office boy sat in the corner busily engaged in reading a book. Strange to say, it was not "The Adventures of Bunko Jim," "Daisy Dean, the Demon Detective," nor even a thrilling narrative of more or less correct life on the plains. He was reading Shakespeare.

An expression of peace and joy was on his face that caused those who knew him to wonder if he had at last experienced a change of heart. His eyes sparkled, and his whole expression was one of happiness. Finally he turned to a worker at another desk.

"Say, Jim," he said, "I've got a question for you. Did you ever read Shakespeare?"

"Yep," was the reply.

"And d'yer know what he talks about?"

"Yep."

"Den maybe you can help me."

"What is it?'

"Well, I want to know which was de man, Romeo or Juliet?"—Youth's Companion.

Cheerfulness is one of the surest indications of good sense.

A SAVAGE WITCH.

His Life Was Saved by the Chief of the Quiah Tribe.

The author of "Heroes of Modern Crusades," the Rev Edward Gilliat, M. A., at one time master of Harrow school, says in his book that he had years ago the privilege of meeting the king of the Quiah country, Tetti Aga. masong, at Harrow. The Quiah king had been educated at St. Augustine's college, Canterbury, and was able to lecture to the Harrovians in good English. In his lecture he told a quaint story which brings one nearer to the weird lives of the Quiahs, a small agricultural and trading tribe of inoffensive characters on the west coast of Africa.

"In my country," said the king, "we have no prisons; therefore if a culprit is brought to me I must chop off something an ear or two, a hand or a foot—and he goes home a sadder and a wiser man. Just before I left for England a chief came to my hut, bringing a prisoner.

"'What has he done, friend?' I asked.

"'He is a dangerous witch, O king He can turn himself into an alligator.'

"'Pooh! Nonsense! I don't believe that old fashioned stuff.'

"'Oh, but we saw him do it down by the big river.'

"Indeed! Well, chief, tell me all about it. You saw him yourself?'

"'I did. We were hunting by the banks of the river with our rifles when all at once we saw a big alligator lying on a rock in the river. The witch man was lying asleep in a hammock some fifty yards away. Oh, the dangerous creature he is!

"'Well, king, do not laugh with your eyes like that, for I am speaking the truth. I put up my rifle to shoot the alligator; but, to our great fear, as soon as I fired this fellow rolled out of his hammock and fell on the ground and rubbed his back and swore he was hurt.

"'Now, O king, if this witch had not been inside the alligator how could he have been hurt when I fired?'

"Gentlemen," concluded the king, "I see you are laughing with your eyes, but it is very difficult to rule over a people untaught and given over to superstition.

"What did I do? Why, if I had left him free they would have killed him as soon as I had gone on my ship, so I saved his life by chopping off his left ear."

MODERN CHESS.

The Game Vastly Different From That of the Ninth Century.

Chess is but a game, a pastime, a relaxation, but it has at times absorbed the faculties of the intellectual in every clime. Perhaps the greatest eulogy on the game was the remark of Sir Walter Raleigh, "I do not wish to live longer than I can play chess." It is certain that those who do not play the game are quite unable to form any conception of the high intellectual delights experienced by the chess enthusiast.

The origin of chess has been sought in vain. The fact is the game has so changed, developed and improved down the course of centuries that in its present form it would not be recognized by its inventor, if there ever was one. The oldest chess problem on record is thought to be that contained in an ancient Persian manuscript attributed to Caliph Kalifen Mutasin Billah, who reigned in Bagdad A. D. 833 to 842. But the reader would have to learn the old rules before it was intelligible. For example, the queen could make a move of only one square at a time and that on a diagonal, but a queen promoted from a pawn was allowed to make a move of two squares diagonally. The bishop had no power over any square except the third from which it stood on its own diagonal line, but it was allowed to vault over any piece that happened to be between. In short, it was a totally different game. Chess in the precise form in which we know it and play it today is a comparatively modern game —London Strand Magazine.

Amending a Proverb.

There are a lot of silly proverbs knocking about. Take, for instance, "If pigs had wings they would fly." Now, this is absurd if you like. Do you know what sized wings a pig weighing eighty pounds would require in order to fly? They would measure about thirty yards from tip to tip. A nice state of things to keep pigs in an aviary with wings of that size! The proverb would run much better:

If pigs could fly
Pork would be high.

—London Scraps.

The Right Way.

Little Willie liked ice cream, but he objected to turning the freezer. One day his mother was agreeably surprised to find him working at the crank as if his life depended on it.

"How did you get Willie to turn the ice cream freezer?" she said to her husband. "I offered him 2 cents to do it, and he wouldn't."

"You didn't go about it the right way, my dear," replied her husband. "I bet him a cent he couldn't turn it for half an hour!"

Pretty Ancient.

"What is the oldest form of literature?"

"I dunno, but I guess some of th' musical comedy jokes must reach back pretty nearly that far."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Adam's Kick.

Eve—What makes you look so cross? Adam—I wish you wouldn't be so loud in your dresses. It isn't necessary for you to pick the most highly colored autumn leaves.—New York Press.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14. 1910

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn, January 7, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn,, who on June 25th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 800, Serial No. 04190 for S. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 154 N, Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Mickelet; U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 25th day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Habedank, August Ristau, of Thief River Falls Minn, Jacob Jonas, Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

AUTHUR P. TOPPIN.

Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 21, 1910.

Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota January 14th. 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole P. Ostenas, of Neptune Minnesota, who on November 7th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 849. Serial No. 04203, for S.W. ¼ Section 10 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 24th. day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Siver Haugo of Neptune Minn, Nels Resin, of Rudell Minn. Knut Jorstad, of Wanke Minn, Julious K. Halverson, of McIntosh Minn.

AUTHUR P. TOPPIN,

Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 11th. 1910

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn, February 7th, 1910.

Notice is hereby given, that John Poloni, of Highlanding Minn., who on July 15th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 553. Serial No. 04200, for Lots 2,4. S.W.¼ N.W. ¼ Section 28 & Lots 11 & 12, Section 29, Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 21 st. day of March 1910.

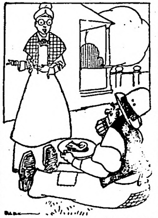
Claimant names as witnesses:

Edon Davis, Thomas Jacobson, of High landing Minn, Walter McAndress, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

AUTHUR P. TOPPIN,

Register.

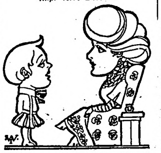
Too Tough.



Mrs. Goode—Begging again? Why, you didn't eat that piece of steak I gave you.

The Hobo—I didn't ask you for work, ma'am. What I wanted was something to eat.

Impressive Enough.



"Willie, does your teacher try to impress you with the Golden Rule?"

"Nope. She uses a plain wood one, but it works just fine."

An Incentive.

"Won't you try to love me?" he sighed.

"I have tried," she replied kindly but firmly.

"My rich aunt has just died," he went on.

"In that case, dear, I will try again."—Puck.

A Blunt Answer.

Mother (to her daughter)—You'd better accept Peter, my dear He is a nice boy, though he may not be handsome. After all, good looks fade, don't they, papa? Father Rather!—Fliegende Blatter.

The Ways of Men.

Many a man who would be unable to find the family Bible if he hunted all day would have no difficulty in putting his hand on the corkscrew, even in the dark.—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Empty Dream.

Bobby—Say, sis, what's a "empty dream?" Dotty—One you have when you've been sent to bed without any supper.—[illegible]

CAUTION IN THE MINT.

They Almost Strain the Air to Save Particles of Gold.

It has been aptly said that no miser guards his treasure more religiously than Uncle Sam watches over the precious metals that pass through his mints. Then, too, the precautions against waste are almost innumerable.

Every evening in each of the mints of the United States the floors of the melting rooms are swept cleaner than a New England housewife's kitchen. The dust is carefully put aside, and about once in two months the soot scraped from every flue is transferred to the same precious dust heap. This is then burned, and from its ashes the government derives no inconsiderable income. The earthenware crucibles used in melting are employed no more than three times. They are crushed beneath heavy rollers, and in their porous sides are found flakes of the precious metal.

In the melting room when the casters raise their ladles from the melting pots a shower of sparks fly from the molten surface of the metal. For the most part they are bits of incandescent carbon, but clinging to the carbon is often a minute particle of metal. Lest such particles should escape, the ashes and clinkers below the furnaces are gathered up at night. This debris is ground into powder by means of a steam crusher and then is sold to a smelter, like ordinary ore, at a price warranted by the assayer.

The ladles that stir the precious metal, the big iron rods, the strainers and he dippers, all are tested in a most curious fashion. After considerable use they become covered with a thin layer of oxidized silver, closely resembling a brown rust. The implements are then laid in baths of a solution of sulphuric acid, which eats away the iron and steel and leaves the silver untouched.

Gradually the ladle, or whatever the implement is, will disappear, and in its place remains a hollow silver counterpart of the original, delicate as spun glass. These fragile casts reproduce the ladle with perfect accuracy in all its details, although their surfaces are perforated with innumerable little holes. Scarcely have they been molded, however, before they are cast into a crucible to become in time dollars, quarters and dimes.

In one corner of the melting room there is a large tank into which newly cast silver bars are dropped and left to cool. Infinitesimal flakes of silver scale off and rise to the surface of the water, which acquires the metallic luster of a stagnant pool. Here is silver that must not be lost, so beneath the pipe through which the tank is emptied is banked a thick layer of mud. As the water filters through it the mud retains the precious residuum. Four times a year this mud is removed, and each experiment discloses the fact that some $50 has been saved.—Baltimore American.

His Text.

The three-year-old son of a Methodist minister was with his mother at a gathering of ladies. At the proper time he was given a cooky. He ate it in short order and asked for another. The hostess said:

"I'll give you another if you will sing for us."

"Can't sing," was his reply, "but I know something I can say."

"That will do all right," the lady answered, expecting to hear "Twinkle, twinkle, little star," or some other nursery classic.

But the little fellow drew himself up in real Sunday school fashion and said his piece:

"God loveth a cheerful giver."

The lady gave him the cooky, and the whole company seemed to be very cheerful about it.—Harper's Magazine.

A Water Telescope.

Norwegian fishermen use a water telescope to ascertain the position of the herring shoals. This is the way to make the water telescope:

Procure a tube made of tin and funnel shaped about three and a half feet long and ten inches in diameter at the largest end. It should be wide enough at the top to take in the observer's eyes, and the inside should be painted black. At the bottom, or wide end, a clear, thick piece of glass must be inserted, with a little lead in the form of a ring to weight the tube. When the instrument is immersed in clear water it is astonishing how many fathoms down the observer can see.

The Sybarites.

The Sybarites were the inhabitants of the ancient city of Sybaris, in southern Italy, founded 720 B. C. They were so greatly addicted to voluptuousness and self indulgence that their name became a byword among the peoples of antiquity. The word "sybarite" is used at the present day to denote a person devoted to luxury and pleasure.

Sometimes There Isn't.

Flubbe—I'm going into the manufacture of something there ought to be money in.

Dubbe—What are you going to manufacture?

Flubbe—Pocketbooks and purses.—London Telegraph.

Why He Couldn't Work.

The Lady—My 'usband, sir, 'as sent me to say 'e won't be able to come and do the little job you gave 'im to. 'E's promised to go round the town with the unemployed.—London M. A. P.

One More Disappointment.

"Poor old Myer is dead, I see. He led a life full of disappointments."

"How glad he would have been to see his name in print!"—Fliegende Blatter.

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. WINTON,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers,

C. L. HANSEN......Pesident.
DANIEL PATTERSON...Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS.......2nd Vice Pres.
E. E. BURKEE.........Cashier.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

DR. MILES' Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 80 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G.A.Hoveland, R F. D No. 1
Fosston Minn.

Walt McAndrews took a load of wheat down to Hazel today.

James O'Brien is hawling wheat to Thief River Falls this week.

Rev. E.A. Mostue made a business trip to McIntosh Monday, returning yesterday.

Andrew Ellingson was transacting business at Red Lake Falls Tuesday and Wednesday.

There will be a grand ball at the Kratka hall on Saturday evening February 12th.

There will be a grand public ball at the Kolski hall in Deer Park, on Saturday evening February 19th.

We had the misfortune to cut our right hand fore finger right on the tip this week, which is the best point to lay up a printer.

H.H. Halverson will have an auction sale at his farm 8 miles south east of Brunkeberg next Saturday, the 19th, to sell his stock and farm machinery.

Ole O. Overvold is hawling lumber from his Clearwater county farm to build a new barn on his Highlanding farm this year.

A.D. Brown, of Neptune was an overnight visitor at Highlanding Wednesday night on his way to Thief River Falls on a business trip.

There was a slight missunderstanding about who was who, at the Erie dance last Friday night. It is better to cut that part of the program out boys and all meet as friends.

Rev. Father Adolph, of Thief River Falls will hold services at the residence of Henry Arndt, one mile west of the Highlanding school house, on Tuesday February 15th, at 10 o'clock a.m.

Knut Sannes, of Lillo, John T. Lattimore, of Erie, Joseph Kilien, of Kratka, Torgus Hamestvedt, of Brunkeberg, and Elias E Mostue, of Sunbeam, took tests for Census Enumerators before Wm. G Hunt, post master, at Sunbeam, on Saturday last.

BIDS WANTED.

Bids are wanted by school No. 87, Town of Highlanding, for seven cords of green popular cord wood to be delivered at the school house on or before March 20th. Seald bids to furnish the wood should be filed with W G Hunt, district clerk on or before Feb. 28th, at which time the board of directors will let the contract to the lowest bidder.

A good pair of 3 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E.A.Mostue, one mile south from Sunbeam.

A Risky Study.

"Why have you dropped your popular astronomy?" asked the visitor.

"'Cause I got too many lickings," confided Tommy. "The other night I told pa that Mars' face was ever changing, and ma heard me and thought I meant her face. Next thing I didn't get any supper and got a licking besides."—Chicago News.

Ministers Aboard Ship.

A minister aboard ship has always been taken as a "Jonah sign" by seamen. In recent years, however, this superstition has been modified to a certain extent. A young minister, the seamen believe, will not bring as much of a "Jonah" with him as an old one.

Simplicity Itself.

"There are only two points in success."

"What are they?"

"Work and keep other people from working you."

Do It Now.

Decision never becomes easier by postponement, while habit grows stronger every day. Common sense as well as expediency says, "Do it this day."

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Everybody is busy hawling their grain to market.

Mrs. Gunder Hostad is visiting her sisters Mrs. H. M. Lillo and Mrs. Oscar Lillo.

There was a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sledtvedt on Saturday evening.

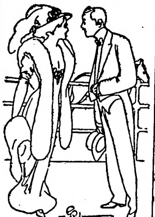
Miss Annie Iverson made a short visit with Miss Annieboll Rolandson on Sunday.

Dr. Clark was called out from Plummer on Sunday to visit Mrs Andrew Hanson, who was reported quite seariously ill.

Oscar Legvold has the job of filling the Clearwater Creamery ice house with ice.

Miss Ida M. Lillo commenced her school in District No. 10 on Monday.

A Dangerous Place.



Mrs. Smyth—Why don't you take your wife to the horse show? It doesn't cost much.

Mr. Swift—Doesn't it? The last time I took her there she picked out the swellest gown she could find and made me buy her one just like it.

SEEING UNDER WATER.

The Refraction of Light and the Limiting Angle of Vision.

One of the most peculiar things in connection with life under water is what is known as the limiting angle of vision. This applies to fishes, divers, submarine crews and, in fact, any being possessing the power of sight and desiring to look through the water at objects in the air. The effect is not due to a defect in vision, but to the refraction or bending of light, and no telescope or other optical instrument can get around it.

The effect consists of the impossibility of seeing anything on the outside unless the observer directs his line of sight within forty-eight degrees of the vertical. If a forty-nine degree angle or over is taken, the surface, no matter how clear the water is, acts as a perfect mirror and reflects objects at the bottom of the water, thus not allowing anything on the outside to be seen. The consequence of this property is the most startling of all, for everything on the outside can be seen and thus has to be seen in the cone described by the forty-eight degree angle from the eye. This shows all outside objects huddled together and appearing high in air. Thus, if one dives into the middle of a wide river, on looking up the banks will appear close together, but, at a great distance from the observer, high in air.

This angle is called the "critical" angle and of course varies with the two media in contact.

If one desires to make the experiment a square glass box or an aquarium will answer very well. Suspend this from the ceiling or support it on a wall bracket and look under it at an angle. The phenomenon will be observed as indicated. The clearer the water and the stronger the light the more clearly will things appear.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why He Was a Heathen.

Sir Arthur Fanshaw related an amusing story of a Mohammedan servant who when asked his religion replied:

"Beg pardon, sar, I'm a heathen."

When asked by his master what he meant by a heathen the man answered:

"Beg pardon, sar, a worshiper of blocks and stones."

"Confound it," remarked the master, "I can't keep a man like that in my service."

To which came the immediate rejoinder:

"Beg pardon, sir, in your highness' service no time to worship anything!"—London News.

He Spoke Too Soon.

A well known business man attended his daughter's commencement exercises at an eastern college. He had been greatly pleased with the beauty and dignity of the exercises and was discoursing to his wife upon the refining influences of college life. Suddenly his impressive monologue was cut short. A girl in cap and gown came dashing down the steps of the main hall waving her diploma and shouting, "Educated, by gosh!"—Ladies' [illegible]

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS.

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to

Buy the Right Goods
At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing.

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Bnsiness.-- SINGCR BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

Losing His Mind.

"Mother, guess you'd better send for th' doctor," gasped Uncle Charlie Seaver as he sank into a chair and rocked back and forth, holding his gray head.

"Sakes alive! Ye haven't been and got the misery in yer head, have ye, Silas?" gasped his astonished wife, dropping a pie tin.

"I dunno what's the matter, but I've alwus had a hunch my mind 'd go some time. It's cum, I guess. I noticed th' trouble fust last week when I plumb forget to go up an' swear off th' $100 assessment till it was too late. Then I neglected to go to th' school meetin' last night to fight agin the new commissioner. But, wuss and wuss, I didn't guess within eleven pound seven ounces of th' weight of Wal Weaver's big hog kil'ed today. I guess my mind has gone all right. I'm about all in."—Puck.

Tuning Forks.

The tuning fork was the invention of John Stone, royal trumpeter, in 1811. Though the pitch of forks varies slightly with changes of the temperature or by rust, they are the most accurate means of determining pitch. Tuning forks are capable of being made of any pitch within certain limits, but those commonly used are the notes A and C, giving the sounds represented by the second and third spaces in the treble stave.

Reaching Conclusion.

"I imagine from your speech that you are a taxidermist."

"What makes you think so?"

"Principally because you tell me I am as wise as an owl and then try to stuff me."—Exchange.

Peaceful.

Mrs. Frost—Who was it that said "Peace, perfect peace?" Frost—Some one whose telephone was out of order.—Life.

A Good Ear.

Mrs. Flyer—Have you ever called on the people in the next apartment?

Mrs. Gossip—No; the walls are so thin that I know all about them as it is. [illegible]

JUST IN TIME.

The Squire Wasn't Actually Nigh, but He Was a Little Close.

They were discussing the salient traits of old Squire Gregson's character, the funeral being a thing of the past. "Some way or 'nother, between his goin' an' the buryin', nobody felt free to speak," Abel Nutting had said as an introduction to his remarks. "It seemed more'n likely he'd come to agin an' call us to account, same as usual."

"He was free to give to phylanthropy an' the church," said Barton Sedgwick when his turn came, "but in the family circle I called him kind o' close. I won't go so fur's to say he was actu'lly nigh, but he cert'nly was kind o' close."

"As how?" inquired three voices in unison. They all had plenty of instances of the old squire's "closeness," but it was Barton's privilege to speak first, he being a cousin once removed.

"Well, I was there to a Sunday dinner with him last December," said Barton slowly. "He invited Sally an' me, same as always, once a year.

"Well, Sally had one o' those stuffy colds that make you feel worse'n if you had pneumony, an' she vowed she wouldn't go. She said she couldn't taste anything anyway, an' the mere thoughts o' his cold pork an' boiled potatoes went against her. But she wanted I should go for policy, same as all us relations went, an' I did.

"Well, when I got there an' told squire he said, 'Sally not comin'!' an' clipped it right out into the kitchen, leavin' the doors open all the way.

"'Here,' he said to old Jane Wills, that cooked an' done for him, 'have those potatoes boiled soft yet? That's good. You lift out Mis' Sedgwick's potato, an' it'll be just right to fry for my breakfast tomorrow,' he said, 'for Mis' Sedgwick is kep' at home with a cold. Lift it out careful! That's right!'

"An' when he come back to me he was all creased up with smiles, he was so pleased with himself." — Youth's Companion.

A Careless Man.

Father—Why have you quarreled with Harry? Daughter—Because he proposed to me last night. Father—Well, there was no harm in that, was there? Daughter—But I had accepted him the night before. [illegible]

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS, THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale in Eastern Red Lake County.

☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,

Snnbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

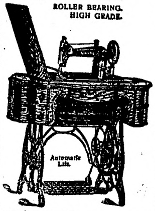
It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton"

SEWING MACHINE.

ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buving this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Kept Them Dancing.

A Washington official, speaking of blunders in the diplomatic service, told of a mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan. He said:

"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suit of rooms in his house. The morning of the shahzada's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely; but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet. The host ventured to ask the reason of this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:

"'You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess.'"

Livingstone.

Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never fired a shot in anger, never "clubbed or clouted or banned or blasted." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old man who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.

Unkempt Smith—Mister, would youse kindly help a poor man as is all in, down and out? Jocular Citizen—Why, certainly. Just climb the fire escape of that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then [illegible]

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE

LIGHT RUNNING NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread (Chain Stitch) Sewing Machine write to

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.

Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.

Our guaranty never runs out.

Sold by authorized dealers only.

FOR SALE BY

[illegible] Co

Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS

Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. [illegible]

McCALL'S MAGAZINE

More subscribers than any other fashion magazine. [illegible] Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

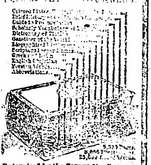
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. [illegible]

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Do you know that the [illegible]



Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. [illegible]

Write for "Dictionary Wrinkles," and Specimen Pages. [illegible]

G. & C. MERRIAM CO. [illegible]

LINCOLN'S BOYHOOD and the WOMEN WHO MOLDED HIM

SARAH BUSH LINCOLN

MRS. LUCY SPEED

THE EARLIEST PHOTOGRAPH OF LINCOLN

HOUSE IN WHICH LINCOLN WAS BORN

IT IS sober truth to say that Abraham Lincoln struck the noblest, highest, holiest note in the inmost native soul of the American people. In the new paganism of commerce; of money getting, no matter how; of criticism of public men who, whatever their faults, are to be loved because they have been hated by those who seek to make the nation sinister and corrupt, there is nothing so sodden and sordid but will in some sense uncover and kneel at the sound of the name of Abraham Lincoln.

The average American does not shout when he hears the name of Abraham Lincoln. Even the political demagogue, the stock gambler, the captain of industry, is likely to grow silent and reverential when the name of Lincoln is spoken.

And while we are getting ready to honor Lincoln it is well to add that none may understand his people who has not first discovered what it is in his character and in ours that makes us love him above comparison in the story of the world's great men——love him for his poverty, his simplicity, for his humanity, for his fidelity, for his justice, for his plainness, for his life and for his death.

Sheer force of character must have been the inherent trait which he had well cultivated.

His attitude to women may have been but an incident, but there can be no question but that the influence of various women with whom it was his good fortune to be associated in his earlier days had not a little to do with the forming of one of his most predominant traits. He was, in his later life, one of the kind of men of whom good women declare, in all humility and honesty for their sex, that through the fineness of his perception and his gentility toward everyone and everything, that he "might have been a woman." It is a high compliment.

In the first place, he was born of a good woman. Nancy Hanks, his mother, neglected in the neglect of those of her social status at the time she was born, must have in the sublimity of maternity engendered in the lifeblood of her illustrious offspring the nourishment that made the great achievements of Abraham Lincoln possible. Yet, to her is due but the honor of instilling, with her own blood, her own spirit, the character that enabled Abraham Lincoln to become the first American—the conglomerate of all that is meant in the phrase, "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Nancy Hanks gave Lincoln birth. She was the daughter of supposedly illiterate and superstitious people, but she was comely, intelligent, knew how to read and write and taught her husband, Thomas Lincoln, father of the president, to scrawl his name.

The great Lincoln always believed that he got his intelligence and powers from his mother

The family moved from Kentucky to Indiana when Lincoln was seven years old. Two years later Nancy Hanks Lincoln succumbed to a pestilence known as milk sickness. She died in October. Her husband sawed a coffin out of the forest trees and buried her in a little clearing. Several months later a wandering frontier clergyman preached a sermon over her lonely grave. No wonder the countenance of the great emancipator moved all who beheld it by its deep melancholy He knew what sorrow was 45 years before he paced his office in the White House all night, with white face and bowed head, sorrowing over the defeat of Chancellorsville, wondering whether he was to be the last president of the United States and praying for the victory that came at Gettysburg.

All that year the sensitive boy grieved for the mother who had gone out of his life; but in time the father went back to Kentucky, and in Elizabethtown, near the big South Fork of Nolin creek, in Hardin county, where Lincoln was born, he married the widow of the town jailer Presently thereafter a four-horse wagon creaked up to the door of the Lincoln cabin in the Indiana forest and young "Abe" made his first acquaintance with Sarah Bush Lincoln, who, next to his own mother, was to become the second incentive of his youthful life

Sarah Bush Lincoln was a woman of thrift and energy, tall, straight, fair and a kind-hearted, motherly Christian. The American people owe a debt to this noble matron, who did so much to influence and develop the character of the boy who was yet to save the nation from destruction.

She was good to the Lincoln orphans, whose mother lay out in the wild forest grave. She gave them warm clothing. She threw away the mat of corn husks and leaves on which they slept and replaced it with a soft feather tick. She loved little "Abe" and the lonely boy returned her kindness and affection. In a primitive cabin, set in the midst of a savage country, she created that noblest and best result of a good woman's heart, a happy home.

The young Lincoln grew rapidly. Always an invidious reader, he ever found time for reading. In this pursuit he appears to have been tireless, but it seems not to have caused him to isolate himself from the social life of his primitive neighborhood. By 17 he was six feet four inches tall. His legs and arms were long, his hands and feet big and his skin dry and yellow. His gaunt face and melancholy gray eyes were set in cavernous sockets above his prominent cheek bones. He was not, therefore, a "ladies' man," but at the same time the mysterious something that made him beloved above the average of prominent Americans stood him in stead. He was always popular with his fellows, even as a spraddling boy.

A girl schoolmate has described him as he appeared at this early time:

"His shoes, when he had any, were low. He wore buckskin breeches, linsey-woolsey shirt and a cap made of the skin of a squirrel or coon. His breeches were baggy and lacked by several inches meeting the tops of his shoes, thereby exposing his shin bone, sharp, blue and narrow."

But this girl cared for him, even as, much later in life, she was proud to have known him.

Trivial as it may seem, the verse penned by him when he was 17, at the time of his sister Sarah's marriage to Aaron Grigsby, may give some insight into his lifelong estimate of the attitude of man toward woman. These are the concluding verses:

The woman was not taken
  From Adam's feet we see;
So he must not abuse her,
  The meaning seems to be.

The woman was not taken
  From Adam's head we know,
To show she should not rule him—
  'Tis evidently so.

The woman she was taken
  From under Adam's arm,
So she must be protected
  From injuries and harm.

It was after he had passed through many of his earlier vicissitudes that Lincoln encountered his first great romance. The family had moved from Indiana to Illinois. When they migrated from New Salem, Sangamon county, Abraham, who has assisted his father, stepmother and the rest of the family to passable affluence remained behind. He split rails, he traveled down the Mississippi on a house boat and had his first elucidation of slavery in its most hideous forms and of the uncertainty and irresponsibility of the negro race.

He returned to New Salem and became a clerk. In drawing crowds of villagers he proved a popular acquisition. The job "petered out" and he was elected a captain in the Black Hawk war. His was a bloodless campaign, but he came out of it with honors and increased popularity. All the time he had been reading every book he could find. Later he engaged in storekeeping with a partner, but he was not cast for a mercantile career.

When he first was elected to the Illinois state legislature in 1834 he met and fell in love with pretty, auburn-haired Anne Rutledge, daughter of the owner of the tavern in which he lived. His passion seemed hopeless, for the maid of 17 was pledge to a young man from New York. Yet Lincoln loved and waited and hoped, even when his suit appeared entirely hopeless.

Finally the lover went away, promising to come back. Lincoln remained a stanch, true friend. After a while it became apparent that the New Yorker had deserted his fiancee. Then Lincoln offered the girl his heart and it eventually was accepted. But Lincoln's happiness was short-lived. Anne Rutledge sickened and died. Lincoln was inconsolable.

Following this bereavement he plunged into politics and statecraft and built the foundation for his later life. During this period he met Mary S. Owens. He wrote love letters to her, but later on frankly told her that, while he was willing to keep his engagement with her, it were better for her own sake that she should not hold him. She accepted his honest explanation and his second romance withered and died.

Still another woman who was instrumental in framing Lincoln's strong and impressionable character was Lucy Gilmer Speed. Her husband owned the tavern at Springfield, whither Lincoln rode when the capital was changed from New Salem. Lincoln became their guest and throughout his remaining life numbered them as his stanchest friends. He often descanted on the sound counsel and sisterly care bestowed upon him by Mrs. Speed.

Although he became at this time one of the foremost statesmen of Illinois, his previous experience caused him to doubt his own heart. He became engaged to Mary Todd. After a brief period, doubting his love, he broke the engagement. It even has been charged that he deserted her when she was attired for the wedding. To his bosom friends, Joshua F. and Lucy Speed, Lincoln described the parting:

"When I told Mary I did not love her," he said, "she burst into tears, and, almost springing from her chair and wringing her hands, as if in agony, said something about the deceiver being himself deceived. To tell you the truth, it was too much for me. I found the tears trickling down my own cheeks. I caught her in my arms and kissed her."

So great was Lincoln's remorse that he was watched by his friends lest he commit suicide. Here again came in the sound influence of Mrs. Speed. She and her husband made Lincoln one of their own family. She was a saintly woman and through her he learned, even more than by his reading, the story and the precepts of the Man of Nazareth that in later years enriched his vocabulary and did so much to guide his conduct.

In two years Mary Todd became his wife. It was a singular jest of fate that he should have won her away from Stephen A. Douglas, who was later to be his rival in the great antislavery struggle that was ended only by millions of armed men and that almost simultaneous with its ending left Mary Todd a widow.

Of the union were born the sons Robert T., "Willie" and "Tad." "Willie" died in the White House February 20, 1862, and "Tad," or Thomas, died in Chicago July 15, 1871, at the age of 18 years. Robert T., the eldest of the three sons, lives in Chicago. He is president of the Pullman company and has enjoyed a highly successful business career.

Of Lincoln's attitude toward the estimable woman who became his wife perhaps as good an estimate as any may be found in practically his last words to her, spoken on the afternoon of the day of his assassination, as they rode through the streets of Washington.

He talked to her of what they would do when his term of office was over and they could take up a quiet life again.

"We have saved some money," he said, "and ought to be able to save some more. And with that and what I can earn from my law practice we can settle down in Springfield or Chicago and live cozily to a green old age."

But God had otherwise disposed. Within 24 hours the woman who, in the ultimate, had shared the tribulations and the adulations of the great emancipator was widowed and his sons and the entire nation were orphaned.

LINCOLN MADE NO MISTAKES.

The Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler says in the Homiletic Review: "Terrible as was the tragedy of that April night it is still true that Lincoln may have died at the right time for his imperishable fame. He had conducted an immense nation through the most tremendous civil war ever waged and never committed a single serious mistake. He did not possess Hamilton's brilliant genius, but Hamilton never saw the future more sagaciously. He made no pretensions to Daniel Webster's magnetic oratory, but Webster never put more truth in oratorical form for popular guidance. He possessed Benjamin Franklin's immense common sense and that twenty-line address on the battlefield of Gettysburg is the high-water mark of American sententious eloquence. It is fitting that after such a career his own life should be the last to be lost in that stupendous struggle. He had called over 200,000 heroes to lay down their lives, and then his own life was laid down beside the humblest private soldier or drummer boy of Gettysburg or Chickamauga."

POISON IN MIDDLE AGES.

In the middle ages so little was known of toxicology that all sudden or mysterious deaths were attributed to poison, but in the light of modern knowledge many of these are now easily explained by such diseases as appendicitis or gastric ulcer. Even the Borgias can be absolved from many of the poisonings laid to their charge. Nevertheless, says the British Medical Journal, from very early times in Italy poison was a favorite means of removing an enemy. In England, France and Germany cruder methods of vengeance prevailed and it was not until the sixteenth century that the Medici introduced poisoning into France. The fashion spread with terrible rapidity and poison was employed in every rank of society to get rid of inconvenient persons The art introduced into France by Catherine de Medici and her followers took root so deeply as to blossom later into the black magic of Louis XIV.'s reign.

HE KNEW HER

She—It's three o'clock. I'm going to my dressmaker. I shan't be more than a quarter of an hour.

He—All right; don't forget we are dining out at eight o'clock.

Why His Mother Mourned.

William M. Fogarty has a story about a good old Irish woman whose son was about to start for a trip around the world.

She had watched him prosper with pride. To her he was a great man. In her fond vision she could see all sorts of terrible tidings coming to him but she held her peace until he had started for the journey. Then she began to cry. A neighbor tried to console her, but to no avail.

"I'm afraid he hasn't the money to get back," said the mother, weeping. "He's got the money to go round the world all right, but how will he ever get back?"—Indianapolis Star.

Paradoxical.

"It is a wonder that a hot-headed man is generally thought to be one of mettle.

"Why a wonder?"

"Because metal is usually well tempered."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM
BRIGHT'S DISEASE
DIABETES BACKACHE
75 "Guaranteed"

For Sprains

Sloan's Liniment is the best remedy for sprains and bruises.

It quiets the pain at once, and can be applied to the tenderest part without rubbing—it doesn't need to be rubbed—all you have to do is to lay it on lightly. It is a powerful preparation and penetrates instantly—relieves any inflammation and congestion, and reduces the swelling.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. L. ROLAND, Bishop of Scranton, Pa., says:—"On the 7th of this present month, as I was leaving the building at noon for lunch, I slipped and fell, spraining my wrist. I returned in the afternoon, and at four o'clock I could not hold a pencil in my hand. I returned home later and purchased a bottle of and used it five or six times before I went to bed, and the next day I was able to go to work and use my hand as usual."

Sloan's Liniment

Sloan's Liniment is an excellent antiseptic and germ killer—heals cuts, burns, wounds and contusions, and will draw the poison from sting of poisonous insects.

25c., 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan,
Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

CANDID CLAIMS CONVINCE.

There's our belief. We don't say that One bottle of Stub-Roo Liquid will cure Any case of eczema. But we know that, Properly Used, we have in the sure treatment for all skin diseases. Behind our hundreds of unasked-for testimonials there's this big Fact: "Not One Known Failure in 8 Years."

Stub-Roo Remedies

If by chance your druggist doesn't carry Stub-Roo Liquid, send one dollar to us for a big bottle of it, express paid. Tell us all about your case—Today.

Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

COOPER'S SALES ARE ENORMOUS

HIS PREPARATIONS LEADING TOPIC IN OMAHA—CALLERS AT YOUNG MAN'S HEADQUARTERS INTERVIEWED.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 9.—The most interesting feature of the enormous sale of the Cooper preparations, now going on in this city, is what the medicines are actually accomplishing among the people of Omaha.

At the commencement of his visit here Mr. Cooper prophesied that during the later part of his stay he would receive hundreds of callers daily who came simply to thank him for what the preparations had done. He also stated that stomach trouble is the foundation for a great many diseases and that his New Discovery, as it is called, would prove very effective in all cases of rheumatism simply by getting the stomach in working order.

That this prophecy has been fulfilled cannot be doubted after a half-hour spent at the young man's headquarters listening to what his callers have to say.

A reporter, who watched to ascertain, if possible, some light on the reasons for the immensity of Cooper's success, interviewed about twenty of his callers yesterday afternoon. The statements made by those seen indicate that physicians who claim that Cooper is merely a passing fad, have not looked into the facts.

Some of these statements were as follows:

W. J. Grant, a popular cigar dealer at 508 South Sixteenth street, upon being questioned, said: "After a most remarkable experience with the Cooper remedies, I cannot refrain from saying that anyone who is suffering in any way from stomach trouble, and who does not give this Cooper medicine a trial, is passing up a golden opportunity for restoration to good health.

"For three years I was troubled with my stomach, and what little I did eat gave me distress. Nothing tasted right. I felt weak and bad nearly all the time. I was nervous and allowed matters of small importance to worry me. I treated with two different physicians, but received no benefit. I had about reached the conclusion that medical science had not yet produced anything that would help me.

"However, a number of friends urged me to try Cooper's New Discovery, and they were so persistent that I finally took new hope and got a bottle of the Cooper medicine. After I had begun to take it I wondered why I had not taken it long ago. Its effect was marvelous—brought me right out. I regained my appetite, took on new strength—in fact, began to feel like a different man altogether. I would not have believed there was a medicine on earth that could do so much in so short a time. I have good reason to be grateful for what Cooper's New Discovery has done for me, and cannot praise it too highly."

The statement of Mr. William Kennedy, advertising manager of the Bennett Company, at Sixteenth and Harney streets, was as follows:

"Long and tedious hours of hard work, and continuous confinement in a stuffy office tended to put my stomach in a condition that has for many months made my life miserable. There is no need of my going into detail, for anyone who has ever had stomach trouble knows the suffering to be endured. I became weakened and run down, and life began to be a drag.

"A personal friend persuaded me to give the Cooper medicine a trial. I procured a bottle of the New Discovery preparation and began taking it. Relief came quickly, and in a short time I was feeling like a new man. I developed a splendid appetite, could eat anything I wanted with no ill effects, and it all tasted good. My strength returned and once more work became a pleasure.

"I have taken four bottles, and shall continue its use until I am fully recovered, which I am confident will not take long. This is a remarkable preparation for any one who is 'all in' as a result of close confinement and overwork. I earnestly recommend it to anyone in this condition."

Other statements taken from those who had previously used the medicines seem to prove that Cooper's success throughout the country is genuine.

People Realize the Danger.

As an indication of the force of the crusade against tuberculosis, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, in a bulletin issued recently points to the fact that while 53.5 per cent. of the expenditures for tuberculosis in 1909 were made from public resources, appropriations made for 1910 indicate that over 75 per cent. of the money to be spent this year will be from federal, state, city and county funds. In 1909, out of the $8,180,621.50 spent for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, $4,362,750.03 was spent from public money, and $3,817,871.47 from funds voluntarily contributed. For the carrying on of state, federal and municipal tuberculosis work in 1910, over $9,000,000 has been appropriated. Of this sum, the state legislatures have granted $4,100,000, the municipal and county bodies, $3,975,500 and the federal government, $1,000,000.

Ruling Passion.

"I knew Butt's smoking would get him into trouble."

"Well?"

"At his wedding, when it came to the ring part, he reached into his pocket and handed the minister a match."

Noble Blood In Jeffries' Veins; Rap On Jaw Cures "Bats" Deafnses

HOW JOHN L. SIZES UP JOHNSON-JEFFRIES BOUT.

"The white man must win to make the pictures valuable.

"Winning and dining ruins the stomach, and Jeffries has been wined and dined like the rest of us and never will be able to fight as when in his prime.

"I fought 21 rounds with Corbet, then gave out. Jeff will go the same way.

"Johnson never can beat a good fighter. Jeffries was a good fighter in his day, but he will not be the fighter he was six years ago when he meets Johnson.

"The fight will take place near Frisco, which is the only place where protection is assured."

By KNOCKOUT.

Owen Moran.

So Jim Jeffries is the descendant of an English nobleman. Some British dopester has traced the lineage of the man who is going to try to bring the championship back to the white race and finds that he is a descendant of Lord Jeffries, who conducted the famous court held after the battle of Sedgemoor in 1685, when 320 executions were ordered and carried out.

Jeffries did not inherit any of the blood-thirsty traits of his noble ancestor. The big pugilist is as mild mannered as a Newfoundland dog. He has repeatedly said that he never hit any opponent as hard as he could for fear of killing him. He gave Tom Sharkey an awful pounding and tore loose several ribs. He smashed Bob Fitzsimmons with terrific blows, and knocked all but the life out of Jim Corbett, still he declares he could have hit them harder had he not been afraid a charge of murder would be lodged against him. Had Jeffries inherited any of Lord Jeffries' taste for taking human life he would have forgotten, in the heat of battle, that he had such strength.

But when it comes to Johnson, Jeffries says it will be different. On July 4 the real descendant of Lord Jeffries will step into the ring, whether it be in San Francisco or Salt Lake City. Then, says Jeffries, he intends to put every ounce of his strength behind his punches, and Johnson must take the consequences. That Jeffries hates the negro is certain. Jolly and whole-souled at all other times, big Jim scowls as soon as the black man's name is mentioned. It has become so with the alfalfa fighter that he has a perpetual scowl on his face, although he has not lost any of his good nature among friends. It is because he hears so much about Johnson.

Right here is where Jeffries may lose the fight. Johnson is a good ring general. He is a clever boxer, though experts say he is clumsy on his feet. So was Bob Fitzsimmons clumsy and awkward, but he whipped Corbett, who was the extreme in cleverness of footwork.

Consequently when Jeffries goes into the ring against Johnson he had better leave his hatred and his desire to hit the negro as hard as he can in his dressing room. Johnson is sure to take advantage of Jeff if the white man becomes enraged. Johnson taunted Tommy Burns into a rage and whipped him. Of course Burns wasn't Jeffries.

Where the fight will take place stil is a matter of doubt. "Tex" Rickard is going ahead with his arrangements to pull off the match in Salt Lake City. He has rented the Saltair pavilion, which is controled by the Mormon church. This, it has been reported, has given Rickard the becking of the church, which is all powerful in Utah. Still Gov. Spry has repeated that he will not permit the fight to take place in Utah.

As was expected, "Battling" Nelson had little difficulty in whipping Eddie Lang, the Chicago lightweight. When the Dane got ready to settle matters he quickly put Eddie to the bad, and Referee Tommy Ryan signalled to the Chicago boy's seconds to throw up the sponge. Still Nelson says Lang is a good scrapper and would have done better had he not been scared. Nelson says Lang can whip Ad Wolgast.

There are many persons who believe Wolgast is Nelson's master, and if nothing happens the question will be settled on Washington's birthday. A strange thing happened to Nelson in the Lang fight. For some time the battler has been hard of hearing in his left ear. In one of the early rounds Lang planted a punch on Nelson's jaw. Immediately the Dane found that he could hear as well as ever out of the affected ear. No wonder Nelson praises the Chicago lad.

It begins to look as if Abe Attel and Owen Moran will hook up before long to settle the question of supremacy. These lightning fast featherweights have met twice before. Their first battle was on January 1, 1908, and was declared a draw at the end of 25 rounds. In September of the same year they went 23 rounds to a draw. Honors were even in both battles. Now Jimmy Coffroth plans to bring them together again. Moran is in this country and is itching for a chance at Abe. The champion says he's willing to have it out with the Briton, so a finish battle may be expected before long. Gee, what a scrap it ought to be if both boys are right, and no doubt they will be.

Moran hooked up with Matty Baldwin in a 12-round battle several nights ago, and is said to have had the worst of it. It should be taken into consideration that Owen has been out of the ring nearly a year and it must not be forgotten that Baldwin always has been a hard man to whip.

POLISH WRESTLER WHO IS TO MEET THE TURK

Rival Chicago promoters have been pulling the wires with a vengeance to secure the match between Zbyszko whose great muscular development is here shown, and Yussiff Mahmout champion of the Balkans.

"LORD OF THE SEA"

Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson Commands Great Britain's Navy.

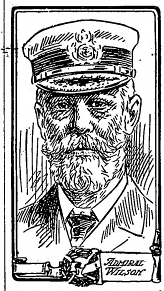
His Appointment Ends the Fisher Beresford Feud—Has Been in Active Service More Than Half a Century.

London.—When Sir John Fisher retired from the office of first sea lord of the British navy and was succeeded by Admiral Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson, January 25, the public of England felt not only that the direction of the greatest sea navy in the world continued in able hands, but it probably also heaved a great sigh of relief at the end of the controversies which have attended the administration of "Jackey" Fisher. For the retiring first sea lord has had a feud of the first magnitude with Lord Charles Beresford, and the navy's discipline has suffered in consequence.

Admiral Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson does not engage in feuds. Known as "the silent admiral" and as "England's best sailor," he is exceedingly popular in the navy, although a hard disciplinarian, because of his recognized ability. Of all the admirals in the world, he is considered by the British authorities the ablest expert on gunnery, strategy and tactics, and has invented a number of devices of value to naval vessels.

For more than half a century the coming first sea lord has been in active service. As a midshipman 12 years old he first heard the thundering broadsides of a naval battle in the Crimean war, off Sebastopol. In 1854 he took part in the storming of the Taku forts in China. In 1882 he served in the Sudan campaign, where he won that simple decoration of bronze with its significant legend, "For Valor"—the Victoria cross—which is bestowed only for conspicuous acts of bravery in the presence of the enemy, and is more highly prized than any other reward that can come to the British soldier or sailor. Moreover, he earned it by an act that doubtless endeared him to every Englishman—by fighting the enemy with his fists.

It was at the battle of El Teb, on the Red Sea coast, that Capt. Wilson, as he then was, sprang into the gap when a horde of dervishes broke a corner of a British square, and, single-handed, checked their fierce rush until some men from the York and Lancaster regiments rushed to his assistance. But suddenly, as he thrust fiercely with his sword, the weapon snapped, breaking off squarely, almost at the hilt. Then the natural weapons of the English captain came into play. He let out with his fists, right and left, bowling the "fuzzie-wuzzies" over like nine pins, and, marvelous to relate, escaping with only a few trifling wounds when rescued a few minutes later by soldiers and sailors. Had anything been lacking to make Capt. Wilson popular with his men this incident would have supplied it, and his brother officers showed their appreciation of his act by presenting him with a superb new sword, while from Queen Victoria came the coveted cross of bronze.



Sir Arthur was made a knight commander of the Bath in 1902, and three years later he was made a knight of the Grand Cross, Royal Victorian Order, first class. In 1906 he received still further distinction in the Grand Order of the Bath, military order.

The list of his successive offices is long. He became captain in 1880, rear admiral in 1895, vice-admiral in 1901, was aid de camp to the queen from 1892 to 1895, lord commissioner of the admiralty and comptroller of the navy from 1897 to 1901, commander of the channel squadron from 1901 to 1903, commander-in-chief of the home and channel fleets from 1903 to 1907 and admiral of the fleet in 1907.

"The king added three super-Dreadnoughts to the navy to-day," said one enthusiastic admirer of Sir Arthur when the news that the admiral would succeed Sir John Fisher was announced. This remark tells the feeling of the new first sea lord's intimates, and the public of Britain has received the news of his appointment with great satisfaction.

Out of the Mouth of Babes.

Little Margie—My mamma bought me a goldfish for Christmas. She paid a dollar for it.

Little Edna—Huh! If that's all she paid, I'll bet it's only plated.

Young man, don't marry a parlor ornament unless you can afford to hire a cook.

WHEN YOUR JOINTS ARE STIFF and muscles sore from cold, rheumatism or neuralgia; when you slip, strain or bruise yourself use Perry Davis' Painkiller. The home remedy 70 years.

Let none of you treat his brother in a way he himself would dislike to be treated.—Mohammedan.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

The average man is always paid average wages.

Hay's Hair-Health

Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to Its Natural Color and Beauty. Stops its falling out, and positively removes Dandruff. Is not a Dye. Refuse all substitutes. $1.00 and 50c. Bottles by Mail or at Druggists. FREE

Send 10c for large sample Bottle

Philo Hay Spec. Co., Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

Attention Sick Women

If you had positive proof that a certain remedy for female ills had made many remarkable cures, would you not feel like trying it?

If during the last thirty years we have not succeeded in convincing every fair-minded woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands and thousands of women of the ills peculiar to their sex, then we long for an opportunity to do so by direct correspondence. Meanwhile read the following letters which we guarantee to be genuine and truthful.

Hudson, Ohio.—"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, inflammation, dreadful pains each month and suppression. I had been doctoring and receiving only temporary relief, when a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and wrote to you for advice. I have faithfully followed your directions and now, after taking only five bottles of the Vegetable Compound, I have every reason to believe I am a well woman. I give you full permission to use my testimonial." —Mrs. Lena Carmocino, Hudson, Ohio. R. F. D. No. 7.

St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—"Two years ago I was so bad that I had to take to my bed every month, and it would last from two to three weeks. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am happy to say that I am cured, thanks to your medicine and good advice. You may use my letter for the good of others."—Mrs. J. H. Breyere, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.

There is absolutely no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to cure female diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Tint Your Walls with Alabastine

These Free

Why?

Because Alabastine is better and much cheaper than wall paper—does not harbor insects nor disease germs like wall paper.

Because Alabastine is far better than any kind of Kalsomine—kalsomine rubs off and flakes off. Alabastine does not.

Because Alabastine is clean, stylish, costs little and is easy to put on.

Alabastine
The Sanitary Wall Coating

is a powder made from pure native alabaster. It comes in all sorts of rich, soft, velvety shades that enable you, at small cost, to decorate your walls in the same style as the handsome city homes.

Alabastine adheres to the wall of its own cementing qualities. It needs no dirty glue or paste as with kalsomine or wall paper. Anyone can decorate with Alabastine—you just mix it with cold water and apply with a flat wall brush. Simple directions printed on every package. In redecorating, just put a new coat over the old. That saves a lot of work, trouble and money.

Mail This Coupon Today

Alabastine Co.,
782 Grandville Ave.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

At no cost to me, please send your Alabastine book and tell me about your Free offers.

Name..............................

P. O..............................

County..............State..............

Our Astounding Free Offer

We will send Free, a complete color plan for the walls of your home. We will furnish Free stencils to help you make your home beautiful. We will send you at once, Free, a book about home decoration, samples of Alabastine color effects, and complete valuable information to help you make your home cheerful, clean and handsome.

To get all this, send the coupon or a postal card at once.

Alabastine Company
782 Grandville Avenue
Grand Rapids, Mich.

For Asthma, Bronchitis and all Throat Troubles Take

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

The relief is as quick as it is certain. Pleasant to take and guaranteed absolutely free from opiates.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

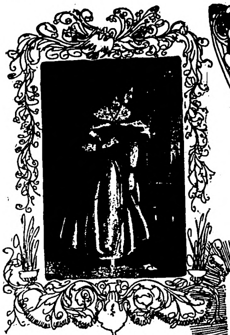
Insomnia

"I have been using Cascarets for Insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for twenty years, and I can say that Cascarets have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever tried. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as being all that they are represented."
Thos. Gillard, Elgin, Ill.

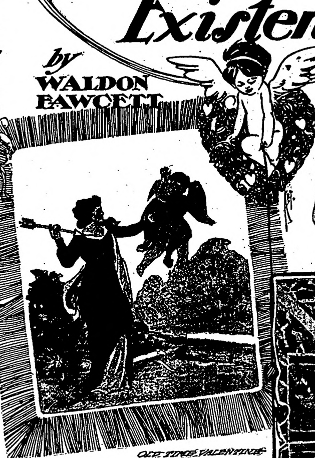
Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.

The Oldest Valentines in Existence

by WALDON FAWCETT



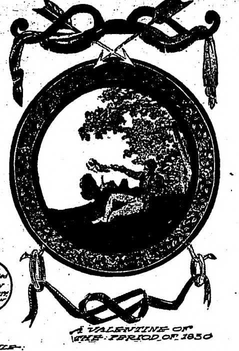
ONE OF THE EARLY VALENTINES



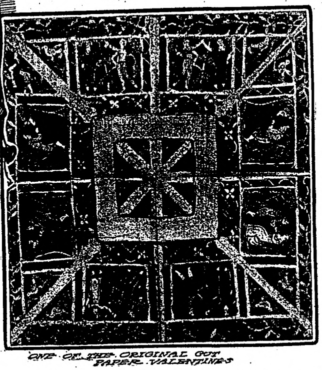
OLD TIME VALENTINES

NEW STYLE VALENTINES CUPID PLAQUES

Photos Copyrighted by Waldon Fawcett Washington D.C.



A VALENTINE OF THE PERIOD OF 1850



ONE OF THE ORIGINAL CUT PAPER VALENTINES

NO CLASS of antiques is of greater rarity to-day than the valentines of ye olden time. Nor is this strange, for filmy creations of lace paper and scrap pictures could scarcely be expected to stand the wear and tear of a century or more and survive, as does old furniture or pewter or brass. Possibly because old valentines are so comparatively few in number and so hard to find, only a very limited number of persons have ever attempted to gather collections of ancient valentines as a fad or a pastime. A recent canvass of the leading museums and libraries in the United States disclosed the fact that none of them possess so much as a single specimen of the valentine of our great-grandmothers' period, although the British museum in London boasts the ownership of a number of early valentines.

The one notable collection of old valentines in America, and indeed the most notable private or public collection of the kind in the world, is the property of Mr. Frank House Baer, a well-known resident of the state of Ohio and a prominent railroad official. Mr. Baer, who has had the means to indulge his unique fad, inaugurated his hunt for valentines some years ago and has covered all quarters of the globe in his search. This premier valentine collector now has more than 2,000 specimens in his old art gallery and many of his prizes have cost him a pretty penny.

Antedating all forms of manufactured valentines were the "valentine writers"—books of specially prepared verses and sentiments designed for the use of swains and maidens of a century and a half ago, who must needs prepare their own valentines. These first aids to the sentimentally inclined that have been preserved in the Baer collection have such suggestive titles as: "The Bower of Cupid," "The School of Love," "The Ladies' Polite Valentine Writer," "The Satirical Valentine Writer," and "Rhapsodies for Gentlemen Who Wish to Address Ladies in Sonnets."

The oldest and most valuable valentines in existence—those in the Baer collection are believed to be the only ones of the kind extant—are the cut paper valentines. These are carefully folded and delicately cut with saw-tooth edges, the average love token of this kind being so arranged that its unfolding discloses a continuous succession of penned sentiments. One of these cut paper valentines, bearing the date 1790, is formed from a sheet of paper about the size of a lady's handkerchief, folded into squares of about four inches. It was originally sealed with the representation of a heart.

Particularly quaint conceits in the line of old-time valentines found in this collection are those which represent in each instance either a single flower or a cluster of gay posies, fashioned from tissue paper somewhat on the order of modern artificial flowers. However, these ancient counterfeit blooms were so slit into lattice-like meshes that the pulling of an attached thread will cause each flower to unfold, disclosing sentimental messages hidden in its depths.

Transformation pictures consisting of crude drawings in ink or at best a more or less artistic rendering in water color, preceded by many years the transformation valentines that were introduced by the Germans, once the manufactured valentine became an established institution. In these old valentines of the "before and after" order a favorite subject was that of a bachelor sitting disconsolate and alone in his cheerless home. Upon lifting a flap of cardboard there was disclosed by way of contrast the happiness and contentment that might be his in a home presided over by a devoted wife.

One of the valentines of this class in the Baer collection seems at first glance nothing more than a commonplace representation of the exterior of a church, but a shifting of the scene displays the interior of the church with the bride and groom, best man, maid of honor and other attendants. The best part of the scheme is that the young lady—her name was Flora—who sent this keepsake a century ago went to the trouble to duly label each person represented in the entrancing scene, so that the recipient presumably had advance information as to all the details of his own wedding.

Some idea of the extent to which the custom of exchanging valentines was carried is indicated by the great number of different designs shown in the Baer collection above mentioned. After about 1830 the practice of preparing valentines at first hand seems to have gone rapidly into decay and the last of the "valentine writers" bears date of the year mentioned. Following this the manufactured valentines increased rapidly in cost and pretensions. From the lace paper confections, which were a gradual evolution—and which, by the way, have remained perennially popular until the present time—the development turned to the production of silk and satin valentines beautifully ornamented in water color.

A glance through the art gallery of old valentines gives a clear and accurate idea of the various changes which have taken place in fashions during the past century and a half as pertaining to the costumes of both men and women. The distinctive styles of the periods of 1830 and the civil war are shown, as well as the earlier epochs. Especially significant in this regard is an old valentine bearing date of 1805, in which a sailor lad is shown bidding a sad farewell to his sweetheart. The costume of the tar is interesting as exemplifying the togs worn by naval seamen early in the history of the republic.

Which Valentines Are Comic?

We read a lot of vigorous censure of "comic" valentines. But why, in the name of pigment, doesn't some one arise in meeting and tell which is the "comic" kind?

It is generally understood that the hideous distortions of form and feature, accompanied by insulting and semi-obscene doggerel, are called comic. But that sort of thing isn't comic at all. Those are the saddest creations possible—rankly and flagrantly and intentionally disgusting. Surely the truly comic valentine is the kind which exhibits a lot of absolutely meaningless combinations of color and shape and filigree and gingerbread and which carries it all off with a conscious air of being just too beautiful for anything.

Who except a maker of valentines for the trade ever sat down and imagined a four-arched heart with silk and celluloid blisters on it, arranged tastefully about a figleafless cardboard Cupid sitting on the back of an accordion-plaited tissue-paper swan, which he was guiding across a tinsel desert by means of a ribbon snaffle bit? Eh? I wonder what they irrigate their designers with before they hand 'em the scissors and paint pot and glue bottle and turn 'em loose for that sort of thing?

Then these blood-red pansies a foot across, with more celluloid revers on 'em, turned back from a nice empty spot over which is pasted, with a hinge, a lot of paper insertion of the kind they have in the edges of cigar boxes! And when you lift up the cigar-box paper (cut in designs like those mother used to cut in the shelf paper) you read underneath, in old English type:

I think it would be mighty fine
If you would be my valentine.

Isn't that deep and original and thrilling?

The the lapels of celluloid—what would the valentine perpetrators do without celluloid?—are fastened back at the points, each with a little string of tinsel arranged in a loop, while on the bend of the lapel is painted a sky-blue rose with pink leaves—isn't it artistic?

And you've seen those that are just a row of pendants, all busily pending from a twisted and tasseled silk cord, haven't you? Great! On the top card, which is shaped like a scalloped pancake, is painted a beautiful little girl with the scarlet dab that had been meant for her lips striking her on the end of the nose or on the chin and with golden hair that has blue high lights.

On the next pendant (which is square and hangs about two inches below the other) is a picture of an Oklahoma landscape with the pyramids of Egypt and a Dutch windmill in the distance.

The one just below is a cut-out figure of Queen Maria Teresa or the Venus de Medici or Katherine de Milo or Mrs. Maybrick or some early Christian martyr.

Still below hangs a two-inch heart of red, with cupids on it, and below that continues a string of lesser ones.

So, when it gets right down to cases, and to the kind of evidence that would be accepted in a competent court of law where nobody was corrupted, which are the comic valentines?

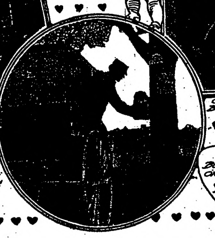
Don't all speak at once.—Strickland W. Gillilan.

The VALENTINES THAT GO ASTRAY

by WALDON FAWCETT

THE U.S. DEAD LETTER OFFICE

COLLECTING VALENTINE MAIL BY MEANS OF MOTOR CYCLE.



BUSY DAY ON A RURAL FREE DELIVERY ROUTE

Copyright Photos by Waldon Fawcett

OF ALL the different and distinct classes of mail that pass through Uncle Sam's postal channels in the course of the year, it is probable that none show so large a proportion of loss en route as do the valentines. That so many valentines go astray is, however, due almost entirely to the negligence of the senders rather than to any inefficiency on the part of the postal authorities. Nevertheless, when one pauses to consider the characteristics of the extra mail that floods the postal routes in mid-February it does not seem so strange that a larger share of it misses its destination than would be the case with an equal volume of holiday mail at other seasons of the year.

The most common cause of failure on the part of the postoffice officials to deliver mail is found in the presence on the puzzling pieces of mail matter of illegible, incorrect or insufficient addresses. Such faulty mail matter is numerous enough at all seasons of the year and it is easy to understand that it reaches flood tide along about Valentine day. In the first place many of the persons who send valentines wish to use every precaution to conceal from the recipient the origin of the remembrance. To that end they attempt to disguise their handwriting and resort to other expedients, all of which make for illegible addresses. At valentine time, too, many little folks patronize the mails on their own initiative and some of these youngsters are far from skilled in penmanship.

To this same influence—the contributions of the juvenile portion of the community—is to be attributed the unusual proportion of incorrectly and inadequately addressed pieces of mail that accumulate in all of our postoffices at the valentine festival. In innumerable instances youngsters send valentines—particularly the comic variety—to persons whose initials they do not know and regarding even the spelling of whose names they are in ignorance. Similarly there is often a woeful lack of detail in the addresses embodied in these hazy inscriptions. All these irregularities make for difficulty in delivering the mail on St. Valentine's day. Some of the baffling products of the instinct of mischief the letter carriers or local postoffice officials are able to decipher and deliver to their proper destinations, but many of these mysterious souvenirs must needs be sent to the dead letter office at Washington—the ultimate destination of all the waifs of the mails.

Even in this final clearing house for lost letters, the unique characteristics of the Valentine day mail prove a handicap in its disposition. Articles sent through the mail at other seasons of the year usually contain some indication as to the identity of the sender if such information has not been given on the outside wrapper. Thus when the wandering parcel finally reaches the dead letter office and is opened there, there is every chance if its proper destination cannot be determined, at least the identity of the sender can be learned and the postal orphan sent back for better addressing. No such clews are to be expected, however, in the Valentine day mail. Either the identity of the sender is kept a profound secret or is indicated only by tiny initials, which are of no possible benefit in tracing the origin of the missive. Consequently there is nothing for the dead letter officials to do but to either destroy these derelicts of the Valentine day mails, or, if they be deemed of sufficient value, to set them aside to be disposed of at the annual auction sale at which Uncle Sam sells to the highest bidders all the unclaimed articles found in the mails.

Incidentally it may be noted that it is very seldom that any person ever writes to the postoffice department to inquire regarding valentines that have gone astray. Many people make inquiries from time to time with reference to packages which have failed to reach the proper destination, but apparently the senders of valentines either do not know that their tokens have failed to fulfill their mission or else accept the loss philosophically. For the imaginative person there is opportunity for speculation as to how many romances have been nipped in the early stages because of the valentines that never came. Finally, one more cause of the straying of valentines in the mail is found in the numerous attempts to send such souvenirs through the mails with insufficient postage. Many little folks, for instance, seem to be under the impression that a valentine in a sealed envelope will be carried for one cent instead of two cents. If the envelope bears the address of the sender it can be returned for more postage, but, as above explained, such clew is seldom given in the case of valentines and when the valentine is forwarded to its destination "postage due" the person to whom it is addressed—perhaps suspecting its contents—often refuses to receive it and then, of necessity, it is turned over to the dead letter office.

The dead letter office, the final resting place of the unidentified valentines, is a very busy institution. Something like seven million pieces of lost mail are every year sent to this institution to be examined and its experts or "blind readers" are wonderfully skillful in deciphering the true meaning of incorrect and misspelled inscriptions that would prove absolutely baffling to any ordinary individual. At the dead letter office Uncle Sam maintains perhaps the oddest museum in the world—a collection of the queer things that have been found in the mails. Much money is found in the letters that go astray. It totals as much as $50,000 a year in coin and currency, to say nothing of an aggregate of about a million dollars a year in checks, drafts and currency.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1910. NO. 47.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Secretary Dickinson Is a Merry Wag

GIMME A DRINK QUICK-A FRIEND OF MINE'S BIT BY A RATTLE SNAKE.

WASHINGTON.—Do the onerous duties of the job of secretary of war put cobwebs on the brain of Jacob M. Dickinson of Tennessee and Chicago? They do not, chorus all the members of the Tennessee society of New York, who sat in front of their crumpled napkins at the end of the annual dinner of their organization at the Waldorf recently and listened to some new ones that were uncorked to pop and sizzle by the genial Tennesseean and Chicagoan who holds down the portfolio of war in the Taft cabinet.

"When I heard that this was a representatative body of Tennesseeans," said the secretary after he had arisen from his place at the speakers' table and cast his eyes around on the feminine products of that heralded state where the bluegrass grows in fiction and song, "when I heard this I could not believe it."

Here there was a slight gasp of anticipation and doubt from the fair ones.

"Because," the secretary hurried to add, with a touch of gallantry, "I said to myself, 'if any state turns out all this galaxy of fair women there can't be enough left within its borders to make it a real state.'"

That set Jacob M. Dickinson solid with about one-half the 300 Tennesseeans gathered about the tables.

"You all have heard the story about the fellow who'd been bitten by a rattlesnake," said Mr. Dickinson, in a gentle query. "No? Well, the fellow got bitten by the rattlesnake and he was in a desperate condition. A friend of his grabbed a quart flask and started for the place where he knew he could get the only recognized antidote for a rattlesnake bite.

"The man there started to fill up the flask, but it was one of those eastern commercial flasks that didn't hold a quart when it ought to have. You know the kind, gentlemen. The man who was filling the flask had about a three finger dose left over and the kind friend who was waiting to take the flask to the stricken man saw there was this much left over.

"'What shall I do with this left over?' asked the man who was filling the flask.

"'Well, come to think of it, that pesky snake took an awful leap at me,' said the fellow who was waiting for the flask, 'and he pretty near got me, too.'

"And, speaking of flasks, there was the fellow who went to the legislature down in Nashville once, and he stood up and started to make a speech. Maybe he'd been treating his bald spot with that stuff that comes in flasks; anyway, one of the opposition party—and there isn't much of an opposition party in Tennessee legislature at any time—got up and hollered, 'You're drunk!'

"'I may be drunk,' the member said. 'If I am, that's a temporary condition. But you're a damn fool, and that's a permanent condition.'"

Orders a Lunch at the Stamp Window

SOF' BOIL' EGGS, TOAS' AN' COFFEE.
STAMP
POST OFFICE

A WASHINGTONIAN decided he would cut it out. He went to a doctor and told him all about it. The doctor looked him over.

"Oom hoom," the doctor said a couple of times. Then he asked: "Got any relatives in town?"

"Nope. All live up north."

"Do you write to them?"

"Nope. Never write letters."

"How's your appetite? Eat much?"

"Nope. Haven't any appetite."

"Well," said the doctor, "you do three things. Stop dissipating. Eat regularly. Get into touch with your relatives. That's all the mental and physical recipes you need."

The man gave the doctor two dollars and went away.

That night he toiled painfully up the stone steps of the post office. He had resolved, though he had disobeyed injunction No. 1 that day, he would at least keep two and three. He presently found himself in front of a square, open window. Behind the window stood a man—several, mayhap.

"Well?' the man asked.

The would-be purchaser braced himself with hands. He wanted to remember just what two and three were and which was which.

"Well?" the man asked, his tone a little sharper.

The situation was becoming somewhat embarrassing. Why couldn't he remember? What—what—his mind groped back through his visit to the doctor. Quit—eat—write home. His face brightened. He beamed upon the man back of the window.

"Ah, yes'," he murmured. "Sof' boil' eggs, toas' an' coffee."

Charley Mann Discovers a Taxpayer

YOU'RE A DODO BIRD

A NEWSPAPER man, recently come to Washington and new to the senate press gallery, hustles into the outer room.

"What—what?" asked Charley Mann, superintendent of the gallery.

"Oh, I'm on the Blank News," said the correspondent.

Mann looked him over very carefully. He'll know him next time, just as he knows all the correspondents.

A stranger came bustling into Mann's room one day.

"What—what?" said Mann.

"Oh, I guess I can stay here," said the stranger. "I'm a taxpayer. I want to see what my representative is doing."

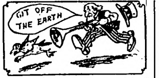
Mann at first was for having him put out. Thne he changed his mind.

"You say you're a taxpayer?" he asked.

"Yes, I'm a taxpayer."

"Well, you come with me," said Mann. "You're a dodo bird—or almost. Your kind is pretty nearly extinct."

Government Declares War on Sparrows



THE English sparrow is the pirate of the air, just as the rat is the freebooter of the earth, and ought to be exterminated. So rules the department of agriculture in a bulletin just published, which also tells how to get rid of the pest.

This declaration of war by the government is in striking contrast to relief movements started in certain cities recently to save these birds from starvation because of the severe winter.

This sparrow studiously, says the department bulletin, hunts and eats insects that are beneficial to plant life, while it passes over more or less those that are harmful. The only good thing it does is to eat the seed of weeds and prevent their spread. Aside from that there is nothing to be said in its favor. More than that, it is murderous. It hunts the nesting places and destroys eggs and young blue birds, house wrens, tree swallows and barn swallows. The robin, the catbird and the mocking bird it attacks and drives out of parks and shade trees. It has no song, but drives out the song birds and brings only noise in return.

After having learned all this about the sparrow, after an extensive investigation, the department of agriculture shows a way to destroy the bird. First, whenever sparrows roost around your house, destroy their nests. If they roost at night on your eaves trough, drive them away with a long pole. By destroying nests wherever they are seen the increase can be prevented.

The sparrows likes to nest in cavities and can be trapped through this preference. It will roost in boxes that may be put up to make its capture easy. It may be lured to spread grain and shot and killed in other ways, or may be poisoned.

Wheat soaked in strychnin is said to be preferable. This method has been adopted in California.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

BREWER HITS COURT DELAY

David Brewer, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, says criticism of courts, their delays, and cost of litigation are just. In a recent interview he favored the granting of but one appeal after a trial. Justice Brewer declared an implicit faith in the capability of the American people to maintain and perpetuate the republican form of government.

"The courts, their delays and the cost of litigation are justly criticised," said the venerable jurist. "No judge ought to object to any fair criticism and no honest judge will object. There is no duty more imperative upon the bar and the bench than to do what they can to simplify matters and put technicalities out of the way and see to it that substantial justice is administered.

"The seat of the whole trouble, in my opinion, is in the fact that too many appeals are granted when justice does not demand it. A more simple way to put it is to say that our courts trifle with justice by permitting delay upon mere technicalities.

"I advocate that the states enact into law legislation that will permit of but one appeal after the trial judge. I have reached the conclusion that no judgment should be reversed upon a mere error in the admission of evidence, unless it be clearly shown that such error worked a serious injustice upon the defendant.

"I maintain that laws should be passed which would give judges the necessary latitude in such matters to enable them to render quick justice. The laws of many of the western states are such that a judge is little more than a moderator.

"The only exception I would make to the one appeal plan would be in such cases as involved a serious constitutional question.

"The required legislation cannot be obtained unless the matter is agitated. This could best be accomplished by a national conference.

ASQUITH SNUBS THE KING

Premier Asquith, who has left London for a vacation on the continent, may relinquish the premiership when the new government is formed. He will decide this question during his trip. He declared before the elections he would not continue in office unless the country gave him full authority to carry out his policy in dealing with the house of lords.

It can hardly be said that the result of the elections contains any such mandate. It now is practically settled the liberals will not have a clear majority in the house of commons and the coalition with the nationalists and laborites will not have sufficient authority to inaugurate any radical constitutional changes.

It is an open secret that Mr. Asquith has found the practical dictatorship of the socialistic wing of his cabinet, notably Chancellor Lloyd-George and Winston Spencer Churchill, most galling.

It is rumored Lloyd-George will become the premier if Mr. Asquith decides to retire.

Just before he started for the continent Mr. Asquith was requested by King Edward to come to the royal palace for a conference. The report has spread that the premier snubbed his royal highness and departed without seeing the king. As a request by the king is the same as a command, it is most likely that Mr. Asquith will be called to task and that he will give up the portfolio.

CARTER FOR POSTAL BANKS

Few big measures of any importance have been discussed in the United States senate in the last few years that Thomas H. Carter, senator from Montana, has not had something to do with. Mr. Carter is an indefatigable worker and thorough in all he does. When he was national commissioner of the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis he was always on hand to see that the interests of the government were well guarded. The Montana senator took a prominent part in the debate on the tariff bill and now he is behind a measure which President Taft wants passed.

It is the postal savings bank bill that has the attention of Senator Carter just now. The Republican platform called for such a law. Taft says it must be passed to keep the party pledge and Mr. Carter is going to see that it goes through. He spoke on the bill several days ago and it is likely his voice will again be heard in support of the measure before it is passed. When Mr. Carter gets to talking there is no end to his speech if he deems it advisable to continue his oratory.

In the closing hours of the Fifty-sixth congress he talked a $50,000,000 river and harbor bill to death. He started talking at 10:30 Sunday night. At 10 a. m. Monday he was surrounded by senators, who importuned him to stop talking, but his voice was still strong enough to carry him through until it was time for the inaugural ceremonies. Then he went to bed, leaving orders that he should not be disturbed for a day.

SHERMAN RAPS WATERWAY

Everybody in Illinois knows that Lawrence Y. Sherman, former lieutenant governor and now president of the Illinois state board of administration, is a plain talker. Mr. Sherman usually says what he thinks and does not fear to express his opinions freely, but his closest friends were surprised at the speech he made before the Automobile Club of America in New York several days ago.

In that speech Mr. Sherman attacked a pet measure of his chief, Gov. Deneen. The governor wants to spend $20,000,000 on the state's waterways. Mr. Sherman knows it, but he didn't hesitate to say that the money could be put to better use if applied to the building of hard roads. Of course this kind of talk pleased the automobile people, for good roads is the hobby of all who jaunt around the country in their touring cars. The speech was not taken with such pleasure in the governor's office at Springfield, however, and there has been some talk that the governor might ask Mr. Sherman to resign since he saw fit to attack the waterway plan in which Mr. Deneen is so greatly interested.

In his speech Mr. Sherman said the $20,000,000 lately voted "to scoop out an endless avalanche of mud in Illinois would build 4,000 miles of hard roads at $5,000 a mile." In other ways, also, he expressed his preference for good roads over inland waterways.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Has His Cash "Inspected;" Wiser Now

LEMME SEE IT-IT LOOKS BAD

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Paul Lidden of Belfield, N. D., is out just $50 and a stern "government inspector" who met him in the Union station has $50 more on the credit side of his ledger as a result of their little tete-a-tete.

Lidden had just arrived from Belfield. He was filled with confusion after getting off the train and was undecided just what to do first. He stood around the station trying to collect his thoughts and to decide what point of interest should first claim his attention in Minneapolis. He had never been in the city before and it was hard to decide. He was debating deeply with himself, when his reveries were brusquely interrupted by a gruff voice.

"Has your money been inspected yet?" asked the intruder.

"Why, no," said Lidden. "Is that necessary in Minneapolis? It was never done in Belfield."

"Well, this isn't Belfield. I'm a government inspector. Let me look at your money. I've a hunch that you're trying to bring some bogus coin into town," said the officious one. "Produce your coin," and he exhibited a large, awe-inspiring badge.

Anxious to comply with the spirit as well as the letter of the laws of his country, Lidden hastily drew out $50 in bills and handed the roll to the stranger.

"This stuff doesn't look very good to me," snorted the man with the badge, "and I think it's about ten years in Stillwater for you."

"I got it all in North Dakota, and it must be good," said Lidden.

"Well, I'm going to take it right over to my office," said the self-appointed officer, placing the money in his pocket, "and you stay right here until I get back. If this money is phoney it won't do you any good to try to get away, because we'll follow you and get you," and the man turned on his heel and went out.

Lidden waited. He waited about two hours. Finally Detective Thomas Russell, thinking there was something wrong, went over to Lidden and got the whole story.

"Well," Russell choked, "let's go up to headquarters." That was all he could say.

"Millionaire" Hobo Is Host at Tea

WHAT A PERFECTLY CHARMING AFFAIR-WOT?

CHICAGO.—Hobo society was entertained at a "tea" recently by J. Eads How of St. Louis, one of the leading whirlers in trampdom. Hod Carriers' hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with long straggling whiskers, disheveled heads and frayed clothes. Music was furnished in part by a "lady delegate," who bummed her way to Chicago aboard the "bumpers."

J. Eads How, the host of the afternon, gave the tea as a surprise. It followed the afternoon session of the annual convention of the Unemployed and Casual Workers. Owing to the fact that Mr. How, popularly known as the "millionaire hobo," had only 75 cents in his clothes, the protest of the guests against tea as a substitute for their customary drinks was met with an apology and not with the trip to the long, narrow room with a foot rest.

When the business of the session was over the host, Mr. How, sheepishly advancing to the front of the platform, announced himself as follows:

"Fellow Tramps: All of you stick in your seats. In a few minutes we will be served with something to eat." He paused for a minute while 300 hungry "bumper riders" let out a lusty yell. Then he continued, "Consisting of sandwiches and tea."

"Tea," was the groan that went up from 300 voices.

As soon as the announcement was made the doors were flung open and six husky "casual workers" shambled in lugging two big wash boilers full of Japanese beverage and big platters piled high with sandwiches.

"Looney Pete" and "Big Star" Mulligan "poured" at the function. The sandwiches went like hot cakes, but one cup of tea was sufficient to each man. J. Eads How was visibly embarrassed.

Columbus Policeman Duped by a "Rube"

COLUMBUS, O.—If you were "one of the finest" on the Columbus police force, how would you like it if a constable from a little town near Urbana would come to Columbus, talk pleasantly to you about mutual friends, induce you to show him the interesting side of life in the capital, buy him everything he wanted to eat and drink and finally top it all off with an appetizing supper at a fine eating establishment and then, after you were out at least $10, snap a pair of handcuffs on you by a ruse, take you off your beat up to a vile little ill-smelling jail at Urbana, where you were locked up for five days on a charge of failure to provide for a wife you had almost forgotten? How would you like it?

All this happened to Patrolman Harry W. Heinz of the Columbus police department. And as a result Heinz is out of jail under bond and must answer to a charge before the courts at Urbana.

Heinz has been on the police force for some time. His wife lives with her relatives in North Lewisburg, near Urbana. He sent her money for her support at intervals, but some time ago she filed a warrant against him in Urbana, charging him with non-support.

He was covering his beat one night when a little bewhiskered individual stopped him and introduced himself as a constable from Lewisburg in Columbus "on business." He said he had been told to get acquainted with Heinz, who seemed glad to meet him.

After the evening's entertainment the handcuffs were snapped on the policeman's wrists and he was forced to accompany the constable.

Dogs Tree Police on Desks in Station

NEW YORK.—Policemen at the East Fifty-first street station had a lively time several nights ago with dogs believed to be mad. But big Jerry O'Connelly, the doorman, was justified for his fright. And now Capt. Lantry and Lieut. Brady don't chaff him any more.

The first dog brought in was a tiny mongrel, Charlie, that belonged to Peter Grace, a grocer, and it had bitten Jerry Mandell, a baker's son. Jerry had a soft heart for dogs, so instead of having Charlie shot without the privilege of trial, he put him in a cell and sent for Dr. Morin of the health department.

When Dr. Morin arrived Charlie wanted his cell all to himself. He expressed himself to that effect clearly, and Doorman Jerry fled.

Then the doctor, the captain and the lieutenant began chaffing Jerry, and were about to show him how a big fellow ought not be afraid of a small dog, when two more prisoners were brought in.

There were two huge St. Bernards that had bitten Simon, the son of Charles Scheld and belonged to Michael Dabby and were named Jack and Jenny. Dabby carried them into the station, one under each arm.

But as soon as Jack and Jenny were free they made for the captain's room. Capt. Lantry intrenched himself on top of his table and armed himself with a typewriter, while he yelled for the reserves.

Then Jack and Jenny went for the lieutenant. Brady took a flying leap to his desk, nearly breaking it in his hurry, and almost tumbling off. only Dr. Morin had jumped up there, too, and the two supported each other in their difficult andperilous position.

Subsequently, Dabby talked some German to his dogs, and as they understood it, Dr. Morin found their minds were sound enough.

THE SUNBEAM.
W. G. HUNT, Publisher.
SUNBEAM, MINN.

ADVERTISING IN MOROCCO.

According to a consular report from Tangier, the forms of business publicity most familiar in most other parts of the world prove quite ineffective among the Moors. The astonishing disclosure is made that not only is the ultimate consumer in Morocco often unable to read in his own Arabic, but a picture signifies nothing to him. "It may be almost inconceivable that such is the case," writes Consul Holt, "but it is a physical fact that the eye of the average Moor fails to find any meaning whatever in a picture." He relates how he has repeatedly shown to Moors photographs of themselves which they have failed to recognize; "and this is true to an even greater extent as regards pictures of inanimate objects," with special reference to things for sale, says Providence Journal. How to coax to buy goods a potential consumer who can read neither print nor picture would evidently be a considerable problem for the modern expert in advertising. Samples and "demonstrations," indeed, are the only form of publicity which is at all likely to catch the Moor. The main machinery of exploitation as carried on in the United States becomes useless when directed at him. The mail order house, apparently, would stand no chance in Morocco. All the witchery of art in advertising as expressed in the ubiquitous catalogue would be as completely wasted on the Moor as the sense of an inscription from the Koran, decorating the wall of a Moorish vestibule, on the American tourist.

News comes from Africa that the "Cape to Cairo railroad," once regarded as an "iridescent dream" of Cecil Rhodes, is now so far advanced that completion is actually in sight. The finished part extends more than 2,100 miles from Cape Town, and lines in course of construction or contemplated will make the connecting links, so that within two or three years it is believed trains will run from Egypt through the heart of the dark continent to the other extreme of Africa. What development will follow the opening up of the country by this means may be left to vivid imagination. Africa in some respects is surpassing other sections in railroad progress. But the "three Americas" system is going bravely on. It will not be many years before passage can be taken by train from any point in North America to stations in the most remote part of the southern continent.

There is no question that with peace and good order Cuba is bound to prosper. Despite all the criticism heard the island is making good headway in a material sense. The latest reports show that railroads are extending into every part, mines are being opened, the fruit-growing industry is expanding rapidly and sugar and tobacco are bringing returns. Cuba is a fertile region of vast natural resources of various kinds. Even under the prostrating effect of war there was rarely a time when a large commerce was not being carried on. With tranquillity in the interior and free opportunity for capital and labor to work together, there is every reason to believe that in a few years Cuba will possess wealth far exceeding that of many countries greatly surpassing the island in size.

Men weighing less than 150 pounds are said to have been discharged from certain railroad workshops. Men weighing more than 190, unless usually tall, have been "released" as street car conductors as too fat to thread the thronged aisles. Men over 40 find it hard to get jobs because they are too old. Men under 25 find promotion difficult because they are too young. Will the world's work presently all be done by men between 25 and 35 and of medium height and thickness? And what will all the others do?

The earth is now scheduled to pass through the tail of Halley's comet next May. Persons disposed to get nervous over it should find reassurance in the fact that at least one known case of the sort was experienced in the last century with no worse results than a hazy atmosphere during the transit, and a meteoric shower or two.

The supply of salt is said to be practically inexhaustible. To those who are gloomily anticipating the giving out of the world supplies this ought to bring fresh courage.

Last year over seven and a half millions' worth of toys were imported. And the supreme court has decided that dolls are more necessaries of life than toys. So the century, at least, cannot be criticised for its lack of attending to the cheering duty of making the little ones happy.

King Gustaf of Sweden disguised himself as a stevedore to obtain the views of workmen. In this country the president is overwhelmed with views right along.

GAVE SWOPE POISON

CORONER'S JURY DECLARES HYDE ADMINISTERED STRYCHNINE TO WIFE'S UNCLE.

DOCTOR WILL NOT TESTIFY

Verdict Unable to State Whether Capsule Was Given with Felonious Intent—Dr. Hyde Arrested, Gives $50,000 Bond.

Kansas City, Mo.—"Col. Swope came to his death by reason of strychnine administered in a capsule by Dr. B. C. Hyde, but whether by felonious intent or not we, the jury, are unable to say."

This was the verdict reached by the coroner's jury at Independence, Mo., that has been investigating into the death of Col. Thomas H. Swope, the millionaire philanthropist. The verdict was reached after the jury had been out an hour, and its reading caused Dr. Hyde to start forward in his chair.

Dramatic intensity had been added to mystery in the inquest when Dr. Hyde, prescriber of a digestive capsule which preceded death only a short while, refused to testify to the coroner's jury and refused even to be sworn.

The scene in the courtroom precipitated by the Hyde incident lasted only a few moments. Even the stenographers forgot everything else except to direct their attention to the three figures who may determine an arrest in the case of the death of Col. Swope—Frank P. Walsh, Hyde's attorney, Dr. B. F. Zwart, county coroner; Virgil Conkling, prosecuting attorney of Jackson county, and Dr. Hyde.

Immediately following Dr. Hyde's refusal to testify, Prosecutor Conkling declared, "that's enough for my case." But he declined to explain what he meant by the remark. The refusal furnished the first real thrill of the long drawn out inquest. All the seated spectators rose to hear what was going on. Dr. Hyde wrote the death certificate of Col. Swope, after attending Col. Swope in his last illness, and then Dr. Hyde refused to tell the coroner's jury about it.

Dr. Hyde was arrested Thursday.

The complaint, which charged first degree murder, was signed by Johnson G. Paxton, one of the executors of the Swope estate and also one of its attorneys.

Dr. Hyde's bond was fixed at $50,000 and it was furnished at his arraignment before W. S. Loar, justice of the peace in Independence. The preliminary hearing was set for Thursday, February 17.

When Dr. Hyde was arraigned, he arose and pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder.

The warrant charging murder was served at four o'clock. Hyde's attorneys were notified at noon that a warrant for his arrest would be issued and were told to have their client at the criminal court building at four o'clock to be arrested. During the time elapsing between noon and four o'clock Dr. Hyde sat in the offices of his attorney and read.

He did not seem to mind the thought of being placed under arrest and a charge of first degree murder placed against him. He chatted with friends and attorneys and called up his wife, who is a niece of Col. Swope.

The conversation with Mrs. Hyde was not a long one. He simply told her that he was to be placed under arrest, but that he would be home for supper.

All arrangements for the bond were fixed earlier in the week.

A special grand jury has been called to inquire into the death of Col. Swope. It will be convened Saturday.

It was made clear that the grand jury was not to be called to consider alone the death of Col. Thomas Swope, but the death of Chrisman Swope and all the other mysteries which have puzzled the county prosecutor's office and all others who have been engaged in the investigation. The coroner's inquest inquired only into the death of Col. Swope.

TEDDY JR. ENGAGED TO WED

Formal Announcement of His Betrothal to Miss Eleanor Alexander of New York Is Made.

New York.—Formal announcement was made of the engagement of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., to Miss Eleanor Alexander.

Miss Alexander is one of the most charming young women of New York society, petite, pretty and gracious. She is a talented musician and is one of the violinistes of the Symphony club of New York.

Names Illinois Postmasters.

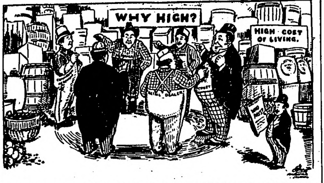
Washington.—The following postmasters have been reappointed by President Taft in Illinois: Smith D. Atkins, Freeport; Filbert C. Stanley, Downers Grove; Joseph H. Braden, Rossville; Emory V. Hamilton, Atwood; Ozias Riley, Champaign; Edward H. Cook, Huntley.

Battleship Explosion Maims Two.

Washington.—An explosion which resulted in the injury of two gunners' mates occurred on board the United States battleship Virginia, while that vessel was firing a salute off Guntanamo, Cuba, Thursday.

Morocco Defiant to France.

Fez, Morocco.—The attitude of Sultan Mulai Hafid toward the powers, France in particular, foreshadows grave complications. He refuses to confirm the French loan negotiations.



WHY HIGH?
HIGH COST OF LIVING.
RETAIL DEALER
TRUST

Fixing the Responsibility for the High Cost of Living—Same Old Circle.

AULD AND ROBNETT GUILTY

NAVAL OFFICERS SENTENCED TO LOSE FIVE NUMBERS EACH

Penalties Are Mitigated by Assistant Secretary Winthrop—Both Men Restored to Duty.

Washington.—Paymaster George Percival Auld and Passed Assistant Surgeon Ansey H. Robnett, U. S. N., were found guilty by the naval court at Boston of conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen and sentenced to lose five numbers in rank each.

While Assistant Secretary Winthrop agreed with the court that the conduct of the officers was undignified, he exonerated Auld on the ground that the motives which actuated him were commendable and the assault occurred after considerable provocation.

In the case of Surgeon Robnett, Mr. Winthrop said his conduct deserved some notice, but he modified the sentence of the court so it read a loss of two numbers instead of five. Both officers were ordered released from arrest in quarters and restored to duty.

The court held that as Dr. Cowles was a guest in the navy yard the officers there should have extended him every courtesy and that the department regretted the action taken by the officers.

DIES IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Chicago Glove Manufacturer Found Murdered in Office—Revenge or Robbery Believed Cause.

Chicago.—After a desperate fight for his life, Charles E. Wiltshire, was murdered brutally in the office of the Chicago Glove and Mitten Company, at 458 North Halsted street.

When the body was discovered lying on the floor the head and face was hacked and cut as if by a dagger and forty knife wounds were found on the body.

The office was completely wrecked in the struggle between Wiltshire and his assailants.

The guard of a stiletto was found near the body, having apparently been wrenched off in the struggle.

The police have two theories as to the motive for the crime. One of them is that Wiltshire was killed for revenge by two men whom he aided the police in sending to the penitentiary on the charge of robbing a clothing store.

DIDN'T REACH SOUTH POLE

French Antarctic Explorers Return—Southernmost Point Was Not Object of Expedition.

Punta Arenas, Chili.—The French antarctic expedition steamship Pourquoi Pas, with Dr. Jean M. Charcot, head of the expedition, on board, has arrived here.

The Frenchmen did not reach the south pole.

Dr. Charcot says the purpose of the expedition was the making of scientific observations in the south polar region, particularly in the almost unknown Alexandra land, and obtaining specimens of rare fossils. The south pole was not the objective point of the explorers.

THAW IS DENIED FREEDOM

Justice Refuses Application to Discharge White's Slayer from Matteawan Insane Hospital.

Nyack, N. Y.—Harry K. Thaw's latest application for discharge from the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, was denied Wednesday by Justice A. S. Thompkins. At the same time the justice appointed William Vanaince of Orange county a referee to take testimony on Thaw's application for a transfer from Matteawan to another institution.

Czar Is Furious.

St. Petersburg.—There is much excitement and anger in court circles about the secret marriage of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, the czar's only brother, to a woman who in the course of an adventurous career has been divorced thrice. The czar is reported to be furious and the Dowager Empress Marie refuses to see Michael.

Eau Claire Suffers from Fire.

Eau Claire, Wis.—Fire which started in the crowded Unique theater Friday spread to the adjoining Pythian castle and a number of other business establishments and the Leader morning newspaper building. Loss, $30,000.

Begin Hunt for Grafters.

Cincinnati.—An investigation of alleged collusion and combinations in city paving contracts was undertaken Friday by T. Hunt, prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county.

PRIMARY BILL IS PASSED

Illinois Senate Adopts State-Wide, Direct Plurality Measure with But One Dissenting Vote.

Springfield, Ill.—Primary reformers won the day and Thursday passed the state-wide, direct plurality primary bill in the senate with only one dissenting vote.

Three measures designed to provide direct plurality nominations for all officers in the state except university trustees were passed by an overwhelming vote.

The bill for nominations to the general assembly came first and received 40 votes, Senator Isley casting the single negative vote.

The main or state-wide bill came next, the foes lining up for the measure in much the same way and the vote being 39 to 1.

Senator Jones then called up his bill to permit counties and small cities to take themselves out from the operation of the main bill for the purpose of holding up nonpartisan elections and nominating by petition, and it passed by a vote of 36 to 1, Isley again voting "no."

Concurrence by the house in the form given to the state-wide primary bill by the senate is expected confidently.

The primary bill as brought before the senate for final action provides for direct plurality nominations of all state, congressional, municipal and judicial candidates, including court clerks, trustees of the sanitary district and members of the state board of equalization.

It provides for an advisory vote on United States senator, with the distinct stipulation that such vote shall be considered in a state-wide aspect and not in accordance with the sentiment expressed in the several senatorial districts. The bill provides specifically that officers of party organizations need not be elected precinct committeemen.

The first primaries under this bill will be held on September 15, 1910.

The house bill for a commission form of government was passed by the senate by a vote of 34 to 1.

The act provides that all cities and municipalities outside of Chicago by referendum vote may abolish their city councils or village boards and adopt the so-called commission plan.

DR. FRITCH'S TRIAL BEGINS

Detroit Physician Is Charged with Manslaughter in Connection with Death of Ann Arbor Girl.

Detroit, Mich.—Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile, in a brief but thorough opening address, formally began the trial of Dr. George A. Fritch, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor in Judge Phelan's court. The defense presented no preliminary arguments. The state then began the examination of its witnesses.

Martha Henning of Ann Arbor, intimate associate of Maybelle Millman, was the first one called to the stand.

When Miss Henning related the circumstances of Maybelle Millman's visit to Detroit, and her subsequent visit to Dr. Fritch's office, Attorney Lodge, for the defense, protested vigorously. To each question put by the state he raised an objection, and when the court ruled that the testimony was admissible, Lodge requested the stenographer to note an objection and exception to each of the queries on the records.

Disapproves of Peary Bill.

Washington.—A medal of honor instead of promotion to rear admiral for Commander Robert T. Peary, discoverer of the north pole, is proposed by a subcommittee of the house committee on naval affairs. The subcommittee unanimously disapproved the bill passed by the senate making Peary a rear admiral and retiring him with the pay of that rank.

Rearrested as Slayer.

Mankato, Minn.—Mrs. H. J. Ledbeter, recently acquitted of a first degree charge of murder, was rearrested on an indictment charging second degree murder. Her husband was the murder victim.

More Pay for Governor.

New York.—The Union League club here Friday passed resolutions urging that the salary of the governor of New York state be raised from $10,000 to $25,000 a year, and his term increased from two to four years.

$50,000 Up for June Air Meet.

Atlantic City.—More than $50,000 has already been subscribed toward the $200,000 needed for the international aviation meeting planned for Atlantic City, to begin June 15.

HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS
are common, they may cause BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, CUTS, SCALDS, or worse. Don't suffer yourself or let others suffer. Keep constantly on hand the soothing oil that CONQUERS PAIN
ST JACOBS OIL
St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.
RATTLE—BANG SMASH
All Druggists 25c. and 50c.
Awarded SIX GOLD MEDALS at International Expositions for being the best pain cure

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE
For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever
Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any age are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue; acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special agents wanted.
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

A Gift to Bryn Mawr.

Miss Cynthia M. Wesson of Springfield, Mass., has given $7,000 to Bryn Mawr college. Miss Wesson, who was graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1909, was prominent in the athletic affairs of the institution, and her gift is to be expended toward the betterment of the swimming pool. All undergraduates are required to qualify as swimmers, as the exercise is one of the most popular of the college sports.

Doubtful.

A teacher was telling a class at school on a recent Sunday about the deluge, remarking:

"And then it rained for 40 days and 40 nights.

Then a little boy asked: "Were the farmers satisfied then, miss?"—Tit-bits.

Great Home Eye Remedy,
for all diseases of the eye, quick relief from using PETTIT'S EYE SALVE. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Loyal to the Last.

Tim.—I hear the undertaker died.
Sim.—Yep, the firm was failing and he had to help it out.

The family that eats plenty of Quaker Oats
is a healthy, rugged family.
The most popular food in the world because it does most and costs least.
54

Make the Liver Do its Duty
Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS
gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.
Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

CURES SKIN DISEASE, THAT'S ALL
Not a piano-polish, nor a breakfast-food, nor a summer-resort. Stub-Roo Liquid is merely a Guaranteed Cure for eczema and skin diseases.
Stub-Roo REMEDIES
are the result of years of Professional, Scientific Study.
For 15 years R. W. Fanning, West Superior, Wis., was stricken with eczema. He paid $20 a visit to a New York specialist. Stub-Roo Liquid cured him completely.
Put this to the proof. If your druggist doesn't carry it, send us $1.00 Today, and we'll pay the express.
Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.
"Not One Known Failure in 8 Yearr."

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

Best for Children
PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS
Gives instant relief when little throats are irritated and sore. Contains no opiates and is as pleasant to take as it is effective.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

KOW-KURE
is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow CURE. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without KOW-KURE. It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "Cow Money" sent FREE. Ask your local dealer for KOW-KURE or send to the manufacturers.
DAIRY ASSOCIATION CO. Lyndonville, Vt.

WESTERN CANADA
What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:
"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (800 miles north of the International boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
70,000 Americans
will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item. Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.
Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.
Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.
For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.
Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.; J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
(Use address nearest you)

AGENTS
Drop everything else and write to me. G. F. Bible made $10 a day.
Commence work in your own town. No Capital required. I furnish you with a complete working outfit. Build an independent business of your own. No experience necessary. I give you successful methods and selling plans. After establishing a business in your own town additional territory will be assigned. Work suitable and profitable to men and women. Position permanent. In this business you will not earn big money in two hours and then nothing more for a week but will have a profitable regular income of $5.00 to $10.00 a day, every day. Hustlers always make the most money. I want hustlers. Be your own boss backed by a high class long established legitimate business concern. Only one representative wanted in each district. Write today. Secure your territory and start at once. Money made the first day.
EDWIN F. BALCH, 1 W. Kinzie St., Chicago, Ill.

ATTENTION! HOMESEEKERS
Come to the FAMOUS YAKIMA VALLEY, the home of the BIG RED APPLE.
YAKIMA
offers unlimited opportunities for success in the growing of high grade fruit.
Choice irrigated land in this prosperous section can be had at low prices and on easy terms.
We also plant and care for orchards for non-residents.
Write for our illustrated booklets giving full information.
Yakima Realty & Investment Co.
13 E. Yakima Avenue, North Yakima, Washington.
317-319 Palace Bldg, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
805 Third Avenue, Seattle, Washington.

For a Tough Beard or Tender Skin
NO STROPPING NO HONING
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

Readers of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

296 Acres Beef Pasture
Close to Big Horseshoe Lake, on main highway and R. F. D., near Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. If taken at once $8.00 down, balance of $7.50 on long time, 6 per cent. Good clay soil; easy clearing, great grass land. A SNAP. Address owner, H. B., Box "A," St. Croix Falls, Wisconsin.

THE WONDERBERRY OR SUNBERRY

Has Proved a Great Success—Thousands Say It's the Best Thing They Ever Grew.

The Wonderberry or Sunberry, the marvelous garden fruit originated by Luther Burbank, and introduced by John Lewis Childs, the well-known Seedsman of Floral Park, N. Y., has proved a great success all over the country. Thousands of people say it is the best thing they ever grew.

Mr. John Burroughs, the well-known author, Naturalist and bosom-friend of Theodore Roosevelt, says it is the most delicious pie berry he ever tasted, and a marvelous cropper.

A Director of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station says it fruits abundantly even in pure sand. In the short season of North-western Canada it is a godsend, and fruits long after frost has killed most garden truck.

D. S. Hall, Wichita, Kan., says thirty people grew it there last season with perfect satisfaction.

K. S. Enochs, Hammond, La., says it yields $250 worth of fruit per acre with him. Mrs. J. H. Powers, 4732 Kenwood avenue, Chicago, raised enough berries on a space 4x10 feet to supply herself and friends.

J. P. Swallow, Kenton, Ohio, says its equal for all purposes does not exist.

Rev. H. B. Sheldon, Pacific Grove, Cal., says he likes the berries served in any and every way.

W. T. Davis, Enon, Va., says it is true to description in every way, and fruits in three months from-seed.

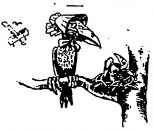
Judge Morrow, of U. S. Circuit Court, says the Wonderberry is simply delicious raw or cooked.

Mr. Childs exhibited one plant five months old bearing 10,375 berries which measured about eight quarts.

Mrs. Hattie Vincent, Hayden, New Mexico, says it stands the long, hard droughts of that climate and fruits abundantly all summer.

It is certainly the most satisfactory garden fruit and the greatest Novelty ever introduced.

SCANDAL IN BIRDLAND.



Mother Bird—Yes, your father has deserted us! Eloped with one of those new flying things!

LEG A MASS OF HUMOR

"About seven years ago a small abrasion appeared on my right leg just above my ankle. It irritated me so that I began to scratch it and it began to spread until my leg from my ankle to the knee was one solid scale like a scab. The irritation was always worse at night and would not allow me to sleep, or my wife either, and it was completely undermining our health. I lost fifty pounds in weight and was almost out of my mind with pain and chagrin as no matter where the irritation came, at work, on the street or in the presence of company, I would have to scratch it until I had the blood running down into my shoe. I simply cannot describe my suffering during those seven years. The pain, mortification, loss of sleep, both to myself and wife is simply indescribable on paper and one has to experience it to know what it is.

"I tried all kinds of doctors and remedies but I might as well have thrown my money down a sewer. They would dry up for a little while and fill me with hope only to break out again just as bad if not worse. I had given up hope of ever being cured when I was induced by my wife to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. After taking the Cuticura Remedies for a little while I began to see a change, and after taking a dozen bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, in conjunction with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, the trouble had entirely disappeared and my leg was as fine as the day I was born. Now after a lapse of six months with no signs of a recurrence I feel perfectly safe in extending to you my heartfelt thanks for the good the Cuticura Remedies have done for me. I shall always recommend them to my friends. W. H. White, 312 E. Cabot St., Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4 and Apr. 13, 1909."

Worth Keeping.

"John, do you recognize this hat?"

"No, I can't say that I do. It looks rather dilapidated."

"Yes. I have been keeping it as a dear memento. I was wearing it when you and I first met. That was 11 years ago."

"I hope you'll keep it always. It ought to convince you that you must have been mighty good looking once, seeing that even with that thing on your head you caused me to fall in love with you."

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Unkind Husband.

Mrs. Myler.—You say your husband is unkind to your pet dog?

Mrs. Styles.—Indeed he is! Why, he absolutely refuses to let Fido bite him!—Yonkers Statesman.

Twixt Maid and Mistress

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

Maude Forbes, maid to Miss Ann Peabody, felt her heart thrill as she glanced at the bulky figure of the big chauffeur beside her.

John Winthrope was a well built man. Tall and handsome with the muscles of an athlete, he was enough to make the heart of an impressionable girl palpitate abnormally. And when a pretty girl like Miss Forbes was really in love with him, then his proximity was sufficient to bring blushes of delight. Winthrope's one great fault in Miss Forbes' eyes was his innate bashfulness.

"Do you know," she whispered confidingly in his ear, "I believe that you are in love with Miss Peabody."

Winthrope's face turned red under her twinkling gaze, but, although Miss Forbes was apparently greatly delighted at the result of her words, she was secretly dismayed. Was it possible that he really was in love with Miss Peabody? For some time she had thought that his attentions to her mistress were more assiduous than was actually necessary. It was with a view to finding out his real state of feeling that she had made the suggestion as to his love affair.

"Of course I'm not!" declared Winthrope savagely, as he jerked the steering wheel of the car.

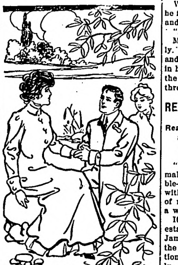
"Oh, you don't need to say that," replied Miss Forbes. "I'll not tell any one about your affinity. You might confide in me—we're good friends, aren't we?"

"Yes, good friends," Winthrope answered shortly.

Again Miss Forbes felt a sinking at the heart. So they were nothing more than friends!

"Of course," she went on, "it does seem rather presumptuous of you to aspire so high—but stranger things have happened. I've often thought—that is, it has seemed to me that she has looked at you and talked to you as if she were interested. Naturally, I wish you all the luck in the world. I—I hope you'll succeed."

"A'w," growled Winthrope, "I—But the rest of his sentence was lost in the grinding of the gears as he viciously pulled the car to a stop. Miss Peabody was waiting for them in front of a department store.



Caught Her Hand in Both of His.

"I'll sit in front with John." Miss Peabody announced brightly as the car drew up. "I want him to give me a final lesson in driving the car."

As Miss Forbes reluctantly climbed from her seat in front and made her way into the tonneau she felt a distinct pang of jealousy. To her distracted vision it seemed that Winthrope gladly welcomed the change. To her it appeared that his hand rested almost too caressingly on Miss Peabody's hand as he aided her in guiding the huge car through the streets; that his glance was almost too noticably tender as he whispered his instructions to her. Miss Forbes sighed.

The car sped through the streets and in a short time reached the countryside. Miss Peabody's fresh laugh rang out as they raced along. She seemed to be enjoying herself hugely. Miss Forbes wished that she were having so good a time.

They had reached a broad, country road, and Winthrope had practically resigned control of the machine to Miss Peabody. The road made a sharp turn and as the automobile raced around the curve Miss Forbes saw a temporary bridge spanning a stream, a short distance to the side of the spot where the old bridge had formerly stood. The temporary bridge was a frail structure, with no side rail.

Instinctively Miss Forbes felt disaster coming her way. She closed her eyes and heard Winthrope call to Miss Peabody:

"To the right, quick!" he cried.

Miss Forbes opened her eyes. Perhaps Winthrope's cool head would save them, after all. She saw Miss Peabody drop the steering wheel and threw her arms about Winthrope's neck. Winthrope tried desperately to disengage her hands and to reach the wheel—but without avail. Miss Forbes saw that the car was headed for the river and again she closed her eyes.

In a moment the car seemed to leave the earth and soar into the air. Then came the sound of a huge splash as it struck the water. Icy cold water enveloped Miss Forbes.

To Miss Forbes' surprise she did not lose consciousness. She fought desperately to reach the surface, and as she fought she wondered, oddly enough, what Winthrope and Miss Peabody were doing. She wondered if Miss Peabody still had her arms about Winthrope's neck, and even then she felt a pang of jealousy.

Finally Miss Forbes got her head above water and then, to her further surprise, she did not sink. In a moment more she realized that she was standing on a seat in the tonneau and that her head was above water. She glanced about. In front of her were Winthrope and Miss Peabody. The latter still had her arms about Winthrope's neck, and Miss Forbes saw that she had fainted.

Winthrope caught sight of the girl, and she was sure that a flash of joy swept across his face. "But of course he'd be glad anybody wasn't drowned," she told herself.

"Can you wait until I take Miss Peabody to the shore?" Winthrope cried.

Miss Forbes nodded. She watched him strike out with strong, sturdy strokes, and her heart thrilled at the sight. Well might Miss Peabody, or any one else, be proud of such a man. In a short time Winthrope had reached the shore and deposited the still form of Miss Peabody on the ground. Then he plunged into the water.

"You aren't frightened, are you?" Winthrope asked, as he neared Miss Forbes.

"Not at all."

Miss Forbes noticed that the man's face was thin and drawn. His hands trembled as he caught her from the seat.

When they had reached the shore Miss Forbes' eyes fell upon her mistress. Miss Forbes watched her face brighten as her eyes fell upon Winthrope. She extended her hands toward him.

"My hero!" she murmured, softly.

Resolutely Miss Forbes turned her eyes away, although her heart was thumping painfully. She caught sight of Winthrope staggering toward her. His foot, she saw, was oddly twisted and he seemed to be wholly unmanned.

Wholly disregarding Miss Peabody he fell on his knees beside Miss Forbes and caught her hand in both of his.

"My dear, my dear," he murmured.

Miss Forbes caught her breath quickly. She looked wildly at her mistress and saw the latter, with a hurt look in her eyes, turn away. Then, slowly, the maid bent over and kissed Winthrope

REAPING IN WASTE PLACES

Really Wonderful Accomplishments of a Vacant Lots Cultivation Association.

"You don't mean to say you could make a garden out of that disreputable-looking lot Why, it is covered with stones and tin cans and all sorts of refuse. I doubt if you could coax a weed to grow there!"

It was an owner of unimproved real estate who made the objection to James H. Dix, the superintendent of the Philadelphia Vacant Lots Cultivation association, says Harper's Weekly. Mr. Dix had asked for the free use of the lot for one of the 4,000 poor people to whom such ground gives the one opportunity for gaining a taste of the delights of the farmer's life.

"Just wait and see," was the answer. "Come back in three months and you won't know it for the lot."

Long before the three months had elapsed the surprised land owner, after gazing with wonder at the luxuriant green of corn, tomatoes, beans and potatoes which had made his ugly lot a thing of beauty, exclaimed: "If this is the sort of thing you vacant-lot people are doing in Philadelphia you are public benefactors."

Last year, at an expenditure by the association of less than $6,000 for all purposes, including putting the land in shape and the cost of free seed to those who could not afford to pay for it, the amateur gardeners realized more than $40,000 from their product. Many of the gardeners were thus saved from becoming public charges, new life and vigor were imparted to many others, while in a number of cases the life in the open proved just what was needed to save from the grave sufferers from tuberculosis.

A mother and three children, deserted by the husband and father, were almost destitute when they learned that a garden could be secured. Bravely they went to work on their little fifth-of-an-acre tract. The mother fell sick, but the children would not give up. They were able to support the home table, while they sold more than a hundred dollars' worth of provisions, and put up for the winter twelve bushels of potatoes and fifty quarts of canned vegetables.

A Brilliant Find.

A European workman has discovered ten little brilliants in the lining of an old waistcoat which he had bought second-hand three years ago. He happened to lose a coin the value of four cents in the lining, and it was when recovering this that he found the diamonds. They are of an estimated value of $5,000.

Lauritz S. Swenson, Appointed Minister to Switzerland

Lauritz S. Swenson, of Minneapolis, whom President Taft appointed Minister to Switzerland, will take up the duties of his post this month.

LEDBETER INDICTED

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO INDICTMENT CHARGING MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

TO CLAIM PREVIOUS JEOPARDY

That Action Is Violation of the Constitution Will Be Argued by Attorneys For the Defense.

Mankato.—Mrs. Grace Ledbeter entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging her with murder in the second degree. She will also enter a special plea, that she has once been in jeopardy. She asked Judge Quinn to fix the amount of her bail and he thought that $10,000 would be about right. She had a bond for $4,500 but did not think she could furnish as large a bond as the court suggested. The court thought that owing to the seriousness of the charge he ought not to make it less. Her bondsmen all live elsewhere, and an effort will be made to get them here.

The indictment charges that on May 4, 1909, Mrs. Ledbeter assaulted her husband, Holland J. Ledbeter, with weapons unknown to the jury and did wilfully and feloniously cause his death.

HOSPITAL RULE IS PROBED.

Report Will Not Be Made Public Till Governor Gets It.

Rochester, Minn.—Working behind closed doors, examining members of the hospital board at the Rochester insane asylum, members of the board of control, investigating charges made by a former nurse, refused to make public information of any kind bearing on the probe.

Mr. Vassaly was the only member of the board who allowed an interview. He stated that the board was acting under instructions from the governor and they would not make public their report to anyone until it was presented to the governor.

None would say whether the report would be favorable or unfavorable to the management of the hospital.

How long the probe will take is not known. Everyone who has any connection with the case will be examined and the charges sifted to the bottom.

The general sentiment in Rochester is that the charges were brought up for spite by a discharged employe whose name has been withheld.

Neither Dr. Kilbourne nor any of his staff will discuss the case. It is doubted whether the charges are of a serious nature against Dr. Kilbourne of any of the staff. An employe of the hospital said: "It is always possible to rake up a charge of mismanagement in an institution as large as this one and having 200 or more employes, and these charges can be easily enlarged upon when, as a matter of fact, they are occurrences that cannot be helped."

Minneapolis. — Hennepin county's $1,000,000 bond project for good roads, provided by the last legislature, has been declared illegal.

WINS SUIT AGAINST COUNTY.

Appeal Will Be Taken In Case of Contractor vs. Wadena.

Wadena.—Judge Taylor of St. Cloud has rendered a decision in favor of A. G. Wahl, the ditching contractor of St. Cloud, who brought mandamus proceedings against the county to compel the payment of $343, balance due for the work of straightening Leaf river. This case is of equal interest to Otter Tail county, as they held back the same amount as Wadena

SEABURY GETS HIS MONEY.

Governor Johnson Refused to Give His Signature to Warrant.

St. Paul.—Governor Eberhart, acting on a decision given by Attorney General Simpson, approved the $1,390 voucher for services of Channing Seabury on the capitol commission that the late Governor Johnson had refused to approve, acting on the advice of former Attorney General Young.

The governor signed the voucher of Mr. Seabury, vice chairman of the new capitol commission, for $1,390 for per diem for time spent in connection with the construction of the new capitol. The bill covers the last two and a half years of the existence of the capitol commission and is the same bill that Governor Johnson refused to allow, because Attorney General Young held that it was not a legal charge against the state.

Attorney General Simpson gave the governor an opinion that the charge was legal and the governor promptly signed the warrant.

The act creating the capitol commission provided that its members should be paid $5 per day for the time devoted to the work, and their expenses. The governor was ex-officio chairman of the commission and Mr. Seabury was vice chairman and the resident member. The law provided that all vouchers must be signed by a majority of the board and by the governor.

No question arose until Governor Johnson came into office. Then Mr. Seabury presented a bill in which he had charged the $5 per diem not only for the days the commission held its meetings, but also for the time he spent visiting the capitol. The $5 per diem had been charged for going up the day the battle flags were removed from the old to the new capitol and for trips to the capitol when the Horton bill, relating to the control of the capitol, was being discussed by the legislative committees.

Governor Johnson Dissented.

Governor Johnson refused to sign the bill and E. T. Young, then attorney general, gave an opinion that the charges for per diem outside the days the board was meeting were not legal charges against the state.

So from the fall of 1904, when the capitol was so far completed that the state officials and legislature moved in, until in March, 1907, when the control of the building passed from the commission to the governor, Mr. Seabury drew no per diem except for the days when the commission held meetings. It was thought that it was a closed incident until Governor Johnson died.

In the accounts of the capitol commission the warrant for $1,390 to Channing Seabury is entered as issued and that much money reserved out of the state capitol fund, but the amount still remained in the state treasury. The balance of the $4,500,000 in the capitol fund is expended.

The governor put the matter up to Attorney General Simpson and he reversed the ruling of his predecessor and held that the law did not mean that the members of the commission should be paid only for the days they had meetings, but for all the time they spent in connection with the construction of the capitol.

Minneapolis.—President Albert Ross Hill, of the University of Missouri, has formally declined the presidency of the University of Minnesota.

Rochester School Burned.

Rochester, Minn., Feb. 11.—The Northrop schoolhouse here was totally destroyed by fire. Two hundred primary school children, up to the sixth grade, were in the building, but were marched out in order. The fire started from a glow-pot being used to thaw out some frozen pipes. The pot came in contact with dry wood and the blaze started. The janitor discovered the fire and sounded the alarm, and the 200 tots were marched out in safety. The nerve of the four lady teachers prevented a panic.

PHYSICIANS OF OMAHA DISAGREE

DIFFERENT OPINIONS ON COOPER'S REMARKABLE SUCCESS HELD BY MEDICAL MEN OF NEBRASKA METROPOLIS.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 16.—The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparations in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity at large have become forced into open discussion of the man and his preparations.

The physicians as a whole seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in Omaha—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad which cannot last, and which will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

The opinion of these two factions is very well voiced in the statements made recently by two of a number of physicians who were interviewed on the subject.

Dr. J. E. Carass when questioned about the matter said: "I have not been a believer in proprietary preparations heretofore, nor can I say that I believe in them at present. But I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my notice concerning this man Cooper have gone far towards removing the prejudice I had formed against him when the unheard-of demand for his preparations first sprang up in this city. Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me after taking Cooper's remedy and have stated positively that he has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases of years' standing that proved very obstinate to treatment.

"I am the last man on earth to stand in the way of anything that may prove for the public good simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

Another well known physician who was seen took the opposite view of the "Cooper-mania," as he called it, which now has this city in its grip. He said: "I can only liken the present state of affairs to a certain kind of hallucination. For want of a better name, I might call it 'Cooper-mania.' The people of Omaha seem to be firm in the belief that this man Cooper has health corked up in a bottle.

"Some of them imagine that he has completely cured them of various ills, judging from their statements. It is beyond me to say why the city has gone crazy over the man. It may be safely put down, I think, to one of the passing fads that so often attack the American public.

"Sooner or later the people are bound to regain their senses and will then realize that the reputable physician is the one to whom their health had best be entrusted."

In the meantime Cooper meets several thousand people daily, and only smiles when statements of the above character are quoted to him.

A Promise.

"Pa."

"What is it, my child?"

"When Sis marries that lord, will I have to call her 'your ladyship?'"

"It will not be necessary for you to do so, but it will be very nice if you care to."

"All right. Mebby I won't always do it, but I'll promise not to call her 'punkin-face' any more, anyhow."—Chicago Record-Herald.

When Rubbers Become Necessary

And your shoes pinch, shake into your shoes Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet. Cures tired, aching feet and takes the sting out of Corns and Bunions. Always use it for Breaking in New shoes and for dancing parties. Sold everywhere 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Stranger.

Hostess.—You won't come to church with us, then, Phyllis?

Phyllis (down for the week end).—I don't think so, dear. You see, I shouldn't know a soul there!

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Noncommittal.

"What do you call your cook?"

"Mary is her name."

A Mother's Love

wisely directed, will cause her to give to her little ones only the most wholesome and beneficial remedies and only when actually needed, and the well-informed mother uses only the pleasant and gentle laxative remedy—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—when a laxative is required, as it is wholly free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 20 1908 at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3 1879

Several of the candidates for places on the next republican state ticket are using the cheap method of getting their names before the public by sending circular letters to the newspapers Such letters are nealy used to start the morning fire at this office.

The Chicago Daily Tribune has taken a vote of the republican editors west of Allegenies on the following question:

Is Hon Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois your choice for speaker of the next congress? There was 2.653 said No. 640 said yes. Of the Independent publishers 541 said No. and 577 said yes, making a total of 3.463 noe's, and 839 yes. So you see if the republican editors had a chance to vote in congress they would soon put "Uncle Joe" out of business

A man so cheap, low and contemptible as to come out in the public press and attact personally person or persons giving his or their names, and himself hide under an assumed name is unworthy of notice and a digrace to the community, and an editor who publishes such "rot" is a Contemptible Cur, much lower than the miserable specimen of humanity who may have written, or dicitated such article, or articles.—Olberg Journal.

In politic's we often think of an honest old farmer that we used to know over in Polk county that politicians brought up as a candidate for office. The first year he run he about made a clean sweep of everything before him, (as it was in the good old days of populisam) which gave him the "big head" so bad he got right up and told his friends, that had supported him that be was going to show them somthing new in politicts, and that in the next campaign he would not have any opposition at all, as everybody would be for him. He then commenced to hunt up his opponents and shower all his favors upon them He would never give any of his legal work to a newspaper that had supported him, but would hunt up one that had been fighting him When the next campaign came on he was surprised to see that his opposition had increased, instead of diminishing, but he was again elected, but by this time he had so much opposition to show favors to that he did not give his best friends a plesent look. Well to make a long story short they "got him" in the next campaign, and down be went to defeat, and some of his former friends said it served him right. Moral; Stand by your friends, that did stand by you and let your opponents fight you, for they will fight you, no matter how many favors you grant them.

It's Good Point.

"Huh," asked the long haired young man. "is there nothing at all about poetry that you like?"

"Yes," replied Crabbe. "Whenever I see a poem it makes me feel good to realize that there's no law compelling me to read it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

No grip is so hard to shake off as that of early convictions.—Maurice Thompson.

New South Wales.

In New South Wales the seasons are: Spring—September, October, November; summer—December, January, February; autumn—March, April, May; winter—June, July, August.

The Leather of the Egyptians.

The ancient Egyptians were skilled in the art of tanning leather and manufactured it in various ways and for various purposes besides that of furnishing covering for the feet. Indeed, it is to those builders of the pyramids that we are indebted for the first artistic forms of footwear, and, so far as can be ascertained from history and the researches of archaeologists, the Egyptians were the first shoemakers who were worthy of that name. It is a fact, too, that tanners of to-day employ very much the same methods as did the ancients. About the same materials are used; and the processes are almost precisely similar to those in vogue hundreds of years ago. It is true that tanners of the present day have found a means of greatly shortening the time required to convert a hide into leather and that steam power and modern machinery have done much to expedite and improve the processes of finishing the leather; but, after all, the principals of tanning remain the same as they have been from the first.—London Globe.

Posthaste.

He kicked off his wet boots, slid his tired feet into a pair of carpet slippers lit his pipe, sat down in the easy chair with a sigh of relief and declared that twenty thousand wild horses couldn't make him stir from the house till morning.

"Henry," remarked the lady with the knitting needles, "you posted that letter I gave you this morning, I suppose?"

"I did, my love," he answered unblushingly.

"I asked ma to postpone her visit for awhile," his wife went on. You see"—

Henry did see. His wife saw too What she saw was the tired man jump from his chair, kick off his slippers, put on his boots and skip out into the street as if rain was the very thing he liked wading through.

And when, five minutes later, Henry came back with a tale that he'd just been to see how the thermometer outside the postoffice stood she smiled.—London Scraps

Just Like Eve's Apple.

A fruit supposed to bear the mark of Eve's teeth is one of the many botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "the forbidden fruit," or "Eve's apple tree" The blossom has a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside and deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the garden of Eden and to warn men against its noxious properties. The mark upon the fruit is attributed to Eve. Why the bite of Adam did not also leave its mark is not known, but as only one piece seems to be missing its loss is ascribed to the woman.

Constable Had the Evidence.

One of Philadelphia's leading corporation lawyers was visiting in New England, and, returning home, he told how he had been arrested there. He had not had a vacation for some years, and, getting into the country, he proceeded to be a boy again.

He struck a piece of country road and ran along for a half mile. He found a fence and vaulted it. He saw a tree and climbed it. Finally he returned to the village. Just as he struck the town a hand was laid on his shoulder, and a man said in a gruff voice:

"Come with me."

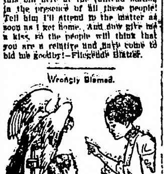
"What for?" inquired the other in amazement.

"I'm the constable, and you're under arrest I've been following you, and I think you're crazy."—Philadelphia Times.

Cool Presence of Mind.

Debtor (to shopgirl)—It's an outrage for your employer to have you present this bill here at the railroad station in the presence of all these people! Tell him I'll attend to the matter as soon as I get home. And now give me a kiss, so the people will think that you are a relative and have come to bid me goodby!—Fliegende Blätter.

Wrongly Blamed.



"Bobby, are you teaching the parrot to swear?"

"No, mother; I'm just telling it what it mustn't say."

Not Anxious.

"You have quite a number of the poets," said Goodby, who was inspecting Woodby's library. "Ah, there's Browning! Do you understand him?"

"No, I don't," said Woodby.

"Ah," said Goodby, continuing his examination, "have you tried?"

"Certainly not. What's the use of trying? I ain't anxious to understand him."—Philadelphia Record.

True honor leaves no room for hesitation or doubt.—Plutarch

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn January 7, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 25th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 300, Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Haberlank, August Ristau, of Thief River Falls Minn. Jacob Jonas, Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN.
Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 21, 1910.

Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota January 14th. 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole P. Ostenas, of Neptune Minnesota, who on November 7th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 849. Serial No. 04306, for S. W. ¼ Section 10 Township 162 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 24th, day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Siver Haugo, of Neptune Minn. Nels Resin, of Rudell Minn. Knut Jorstad, of Wanke Minn. Julious K. Halverson, of McIntosh Minn

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 11th, 1910

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. February 7th, 1910.

Notice is hereby given, that John Potoni, of Highlanding Minn., who on July 15th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 553, Serial No. 04200, for lots 2.4. S.W.¼ N.W. ¼ Section 28 & Lots 11 & 12, Section 29, Township 158 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 31st. day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Edon Davis, Theodor Jacobson, of Highlanding Minn. Walter McAndrews, William [illegible] of Sunbeam Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 9th, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Ignac Kolski of Rudell Minn., who on November 12th 1905, made Homestead entry No 1884; Serial No. 04529 for N.½ S.W. ¼ Section 17 N. ½ S. E. ¼ Section 18 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make five commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before B. A. Swanson, Judge of Probate Court, at Red Lake Falls Minnesota on the 28th day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mike Kolski, of Rudell Minn. John Hanoski, of Radney Minn. Wabzeh Wojniowski of Rudell Minn. John Wrzenek, of Hilda Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 191.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 11, 1910 Notice is hereby given that Gilbert O. Vraa, of Torgelsen Minnesota, who on November 2nd, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 813 Serial No. 04237, for N. W. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 24th, day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Michael Torgerson, Knut Torgerson, Emil A. Groberg, Thorjus [illegible] Horken, all of Torgelsen Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Giants and Dwarfs.

In the seventeenth century all the abnormally large and small folks of Austria were assembled in Vienna in response to a whim of the empress. As circumstances required that all should be housed in one building, there was a fear that the imposing proportions of the giants would terrify the dwarfs. But the dwarfs teased and tormented the giants so that these overgrown mortals complained with tears in their eyes, and as a consequence sentinels had to be placed to protect the giants from their pygmy persecutors, for the smallest men had the biggest brains and the longest tongues.

Corrupted His Style.

"The late Richard Watson Gilder," said a New York poet, "always opposed the reading of light literature. A poet, he said, could not read such literature without corrupting his literary style.

"He once told me that the poet in this respect was like Brown's parrot.

"Brown bought a parrot for $50 from a pet stock dealer and a week or two later returned to the shop and insisted that the bird be taken back.

"'What's the matter with it?' the dealer asked.

"'W-w-why,' said Brown, 'the durn bird be-critter st-stutters.'"

TO FIND FAULT.

People Are Sometimes Paid For That Express Purpose.

You have no idea how many things are wrong in a big business until you are paid to look for them, writes Gelett Burgess in Collier's. There were the clocks, for one thing, when I first began. The girls wore too many rats in their hair, there was grease on the elevator doors, expensive hats were dumped one on another, the ventilation was bad, the boxes on the shelves showed from the street through the show windows and about a thousand other things. Then Spindelheim sold teapots just like our eighteen cent ones for 14 cents, and for a concern like Smith & Co. to be undersold is fatal. There's really nothing that so enrages Mr. Smith; also Rubinstein's window dresser has beaten ours, too, at times. Down it goes in my little report. Wouldn't any woman love my job.

Yes, it's fun to be paid for being a misanthrope, but it's hard work too. At 9 o'clock I begin my promenade through the store—downstairs, upstairs, basement, attic and annex. If a girl at the counter has dirty finger nails or too wide a pompadour to suit me I stop and talk pleasantly, buy 9 cents' worth of edging and so get her number from the sales slip. She never knows anything about it till her superintendent gives her a scolding the next day. I have eyes like a hawk and a nose like a hound and ears like a small boy under the sofa when a young man's calling on big sister. In ten minutes I have spotted the dust in the corner of the aisle, a girl who wears brass bracelets, a porter who is not attending to his duty, a badly arranged counter, an error in spelling on a placard, two store detectives loafing on their job and a hideous combination of colors in the front window. I go to the ladies' room and make a note of these things surreptitiously. I don't dare go there too often, though, for fear I'll be identified, so sometimes I run back to my office, two blocks away. So it goes till about 4 o'clock, hither and thither, high and low, looking for trouble. It doesn't do a clerk any good to be uncivil to me, I can tell you, or to make me wait too long for my change, but I try to be fair, and if I find a particularly willing and considerate sales person down that name goes in my report too. You might suppose that there'd be good graft in that; but, of course, I keep my position only so long as the head of the firm has absolute confidence in my integrity. The funny part of it is that the more I complain the better he likes it. I'm like the opposition party in congress. I'm never satisfied When I am I'll have to look for another position.

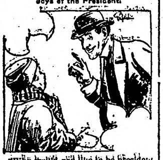
At 4 o'clock I go back to my little office and dictate my report from my notes to a stenographer, and when it's typewritten I send it to the head of the firm.

When "Pluck" Was Slang.

The word "pluck" affords an instance of the way in which slang words in the course of time become adopted into current English. We now meet with "pluck" and "plucky" as the recognized equivalents of "courage" and "courageous." An entry in Sir Walter Scott's "Journal" shows that in 1827 the word had not yet lost its low character. He says (volume 2, page 80), "Want of that article blackguardly called pluck." Its origin is obvious. From early times the heart has been popularly regarded as the seat of courage. Now, when a butcher lays open a carcass he divides the great vessels of the heart, cuts through the windpipe and then plucks out together the united heart and lungs—lights, he calls them—and he terms the united mass "the pluck."—London Notes and Queries.

In the adversity of our best friends we often find something which does not displease us.—Rochefoucauld.

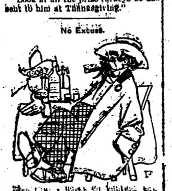
Boys of the President.



"Why would you like to be president, my boy?"

"Look at all the prize turkeys he has sent to him at Thanksgiving."

No Excuse.



"No, sah, I never go hunting, sah. It is cruelty."

"But you fish, colonel. Isn't that cruelty too?"

"What is a fish? A creature that has its existence entirely to watch bait."

Yes we have plenty of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. WINTON,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Optional payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention

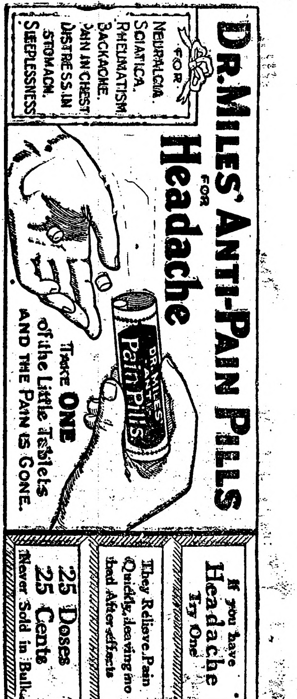
Give Us A Call.

Merchants
State Bank,

ST HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.

G. L. HANSEN.......President.
DANIEL PATTERSON ....Vice Pres.
A. D. STEPHENS.........2nd Vice Pres.
B. E. BUKKEN...........Cashier.



DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS
FOR Headache
FOR NEURALGIA
SCIATICA.
RHEUMATISM
BACKACHE
PAIN IN CHEST
DISTRESS IN STOMACH.
SLEEPLESSNESS
DR. MILES' Anti-Pain Pills
TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.
If you have Headache Try One
They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects
25 Doses 25 Cents
Never Sold in Bulk.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 80 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G.A.Hoyeland, R F. D No. 1
Fosston Minn.

C.L. Clark was transacting legal business at Thief River Falls Monday and Tuesday.

One of Uncle Sams post office inspectors was visiting the p. m. on the Highlanding line Monday.

Wm.Erb and son, of Equality was up this way today looking for work oxen for the Canada market.

Stephen Singer passed by this way yesterday on his way to Rhoda to check up the books at that end of the firm.

There will be a grand public ball at the Kolski hall in Deer Park, on Saturday evening February 19th,.

The following Highlanding people took in the Kratka ball on last Saturday evening.; Mr.S V. Dice and George Beaudry, Miss Emma and Mandy Dunn, Miss Cardo McMahn, and ye editor,

There is to be a metting of the board of directors of the Red Lake River Transportation Co. held at Highlanding tomorrow night at 7 o' clock p. m. What this meeting was called in the night for we do not understand, but as we are working seven days and part of six nights a week, we have a more plesent engagement for our one evening of lesure.

We expected to have a nice sleigh ride last Tuesday. so we promised to take the mail through to Lillo for C. L. Clark. But we struck the worst blizzard of the season, but got to Lillo to connect with the mail going west, After eating a hearty dinner prepared by that excellent cook, Miss Nellie Short we started on our return to face that storm for twelve miles home. Did we suffer with the cold? Not at all! When we got to Andrew Rolandsons we stopped and got warm and had a hot cup of coffee and then from there to Rhoda, where we found Mr. George Singer, with a red hot fire and and an invertation to stop over night. From there to Radney, and hot coffee, to Sjur Stolass, and a hot cup of tea, and from there to Tobias Olsons and another hot cup of coffee, and from there to Sunbeam, where we arrived warm and conferatble.

BIDS WANTED.

Bids are wanted by school No. 87, Town of Highlanding, for seven cords of green popular cord wood to be delivered at the school house on or before March 20th,. Seald bids to furnish thi wood should be filed with W. G. Hunt, district clerk on or before Feb. 26th, at which time the board of directors will let the contract to the lowest bidder.

A. good pair of 8 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E. A. Mosue, one mile south from Sunbeam.

He Spoke Too Soon.

A well known business man attended his daughter's commencement exercises at an eastern college. He had been greatly pleased with the beauty and dignity of the exercises and was discoursing to his wife upon the refining influences of college life. Suddenly his impressive monologue was cut short. A girl in cap and gown came dashing down the steps of the main hall waving her diploma and shouting, "Educated, by gosh!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Nice Bird.

"Do you like a nice bird?" asked the host as they sat down to the table.

"Oh, yes!" responded the guest immediately and enthusiastically.

"You ought to call on my sister," explained the other. "She's got one of the finest canaries you ever saw. Well, what kind of a sandwich do you think you can eat?"—London Telegraph.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Mr.and Mrs. Andrew Staand and dau hter, from Edmore N. D. are visiting with Mr and Mrs. Ole Nesland this week.

Miss Annlebell Rolandson visited Miss Annie Iverson on Saturday and Sunday.

Oscar Nesland and Andrew Letvig made a business trip to Plummer Saturday

There is to be services held at the school house in district No. 88 near Carlsons, on next Sunday at 8 o'clock p m., by the Rev E A.Mostue. All are cordialy invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lillo went down to Sletten Monday to visit their daughter Mrs. G. A. Hoyeland.

Buttermaker Wm. Lauretson, of Plummer has commenced to work for the Clearwater Creamery and will be ready to begin take in cream today.

W.G. Hunt was special mail carrier on Tuesday.

There will be services in the Erickson school house on Sunday Feb. 18th, at 10·30 a m.

The Clearwater young peoples society will meet at Sarah Legvolds on Sunday Feb. 18th. at 8 o'clock p.m. Everybod welcome to come.

Notice For Publication,

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 16th, 1910. Notice is hereby given that Thone Johnson, of Rhoda Minn. who on April 8th. 1905. made Homestead entery No. 1114. Serial No. 04448, for S.W. ¼ Section 13 Township 152 N.Range 41 W, 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention t make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S, Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 28th. day of Mach, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Franses O, Gustafsou, of Malone Minn. Kaut T. Sannes, John Polbrook, William R. Rodman, of Rhoda Minn,

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Perseverance.

Perseverance is more prevailing than violence, and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together yield themselves up when taken little by little.

A Good Explanation.

Father—But, do tell me, Alfred, how could you fail again?

Son—Well, you see, we had another examination.

No Celebration.

Uncle Rastus—I's afeard I ain't goin' ter hab many chickins dis year.

Lucas—Why not, Uncle Rastus? Are the prices too high for you?

Uncle Rastus—No, sar, but de fences is.

Business Is Business.

"Do you want to see me again, doctor?"

"I don't want to, but it's business."

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS,

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2, 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing.

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka, Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Bnciness.-- SINGCR BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

Brass Ones.

"I stopped at a lovely place last summer; plenty of fellows. Honest, I got half a dozen rings."

"So? I didn't know there was a merry-go-round out there."

Can't Be Touched.

"Say, mister, can't you help a poor man who has lost both arms?"

"No; you can't touch me."

Intercollegiate.

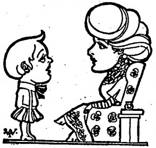
"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amherst Four Leaf Clover.

Too Tough.

Mrs. Goode—Begging again? Why, you didn't eat that piece of steak I gave you.

The Hobo—I didn't ask you for work, ma'am. What I wanted was something to eat.

Impressive Enough.



"Willie, does your teacher try to impress you with the Golden Rule?"

"Nope. She uses a plain wood one, but it works just fine."

An Arbitrary Classification.

"So you think every patriot has a more or less clearly defined ambition to hold public office?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "As a rule, patriots may be divided into two classes—the appointed and the disappointed."—Washington Star.

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS, THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN
It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.
Special attention given to Probate Court work.

The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING. HIGH GRADE.
Automatic Lift.
Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Kept Them Dancing.

A Washington official, speaking of blunders in the diplomatic service, told of a mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan. He said:

"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suit of rooms in his house. The morning of the shahzada's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely; but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet. The host ventured to ask the reason of this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:

"'You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess.'"

Livingstone.

Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never fired a shot in anger, never "clubbed or clouted or banned or blasted." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old man who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.

Unkempt Smith—Mister, would youse kindly help a poor man as is all in, down and out? Jocular Citizen—Why, certainly. Just climb the fire escape on that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then you will be all out, up and in.—Judge's Library.

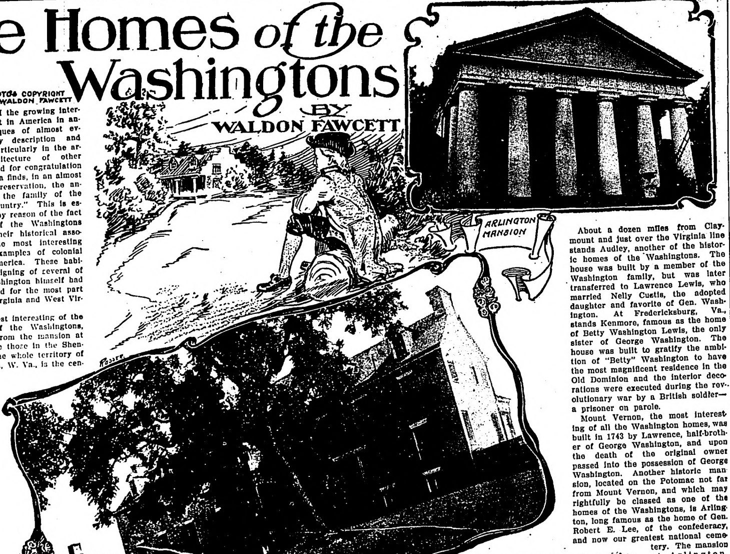
THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOME
If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear.
Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 15 NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN
McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the U. S. and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.
WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of questions in Language, the Trades, Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents is as follows:
Colored Plates, Flags, State Seals, Etc.
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Scripture Proper Names
Greek and Latin
English Christian
Foreign Words
Abbreviations
2,380 Pages. 5,000 Illustrations. 25,000 Added Words.
Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.
Should You Not Own Such a Book?
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages. 1400 Illus.
Write for "Dictionary Wrinkles," and Specimen Pages, Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc.
G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U. S. A.

The Homes of the Washingtons

By WALDON FAWCETT



ARLINGTON MANSION

REAR OF THE MANOR HOUSE CLAYMOUNT

PHOTOS COPYRIGHT BY WALDON FAWCETT

WITH the growing interest in America in antiques of almost every description and particularly in the architecture of other days, there is ground for congratulation that the present era finds, in an almost perfect state of preservation, the ancestral homes of the family of the "Father of His Country." This is especially fortunate by reason of the fact that the homes of the Washingtons are, aside from their historical associations, among the most interesting and impressive examples of colonial architecture in America. These habitations, in the designing of several of which George Washington himself had a hand, are located for the most part in the states of Virginia and West Virginia.

Probably the most interesting of the colonial homes of the Washingtons, aside, of course, from the mansion at Mount Vernon, are those in the Shenandoah valley. The whole territory of which Charlestown, W. Va., is the center is of especial interest, for George Washington made the original surveys of all this land for Lord Fairfax, and here, on a commanding site, facing the Blue Ridge mountains, he built Harewood mansion for his eldest brother, Samuel. Not only did George Washington acquire great tracts in this section of what was then Virginia, but he induced his brothers, Samuel, John and Charles, to settle in the region that had impressed him so favorably during his surveying experience.

INTERIOR OF AUDLEY

Three years—from 1756 to 1758, inclusive—were occupied in the construction of Harewood house. Not only was historic Harewood built by George Washington and long used as his summer home, but it was here that James and Dolly Madison were married and the stately structure repeatedly sheltered Marquis de Lafayette and Louis Philippe, afterward king of France. Unfortunately, Harewood in later years fell into decay, but recently several projects have been inaugurated looking to its complete restoration and the return of its historic furnishings.

As a vivid reminder of the glories of bygone days the best architectural memento of our first president is found in another Washington home—Claymount, situated some two miles from Harewood. This structure is in a perfect state of preservation and vividly suggestive in furnishings as well as architecture, of colonial days. The estate at Claymount once belonged to George Washington and the present mansion, erected by Bushrod Washington, a son of the general's nephew, although not built until 1820, was constructed in accordance with plans drawn by George Washington himself. The descendants of Bushrod Washington occupied Claymount for more than half a century, but about ten years ago the historic estate passed into the possession of Frank R. Stockton, the well-known novelist, who resided there until his death.

The manor house at Claymount consists of a central building of brick with two commodious wings and, on each side, a separate two-story building connected with the long rectangular building by a brick-walled courtyard 30 feet square. The connected buildings, all constructed largely of yellow brick, have an aggregate length of 250 feet. On the north front only a stone entrance portico relieves outlines that are rather plain and severe, but on the south front there is a broad 90-foot veranda on both the first and second floors. Some idea of the size of the apartments at Claymount may be gained from the fact that the hall—all the walls of which are paneled in oak—is 40 feet in length by 20 feet in width. A novel feature of the house is the arrangement of the doors, almost all of which are made to slide into apertures in the walls instead of being hinged. Claymount also has its "mystery," known as the "cell of the sunken cupboard." The cell is a dungeon-like apartment, opening from the basement but several feet below the level of the basement. It has no window or opening of any kind save the one narrow doorway. Almost the entire space in the cell is taken up by an immense cupboard or sideboard, elaborately carved. Obviously this massive piece of furniture must have been placed in its present position and deliberately imprisoned by the construction of the solid walls which surround it.

INTERIOR OF CLAYMOUNT

About a dozen miles from Claymount and just over the Virginia line stands Audley, another of the historic homes of the Washingtons. The house was built by a member of the Washington family, but was later transferred to Lawrence Lewis, who married Nelly Custis, the adopted daughter and favorite of Gen. Washington. At Fredericksburg, Va., stands Kenmore, famous as the home of Betty Washington Lewis, the only sister of George Washington. The house was built to gratify the ambition of "Betty" Washington to have the most magnificent residence in the Old Dominion and the interior decorations were executed during the revolutionary war by a British soldier—a prisoner on parole.

Mount Vernon, the most interesting of all the Washington homes, was built in 1743 by Lawrence, half-brother of George Washington, and upon the death of the original owner passed into the possession of George Washington. Another historic mansion, located on the Potomac not far from Mount Vernon, and which may rightfully be classed as one of the homes of the Washingtons, is Arlington, long famous as the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee, of the confederacy, and now our greatest national cemetery. The mansion at Arlington, which stands today in a perfect state of preservation, was built in 1802 by Washington Parke Custis, whose widowed grandmother married George Washington. He adopted many of the architectural ideas of the Father of His Country in the design of this imposing and distinctive manor house.

The character, the counsels and example of our Washington will guide us through the doubts and difficulties that beset us; they will guide our children in the paths of prosperity and peace, while America shall hold her place in the family of nations.—Edward Everett.

WASHINGTON'S MANY ACRES

George Washington's marriage with the widow Custis brought him 15,000 acres of land, mostly lying about the city of Williamsburg, and a considerable property within that city.

Williamsburg was an important place in those days; the royal governors used to hold their vice-regal courts there and the plantations round about were flourishing and valuable. The Mount Vernon estate, added to that inherited and purchased by Washington, amounted to more than 8,000 acres. From his father he inherited about 300 acres near Fredericksburg and some property in that city. He earned by surveying for Lord Fairfax 550 acres of forest land in Frederick county. This last was sold by the Washington heirs only a few years ago. As a military bounty for his services in the French and Indian war he secured 15,000 acres in western lands and increased the amount later, partly by purchase, to more than 30,000 acres.

In his letters to his secretary, Tobias Lear, Washington speaks of his lands "lying on the Ohio between the mouths of the Great and Little Kanawha rivers," amounting to 9,159 acres, and of land on the Great Kanawha amounting to 23,000 and more acres. These apparently were the lands he obtained by patent for his services in the French and Indian war and added to by purchase. It has been claimed that part of this land comprises the site of Cincinnati.

At one time Washington owned jointly with George Clinton 6,000 acres of land in the Mohawk valley, but most of this was sold before he died. He owned city lots and houses in various towns and in his letters to Lear often speaks of his lands in western Pennsylvania—in Washington and Lafayette counties. These amounted to nearly 5,000 acres.

When he died Washington possessed, including the land brought him by his wife and the Mount Vernon estate, more than 74,000 acres. And this did not include his city property. He was indeed a landlord on a large scale. Besides the lands he held personally Washington was partner in various land companies, though none of these appear to have survived the revolution.

WASHINGTON'S MOTHER

She Practiced the Strictest Economy and Was a Woman of Strong Character and Independent Spirit

THERE has been a story in circulation for a century, and it has found its way into many books, particularly British and Tory publications, that Washington allowed his mother to live and die in poverty and privation, while he and his wife were surrounded with luxury. But all the local traditions and all the circumstantial evidence point to its untruth.

She was by habit and preference a woman of the strictest economy and frugality and in later life denied herself many comforts that were enjoyed by her sons and daughters, but it was from choice and not from necessity. Her will, which may be seen in the clerk's office at Fredericksburg, shows that she had considerable property of her own and several slaves and horses, which were divided among her children.

It is clear that she was a woman of strong character and many peculiarities, including an independent spirit and a sharp tongue. She did not change the fashion of her raiment for more than 20 years and cut and made her own garments in defiance of public opinion and changing styles. When she went visiting the sight of her as she approached caused every member of the household to seize a broom or a dust brush, or in some manner to assist in straightening up things so that her fastidious and critical taste might not be offended.

She performed her daily duties at precisely the same hour, in precisely the same manner, regardless of changing conditions and circumstances, and the neighbors set their clocks and watches by the ringing of her dinner bell.

On the day that Washington received notice of his election to the presidency he galloped over from Mount Vernon to Fredericksburg to carry his mother the news and remained with her until it was necessary for him to start for New York. This was their last interview.

During the last months of her life the venerable lady spent much time among some great gray bowlders, shadowed by a clump of trees, upon a gentle knoll not far from Kenmore, the home of her daughter. The place was called "Oratory rocks," no doubt because some one at some time had made a speech there. It commanded a delightful view of the Rappahannock river and a panorama of comfortable homes and fertile farms. She often went there to read and to rest, taking a basket of mending or her knitting, with her Bible, Baxter's "Saint's Rest" or some other religious book of the times. Before she died she asked that she might be buried there, although her husband and several other members of the family were lying in the Episcopal cemetery. It was regarded as one of the whims of the eccentric woman, but her daughter Betty respected it.—Washington Star.

It is no more than fair, however, to point out that when Washington had carried the American revolution to a successful end, when the infant nation was bewildered and helpless and he was approached from his army with hints of royal power and dignity awaiting him, he repelled and silenced them with this stern reply: "Let me conjure you if you have any regard for your country, concern for yourself or posterity, or respect for me, to banish these thoughts from your mind and never communicate as from yourself or anyone else a sentiment of the like nature."

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."—Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

HE MEANT EVENING GOWNS

Well-Meant Compliment to American Woman Somewhat Marred by Unfortunate Error.

Mons. Pruger, who from his triumph at the Savoy hotel in London has come to New York to conduct a very fashionable restaurant, was complimented by a reporter on his perfect English.

"Well," said Mons. Pruger, smiling, "my English is, perhaps, better than that of the Marquis X., who supped here after the opera the other evening.

"Our fine supper rooms looked very gay and fine, diamonds flashed, pale fabrics shimmered, and everywhere, turn where it would, the eye rested on dimpled, snowy shoulders shining like satin above decollete bodices of Paris gowns.

"These decollete bodices impressed the Marquis X. He waved his hand and said:

"'I 'ave knowed parfaitement that the American young ladies was beautiful, but ah—I cannot say how far more beautiful they seem in their night dresses."—N. Y. Press.

Put a Shirt on Greeley.

The excellent cut of Horace Greeley's birthplace at Amherst, N. H., in the Sunday Herald of recent date suggests this anecdote which may be of interest:

The room in which he was born is now occupied as a sitting room. A visitor some years ago asked a lady living near by if she remembered ever seeing Horace Greeley, and she replied: "Well, yes; I have a very early remembrance of him. I put the first shirt on him."—Boston Herald.

Well—Yes.

"If you want a thing well done—"

"Get an expert to do it for you. Ain't that more sense than what you were going to say?"

HAVE YOU A COUGH, OR COLD?
If so, take at once Allen's Lung Balsam and watch results. Simple, safe, effective. All dealers. Popular prices—25c, 50c, and $1.00 bottles.

And the more a woman knows about men the less she has to say on the subject.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

And a lot of good resolutions are manufactured the morning after.

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Generally the man or woman who says "I don't care" is a liar.

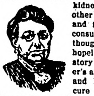
DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE DIABETES, BACKACHE
ER 375 "Guarantee

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
An absolutely harmless remedy for Sore Throat, Hoarseness and Coughs. Give immediate relief in Bronchial and Lung Affections.
Fifty years' reputation.
Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box.
Sample sent on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

THE SHADOW OF DEATH

Remarkable Recovery of a Washington Woman.



Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington Sts., Centralia, Wash., with one kidney gone, the other badly diseased, and five doctors in consultation, was thought to be in a hopeless state. The story of Mrs. Shearer's awful sufferings, and her wonderful cure through using Doan's Kidney Pills, is a long one, but will interest any sufferer with backache or kidney trouble, and Mrs. Shearer will tell it to any one who writes her, enclosing a stamp. "I am well and active, though 65 years old, and give all the credit to Doan's Kidney Pills," says Mrs. Shearer.

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Polish Marriage.

A Polish couple came before a justice of the peace to be married. The young man handed him the marriage license and the pair stood up before him.

"Join hands," said the justice of the peace.

They did so, and the justice looked at the document, which authorized him to unite in marriage Zacharewlez Perczynski and Loekowarda Jeulinski.

"Ahem!" he said. "Zacha—h'm—h'm—ski, do you take this woman," etc.

"Yes, sir," responded the young man.

"Leo—h'm—ah—ski, do you take this man to be," etc.

"Yes, sir," replied the woman.

"Then I pronounce you man and wife," said the justice, glad to find something he could pronounce, "and I heartily congratulate you both on having reduced those two names to one."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Fight Against Tuberculosis.

Interest in the anti-tuberculosis campaign now being waged throughout the United States is evidenced by the fact that in the year 1909 163 new anti-tuberculosis associations were formed, 133 tuberculosis sanatoria and hospitals were established, and 91 tuberculosis dispensaries were opened. Compared with previous years, this is the best record thus far made in the fight against consumption in this country.

During the year 1909, 43 more associations for the prevention of tuberculosis were formed than during the previous 12 months, and 62 more hospitals and sanatoria were established. On January 1, 1910, there were in the United States 394 anti-tuberculosis associations, 386 hospitals and tuberculosis sanatoria and 265 special tuberculosis dispensaries.

Reflections.

The beautiful home was crowded with people assembled to honor the distinguished guest.

But the explorer soon tired of the attentions, and as he leaned his arm against a pillar, he allowed himself to be transported back to the scene of his triumph.

"Such a waste," he mumbled, audibly, staring into space, "such a waste, such a waste."

Why so many stout ladies left the house in indignation, the hostess was unable to learn.—Sunday Magazine of the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Pitching a Curve.

Game Warden.—This deer was found dead on your premises, and yet you deny that you killed it?

Farmer.—Waal, it happened like this: My wife was throwin' a stun at the hens, an' some way the deer, which, was feedin' round back o' the barn, got hit.

When Woman Is in Politics.

"The city fathers voted"—

"You mean the city fathers and mothers."—Judge.

CLEAR-HEADED

Head Bookkeeper Must be Reliable.

The chief bookkeeper in a large business house in one of our great Western cities speaks of the harm coffee did for him:

"My wife and I drank our first cup of Postum a little over two years ago, and we have used it ever since, to the entire exclusion of tea and coffee. It happened in this way:

"About three and a half years ago I had an attack of pneumonia, which left a memento in the shape of dyspepsia, or rather, to speak more correctly, neuralgia of the stomach. My 'cup of cheer' had always been coffee or tea, but I became convinced, after a time, that they aggravated my stomach trouble. I happened to mention the matter to my grocer one day and he suggested that I give Postum a trial.

"Next day it came, but the cook made the mistake of not boiling it sufficiently, and we did not like it much. This was, however, soon remedied, and now we like it so much that we will never change back. Postum, being a food beverage instead of a drug, has been the means of curing my stomach trouble, I verily believe, for I am a well man today and have used no other remedy.

"My work as chief bookkeeper in our Co.'s branch house here is of a very confining nature. During my coffee-drinking days I was subject to nervousness and 'the blues' in addition to my sick spells. These have left me since I began using Postum and I can conscientiously recommend it to those whose work confines them to long hours of severe mental exertion."

"There's a Reason."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

KNOCKOUT'S GOSSIP of the PUGILISTS

So Jack Johnson is going to get a licking on July 4 because he is flat-footed. Jim Corbett says it, forgetting evidently that it was a flat-footed fighter who landed that famous solar plexus blow on him at Carson City, Nev., on a certain St. Patrick's day long ago and robbed him of the championship.

Bob Fitzsimmons was flat-flooted. He probably was the most awkward fighter that ever entered a ring so far as foot work is concerned. But he always produced the goods until he fought Jeffries, a mountain of flesh who was too big for any man of Fitzsimmons' size to whip.

Even Jeffries does not get up on his toes in the Corbett style when he is in the ring. The big fellow stands firm on his feet. It is a common thing among negroes to be flat-footed. Joe Gans is flat-footed. The "old master," like Bob Fitzsimmons, shambled around the ring, but he fought with his hands and not with his feet. Billy Madden, once a great middleweight and later probably the best trainer in the business, points to the fact that some of theh other great lights in the ring were flat-footed. Among these is Young Griffo, who was the cleverest man that ever donned a boxing glove.

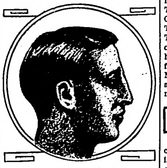
It is strange but true that Corbett always has been a joke as a dopester. Jim was a great boxer and knew a lot about the game, but when it came to picking winners he always has been on the loser. Maybe he is with a winner now that he has tied up with Jeffries, but when the battle is over Johnson, if defeated, will not have lost the championship because he is flat footed. Nor will he be dethroned because of anything Corbett may do for Jeffries.

It is doubtful if Corbett can teach Jeffries anything. Jeffries whipped Corbett twice. Isn't that sufficient to show that Jeffries knows as much, if not more, than Corbett about fighting? Mind you, I do not say boxing. Corbett was a past master at boxing, but as a fighter he lacked the necessary punch. Had Corbett possessed a knockout Bob Fitzsimmons could not have lasted six rounds in the Carson City battle. Jim peppered Bob round after round with his light artillery, but the Cornishman stood it until he had a chance to land with one of his 13-inch shells, and then it was all off with James J. Consequently, if Jeffries lets Corbett induce him to try to fight on his toes there is danger of the flat-footed negro landing a haymaker, as did the flat-footed and freckled Fitzsimmons.

In reply to Corbett's criticism, Johnson, who is somewhat of a wit, merely said:

"Corbett should speak with reverence of the flat-foot. Flat-footed boxers made him call for the police."

Corbett is not the only pugilistic "has been" that has broken into the newspaper game. Jim has been writing for a Chicago paper for some time and has stirred up a lot of lively comment. John L. Sullivan has taken up his pen and written an interesting history of his life and battles. The efforts of "Bat" Nelson are well remembered. Billy Madden got into the newspaper columns long enough to answer Corbett on the flat-foot question.



Abe Attell.

Now comes "Kid" McCoy, who discusses Johnson and Jeffries, taking the question of gameness for his topic. The Kid, who, by the way, was a great middleweight once and about as crafty a scrapper as ever entered the ring, can't believe that Johnson is game. He bases his judgment chiefly on the fact that a razor was found in a chair where Johnson had been sitting one day. McCoy says he doesn't consider a man game if he carries a blade when he goes out to arrange for a prize fight. It was a battle with McCoy that Johnson was seeking after the Kid had trimmed Jack Sullivan. Maybe it wasn't Johnson's razor, any way.

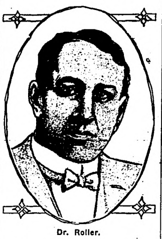
Johnson has never had to take a hard licking from any man except Frank Childs. All the others have failed to punish the champion to any extent. Childs cut Johnson to ribbons. He smashed the present champion at will; still Jack stood it for 12 rounds and earned the decision. One of Johnson's earliest battles was with Joe Choyinski. Everybody knows how hard Choyinski could hit. McCoy ought to, for he fought him. Johnson was only a novice, but he stood Joe's smashes for eight rounds before he succumbed. Bob Fitzsimmons says Choyinski hit him harder than any other man, not excepting Jeffries. McCoy says Johnson never whipped a good fighter. With this statement I agree. He never had a chance, for the best in the business wouldn't meet him, McCoy among them. I am not defending Johnson. For my part I would prefer to have a white man champion, but real sporting men should be in favor of a square deal. Corbett and McCoy don't seem to see it that way.

It is probable that the next battle of importance after Nelson and Wolgast have settled their differences will be an Attell-Driscoll fight. It is understood that Jimmy Coffroth has matched the champion and the Englishman. The weight question is likely to cause a row, but if Coffroth brings these stars together the fight ought to be a a hummer. Driscoll is one of those "tip-toe" battlers. Attell is there with the flat foot as well as the tip toe. Now let's see which is the better man.

AMONG THE WRESTLERS

Dr. Roller, the Seattle surgeon-athlete who has been traveling with Frank Gotch and the Jeffries show, has two hard matches in sight. The first is with Raoul De Rouen, the French giant, at the Coliseum in Chicago, February 14. Only eight days later Roller is to go on the mat with Zbyszko, the great Polish mat star, in Denver. If Roller can come out of both of these matches victor he will indeed be the heir apparent to the championship title held by Gotch.

On the same day Dr. Roller signed to meet Zbyszko, Champion Gotch entered an agreement to wrestle Dr. Becker, known as the Australian giant, in St. Joseph, Mo., March 7. This should be easy money for Gotch. In a handicap match at Pendleton, Ore., several days ago, Gotch showed a rough-house wrestler what real dirty work it. Motanic, a 200-pound Indian, was the champion's opponent. The red man started out by biting Gotch. Frank passed this unnoticed. Then the Indian gouged Gotch's eye. The champion had stood all he wanted of such tactics, and he quickly downed his man and had him black in the face with agony. The referee saved Motanic from being crippled for life, as Gotch was so angry he showed no mercy.



Dr. Roller.

FITZ HERBERT BEST HORSE

Sam Hildreth's FitzHerbert is the champion race horse of America. Such is the opinion of Walter S. Vosburg, official handicapper for the Jockey club. In his allotment of weights for the Brooklyn, Suburban and Brighton handicaps, Mr. Vosburg places the mighty son of Ethelbert as the banner bearer.

In the Gravesend classic, FitzHerbert is assigned 130 pounds and 129 in the Suburban and the Brighton. The Brooklyn will be run for in June, probably. FitzHerbert under the scale concedes Ballot, his nearest rival, three pounds in the Brooklyn and two pounds in the Suburban.

FitzHerbert is also, according to Mr. Vosburg's estimation, better than Maskette. In the Brooklyn he makes the colt give the filly two pounds, irrespective of the allowance. In the Suburban, which is run off about three weeks later than the Brooklyn—difference in time which is favorable to a filly—FitzHerbert's weight is brought within one pound of Maskette, as it calls for 129 to her 123.

Form National Soccer League.

A national soccer organization, designed to bring together under single control all the clubs and leagues in America, is being formed, with headquarters in New York. It is designed to take in the American Football association, which operates in the east, the International Soccer Football association of St. Louis and other smaller independent organizations.

Bates Goes to Davenport.

Manager James Taylor, of the Davenport Three-I league club, has signed Pitcher Bates, of the Seneca team of Chicago.

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY.

Will Break Up a Cold in Twenty-Four Hours and Cure Any Cough That Is Curable.

The following mixture is often prescribed and is highly recommended for coughs, colds and other throat and bronchial trouble. Mix two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, and eight ounces of pure Whisky. These can be bought in any good drug store and easily mixed together in a large bottle. The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, and put up for dispensing in half-ounce vials.

Who Are the Elect?

Two modern statements of the doctrine of "election," neither of which would quite satisfy John Calvin or Jonathan Edwards, are given in the Congregationalist.

One was Henry Ward Beecher's epigrammatic and convincing phrase: "The elect are whosoever will; the non-elect are whosoever won't."

Good as this is, there is another explanation that is a star of equal magnitude. It was made by a colored divine, who said:

"Brethren, it is this way: The Lord, he is always voting for a man; and the devil, he is always voting against him. Then the man himself votes, and that breaks the tie!"

State of Ohio City of Toledo, } ss.
Lucas County.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886.

{ SEAL } A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Iron.

Pure iron is only a laboratory preparation. Cast iron, the most generally useful variety, contains about five per cent. of impurities, and the curious thing is that it owes its special value to the presence of these. Pure iron can be shaved with a pocket knife; impure iron can be made almost as hard as steel.

Johnny Knew.

The class in physiology was being called on.

"Remember, children," said the teacher, "there are no bones in the stomach."

Johnny Smith's hand went up.

"If you please, teacher, my baby brother has one in his. He swallowed a dollar yesterday."

EXPOSURE TO COLD
and wet is the first step to Pneumonia. Take Perry Davis' Painkiller and the danger is averted. Unequaled for colds, sore throat, quinsy, 25c, 35c and 50c.

The more expensive a thing is the easier it is to get along without it.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headache, backache, dragging-down distress or from painful irregularities, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same or, better still, send 31 one-cent stamps for cloth-bound copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new, revised up-to-date Edition, 1008 pages.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it. It is not only foolish but often dangerous to do so.

LEADING LADY SHOES

There are no other shoes at popular prices that in any way compare with these classy, fashionable, good-fitting shoes. They are made on lasts that insure the utmost comfort, yet give your feet that trim and stylish look.

Leading Lady shoes combine style and wearing qualities to a degree that easily makes them the most popular, dressy and serviceable ladies' fine shoes obtainable, at a cost no greater than ordinary shoes. Your dealer will supply you; if not, write to us.

To be sure you get the LEADING LADY, look for the Mayer Trade Mark on the soles.

FREE—If you will send us the name of a dealer who does not handle Leading Lady Shoes, we will send you free, postpaid, a beautiful picture of Martha Washington, size 15 x 20.

We also make Honorbilt Shoes for men, Martha Washington Comfort Shoes, Yerma Cushion Shoes, Special Merit School Shoes and Work Shoes.

F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co.
Milwaukee, Wis.

FREE We Will Send Upon Application to Every Farmer FREE
PROF. THOMAS SHAW'S Directions for Planting
Garden, Flower and Field Seeds in our Catalogue of Home Grown Seed
NORTHERN SEED CO., Seed Growers. 11th St., Valley City, N. D.

A Revelation in Tea Goodness

"SALADA"
TEA
ONE POUND
NET

7

is a delicious and fragrant blend of the finest Ceylon Tea
Get a package from your grocer and enjoy its excellent qualities.

Suicide—

Slow death and awful suffering follows neglect of bowels. Constipation kills more people than consumption. It needs a cure and there is one medicine in all the world that cures it—CASCARETS. 899

Cascarets—10c. box—week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

Virginia Farms and Homes.
FREE CATALOGUE OF SPLENDID BARGAINS
R. B. CHAFFIN & CO., Inc., Richmond, Va.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1880. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K, Washington, D.C.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 8–1910.

SUNBERRY-IMPROVED WONDERBERRY
PLANT 3 MONTHS FROM SEED

SUNBERRY—The Improved Wonderberry

LUTHER BURBANK'S GREATEST CREATION. A Luscious Berry Ripening in Three Months From Seed.
SEED 20 CTS. PER PACKET. 3 PACKETS FOR 50 CTS. POSTPAID

This is positively the GREATEST new Fruit and the best NOVELTY of modern times. These are facts which no one can get away from. The proofs are overwhelming in number and conclusive in character. Grown last year by 350,000 people.

Fruit blue-black like an enormous rich blueberry in looks and taste. Unsurpassed for eating raw, cooked, canned or preserved in any form. This great garden fruit is equally valuable in hot, dry, cold or wet climates. Easiest plant in the world to grow, succeeding anywhere and yielding great masses of rich fruit all summer and fall. The greatest boon to the family garden ever known. Leaves and branches are also used for greens and are superb. Everybody can and will grow it.

Luther Burbank, of California, the world famous plant wizard, originated the Wonderberry and turned it over to me to introduce. He says of it: "This absolutely new berry plant is of great interest and value as it bears the most delicious, wholesome and healthful berries in utmost profusion and always comes true from seed."

READ MY CATALOGUE, pages 2 and 3, for full description, culture, uses, etc. (Also Colored Plate.) With scores of testimonials from well-known and reputable people all over the country. Also the "Crime of the Wonderberry."

THE SUNBERRY is an improved form of the Wonderberry which I introduced exclusively last year and which proved so valuable. It is greatly superior to the original type, and I alone have genuine seed. SEED 20c per pkt., 3 pkts. for 50c; 7 for $1.00.

With every packet of seed I send a booklet giving 100 Recipes for using the fruit, raw, cooked, canned, preserved, jellied, spiced, pickled, jam, syrup, wine, greens, etc. It is superior for any of these uses.

Also a copy of my 152-page Catalogue with every order—which tells all about my $12,000 IN CASH PRIZES AND OFFERS. AGENTS WANTED.

MY GREAT CATALOGUE of Flowers and Vegetable Seed, Bulbs, Plants, and Rare and New Fruits FREE to all who apply. 152 pages, 500 illustrations and colored plates. I have been in the business 35 years and have half a million customers all over the country. Complete satisfaction guaranteed to everyone. Do not fail to see the many great Novelties I am offering this year of which the SUNBERRY is the greatest of all.

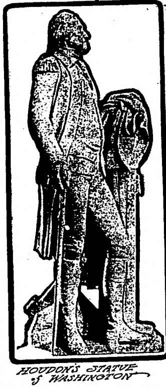
Address JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y.

P. S. This offer will not appear again. Write for Sunberry seed and Catalogue at once. Do not neglect or delay.

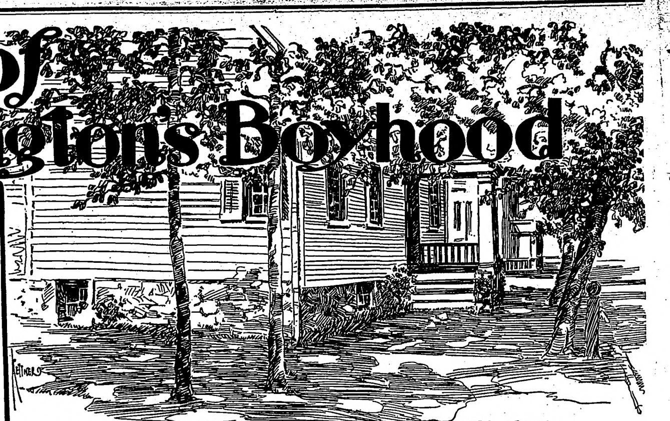
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

Scene of Washington's Boyhood



HOUDON'S STATUE of WASHINGTON



THE MARY WASHINGTON COTTAGE

NOT many tourists visit the house in which the mother of George Washington lived and died in Fredericksburg, Va. The Washingtons, or that branch of the large Washington family which played so great a role in American history, left the Popes creek farm, later called "Wakefield," in Westmoreland county, about three years after the birth of George Washington. The family removed to another Washington farm in Stafford county, on the north bank of the Rappahannock river, opposite Fredericksburg.

It was there that much of the boyhood of Washington was spent. There, too, the mythical exploits of chopping down the cherry tree, etc., were performed. After George Washington and his brothers had left this farm and after the marriage of Betty Washington to Major Fielding Lewis of Fredericksburg, Mrs. Mary Washington bought a cottage in Fredericksburg, close to "Kenmore," the home of her daughter, and resided there many years. She died in that cottage August 25, 1789.

The cottage is a plain two-story frame dwelling, standing at the corner of Charles and Lewis streets—two village streets deep in dust or mud, according to the weather. The house is heavily shaded by old sycamore trees and is furnished with Washington and other Virginia relics. It is owned and cared for by the Society for Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. The superintendent is R. C. Beale, who, with his wife, occupies the house.

The big living room on the ground floor and to the left of the entrance is that in which Mrs. Washington died. As nearly as possible it is preserved as Mrs. Washington kept it. A rare old mahogany tester bed stands on that part of the floor where stood Mrs. Washington's bed.

The walls are lined with steel engravings which belonged to Mrs. Washington and some of these were her property when she was Mary Ball before her marriage to Augustine Washington, and came from her girlhood home, "Epping Forest," in Lancaster county, about 30 miles from Fredericksburg. The room in the rear of this living and sleeping room was the dining room and the same table around which the Washingtons ate stands in the middle of the floor. The dining room is bare of carpets or rugs and was in Mrs. Washington's time. The furnishings are plain and simple.

It was four months before the death of Mary Washington that George Washington took his final leave of his mother. This was directly before his departure for New York for inauguration as the first president. News of his mother's death came to him in a letter from Col. Burgess Ball. The president was at dinner with Baron von Steuben and Gov. St. Clair. The letter was handed the president by his nephew and private secretary, Robert Lewis. After slowly reading it, Washington retired to his private room and remained there for some time. He then wrote this letter to his sister, Betty Washington Lewis, at Fredericksburg:

"My Dear Sister: Col. Ball's letter gave me the first account of my mother's death. Since that I have received Mrs. Carter's letter, written at your request, and previous to both I was prepared for the event by advices of her illness coming from your son Robert.

"Awful and affecting as the death of a parent is, there is consolation in knowing that heaven has spared ours to an age which few attain and favored her with the full enjoyment of her mental faculties and as much bodily strength as usually falls to fourscore. Under these circumstances and in the hope that she is translated to a happier place, it is the duty of her relatives to yield submission to the decree of the Creator.

"When I was last in Fredericksburg I took final leave of my mother, never expecting to see her more.

"Your affectionate brother,

"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Three days after her death Mrs. Washington was buried. The grave was dug in the grounds of her daughter Betty. The site of the grave was near a group of rocks jutting out of a hillside overlooking a tranquil little valley between Fredericksburg and Marye's Heights, one of the bloodiest battle ridges of the civil war. This little group of gray rocks was a favorite spot with Mrs. Washington.

She retired there in fair weather to knit, pray and read her Bible. Because of this association with Mrs. Washington these are now called the "Oratory rocks." They are shaded by heavy oak trees. It was a shady place in the days of Mrs. Washington and the trees that shielded her from the sun survived till 1862, when they were torn to death by the storm of shot that rolled over the grave of the mother of George Washington in the battle between the Army of Northern Virginia and the Army of the Potomac.

Susan Reviere Hetzel, in a history of the Mary Washington association, writes of Mrs. Washington's funeral as follows:

"Business was suspended in the city of Fredericksburg; crape hung from the houses. The church was thronged with her friends and neighbors. Her body was followed by her loving daughter and grandchildren to a place chosen by herself to be her resting place near the granite bowlders now called the Oratory rocks, where she loved to retire and pray for her beloved son during the troublesome days of the American revolution. The coffin was carried from the church on men's shoulders; the knoll where the grave was dug was covered by the concourse of mourners and spectators, for they had lost not only the mother of the president but an old and beloved friend.

"The mourning was general all over the country. Press and pulpit made note of the event. Members of congress wore crape for 30 days as for a distinguished official. Congress passed a resolution to erect a monument to the mother of Washington and to that resolution President Washington responded in a note of thanks, adding:

"'I attribute all my success in life to the moral, intellectual and physical education which I received from my mother.'"

The government never erected the monument called for in the resolution. Washington's administrations were hampered by the Indian wars, the whisky insurrection and Shay's rebellion; Adams' term was taken up with the French troubles and the threatened war with the directory; Jefferson's administration was filled with the wars with the Barbary pirates, the Lewis and Clark exploring expedition, the Louisiana purchase and Aaron Burr's conspiracy.

During Madison's administration congress could think of little but the second war with England. It took a long time for the country to settle down after that war and so it happened that nothing but a little headstone marked the grave when Lafayette revisited this country in 1825. Lafayette had known Mrs. Washington. To him is given the credit of calling her a Roman matron. Some of the prettiest observations on the character of this woman were written by Lafayette.

After the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown the citizens of Fredericksburg gave a great ball to Washington and a number of American and French officers. Lafayette was there. Mrs. Washington, though an old woman and not much interested in festive things, was after long persuasion induced to attend the ball, called then and noted long after as "the peace ball."

Agitation in behalf of a monument to Mary Washington crystallized in 1830, when the people of Fredericksburg raised $2,000 and were proceeding with the collection of the necessary sum when Silas E. Burroughs, a New York banker, wrote to Thomas Goodwin, mayor of Fredericksburg, and asked the honor of being allowed to build the monument. The design adopted was elaborate.

The cornerstone of this monument was laid on May 1, 1833, by President Andrew Jackson, who delivered perhaps the longest discourse of his career. Soon after this ceremony Mr. Burroughs sustained financial misfortunes and the work was suspended. The pedestal was in place and marble columns had been hauled by ox teams to the grave. It was found difficult to raise money to continue the building. The big pieces of marble lay scattered around the place and lay there till after the civil war. They were pock-marked by bullets and bits of shell in the battle of Fredericksburg.

In 1878 Capt. George Washington Ball, a descendant of the Balls of Epping Forest, originated the Mary Washington association, but little progress was made toward the erection of a monument.

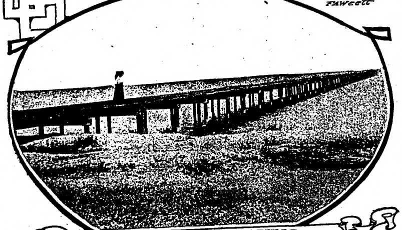
It was in 1889 that a strong impetus was given the monument movement. The country was wrought up over the approaching inauguration of President Harrison when there appeared in one of the Washington papers over the name of a local auctioneer this sensational advertisement:

"The grave of Mary the mother of Gen. George Washington, to be sold at public auction. March 5, 1889, at 12 o'clock m., we will offer at public auction, at the capital of the United States of America, 12 acres of land, embracing the grave and material of the unfinished monument of Mary, the mother of Gen. George Washington."

This advertisement created the excitement it was designed to produce, the National Mary Washington Memorial association was organized and the present tall shaft, a small reproduction of the Washington monument at the capital, was reared above the grave and dedicated May 10, 1894.

CLAYMOUNT, DESIGNED FROM SUGGESTIONS BY GEORGE WASHINGTON

Photographs Copyrighted by WALDON FAWCETT



PIER AT WAKEFIELD

The "Marrying Rosebush" At Mount Vernon

STILL sending forth the lovely fragrance of its flowers to gladden the passer-by, although it has seen more than a century of a charmed life, the "Nelly Custis" rosebush at Mount Vernon, famed for its potency in securing husbands for the unwedded, is as beautiful to-day as when George Washington himself set it out in his garden and gave it the name of his fascinating step-daughter.

To the remotest hamlet that has ever furnished a Mount Vernon tourist the fame of the magic rosebush has gone and the marriages attributed to its mysterious influence would make the reputation of any "Schadchen," or Jewish marriage broker, pale. Many a "marrying parson" who boasts of the number of ceremonies he has performed owes more to the humble little rosebush on the shores of the Potomac than he dreams of.

The present generation of Washingtonians have somewhat neglected the rosebush, leaving their sightseeing friends from afar to reap the rewards which are supposed to be the inevitable result of preserving a sprig plucked from it, and the census records show that there are 11,000 more unmarried women than unmarried men in the District of Columbia. Yet the efficacy of even one leaf from the bush named for one of the most beautiful of Virginia's daughters is vouched for by a number of Washington matrons, as well as by many women in other cities. As an aid to Hymen the bush has no rival in the minds of Virginians and among older Washingtonians there are many who still cherish for it a sentimental fondness, regarding it as the kindly fairy of their happiness.

Time was when no girl who visited Mount Vernon was content to depart without a leaf of the "Nelly Custis" safely stowed away in her pocketbook or wrapped in her handkerchief. Some of these willin' feminine Barkuses treated the leaves after the manner of four-leaved clover and bashfully tucked them into their shoe tops.

Nothing but the roses themselves would satisfy exacting damsels, for their white-petaled sweetness was certain to have the effect of inspiring some Prince Charming with love for the possessor within the following year. Lucky indeed was the girl who could successfully elude the watchful eye of the gardener and carry off in triumph one of the flowers so soon to be followed by orange blossoms. The wiles used by some of these lovelorn little vandals would have done credit to a skilled second-story man.

In the last few years, however, the faith in the pretty old legend has somewhat died out among the younger generation. Whether it be that skepticism follows the trolley as the constitution does the flag, or that the bachelor maids of the present think too little of matrimony to cherish any sentimental stories of white roses and proposals, there is far less eagerness now to find the bush of fable.

There is nothing in the appearance of the bush which has created such havoc in romantic young hearts to awe the onlooker. It is set close to one of the main walks of the little old formal garden, which was considered one of the "show" places of the estate in the days of the great American general's residence there. The bush is near the greenhouses and not far from the old slave quarters. It is not more than eight feet high and still bears its pretty, white clusters as freely as ever.

F. A. Whelan, the gardener at Mount Vernon, is authority for the old age of the tradition which ascribes such wonderful potency to this particular bush. "The rose," said Mr. Whelan, "is said to have been set out by George Washington himself. There were two bushes of this same variety, Noisettes, in the garden. One of these Gen. Washington named for his mother, Mary Washington, and the other for his wife's daughter, Nelly Custis. I have never heard any question raised about the authenticity of the story that he planted both of the bushes. Just how the tradition of the efficacy of the 'Nelly Custis' as a love-charm originated I can't say, but it is certainly very old. The negroes on the place used to loiter around it while courting, because they believed they would soon be allowed to marry, through its influence."

Whenever there was a dance or picnic in the neighborhood, say the old-timers, every young wench about the vicinity wanted to go armed with a sprig of the white rose, for each of them believed that once she got on good terms with the "Nelly Custis" no colored swain could resist her. Every warm evening saw dusky couples sneaking around Mount Vernon and colored wallflowers tramped miles to get one of the matchless posies.

There is good ground for the belief that the legend is nearly as old as the rosebush itself. A Virginia matron of the old school, one of those to whom the bush will be ever dear, told the writer that charming Nelly Custis herself is said to have worn one of the white roses in her bosom when her future husband, Major Lewis, proposed to her.

"My grandmother," said this lady, "used to tell me that the bush was a great favorite with Nelly Custis. She tended it assiduously and used to place her chair near it when she read and sewed. The white roses which it produced were her favorite flowers. Perhaps it was only because she knew they became her that she so frequently wore them, but they came to be associated with her. I have somewhere seen a portrait of her with a white rose nestling among the laces of her frock and I, for one, would gladly believe that it was one of the blossoms from this identical bush.

"My grandmother also used to tell me that Nelly wore one of these roses when Mr. Lewis won her consent to his suit for her hand. Tradition further says that she took a cutting of the bush with her when she left her home at Mount Vernon to go to her husband's estate at Arlington. The veneration she had for the rose evidently impressed the superstitious negroes and its fame grew with every generation." Even emancipation failed to shake the confidence of the negroes in the powers of the bush,

Tourists were the next to become converts to the faith of the posy. Boarding school misses from Virginia and Maryland, schoolma'ams from New England and college girls from the middle west—the frivolous little flirt and the seriously ambitious blue-stocking, pretty girls and plain, the very youthful who wore long dresses to look grown up, and the somewhat passe who wore short dresses to look young—all succumbed to that spirit of romance which springs eternal in the feminine breast.

The romance of Mattie Mitchell, now the duchess de la Rochefoucauld, the best known beauty of the Washington of 20 years ago, gave additional impetus to the rose bush fetichism. Miss Mitchell, the daughter of the late Senator Mitchell of Oregon, was one of the loveliest girls Washington society has ever known. She was as unspoiled and charming as she was beautiful and a belle of two continents. In spite of the fact that she was not credited with the possession of a fortune, she was besieged with flattering offers of marriage. But none of the proposals seemed to find a soft spot in her heart and it was not until Miss Mitchell accepted one of the Nelly Custis roses on a "dare" that the curtain was raised on the love drama of her life and she figured as a principal in one of the first great international marriages of American girls. Many of her girl friends pointed to the fact that "Mattie" became the wife of a bearer of one of the noblest names of France as an added distinction to the little rosebush at Mount Vernon.

So unusual a romance could not but add to the prestige of the old rose charm in the eyes of believers.

Yet even the skeptical were convinced when, not long after, a penniless young army officer who had become imbued with the idea that one of the Custis posies might help his fortunes in love and war was enabled to announce his approaching marriage to one of the wealthiest heiresses in the country. This young fellow, who, it must be confessed, had been looked upon in army circles as extremely unfortunate in his love affairs, admitted that he credited the success of his siege to the heiress' heart to a bit of faded vegetation which had once been a Nelly Custis rose.

There are other roses equally lovely in the garden Mr. Whelan tends with such care and skill, but there is not a girl tourist in all the land who would not pass them by to gaze at the modest bush that the first president planted in honor of his little stepdaughter, the rose tree that has really made more marriages than any parson in the United States.

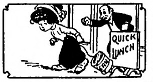
THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1910. NO. 48.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Pretty Chicago Waitresses Lose Jobs



CHICAGO.—"Fire the beauties and employ plain faced workers," is the cry of the "quick lunch" bosses of this city.

There are two counts to the indictment against them.

First.—The pretty girl is flattered by too much attention and spends her time flirting, adjusting her rats and switches, and shifting her complexion rather than in keeping the "ham and," "cup and sinkers," "bowl and a slice of mince," and other essentials of a well-ordered lunchroom in rapid circulation.

Second.—The impressionable youths—yes, and the baldheads who ought to know better—spend their time in pleasant conversation with fair Kathleen instead of in eating. Perchance, also, they may squander the last nickel of the lunch money on a tip to the waiting maid instead of on a piece of cake or a baked apple.

There is another element in the case, brought out by a proprietor when he said:

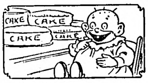
"Of course, when you have pretty girls sometimes a fellow will give one of them a home. But I'm not running a Sunday school."

But in order for these conditions to influence the restaurant man his place must be some steps above the quick lunch class. In the latter success depends on feeding people promptly and cheaply, to which it is necessary that the employes be few, but work fast and constantly. In the restaurants the spirit was expressed by one manager yesterday as follows:

"We try to make our place as pleasant and attractive as possible, and the most important feature of the surroundings, or furnishings, in this regard is the waitress. We want them as pretty as we can get them."

"It's simply a matter of business," a hard-hearted man said. "They say a pretty girl attracts customers, but what good does it do us if she attracts them to the lunch counter, only to distract their attention from the bill of fare? They come in to eat, to eat as much as they can in as short a time as possible. Anything that interferes with that has to go."

Celebrate When Baby Gets First Tooth



NEW YORK.—Among the Syrians there is no such thing as giving a party in celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of a child; the celebration is held when the baby cuts its first tooth. On such an occasion friends of the parents are not invited to the house to eat cakes and listen to a phonograph, but whatever sweets may be prepared for the occasion are sent by the parents to the homes of the friends whom they wish to inform of the news. The friends later visit the parents and tender their congratulations.

Whatever the sweets may be, one particular dish is indispensable. Sanainich is its name. The mother begins to prepare it soon after the birth of the child.

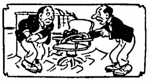
First and foremost in the preparation of this dish is wheat. Parents with many friends use between ten and 20 pounds of wheat. The grain is boiled with sugared water until it is fit to be eaten; then it is put into hollow dishes and allowed to cool. The other materials include nuts, peeled almonds, pine seeds, candles and the like. These ingredients are spread over the grain and sprinkled with rose water and then the dish is ready to be sent out.

Then without much loss of time the neighbor invites his visitor to a drink of arac to the health of the baby and very seldom does he let him depart without having had four or five.

The dishes in which the sanainieh is carried to neighbors and friends are not returned immediately. Sometimes it is a week or even two before they are back in their customary places in the family cupboard. When they are returned they are not empty.

It is the duty of the recipient of a dish of sanainieh to return the dish full of some delicacy. Hence the home of the baby's parents will resemble an elaborate exposition of pastries and sweets when all the dishes are in.

Wonders If He Was Worked for $1.50



CHICAGO.—Will the weight of a 200-pound man falling on a two-dollar derby damage it to the extent of $1.50?

John M. Hubbard, assistant postmaster, replied in the negative.

"I paid him $1.50 and now I learn he victimized my friends in the same manner and—worse yet—with the same two-dollar hat," said Mr. Hubbard to a group of friends in the Federal building.

"He came in and waited patiently to speak to me. A stranger he was, but he had an honest face. Once at leisure I turned and shook his hand, at the same time sitting down. He yelled: 'Look out, sir; my hat!' But it was too late.

"'I am awfully sorry,' I began as I picked up the crushed flat thing that lay in my chair. I tried hard to suppress a smile, but finally laughed outright. And he was angry. No mistake about that.

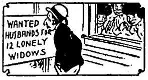
"'That is my only hat, sir,' he said, humble enough. I corrected him, saying, 'It was your only hat.'

"'I am a poor man, out of work, and my wife and four children'—here I interrupted him. 'How much?' I asked. 'It's ruined,' he said. 'How will a dollar square it?' I asked. 'I can't get a new one for that,' he complained. When I handed him $1.50 he grabbed it greedily and left."

Mr. Hubbard reflected for a time, then asked in a tone barely audible: "I wonder if that is the same fellow that worked my friends in the same manner and with the same hat?"

Laughter was the only answer that came from his group of friends. Other friends call him on the telephone many times during the day now and ask him if he buys old hats.

Dozen Lonely Widows Want Husbands



WANTED HUSBANDS FOR 12 LONELY WIDOWS

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Twelve lonely women of St. Paul, most of them widows, have appealed to the police by mail to help them meet 12 lonely men. They want to know how to go about it. Here is their letter:

"Sr: Could you tell us if, where and how we could best git acquainted with nice lonely good men, about 45 to 65 years old?

"We are 12 women, 30 to 45 years old, all bright, nice, good looking, good character, who won't pick our acquaintance over counters or street corners, that kind we don't want; we are refined. So none.

"But cannot git acquainted so therefore we are lonesome. But, street corners we don't want.

"What is the best way to git acquainted in the best way, we are most of us widows, without children, alone, and lonesome.

"And still we can't give you our names so you call us lonely women or widows, help us or we will call on the Mayor or Gov. Eberhart."

The women would accept men running as high as 65 years of age. There is no specification as to the men's personal appearance, earning power, ability to sing or dance.

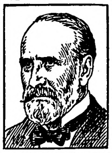
As to who these 12 lonely women, all bright, nice, good looking and of good character may be, their letter tells nothing. But a Sherlock Holmes would perhaps deduce that they are not suffragettes and that they have kind dispositions.

Perhaps they have formed a Lonely Women's club and pooled their spare cash on a bet that the first one to get a lonely man takes all for her trousseau.

A mere man who is married, and also lonely, says he will pay for the license and ceremony for the first couple of these 12 lonely women and lonely men who sign articles.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

CABINET'S GRAND OLD MAN



Thus far all efforts to drag James Wilson of Iowa, secretary of agriculture, into the Taft-Ballinger-Pinchot fight have been unavailing. "The grand old man of the cabinet" says nothing and saws wood.

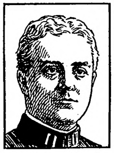
In his long years as a cabinet officer, Secretary Wilson has seen many fights. He should, and does, know by this time how to conduct himself in such matters. If President Taft calls upon Mr. Wilson for information or an explanation, he will get it. No doubt the president already has it. But the old newspaper correspondents of Washington know it is useless to try to get Mr. Wilson to enter into any controversy. He can close his mouth tighter than any man in Washington when it is necessary.

Secretary Wilson not only has the distinction of having served longer as a cabinet officer than any other man, but he has seen a procession of cabinet officers as his associates unequalled by any other man.

In the days of Albert Gallatin, who now has second place as a long term cabinet officer, there were not as many cabinet places as at present, and in those days it was not customary to make so many changes.

While Mr. Wilson has been in office there have been five secretaries of state, John Sherman, William R. Day, John Hay, Elihu Root and Philander C. Knox. There have been four secretaries of the treasury, Lyman J. Gage, Leslie M. Shaw, George R. Cortelyou and Franklin MacVeagh. There have been five secretaries of war, Russell A. Alger, Elihu Root, William H. Taft, Luke E. Wright and Jacob M. Dickinson. There have been five attorneys general, John W. Griggs, Philander C. Knox, William H. Moody, Charles J. Bonaparte and George W. Wickersham. There have been seven postmasters general, James A. Gary, Charles Emory Smith, Henry C. Payne, Robert J. Wynne, George B. Cortelyou, George von L. Meyer and Frank H. Hitchcock. There have been six secretaries of the navy, John D. Long, William H. Moody, Charles J. Bonaparte, Victor H. Metcalf, Truman H. Newberry and George von L. Meyer. There have been four secretaries of the interior, Cornelius N. Bliss, Ethan Allen Hitchcock, James R. Garfield and Richard A. Ballinger. There have been four secretaries of commerce and labor, George B. Cortelyou, Victor H. Metcalf, Oscar S. Straus and Charles Nagel.

NAVY'S SURGEON GENERAL

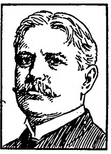


Dr Charles F. Stokes, who has been appointed surgeon general of the United States navy to succeed Dr. Presley M. Rixey, retired, is one of the youngest officers of the medical corps. Although only 47 years of age, he has had considerable experience in the practice of his profession. A graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York city, his earliest service was in Bellevue hospital and the New York city hospital.

In Febrpary, 1880, he was appointed an assistant surgeon in the navy, and since then has served in many important stations in all parts of the world. From 1892 to 1895 he had charge of the United States Naval hospital at Yokohama, Japan.

During the Spanish-American war he equipped and organized the medical department of the ambulance ship Solace and was senior operating surgeon on that vessel during the West Indian campaign. During the Boxer troubles, in China, and during the Philippines insurrection, he was attached to the U. S. S. Buffalo and subsequently served on the Oregon, Wisconsin and other vessels in Pacific and Asiatic waters. From 1903 until 1906 he was on duty in this city as professor of surgery in the Naval medical school and as one of the attending physicians to President Roosevelt and his family. During the next two years he commanded the United States Naval hospital at San Juan, P. R. While engaged in that duty he was summoned to Washington by the navy department and placed in command of the United States hospital ship Relief, for service with the Atlantic fleet, in its memorable cruise around the world.

SENATOR FLINT TO RETIRE



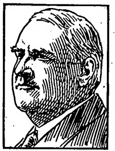
Those persons who have been wont to call the United States senate "the Millionaire's Club," had a rude shock the other day when one of the members of the senate issued an announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election because he hasn't sufficient money to keep up a political machine and can't afford to make the race.

The members of the senate are not all millionaires. In fact it is probable that there are fewer men who count their wealth in seven figures in the senate than there are who do. It has become a sort of understanding, however, that a man must have a million to be elected a senator.

It was Senator Frank P. Flint of California, who said he was too poor to run for election again. He said it in these words:

"It is my desire to make public at this time my determination not to be a candidate for re-election to the office of United States senator. I reached this decision some time ago. I have delayed making public announcement of my purpose, however, in deference to the earnest request of friends in California, but I feel now that it would be unfair to myself to delay this announcement any longer.

IS ELKINS AN INSURGENT?



Has Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia become an insurgent? Has he joined the Cumimns-LaFollette ranks? Has he decided to fight the powers that be in the upper branch of congress?

These are a few of the questions being asked since the West Virginian arose in the senate several days ago and declared himself "off the reservation," because the senate finance committee reported a resolution introduced by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, providing for an investigation of the high cost of living, as a substitute for one offered by Mr. Elkins.

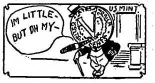
Once during the tariff battle, Mr. Elkins showed that he is not entirely satisfied to be led by the nose by certain members from New England. He got what he wanted and it was supposed that he would be satisfied, but it seems that the West Virginia senator still has an idea that it pays to be independent.

Why shouldn't Mr. Elkins be independent? It is said that he is worth more than $50,000,000. The question naturally is repeated time and again. Why should a man with that much money allow another man to tell him what he should do, or what he should not do?

It may be said that Mr. Elkins has not joined the insurgents. It may also be said that the insurgents would like to have him with them. With Elkins, LaFollette, Cummins, Dolliver and Beveridge fighting together, there is little question concerning how long the standpatters would hold out. It would make a fighting squad that would be hard to beat, and Aldrich is smart enough to know it.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Nickel, Uncle Sam's Most Useful Coin



IM LITTLE- BUT OH MY-
US MINT

WASHINGTON.—The government could afford to dispense with almost any coin rather than the five-cent piece. It stands for more stable prices than any other. It is the price of a loaf of bread; it pays the cost of the ride in the street car; with it the German buys his glass of beer and the American pays for the shining of his shoes. It is probably not too much to say that the disappearance of the "nickel" would prove a greater shock to the finances of the nation than almost anything that could happen.

The five-cent coin for two generations, at least, has been the fixed price of so many things that the people would be at complete loss how to proceed without it. True, hundreds of thousands of five-cent pieces are lost each year, but that is due largely to the amazing use to which this little coin is put. The uses of business require the coinage of a greater number of "nickels" than any other coin.

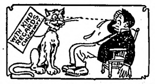
The "nickel" is extensively used in telephone calls. It was formerly more than now the open sesame of the popular slot machine, for which it still does extensive duty. It is the price of admission to the fast multiplying picture shows in all parts of the country. The new-fashioned boot-shining parlor charges a "nickel."

The saloonkeeper and the baker for years have gathered their daily harvest of these little coins. The soda fountain, growing in popular favor, deals mostly in "nickels." Ice cream in summer time goes for five cents, and the charge for a myriad of things in the pharmacy and the five-cent store requires this coin.

Most smokers would have to quit were it not for the "nickel," obnoxious as the domestic cigar is to many of them. The cigarette would cease to be the popular smoke it is if the price were not five cents. Shoe laces would either become a luxury at a higher price or require payment in pennies.

Turn which way one will, the five-cent piece bobs up at every turn as the most necessary coin of the realm.

When Minister Bryan's Cat Came Back



WITH KIND REGARDS CHILEAN NAVY

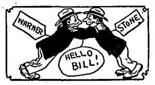
COL. CHARLES PAGE BRYAN, who has been transferred from his place as minister to Portugal to that of minister to Belgium, had an unusual tribute paid to his popularity while serving as minister to Brazil. A large coffee importer, returning from a trip to the interior, brought with him a young onca, which is a species of wild cat or tiger, and he gave it to Col. Bryan as a testimonial of his regard.

The minister was fond of animals, and prized his gift highly, but the onca, while interesting during its youth, rapidly loses that attraction as it becomes older, one of its specialties being an insatiable appetite. The colonel wearied of his pet, and one day when some United States battleships were in port he presented the onca to the officers of the Iowa as a mascot.

In the course of time the men of the navy looked about for some one on whom to unload the animal, and at Buenos Ayres they fell in with a Chilean man-of-war. As a token of the cordiality existing between them, the impoverished Iowa officers gave the onca to the officers of the Chilean warship. Donor and recipient were pleased beyond measure, and the ships resumed their journeys.

After the lapse of considerable time, a number of Chilean warships stopped in the harbor at Rio Janeiro, and among the entertainments prepared fo the officers was one at the American legation. Minister Bryan was more than usually felicitous as a host, and the Chileans thought they should in some manner show their appreciation. So the next day a delegation of gold-laced, beplumed and clanking warriors appeared at the legation, and after presenting Col. Bryan an address teeming with good nature they gave him the onca—the same old cat, only larger and hungrier, and more repulsive—and the minister turned away to hide his tears. He had received the same token twice from two widely separated sources.

Missouri's "Bills" and a Bridge Bill



IT IS the custom in the senate for each senator to address every other one as "Mr." Talking with persons with whom they are not very well acquainted, it is probable that Senator Warner and Senator Stone each refers to the other as "Senator."

In their committee rooms, homes and among Missouri friends, the Missouri senators are "Bill" to each other. If Senator Stone has something to say of his colleague to one of his intimates, he will remark that he told "Bill" Warner, or he will suggest to the man to go and see "Bill" Warner.

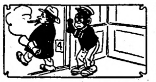
Close friends of Warner have heard him refer to "Bill" Stone. The Missouri "Bills," though of opposite political parties, are very good personal friends.

"The senator from Missouri," said Vice-President Sherman. Senator Stone was on his feet in front of his desk on the Democratic side, addressing the chair.

Far back on the Republican side Senator Warner was doing the same. "The senior senator from Missouri," said the vice-president, looking directly at Warner. Again Senator Stone addressed the chair. "I am the junior senator from Missouri," said Warner, "if the chair intends to recognize me." "Then it is the junior senator who is recognized," said Sherman, and Warner introduced his bills.

Some time later Senator Stone was recognized and introduced his bills. It may have been more than a coincidence that each of the Missouri senators introduced a bill extending the time for the commencement of work on the municipal bridge at St. Louis.

How Mr. Grigg's Stopped an Elevator



THE late Congressman Griggs of Georgia once had an experience with a negro elevator operator in the post office department at Washington which the negro probably never will forget. The congressman entered an express elevator which was forbidden to stop below the fifth floor, on which is located the office of the postmaster general.

"Let me off at the fourth floor," said the congressman.

"This elevator doan' stop below the fifth flo'," responded the negro with finality.

"Let me off at the fourth floor," commanded Griggs, looking the negro in the eye.

"'Deed, sah, dis elevator doan' stop at dat flo'. Why, it wouldn't stop even for the postmaster general hissel'."

Griggs' southern ire was aroused.

"Look here, nigger," he roared, "let me off at the fourth floor quick. I want you to know that a congressman can get off at any floor he wants in this building."

"Yes, sah," the negro hastened to reply. "Yes, sah." And the elevator stopped, and the Georgia congressman had accomplished what the postmaster general couldn't do.

To show how up-to-date everything is in Washington, the secretary of the interior kindly calls the attention of congress to the elevators in the interior department, which were put in service over thirty years ago. In the first place, these same elevators are little sheet-iron cages only big enough to carry half a dozen and unable to lift over 300 or 400 pounds weight, and are really not safe as well as antique in character. This is practically true of all of the older government buildings in Washington, however.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM, - - MINN.

NOT CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE.

The latest instance of errors in spelling by a class qualifying for admittance to a leading western university is widely interpreted by the press as an evidence of insufficient training in that important element by academies and high schools. We think a little study of the showing may greatly diminish the force of the this opinion. The university in question is of a size that makes 150 a moderate estimate of those seeking to qualify in the freshman class. To such a class a list of 100 words was submitted as a test of spelling. The list of errors shows 12 words mispelled 30 times, or an average of 2½ times to each word, says Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph. But if there were 150 students spelling 100 words this would indicate a percentage of error to all the words spelled by all of the students of one-tenth of one per cent. Of course, this calculation as to the proportion of students who were weak in spelling is guesswork until we know exactly how many students took the test and how many made more than one error. But considering that the student who was so gifted in that line as to spell "accessible" "axsesible" probably was the one who spelled "municipal" "munisipple," and "glacier" "glashear," it indicates that the percentage of those who are weak is not over 5 to 10 per cent. of the whole.

It is only by showing interest in the extension of American trade in China—only by taking advantage of opportunities as they arrive, and making opportunities where that may be essayed with reasonable prospect of success—that this country can retain its relative importance in the great and growing commerce between the middle kingdom and the outside world. The United States has certain advantages at the outset, not the least of which are the friendly relations between the governments of the two nations, which were emphasized by the return of the American portion of the indemnity exacted from the Chinese government after the operations by foreign armies during the Boxer rebellion, says Milwaukee Wisconsin. A large part of that sum the Chinese government will use in sending Chinese students to American colleges. Frank G. Carpenter, the well-known correspondent, who has been studying Chinese conditions, looks upon the presence of Chinese students in this country as important in two directions. For the next 30 years there will at all times be 200 of China's brightest young men studying in the United States. When they return home they will carry friendly remembrances of America and Americans, which will promote amity between the two nations.

Whatever else may be said about the policy pursued in Korea by Japan, which has taken the "hermit nation" under its wing, there will be no dissent as to the wisdom of providing good roads. Such highways are conveniences which Korea has never known until now, and the fact furnishes one explanation of the slow development of that country. Public roads are among the first essentials to civilization, and without them any land, no matter how blessed with natural advantages, must lag behind the procession.

A dispatch from Detroit states that a farmer from the northwest went to a firm in that city and ordered 30 automobiles to be shipped at once to friends who had given him their orders when he started for the east. The machines, it is said, are all of high grade, some of them beiug of the $5,000 class, and the aggregate cost of the lot approximating $100,000. The poyment was almost wholly in cash. This is one of the items that show the change rapidly coming over the farming industry.

The submarine vessels may be used in other ways than in war. The exploit at Toulon, France, when a submarine dived below a sinking ship and held it up until the crew could be taken off was remarkable. And it speaks volumes for the coolness and quickness of the officers in charge.

An American woman in Paris has ben found guilty of slandering a man. Evidently the masculine worm is turning, and is assailing woman in her long-entrenched privilege of the tongue's freedom.

The abuse of the franking privilege is to be stopped. It came to a climax when a congressman tried to frank a cow. This placed the postal department on the horns of a dilemma, but it was decided that the postal routes were not milky ways.

The Young Turks are facing a deficit in the treasury, which conclusively proves that they have brought the government of their party up to a strictly undeniable plane with the civilized governments of the world.

PAROLE LAW IS VOID

ILLINOIS SUPREME COURT KNOCKS OUT STATUTE IN JOYCE CASE.

IT VIOLATES CONSTITUTION

Decision Puts In Force Former Law and Will Not Effect Confined Prisoners—Snell and Warner Will Cases Decided.

Springfield, Ill.—The supreme court Wednesday decided that the act creating the state board of parole and giving the state board of pardons power to parole prisoners was unconstitutional. The case decided was that of Joseph Joyce, who was convicted of grand larceny in the Cook county criminal court at Chicago and was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary at Joliet, or until he was paroled by the state board of pardons.

The supreme court reverses the judgment of the criminal court of Cook county, holding that the act creating the state board of parole is unconstitutional because it violates section 16, article 4, of the constitution, which provides that an act making appropriations for the salaries of members of the general assembly and state officers shall not include legislation on any other subject. The act creating the state board of parole made an appropriation for their salaries in violation of the constitution.

According to an official opinion of Attorney General Stead the decision of the supreme court is "practically inconsequential."

The court held that the indeterminate and parole law of 1899 is invalid but at the same time the court automatically brought to life the former law of 1897 and declared it in full force and operation.

The effect of this decision will not be felt by prisoners now in penitentiary. While true they have been sentenced under an invalid act, if they object, they will be remanded back to their trial court by the supreme court with instructions to resentence them under the old law of 1897.

The court's decision does not affect the state board of pardons except as to its salary. It remains intact with practically the same functions it possessed since its organization. The only change is that under the law now in force it has only recommendatory powers in parole matters. The court which tried the prisoner and the governor must first approve the board's recommendation before the prisoner can leave the prison.

The only persons affected by the decision are the prisoners who have been paroled and are now at liberty under the invalid act of 1899. What will become of them, what procedure will be followed and what their status is the court refused to say.

After three trials in the Dewitt county circuit court and two hearings in the supreme court, Richard Snell wins in the contest to break the will of his father, Col. Thomas Snell, the eccentric millionaire of Clinton.

The supreme court affirmed the judgment of the circuit court of Dewitt county. The lower court had held in favor of Richard Snell, who had been disinherited. The supreme court holds that Col. Snell was influenced against his son when he made his will, which was in favor of his grandniece, Mrs. Mabelle Snell McNamara of Kansas City.

On the first trial the jury disagreed and on the second trial it held that Snell was insane when he made the will. The supreme ceurt reversed this judgment and on the third trial the jury found that Col. Snell was of unsound mine. This opinion is sustained by the supreme court in affirming the judgment of the lower court.

It was held by the lower court that the trust created in the will of John Warner of Clinton in favor of his son, Col. Vespasian Warner, was void because the will provided that the trust continued 15 years after the will was admitted to probate, it being asserted that the will might never be admitted to probate and that the trust herefore would be void, because i might continue indefinitely, by violation of the rules against perpetuation. The supreme court held that the trust was not void, but was valid for the period fixed by the will.

Springfield, Ill.—Attorney General Stead gave notice Friday that early next week he will file with the supreme court a petition for a rehearing in the case of the people vs. Joyce, in which the parole law of 1899 was declared invalid.

Pending disposition of this petition the court's decision is inoperative. The principal object of the attorney general in this action is to get from the court a clear and unequivocal decision on the effect of the opinion on those state boards and officers in whose creative acts their salary was fixed.

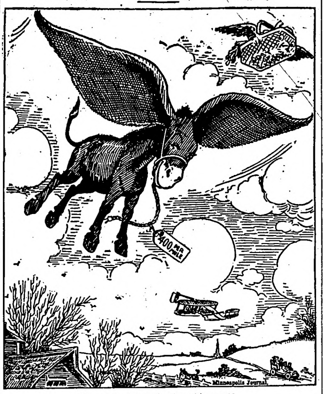
Mine Victims Mummified.

Cherry, Ill.—Eleven bodies of miners were recovered from the St. Paul coal mine Friday. To the amazement of veteran mine inspectors the bodies entombed since November 13, 1909, when brought to the surface, were found to be almost mumified.

Town Saved by Volunteers.

Edison, Neb.—After a desperate battle with the flames, volunteer fire fighters here saved the town from destruction Friday. The loss is estimated at $125,000.

NOW MULES ARE UP



The Mule—Beef kin fly, why not I?

AMERICAN LEAGUE SCHEDULE

SEASON OPENS ON APRIL 14 AND CLOSES ON OCTOBER 9.

Chicago, Detroit, Washington and New York Get the First Games—How Holidays Are Apportioned.

Chicago.—The season of the American baseball league will open on April 14 and the last games will be played on October 9, according to the official schedule just adopted by the magnates in session in Chicago. Before adjourning, the club owners also entered into a new 20-year agreement, as the old one will expire next fall. The league re-elected Ban Johnson president for 20 years at a salary of $15,000 annually.

As usual, the opening games of the season will be played in two western and two eastern cities. St. Louis will appear in Chicago, Cleveland in Detroit, Philadelphia in Washington and Boston in New York. For the windup, Detroit is to play in Chicago, Cleveland in St. Louis, Philadelphia in Washington and Boston in New York, the two latter dates being double-headers on Saturday, October 8.

In the apportionment of Saturday, Sunday and holiday games, Chicago gets 14 Saturdays, 17 Sundays, a double header with St. Louis July 4, and two games with Cleveland on Labor day. St. Louis has 12 Saturday dates, 16 Sundays and a Decoration day double with Detroit. Detroit is assigned 13 Saturday games, 12 Sundays, and meets St. Louis twice on Labor day. Decoration Day, July 4 and 14 Saturdays are Cleveland's home allotment. Washington gets July 4 and 13 Saturdays, Philadelphia the same, New York, Decoration day, Labor day and 13 Saturdays, and Boston, Decoration day, Labor day and 12 Saturdays.

New York.—The National league magnates adopted a resolution calling for a 154-game schedule. The schedule previously prepared for 154 games was not adopted, but will be used as a basis for a new schedule.

The committee is now making changes in the schedule which will seek to effect more satisfactory playing dates for the Chicago and St. Louis baseball clubs.

The season will open on April 14 and end October 15.

TILLMAN ILL AT CAPITOL

South Carolina Senator Is Suddenly Stricken at Washington—Condition Not Serious.

Washington.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina was taken suddenly ill on the steps of the capitol and had to be carried into his room by two capitol employes. Later he was removed to his home.

The attack is said to have been due to a recurrence of the senator's old trouble, hardening of the arteries. His physician said that he did not regard the attack as serious.

Graft Inquiry Is Widened.

Albany, N. Y.—Investigation of legislative corruption in every possible form since the organization of the New York state government is the program of the Republican leaders to "satisfy the public demand" arising from the Conger-Allds bribery scandal. A resolution introduced in the senate Tuesday provides for the appointment of a joint committee of three senators and five assemblymen with practically unlimited powers to conduct the inquiry.

Indiana Man $5,500 Loser.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A suit-case containing $5,500 in securities and jewelry was stolen from E. E. Cox, a railroad man from Martinsville, Ind., directly after he had alighted from a train Thursday. A diamond ring valued at $500 is part of the booty.

Congo Evil Is Retained.

Brussels.—The chamber of deputies by a vote of 79 to 40, passed the Congo budget Thursday. It provides for no change in the system of raising revenue by compulsory labor.

BANK ROBBERS GET $10,000

Blow Up Safe at Chatsworth, Ill., After Gagging and Binding Marshal and Baker.

Bloomington, Ill.—Robbers dynamited the safe of the Citizens' bank of Chatsworth Tuesday and escaped with $8,000 in currency and $2,000 in silver.

Night Marshal William Cahill was captured at the city pumping station, bound and gagged and taken to a garage opposite the bank. The bank door was forced and work on the safe began.

Mr. Kerber, a baker, was espied by one of the lookouts en route to the bakeshop, and he was caught, tied and dragged into the bank, where he lay four hours, when he was able to loosen himself and give the alarm.

In the meantime the safe was blown. With the $10,000 stowed in a sack, the robbers left the bank, entered a rig in which they are supposed to have reached town, and drove east.

Stephen Herr, president of the bank, was notified and got in communication with the sheriff's office at Bloomington and a chase after the robbers began.

8,000 METAL MINERS IDLE

Engineers at Butte Strike for Recognition of Union—Many Mines Shut Down.

Butte, Mont.—As the result of the walking out of 111 "First Motion" engineers, members of the International Engineers' union, on Wednesday in an effort to compel the mining companies to recognize their organization and to pull apart from the jurisdiction of the Western Federation of Miners, 8,000 miners and smeltermen are idle in Butte with all the big mines shut down with the exception of the Anaconda, St. Lawrence, Neversweat, Mountain Consolidated, Berkley and Silverbow.

The situation indicates prolonged shutdown of mines with nothing encouraging, according to statement from mine managers who admit they are practically powerless in trouble. The miners and smeltermen refuse to handle any ore hoisted by international engineers and this further complicates matters.

SCORES PERISH IN STORM

Southwest Europe Swept by Terrific Gale—Paris Threatened with Another Severe Flood.

Paris.—Terrific storms are sweeping southwestern Europe, wrecking vessels along the north, west and south coasts of France and flooding many cities. The water is rising again in Paris and a flood greater than the past one is feared.

In the English channel, near Havre, several ships were wrecked and more than a score of fishing vessels lost. The loss of life is great.

The coast of Belgium is storm-swept and shipping has suffered terribly.

Switzerland is suffering from the terrific storm. In the Alps blizzards are raging and it is feared many tourists will be cut off.

Roosevelt Boat Stuck Fast.

Gondokoro, Sudan.—Col. Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt and Edmund Heller, the zoologist, left Friday on a steamboat for a final week of shooting along the river banks. Before they had got out of view, both the boat and the Belgian launch ran into a sand bank and were stuck fast.

Senator Elkins' Niece Dead.

Kansas City, Mo.—Miss Agnes Leslie Elkins, niece of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, who shot herself at the Willard hotel Wednesday died Friday. The young woman apparently was on the road to recovery when suddenly she relapsed into unconsciousness.

Licenses for Barbers.

Little Rock, Ark.—A movement has been started among local union barbers to have all barbers of Arkansas licensed by the state.

"Salada" Means Tea

THERE is a wide difference between "Salada" Tea and adulterated, hand-rolled mixtures of the so-called "cheap" grades of China and Japan Teas. You will find "Salada" an absolutely pure, uncontaminated Tea, fresh from the finest Tea Gardens of the world. Prepared by modern, cleanly methods and rolled by machinery instead of by hand—"Salada" is the best tea and the most economical tea in the market at the price or any price! For sale by all grocers, in sealed lead packets only.

The finest leaf and bud growth in the world. Packed in sealed lead packages.

SALADA CEYLON TEA

46

BLACK—GREEN—MIXED

Some Luxuries Needed.

Those stern economists who are pointing out that the people of small means ought to abandon "luxuries," forget that even such people have a moral right to something beyond the bare necessities of life. The rapid increase in prices does not mean to them cutting out more extravagances, but forgetting the modest recreations which have brightened for them the dull round of daily labor. It would be a hard world indeed where one could obtain just enough to keep body and soul together, and no more.—Providence Journal.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

No Space Goes to Waste.

Dewitt—Does your wife follow the fashions closely?

Jewitt—I should say so; she has one of those "standing room only" dresses.—Smart Set.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

When common sense takes a vacation it is time to stand from under.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A dog's bark isn't as bad as his bite, but it lasts longer.

Headache

"My father has been a sufferer from sick headache for the last twenty-five years and never found any relief until he began taking your Cascarets. Since he has begun taking Cascarets he has never had the headache. They have entirely cured him. Cascarets do what you recommend them to do. I will give you the privilege of using his name."—E. M. Dickson, 1120 Resiner St., W. Indianapolis, Ind.

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 923

ROOSEVELT SQUARE DEAL (TRADE MARK) OIL SLICKER

Yellow or Black

Retailing Price $2.50

52 inches long. Double throughout. 3-ply elbows, inside cuffs.

Warranted waterproof.

If your dealer cannot supply you, send us $2.50 and we will send one Express paid. If you are not entirely satisfied, return to us, and money will be refunded.

Goodyear Rubber Co.

371-377 Sibley St., ST. PAUL.

Wholesale Dealers in Oil Clothing and Rubber Goods.

PATENTS Inventors' book free. Beeler & Robb, Pat. Attys., 158-160 McGill Bldg., Wash., D. C.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

For Rheumatic Pains

As we get older the blood becomes sluggish, the muscles and joints stiffen and aches and pains take hold easier. Sloan's Liniment quickens the blood, limbers up the muscles and joints and stops any pain or ache with astonishing promptness.

Proof that it is Best for Rheumatism.

MRS. DANIEL H. DIEHL, of Mann's Choice, R.F.D., No. 1, Pa., writes:—"Please send me a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for rheumatism and stiff joints. It is the best remedy I ever knew for I can't do without it."

Also for Stiff Joints.

MR. MILTON WHEELER, 2100 Morris Ave., Birmingham, Ala., writes:—"I am glad to say that Sloan's Liniment has done me more good for stiff joints than anything I have ever tried."

Sloan's Liniment

is the qickest and best remedy for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Toothache, Sprains, Bruises and Insect Stings.

Price 25c., 50c., and $1.00 at All Dealers.

Send for Sloan's Free Book on Horses. Address

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, BOSTON, MASS.

FREE We Will Send Upon Application to Every Farmer FREE

PROF. THOMAS SHAW'S Directions for Planting Garden, Flower and Field Seeds in our Catalogue of Home Grown Seed

NORTHERN SEED CO., Seed Growers. 11th St., Valley City, N. D.

Nor on a Half-Dime, Either.

Simon Hardcastle believed with sincere faith that any wife who had, or asked, more than a quarter a year for her own amusement or enjoyment was a being too horrible to contemplate. He came from the village store for dinner and told what he had heard.

"Miranda, would you believe that the Lord's prayer could be engraved in a space no larger than a dime?"

"Well, yes, Simon," she hazarded, "if a dime is as large in the engraver's eyes as it is in yours, I should think that he would have no difficulty at all."—The Housekeeper.

Two Votes.

The first time I ran for the general assembly one of the prominent citizens of my community told me that he was going to vote against me because when I was a shaver I threw a rotten apple at his horse. Another prominent citizen told me that he was going to vote for me because when I was a shaver I put a rotten egg in a buggy cushion belonging to the woman he worked for and he had never liked the woman. Think of it! And yet such stuff has thrown the scales where thrones have been at stake.—From a speech at Norwich by former Gov. George P. McLean of Connecticut.

Not Actually Necessary.

The lawyer proceeded to examine the witness.

"Pardon the question, Mrs. Chucksley," he said, "but your answer constitutes a part of the record. How old are you?"

"Why, you ought to know, Mr. Sharpe," she answered; "my birthday is the same as yours, only I was born ten years later than you were."

"Ah, yes, I remember. Well, it isn't important, anyhow. Go ahead, Mrs. Chucksley, and tell the jury what you know about this case."

A Thought Reader.

"So you are studying telepathy?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "my object in life has been to find what people are thinking and then say it first. Any reliable system would simplify my labors immensely."—Exchange.

The Graveled Geometer.

Euclid was boasting of his abilities.

"But," cried his wife, "can you find why our gas bills are just as big as when they charged a dollar a thousand cubic feet?"

With a moan he sped into the night.

THE STORY OF THE PEANUT SHELLS.

As everyone knows, C. W. Post of Battle Creek, Michigan, is not only a maker of breakfast foods, but he is a strong individual who believes that the trades-unions are a menace to the liberty of the country.

Believing this, and being a "natural-born" scrapper for the right, as he sees it, Post, for several years past, has been engaged in a ceaseless warfare against "The Labor Trust," as he likes to call it.

Not being able to secure free and untrammeled expression of his opinions on this subject through the regular reading pages of the newspapers he has bought advertising space for this purpose, just as he is accustomed to for the telling of his Postum "story," and he has thus spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in denouncing trades-unionism.

As a result of Post's activities the people now know a whole lot about these organizations: how they are honeycombed with graft, how they obstruct the development of legitimate business, curtail labor's output, hold up manufacturers, graft upon theirown membership, and rob the public. Naturally Post is hated by the trades-unionists, and intensely.

He employs no union labor, so they can not call out his men, and he defies their efforts at boycotting his products. The latest means of "getting" Post is the widespread publication of the story that a car which was recently wrecked in transmission was found to be loaded with empty peanut shells, which were being shipped from the south to Post's establishment at Battle Creek.

This canard probably originated with President John Fitzgerald of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who, it is said, stated it publicly, as truth.

Post comes back and gives Fitzgerald the lie direct. He denounces Fitzgerald's statement as a deliberate falsehood, an underhanded and cowardly attempt to injure his business, having not the slightest basis in fact. As such an effort it must be regarded. It is significant that this statement about "the peanut shells" is being given wide newspaper publicity. In the "patent inside" of an eastern country paper I find it, and the inference naturally is that labor-unionites are insidiously spreading this lie.

An institution (or a man) which will resort to moral intimidation and to physical force, that will destroy machinery and burn buildings, that will maim and kill if necessary to effect its ends, naturally would not hesitate to spread falsehood for the same purposes.

We admire Post. While we have no enmity toward labor unions, so long as they are conducted in an honest, "live-and-let-live" kind of a way, we have had enough of the tarred end of the stick to sympathize thoroughly with what he is trying to do. He deserves support. A man like Post can not be killed, even with lies. They are a boomerang; every time. Again, we know, for hasn't this weapon, every weapon that could be thought of, been used (and not simply by labor unions) to put us out of business, too?

I am going to drink two cups of Postum every morning from this time on, and put myself on a diet of Grape-Nuts. Bully for Post!—Editorial in The American Journal of Clinical Medicine.

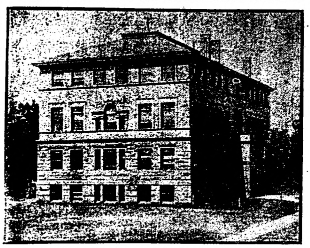
DENTAL BUILDING AT UNIVERSITY BURNED.



The "Old Medical" Building at the University of Minnesota, used by the Department of Dentistry, which was destroyed by fire during the Xmas holidays, is still a mass of ruins. The Board of Regents is considering plans for rebuilding as soon as the weather permits in the spring and the new edifice will be ready for occupancy when the fall term begins.

"BOOSTERS" MEET

PUBLICITY AND DEVELOPMENT, THE WATCHWORDS AT INTERESTING CONGRESS

MEETING WAS HELD AT BEMIDJI

Permanent Organization Is Effected—Agriculture, Dairying, Conservation, and Other Subjects Discussed.

Bemidji.—Northern Minnesota got together in Bemidji with unanimity and purpose that augers well for re-apportionment, development, good roads and everything generally favoring the section of the state north of the line running east from Moorhead. Two hundred and thirteen duly qualified delegates attended the convention and participated with enthusiasm in every movement taken up.

The sessions were devoted to speeches on agricultural possibilities in northern Minnesota by George Welsh, state immigration commissioner; a talk on conservation and the forthcoming meeting in St. Paul, by Curtis L. Mosher, secretary of the state federation of Commercial clubs; M. N. Kilian, Soo land commissioner, spoke on "Getting Together and Boosting;" George Ralph on "Reclamation of Minnesota Swamp Lands;" Prof. E. G. Cheney, assistant professor of forestry; D. E. Willard, N. P. development agent, on the development of northern Minnesota and Mrs. Maud C. Stockwell on "Suffrage to Women."

Permanent Organization.

The first business act of the congress was to form the Northern Minnesota Development Association.

This is to take the lead in an aggressive and determined movement by the entire northern part of the state to obtain its just dues from the legislature and to show the world that this section of the state offers "More advantages to the homeseeker and investor than any other part of the Union."

The meeting was opened in the city hall by W. R. Mackenzie, chairman of the organization committee, who introduced Rev. S. E. P. White of Bemidji, who invoked the blessings of Providence upon the assembly. P. J. Russell welcomed the visitors on behalf of the citizens of Bemidji. In his remarks he laid particular stress upon the necessity of securing a re-apportionment of the state which will give the northern counties the legislative influence to which they are entitled.

H. J. Maxfield of Wadena was elected temporary chairman and W. R. Mackenzie secretary, and the congress immediately settled down to business. Chairman Maxfield announced the following committees:

Credentials—L. B. Arnold, Hibbing; T. R. Brown, Jr., Crookston; P. J. McGarry, Walker.

Permanent Organization—Frank S. Lycan, Bemidji; R. D. Haven, Duluth; Matt W. Koll, Cass Lake; Albert Kaiser, Bagley; A. J. McGuire, Grand Rapids.

Interesting papers were read and talks made by Mrs. Maud C. Stockwell on Female Suffrage, Prof. E. G. Cheney on Forestry, W. N. Kilian on Boosting, Prof. Willard of North Dakota, and Prof. McGuire.

Little Falls.—The local Commercial Club has indorsed M. M. Williams, of this city for member of the state board of regents to succeed Owens, and will send a committee to the governor with a recommendation. Williams is a practical farmer and a member of the state forestry board.

RECEIVER FILES HIS REPORT.

Northern Elevator Case Reviewed by Master in Chancery.

Minneapolis.—The final detailed report of Henry F. Douglas, receiver for the Minneapolis Northern Elevator company, defendant in the receivership action of Albert C. Loring, Chas. S. Pillsbury and Albert C. Cobb, receivers of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company, limited, was filed in federal court and reviewed by the master in chancery. The master's report has not yet been prepared.

GOPHER EDITORS CONVENE.

Minnesota State Association Begins a Two Days' Meeting in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis—The Minnesota State Edieorial association assembled in the Hotel Radisson for their annual meeting. Mayor James C. Haynes and President Harry A. Tuttle of the Minneapolis Commercial club welcomed the newspaper men, and C. S. Edwards president of the association, responded and followed with his annual address. The remainder of the morning session was devoted to a eulogy on the late Gov. John A. Johnson by Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji.

In the afternoon the editors were taken on chartered cars to the state agricultural school, where dinner was served, after which R. C. Dunn of the Princeton Union discussed good roads, Frank C. Whitney of the Marshall News-Messenger "Printing Costs in a Country Shop," and David Ramaly of St. Paul, "Evolution of the Printing Trade During Half a Century." The annual banquet was given in the evening, and Friday, after hearing several papers and electing officers, the association adjourned.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows:

President.—H. S. Saylor, Buffalo, Minn., Journal.

First Vice President.—S. Y. Gordon Brown's Valley, Minn., Tribune.

Second Vice President.—F. E. Hadley, Winnebago, Minn., Enterprise.

Third Vice President.—W. F. Mahler, Springfield, Minn., Advance.

Secretary.—C. P. Stine, St. Paul, Minn.

Treasurer.—David Ramaley, Saint Paul, Minn., A. O. U. W. Guide.

Executive Committee.—C. C. Whitney, Marshall, Minn., News-Messenger; Frank J. Meyst, Western Newspaper Union, Minneapolis and W. E. Easton, Stillwater, Minn., Gazette.

Historian.—Alvah Eastman, Saint Cloud, Minn., Journal Press.

PIONEER EDITOR IS DEAD.

G. W. Benedict, Oldest Newspaper Man in State.

St. Cloud.—George W. Benedict, one of the most prominent residents of Sauk Rapids, and a pioneer newspaper man, died at his home in Sauk Rapids, after a two weeks' illness, caused by old age and a complication of diseases.

Deceased was 86 years of age. He was born in Rochester, N. Y., March 20, 1824. He came to Sauk Rapids in 1854 and established the Frontiersman. Since that time he has been connected with the Sauk Rapids Sentinel Free Press, St. Paul Pioneer Press, Alexandria Post-News and The St. Cloud Journal-Press at different times. He was a brother-in-law of former Lieutenant Governor C. A. Gilman, and the oldest newspaper man in the state. In 1874 he was state senator, and in 1878 deputy collector of internal revenue. At the time of the Sauk Rapids cyclone in 1886, Mr. Benedict was one of the heaviest sufferers. His wife died several years ago.

Vote for New High School.

East Grand Forks.—A special election to decide whether or not the school district should be bonded for $18,000 for the erection of a new school building on Minnesota Point, held in the auditorium of the high school here, resulted in a vote of 152 for the proposition and 48 against it. Weather conditions kept a large number of the voters away from the polls.

Thief River Falls.—A. R. Arpin of the Northern Drainage company is building in Minneapolis an immense dredge ditcher he will use on the eastern end of the Marshall county ditch. This ditch is known as No. 20 and extends from Thief River east into Beltrami county fifty miles. The laterals and all will require at least 100 miles of excavation.

National Ski Tournament Begins.

Coleraine.—The national ski tournament opened here with a long list of entries including the names of the best jumpers in the country. All the leading ski men of the northwest are competing, as well as a large number of jumpers sent to represent clubs. The scene is most interesting, the snow-covered slopes above the town being covred with jumpers trying for the prizes or practicing, and with thousands of spectators. The contests closed with a national ski convention.

BEEF TRUST MEN INDICTED

NATIONAL PACKING DIRECTORS CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY.

Indictment Alleges Concern Conspired to Raise Prices of Foodstuffs by Placing Them in Cold Storage.

New York.—The grand jury of Hudson county, sitting in Jersey City, N. J., Friday, indicted the directors of the beef trust, with one exception, on the charge of conspiracy.

The indictment is based upon the old common law of conspiracy, which law has been upheld by the highest court of the state and is epitomized in the expression that "it is a crime to do a lawful thing in an unlawful manner, or to do an unlawful thing in a lawful manner."

The indictment is against every director of the National Packing Company, with the exception of Kenneth K. McLarin. The indictments will be handed up by the grand jury on next Wednesday before Judge Francis C. Swaayze. The men indicted may be extradited if necessary. The charge is a criminal one and the punishment provided is three years in prison or $1,000 fine, or both.

The officers and directors of the National Packing Company are Edward Tilden, president; L. B. Patterson, A. T. Fuller, vice-presidents; C. G. Snow, secretary; Arthur Colby, assistant treasurer; directors, J. Ogden Armour, L. F. Swift, Edward Morris, E. F. Swift, Ira N. Morris, Arthur Meeker, Edward Tilden, T. J. Connors, L. A. Carton, K. K. McLarin, T. E. Wilson, C. H. Swift, L. H. Heyman, Samuel McRoberts, F. A. Fowler and A. W. Armour.

The reason for failure to indict McLarin, it was stated, was that he was merely a representative here in the east and was not supposed to have had any part in the fixing of the prices of food-stuffs.

The indictment charges that the defendants conspired to raise the price of food-stuffs by putting them in cold storage and releasing them from time to time.

The indictment of the beef trust directors who have through the National Packing Company set at defiance the law of supply and demand, raised prices on foodstuffs as they saw fit and forced the prices of meat beyond the reach of the poor was brought about by Prosecutor Pierre Garvin after weeks of hard work.

It was announced that the indictments are based upon the testimony of the employes of the storage plants and packing houses in Jersey City. For weeks, employes high and low, have been trooping into the grand jury room in Jersey City.

Jefferson City, Mo.—That the National Packing Company of New Jersey, a holding corporation upon the directorate of which the Armour, Swift and Morris interests are represented, has absorbed since its organization 26 corporations, many of them independent packing companies, was developed Friday by testimony given before Judge Dillon.

Attorney General Major expressed himself as well pleased with the testimony. He believes the organization of the National Packing Company, which operates in this state through its subsidiary concerns, was in violation of the laws of Missouri, and that the companies which promoted its organization and which are operating in Missouri, can be punished.

SIX MEN KILLED; 10 MISSING

Boiler Explodes Which Causes Series of Explosions in Trojan Powder Works—Forty Hurt.

Oakland, Cal.—Six men were killed and ten others who are missing, are believed to have met instant death as a result of an explosion which occurred Thursday in the Trojan Powder works at Roberts Landing, near San Lorenzo, in Alameda county. Two score more were wounded, several of them it is believed fatally.

The explosion was caused by the bursting of a boiler, the concussion from which resulted in a series of explosions in different parts of the plant. The detonation was heard for miles and in the bay cities it was at first believed an earthquake shock was responsible for it.

The buildings in the immediate vicinity of the explosion were shattered and a fire which followed for a time threatened the destruction of the entire plant.

GEN. WOOD CRITICALLY ILL

Reported at Washington That Operation Recently Performed Was Not Entirely Successful.

Washington.—Dispatches received here to the effect that the condition of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, who was operated upon at the Johns Hopkins hospital, in Baltimore, is critical and that the operation was not entirely successful.

It is learned that a species of paralysis which had arisen from the old wound on Gen. Wood's head has not been relieved by the recent operation.

Old-Time Postmaster Dies.

Gardner, Mass.—Simeon W. Stevens who was appointed postmaster here by President Franklin Pierce in 1854, and had received successive appointments ever since, died Friday at his home in South Gardner. He was 91 years old.

Dr. Cook Now in Santiago.

Sanitago, Chile.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook Friday admitted his identity. He visited his old comrade, the Belgian engineer, Rysselberghe, and the two were together for some hours.

BILLIARD AND POOL TITLES CHANGE HANDS

CLINE BEATS DEMAREST AND KEOGH DEFEATS HUESTON IN CUE CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES.

Calvin Demarest, the young Chicagoan, did not hold the 18.2 balkline billiard championship very long. It is about three months since Demarest won the title and the first time he was called upon to defend it he went down to defeat at the hands of Harry Cline of Philadelphia.

Cline and Demarest played in Chicago, the champion having only 1,387 points when his rival scored the final in the 1,500 point contest. Cline's highest run was 147, while Demarest's best was 122.

About the time Demarest was losing the billard championship, Thomas A. Hueston was being deprived of the same honor in pool. In a 600 point game in New York Hueston lost to Jerome Keogh of Rochester, N. Y. Hueston scored only 546 in the three nights play. Keogh adopted the safety system while Hueston was arratic and snappy throughout. A purse of $1,000, the diamond emblem and a $250 side bet went to the winner.

HE WANTS LONGER RACES

Thomas F. Ryan, New Turf Patron, Favors Four-Mile Run for the Thoroughbreds.

An effort is being made to revive long-distance horse races in America. The principal advocate of the races that demand speed, endurance and courage in one of the latest patrons of the turf—Thomas Fortune Ryan. The traction magnate has been consulting some of the stewards of the Jockey club on the subject and trying to inject into them some of his enthusiasm for this particular branch of racing.

This subject of long-distance races, the four-mile kind—heats, too, if horsemen will see it that way—is a hobby with Mr. Ryan. He has a deeply rooted conviction that races over long routes are the contests befitting thoroughbreds and not the present-day sprints of five, six and seven furlongs.

Mr. Ryan believes that under present conditions the struggles are so short that an advantage gained at the start very often decides a race. Under such conditions, the very thing sought after by breeders—extreme speed—frequently is placed at naught because the horses that possess that high quality may be handicapped by ground lost at the rise of the barrier

Pirates Sign an Umpire.

The Pittsburg champions will play ball under a salaried umpire from the first time they don a uniform at Hot Springs until the close of the championship season. Umpire Van Sickle of the American association, a Chicago man, will get the job. Clark thinks players do not do the same sort of work when another player or some spectator is umpiring and requested Dreyfuss to get a real umpire.

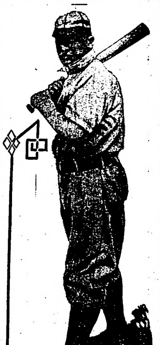
Where the A. A. Teams Train.

American association teams will train in the following places: Louisville at West Baden; Toledo at Rome, Ga.; Kansas City at Excelsior Springs, Mo.; St. Paul at Excelsior Springs, Mo.; Milwaukee at Champaign, Ill.; Minneapolis at Des Moines, Ia.; Columbus at home; Indianapolis at Havana, Cuba.

Griffith's Men to Be Vaccinated.

All the Reds will have to be vaccinated before they report for spring training, says Manager Griffith. He has come to the opinion that it isn't safe to risk having his men exposed to smallpox in the south.

NEW WHITE SOX CATCHER



Jimmy Block, who played with Minneapolis last season, has signed his contract and says he is going after the honors of premier catcher of Comiskey's lads, long held by Billy Sullivan.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

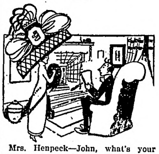
WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES SUSPECT THE KIDNEYS.

Backache is kidney ache, in most cases. The kidneys ache and throb with dull pain because there is inflammation within. You can't be rid of the ache until you cure the cause—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. G. S. Warren, 1517 No. 7th St., Boise, Idaho, says: "An injury to my back years ago left me lame. I had to use a cane, and it hurt me terribly to stoop or lift. The kidney secretions passed too frequently. For five years since I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, I have had no return of the trouble."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A CAUTIOUS HUSBAND.



Mrs. Henpeck—John, what's your honest opinion of my new hat?

Mr. Henpeck—Don't ask me, Mary. You know you're much bigger and stronger than I am!

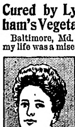
KEEP BABY'S SKIN CLEAR

Few parents realize how many estimable lives have been embittered and social and business success prevented by serious skin affections which so often result from the neglect of minor eruptions in infancy and childhood. With but a little care and the use of the proper emollients, baby's skin and hair may be preserved, purified and beautified, minor eruptions prevented from becoming chronic and torturing, disfiguring rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings dispelled.

To this end, nothing is so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective as the constant use of Cuticura Soap, assisted, when necessary, by Cuticura Ointment. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, for their free 32-page Cuticura Book telling all about the care and treatment of the skin.

Power of Example.

"It ain't a pretty kind world for a poor old Swede voman like me," said Christine. "But somedimes ids a pretty good vorld anyvays. I vas at a place yesterday vere de lady alvays make me iron all afternoon und den send me home mitout my supper. So yesterday I tolt her how kind you vas to me, und how you tell me set down and rest till supper get ready, und gif me money for de street car so I don't have to valk home ven I been so tired, und all about you. So ven I put avay de irons yesterday dot lady she say to be, 'Set down und have something to eat pretty soon, Christine; you not be in de vay.' Dot's because I tell her about you, ma'am. I tink lots of peoples be gooder if dey know about somebody else bein' good."—Newark News.



AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. Ford, 2207 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

THE SUNBEAM,

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under th Act of Congress of March 3. 1879

A batte cry of Hoc'h der Kaiser seams to be increasing in volume, in the Northwestern part of the state. —Plummer Pioneer.

John A. Duffy, the Red Lake Falls banker has announced that he will not be a candidate for election to the legislature this year.

Ex-Senator Hanson spoke to the Thief River Falls high school last week. His speech must have been very brief, if he only told them what he did for this district when he was in the legislature.

Ole Sageng has announced that he will not again be a candidate for election to congress, from this district Ole undoubtly seen the writeing on the wall, and began to realize that the big run he made two years ago was made while the friends of Halver Steenerson were "asleep at the switch", and that they were wide awake this year and would side track him proper.

Thief River Falls enjoind the county commissioners from letting the contract to build the court house for the reason that title to selected site was not clear. Then John A. Duffy gave them a new site that did have a clear title, and the contract was let, and again Red Lake Falls won, but that's what you might call a a good start toward going some in a county seat fight.

That provision that Halver Steenerson got tacked onto that river and harbor bill provideing for the improvement of Red Lake river will tack thousands of votes opposit his name for renomination and election. It can ba truly said that Halvor is doing something for the people up this way for the bill is passed. Please remember that he is not now promising to pass this bill, but that he HAS passed it and we will get them much needed improvements on the Red Lake River

We are continualy being asked questions about county division, which we know very little about and have given very little attention to. All we know is that there is a petition filed asking that the question be submitted to a vote at the next general election, and if governor Ebehart issues his proclamation calling an election on the question, three months before the next general election, the question will be voted on. There is no additional expense on the tax payers for a vote on the question as it will be on the bottom of the county ballot in this form: For establishing the the proposed County of Pennington, yes, or no If there is more yese's than noe's, the proposition carries, and the county is divided. If the no's win it remains as it is. That's all we know about it to this time, but you may hear more about it before next August.

The feet of Fate are tender, for she sets her steps not on the ground, but on the heads of men.—Homer.

The Poet's Son.

"Why, Freddy, how dirty you are, and only yesterday you wrote a verse for papa's birthday, promising always to wash your hands clean."

"Well, mamma, that was only a poetic license."—Fliegende Blatter.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 25th. 1910.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office Crookston Minnesota February 19th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Edward Iverson, of Brunkeberg Minn. who on October 8,1904 made Homestead entry No. 648 Serial No. 04227, for N. E. ¼ Section 24 Township 154 N Range 41 W 5th. Principal Meridian. has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet U S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 4th day of April 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Finsand, of McPhail Minn, Olaf Wallberg, Nels Loberg, Iver Solheim, of Brunkeberg Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin.
Register.

Notice For Publication,

First Publication Feb. 25th, 1910

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 18. 1910.

Notice is herby given that Casper Lund of Austad Minn. who on March 16th. 1906. made Homestead Entry No. 1259 Serial No. 01582, for S.W.¼ of N.E.¼ Section 10 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principa Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn.; at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 25th. day of March. 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses;

George Nold Iver W, Ystby, Theador Vigenstad, Tom Mjelde, all of Austad Minn.

Aurthur P, Toupin,
Register.

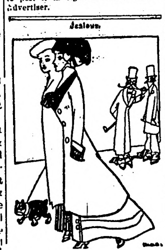
Stevenson and Dreams.

Robert Louis Stevenson owed much of his inspiration to dreams. In one passage he attributed some of his finest work to the "brownies" who tenanted his brain during moments of unconsciousness. "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" owes its origin to a dream. "I had long been trying to write a story on this subject," writes Stevenson, "to find a body, a vehicle, for that strong sense of man's double being which must at times come in upon and overwhelm the mind of every thinking creature. For two days I went about racking my brains for a plot of any sort, and on the second night I dreamed the scene at the window and a scene afterward split in two, in which Hyde, pursued for some crime, took the powder and underwent the change in the presence of his pursuers. All the rest was made awake and consciously, although I think I can trace in much of it the manner of my brownies."

Double Quick Composing.

Sir Arthur Sullivan wrote the overture to "The Yeomen of the Guard" in twelve hours and that to "Iolanthe" in less space of time—from 9 p. m. to 7 a. m. But even this capacity for speed in composition is eclipsed by M. Rompard, who for a wager composed the music to a song in ten minutes. Mr. N. Trotere, however, is the composer of whom most quick time anecdotes are told. His beautiful song "Asthore" was both written and composed in forty minutes in Blanchard's restaurant. The melody of "In Old Madrid" was the result of a sudden inspiration. It came to the composer while on his way home from the aquarium. Lest it should escape him he rushed into a small public house in Rochester row, seized a biscuit bag and on it jotted down the air. But Mr. Trotere holds the championship. It is said that he actually composed "The Brow of the Hill," wrote a letter and ran 400 yards to post it in eight minutes.—Dundee Advertiser.

Jealous.

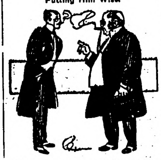


"When I refused Jack three weeks ago he declared that it would be the death of him."

"Well, it wasn't. He proposed to me last week, and I accepted him."

"Oh, then he must have meant a living death!"

Putting Him Wise.



Young Doctor—Just think, six of my patients recovered this week!

Old Doctor—It's your own fault, my dear boy. You spend too much time

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Jan. 14 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. January 2. 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Schmidt, of Germantown Minn., who on June 25th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 300. Serial No. 04120 for S. W. ¼ Section 8. Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet; U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of February 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl Habedank, August Ristau, of Germantown Minn, Jacob Jonas. Valentine Yager, of Thief River Falls Minn,

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Feb. 18th. 1910.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. February 16th, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Thone Johnson. of Rhoda Minn. who on April 8th. 1905. made Homestead entry No. 1114, Serial No. 04448, for S.W. ¼ Section 13 Township 152 N. Range 41 W, 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 28th. day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Frances O. Gustafson, of Malone Minn. Knut T. Sannes. John Polbrook, William R Rodman, of Rhoda Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Feb. 11th. 1910

Department of the Interior U. S. Land office, at Crookston Minn. February 7th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given, that John Poloni of Highlanding Minn., who on July 15th. 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 553. Serial No. 04200. for Lots 3.4. S.W.¼ N.W. ¼ Section 25 & Lots 11 & 12. Section 20, Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 21st. day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Edon Davis, Thorsten Jacobson, of Highlanding Minn. Walter McAndress, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 9th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given that. Ignac Kolski, of Rudell Minn.. who on November 12th. 1906, made Homestead entry No 1334, Serial No. 04559 for N.½ S.W. ¼ Section 17 N. ½ S. E. ¼ Section 18 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof. to establish claim to the land above described before S. A. Swanson. Judge of Probate Court, at Red Lake Falls Minnesota, on the 28th day of March. 1910,

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mike Kolski, of Rhoda Minn. John Radnecki, of Radney Minn. Wanzen Wojnerowski, of Rudell Minn. John Wzentek, of Hilda Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 11, 1910

Notice is hereby given that Gilbert O. Vraa. of Torgersen Minnesota, who on November 2nd, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 813 Serial No. 04297. for N. W. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian. has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described. before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 24th, day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Michael Torgerson, Knut Torgerson. Carl A. Gronberg, Thorjus I. Morken, all of Torgerson Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Odd Names In China.

Chinese children are endowed with strange Christian names. Their girls, for instance, are not called Mabel, Jenny or Matilda, but Cloudy Moon, Celestial Happiness, Spring Peach or Casket of Perfumes. Their boys get less attractive names, being made for work and wisdom rather than pleasure and dancing. Thus we find a little two-year-old Practical Industry: three-year-old. Ancestral Knowledge: four-year-old, Complete Virtue five-year-old, Discreet Valor. To their slaves they give still another set of names. Not For Me. Joy to Serve. Your Happiness and Humble Devotion may be taken as typical examples.

Perseverance.

Perseverance is more prevailing than violence. and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together yield themselves up when taken little by little.

Murder In Spain.

Spain has a death penalty, but rarely imposes it, the customary sentence for premeditated homicide being penal servitude in chains for life. A parricide is punished by being imprisoned in chains "in perpetuity until death."

BOA CONSTRICTORS.

The Young Shift For Themselves as Soon as Hatched.

The real home of the boa constrictors is in the tropical countries. Mrs. Boa seeks a sandy place. When she has found it she coils herself into a great and almost flat corkscrew. Then by just two or three turns of her body she digs a shallow hole in the sand. This is her nest. In this hole she lays about twenty-four eggs The eggs are about as large as those bantam chickens lay and are a dark cream color. They are oblong and more the shape of a pecan than of a hen's egg. The shell is not hard, like a hen's egg, but yields to the pressure of your finger, something like rubber.

Having laid her eggs in the nest of sand, the mother boa winds herself into a perfectly flat coil, like a round mat. This done, she gently pushes waves of sand upon the eggs until they are covered from four to six inches deep. Then she settles herself upon the top and stays there for nineteen days. At the end of this time a lot of little snakes may be seen pushing their way out from the nest and away into the world to get their own living. They don't show a bit of affection for their mother or for each other, but glide away, probably never to be together again. Is it any wonder. when they act so just after being hatched out, that boa constrictors never like anybody and never have anything to do with people if they can avoid it?

Each little snake measures from twelve to fourteen inches in length and is about as big around as a lead pencil. It is said that they eat nothing at all during the first six months of their lives or until they are old enough to catch and crush to death small animals and swallow them whole. The boa constrictor never bites—it has no poison fangs—but always kills by coiling about its victim and crushing it to death Fully grown, the boa constrictor is thirty to forty feet long and as big around as the large part of a man's leg.

CHEWING TOBACCO.

The Grip With Which This Habit Holds Its Victims.

Every slave of the weed will know better than I do how much truth exists in a story told me a few evenings ago by a well known committing magistrate in New York.

We were seated at a club table discussing various kinds of dissipations especially the fascination that liquor and gambling are said to have for men who cannot resist the impulse to gratify one or the other of these passions The judge spoke:

"In my opinion the most overmastering craving known to our race is that for chewing tobacco.. Opium in some forms may be as bad. but I am sure it isn't worse. A few weeks ago an incorrigible was brought before me and after hearing the evidence I sentenced him to the island for three months. He appeared to take it very sensibly until a police officer as a teaser whispered into the man's ear, as I afterward learned, that he would not be allowed any tobacco while in the penitentiary. The poor chap turned pale, rose in his seat and held up his hand as a sign that he desired to ask me a question. I motioned to him to speak up

"'I say, good Mr. Judge, will you do me a great favor?'

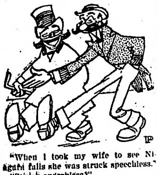
"'Certainly, if it be within my power,' I replied.

"'I hear my tobacco will be cut off Cannot you make my term six months or even a year if I am allowed to have chewing tobacco?'"

The judge had to explain that he couldn't do anything of that sort. He relieved the prisoner's mind on the tobacco question by telling him that if he was a habitual chewer the prison physician would order a small quantity of the weed for him daily.

"Never did I see a greater change in a human face," concluded his honor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Happy Thought!



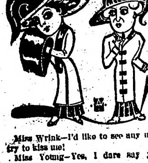
"When I took my wife to see Niagara falls she was struck speechless."

"Struck speechless?"

"Yes."

"I'll take my wife next week!"

An Enjoyable Sight.



Miss Wrink—I'd like to see any man try to kiss me!

Miss Young—Yes, I dare say you would.

Yes we have plenty Of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors, Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Crk. as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. Winton,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm G. Hunt, p. m,

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella—Indeed? Ella—Yes: they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants State Bank,

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

Officers.

C. L. Hansen...... Pesident.
Daniel Patterson. ..Vice Pres.
A. D. Stephens.... ...2nd Vice Pes.
B. E. Burkee..........Cashier.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS FOR Headache

FOR NEURALGIA. SCIATICA. RHEUMATISM. BACKACHE. PAIN IN CHEST. DISTRESS IN STOMACH. SLEEPLESSNESS.

TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

If you have Headache Try One

They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects

25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

DR. MILES' Pain Pills

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the Sunbeam office.

Make your applications to make final proof and for farm loans at this office.

For Sale: 30 tons of upland hay, in the Town of Deer Park.
G.A.Hoveland, R F. D No. 1
Fosston Minn.

There is to be a ball at the Kratka hall tomorrow night. All are invited.

We are pleased to learn that the Highlanding creamery is makeing a very successful winters run this winter.

There was quite a large number of the young folks drove over from Erie to attend the Kolski dance on Saturday evening last.

The weather has been very cold for the past week, but the farmers have been improveing the good roads getting their grain to market.

Tom Walla took a big load to the Kolski ball on Saturday evening. Tom don't hitch up on no light rig but onto the heavy sleighs and takes a good big load along to the dance.

Edward Singer passed by this way yesterday on his way home from Kratka, where he has been attending the store there during the absence of Stephen on a business trip.

We received a letter from Martain Swanson yesterday, and he will soon be up from Minneapolis to watch the Dan Patch thaw out of the ice, so he can make that return trip from Kratka.

There is to be a St.Patrick ball on March 17th, at the Kratka hall, and one at the Koliska hall in Deer Park on the same date. This will be the last ball of the season at the Kolski hall.

FOR SALE: Three good work horses. One matched team of grey horses six years old. One black mare six years old. Weigh about 1300,lbs each. Call on, or address,

Laurence Wojnorowski,
Radney Minn.

We have been working under difficulties in geting out our paper this week as we have been on the sick list, and if we only had the time to spare we would have been in the hospital, instead of working in a printing office.

The Board of directors of the R L R T. Co. met the representative of the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, at High landing on Saturday evening, and arrangements were made to start the farmers boat in the freight carring business as soon as navigation opens.

The Erie Local Telephone Co. are haveing lots of trouble with "rubbernecking on its line, which they will find it a difficult matter to surpress, but if you will notice they will all drop out of business after a short time, for will soon be compelled to attend to their own business, or starve. As it is now we understand that some of them on the new Thief River Falls line have not had time to wash their dishes, they have been kept so busy sticking their nose into other peopels business "rubbernecking."

The rouling of the post office department that mail carriers do not have to collect loose change from mail boxes is certainly a good one, as it is not a plesent job to drive up to a mail box on the open prairie with it 40 degrees below zero, and a good blizzard on tap, pull off your mits, and paw around in the snow bare handed for half an hour hunting for lost pennies, which if you are luckey enough to find you are likely to loose before you get to the next post office. A mail carrier is always willing to accomidate people by geting stamps for them but he don't have to hunt up pennies in the snow anymore.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

Mrs.Jenson and daughter Cora returned home from Thief River Falls on Monday, where they have been visiting relation and friends.

The ladies aid will meet at the home of Gunder Helstad on March 2 d. All are welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Strand, Oscar Nesland, Andrew Lotvig and Mrs G Gunderson spent Saturday evening at A. Rolandsons.

Martain Fore transacted business at Plummer Monday.

Ole and Aslak Nesland returned home on Sunday from the town of Eden, where they have been for some time.

Miss Nellie Short and Juli. Florance visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wille Vetheson on Sunday.

Ole and Carl Skodivedt and sister Miss Sophia spent Sunday evening with the family of Con Short.

Mr and Mrs. Andrew Strand left for Edmore N.D. on Monday after a weeks visit with the family of Ole Nesland.

There will be services in the Erickson school house next Sunday at 10.30 a m. All are welcome.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 25,1910.
Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota February 23rd,1910.

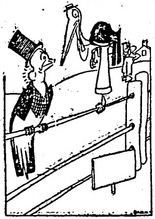
NOTICE is hereby given that Arnt Gangstad, of Radney Minnesota, who on December 17th,1904 made Homestead Entry No.10[illegible] serial No.04386 for N.E.¼ Section 15 Township 152 N.Range 40 W. 5th.Principal Meridian has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 5th, day of April 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John A. Peterson, Knut Lidtveit, of Radney Minn Tallak Lindtvedt, Thoro Lofthus, of Rhoda Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

A. good pair of 3 year old work oxen for sale. Inquire of Rev. E. A Mosue, one mile south from Sunbeam.

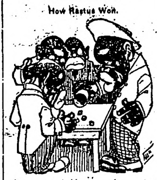
In Birdland.



"That's an ugly lump you have on your neck!"

"What can you expect with all these wireless messages flying around!"

How Rastus Won.



"So you won a turkey at the raffle, Rastus?"

"Uh-huh! Wile de res' was shakin' dice I scused mahself."

Livingstone.

Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never fired a shot in anger, never "clubbed or clouted or banned or blasted." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old man who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.

Unkempt Smith—Mister, would youse kindly help a poor man da is all in, down and out? Jocular Citizen—Why, certainly. Just climb the fire escape on that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then you will be all out, up and in.—Judge's Library.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS.

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $2. 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

British Savings Clubs.

The working people of England are great patrons of savings clubs, all sorts of agencies being created to enable them to save money that they may have it to spend during the festive season of the year. There are clubs of all kinds, ranging from the shop club, to which the workingmen contribute, to the little clubs run for the purpose of letting school children have a shilling's worth of sweets for a Christmas treat. There is hardly a workshop of any importance in London without its workmen's saving club, besides which there are many dividing clubs carried on at public houses, and the deposits amount in the aggregate to a very large sum. The withdrawals begin in the early days of December, and it is not uncommon for the banks to pay out £300 ($1,460) to £500 ($2,433) to a single club, and the problem of storing the money is one of some difficulty. As the amounts have to be divided among many people they are wanted in cash, and in some cases the proportion of gold, silver and copper is specified.

Easter Island.

Easter Island is a lonely Pacific islet, forty-seven square miles in area, entirely volcanic and containing several extinct craters, some of which are more than a hundred feet high, discovered by Roggeveen on Easter Sunday, 1722. Little is known concerning the curious remains which have made the island famous. They consist of more than 500 rudely carved stone statues and busts, varying in height from three to seventy feet and said to be portraits of famous men, not idols. There are also hundreds of stone houses on the island, with painted interiors and incised tablets which, strange to say, have never been deciphered. Between 1860 and 1862 the population, by reason of polyandry and emigration, dwindled to 150 souls, and in 1863 most of these were carried off by the Peruvians to work guano. The few inhabitants left are fair haired Polynesians. Since 1888 the island has been a Chilean convict station.—New York Telegram.

A Long Time Dying.

Mr. Fred Terry told this anecdote of the death scene in "The Heel of Achilles:"

"One day," he says, "we were rehearsing this play, and a member of my company came in from the street and asked the call boy how far the rehearsal had got.

"'Mr. Terry's just dying,' replied the boy.

"'Good. I've time to smoke a cigarette before my entrance.'

"Presently the actor returned and repeated the question.

"'Still dying,' answered the boy.

"'Oh, I'll go and have another cigarette, then.'

"Back he came and only got the same reply from the call boy.

"Finally, after smoking five cigarettes, he asked, a little wearily, how far the rehearsal had gone.

"'Still dying,' answered the call boy.

"'Great Scott!' gasped the actor. 'He must be immortal.'"—London Answers.

The First Language.

No one of the existing languages has any legitimate claim to be considered the original of the family of languages, standing to the others as Latin, for instance, stands to Italian and French. Of an original primitive language of mankind the most patient research has found no trace. All of them—Assyrian, Phoenician, Hebrew, Arabic—are sister languages, pointing back to an earlier parent language, which has long disappeared. Since the historical period man has done little in the way of the absolute creation of language. The work had already been accomplished ages before the birth of written inscriptions.—New York American.

Two Ways.

"De man dat waits to learn by experience," said Uncle Eben, "is liable to put in his precious time gettin' cured of a mule kick while de man dat used common sense is gettin' his corn planted."—Washington Star.

Chip From the Old Block.

Lazy Jackson—Look at heah, mah son, wat would yo' do ef yo' had no muddah an' no faddah to suppoaht yo'? Ephey Jackson—Why, ah'd git married, of cou'se.—Judge.

Do one thing at a time and the big things first.—Lincoln.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS,

THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

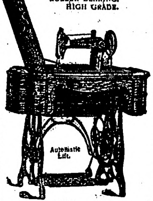
☞ We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,
Sunbeam Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.



The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.

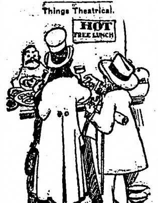
Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Things Theatrical.

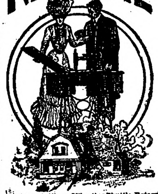


First Actor—I have just signed a contract for the season at a salary of $500 a week.

Second Actor—That's nothing. I have an offer of $50 a week in real money.

He Spoke Too Soon.

A well known business man attended his daughter's commencement exercises at an eastern college. He had been greatly pleased with the beauty and dignity of the exercises and was discoursing to his wife upon the refining influences of college life. Suddenly his impressive monologue was cut short. A girl in cap and gown came dashing down the steps of the main hall waving her diploma and shouting, "Educated, by gosh!"—Ladies' Home Journal.



THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE
LIGHT RUNNING
NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY
Orange, Mass.

Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear. Our guaranty never runs out.
Sold by authorized dealers only.
FOR SALE BY
Hicks Furniture & Carpet Co
Thief River Falls, Minn.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 236 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL
DICTIONARY

Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority ALL KINDS of questions in Language, the Trades, Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:

Colored Plates, Flags, State Seals, Etc.
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Scripture Proper Names
Greek and Latin
English Christian Names
Foreign Words
Abbreviations

2,380 Pages.
5,000 Illustrations.
25,000 Added Words.

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages. 1400 Illus.

Write for "Dictionary Wrinkles," and Specimen Pages. Mention in your request this publication and get a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. FREE.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.
Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

Fought to Retain Formula Which Has Made a Fortune

L. T. Cooper, the man who believes that 90 per cent. of all ill health of this generation is caused by stomach trouble, is fast winning a national faith in his theory. His claim is now admitted by a surprising number of people throughout the country, and he is gaining new adherents every day.

While speaking of his success in a recent interview, Mr. Cooper said: "I believed ten years ago that any one who could produce a formula that would thoroughly regulate the stomach would have a fortune. When I got hold of this formula I knew within six months that I was right, and that my fortune was made. I called the medicine Cooper's New Discovery, although I did not get up the formula. I have owned it, however, for over five years. I have had one lawsuit over it, which I won in the courts. When it was settled The Cooper Medicine Company became the only firm in the world that can prepare the medicine. The preparation has sold like wildfire wherever introduced. As I have said before, it is successful simply because it puts the stomach in perfect shape, then nature does the rest. There are any number of complaints never before associated with stomach trouble that the medicine has alleviated in thousands of cases."

Among statements obtained recently from users of this medicine that is arousing such universal discussion is one from Mrs. Emma Stanley, living in Chicago, at 713 Washington Boulevard, who said: "Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper had to deal with. I was troubled for years with my stomach. I consulted with doctors and took many patent medicine preparations without result. My stomach was in such a wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate.

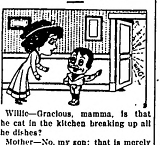
"I was very nervous, and could hardly sleep. I had a roaring in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak. Then there was a very sore spot at the pit of my stomach that nearly set me wild.

"I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I used four bottles, and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quieted, and I am so much improved that I feel like a new woman.

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well."

Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will forward you the name of a druggist in your city who will. Don't accept "something just as good."—The Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton, Ohio.

ANNUAL CRASH.



Willie—Gracious, mamma, is that the cat in the kitchen breaking up all the dishes?

Mother—No, my son; that is merely your father breaking his New Year's resolutions.

Coffroth Wins Race, London to 'Frisco.

James W. Coffroth, fight promoter, won his bet of $2,000 made with a member of the National Sporting club of London that he could reach San Francisco in ten days from London. Coffroth had a margin of two hours and forty minutes.

Coffroth, according to agreement, sent a telegram to Eugene Corri, with whom he had the wager. When he arrived at the Oakland pier he was welcomed by a large delegation that cheered him as he stepped from his car.

The time made by Coffroth is the fastest ever made from London to San Francisco over the Atlantic and across the continent. He made the trip in nine days, five hours and five minutes.

The journey from Omaha to San Francisco was made on the famous San Francisco "Overland Limited" of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific, and is simply another victory for Safety, Service, Speed via the old Overland Route.

Belgium Has no Navy.

Belgium is, perhaps the most prosperous state in Europe, as well as the most thickly settled. The late king's reign was at least marked by an enormous advance in wealth and social reform. One of the country's special advantages is that its international neutralization permits it to dispense with a navy, while the Belgian army is maintained on a very small and inexpensive basis.

Make $500 in Gold.

Read the magnificent offer by the John A. Salzer Seed Co. in another part of this paper. Get your wits to work and capture the $500.00, and at the same time secure a supply of the most reliable seeds on earth. The company is one of the largest in the country, and thoroughly responsible.

There is no beautifier of complexion, or form, or behavior, like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around us.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience.—Washington.

AT THE JUNCTION

By DONALD ALLEN

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

Miss Carrie Mayberry had made a journey of 70 miles up the state to pay a month's visit to her aunt. She had had to change cars at a junction en route, but the conductor had been so courteous, and there had been so many passengers changing with her, that she had not minded the ten-minute wait. In returning after her visit was up, things were different. The conductor was a cross-grained old chap who had no good-looking daughter of his own, and then the only other passenger to get off and take the G. & B. road was a young man, who proceeded to saunter up and down the platform without giving Miss Carrie a second look.

As if these three or four things were not bad enough, she learned that the train she had to wait for was three hours behind time. She did not learn this from the young man—oh, no. He found out for himself and then kept the information to himself, though he must have known what a hurry she was in to get back home and see pa and ma. He just didn't care whether she got home that day or the week after.

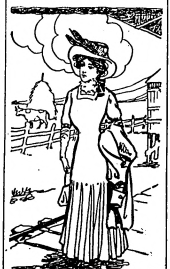
Miss Carrie learned about the lateness of the train from the red-headed depot agent. It was a country junction. The depot and his house were the only two buildings there. The only landscape for three miles around was made up of a spotted cow, a swamp, a haystack and a water-tank. It took the red-headed man just one hour to get ready to come out on the platform and say:

"Your train was three hours late an hour ago; now it's only two hours."

"What! My train late!" was the exclamation. "Why didn't you tell me so when I got off?"

"No good. You'd have had to stay just the same."

The young man saw her look of chagrin, disappointment and anger from the flour barrel on which he was sitting, but did not come forward and take the red-headed man by the neck or speak words of consolation to her. She looked at him and mentally called him names—real hard names.



The Only Landscape Was Made Up of a Spotted Cow, a Swamp, a Haystack and a Water-Tank.

The agent had a home, a wife and two children. It was a few rods away, and the right thing would have been to invite Miss Carrie to tarry there. He didn't do the right thing. He didn't care whether she walked the platform or roosted on the haystack.

And that young man! A nice specimen he was. Of course, Miss Carrie had made up her mind when she first got off that if he tried to scrape acquaintance she would promptly freeze him out, but that was on the understanding that the G. & B. train was on time. Now it was hours late, and that made all the difference in the world. He ought to know that it did.

Just after the red-headed man had told Miss Carrie that she still had two hours to wait, she looked at her watch and found that it had stopped. There was no clock in the depot. The young man had a watch which he frequently consulted in a somewhat ostentatious way, but would the girl humble herself to ask him what time it was? Never in this world! There were some yellow flowers growing alongside the tracks 20 rods away, and he could have jumped down and culled her a bouquet.

The two hours were about up when the red-headed man came out to Miss Carrie to say:

"Your train is another two hours late, making five hours in all. Mebbe it will be six, but I'll say five to you."

"And I—I've got to wait two or three hours more!" she almost screeched.

"Unless you want to walk."

The young man was at the far end of the platform inspecting a patent washing machine that had arrived by freight, and yet he must have heard the message and known her feelings. If not why did he grin? For a minute Miss Carrie looked around for dynamite to blow him off the face of the earth, but then it began to rain and she had to seek shelter. The young man also sought shelter.

The sitting room was about 12 feet square. It contained a rusty stove and a single bench. Its windows had not been washed since the surrender of Lord Cornwallis and the only picture on the walls was that of a young lady with long hair and holding in her hand a bottle of the stuff that did the trick. Miss Carrie took one end of the bench and the young man the other. For 20 minutes she gazed at her toes and he at his. Then they raised their eyes as high as the long-haired girl and kept them there a long time. She could have grown another foot of hair while they looked.

Then the red-headed man came in and said he guessed it was going to rain, and went out again. As it had been pouring for half an hour his observation struck home. The young man wished to himself that he had such a father-in-law and Miss Carrie wished to herself that he would come to the Boston weather bureau and run the weather for a while.

Then the young man consulted his watch. The girl wished it would stop with a bang, and she walked over to one of the two windows to see if the cow still stood out on the marsh. He walked over to the other to see if the haystack still stood upright or had a Pisa tower lean to it. Silence for 20 minutes. The two could almost hear more rust gathering on the stove. Then, all of a sudden, Miss Carrie gave way. She had been wanting to cry about something for three weeks past. The something had come. There were tears and sobs.

"What's—what's the matter?" asked the young man.

"You are!" she answered fiercely.

"How am I—I—?"

"You know. Here I've been for a whole week, and you haven't—haven't even spoken to me! No, you haven't, and I'm ready to tell you what I think of you!"

"But, you know—you know—!" he faltered.

"Of course, I know! Was it my business to come up and speak to you first? You knew I was impatient. You knew I was lonesome. You knew I had nowhere to go. And—and you just walked and walked and walked, and you wouldn't even look at me. Where are your manners, sir? Are you a stick of wood or a young man?"

"But I flirted with a girl once and she froze me," lamely protested the young man.

"But am I that girl? Are all girls alike? Did that girl have to wait five or six weeks at an old junction? I—I don't want to flirt. I want to talk—just talk. I want to know when that old train is coming—when it's going to stop raining—what time it is—if the curl has come out of my hair in this dampness, and lots and lots more! Why, if you hadn't been a chump—I mean if you had been a talker, we might have had a real long visit and I could have told you all about my Aunt Sarah."

It wasn't too late to make amends. The young man hitched nearer and began to talk, and half an hour later when the red-headed man came in to say that the train had concluded to be two additional hours late, the couple gave him no attention and he went to the house and said to his wife:

"Well, they've took to each other at last, and I just heard him ask her if she would correspond. If it ain't a marriage within a year then I'll dye my hair and grow chin-whiskers."

Insufficient Food Causes Sickness.

Many persons, says a well-known doctor, though not actually sick keep below par in strength and general tone, and he is of the opinion that fasting during the long interval between supper and breakfast, especially the complete emptiness of the stomach during sleep, adds greatly to the amount of emaciation, sleeplessness and general weakness we so often meet.

It is logical to believe that the supply of nourishment should be somewhat continuous, especially in those who are below par, if we would counteract their emaciation and lower degree of vitality, and as bodily exercise is suspended during sleep, with wear and tear correspondingly diminished, assimilation and nutritive activity continue as usual, the food furnished during this period adds more than is destroyed and increased weight and improved general vigor are the results.

Joining India and Ceylon.

The linking of India and Ceylon by railway is again under discussion. There is said to be no serious engineering difficulty connected with the bridging of the Paumben channel, nor at the south end of the line, for the island of Mannar is already practically attached to Ceylon. But between the southern end of the island of Rameswaram and the northern end of the island of Mannar, there is a distance of about 38 miles, marked by an almost continuous coral reef, either covered with shallow water or rising above the level of the sea in numerous coral islets—the "stepping-stones" of Adam's bridge—to be bridged.

The man who tries to paint the town red has nothing great or new in a color scheme.

POULTRY NOTES.

On cold nights the hens should have extra protection.

More fowls die from bad air than from cold weather.

There is both pleasure and profit in fowls rightly managed.

Even the hen needs a balanced ration if she is to lay well.

This is the lantern season. Be sure you use a good, safe one.

It is easier to keep chickens well than to make them well.

Roots make a good substitute for green feed in the winter.

Fill the hen's crop right if you would have her fill the egg basket.

If the boys are allowed to help plan the year's work they will be better satisfied.

Winter eggs mean close application and careful handling and feeding, but it all pays.

Exercise is necessary all the year round. It must be enforced in the winter time.

Never allow two or more cocks to remain in the same inclosure with the hens during the winter.

One cock to ten hens is sufficient, and these should be separated until the breeding season begins.

One of the greatest problems that the turkey raiser faces is that of securing the eggs. Various people follow different methods.

The egg crop is said by an authority to be worth 60 per cent. of the poultry output and you know the poultry output is pretty large.

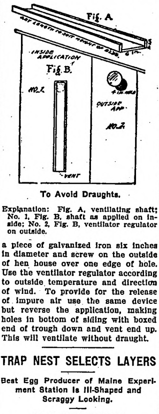
The farmer is best fitted for turkey raising because he has a place for them to roam and it is the nature of the turkey to demand a broad feeding ground.

If you keep guineas, turkeys and chickens, build separate houses for them. If you confine all three varieties in one yard during the winter it will prove disastrous.

VENTILATING THE HEN HOUSE

Illustration and Detailed Instructions for Providing Fresh Air Without Draughts.

Take a six-inch board, nail a three inch strip on either side and box up one end. Make a four-inch hole in siding, near the roof, place boxed end of trough over hole on the inside of building with vent end down and fasten by toe nailing or with cleats. This is for in-coming fresh air. Take a piece of galvanized iron six inches in diameter and screw on the outside of hen house over one edge of hole. Use the ventilator regulator according to outside temperature and direction of wind. To provide for the release of impure air use the same device but reverse the application, making holes in bottom of siding with boxed end of trough down and vent end up. This will ventilate without draught.



To Avoid Draughts.

Explanation: Fig. A, ventilating shaft; No. 1, Fig. B, shaft as applied on inside; No. 2, Fig. B, ventilator regulator on outside.

TRAP NEST SELECTS LAYERS

Best Egg Producer of Maine Experiment Station Is Ill-Shaped and Scraggy Looking.

(By MILLER PURVIS.)

When James Dryden was in charge of the poultry department of the Utah experiment station he photographed a lot of hens and asked about a dozen men who were presumably experts to look the photographs over and select the best layers, giving their reasons for making the selections.

Then he trap-nested those hens for a long time and compared the records with the selections, and out of a desire to protect the experts declined to publish the figures in connection with the name.

The writer hereof was one of the alleged experts, and he selected just half of the good layers, and also selected some of the poorest as being good ones. The only consolation I ever got out of the private report was that my selections were as good as those of any other "expert."

Before me lies the photograph of a Plymouth Rock hen that laid 251 eggs in a year at the Maine experiment station, and she appears to be about the scraggiest, ill-shaped hen in the lot, while another picture of a Wyandotte hen shows her to be a beauty in shape, but her record shows that she laid just six eggs in a year.

When it comes to egg type it doesn't exist. The trap nest is the only way to select the best layers, although good ones may be selected if we know how to do it.

HOW TO MANAGE INCUBATOR

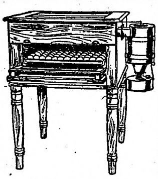
Use Only One of Good Substantial Make and Follow Instructions Exactly.

(By R. M. COOPER.)

The essentials in running an incubator are: (1) To keep the eggs at a proper temperature (103 degrees on a level with the top of the eggs). (2) To give the eggs a steady current of pure air. (3) To cause the evaporation of moisture from the eggs at a normal rate. (4) To prevent the eggs from resting too long in one position.

The lamp should be of the best material and the wick of sufficient width that the temperature may be maintained with a low blaze.

The most satisfactory place for the lamp is at the end of the machine, outside of the case. The method of getting the heat from the lamp to the eggs may be by a tank of hot water or by a circulation of warm air.



Incubator Recommended.

The first method has in the past been the more common. The tank of hot water retains the heat and the eggs are less subject to sudden variations in temperature.

The ventilation of an incubator is of vital importance. The rate of evaporation must also be considered. Eggs lose much of their water during incubation. If the evaporation varies much from the normal amount good hatches cannot be secured.

The rate of evaporation is determined by three things: the temperature, the humidity, and the circulation of the air. Theoretically it would be best to supply air at a given rate and containing a certain per cent. of moisture, but in the commercial incubator such an arrangement is impractical.

The most practical system of controlling evaporation is a system of forced ventilation, in which the air is heated around the lamp flue and passed through the egg chamber at a rate determined by ventilators in the bottom of the machine.

With this system no effort is made to supply moisture to the air, the rate of evaporation being governed wholly by the rate of air circulation.

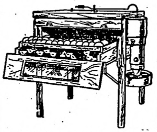
Turning the egg is not the work that many imagine it to be. It is not necessary that the egg be turned with absolute precision and regularity.

An elaborate device for this work is useless. The trays will need frequently to be removed and turned around or shifted, and the eggs can be turned at this time by lifting out a few on one side of the tray and rolling the others over.

The person to run the incubator is the first condition of its success. A good incubator requires attention twice a day. One person should give this attention, and must give it regularly and carefully.

The farmer's wife or some younger member of the family can often give more time and interest to this work than can the farmer.

The best location for an incubator is a cool, dry cellar. The next choice would be a room in the house away from the fire or from windows.



Incubator and Brooder Tray.

Drafts of air blowing on the machine are especially to be avoided. Not only do they affect the temperature directly, but cause the lamp to burn irregularly, and this may result in fire.

The size of incubators which can be profitably used will depend upon the number of hens kept for brooding purposes.

Cut Clover as Chicken Feed.

There are many that use clover hay cut fine in a cutting box and then softened by pouring boiling water over it, or steaming it. This makes an excellent filling feed, in addition to grain or other feed, and fowls will eat it with a relish. Poultry raisers who have access to the haymow where clover is fed to other stock can gather up the fine parts, such as chaff and the heads. They thus have the best thing to be found, almost, and it is all ready to feed, needing no preparation.

Air and Sunlight.

In poultry house construction two very essential things to be considered are fresh air and sunlight. The sunlight is especially valuable in the wintertime for it assists in making the house warm and cheers the fowls. Admit all the sunlight possible in the winter time.

Burns
Through and
Through

Edges and all
That is the way
Fuel should burn
Coal doesn't do it
It burns up the middle
Leaving the edges
The fire goes out
Then you have ashes
And coal to sift

Buy
Milwaukee
Solvay
Coke

"The Fuel without a Fault"

Burns through and through
No ashes to sift
No clinkers to remove
An economical fuel
Heat element of coal
Saves twenty per cent
Starts quickly, lights quickly
No smoke nor soot
Regular hard coal sizes
Take a load home
You will like it

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke—all sizes—ask your dealer, and write for interesting booklet of coke information to

Pickands, Brown & Co.
Colby-Abbot Bldg.
Milwaukee, Wis

Buy
Milwaukee
Solvay
Coke

"The Ideal Domestic Fuel"

She Had Noticed It.

Mrs. Knicker—They say the purchasing power of a dollar has diminished.

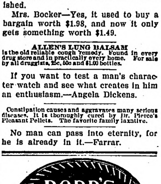
Mrs. Bocker—Yes, it used to buy a bargain worth $1.98, and now it only gets something worth $1.49.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM
is the old reliable cough remedy. Found in every drug store and in practically every home. For sale by all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.

If you want to test a man's character watch and see what creates in him an enthusiasm.—Angela Dickens.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

No man can pass into eternity, for he is already in it.—Farrar.



Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—harsh—unnecessary. Try
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS
Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature.
Brent Good

Hay's Hair-Health
Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to Its Natural Color and Beauty. Stops its falling out, and positively removes Dandruff. Is not a Dye. Refuse all substitutes. $1.00 and 50c. Bottles by Mail or at Druggists.
Send 10c for large sample Bottle FREE
Philo Hay Spec. Co., Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

EX-BANDIT DEFIANT

Emmett Dalton Hands Hot Talk to Governor.

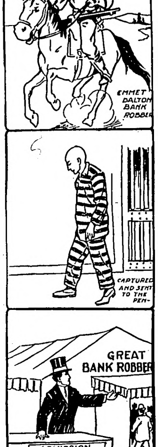
Kansas Executive Threatens to Send the Former Robber Back to Prison for Running a Nickel Show.

> "Emmett Dalton has no business to be going around the country giving a bank robbery picture show. He has broken his parole, and if he's not careful I'll send him back to the penitentiary."—W. R. Stubbs, Governor of Kansas.
>
> "I'm not here to be awed by any petty politician. Gov. Stubbs is a showman like myself and likes to keep in the public eye. It's all bosh and I defy any man to imprison me for breaking my parole."—Emmett Dalton, Ex-Bank Robber.

Kansas City, Kan.—A lively controversy between the governor of Kansas and Emmett Dalton, the last of the famous Dalton gang, has resulted from the insistence of Dalton on giving moving picture exhibitions of a bank robbery, accompanied by a realistic lecture and advice to young men not to stray from the straight and narrow path.

Gov. Stubbs says Dalton ought to be in prison. Dalton virtually invites the governor to go to blazes.

The man who smashed two political machines and outwrestled the Demon Rum found himself defied by the one-time outlaw and bank robber.



EMMET DALTON BANK ROBBER
CAPTURED AND SENT TO THE PEN-GREAT BANK ROBBER
ADMISSION 5¢
NOW RUNNING A MOVING PICTURE SHOW

Incidents in Dalton's Life.

Dalton and his wife, who, by the way, have adopted two orphan children to bring up, were touring Kansas towns with great success, crowds flocking to hear the former bank robber tell of such adventures as the raid on the Coffeyville bank, which led to Jim Dalton's capture and the surrender of Emmett, who gave himself up rather than leave his wounded brother to captors who, for all he knew, would hang him on the spot.

Gov. Stubbs says Dalton is out on parole, and he will send him back to serve his time out. Dalton says the governor is "talking through his hat."

Too Uncertain.

"No," said the thoughtful thinker, "I don't think much of wireless telegraphy."

"Why not?" queried his friend.

"Well," answered the t. t., "if I happened to go broke away from home, and had to telegraph for funds, I wouldn't feel safe in trusting to the wireless system. Even the real wire would be uncertain enough."

His Specialty.

The One—He can't be much of an actor. I never saw his name on the bill boards.

The Other—No; but I understand it appears on a good many board bills.

Trebly Surprised.

"Do you know anything about this reported double of Mr. Jaggers?"

"Not a single thing."

How often do you eat this food?

A short time ago there appeared in the columns of one of the prominent magazines an article on building brain and muscle by the proper selection of the foods you eat.

A good many people were surprised to find oatmeal placed at the top of the list of foods recommended; but if the article had appeared in an English or Scotch paper every reader would have expected to see first place given to good oatmeal.

As a matter of fact Great Britain and Europe come to us for tremendous quantities of Quaker Oats because it represents to them perfect food, being the richest in flavor and best in cleanliness and purity, of all oatmeals.

Americans should eat more Quaker Oats; the results would soon show themselves in improved conditions of health and strength. 55

A Vast Difference.

"Why's a bachelor a bachelor?"

"It depends; but it is seldom for the same reason that an old maid's an old maid."—Judge.

The Perverse Sex.

"Hinkley's got a wonderful head. All his woman readers are simply wild over that serial love story he is running in the Daily Stunt."

"How did he clinch 'em?"

"Why, he printed the last chapter first."

Does He Love Anybody?

Von Moltke had some few human failings. He loved his wife devotedly, but conquered his alma mater, Denmark, even after she had educated him for the military service out of her poor, stingy pocket. But Kitchener is a machine man only. He loves neither man nor woman. His spear has never known a brother, as its sharp point has hewn asunder the bodies and souls of the sons of women.—Boston Post.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Why He Was Lonesome.

Tommy, whose varying points of view are illustrated by the Farm Journal, had not yet learned the Golden Rule. Neither have a good many of his elders.

"I should like, Tommy," said his father, "that you might find some boy to play with you. Now what's the matter with Johnny Jenkins and the little Dobbs boy?"

"Pooh! Why, they're a whole year younger than I am," said Tommy, contemptuously "I couldn't play with them!"

"Well there's Jack Spear and Willie Harlow. Won't they do?"

"Yes, but they're a year old than I am," said Tommy, wistfully, "so the mean things won't play with me."

Helping the Minister.

A Scotch preacher had in his congregation an old woman who was deaf. In order to hear the sermon each Sunday, this old lady would seat herself at the foot of the pulpit stairs. One day the sermon was about Jonah, and the preacher became very rhetorical.

"And when the sailors threw Jonah overboard," he said, "a big fish swallowed him up. Was it a shark that got 'im? Nay, my brethren, it was ne'er a shark. Was it a swordfish that eat him? Nay—"

"It was a whale," whispered the old lady excitedly.

"Hush, Biddie," said the preacher, indignantly. "Would ye tak' th' word of God out o' yer ane meenister's mouth?"—Success Magazine.

SHE QUIT

But It Was a Hard Pull.

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did an Ohio woman. She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not, and could not quit drinking it, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

"I was scarcely able to be around, had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it. For months I never went to bed excepting to get up in the morning. I felt as though I was liable to die any time.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally one time it came over me and I asked myself what's the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee and got some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you, that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I now like better than the old coffee.

"One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework, and have done a great deal beside."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

We Will Pay You $500 in Gold To Name Our New Corn

Shakespeare says there is nothing in a name, but John A. Salzer says A GOOD NAME IS WORTH A FORTUNE. He backs up his statement by offering you $500.00 in gold to name his wonderful, long-kerneled corn, pictured in life size at the left on this page.

A prominent Agricultural Expert, on seeing this new corn, exclaimed:

"Salzer, you have startled the Agricultural World in discovering this most remarkable breed of corn!"

Indeed, it is the most remarkable corn ever seen by mortal eye.

But not a bushel of it is for sale. For there is not one-tenth enough in existence to fill the tremendous orders that will pour in when this new corn goes on the market.

Next year we may have enough to sell. Right now the best anybody can do is to obtain a sample package—enough to grow ½ bushel of seed for 1911. You are mighty welcome to a sample. Please send 8c in stamps to pay mailing charges.

* * * * *

The thing that puzzles us is, WHAT ARE WE GOING TO NAME OUR NAMELESS CORN?

Mr. Salzer will not be content with anything but a slashing, smashing good name. So he offers $500 in gold to the seed-buyer who hits upon the most suitable name.

We want you, reader, to help us out. Name this corn, won't you? It does not cost a penny to use the corn-naming coupon below. Fill it out, send it to-night and be a candidate for the $500 cash prize.

THE JUDGES

We are fortunate in securing three of the most capable and prominent men in Wisconsin to sit as Judges in our big corn-naming contest. They are Prof. R. A. Moore, Wisconsin State Agricultural College; Hon. J. J. Esch, Congressman from Wisconsin; Hon. Robt. Calvert, U. S. Customs, La Crosse.

These eminent men will weigh carefully the name you suggest, and, if it is most suitable, you will get the $500 prize. No matter who you are or where you live, you will be given a fair, square opportunity to land the money.

Fill out the free corn-naming coupon with pencil or pen as you please, but be sure to give your complete home address.

Salzer's Catalogue

It's the most original seed book published, and is gladly mailed to intending purchasers free; or remit 10c and get lots of remarkable farm seed samples, including Billion $ Grass, Alfalfa, Speltz, etc., worth a little farm to get a start with, or send 18c and we add a package of Nameless Corn.

BILLION $ GRASS

SALZER'S BILLION DOLLAR GRASS

Positively the greatest grass of the century. Sown when the ground is thoroughly warm, it will produce from two to four crops of hay the first season, yielding all the way from 10 to 15 tons per acre. It is prodigiously prolific.

It requires 20 lbs. seed per acre.

Price: Salzer's Superior, 20 lbs., $1.75; 50 lbs. $3.00; 100 lbs., $5.50.

Salzer's 20th Century, 20 lbs., $2.25; 50 lbs. $5.00; 100 lbs., $8.50.

We commend our 20th Century strain as the purest, we believe, on earth.

ALFALFA

Pronounced Absolutely Pure, No Weeds.

Largest growers of Clover, Timothy and Grasses, Oats, Barley and Potatoes in America.

EX-GOV. HOARD, OF WISCONSIN, from 30 acres sown to Salzer's 20th Century Alfalfa, harvested within 24 weeks after seeding $2500 worth of magnificent hay, or at the rate of $83.33 per acre.

Salzer's Alfalfa Clover will produce a crop on any farm in America where timothy will grow. It is famed for its stubborn hardiness and prodigal vigor.

Price, 20th Century (Pure Seed)—sow 20 lbs. per A.—20 lbs., $4.90; 100 lbs., $22.00.

POTATOES

100,000 Bus. Pedigree Seed Potatoes.

Largest Growers Seed Potatoes in America, yielding from 150 to 600 bushels per acre for each and every acre you plant. Price range from $2.00 to $4.00 per Barrel.

No other Seed House has kept in such close touch with State Agricultural Colleges as the John A. Salzer Seed Co. This great Seed House specializes in the pedigreed varieties of seed that are brought forth by State Colleges of Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, the Dakotas and all other Agricultural Colleges in the Middle West.

Test Yield 304 Bus. Per Acre
REJUVENATED WHITE BONANZA OATS

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO.

182 S. 8TH STREET LACROSSE, WIS.

Here is a joy collection, beating the world, composed of 10,000 kernels of the richest, juiciest, tenderest seeds.

16¢ SEED BARGAIN

1500 Each, Lettuce, Turnip, Rutabaga.
1000 Each, Onion, Celery, Carrot.
1000 Rarest Radishes, alone worth 16 cents!
100 Each, Parsley, Melon, Tomato.
1200 Brilliant Flower Seeds, 50 Sorts.

In all 10,000 kernels, including big catalog, all postpaid, only 16c in stamps.

Above collection of 10,000 kernels of richest, finest, most delicious vegetable and brilliantly beautiful flower seed, will furnish all summer long, BUSHELS and BUSHELS of vegetables and basket after basket of exquisitely beautiful flowers, ALL FOR 16c POSTPAID and, if you send 22c POSTAGE, we will add a package of our corn Prodigy, for which we are seeking a name. You will be greatly surprised at the quantity of vegetables you can grow from this 16 cent seed collection.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., 182 So. 8th St., La Crosse Wis.

FREE Corn-Naming Coupon

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO.
182 South 8th St.
La Crosse, Wis.

Gentlemen:—Please send me your Free 1910 Seed Catalogue.

Whose Seeds Have You Used? ________

For your new corn I suggest this name ________

My Name ________ Would you be willing to try Salzer's Seeds? ________

P. O. ________

R. F. D. ________ State ________

Do you wish a sample packet of the corn which we offer you $500 to name? ____ (If you do be sure to enclose 8c to pay mailing charges. However, you need not have sample to name the corn.

Meaning of Cemetery.

It is not correct to say that "cemetery" means the "city of the dead." The word is from the Greek "Koimeterion," meaning sleeping place, not the place of the dead. There is nothing in the thinking that it was originally intended to convey the idea that the departed were really dead any more than there is in the old Hebrew term for cemetery—"Bethaim"—the house of the living.

Comparison Shunned.

"You didn't cry at all at the matinee."

"No," answered the reposeful girl; "I couldn't think of such a thing."

"But the young woman with you wept copiously."

"Of course. Her lace handkerchiefs are ever so much more elegant than mine."—Washington Star.

Distemper

In all its forms, among all ages of horses and dogs, cured and others in the same stable prevented from having the disease with Spohn's Distemper Cure. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 500,000 bottles sold last year. $.50 and $1.00. Good druggists, or send to manufacturers. Agents wanted. Write for free book. Spohn Med. Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

The Apology of Adam.

Adam had just blamed it on the woman.

"There wasn't any tariff," he explained.

Herewith all agreed he had done his best.

IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND ANYTHING better for sideache, backaches or stitches than Perry Davis' Painkiller. Get the large size, it is the cheapest. At all druggists, 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

Commonplace though it may appear, this doing of one's duty embodies the highest ideal of life.—Smiles.

Fatal Course.

A matron who was visiting her former home city, and was under full headway with the seemingly endless string of questions usual in such a case.

"And your sister's daughter Violet?" she asked.

"Violet is married," the friend replied.

"Indeed! My! How time does fly. Happily married, I trust?"

"Oh, dear, no! My sister always humored her, you know," was the response, "and the poor child was permitted to marry the man she was in love with!"—Sunday Magazine of the Cleveland Leader.

Free to Our Readers.

Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago, for 48-page Illustrated Eye Book Free. Write all about Your Eye Trouble and they will advise as to the Proper Application of the Murine Eye Remedies in Your Special Case. Your Druggist will tell you that Murine Relieves Sore Eyes, Strengthens Weak Eyes, Doesn't Smart, Soothes Eye Pain, and sells for 50c. Try It in Your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Scaly Eyelids and Granulation.

A Benefactor.

"Are you doing anything for others?" asked the philanthropist.

"Sure," answered Mr. Crosslots, "I make a garden every day for the benefit of my neighbors' chickens."

An Idle Threat.

Son—No, sir, father, I absolutely refuse to go to work.

Father—Careful, boy; don't you make such idle threats to me.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

It is easy to offend people who have no use for you.

THE HOME-FOLKS KNOW BEST.

We Studied eczema and skin diseases for years. Then for 8 years we sold our remedy where we could watch its work Personally, and make improvements. Now you have the result in

Stub-Roo REMEDIES

Ask the people of Duluth and Superior about us. If you're a sufferer hundreds of them want to know your address. For 15 years Mrs. F. F. Campan, 1329 Minnesota Ave., Duluth, suffered from salt rheum. Stub-Roo Liquid cured her permanently. "Not One Known Failure in 8 Years."

If your druggist doesn't happen to carry it, for $1.00 we'll send you a bottle, express prepaid.

Stub-Roo Medical Co.
Duluth, Minn.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES
In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION, 554 W. Adams St., Chicago

TAKE A DOSE OF

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS

It will instantly relieve that racking cough. Taken promptly it will often prevent Asthma, Bronchitis and serious throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed safe and very palatable.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:

"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada will continue."

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with its Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming."

Iowa contributed largely to the 70,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of

$170,000,000.00

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts, 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.

(Use address nearest you.) (3)

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE

PLANTEN'S TRADE MARK C & C OR BLACK CAPSULES

SUPERIOR REMEDY URINARY DISCHARGES ETC

DRUGGISTS OR BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF 50c

H. PLANTEN & SON, 93 HENRY ST BROOKLYN N.Y.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

COURAGE THAT WAS BULLET-PROOF

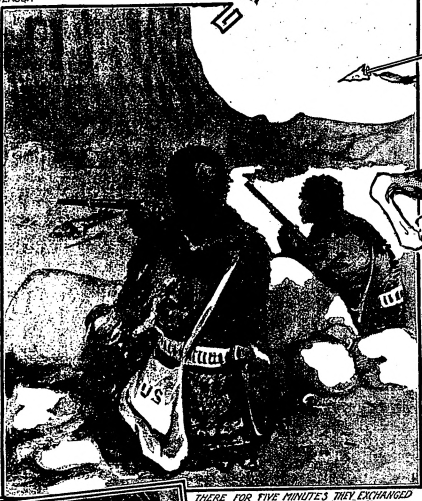
BY EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT BY W. A. PATTERSON

SOME of the veteran non-commissioned officers of the army have twice as many stories up their sleeves as they have service stripes on them. An old sergeant who has been doing duty at Fort Myer recalls occasionally to his comrades with a warmth of admiration and sympathy in his voice the devotion to duty of Hans Mueller, who years ago was a trumpeter in the Third cavalry.

Hans was more or less of a butt for the jokes of the men of his troop. He took all kinds of jibes with a good nature that was as perfect as it was stolid. The trumpeter knew more about music than he did about muskets. When for awhile he tried what the other men called straight soldiering he was continually getting tangled up with his equipments and on several occasions at skirmish drill he came within an ace of shooting himself. His comrades told Hans that as long as he confined his efforts to killing himself they would offer no strenuous objection, but that if he got real careless and shot the head off some one else he must look out for trouble. As a matter of fact, he did one day come pretty close to putting a bullet through the heart of Sergeant Peter Nelson, who forthwith thrashed Hans in an approved style. Capt. Roberts called Hans "gross" and said that he must stick to his trumpet.

The edict of his chief made Hans feel badly. He blew the whole scale of calls, from reveille through fatigue, recall and drill to taps, but his soul wasn't in his music. Down deep in Hans' soul there came a thought that somehow he was not like other men. The smartness of appearance which characterized Sergeant Nelson, Corporal Brady and a score of privates he knew could never be his. There was lacking in his makeup that something which gives dash to a soldier. Hans used to fall over his feet in a must unmilitary way and his hands were never in their proper places. There was one thing, however, that could be said of him—he always tried to obey orders implicitly. He generally blundered a number of times while making the attempt, but the intent was right and that covers a multitude of sins much more serious in nature than mere blunders.



THERE FOR FIVE MINUTES THEY EXCHANGED SHOTS WITH THE REDS.

TYPICAL MEMBERS OF THE UTE TRIBE

The Third cavalry was in the Wyoming country in the Elkhorn creek region. There had been a good deal of trouble with the Nez Perces and L troop had been kept on the jump most of the time for a month. L troop was Hans' outfit. There had been one constant succession of scoutings. It had been necessary to send small squads in half a dozen different directions at one and the same time. The trumpeter had been forced to stay with the main body, which was not a very big main body at that, at all times. He had been in everything in which the troop was engaged, but the idea of sending Hans out on a reconnaisance where coolness and the subtlety of the devil were necessary for safety was the last thing that ever entered the head of the troop commander.

One day, however, one of the coldest days of the second winter month, it became necessary to send a scouting party to investigate the rumor of the approach of a band of savages. Now it happened that the whole band was fagged out, and this in a nutshell is the reason why Hans Mueller found himself for the first time in his life in a position of acute responsibility. He was ordered by Capt. Roberts to proceed with Sergeant Nelson and two privates northwest until something was "felt" or until the sergeant was satisfied that a wrong report had been turned into the camp.

When the little body set out the fatigue of the individual members of the troop showed that it was not, so to speak, strong enough to keep these same individuals from giving Hans a send-off. Hans had a carbine and a revolver. His trumpet was hanging up on a peg. One of the bystanders said to the sergeant in command, "Look out for Hans if you happen to get in a scrimmage. The first thing you know he'll forget himself and he'll try to blow 'retreat' on his carbine. You may lose one man if Hans puts his mouth to the wrong end of the barrel."

Then they said a few other things to Hans. He was told to be sure not to get his canteen mixed up with his cartridge belt and to make sure that he took note of the landmarks on the way out, so he could get back to camp in a hurry if he happened to hear an Indian shoot off a gun. Hans took all this well enough, because the thought of actually going out on a scout was sufficient to knock all other things out of his head, resentment along with them. Sergeant Nelson, who was an old and tried campaigner, turned to his men and said: "We are getting near the place where we may expect to see something." Then he spoke seriously to Hans: "Mueller," he said, "you're not half as bad, perhaps, as the troopers make out, but I tell you honestly that I'm kind of afraid of you when it comes to a pinch. Do the best you can and don't run. As a matter of fact I think Jim Crosby was pipe-dreaming when he brought the rumor of reds in this vicinity into camp, but you may have a chance to see trouble, and if you do, please stick."

That was a pretty tough thing to have to say to a soldier with Uncle Sam's uniform on his back. Stick! Mueller's face went almost white under realization that the true significance of that admonition was that the sergeant had a pretty strong fear in his heart that this trumpet tooter was a coward. Stick! He would show them if he was only given a chance.

Sergeant Peter Nelson was an old and tried campaigner, indeed, but that day he had made a mistake. He led his three men straight into an ambush. There was a score of painted Nez Perces straight across their track. The Indians had very little cover, but they used it so artfully that the old sergeant had actually thought that the bit of embankment and the few scattered bowlders did not offer cover enough to conceal a jack rabbit.

The first intimation of the Indians' presence was a volley. Sergeant Nelson went to the ground with a wound in his side. One of the privates, shot through the shoulder and leg, fell with him. The two men crawled behind a couple of rocks and secured temporary shelter. At the savage volley Hans Mueller's heart went to his throat. With the other private, who, like Hans, was unhit, he fell back about 40 yards and went behind an adequate cover. There for five minutes they exchanged shots with the reds, who, in accordance with Indian custom, would not charge across the open, but depended rather upon being able to pick off the soldiers and then to go forward without danger and take the scalps. Hans Mueller found that he could use his carbine. His heart went down in his throat. He looked around him and saw that there was some chance of holding the savages off for hours. Out beyond he saw his two stricken comrades. They were not dead. He knew that because he saw them move and occasionally weakly raise themselves and send a shot in the direction of the red foe. Hans said to himself, "Those men must be brought back here." Then he handed his carbine to his comrade and with it his belt and ammunition. "You may need these," he said, "if those fellows hit me." Then he jumped over the rock in front of him and with his long, shambling, ungainly stride he made for the side of Sergeant Nelson. The Indians pumped at him. The balls whizzed by his head, cut his clothes in three places and spat spitefully at his feet. Telling Nelson to grab his carbine, Mueller raised the sergeant in his arms and made for back cover. He dropped the sergeant under the shadow of the rock and then stood on his feet.

"Where are you going, Mueller?" said Sergeant Nelson.

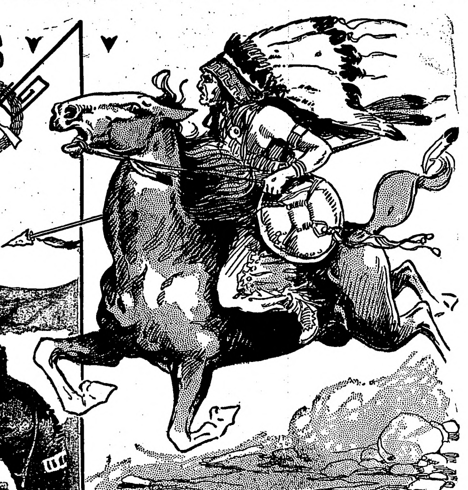
"I'm going after Dodds," said Mueller, and he cleared the little rock to the front once more.

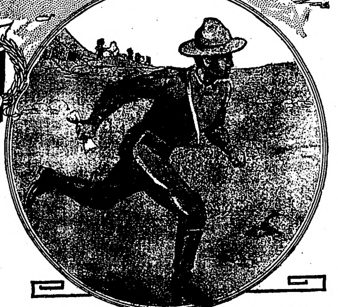
"God bless you, Mueller," was what he heard above the crackling of the rifles to his front. He reached the side of the wounded Dodds, raised him and started back with him across the strip of hell. Twice he staggered, as volleys rang out, but he reached the side of his comrades and placed Dodds between Nelson and the unwounded trooper.

Then Hans Mueller fell dead.

Relief came to the surviving cavalryman. The two wounded lived. In the little cemetery at a post in the far northwest there is a headstone which is inscribed:

"Hans Mueller, Trumpeter and Soldier. His courage was bullet proof."





TOOK A COURSE LIKE THE FLIGHT OF A SNIPE

There passed through the gates of Fort Myer the other day a man with coal black face and snow-white hair. His bearing was military to a degree, notwithstanding the fact that he limped painfully. His shoulders were thrown back and his head erect and carried with a probably conscious air of pride. The limp in the gait, however, was so marked that an observer, if he gave the subject any thought at all, would know that this negro would never run a step in his life.

The name of the Fort Myer visitor was and is Henry Johnson, one time of Troop K, Ninth United States cavalry. If certain of the soldier officers and enlisted men of the colored outfit of Uncle Sam had known that the thought that this limping ex-soldier would never run again had entered into an onlooker's mind, he probably would have said: "No, Johnson never will run again, but if he could have kept up the gait that he once showed these 100-yard sprinting records that we hear so much of in this day of sports would be headed by another and the name of the holder would be Henry Johnson."

There isn't the slightest doubt among cavalry officers who have long memories that the world's champion sprinter was lost to track fame when Henry Johnson, colored trooper went lame 25 years ago.

In the month of November, 1879, a band of Ute Indians surrounded a small command of United States regulars, composed for the greater part of Troop K, Ninth colored cavalry. There was for a while the heaviest kind of fighting, and at close quarters. Finally the reds retreated a little way, but still held their cordon of braves intact. The temporary withdrawal for a short distance did not give the troops a breathing spell, for they set to work at once to intrench. They succeeded, with their horses and impediments and by a vigorous use of the shovel, in forming and in throwing up a fairly strong defense bulwark. After this had been done small parties, under cover of the rifles of their comrades, went out to a considerable distance from the entrenchment and there dug rifle pits at intervals in a circle about the inner and stronger defense.

Into these well-covered rifle pits guards were dropped with a plentiful supply of ammunition and such little water and provender as could be spared. There was one man in each pit. They were absolutely protected from the front and they were put there to perform the usual useful duty expected where troops are thus besieged. Unless the Utes actually succeeded in getting into these pits, the men there were safer than were those behind the extemporized fortification in the center. After the pickets had been placed in the pits and the fatigue and posting parties had returned to the central point of defense, the Indians drew in. The red circle was drawn closer and closer and the bullets from the Ute rifles tore through the frail parts of the barricade and soldier after soldier was killed or wounded.

Three times the Indians were driven off, only to return again. They had lost heavily, but seemed to be roused to a maddened pitch that made them heedless of caution. For the fourth time they were sent hurtling backward and then there came the awful necessity of sending instructions to the men in the outlying pits.

The captain commanding was just about to give over all idea of attempting messenger communication because of the deadly nature of the errand, when Private Henry Johnson came up to him, saluted, and said that he would like to volunteer to make the round of the guards.

"You can't do it, Johnson," said his commanding officer. "It's death."

"Yes, I can, sah; I'm a sprinter. When they shoots at me running sideways 'round the ring they can't do nothing but cut daylight behind my back. I've beat everything in the regiment running and I beat everything in my state before I 'listed."

The result of this dialogue and some thought on the captain's part was that a moment afterward a blue-clad figure was darting in zigzag lines straight away from the barricade toward the first rifle pit. How that negro did run, notwithstanding the fact that he took a course like the flight of a snipe when it is first flushed. He simply tore. He had not gone 30 yards before a hundred feathered heads were seen raised and the faces below showing doubtless in sheer amazement at the sight of that flying figure. Then rifle after rifle spoke visiously, but Johnson, the sprinter, sped on. He reached the first pit unscathed and fell into it by the side of the guard. There he stayed long enough to "breathe" himself and to turn over his orders.

No one thought in the strain of that awful time to "hold a watch" on the sprinter. There never has been a doubt since that the world's records before and after were smashed. There were eight of the guard pits, and the race between each was but a repetition of the last, the Indians popping away all the while at the devoted messenger. Johnson left the seventh pit and started for the eighth. His pace showed no sign of abating. Some of the Indians, in following the circling course of the black, had closed in from left to right along the circumference of their own circle in order to mark the messenger's course more perfectly with their sights and shots. The result was a concentration of fire and Johnson, while speeding like a scared jack rabbit, suddenly stumbled and went to earth. He was up again like a flash and on he passed, but his step was lagging a little now. Once more he went down, then up again and once more haltingly and slowly for ten yards, then down again with his face in the sand, and then on for ten yards more, this time on his hands and knees, and then he rolled into the last rifle pit.

Everyone knows of the outcome of the Milk River Ute campaign. How the beleaguered men were relieved and of the march that was necessary to relieve them. Before those men, almost dying of thirst, would one of them go from the barracks to the sparkling river, they went in a mass to rifle pit eight and there picked up Johnson and carried him to the water. Henry Johnson, colored private of Troop K, had only three holes in him, but his sprinting days have been over for a quarter of a century. It is because the soldiers who saw Johnson run forgot to hold a watch on him that another man now claims the world's sprinting record.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

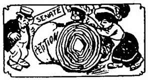
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1910. NO. 49.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Suffragists Plan to Charm the Senate



WASHINGTON.—The annual national convention of women suffragists, which will be held in Washington the week of April 14, will be the most notable gathering of its kind in point of numbers and personnel that ever has taken place in this country.

Never before have women of such wealth and social position journeyed to the national capitol to press their cause. Their presence will be celebrated by Washington society with a round of social functions.

There is another and more potent reason for the fair suffragists wearing their most elaborate costumes. For the first time the women delegates will appear in person before the senate. They will present to the upper house of congress the giant petition for which names have been gathered for several years from every state in the union. The petition praying for universal suffrage contains more than 1,000,000 names.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Equal Franchise society, will be one of the delegates. Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont will be one of the representatatives of the Political Equality association.

Many suffragists in New York have become greatly exercised over the recent meeting held by Mrs. Belmont at the Mount Olivet Baptist church, at which she took many negro women into her organization. It has caused many to speculate as to the possibility of enfranchising the negro women of the southern states. Many letters have been exchanged during the past week between the New York women and the suffragist workers in the south discussing the manner in which the colored women's vote can be eliminated "if we get the vote."

Monk Chases Longworth Dinner Guests

IF COL. ROOSEVELT is having any more thrilling adventures in Africa than a number of distinguished persons had in the dining room of his daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, in Washington, they think he owes it to his family to come home at once.

According to the tidings brought to the front by the society reporters, there was a monkey hunt at the Longworths that left the company duly impressed with the terrors of the jungle.

It appears that Representative and Mrs. Longworth were giving a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York. Along toward the close of the dinner the talk drifted to animals, and Mrs. Longworth described two pet monkeys she recently acquired. The guests expressed a desire to see the animals and Mrs. Longworth had the cage carried into the dining room.

In some way the door of the cage became unfastened and one of the monkeys escaped. It leaped to the center of the table, and, turning a handspring, climbed to the chandelier, where it hung by its tail and chattered at the company. The women shrieked and scrambled to their chairs, while the men fell over each other in trying to evolve masures of protection and at the same time capture the beast.

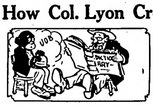
The monkey eluded the brave hunters with ease. It sprang from the chandelier to the sideboard, ran around the room three or four times, while the women and some of the men went rapidly out of the nearest doors. Then it vaulted into the plate rail, where it did a few stunts to the damage of much bric-a-brac. Finally it intrenched itself behind a jardiniere, where eventually it was captured.

When the monkey was restored to its cage and quiet had settled down over the dinner once more, Mrs. Bourke Cockran, who is visiting Gen. and Mrs. Clarence Edwards, expressed the opinion that there was something wrong with the construction of the nest provided for Mrs. Longworth's pets.

She had been in the Philippines and she thought she knew something about the building of homelike monkey nests. Cotton and soft grass were produced, and Mrs. Cockran proceeded to rearrange the monkey's home.

The beasts did not appreciate her efforts, however, and one of them bit her thumb. A physician examined the wound and said there would be no dangerous consequences.

How Col. Lyon Created a Federal Job



COL. CECIL LYON of Texas is a millionaire ranchman who plays politics for the fun of it, and who plays so well he is now credited with the ownership of the Republican party of Texas.

When Col. Lyon gets up out of a chair he opens up like a carpenter's rule, a section at a time. When he talks you can stay out in the next room and miss none of the story, for Col. Lyon is typical of his big state.

Col. Lyon sat in the Press club in Washington one evening and told of the job he got in Texas for a young gentleman of color who wanted to work for the government.

Lyon looked over the pay roll of employes at the federal building at home. There were no vacancies and most of the jobs had a long waiting list of applicants. Lyon looked abroad at the lists of employes in other federal buildings. He found a job he didn't know about.

It was the job of a char woman.

Col. Lyon looked it up in the dictionary and found that a char woman was one who polished doorknobs and things. There were plenty of knobs in the federal building back home, but his man was not a woman, and the dictionaries made no mention of char men.

This did not stop Col. Lyon of Texas. He created the office of char man, the only one in existence, so far as Washington knows, and the young man who wanted to work for the government is polishing knobs with great eclat.

Enough Useful Animals to Destroy Man

875,000 CAMELS
GOAT
WOULDN'T THAT MAKE YOU THIRSTY?

IF ALL the useful animals in the world were to organize themselves for revolt against the cruelties of man they would outnumber any human army that could be brought against them, even if every man, woman and child marched from the four corners of the earth to enlist.

The department of agriculture at Washington has issued a report showing that the number of useful animals more than equals the population of the earth.

Gen. Bellwether could organize his sheep into a division of 580,000,000, outnumbering the Chinese by more than 100,000,000. The horse could have a cavalry division of more than 95,000,000, with a corps of more than 7,000,000 mules and 9,000,00 jackasses to carry supplies to the front. About 100,000,000 goats could furnish milk, while 21,000,000 buffaloes could stamp out Spain man by man.

Meanwhile 2,000,000 camels could campaign in their familiar conditions of deserts and dry places and 900,000 hardy reindeer could sweep the northern climes.

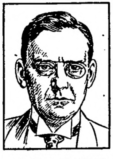
There are, as nearly as can be estimated, 1,500,000,000 useful animals in the world, including, in addition to those mentioned, enormous numbers of cattle and hogs.

The United States leads in the number of swine, with about 50,000,00—a third of all in the world. Australia leads with sheep—88,000,000, the United States being third with 57,000,000.

European Russia and the United States are about even on horses, with about 25,000,000 each; more than half the mules are here. British India is the principal habitat of the goat; there are 30,000,000 there. The camel is usually associated with Egypt, but but there are only 175,000 there, against 700,000 in Asiatic Russia.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

ELLIS, OHIO'S G. O. P. BOSS



Wade H. Ellis, "trust buster" and old foe of the Standard Oil Company, is going to boss the Republican party in Ohio. He's going to do it in the interests of President Taft.

Democratis say Ellis resigned his job as assistant to the attorney general of the United States to return to Ohio, where he was attorney general several years, because Gov. Harmon with each passing day is showing himself a dangerous contender for the highest office in the gift of the people. Be that as it may, Mr. Ellis has taken charge of the G. O. P. in the state that has a habit of producing presidents.

The decision of Mr. Ellis to leave the attorney general's office was reached at a conference in the White House with the president and several Ohio politicians.

As he was leaving the White House Mr. Ellis was stopped by a member of the Ohio delegation in the house, who heard the news of his resignation with surprise.

"What induced you to do it?" the member inquired.

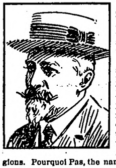
"Well, party expediency, largely. We are going to try to harmonize Ohio Republican factions."

"Harmonize!" exclaimed the Ohio statesman. "Isn't that rather an unhappy way to put it?"

Mr. Ellis looked puzled for a moment; then he laughed. "In view of Gov. Harmon's prominence, I suppose it is," he assented. "Probably I'd better say that we hope to 'unify' the factions."

Mr. Ellis says he wants it clearly understood that his resignation does not mean that he "desires or expects to be a candidate for any office whatever, either now or later; nor," he adds, "will any influence I may have be used for or against any candidate for a Republican nomination in Ohio, and I have no doubt such nominations will express the fair, free choice of the Republicans of the state."

RETURNS FROM ANT-ARCTIC



Had Dr. Jean M. Charcot succeeded in reaching the south pole his feat would have been far greater than that of Commander Peary, discoverer of the "top of the earth," for it is said there are many difficulties to overcome in the antarctic regions that are not found in the arctic.

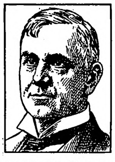
Dr. Charcot is a wealthy French scientist and a recognized explorer and France felt that the honor of discovering the "bottom of the world" had every chance of coming to her with a man so well equipped as Charcot making the attempt. But brief word has been flashed from Punta Arenas, the city farthest south on the South American continent, that Charcot had passed there on the Pourquoi Pas bound for home after failing to reach the south pole, although he has made some valuable discoveries in the antarctic regions. Pourquoi Pas, the name of Charcot's ship, in French means "Why not." Charcot left for the Antarctic in 1908 and was equipped with everything money could buy to help him find the pole.

There are no intelligent Eskimos in the Antarctic; no hardy dogs like the Eskimos have. There is little land that is not bleak and desolate. Walrus, narwhal, polar bear and smaller game like elder duck, ptarmigan and hare, are scarce at the south pole.

As opposed to the leads of water, which baffle north polar travelers, there is the huge, majestic ice barrier of the southernmost ocean.

There is nothing like this ice wall in all the world. Sheer and sharp it rises out of the ocean 300 feet high, its walls as smooth and as level as glass.

FOWLER, CANNON'S OLD FOE



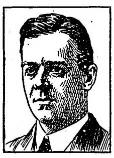
Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, whose latest move in his fight against "Uncle Joe" Cannon has been a proposition to enlarge the rules committee and leave the speaker off of it, has been camping hard on Uncle Joe's trail ever since 1906.

Representative Fowler, who was then chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, had a "bankers' bill" which he has said since, with considerable emphasis, would have prevented the panic of 1907.

The speaker controlled the rules committee, however, and he refused to listen to Fowler. After the panic Fowler, out of his long experience as chairman of the banking committee, suggested the "credit currency" plan, the use of cashiers' checks, clearing house certificates, etc. This saved the day. Fowler was suggested as a candidate for speaker himself last November. He in reply addressed a letter to each member of the house and in it suggested that " the house elect a board of managers, which shall be charged with that direction of legislation which is now assumed by the speaker."

Mr. Fowler represents the Fifth New Jersey district in the house and is one of the hardest workers in congress. He is a native of Illinois, born at Lena, November 2, 1852. He was graduated from Yale in 1876 and from the Chicago Law school in 1878. He was first elected to the fifty-fourth congress and has never been defeated for the office.

DIGS INTO CHICAGO GRAFT



Charles Edward Merriam, a University of Chicago political science professor, who "went into politics," became an alderman and then chairman of the "Chicago commission on city expenditures," is the leader of the investigation into charges of municipal graft, such as the alleged $45,000 shale rock steal of a city sewer contractor, "coal ring frauds," "smoke inspecting scandal," and other charges of graft alleged against the Chicago Fire Appliance Company, the Cummings Foundry Company, etc.

These companies and individuals, which have had dealings with the city and have been publicly charged with graft, will have a chance to explain to "the Merriam commission" just how much truth there is in these charges.

"Merriam is on the square and will give us an honest decision," is the sentiment often heard in Chicago.

Merriam has taken more than an academic interest in politics ever since he ceased to shine as a long distance runner at the State University of Iowa.

While at Columbia he made speeches in the first Low campaign. Afterwards he spent one year in Europe studying at Berlin and Paris and paying especial attention to the finances of the city of Berlin. He joined the political science department of the University of Chicago in 1900 as docent and has since written a volume on "The History of American Political Theories and Primary Elections."

The Merriam commission was created June 21, 1909, after a resolution providing for it had been introduced by the professor himself.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

What Comes in a Governor's Daily Mail

"I HAVE BEEN A DEMOCRAT FOR FIFTY YEARS AND HAVE HAD DYSPEPSIA FOR ALMOST THAT LONG"

INDIANAPOLIS.—Letters of all sorts arrive daily in the mails at the governor's office, some of them depressing, some of them mirth-provoking, and some of which for pure nerve quite take away the breath of the chief executive, whose experiences before becoming governor, he is wont to explain frequently, were confined lagely to the business of a country law office.

One of the "nervy" ones came recently from Monongahela, Pa.

"Dear sir," it ran. "I am a Democrat and have seen hard service both in the party and in the war. Just now I am in pretty hard lines and need some money. Please send me $100. You can either let me have it as a gift or I will pay it back when I get able."

"That fellow may be hard up," said the governor, "but he doesn't know what real financial hardship is. He ought to try to be governor of Indiana in these strenuous high price times on the salary the state pays."

The $100 was not sent.

Since a New York syndicate a short time ago published all over the country a feature story about the governor, in the course of which he said that he cured a long-drawn-out ailment (rheumatism) one time with a 50 cent bottle of medicine, the governor's mail has contained a large number of inquiries as to the name of the medicine. One from Kentucky runs:

"Dear Sir—I am a Democrat, like you are, and have been sick a long time. I think my ailment must be like that you had that you cured with a 50 cent bottle of medicine, and I wish you would let me know the name of it."

One from California said that the writer had no idea what the disease was that was cured, but that if the governor would send him the name the writer would try it on what ailed him. "I have been a Democrat for 50 years, and have had dyspepsia for almost that long," ran the letter.

"The writers seem to think," said the governor, "that what will cure one Democrat will cure another, and that Democrats are afflicted with only one kind of disease, whatever that is."

Foiled in a Plan to Bunco the Baby

BANK
LET'S OPEN IT UP. I NEED A NEW HAT

PITTSBURG.—When a certain pair of Pittsburg Newlyweds were honored by the arrival of their first baby they decided to give the little fellow a substantial start in life by establishing a savings account for him right from the day of his birth.

Accordingly a bank was obtained from one of the local savings institutions; one of the combination affairs that can be opened only by the bank officials.

After a time the parents began to speculate on how much baby might be worth, for it was regarded as quite certain that grandpa, being so well off, would not think of dropping in less a dollar each time, and Uncle Jeff, who was known as a great spender, would surely deposit no less than a half dollar, and both had been frequent contributors. Then look at the numerous quarters, dimes and nickels that the many uncles and aunties of Snookums must have dropped in, for none of them ever failed to remember the bank when they called. Must be anywhere from $20 to $30 in it, figured the parents.

A few days ago Snookums attained his first anniversary and it was decided to deposit the contents of the little bank in the big one downtown. Now just at this time mamma chanced to need a new hat and, papa being a bit short, it was decided to borrow some from Snookums till pay day.

"I want to deposit $10 of it," mamma told the bank teller, as she handed him the nickel-plated treasure box. "The balance I will take with me, please."

The teller turned the little knob this way and that, then opening the door, poured out the hoard on the window shelf. Then he carefully repressed a smile, while mamma, after the first gasp, devoted herself to savagely biting her lips while the contents were counted.

There were 347 pennies, four nickels and one dime.

Pastor Is Convinced Devil Is a Myth

TELL IT TO THE KING OF DENMARK

ST. LOUIS.—The Rev. Albert H. Jordan, pastor of the fashionable First Congregational church and bridegroom son-in-law of William H. Bixby, has been studying the biography of the devil, from Typnon of Egypt and Ahriman of Persia down to the witches of Salem, and has come to the conclusion that his satanic majesty, under all of his aliases, is more or less of a myth.

Dr. Jordan made this confession at a New Year "experience meeting" attended by about a dozen ministers of his denomination. Each pastor named the most interesting book he had read during the last year or related his most important experience.

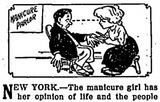
The young pastor, who recently returned from his honeymoon, excited the merriment of his brethren when he announced with all gravity that the most instructive book he had read during 1909 was, by odds, "The History of the Devil," by Dr. Paul Carus.

"This book taught me," persisted Dr. Jordan, seriously, "that there are not two principles in the world—a good and an evil one. There is only one, which is good.

"Dr. Carus treat of the dual worship which has obtained in almost all of the religions of the world, from the garden of Eden to the present day. Theology has had two phases, a worship of God and rites to deprecate the malice of the evil one.

"Devil worship is a relic of past ages. Ministers are no longer preaching of hell fire and damnation, but of the blessedness of life."

Some Philosophy of a Manicure Girl



NEW YORK.—The manicure girl has her opinion of life and the people who compose it. Sitting at her neat table, beside a wide window covered with Italian filet, she sizes up New York with a cool, dispassionate eye.

"Oh, yes," she said, in answer to an inquiry, "some of them get funny. What do I do? Well, at first I don't see it—I act thick, you know—and if that doesn't answer I look at 'em a moment so"—with a shriveling eye—"and, well, they wilt.

"The women always talk. I don't know what it is, but the very sight of my outfit and my little glass bowl of warm water and me, sittin' here quietly workin' and utterly at their mercy—well—they talk. They nearly always come to me from the shampoo room or the massage room, where they can't talk, you see, and I suppose I get what's been bottled up.

"And, say—do you know what stumps me most of all this year? No? Well—the furs! I never saw such furs as this winter. Why, you'd think they grew on trees! Some women wear three kinds at once. And another thing is the artificial flowers. They all wear 'em—nestling among the furs, you couldn't ever tell they weren't real—and, say—they're scented.

"Tips? Well, we don't call them tips. You see, we aren't waiters. Oh, yes. We take 'em, of course—when we get 'em. The men always do; the women almost never do. I suppose they think their entertaining talk takes the place of coin.

"It's a big town, this, ain't it—and it's a hard town. Oh, yes, I suppose there are some good people here—Oh, yes, I'm one to look on the bright side—but, say—the women get the worst of it, don't they—even in this free country. Why, if I lived in England I'd be one of them window smashin' suffringers myself."

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. · · MINN

WHAT IS HAZING?

A bill has been framed in the senate committe on military affairs prescribing regulations that shall govern the dismissal of West Point cadets for the practice of "hazing," and defining in explicit language what is meant by the term itself. It seems that the dictionary definitions have not proved satisfactory either to the senate committee or to the executive heads of the war department, and in lieu of a satisfactory translation of the comprehensive term it becomes necessary for the law givers to frame one for themselves. It is in many cases easier to offer an example than a synonym, says Philadelphia Ledger. Anyone knows "hazing" when he sees it, and every thoughtful person deplores the brutal disregard of another's feelings that is involved in the reprehensible practice. No definition would be complete that failed to take into consideration the fact that mental anguish is sometimes much more painful than physical sufferings. A man's—or boy's—mind may be hazed not less effectually than his body. In order to "haze" successfully it is not necessary to use instruments of torture. Some of the most brutal instances of hazing on record have been those in which the imagination of the chosen victim has been ingeniously assailed by the soul-harrowing dread of things that did not happen.

The figures showing the gold production of the world for 1909, while not complete, prove that the great output of recent years has been kept up. The actual production during 1908 was $443,434,527. The estimated total for 1909, based on official returns from the leading countries for 11 months, is $457,567,280, an increase of $14,132,753, or 3.2 per cent., over the preceding twelvemonth. The Transvaal in South Africa leads off, with $151,900,000 against $145,819,016 in 1908. The United States ranks second with $96,500,000 against $94,560,000. With one or two exceptions every country in the list produced more gold last year than in 1908. Further comparison shows that the gain has been in an almost unbroken ratio during the last 20 years, for which period there has been a fourfold gain in the world's supply. The figures have economic significance and study of them may serve to explain some of the changes that are being wrought in the world's monetary system.

The meanness of the short-measure trick is conspicuously exemplified in the report that consumers in New York city alone are annually cheated out of 14,000,000 quarts of milk for which they pay—and, according to recent evidence, pay exorbitantly—but which they do not receive because the bottles in which the milk is delivered are under full size. The milk sold in this manner goes for the most part to poor persons and furnishes a large proportion of the sustenance of children. Short measure in this instance therefore means robbing those whose lot is already hard enough and who have to pay heavily for every necessary of life. If there is not a method of reaching the conscienceless persons who perpetrate such despicable frauds certainly the law should remedy the defect.

A Russian bank has been started at Buenos Ayres, the capital of Argentina, and a line of steamships from St. Petersburg to South America is projected, owing to the large and increasing trade of Russia with that country. All the other leading European nations have an important commerce with South America, which is pushed with all the energy possible and with the application of every practicable method, including subsidized steamers, liberal exchange arrangements and the maintenance of well-stocked agencies in South America, with employes carefully trained for their duties, and with strict regard for South American tastes and desires in the character and quality of goods.

Even in this rushing age you can't blame a man for standing still when he is in the storm center of such formidable elements as a street car, a whirl of automobiles, a part of the flying squadron of motorcycles, trucks, carriages, bicycles and express wagons. Then to be ordered to move on by a big policeman with a stuffed club, the stuffing being of lead assaying better than 90 per cent., excuses thought confusion.

A waiter sometimes makes as much as $100 a week in tips. Assume that your man is one of that kind and tip him the remark that you really haven't anything worth his notice.

Mind your own business is a good motto, as a general thing; but an officeholder is expected to mind the people's business and not his own.

Here's hoping the meat boycott won't have a tendency to increase the number of holes in the cheese.

INDICT BEEF KINGS

BILLS CHARGING CONSPIRACY RETURNED BY NEW JERSEY GRAND JURY.

PACKERS TO BE ARRESTED

Six Corporations, Including National Packing Company, and 21 Individual Directors Residing in Chicago Kansas City and St. Louis Named.

New York.—When the grand jury of Hudson county filed a blanket indictment in Jersey City Friday charging a criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade, the heaviest blow yet struck against the beef trust by way of punishment for arbitrarily raising the price of meat and poultry was administered.

Six corporations, including the parent organization, the National Packing Company and 21 individual directors, were named in the conspiracy charge.

Most of the individuals indicted are millionaires of Chicago, Kansas City and St. Louis. Many of the names best known in the packing industry are included in the conspiracy charged. All will be arrested as soon as the authorities can locate them unless they surrender of their own accord. They will be extradited to Jersey City and held on bail for an early trial.

The corporations indicted are: The National Packing Company, Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., the Hammond Packing Company, the G. H. Hammond Company.

The individual directors indicted and liable on conviction to heavy fine and imprisonment are:

J. Ogden Armour, A. Watson Armour, Louis F. Swift, Edward F. Swift, Charles H. Swift, Edward H. Morris, Ira N. Morris, Arthur Meeker, Edward Tilden, L. A. Carter, Thomas E. Wilson, Thomas J. Connors, F. A. Fowler, L. H. Heyman, James E. Bathgate, Jr.; George H. Edwards, F. V. Cooper, Henry P. Darlington, D. E. Hartwell, L. B. Peterson, A. A. Fuller.

The grand jury is continuing its investigation into the storage of impure food in Jersey City cold storage plants and a large batch of indictments for that crime will probably be handed up next Tuesday.

Chicago.—The National Packing Company and ten subsidiary concerns will be indicted for violating the Sherman anti-trust law, according to a report in the federal building.

These indictments will be returned before either Judge Landis or Judge Carpenter within three weeks. Edwin W. Sims, district attorney, declined to confirm this when told that the matter had become public.

The concerns mentioned are the following:

G. H. Hammond Company, Michigan.

Anglo-American Provision Company, Illinois.

Omaha Packing Company, Illinois.

United Dressed Beef Company, New York.

St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision Company.

Western Packing Company, Denver.

Colorado Packing and Provision Company, Denver.

Plankington Packing Company, Milwaukee.

New York Butchers' Dressed Meat Company of New York.

Hammond Packing Company, Illinois.

The purpose of the government is to break up the National Packing Company and to put it entirely out of existence. Each company, as well as the parental concern, will be prosecuted and the maximum penalty will be asked. If this is granted then each concern will be fined at least $5,000.

MARDIZ GAINS BIG VICTORY

Insurgent Army in Nicaragua Is Practically Annihilated, Says Report, Hundreds Killed and Wounded.

Managua, Nicaragua.—The government reports a decisive victory over the insurgents at Tipitapa. Bulletins posted here Thursday announce that Gen. Chamorro's army practically has been annihilated.

The dead and wounded will number nearly 1,500, according to reports. The insurgents are said to have lost 1,100 and the government 400.

Train loads of wounded are being cared for in emergency hospitals.

The hospitals are surrounded by weeping women and relatives of the soldiers begging admittance. The scene throughout the city is pitiful in the extreme.

Despite the reports of disaster Gen. Chamorro is still uncaptured and the government is strangely apprehensive lest he appear with a new force at some unexpected point.

Will Vote March 3.

Washington.—The senate Thursday agreed upon Thursday, March 3, as the day when a vote shall be taken on the postal savings bank bill.

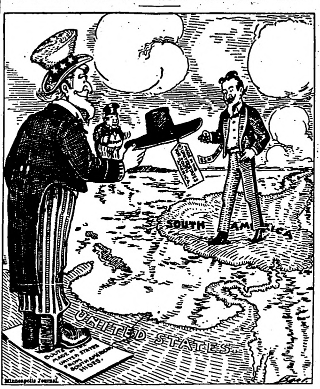
Elkhart Gets $3,000,000 Car Shops.

Elkhart, Ind.—O. M. Foster, master mechanic of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad at this point, announced Friday that the work of breaking ground for locomotive and car shops to cost $3,000,000 will be started immediately in this city.

King Gustave Is Better.

Stockholm.—King Gustave took a drive in an automobile about the city Friday. It was the first time he had been out of doors since he underwent the operation for appendicitis.

IT'S A POOR RULE THAT WON'T WORK BOTH WAYS.



SOUTH AMERICA
UNITED STATES
BOOTS MADE IN THE UNITED STATES FROM SOUTH AMERICAN HIDES.
Minneapolis Journal.

Uncle Sam of the North—I have on shoes made from South American hides; let me sell you a hat made in the United States?

WARRANT FOR LABOR CHIEF

MURPHY TO BE ARRESTED FOR INCITING RIOT.

Philadelphia Unionists Plan Monster Demonstration Next Monday as Counter Action.

Philadelphia.—On Monday morning, unless all plans go awry, this city will witness the greatest labor demonstration the United States has ever seen.

One hundred thousand labor unionists, fully one-fourth of them women, will march in a body upon the city hall, will surround it, and will demand by their presence the recognition of the striking street car men and the acceptance by the Rapid Transit Company of the demand that these men be given 25 cents an hour and the right to belong to whatever organization they care to.

This move was planned as a counteraction to the issuance by city officials Friday of a warrant for the arrest of John T. Murphy, the labor chief of the town, on a charge of inciting a riot.

Many more persons rode on the cars. The Rapid Transit Company claimed that it had 820 of its 2,000 cars running and that it had hired 1,400 new men, making a total on hand of 3,600 out of the ordinary 6,000.

AMERICA'S TOBACCO TRADE

Uncle Sam Leads the World as an Exporter of the Weed—Some Interesting Figures.

Washington.—More than one billion dollars' worth of tobacco and manufactures of tobacco have passed through the ports of the United States since 1890, the value of the export from the country during that period having aggregated $646,000,000 and the imports into the country $386,000,000. These figures are exclusive of trade passing between the United States and its noncontiguous territories, which showed in 1909 alone cigars and other tobacco brought in from Porto Rico valued at $5,750,000 and shipments of tobacco to Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico valued at nearly $2,000,000.

The United States leads the world as an exporter of tobacco, having supplied over $41,000,000 worth in a total of approximately $150,000,000 worth of tobacco and manufactures which entered international markets last year.

PAROLE WRIT IS STAYED

Supreme Court Justices Announce Proceedings Under Decision Be Stopped Until April Term.

Chicago.—The justices of the supreme court of Illinois, at a meeting in Chicago, issued an order directing that all further proceedings in the Joyce case, which resulted in the parole law of 1899 being declared invalid, be stayed until the April term of court.

It also was announced that the decision in the Joyce case shall not be acted on as a final judgment until the petition for a rehearing is disposed of. This means that attempts to secure the release of prisoners in the state penitentiaries on the theory that the parole law of 1899 is void will be ineffectual until the supreme court is again heard from.

Charity Gets a Crumb.

Troy, N. Y.—The will of Mrs. Hannah M. Earl, widow of William S. Earl of Troy, founder of Earl & Wilson, collar manufacturers, has been filed for probate here. The estate is valued at $2,000,000. Only $66,000 is left to charitable institutions.

Deputy and Negro Are Killed.

Memphis, Tenn.—Deputy Sheriff W. H. Lucy, in an effort to arrest a negro near here Friday, was shot and instantly killed by the negro, who in turn was killed by two other deputies.

WOLGAST IS NOW CHAMPION

Milwaukee Boy Severely Punishes Battling Nelson and Is Given Decision in Fortieth Round.

Richmond, Cal.—In a heavy drizzle and cold, biting wind an enormous crowd Tuesday saw Al Wolgast of Milwaukee defeat Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world in the fortieth round of the scheduled 45-round fight.

While Nelson was not knocked out he was on the point of collapse when Referee Eddie Smith stopped the fight and awarded the verdict to Wolgast.

Nelson was a pitiful sight as he staggered about the ring in the last few rounds with one eye closed and blood streaming from his mouth, nose and ears.

Notwithstanding his weakened condition from the loss of blood and the fearful punishment that Wolgast administered the Battler put up a game fight throughout.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Frankie Conley of Kenosha, Wis., and Monte Attell of San Francisco battled in sensational style for the better part of three hours Tuesday before the Pacific Athletic club in the Vernon arena.

Conley won with a clean knockout in the forty-second round. Attell, so badly worn and battered that he could scarcely keep his feet, was floored in his own corner with a right swing which caught him far back of the left ear on the neck.

ALDRICH WINS HIS FIGHT

Senate Committee Report Railroad Bill Without Proviso Limiting Jurisdiction of Commerce Court.

Washington.—Senator Aldrich Friday won his fight in the senate committee on interstate commerce to keep out of the administration railroad bill a proviso that will limit the jurisdiction of the proposed court of commerce to the power now conferred on circuit courts of the United States.

If this victory can be clinched in the fight that is coming on the floor of the senate, the new bill will open up to the corporations such opportunities for protracted litigation as practically to nullify the advantages of the proposed court of commerce. In point of fact, the whole plan of the president for a court of commerce is declared to be endangered by this insistence of Senator Aldrich upon a broad court review.

Moreover, if Aldrich wins his fight for a broad court review of all the administrative acts of the interstate commerce commission there is danger that most of the practical benefits of the Hepburn bill will go by the board, because of the opportunity that will be furnished to the railroads for interminable litigation.

MOB ASSAILS DALLAS JAIL

500 Men Attempt to Get Negro Assaulter and Lynch Him—Structure Strongly Guarded.

Dallas, Tex.—A mob of 500 men have gathered at the Dallas county jail to lynch Allen Brook, the negro who assaulted a little white girl. The mob has a 30-foot steel rail and declare they will batter down the jail doors. A strong force of deputy sheriffs are inside the jail and Chief of Police Ryan has been called on for help.

Open Land to Settlement.

Washington.—About 60,320 acres of lands in Wyoming were designated by Secretary Ballinger as being subject to disposition under the provisions of the enlarged homestead act, granting 320 acres to each individual.

Royal Flush Kills Man.

Carbondale, Pa.—Overpoweringly excited by drawing a royal flush in a poker game Thursday Frank Constantine of Carbondale died soon afterward from what physicians described as over-exertion of the heart.

THE APPROVAL of the most EMINENT PHYSICIANS
and its
WORLD-WIDE ACCEPTANCE
by the
WELL-INFORMED,

BECAUSE ITS COMPONENT PARTS ARE KNOWN TO BE MOST WHOLESOME AND TRULY BENEFICIAL IN EFFECT, HAVE GIVEN TO

Syrup of Figs and ELIXIR OF SENNA

THE FIRST POSITION AMONG FAMILY LAXATIVES AND HAVE LED TO ITS GENERAL USAGE WITH THE MOST UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION.

TO GET ITS BENEFICIAL EFFECTS, ALWAYS BUY THE GENUINE

MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS
ONE SIZE ONLY, REGULAR PRICE 50¢ PER BOTTLE

Syrup of Figs and ELIXIR OF SENNA
THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE IS MANUFACTURED BY THE California Fig Syrup Co.

Weak Spot in His Defense.

A religious worker was visiting a southern penitentiary, when one prisoner in some way took his fancy. This prisoner was a negro, who evinced a religious fervor as deep as it was gratifying to the caller.

"Of what were you accused?" the prisoner was asked.

"Dey says I took a watch," answered the negro. "I made a good fight. I had a dandy lawyer, and he done prove an alibi wif ten witnesses. Den my lawyer he shore made a strong speech to de jury. But it wa'n't no use, sah! I get ten years."

"I don't see why you were not acquitted," said the religious worker.

"Well, sah," explained the prisoner, "dere was shore one weak spot 'bout my defense—dey found de watch in my pocket."—Tit-Bits.

Nothing New.

"Congratulations! I hear one of your daughters is engaged. Which one it is?"

"Get out! It's only Bessie again!"—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

This Will Interest Mothers.
Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, cure Feverishness, Headache, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, Regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. They break up colds in 24 hours. Pleasant to take, and harmless as milk. They never fail. At all Druggists, 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Talkative Woman.

Hewitt—Some men talk and don't say anything.

Jewett—Yes, my wife is just that kind of a man.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM
has been used successfully for years for deep-seated coughs, colds and bronchitis. Everybody should know about it. It is simple, safe and sure.

Answer me quick, what help, what hand, do you stretch o'er destruction's brink?—Browning.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Thermometers make more liars than the big fish that get away.

Many people want assistance—and a few really need it.

Constipation Vanishes Forever
Prompt Relief--Permanent Cure
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
GENUINE must bear signature:
Brent Good

A Miracle of Comfort and Convenience
NO STROPPING NO HONING
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
An absolutely harmless remedy for Sore Throat, Hoarseness and Coughs. Give immediate relief in Bronchial and Lung Affections.
Fifty years' reputation.
Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box.
Sample sent on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES
In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION, 554 W. Adams St., Chicago

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 10-1910.

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed -
Alx. Senna -
Rochelle Salts -
Anise Seed -
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda -
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES 35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Food and
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

A LITTLE COLD.

He caught a little cold—
That was all.
So the neighbors sadly said,
As they gathered round his bed,
When they heard that he was dead.

He caught a little cold—
That was all. (Puck.)

Neglect of a cough or cold often leads to serious trouble. To break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable mix two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. You can buy these at any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle.

INSTRUCTION IN THE SCHOOLS

Children Being Taught the Nature and Methods of Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Definite instruction concerning the nature and methods of prevention of tuberculosis is being given to less than six per cent. of the public school children of the United States, according to a bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Recent investigation has shown that in only nine cities, Washington, Dallas, Tex., Richmond, Va., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Detroit, Mich., Malden, Mass., Salem, Mass., Saginaw, Mich., and Knoxville, Tenn., are special text books being used or lectures being given about tuberculosis. In three states and one territory, Michigan, Massachusetts, North Carolina and Porto Rico, laws have been passed requiring that instruction about the nature and methods of prevention of tuberculosis be given in all public schools. In Tennessee the state department of education has requested that such instruction be given and has issued circulars for this purpose. In New Jersey and West Virginia wall cards giving instruction are hung in every schoolroom and the attention of all children is called to them.

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know, for what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.

"I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. This was nine years ago and I have had no return of the trouble since. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to my address. Mrs. Altie Etson, 93 Inn Road, Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 16, 1909."

Marriage.

A game of chance in which the chances are about even. The man leads at first, but after leaving the altar he usually follows breathlessly in his wife's trail. The rules are very confusing. If a masked player holds you up some night at the end of a long gun, it is called robbery, and entitles you to telephone the police, but if your wife holds you up for a much larger amount the next morning at the end of a long hug, it is termed diplomacy, and counts in her favor. In this, as in other games of life, wives are usually allowed more privileges than other outlaws.—Judge.

The Appetites of Kings.

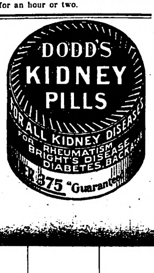
The king of Spain makes up for his daily expenditure of activity by a tremendous appetite. I have observed, for that matter, that the majority of sovereigns are valiant trenchermen. Every morning of his life Alfonso XIII. has a good rump steak and potatoes for his first breakfast, often preceded by eggs and sometimes followed by salad and fruit.—From Recollections of M. Paoli in McClure's.

His Landlord's Reply.

"This appears to be a pretty slow town. You have no pay-as-you-enter street cars here."

"No, but we have a pretty good line of pay-before-you-leave boarding houses."

Many a saint would have less trouble wrestling with the devil if he would get out and wrestle with a ball for an hour or two.



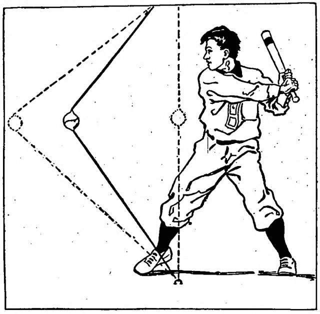
Official Playing Schedule of the American League

For the Season of 1910, Beginning April 14

	At Chicago.	At St. Louis.	At Detroit.	At Cleveland.	At Washington.	At Philadelphia.	At New York.	At Boston.
CHICAGO...	THIS	Apr 21, 22, 23, 24. Sept 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. Sept 29, 30.	May 5, 6, 7, 28. Jun 28, 29, 30. Jul 28. Sept 2, 3, 4.	Apr 25, 26, 27, 28. May 30, 30, 31. Jun 21, 22, 23. Jul 6.	May 10, 11, 12, 13. Jul 22, 23, 25, 26. Aug 22, 23, 24.	May 14, 16, 17, 18. Jul 18, 19, 20, 21. Aug 18, 19, 20.	May 24, 25, 26, 27. Jul 8, 9, 11, 12. Aug 25, 26, 27.	May 19, 20, 21, 23. Jul 13, 14, 15, 16. Aug 29, 30, 31.
ST. LOUIS...	Apr 14, 15, 16, 17. Jul 1, 2, 3, 4, 4. Sept 12, 13.	PAPER	Apr 18, 19, 20. May 8. Jun 21, 22, 23, 25. Jul 6. Sept 5, 5.	May 5, 6, 7, 28. Jun 28, 29, 30. Jul 28, 30. Sept 2, 3.	May 19, 20, 21, 23. Jul 8, 9, 11, 12. Aug 29, 30, 31.	May 24, 25, 26, 27. Jul 13, 14, 15, 16. Aug 25, 26, 27.	May 14, 16, 17, 18. Jul 18, 19, 20, 21. Aug 18, 19, 20.	May 10, 11, 12, 13. Jul 22, 23, 25, 26. Aug 22, 23, 24.
DETROIT...	Apr 30. May 1, 2, 3. Jul 29, 30, 31. Sept 11. Oct 6, 8, 9.	Apr 25, 26, 27, 28. May 29, 30, 30, 31. Jun 26. Oct 1, 2.	PRINTS	Apr 21, 22, 23. Jul 1, 2, 4, 4. Sept 7, 8, 9, 10.	May 24, 25, 26, 27. Aug 15, 16, 17. Aug. 25, 25, 26, 27.	May 19, 20, 21, 23. Jul 8, 9, 11, 12. Aug 29, 30, 31.	May 10, 11, 12, 13. Jul 22, 23, 25, 26. Aug 22, 23, 24.	May 14, 16, 18, 19. Jul 18, 19, 20, 21. Aug 18, 19, 21.
CLEVEL'D...	Apr 18, 19, 20. May 8, 29. Jun 25, 26. Sept 5, 5. Oct 1, 2.	Apr 30. May 1, 2, 3, 4. Jul 31. Sept 4, 11. Oct 6, 8, 9.	Apr 14, 15, 16, 17, 24. Jul 3. Sept 12, 13, 14. Oct 4, 5.	ALL	May 14, 16, 17, 18. Jul 18, 19, 20, 21. Aug 18, 19, 20.	May 10, 11, 12, 13. Jul 22, 23, 25, 26. Aug 22, 23, 24.	May 19, 20, 21, 23. Jul 13, 14, 15, 16. Aug 29, 30, 31.	May 24, 25, 26, 27. Jul 8, 9, 11, 12. Aug 25, 26, 27.
WASH.......	Jun 10, 11, 12, 13. Aug 5, 6, 7, 8. Sept 26, 27, 28.	Jun 15, 16, 18, 19. Aug 1, 2, 3, 4. Sept 23, 24, 25.	Jun 6, 7, 8, 9. Jul 13, 14, 15, 16. Aug 13, 14. Sept 19.	Jun 1, 2, 3, 4. Aug 9, 10, 11, 12. Sept 15, 16, 17.	THE	May 5, 6, 7, 9. Jul 27, 28, 29, 30. Sept 10, 12, 13.	May 2, 3, 4, 28, 30, 30, 31. Sept 30. Oct 1, 3, 4.	Apr 18, 19, 19, 20, 21. Jun 21, 22, 23, 24. Sept 5, 5.
PHILA.......	Jun 15, 16, 18, 19. Aug 1, 2, 3, 4. Sept 23, 24, 25.	Jun 10, 11, 12, 13. Aug 5, 6, 7, 8. Sept 26, 27, 28.	Jun 1, 2, 4, 5. Aug 9, 10, 11, 12. Sept 15, 17, 18.	Jun 6, 7, 8, 9. Aug 13, 15, 16, 17. Sept 19, 20, 21.	Apr 14, 15, 16. Jul 5, 6, 7. Sept 1, 2, 3. Oct 8, 8.	NEWS	Apr 27, 28, 29, 30. Jun 21, 22, 23, 24. Sept 5, 5, 6.	Apr 22, 23, 25, 26. May 28, 30, 30, 31. Sept 7, 8, 9.
NEW YORK	Jun 2, 3, 4, 5. Aug 13, 14, 15, 16. Sept 19, 20, 21.	Jun 6, 7, 8, 9. Aug 9, 10, 11, 12. Sept 15, 17, 18.	Jun 10, 11, 12, 13. Aug 5, 6, 7, 8. Sept 26, 27, 28.	Jun 15, 16, 17, 18. Aug 1, 2, 3, 4. Sept 22, 23, 24.	Apr 22, 23, 25, 26. Jun 25, 27, 28, 29. Sept 7, 8, 9.	Apr 18, 19, 20, 21. Jul 1, 2, 4, 4. Oct 5, 6, 7.	ALL THE	May 5, 6, 7, 9. Jul 27, 28, 29, 30. Sept 10, 12, 13.
BOSTON.....	Jun 6, 7, 8, 9. Aug 9, 10, 11, 12. Sept 15, 17, 18.	Jun 2, 3, 4, 5. Aug 13, 14, 15, 16. Sept 19, 20, 21.	Jun 15, 16, 18, 19. Aug 1, 2, 3, 4. Sept 23, 24, 25.	Jun 10, 11, 13, 14. Aug 5, 6, 8. Sept 26, 27, 28, 29.	Apr 27, 28, 29, 30. Jul 1, 2, 4, 4. Oct 5, 6, 7.	May 2, 3, 4. Jun 25, 27, 28, 29. Sept 30. Oct 1, 3, 4.	Apr 14, 15, 16. Jul 5, 6, 7. Sept 1, 2, 3. Oct 8, 8.	TIME
AT HOME...	14 Sat. 17 Sun. Jul 4. Lab. Day. Conflicting dates, Apr 30; May 1, 8, 29; Jun 26; Sep 11; Oct 2, 9.	12 Saturdays. 16 Sundays. Decoration Day. Conflicting dates, Jul 31; Oct 2.	13 Saturdays. 12 Sundays. Labor Day.	14 Saturdays. Decoration Day. July 4.	13 Saturdays. July 4.	13 Saturdays. July 4.	13 Saturdays. Decoration Day. Labor Day.	12 Saturdays. April 19. Decoration Day. Labor Day.

The Opening Games on April 14 are as follows: St. Louis at Chicago, Cleveland at Detroit, Philadelphia at Washington, Boston at New York. The only conflicting dates are at Chicago and St. Louis.

DEVICE MAKES PLAYER BAT LEFT HANDED



Clark Griffith, leader of the Reds, is determined to make Bob Bescher, his crack base-stealing outfielder, the Ty Cobb of the National league, and to this end is doing his best to make Bescher bat left-handed.

Griffith sent Bescher a batting device, which originated in the fertile brain of "The Fox," with orders to stand up and whale away from the south side by the hour.

The device consists of a regulation league ball, sewed inside an extra cover, to which stout rubber cords are attached. One of the cords is fastened to the ceiling and the other to the floor, so that the ball swings about waist high.

When struck the flexible cord permits the ball to swing several yards, and it returns with great speed. Then it is time for the batter to get busy with the club and soak the sphere again. It surely promises large things for the batting eye.

Bescher, who is a big, strong fellow, is naturally left-handed, but unfortunately he was coached to bat right-handed when a kid, and has swung from the far side of the plate ever since. He is so fast that he would beat out many an infield hit batting left-handed, and he has the strength in his left arm to do it, as soon as he gets accustomed to the shift.

Griffith has ordered Bescher to bat from the left side only with the new machine, and says he is confident he will have a wonder in the youngster when the season opens.

Griffith has let a contract for a pitcher's target to be used by the Red twirlers at Hot Springs. It is a sort of shooting gallery with moving swings in which two discs hang from wires and are made to swing. The pitcher takes his stand at the regulation distance and tries to hit the spot on the target.

An arrangement has been perfected whereby the balls will roll back to the pitchers. Griffith says he will have a scorer watch the men and make a daily report showing the number of "strikes" and "balls."

ADOPT 168 GAME SCHEDULE

American Association Clubs to Start Playing April 13 and Quit September 25.

The American association at its meeting in Chicago adopted a schedule calling for 168 games. The season will open April 13 and close September 25. The ratification of the changes in the constitution was deferred until May 3, when a special session will be called by President Tom Chivington. The changes are not radical, merely making a better working document.

Following are the park openings:

April 13—Indianapolis at Toledo, Louisville at Columbus, Minneapolis at Milwaukee and St. Paul at Kansas City.

April 21—Indianapolis at Louisville.

April 25.—Columbus at Indianapolis, Milwaukee at Minneapolis and Kansas City at St. Paul.

Holiday dates follow:

Decoration Day—Louisville at Columbus, Indianapolis at Toledo, Milwaukee at Kansas City, Minneapolis at St. Paul (morning) and St. Paul at Minneapolis (afternoon).

Fourth of July—Toledo at Indianapolis, Columbus at Louisville, Milwaukee at Kansas City, St. Paul at Minneapolis (morning) and Minneapolis at St. Paul (afternoon).

Labor Day—Louisville at Toledo, Columbus at Indianapolis, Kansas City at Milwaukee, Minneapolis at St. Paul (morning) and St. Paul at Minneapolis (afternoon).

In addition to adopting a schedule of 154 games the American league, which was in session at the same time, adopted the report of a committee which favored retention of the present style of spikes.

The new agreement of the eight clubs was adopted for 20 years and Byron B. Johnson was re-elected president for a term of 20 years at a salary of $15,000 annually and expenses. The league barred syndicate ball.

TIM HURST SAYS THERE WAS ONE UMPIRE WORSE THAN HE

"There was one umpire worse than me," relates Tim Hurst, who lost his job in the American league for spitting in a player's face. "His name was Collins, and he and I were sent to umpire a series in Baltimore many years ago. It was his first game, and he was sufficiently bad. I think he got one decision right, though. Finally he pulled a bad one over at third and Robbie—Wilbert Robinson—ran at him and said:

"'You big stiff, get off the grounds.'

"I was umpiring balls and strikes and I looked around and there he was walking off the field. I headed him off and said:

"'Where are you going?'

"'To the hotel,' says he.

"'What for?'

"'Why, the captain just ordered me off the grounds,' he answered.

"It took me five minutes to get him to stick, and the next day he didn't show up at all, nor have I seen him since."

Proctor Ready for Action.

State Senator Robert E. Proctor, whose home is in Elkhart, proposes to come to the aid of the baseball fans of Indiana in the event the state Supreme court declares the existing baseball law unconstitutional. Mr. Proctor is an enthusiastic fan. He said: "I shall draft a measure and introduce it in the next session of the legislature providing that the question be submitted to the people for a vote as to whether or not Sunday playing shall be allowed."

George Davis Released.

President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox has given an unconditional release to George Davis, once a premier short stop, who in the last two years has been retained only as a teacher of young players. It is believed Davis will manage an Eastern league team.

NEW RULE BARS HOPPLES ON HORSES AFTER 1915

GRADUAL ELIMINATION OF LEG STRAPS TO BEGIN AT ONCE —GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

Beginning with the racing season of 1915 trotting and pacing horses will not wear as much harness on their legs as they do on their backs, as by that time hopples will have been eliminated. Trainers will start to work this year to get rid of the unsightly "tackle" that is attached to the legs of the harness racers, the National Trotting association having adopted this rule at its recent meeting in New York:

"Hopples shall not be used in races or in performances against time on two-year-olds or under, in 1910; on three-year-olds or under, in 1911; on four-year-olds or under, in 1912; on five-year-olds or under, in 1913; on six-year-olds or under, in 1914; after which time all hopples shall be barred."

No action was taken by the association on the request from the stewards of the grand circuit that horses be eligible to start on half mile tracks in classes four seconds slower than on mile track records. It was decided that trotting associations in Ohio might join either the National association or the American association as they desired.

In all purses five entries will be required and two to start, unless otherwise specified. It was also decided that "if only one of the horses entered for a purse shall appear on the course he shall be entitled to his own entrance money and to one-half of the entrance money received from the othr entries for said purse."

Representatives of 381 tracks attended the meeting. President P. P. Johnston of Lexington, Ky., was reelected, and the association adjourned until its next biennial session in 1912.

The Harvester, owned by August Uhlein of Milwaukee, and driven by the veteran reinsman, Ed Geers, will be sent against the world's stallion record next season. The mark is now held by Cresceus. The Harvester will also be entered in the important stakes on the Grand Circuit during 1910. Mr. Geers has been in Milwaukee and made all arrangements with Mr. Uhlein for The Harvester's campaign during the season.

James B. Haggin, for a long time the most extensive breeder of thoroughbreds in this country, will race a considerable string of horses over the tracks of the Jockey club this season.

Several years ago the orange and blue silk of the Haggin establishment were famous but in recent years Mr. Haggin has turned his attention more to the breeding and marketing of horses than racing.

He will come back to the sport with a string of a dozen horses of his own breeding that are at present in the care of the veteran trainer, Charles Littlefield, at Sheepshead Bay.

Racing at Pimlico from April 20 to May 7, inclusive, was approved by the stewards of the Jockey club. The appointment of the following officials for the spring meeting of the Maryland Jockey club was also approved: Stewards, August Belmont, William M. Manley and Thomas Clyde; judges, W. P. Riggs and E. C. Smith; clerk of the scales, H. P. Conklin; handicapper, Frank J. Bryan; starter, A. B. Dade.

Donlin Agrees to Terms.

Despite the recent announcement by Mike Donlin, actor-baseball player, that his theatrical contract would not permit him to play this year even if he cared to, comes the news that he has come to terms with John T. Brush. The great right fielder may once more be seen in a Giant uniform, and that at the opening of the season.

Lasker Retains His Title.

Dr. Emmanuel Lasker of New York, retains the title of chess champion of the world. His series of ten games with Carl Schlechter of Vienna, who challenged him for the title, resulted in equal scores, each winning one game, and eight games being drawn. The final game lasted three days, and 71 moves were made.

ZBYSZKO AND MAHMOUT MUST MEET TO FINISH

POLISH AND BULGARIAN WRESTLERS DID NOT SETTLE QUESTION OF SUPREMACY.

Now for a finish match between Zbyszko and Mahmout. These burly wrestlers tugged and hauled for an hour at the Coliseum in Chicago before a crowd of 8,000 persons several nights ago, without a fall. It was a handicap match, Mahmout agreeing to throw the Pole twice in an hour.

Zbyszko took the defensive and only once or twice tried to get an offensive hold on Mahmout. It was announced that the Bulgarian was handicapped by a boil on his right arm, but it is doubtful whether he would have done better had he not been so hindered.

There was something unusual about the match and the Chicago fans are not yet sure just what was behind it all. Both men want to wrestle Frank Gotch, the champion, and it is likely that they will have to meet in a finish affair before Gotch takes on either man.

The bout was a disappointment but there were others on the card that proved interesting enough. Walter Willoughby won the middleweight championship when he threw Ernest Kartye twice. Jimmy Esson, the Scotch champion, put the shoulders of De Rouen, champion of France, twice to the mat. It was a rough battle and pleased the fans.

YOUNGEST PLAYER SIGNED

Earl Bitting of Philadelphia, who last year startled big league scouts by his brilliant playing at third base, has been signed by Manager McGuire to play with the Cleveland club of the American league. His contract was arranged by Sam Kennedy, one of the Naps' scouts. Bitting is 18 years old and the youngest player in the major leagues. His batting average last year in a Philadelphia school league was .427.

Kittridge a College Coach.

Malachi J. Kittridge, once a member of the Chicago Nationals, has been engaged to coach the candidate for the position of catcher on the Harvard baseball team. It is the first time a professional coach hast been engaged for catchers at Harvard.

ONLY NECESSARY TO TREAT STOMACH, SAYS COOPER

The new theory advanced by L. T. Cooper relative to the human stomach has attracted such widespread attention that the public in cities visited by the young man has been joined by many physicians in a discussion of his beliefs and medicines.

Mr. Cooper says human health is dependent almost entirely upon the stomach. He says that no disease can be conquered without first alleviating all stomach disorders. He further says that most men and women of this generation are half-sick owing to degenerate stomachs. And lastly, he claims that his New Discovery medicine will rejuvenate the human stomach in 90 days.

Cooper has been traveling from one city to another, conducting in each what he calls a campaign of education. For the past year he has met the public in the larger cities of the country, and his success has been phenomenal. Thousands of people have flocked to his headquarters wherever he has gone, and the sale of his medicine has been beyond anything of the kind ever before witnessed.

Possibly the most interesting feature of the attention this young man has attracted is what his army of followers, whom he has converted to his beliefs through his medicines, have to say on the subject. The following statements are from two well-known residents of Chicago and Boston, respectively, and the enthusiasm of these is characteristic of Cooper's admirers generally.

Mrs. H. B. Mack, of 3201 State street, Chicago, says: "I have been suffering for 12 years from a combination of stomach trouble, catarrh and constipation. I had a gnawing pain in the pit of my stomach, a sort of a dull pain that I could not quite understand. Then there was a dull headache, and my mind seemed to be wandering continually. I could not eat, and what little solid food I did eat I could not retain on my stomach. I tried every remedy I could think of, and also tried out a number of patent medicines, but without any apparent result. It was through one of my friends that I heard of Cooper's preparation, and I immediately decided to try some of it. It is two weeks since I took my first dose of it, and I feel like a new woman. The headache seems to have disappeared, and the pain in my stomach, along with it. The medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I want to thank Mr. Cooper for what he has done for me."

Mr. Edwin F. Morse, of 20 Oakley street, Dorchester, a suburb of Boston, says: "For three years I had not a well day. My stomach was in frightful shape; the mere thought of food would nauseate me, and I really had a horror of anything to eat. All solid food would cause me extreme indigestion, bloating and gas on my stomach, and nothing tasted right. Some time ago I got some of this Cooper's medicine, about which there is so much talk. I actually feel as well and strong as a boy ever since the first bottle. Every sign of stomach trouble has disappeared, and I have a hearty appetite and eat three square meals; everything seems to taste good. Anyone who knows what chronic indigestion is can appreciate what this means to me. I consider this the most remarkable medicine I ever heard of."

Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will forward you the name of a druggist in your city who will. Don't accept "something just as good."—The Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton, Ohio.

A Pause in Devotions.

"Mabel!" called her father, outside her bedroom door. There was no answer, so he called again. Still no reply. He pushed open the door, which was not completely shut, and reaching for the button, turned on the lights. Then he saw Mabel. She was kneeling at the side of her bed in her nightgown, in the attitude of prayer—the attitude, that is, as to kneeling. But she had raised her head at the interruption and paused in her devotions to blaze at him with a face flushed with impatience:

"Gee whiz, daddy! Can't a woman say her prayers?"

Then she bowed her head again, piously, and daddy, properly rebuked, slipped noiselessly away.

Pleasures of Wisdom.

"Your boy likes to go to school better than he used to," said the relative.

"Yes," answered Mr. Bliggins. "He's getting old enough to enjoy learning a lot of things so that he can come home and dazzle me with his superior knowledge."

The more you eat

Quaker Oats

the better your health will be.

Practical experiments with athletes show Quaker Oats to be the greatest strength maker. 56

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 [illegible] at the post office at Sunbeam' Minn under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

The First Minnesota Conservation Converton will meet at St Paul on Mach 16-10 and it is safe to say that it will be one of greatest gatherings of politicians and candidates for office blow outs that ever was in the state of Minnesota.

H. O. Bjorge, who is after our Congressman Steenersons shoes visited at Thief River Falls last week, but owing to the coldness, of the weather, we guess; he did not stop very long, or prehaps he got bit with that wave of enthusiasm that is sweeping over this part of the district for Hon. H. Steenerson, for getting the money appropriated by congress for the improvement of the Red Lake River for navigation.

The new Red Lake county court house is to be completed by November 1st, 1910 We have not seen a copy of the plans, but suppose they will have a marble slab over the front entrance, to enroll the names of the present board of County Commissioners on. Lindquists name should be on top in a prominent place to catch the eye of Thief River Falls people, when they go down to the County seat to pay their taxes.

Some of our Hechlacting socialist friends may find out that they sprung that little story to quick, to the affect, that Congressman Steenerson did not have anything to say about the appointment of 4th, class post masters. Mabe gentelmen that you commenced to sharpen up your knives to early in the game. You had beeter have waited until you get out of the woods, then begin to crow, and we might dig in and help you.

Interviewed by the Minneapolis Journal, Senator A. D. Stephens, of Crookston, states that considerable effort is being made to secure his consent to become a candite for the Republican nomination for congressman from this district, and he intimates that later he may become a candidate. The News is of the opinion that if Senator Stephens thought he had a fighting chance he would enter the race without being urged.—Thief River Falls News

There is no use denying the fact, that Senator Stephens is a stong man in politics and if he decides to get into the congressional game there is likely to be "something doing" along the line.

It was our pleasure to attend the first big get together meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development Assacotion held at Bemidji last week. The same earnest spirit of geting into the harness and work for further development of Northern Minnesota was manifest by every man present from the 30 counties organized, Northern Minnesota is coming to its own, and southern Minnesota should take due notice and give us a fair shake in reapportianment in order to give us a fair representation or we shall know the reason why. 30 of our counties are now organized for work and we mean every word we say. Bemidji done it self proud in the manner in which it handled the delegates and the convention, not to mention [illegible] lar Secretary or the Association who worked overtime to make it a grand success.—Olberg Journal.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 25th. 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office Crookston Minnesota. February 18th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Edward Iverson, of Brunkeberg Minn., who on October 3, 1904, made Homestead entery No. 643 Serial No. 04237, for N. E. ¼ Section 30, Township 154 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of Intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim o the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 4th. day of April 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Finsand, of McPhail Minn. Olaf Wahlberg, Nels Leberg, Iver Solheim, of Brunkeberg Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin.
Register.

Notice For Publication,

First Publication Feb. 25th, 1910

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 18. 1910.

Notice is heeby given that Casper Lund, of Austad Minn. who on March 16th. 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 1289 Serial No. 04582, for S. W. ¼ of N. E. ¼ Section 10 Towship 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of March, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

George Wold Iver W. Vatby, Theadore Vigenstad, Tom Mjelde, all of Anstad Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Reed and Ingalls.

"Why don't you grow?" said Tom Reed to Senator Ingalls some years ago when both men were in the service of the people at Washington.

"Ah," said Ingalls, who was of very slight stature, "I'm too much interested in my fellows' life and property to aspire to your magnificent height and proportion."

"And is not that my concern too?" asked Reed deliberately.

"[illegible]," said Ingalls. "Walk on the [illegible] board walk and you lift up the other end, stand in the middle and you break through. The people's [illegible] lies in your being a middle of [illegible]."

[illegible] Reed found Ingalls [illegible] distraction. "Just [illegible] the good fillings of this [illegible] of Senator Ingalls [illegible] to the exposed cavity."

[illegible] immoderately. He [illegible] up to his full height. As [illegible] his time of revenge [illegible].

"[illegible] I congratulate you. You [illegible] worth your weight in gold."

Ought to Have Known Him.

"About the finest of nerve that ever came under my observation," said an ex-[illegible], "happened a few days ago when a man walked into my office and solicited a small loan. That he was drunk and had been for several days was evident at a glance. Dirty, bleary eyed, unshaved and with hands that shook like those of a professional roman candle shooter. He saluted me with easy familiarity, calling me by my first name. His face was vaguely familiar to me, but I could not recall where I had seen him. He asked for a quarter. I compromised with a dime. He took it with profuse thanks.

"'Let's see,' I called to him as he turned to go. 'I can't quite place you. Who are you?'

"He wheeled and looked at me with an expression of pained surprise. 'What! Don't know me! Why, good Lord, John! You put me in jail three times for wife beating!'"—Kansas City Star

---

Some Measures.

Herbert Spencer scorned the metric system because it rests solely on the fact that man has but ten fingers. However, a mile is but a "mille passuum," or a thousand paces. The length of the foot was used for distances long before it was fixed at twelve inches. A "furlong" is only a furrowlong. The breadth of the hand became the standard because the easiest way of measuring the height of the horse. The length of the arm gave the length of the "ell," and from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger was the "cubit." By stretching out both arms as if on a cross man invented the measure of the "fathom." Cloth measure still decrees that two and one-half inches make a "nail," and this is the width of four fingers held together and measured across the balls. The apothecary's "dram" originally signified "only as much raw spirit as can be held in the mouth."

Editorial Pleasantries.

Two editors quarreled, and one referred to the other's early career in his paper.

"As for our contemporary," he wrote, "what can we expect from a man who was five years ago hawking from door to door with a donkey, and an ill conditioned beast at that?"

His rival did not deny it, but in his next issue appeared the following:

"Our contemporary says that five years ago we were hawking from door to door with a donkey, and an ill conditioned beast at that.' He is quite right. We were so occupied. But we are surprised to find the donkey has such a good memory."

Those who are greedy of praise prove that they are poor in merit.—Plutarch.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 25, 1910.

Department of The Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota February 23rd. 1910.

NOTICE is hereby given that Arnt Gangstad, of Radney Minnesota, who on December 17th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 1008 Serial No. 04386, for N. E. ¼ Section 15 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 5th, day of April 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John A. Peterson, Knut Lidtvedt, of Radney Minn Tallak Lindtvedt, Thorn Lofthus, of Rhoda Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 16th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given that Thone Johnson, of Rhoda Minn. who on April 5th, 1905. made Homestead entery No. 1114, Serial No. 04448, for S. W. ¼ Section 13, Township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of Intention to make final commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on the 28th. day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Franses O. Gustafson, of Malone Minn. Kaut T. Sannes, John Polbrook, William R Rodman, of Rhoda Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 11th, 1910

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. February 7th. 1910.

Notice is hereby given, that John Poloni, of Highlanding Minn, who on July 15th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 556, Serial No. 04250, for Lots 2, 4, S. W. ¼ N. W. ¼ Section 28 & Lots 11 & 12, Section 29, Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 21st, day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Edon Levis, Thsmm Jacobson, of Highlanding Minn. Walter McAndress, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register,

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 9th, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that, Ignac Kolski, of Rulell Minn, who on November 12th, 1905, made Homestead entry No 1031, Serial No. 04559 for N. ½ S. W. ¼ Section 17 N. ½ S. E. ¼ Section 18 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before S. A. Swanson, Judge of Probate Court, at Red Lake Falls Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mike Kolski, of Rhoda Minn. John Radlecki, of Radney Minn. Wanzen Wojnerowski, of Rudell Minn. John Wzentek, of Hilja Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Feb. 18th, 1910.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. February 11, 1910.

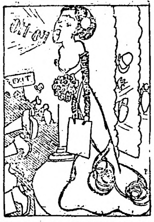
Notice is hereby given that Gilbert O. Vraa, of Torgersen Minnesota, who on November 2nd, 1904, made Homested Entry No. 813 Serial No. 04267, for N. W. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of Intention to make Final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 24th, day of March 1910.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Michael Torgerson, Knut Torgerson, [illegible] A. Grousbig, Thorjus [illegible], all of Torgerson Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

With One Accord.



"There's no place like home," she warbled.
As a singer she wasn't a bird,
And the audience, agreeing with her, no doubt
Went home without a word.

He Contributed.

Missionary—Do you ever contribute money for the heathen in foreign lands, sir? Millionaire—Oh, yes. Both my daughters married foreign noblemen.

OLD GAMBLING CLUBS

Famous Resorts of the Betting Fraternity In London.

THE WAY FOX WAS TRICKED.

A Scheme That Allowed Him to Be Cheated by Lord Barrymore—Watier's, Commended by Lord Byron and Patronized by Beau Brummel.

In America such a thing as a proprietary club owned and managed by one man is almost unknown. In London it is the usual thing, and almost all the medium sized clubs which are devoted to some special purpose, such as card playing, are proprietary.

In the old days this was a money making enterprise, and some immense fortunes were piled up by the proprietors of London card clubs. But now whenever a club shows signs of unusual prosperity the members get together and insist on forming some sort of governing body which shall have power to pass upon the proposals for membership. They also see to it that the proprietor spends a proper proportion of his profits on the comfort of the members instead of putting everything in his pocket.

The fashions in the card clubs continually change with the years and with the games that are the rage. A century ago it was against the rules in many of the best clubs to play cards before dinner, whereas nowadays the principal play is between the hours of 4 and 7. The income of the proprietor today is from the annual subscriptions and from the fixed fees for card money. In the old days the largest source of revenue was from the counters picked up from the floor after the game was over.

George Raggett, the owner of White's, one of the most famous gambling clubs in the world, situated on St. James' street, made it his rule to attend to his guests in person whenever exceptionally high play was in progress, knowing that he would be well repaid for his time. Upon one occasion, after picking up counters to the value of nearly $1,000 from the floor, he received a gift of almost as much from Harvey Combe, who had been playing from Monday evening until 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Sir John Malcolm, Tippoo Smith and Ward, the member of parliament for London, being the other players at the table.

Some of the proprietary clubs adopted curious rules to attract and keep their customers. One of the chief difficulties then, as now, was to insure a game from any one that might happen to drop in at odd hours. One of these, nicknamed the Nerve Ending club, had a bylaw that no player should quit a table until a fresh arrival was ready to take his place.

One very popular feature was to provide light silken curtains which could be drawn between the faces of the players so as to conceal from an adversary any unguarded expression of disappointment or of triumph upon picking up a hand or following the course of play.

It was at this club that Fox lost a large sum of money to Lord Barrymore, who took advantage of the concealment of his own face to study the reflection of Fox's cards in the large polished steel buttons which he wore upon his coat.

At the corner of Bolton street and Piccadilly was Watier's club, which Byron records was a "superb club" in 1815. Beau Brummel played here regularly for ten or twelve years, but the club eventually fell into disrepute through the want of proper supervision of the admissions to membership.

Swinburne says in his "Courts of Europe" that it was in this club that a player upon seeing the witty Lord Alvanley enter the room and, dreading his satirical tongue, laid down his cards and pulled out a pair of pistols, which he laid on the table beside him. The only comment of Alvanley was:

"I hope you don't expect your adversary to follow suit?"

Every visitor to London who has passed down Piccadilly has probably remarked the imposing home of the Devonshire club at the southwest corner of St. James' street. Within this building the highest gambling in the world has probably taken place, the sums won and lost at Monte Carlo being nothing to those that changed hands here. The entrance was originally from the Piccadilly side, and many changes have been made in the interior arrangements, but some of the gilt chairs that were used by the high rollers of seventy years ago are still preserved in the clubrooms.

The proprietor of this club was originally a small fishmonger named William Crockford, who had a shop near Temple Bar. His first venture in club proprietorship was to take Watier's old house, where hazard, the American game of craps, was the chief attraction. In this he had a partner named Taylor, and they both made money, but at the end of a year they separated, and Crockford went to St. James' street, where he prospered so well that he instructed the Wyatts to prepare plans for a new building.

This was opened in 1827, and, although it was a proprietary club, Crockford was shrewd enough to invest a committee with the right of election to membership, a move to which many persons attribute his immense success. Among the first of the names presented was that of the Duke of Wellington, and almost every man of note in England was either a member or a guest at some time or other.—Chicago Record Herald.

Yes we have plenty Of LUMBER,

IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Windows and Doors. Lime and Brick.

☞ During the navigation season we in connection with Red Lake River Transportation Company will deliver lumber to any place on the Red Lake River between Thief River Falls and Little Oak, as cheap as it can be purchased at any railroad station in Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS LUMBER COMPANY.

D. N. Winton,
Manager.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 9. a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 5.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Their Turn Out.

Ella—They had a very smart turnout. Bella Indeed? Ella Yes; they were ejected from one of the best hotels in the town.

LOW RATES.

FARM LOANS.

We make Farm Loans at Lowest Rates of Interest with Opitinal payments. If title is good you can get your money the same day you make application. We do business quick. No six weeks or months to wait. No deal is to large for us to handle or to small for us to give it careful attention.

Give Us A Call,

Merchants
State Bank,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Officers.
C. L. Hanse[illegible] [illegible]
Daniel Pattefson [illegible] Vice Pres.
A. D. Sennesse [illegible] Vice Pes.
L. E. Brek[illegible] [illegible]

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS
FOR Headache
FOR NEURALGIA.
SCIATICA.
RHEUMATISM.
BACKACHE.
PAIN IN CHEST.
DISTRESS IN STOMACH.
SLEEPLESSNESS.
DR. MILES' ANTI Pain Pills
TAKE ONE of the Little Tablets AND THE PAIN IS GONE.
If you have Headache Try One
They Relieve Pain Quickly, leaving no bad After-effects
25 Doses 25 Cents Never Sold in Bulk.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the Sunbeam office.

Make your applications to prove final proof and for filing here at this office.

Our winters snow is going fast.

W. G Hunt was transacting Notary Public business in Deer Park Tuesday.

Clive Cunningham is attending school this week, and stoped at this office and set this local

Andrew Letvig and Oscar Nesland made this office a plesent call today on their way from Rhoda to Kratka.

John Quirk and George Cunningham went up to Peascup Island Wednesday after a load of lumber.

Sheriff Lewis Nelson was up this way Tuesday posting ditch notices, and made this office a plesent call.

There seems to be a general thaw on tap this week, and in a few days more our winters snow will all be gone.

Knute T. Sannes is makeing posts for us this week for a large addition to our pasture, which we will build this spring.

Vote the straight ticket next Tuesday, if you are opposed to bonding this town by underhand methods to divide a "jack pot." Down with the bonder. Put them out of office.

There will be a warm election in the town of Deer Park next Tuesday, but as we do not live in that town we have nothing to say about who they elect.

Say you fellows! Do you want the word to go out next week that the Socialist party are running the town of Highlanding? If you don't vote for Kveste, Dannaker and Nelson, Tuesday.

There is to be a St. Patrick ball on March 17th, at the Kratka hall, and one at the Koliska hall in Deer Park on the same date. This will be the last ball of the season at the Kolski hall.

FOR SALE: Three good work horses. One matched team of grey horses six years old. One black mare six years old. Weigh about 1300,lbs each. Call on, or address,

Laurence Wojnorowski,
Radney Minn.

There will be religious service held at the Nesland school house in Deer Park township, on next Sunday Feb. 6th, at 10,10 o'clock a.m., by Rev. E A Mostue. There will not be any services held at this school house on the 13th,.

Election promises to be rather warm in this township next Tuesday, and political lines will be drawn rather close, as the Republicans and Democrats are not going to have word go out to the outside world that this town is run by the Socialists, and that a man must have their indorsement to be appointed 4th, class post master. We fight open! No underhand sneaking resolutions! Come on gentelmen, and let's see "whose pig eats the cabbage" in the town of Highlanding.

Notice of hearing is out for our first county ditch on the south side of the river, and hearing is set for March 18th,. The ditch starts at the south west corner of the South East Quarter of Section Six in Deer Park township and runs north into the Red Lake River, the outlet being on the section line between section 29 and 30 in Highlanding Township. The land owners along the ditch are all united and for it and it is the intention to get the ditch constructed as early in the season as possiable, so as to tap the big reservoir near the town line and let that water out, which drowed about half the farmers out of the country and will get the rest of them if that water is not let into the river.

TOWNSHIP TICKET.

At a caucus held at the store of Andrew Ellingson on Monday evening, the following township ticket was nominated to be voted on at next Tuesdays election in the Town of Highlanding.

Supervisor. Per K. Kveste.
Town Clerk. Anthony Dannaker.
Treasurer. Sever Nelson.
Justices of the peace:
Alex F. Latiemere,
W. G. Hunt
Constables:
C. L. Clerk.
John Fempe
Assessor. F C Weld. *

* Under the new law there is no assessor to be elected this year, as F C Weld was elected last year and holds over this year.

CLEARWATER LOCALS.

News are scarce.

Fine winter weather this week

Mrs. M. Lillo returned home from Sletten last Friday, where she has been visiting her daughter Mrs. G A Hoveland who has been very ill.

Mrs A.W Brikke visited at the home of A. Rolandson on Monday.

The young peoples meeting held at Legvolds was well attended and all had a good old time

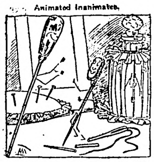
Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lillo took their little daughter down to the city of Thief River Falls Monday to see a doctor.

They are still threshing in this part of the county but will be through soon for this winter

The Clearwater creamery days are Mondays and Fridays.

Miss Signa Brakke spent Sunday evening with Miss Anna Fore. —End.

Animated Inanimates.



The Stickpin—Now that wild Darningneedle is broke I suppose he will settle down.

The Hatpin—Alas, I fear he is too far gone to mend his ways.

A Tearful Eye to Business.

Advertising is nowadays almost a fine art Clever advertisements attract customers in two ways—first, because they effectually call attention to the goods, and, second, because of their cleverness, pure and simple Such a one is the following, quoted from London M A P., which adorned a boot shop in the Rue d'Amsterdam, in Paris:

LIQUIDATION

With tears in my eyes, I am obliged to clear the whole of my stock of boots

To get rid of it all in a week I offer it to you at a loss of 50 per cent.

My husband seeing fit to abandon me with five children

WHY

Can't I go on without my husband? Because my husband alone was able to obtain job lines from the big provincial and foreign bootmakers.

Prudent ladies will profit by these extraordinarily low prices, which will enable me to clear out my stock and search for my husband throughout Europe.

MME. MARIE-LOUISE X.

Nothing to Say.

According to a delightful story of Shelley, recounted in the International Journal of Ethics by the Rev Bradley Gilman, the splendid mental equipment of the poet did not include humor. In his characteristically impassioned way, Shelley was deeply interested in the problem of immortality One day he met a nursemaid wheeling a very young child in a perambulator

"Here is a little soul," he reflected, "recently come to earth out of the great unknown preceding human life Perhaps he can tell me something about the great unknown after human life The two realms may be one and the same."

He accosted the infant twice, but of course gained no response, only a blank infantile stare.

"Alas, alas!" sighed Shelley. "How very reticent these little creatures are!"

Rubber and Gutta Percha.

There are important distinctions between india rubber and gutta percha, and in the majority of purposes for which they are employed one cannot replace the other While the trees yielding india rubber are well distributed over the tropical parts of the world and may be cultivated with more or less facility, the tree which furnishes gutta percha is to be found only in Borneo, Sumatra and the Malay archipelago generally.

NEWS! News!

Cut this out and paste it in your BIG hat.

SINGER BOS.

RHODA & KRATKA,

Is the cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Clothing.

WE CAN FIT YOU OUT WITH CLOTHING, FROM $3. 50 EVERY DAY SUITS, UP TO FIRST CLASS TAILOR MADE SUITS

We can save you money on Shoes & Clothing

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed, [illegible] Kratka. Highest market price paid for [illegible]

Yours For Bnciness.-- SINGCR BROS.

Rhoda & Kratka.

Pay up your back subscription while you can settle at the rate of $1. a year.

One Way Out.

Perkins had been appointed tutor to the young lord of the manor, and together they were making the grand tour Perkins was congratulating himself on the excellent behavior of his pupil; but, alas, they had only reached Geneva when his charge fell deeply in love with a pretty Swiss peasant. In vain did he remonstrate with the young lord, pointing out the social barrier that existed between the lovers and the total impossibility of marriage. But all to no purpose The beautiful Swiss maiden held the young lord's heart captive, and he would scarcely leave her side.

Distracted, Perkins wrote home to the marchioness asking her advice and pointing out her son's infatuation.

A day or two passed in agonizing suspense

At last the answer came. Perkins breathed a sigh of relief All his anxiety would now be over He tore open the envelope, but as he read the letter he groaned in the anguish of his soul It consisted of three words:

"Marry her yourself."

Poor Bijou!

During the siege of Paris Francisque Sarcey indignantly protested against the practice of eating dogs. Hunger, however, knows no law, and canine and feline butcher shops were opened in different parts of Paris. Skillfully prepared, properly skinned and cooked, with a good sauce, the dogs proved excellent eating. Their meat was pink and delicate and by no means tough. Canine cutlets were sold at 2 francs each, and a leg of dog might be purchased at double that price a pound.

Two good bourgeois, husband and wife, had a little dog of which they were very fond. But a day came when there was nothing to eat in the house, and poor Bijou had to be killed and cooked. His master and mistress sat down to dinner with tears in their eyes, and during the dinner the latter mechanically placed the tiny rib bones on the side of her plate. "Poor Bijou!" she ejaculated with a sigh. "What a treat these would have been for him!" —Frank Schlosser in Contemporary Review.

Won by a Nose.

"Bernard Shaw," said a dramatic critic, "always does the original thing I went to see 'Caesar and Cleopatra' with him once, and as we stood in the aisle—the house was crowded—a stranger behind us persisted in poking his head right over Shaw's shoulder

"Shaw then did the original thing Taking out his handkerchief, he wiped the man's nose, patting and twisting it pretty vigorously.

"The man, with an ugly oath, jerked back his head

"'Oh, I beg your pardon,' said Shaw 'I thought it was mine, you know.'"—Washington Star.

Ready to Bargain.

Suitor (to her father) Sir, I love the very ground your daughter treads on Father (grimly) Well, young man, you ain't the first party that's had an attachment for it. Howsomever, if you love it well enough to come and help pay up the mortgage on it you can marry Sarah.—Exchange.

Hopeless.

Lawyer—You don't like the jury? Defendant I do not. No. 1 is my tailor, No 3 is my grocer, No. 5 is my milk and egg dealer and No. 7 is my wife's first husband What chance have I got?—St. Paul Dispatch.

Expressed Differently.

"Madam, you ought to go to a warmer climate"

"For once, doctor, you and my husband are agreed, but he expresses the idea in more emphatic language"—New York Press.

The Mind's Power.

"Zola," said a psychologist, "once wrote in a lady's album that his favorite amusement was writing and his favorite wish a sudden death. Zola died suddenly.

"And it is a strange thing," said the psychologist, "that those who prefer a sudden death usually have their preference gratified. It is one of those things which go to show the mind's mysterious power. Who knows but it is this very desire for death, quick, painless, undreaded, which actually causes that happy kind of death? The mind, you know, has a power that we have only just begun to understand."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

FARMS, THAT RAISE CROPS.

For Sale In Eastern Red Lake County.

We have a few choice farms for sale on the banks of the Red Lake River, near the Highlanding Creamery, and in a school District with a first grade school. We have one of these farms, and no more, for sale at a bargain.

Call on, or adress, W. G. HUNT,

Sunbeam Minn.

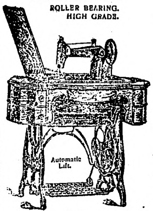
W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court work.



The "Redgeton" SEWING MACHINE.

ROLLER BEARING. HIGH GRADE.

Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co. BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

THE WORLDS GREATEST SEWING MACHINE

LIGHT RUNNING NEWHOME

If you want either a Vibrating Shuttle, Rotary Shuttle or a Single Thread [Chain Stitch] Sewing Machine write to THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE COMPANY, Orange, Mass.

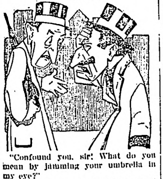
Many sewing machines are made to sell regardless of quality, but the New Home is made to wear. Our guaranty never runs out. Sold by authorized dealers only.

FOR SALE BY

H[illegible] Furniture & Carpet Co

Thief River Falls, Minn.

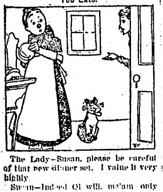
Not Guilty.



"Confound you, sir! What do you mean by jamming your umbrella in my eye?"

"Don't get excited, my friend. This ain't my umbrella. I borrowed it."

Too Late.



The Lady—Susan, please be careful of that new dinner set. I value it very highly.

Susan—Indeed Oi will, ma'am only Oi wish you'd told me two days ago

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50c A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS

Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 30 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE

More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. [illegible] latest styles, patterns, [illegible] plain sewing, fancy needlework, [illegible] etiquette, good stories, [illegible] year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 233 to 249 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

MANY BOOKS IN ONE

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Do you know that the INTERNATIONAL answers with final authority [illegible] of questions in Language, [illegible] Arts and Sciences, Geography, Biography, Etc.? Plan of Contents as follows:

Colored Plates, [illegible]
Brief History of the English Language
Guide to Pronunciation
Scholarly Vocabulary of English
Dictionary of Fiction
Gazetteer of the World
Biographical Dictionary
Scripture Proper Names
Greek and Latin
English Christian Names
Foreign Words
Abbreviations

2,380 Pages. 5,000 Illustrations. 25,000 Added Words.

Recognized by the Courts, the Schools, and the Press, as THE ONE GREAT STANDARD AUTHORITY.

Should You Not Own Such a Book?

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY. Largest abridgment of the International. Regular & Thin Paper Editions. 1116 Pages. 1400 Illus.

Write for "DICTIONARY WRINKLES," and Specimen Pages. Mention in your request this publication and receive a useful set of colored maps, pocket size, of the United States, Cuba, Panama, China, Japan, Etc. Free.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO. Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was troubled with falling and inflammation, and the doctors said I could not get well unless I had an operation. I knew I could not stand the strain of one, so I wrote to you sometime ago about my health and you told me what to do. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am to-day a well woman."—Mrs. WILLIAM AHRENS, 968 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Newspapers in Switzerland.

Switzerland has a total population of 3,500,000 and there are 1,384 periodicals in the country, or one publication to every 2,715 persons. Of the publications giving special attention to news and politics, 472 are printed in German, 101 in French, 21 in Italian and but one in Romansch. The religious publications include 60 German Protestant, 40 French Protestant, 24 Catholic, nine Missions, two Jewish and three Free Thought. The Swiss newspapers have limited telegraph services, as compared with newspapers in other countries, but they are, as a rule, well edited.—Consular Report.

A Natural Question.

James J. Corbett, in the smoking room of the Mauretania, praised the "style" of Jim Jeffries.

"It's a neat style," he said; "neat, quick, to the point. It gets there like the remark of a little girl who said to the minister in the course of a quite interminable call:

"'Did you forget to bring your amen with you, doctor?'"

What It Meant.

"Robbie," asked the school mistress, "what does history mean when it says that in the country's pioneer days some of the settlers didn't have a roof over their heads?"

"It means that in them days the woman couldn't afford any merry widow hats!"

Doing Two Things at Once.

A man hurried into a quick-lunch restaurant recently and called to the waiter: "Give me a ham sandwich!"

"Yes, sir," said the waiter, reaching for the sandwich. "Will you eat it or take it with you?"

"Both," was the unexpected but obvious reply.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A GOOD CHANGE

A Change of Food Works Wonders.

The wrong food and drink causes a lot of trouble in this world. To change the food is the first duty of every person that is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady in Mo. has, with her husband, been brought around to health again by leaving off coffee and some articles of food that did not agree with them. They began using Postum and Grape-Nuts food. She says:

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse unutil I was very ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began taking Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me.

"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about four months. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until now the nervous trouble has entirely disappeared and I feel that I owe my life and health to Postum and Grape-Nuts.

"Husband is 73 years old and he was troubled for a long time with occasional cramps, and slept badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. He had stood out for a long time, but after he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He was satisfied and has never gone back to coffee.

"I have a brother in California who has been using Postum for several years; his whole family use it also because they have had such good results from it."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Pasteboard Hearts

By LITTELL McCLUNG

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

"Isn't Dolly Watson a bit late with her proposal party?" asked Campbell Askin, assisting the girl with her opera cloak. "Leap year passed out some time ago."

Helen Armond smiled forgivingly at his ignorance.

"Dolly saved to-night's affair purposely until all signs of leap year had disappeared," she replied. "Now she thinks it is high time for the men to do the proposing."

"That's the attitude, is it?" the young man exclaimed. "Well, there's surely method in Dolly's tardiness. I suppose there will be the usual red hearts and green mittens?"

"No, sir, there'll be a change in colors at this party," the girl said. "The hearts are to be blue, true blue—I helped Dolly select them myself! The mittens are to be a shade of yellow, suggesthive of—lemons, of course. Yes, it is a bit slangy, but it certainly is appropriate."

"As for me," rejoined Askin, "I expect to get a few mittens, for I'm not adept in proposing."

"So I've noticed!" the girl ventured.

"But I do expect you," he continued, ignoring her thrust, "to give me a real large heart—two of them if nobody happens to be looking!"

"Don't be too sure about that, sir!" she warned. "If you don't act with proper gallanry I may hand you a mitten."

"I dare you!" he challenged.

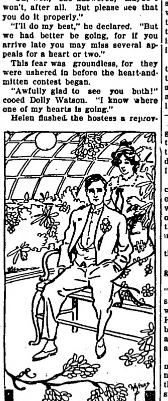
"Oh, well," she answered, "maybe I won't, after all. But please see that you do it properly."

"I'll do my best," he declared. "But we had better be going, for if you arrive late you may miss several appeals for a heart or two."

This fear was groundless, for they were ushered in before the heart-and-mitten contest began.

"Awfully glad to see you both!" cooed Dolly Watson. "I know where one of my hearts is going."

Helen flashed the hostess a reproving look, but it was wasted, for she turned to make a similar comment to other guests.



A Hand Rested Lighted on His Shoulder.

Following the usual greetings and introductions, came the contest, with whisperings that an unusually handsome prize awaited the winner. The men were to propose by progression, each of the dozen girls having six hearts and six mittens. Each could choose his own words and methods, and he had two minutes for every acceptance or rejection.

At the first tap of the bell—the signal for the start—Askin found himself separated from Helen by nine or ten girls. He glanced about to see three men sink to their knees simultaneously, in story-book fashion, and with mock-serious expressions begin to plead with three girls for as many hearts. In a moment both drawing rooms were a babel of confusion.

The absurdity of the thing struck Askin forcibly, and he scowled at the men around him for making such monkeys of themselves. But beside him he saw a pretty girl already preparing to give a heart to a young fellow who was pleading his cause in ardent sentences.

Then, without another second's contemplation, he threw himself into the spirit of the contest and began to propose as best he could to a young woman he hardly knew. The girl's face lighted up with a smile of pleasure, and when the bell sounded she drew forth a heart and fastened it to his lapel.

Inspired by this success, Askin stepped before the second girl and then the third, varying his declarations of eternal devotion as much as possible. A second, then a third time, he was triumphant, and after he had proposed to the fifth girl five blue hearts were dangling from his lapel.

But while several men had three or four mittens apiece, he noticed that he was not the only winner of hearts; the fellow in front of him boasted six of them. He was evidently very popular, for he was landing the coveted prizes without apparent difficulty.

Suddenly and unobserved some one slipped a bit of crumpled paper into Askin's hand. He opened it and read:

"You are doing well. Keep it up. I want you to win the prize!

"HELEN."

Askin was in dead earnest now. No longer was the contest absurd or even entertaining. The congratulations of the girl whose approval he wished most of all were at stake, and he determined to win.

As he began to offer his love to maid No. 6 in exchange for a piece of cardboard, he noticed that the man in front was still getting hearts. His eye flashed defiance at his rival, and his eloquence increased. With the practice gained by half a dozen avowals, his words came with surprising smoothness. He received another heart!

Then he looked ahead and saw that only three girls separated him from Helen. She caught his eye and her look was one of pride. She loosened a heart from the string she held and placed in in her lap. That heart was for him, he knew.

Then, all at once, just as he was beginning the seventh proposal, Askin's voice began to fail him. This brought on embarrassment and he found himself uttering the most disconnected sentences. It went from bad to worse, and in another minute he was utterly confused and unable to say anything.

Relief came with the bell tap, and in the brief interim he slipped out of line and retreated into the softly lighted conservatory. As he thought of the situation he simply could not go back into the crowd, but instead flung himself on a bench in despair, disgusted with himself for allowing his feelings to master him. What would Helen think of him now for giving up so foolishly when the prize was almost within his grasp?

For some time he sat listening to the tinkle of the little silver bell. Everything became comparatively quiet again. Suddenly behind him he heard a soft footfall. Then a hand rested lightly on his shoulder. He looked up—into Helen's reproachful eyes.

"What's the matter, Campbell?" the girl asked, a touch of sympathy in her tone. "Why in the world did you let that other fellow beat you? Why, you didn't even stay to propose to me, and I had a heart waiting for you!"

"Helen, that's just the reason I couldn't keep up that sham!" he blurted out. "Because you were there! It was fairly easy proposing to all those other girls, but the thought of saying those silly, trumped-up words to you unnerved me completely!"

"Why, Campbell, couldn't you say them to me?" she asked quietly.

For answer he turned quickly and grasped her half-resisting hands.

"Because, dear girl," he whispered, "because I simply couldn't willfully seem ridiculous before you. Because, well—I love you too much, that's why! Helen, haven't you more than a pasteboard box heart for me? Haven't you a real one? If you have, I want to ask for it in earnest—now."

A few minutes later the name of the man who had won the prize was announced. But Askin knew that he, not the fellow who was given a handsome smoking set, had secured the real prize of the evening.

HASTENED TO HIS MOTHER

Long Ride Undertaken by Washington to Obtain Blessing He So Much Valued.

It is interesting to recall a ride taken by the first president which seems to have escaped general notice.

In the early spring of 1789 Charles Thompson, secretary of congress, reached Mount Vernon bearing the official notification that George Washington had been elected first president of the United States. The news was not unexpected and seems to have been calmly received by the dignified old general.

After early dinner, while Mrs. Washington entertained the guest from the north, Gen. Washington wrote to the president of the senate that the communication had reached him at 1 p. m. that day, and that he proposed, as there seemed reason for haste, to begin his journey toward New York "the day after to-morrow."

This letter was sent at once to Alexandria postoffice by a servant, and the general ordered his horse for a rapid ride to Fredericksburg, nearly 40 miles away and with two turbulent streams to ferry in the bargain.

The April days are not long, and night was closing in as Washington left home for a long, wild dash through forests and over obstructions not known now in any American forest; and the object of this effort was not glory or country, but to obtain on this greatest day of his distinguished career his mother's blessing.

The aged woman was near 80 and in failing health. Washington reached her side in the early dawn, but had almost immediately to return or else break his word to the senate. He held her in his arms in loving tenderness, while she declared that she would never see him again. But she did not seek to detain him, but with "Go, my son, and may heaven's and your mother's blessing go with you always," sent him forth.

Within 24 hours Washington was again at Mount Vernon and ready to begin the long ride to New York. He was not far from 60 years old at that time, either.

The DAIRY

DAIRY NOTES.

Milk cans should never be filled in the stable.

The man with a fine herd of dairy cows didn't know there was a panic last year.

An evaporated milk plant to cost $150,000 is soon to be built in North Yakima, Wash.

Between the two we would choose fall calves and get the most profit from the cows.

The old belief that a calf needed whole milk in order to thrive has been exploded.

Between raising meat for market and producing butter the buttermaker has the edge.

The cows should be milked at regular intervals, quietly and with as much dispatch as possible.

The calf that is born in May comes at a time when all nature is prepared to help it live and thrive.

Milking is not woman's work, but when it comes to attending to the milk and butter making she can beat man every time.

Success in dairying means constant care of our animals, a catering to their individuality, and a careful handling of the milk.

The manure product from a single cow, according to figures of the department of agriculture, ranges in value from $30 to $40 per year.

Keep the heifer calves of your best cows and don't forget to keep them well, for this is the way to make them better cows than their mothers ever were.

While each cow should be charged with the labor of caring for her, her original cost, feed, etc., she should be credited with manure, skimmilk calves, etc.

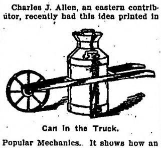
There are approximately 1,250,000 dairy cows in Wisconsin, the products from which yield, as a conservative estimate, an annual income of over $50,000,000.

Land constantly cropped shows a decided deterioration even when constantly put to clovers. The manure from the dairy barn has a great effect in checking such deterioration.

HANDY TRUCK FOR MILK CAN

Illustration Shows How Old Wheelbarrows May Be Used for Carrying Large Utensils.

Charles J. Allen, an eastern contributor, recently had this idea printed in Popular Mechanics. It shows how an old wheelbarrow may be converted into a truck for carrying large milk cans. The body of the wheelbarrow is removed and pieces put in to hold the can. One man can handle a 100-pound can with this truck much easier than two men in the usual way.



Can in the Truck.

Profit on Dairy Farms.

The key to profit on some dairy farms is a better handling of the skim milk. Cold, sour stuff fed in foul dishes or troughs is a disease breeder and responsible for much of the lack of appreciation of what sweet, warm skim milk can be made to do if fed regularly to the right animals. A fat calf to sell every week or so and a good flock of June broilers at 25 cents a pound, live weight, are among the best possibilities. But what a difference in the returns from skim milk that goes to keep alive a stunted, ailing calf or runty, unthrifty pigs, and that which makes 25-cent chicken meat or six-cent veal. Of course it's a bother to handle the milk just right, but it adds to the steady income, and that's what counts.

Certified Milk Pays Best.

Certified milk sells in all large cities for about twice the price of other milk. It is absolutely clean, no impurities being allowed to get into the milk. A layer of fine cheesecloth is stretched over the milk pail, a layer of absorbent cotton is placed upon that, then another piece of cheesecloth. There is no sediment in the bottom of the milk vessels of milk treated in this way. It's not expensive, either.

Composition of Milk.

The average percentage composition of milk is: Water, 87 per cent; fat, 4 per cent.; casein, 87 per cent.; milk sugar, 4.9 per cent., and ash, 7 per cent. The milk should be weighed and the amount of butter fat determined by the use of the Babcock test, by which every per cent. recorded will represent one pound of butter fat in 100 pounds of milk.

Success Depends on Cow.

Don't forget that dairy success depends much upon the individuality of the cow. With the same feed and care in every way, one cow may bring her owner a clear profit of $30 a year, while another will not pay expenses.

Common Sense

Leads the most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle-wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. No Secrets. No Deception.

The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody, Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized.

Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs.

Examine the formula on their bottle-wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials although the latter are received by thousands.

Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood.

World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

It's a Shivery Job

Do you remember last winter—thermometer down to zero? You were only half dressed and sleepy. You had to start the fire with coal—shake down the stove—poke out clinkers and sift ashes—nearly frozen. Then the fire went out and you commenced all over.

You didn't like it, did you? If you don't want to repeat your experiences

BUY MILWAUKEE

Solvay Coke

"THE FUEL WITHOUT A FAULT"

The fuel that lasts all night—can be smothered until needed, then a couple of shakes and the house is warm, while you would wait for hard coal to get started. No ashes to sift—no smoke nor dirt. Does not burn out fire-pots or grates.

Solvay Coke costs less than hard coal and goes further. No user ever voluntarily returns to annoying coal conditions.

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke—all sizes—ask your dealer, and write for interesting booklet of coke information to

PICKANDS, BROWN & COMPANY

Colby-Abbot Building - - Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

St. Jacobs Oil goes after the pain. Pain couldn't be after

ST. JACOBS OIL

Good for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sore Throat, Chest Colds, etc. Just rub it on the affected parts. The pain may resist a dozen treatments—but it can't resist St. Jacobs Oil.

PRICE 25c. AND 50c.

St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

IT CONQUERS PAIN

COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very easily. The sick are cured, and all others in same stable, no matter how "exposed," kept from having the disease, by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER CURE. Give on the tongue, or in feed. Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 dozen of druggists and harness dealers, or sent express paid by manufacturers. Cut shows how to poultice throats. Our free Booklet gives everything. Local agents wanted. Largest selling horse remedy in existence—twelve years.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

WHERE GYPSY SMITH WOULD HAVE FAILED.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 5.—A new kind of revivalist seems to have been discovered by Mrs. L. E. Harris, the well-known church-worker of this city. During the winter of 1906 she couldn't appear in any company, even to go to church. She herself says: "My face broke out with eczema and it was just like a piece of raw beef. I went to see doctors time and time again. None of them could help me. I commenced to think I was never going to be cured. Finally I heard of Stub-Roo Liquid and the many cures. I used it, and just as told I Was Well In Four Weeks."

Stub-Roo REMEDIES

"Not One Known Failure in 8 Years."

For all skin diseases. If your druggist doesn't happen to have it, send just one dollar for large bottle to Stub-Roo Medical Co., Duluth, Minn.

KOW-KURE

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only, Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a COW CURE. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without KOW-KURE. It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "Cow Money" sent FREE. Ask your local dealer for KOW-KURE or send to the manufacturers.

DAIRY ASSOCIATION CO. Lyndonville, Vt.

Constipation—

Nearly Every One Gets It

The bowels show first sign of things going wrong. A Cascaret taken every night as needed keeps the bowels working naturally without grip, gripe and that upset sick feeling. 900

Ten cent box, week's treatment. All drug stores. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

Baby Smiles—When He Takes

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS

So pleasant that he likes it—and contains no opiates. There is nothing like it for Bronchitis, Asthma and all troubles of the throat and lungs. A Standard Remedy for half a century.

All Druggists, 25 Cents

STATE WINS CASES

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT FILES DECISIONS IN GROSS EARNINGS CASES.

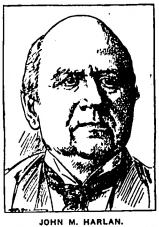
JUSTICE HARLAN READS DECISION

$800,000 To Be Paid Into State Treasury—Great Northern and Great Western Are Railroads Which Must Settle Deficit.

Washington, D. C. — The state of Minnesota won a complete victory over the Great Northern and Great Western Railway companies when the supreme court of the United States affirmed the decision of the state court holding that the railroads were liable to a 4 per cent gross earnings tax.

As a result of decisions by the United States supreme court in the 4 per cent gross earnings tax cases, the treasury of the state of Minnesota will be immediately enriched $800,000 and approximately $200,000 will be added to the state's income each year. Judgments for more than $800,000 in back taxes will be immediately entered against the Great Northern and Great Western railroads. The judgments are the largest ever obtained by the state.

The decision was announced by Justice Harmon, who discussed the questions at issue very briefly. He sketched the creation of the Western Pacific road, which subsequently became a part of the Great Northern system, the legislatation under which the road was taxed and the claim of the Great Northern that this legislation constituted a contract with the state, under which the rate of taxation could not be increased as provided in the 4 per cent law.



JOHN M. HARLAN.
Associate Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

The Great Northern and Great Western tax cases arose out of the 4 per cent gross earnings law of 1903. Prior to the passage of that law all Minnesota railroads had paid 3 per cent of their gross earnings in the state, as taxes, and in lieu of all other taxes and assessments. The Great Western on its main line from St. Paul to the Iowa line had paid only 2 per cent, claiming that its territorial charter exempted it from paying a higher rate on that line.

This and a similar Great Northern charter were used as arguments against the 4 per cent bill, which was fathered session after session by J. F. Jacobson, and finally passed by the legislature in 1901. But the constitution required that it be ratified by a majority of all the votes at the next election. In 1902 it failed of that majority, but the 1093 legislature passed it again, and in the 1904 election it was ratified, taking effect on the 1905 taxes.

When these taxes became due in the spring of 1906, the Great Northern Railway company paid the 3 per cent on the line covered by the old Minnesota & Pacific charter of 1857, and refused to pay the balance, which was $120,737.38. The old charter was claimed to be an irrevocable contract binding the state.

A similar position was taken by the Great Western. The Minnesota & Northwestern charter of 1856 had limited taxes on that line to 2 per cent, and the modern company claimed the rights of a successor. It refused to pay the additional $24,979.62 claimed by the state for 1905.

The state brought suit against both companies for the balance due and the legal penalties. The district court of Ramsey county decided for the defense, but the state supreme corut, Justice Calvin L. Brown, writing the opinion, reversed the decision. The supreme court held that the companies did not have any contract right to the lower tax rate, but that the state had the right to levy any reasonable rate of tax on their systems. From this the defendants went to the United States supreme court on a writ of error.

Plunge From High Bridge.

Winona.—George Sheets, of New York City, aged twenty-two, was probably fatally injured when, in act of removing a heavy motor car from the rails on the Milwaukee road at Minneiska, the car and the man plunged from the high bridge to the ground below. Sheets was crushed and was taken to the hospital in a critical condition, suffering a compound fracture of the leg and internal injuries. He was a concrete expert, engaged in the double tracking work of the Milwaukee road.

MINNESOTA RETAILERS MEET.

Hardware Dealers, Grocers and General Merchants Are in Session.

Minneapolis.—Mayor J. C. Haynes welcomed the Retail Grocers and General Merchants, whose annual convention was opened in the West hotel. His talk to the hundreds of retailers assembled was followed by addresses by W. G. Nye, chairman of the Minneapolis public affairs committee; George H. Partridge, J. G. Doncaster, J. W. Lux, Frank X. Gravelle and others. This evening the merchants will be given a banquet by the Commercial club at the Hotel Radisson, when E. L. Millar of Duluth will speak on Washington. In the evening another feast was enjoyed, Gov. Eberhart being one of the speakers. The convention closed Thursday afternoon.

St. Paul.—The annual meeting of the Minnesota Retail Hardware association was held here and the hardware exposition also opened its doors. The ladies were invited to the first session at which Mayor D. W. Lawler greeted the merchants. D. H. Evans responded for the association, and then President Marckel of Perham took the chair and delivered his annual address. At night there will be a concert in the Auditorium, and other amusement features. At the second session addresses was made by Gov. Eberhart, Past President S. R. Miles of the national association and others. Thursday evning the exposition closed with a parade of exhibitors, a concert and all kinds of fun.

HOUSE BURNS, LIFE IS LOST.

Girl Perishes in Cohasset—Man May May Die From Injuries.

Duluth, Feb. 25.—A terrible tragedy occurred at Cohasset, Minn., when Elnora, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coombs, was burned to death in her bed and her uncle, Delaney Duss, was so badly burned that little hope for his recovery is entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Coombs barely escaped with their lives, and saved their baby by throwing it out of the window of their home into the snow, before they climbed through.

Mr. Coombs got up at 4 a. m. to start a fire, and then went back to bed, and to sleep. When he awoke, half an hour later, the house was in flames.

PIONEER LIMITED IN DITCH.

Hastings.—Heavy steel and concrete, chief constituents in specially constructed passenger cars for the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railway, saved 100 passengers from serious injury, if not death, at a point two miles below Hastings, when train No. 15, the second section of the Pioneer Limited, struck a broken rail.

The compartment car, one sleeper, and the baggage and express cars left the track. The dining car, two coaches and a sleeping car were not derailed.

John Willis, aged 65 years, of Milwaukee, baggageman and electrician, was instantly killed. E. E. Borror of Milwaukee, sleeping car agent, received a slight scratch on the arm, and W. N. Nelson, a brakeman, was also slightly injured. George Wondberg of Minneapolis and P. A. Schaub, St. Paul, received trifling injuries.

SCHWANDTS ARE OUT ON BAIL.

Alleged Slayer of H. J. Ledbeter Arraigned at Mankato.

Mankato.—Mr. and Mrs. William L. Schwandt, who live near Sanborn, are in the city and were arraigned, charged with being an accessory after the fact for the murder of the late H. J. Ledbeter. The indictment that they were arraigned on was returned by the grand jury last fall, when it returned an indictment charging the Schwandts with murder in the first degree, but which was dismissed before Mrs. Letdbeters trial and acquittal. They were released at once on bail and held to the June term of court.

RUSHING HIGH DAM BILL.

Representative Stevens Urges Speedy Report on Draft of Proposed Law.

Washington, D. C.—It is expected that a draft of the bill embodying recommendations of the general engineers' board on the high dam proposition at Minneapolis will be submitted to the senate committee on commerce before the end of the week. Representative Stevens visited the war department to urge speedy action on the report.

Institute at Appleton.

Appleton.—A very successful farmers' institute was held here, the large opera house being well filled with farmers and their wives. The instructors were Mr. Brown, who talked on "Rotation of Crops and Corn Growing;" C. O. Carlson, who spoke on "Dairying," and Miss McDonald, who spoke on "Domestic Sanitation and Making the Home More Beautiful." Lunch was served by the business men of Appleton.

FRAZIER MAY GO TO COAST.

Popular Educator Looking Towards Everett.

Winona.—Word has been received here that Prof. C. H. Frazier, until a year ago superintendent of the Winona public schools and now assistant state superintendent of public instruction, is an applicant for the superintendency of the public schools at Everett, Wash., where it is said a vacancy will shortly develop, as the result of some friction.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
Doan's Kidney Pills

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest nor peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop or straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and groan. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SICK KIDNEYS

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY
A Cure of Severe Kidney Disease Verified By Test of Time

William M. Sears, 429 W. Cherry Street, Nevada, Mo., says: "I was convinced of the great value of Doan's Kidney Pills through personal experience. Four or five months ago I suffered a great deal from a pain across the small of my back, extending at times into my limbs and shoulders. When I stooped or did any work that brought a strain on the muscles of my back, my trouble was aggravated. I tried a number of remedies but without success. After a short time I could see that they were benefiting me, and the contents of two and one-half boxes cured me." (Statement given in May, 1909.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT
On Dec. 3rd, 1908, Mr. Sears said: "I still have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills. I feel justified in re-endorsing this remedy as it has done so much for me."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered

PAINFUL SYMPTOMS
Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy,

URINARY SYMPTOMS
Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine. Let a bottleful of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick-dust, the kidneys are disordered.

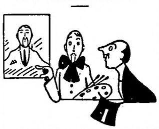
NEVER ANY RETURN
A Complete Cure of Kidney Trouble and Dropsy

Mrs. L. L. Babers, 1615 Terry St., Houston, Texas, says: "I hold a very high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and with good reason, for three years ago they cured me of kidney trouble that had clung to me for several years. There was a dropsical swelling of my feet and limbs in addition to other symptoms of kidney complaint, and although I used various remedies, I was not helped until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of this preparation cured me and I have never had the slightest return of my trouble. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many people who have questioned me about them, and I know of several cases in which they have done the same good work."

A TRIAL FREE Test Doan's Kidney Pills Yourself
Cut out this coupon, mail it to Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. A free trial package of Doan's Kidney Pills will be mailed you promptly. W.N.U.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
If the Pain is There It's Your Kidneys
Sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents. FOSTER-MILBURN Co., Buffalo, N.Y. Proprietors.
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
If the Pain is There It's Your Kidneys

A STRIKING PORTRAIT.



"This is a portrait of Hix, the deaf-mute."

"A very striking picture. He looks as if he were just going to speak."

TACK THIS UP

Prescription That Breaks Up the Worst Cold in a Day.

Every winter this prescription is published here and thousands have been benefited by it. "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle well each time." But be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from the wholesale house. Many other pine extracts are impure and cause nausea.

Ineligible.

So you wouldn't let Bombazine Bill sit on the jury that tried the horse thief?"

"No," answered Three Fingered Sam. "we do things fair and square in Crimson Gulch. Bill's a good man, but the fact that he runs the only undertakin' business in the county couldn't help prejudicin' him some agin the defendant."

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Natural Supposition.

"I am going to burn coal hereafter."

"Hereafter? I thought Old Nick would attend to the heat problem for you then."

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Many a man has kicked himself out of a good job.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

Opera the Great Leveler.

At one of the Wagner operas a few days ago a woman nudged her friend and said: "Who is that distinguished man bowing to you over there?" Her friend looked in the direction designated and smiled in a return greeting. "That's my butcher," she said. "I see him here quite often. When I go marketing in the morning we always discuss the opera. He's a German, you know, and really knows a lot about other things besides cutting meat."—New York Sun.

Sunday School's Want Ad.

There is a church in Brooklyn that has adopted a novel scheme for enlarging its Sunday school. It advertises for boys and girls to come to it. In the shop windows in the neighborhood of the church one may see placards, such as are used for advertising entertainments of various kinds, that bear the legend:

"Wanted—Boys and girls to join our Sunday school." Below this are set forth the advantages that will come to the young folk who attend the classes.

If It's Your Eye Use Pettit's Eye Salve, for inflammation, stys, itching lids, eye aches, defects of vision and sensitivity to strong lights. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Aim at excellence and excellence will be attained. This is the greatest secret of success and eminence.—Mortimer.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE
when you want Perry Davis' Painkiller, as nothing is as good for rheumatism, neuralgia and similar troubles. 70 years in constant use. 25c, 35c and 50c.

One should take care not to grow too wise for so great a pleasure of life as laughter.—Addison.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Take from my mouth the wish of happy years.—Shakespeare.

Sealed Lead Packets Only

AN IDEAL BREAKFAST BEVERAGE

"SALADA" Tea is the most enjoyable breakfast beverage and the most healthful. It gently stimulates without reaction. Its delicate fragrance and delicious flavor make it preferred above all other teas.

"SALADA" Tea owes its acknowledged superiority to the care exercised in selecting only the most delicate leaves, rejecting the coarser growths which are bitter to the taste. For sale by all grocers, in sealed lead packets only.

The native purity and garden freshness of "SALADA" is preserved by the use of sealed lead packets.

44

Mayer HONORBILT SHOES

The proper shoes for men: shoes that look, fit, feel and wear right. Made of selected leather—leather that is best by every test. Correct in style. Made by the finest shoe makers, in the best equipped factory in existence.

MAYER HONORBILT
shoes are "built on honor"—built for combined style and service—built for absolute satisfaction and lasting comfort. Biggest values you can ever hope to get for the money.

There is an Honorbilt style that will exactly suit you and fit you.

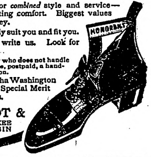
Ask your shoe dealer; if he hasn't it, write us. Look for the Mayer Trade Mark on the sole.

FREE—If you will send us the name of a dealer who does not handle Mayer Honorbilt Shoes, we will send you free, postpaid, a handsome picture, size 15x20, of George Washington.

We also make Leading Lady Shoes, Martha Washington Comfort Shoes, Yerma Cushion Shoes, Special Merit School Shoes and Work Shoes.

MILWAUKEE Mayer CUSTOM MADE

F. MAYER BOOT & SHOE CO. MILWAUKEE WISCONSIN



RHEUMATISM

COPPER PLATE
ZINC PLATE

Cured by Electropodes

New Electric Treatment. Metal insoles—worn inside shoes. Body becomes magnet—nerves the connecting wires. Positive cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Backache, Kidney and Liver complaints. Only $1.00 pair. Guarantee signed with each sale. If Electropodes fail to cure, money returned. If not at your Druggist's send us $1.00. We will see that you are supplied.

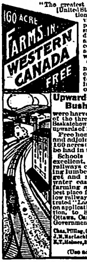
WESTERN ELECTROPODE CO.
247 Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, Cal.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1880. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K, Washington, D.C.

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Powers

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."



160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat

were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre), are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application), and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk., Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 116, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.

(Use address nearest you). (4)

No. 6 REMINGTON, $23
First $23 takes this beautiful Machine.
Year's Guarantee. Other Bargains.
STANDARD TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE
23 Park Row New York, N. Y.

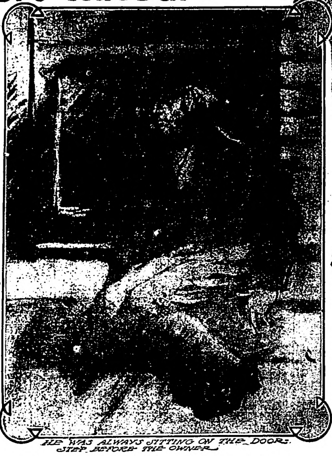
PATENT Book and Advice FREE. Mason, Fenwick & Lawrence, Washington, D.C. Est. 49 yrs. Best references.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR

The First

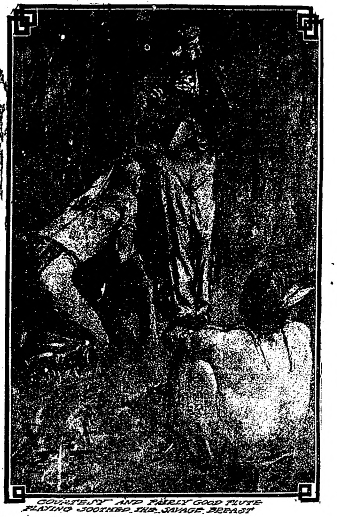
by Elbert Hubbard

Copyright by Pearson Publishing Company



HE WAS ALWAYS SITTING ON THE DOOR-STEP BEFORE THE OWNER

HEADED FOR ANTWERP



COURTESY AND FAIRLY GOOD FLUTE PLAYING SOOTHED THE SAVAGE BREAST

JOHN JACOB ASTOR was born of a Dutch family that had migrated down to Heidelberg from Antwerp. Through some strange freak of atavism the father of the boy bred back and was more or less of a stone age cave dweller. He was a butcher by trade, in the little town of Waldorf, a few miles from Heidelberg. A butcher's business then was to travel around and kill the pet pig or sheep or cow that the tender-hearted owners dare not harm. The butcher was a pariah, a sort of unofficial industrial hangman.

John Jacob Astor was the youngest of four sons and as many daughters. The brothers ran away early in life and went to sea or joined the army. One of these boys came to America and followed his father's trade of butcher.

Jacob Astor, the happy father of John Jacob, used to take the boy with him on his pig killing expeditions. This for two reasons—one, so the lad would learn a trade, and the other to make sure that the boy did not run away.

The pastor of the local Lutheran church took pity on this boy, who had such disgust for his father's trade, and hired him to work in his garden and run errands.

Under the kindly care of the village parson John Jacob grew in mind and body—his estate was to come later. When he was 17 his father came to the parsonage and made a formal demand for his services. The young man must take up his father's work of butchering. That night John Jacob walked out of Waldorf by the wan light of the moon, headed for Antwerp. He carried a big red handkerchief, in which his worldly goods were knotted.

He reached Antwerp in a week. There he got a job on the docks as a laborer. The next day he was promoted to checker-off. The captain of a ship asked him to go to London and figure up the manifests on the way. He went.

The captain of the ship recommended him to the company in London and the boy was piling up wealth at the rate of a guinea a month.

In September, 1783, came the news to London that George Washington had surrendered. In any event peace had been declared—Cornwallis had forced the issue, so the Americans had stopped fighting.

A little later it was given out that England had given up her American colonies and they were free.

Intuitively John Jacob Astor felt that the "new world" was the place for him. He bought passage by a sailing ship bound for Baltimore, at a cost of five pounds. He then fastened five pounds in a belt around his waist and with the rest of his money—after sending two pounds home to his father, with a letter of love—bought a dozen German flutes.

He had learned to play on this instrument with proficiency and in America he thought there would be an opening for musicians and musical instruments.

John Jacob was then nearly 20 years of age.

On board ship he met a German, 20 years older than himself, who was a fur trader and had been home on a visit. John Jacob played the flute and the German friend told stories of fur trading among the Indians.

Young Astor's curiosity was excited. The Waldorf-Astoria plan of flute playing was forgotten. He fed on fur trading.

Arriving in Baltimore, he was disappointed to learn that there were no fur traders there. He started for New York.

There he found work with a certain Robert Bowne, a Quaker, who bought and sold furs.

Young Astor set himself to learn the business—every part of it. He was always sitting on the doorstep before the owner, carrying a big key to open the warehouse, got around in the morning. He was the last to leave at night.

The qualities that make a youth a good servant are the basic ones for mastership. Astor's alertness, willingness, loyalty and ability to obey delivered his employer over into his hands.

Robert Bowne, the good old Quaker, insisted that Jacob should call him Robert, and from boarding the young man with a nearby war widow who took cheap boarders, Bowne took young Astor to his own house and raised his pay from $2 a week to $6.

Bowne had made an annual trip to Montreal for many years. Montreal was the metropolis for furs. Bowne went to Montreal himself because he did not know of anyone he could trust to carry the message to Garcia.

Young Astor had been with Bowne only a year. He spoke imperfect English, but he did not drink or gamble and he knew furs and was honest.

Bowne started him off for Canada with a belt full of gold; his only weapon was a German flute that he carried in his hand.

John Jacob Astor ascended the Hudson river to Albany and then with pack on his back struck north, alone, through the forest for Lake Champlain. As he approached an Indian settlement he played his flute. The aborigines showed no disposition to give him the hook. He hired Indians to paddle him up to the Canadian border. He reached Montreal.

The fur traders there knew Bowne as a very sharp buyer and so had their quills out on his approach. But young Astor was seemingly indifferent. His manner was courteous and easy. He got close to his man and took his pick of the pelts at fair prices. He expended all of his money and even bought on credit, for there are men who always have credit.

Young Astor found Indian nature to be simply human nature. The savage was a man and courtesy, gentleness and fairly good flute playing soothed his savage breast. Astor had beads and blankets, a flute and a smile. The Indians carried his goods by relays and then passed him on with guttural certificates as to character to other red men and at last he reached New York without the loss of a pelt or the dampening of his ardor.

Bowne was delighted. To young Astor it was nothing. He had in his blood the success corpuscle.

He might have remained with Bowne and become a partner in the business, but Bowne had business limitations and Astor hadn't.

Hence, after a three years' apprenticeship, Astor knew all that Bowne did and all he himself could imagine besides. So he resigned.

In 1786 John Jacob Astor began business on his own account on Water street, New York.

Astor had made friends with the Indians up the Hudson clear to Albany and they were acting as recruiting agents for him.

Having collected several thousand dollars' worth of furs, he shipped them to London and embarked as a passenger in the steerage.

In London furs were becoming a fad. Astor sorted and sifted his buyers, as he had his skins. He himself dressed in a suit of fur and thus proved his ability as an advertiser. He picked his men and charged all the traffic would bear. All of the money he received for his skins he invested in "Indian goods"—colored cloth, beads, blankets, knives, axes and musical instruments.

His was the first store in New York that carried a stock of musical instruments. These he sold to savages and also he supplied the stolid Dutch the best of everything in this particular line, from a bazoo to a Stradivarius.

When he got back to New York he at once struck out through the wilderness to buy furs of the Indians, or, better still, to interest them in bringing furs to him.

He knew the value of friendship in trade as no man of the time did.

In 1790 John Jacob Astor married Sarah Todd. Her mother was a Brevoort and it was brought about by her coming to Astor to buy furs with which to make herself a coat. Her ability to judge furs and make them up brought young Astor into "the best Dutch New York society," a combination that was quite as exclusive then as now.

This marriage was a business partnership as well as marital, and proved a success in every way. Sarah was a worker, with all the good old Dutch qualities of patience, persistence, industry and economy. When her husband went on trips she kept store.

Capt. Cook had skirted the Pacific coast from Cape Horn to Alaska and had brought to the attention of the fur dealing and fur wearing world the sea otter of the northern Pacific. He also gave a psychological prophetic glimpse of the insidious sealskin sack.

In 1790 a ship from the Pacific brought a hundred otter skins to New York. The skins were quickly sold to London buyers at exorbitant prices.

The nobility wanted sea otter, or "royal American ermine," as they called it. The scarcity boomed the price. Ships were quickly fitted out and dispatched.

Astor encouraged these expeditions, but at first invested no money in them, as he considered them "extra hazardous." He was not a speculator.

Until the year 1800 Astor lived over his store in Water street, but he then moved to the plain and modest house at 223 Broadway, on the site of the old Astor house. Here he lived for 25 years.

The fur business was simple and very profitable.

In 1800 Astor owned three ships, which he had bought so as absolutely to control his trade. Ascertaining that London dealers were reshipping furs to China, early in the century he dispatched one of his ships loaded with furs directly to the orient, with explicit written instructions to the captain as to what the cargo should be sold for. The money was to be invested in teas and silks.

The ship sailed away and had been gone a year.

No tidings had come from her.

Suddenly a messenger came with the news that the ship was in the bay. We can imagine the interest of Mr. and Mrs. Astor as they locked their store and ran to the Battery. Sure enough, it was their ship.

The profit on this voyage was $70,000.

By 1810 John Jacob Astor was worth $2,000,000. He began to invest all his surplus money in New York real estate. He bought acreage property in the vicinity of Canal street. Next he bought Richmond Hill, the estate of Aaron Burr. It consisted of 160 acres just about Twenty-third street. He paid for the land a thousand dollars an acre. People said Astor was crazy.

In ten years he began to sell lots from the Richmond Hill property at the rate of $5,000 an acre. Fortunately for his estate, he did not sell much of the land at this price, for it is this particular dirt that makes up that vast property known as "the Astor estate."

During the revolutionary war Roger Morris of Putnam county, N. Y., made the mistake of siding with the Tories and expressing himself too freely. A mob collected and Morris and his family escaped, taking ship to England.

Roger Morris is known in history as the man who married Mary Philipse. And this lady lives in history because she had the felicity of having been proposed to by George Washington. The lady pleaded for time, which the father of his country declined to give. A small quarrel followed and George saddled his horse and rode on his way to fame and fortune.

Just 22 years after this bout with Cupid Gen. George Washington, commander-in-chief of the continental army, occupied the Roger Morris mansion as headquarters, the occupants having fled. It was Washington who formally confiscated the property and turned it over to the state of New York as contraband of war.

The Morris estate of about 50,000 acres was parceled out and sold by the state of New York to settlers.

It seems, however, that Roger Morris had only a life interest in the estate and this was a legal point so fine that it was entirely overlooked in the joy of confiscation.

John Jacob Astor accidentally ascertained the facts. He was convinced that the heirs could not be robbed of their rights through the acts of a leaseholder, which, legally, was the status of Roger Morris. Astor was a good real estate lawyer himself, but he referred the point to the best counsel he could find. They agreed with him. He next hunted up the heirs and bought their quitclaims for $100,000.

He then notified the parties who had purchased the land and they in turn made claim upon the state for protection.

After much legal parleying the case was tried according to stipulation, with the state of New York directly as defendant and Astor and the occupants as plaintiffs. Daniel Webster and Martin Van Buren appeared for the state and an array of lesser legal lights for Astor. The case was narrowed down to the plain and simple point that Roger Morris was not the legal owner of the estate and that the rightful heirs could not be made to suffer for the "treason, contumacy and contravention" of another. Astor won and as a compromise the state issued him 20-year bonds bearing six per cent. interest for the neat sum of $500,000.

Astor took a deep interest in the Lewis and Clark expedition. He went to Washington to see Lewis and questioned him at great length about the northwest.

Washington Irving has told the story of Astoria at length. It was the one financial plunge taken by John Jacob Astor.

And in spite of the fact that it failed the whole affair does credit to the prophetic brain of Astor.

"This country will see a chain of growing and prosperous cities straight from New York to Astoria, Oregon," said this man in reply to a doubting questioner.

He laid his plans before congress, urging a line of army posts, 40 miles apart, from the western extremity of Lake Superior to the Pacific. "These forts or army posts will evolve into cities," said Astor, when he called on Thomas Jefferson, who was then president of the United States. Jefferson was interested, but non-committal. Astor exhibited maps of the great lakes and the country beyond. He urged with a prescience then not possessed by any living man that at the western extremity of Lake Superior would grow up a great city. Yet in 1876 Duluth was ridiculed by the caustic tongue of Proctor Knott, who asked, "What will become of Duluth when the lumber crop is cut?"

Then Astor proceeded to say that another great city would grow up at the southern extremity of Lake Michigan. Gen. Dearborn, secretary of war under Jefferson, had just established Fort Dearborn on the present site of Chicago. Astor commended this and said, "From a fort you get a trading post and from a trading post you will get a city."

He pointed out to Jefferson on his map of the site the Falls of St. Anthony. "There you will have a fort some day, for, wherever there is water power there will grow up mills for grinding grain and sawmills as well. This place of power will have to be protected and so you will have there a post, which will eventually be replaced by a city." Yet Fort Snelling was nearly 50 years in the future and St. Paul and Minneapolis were dreams undreamed.

Jefferson took time to think about it and then wrote Astor: "Your beginning of a city on the western coast is a great acquisition and I look forward to a time when our population will spread itself up and down along the whole Pacific frontage, unconnected with us excepting by ties of blood and common interest—and enjoying, like us, the rights of self-goverment."

A company was formed and two expeditions set out for the mouth of the Columbia river, one by land and the other by sea.

The land expedition barely got through alive—it was a perilous undertaking, with accidents by flood and field.

But the route by the water was feasible.

The town was founded and soon became a center of commercial activity. Had Astor been on the ground to take personal charge a city like Seattle would have bloomed and blossomed on the Pacific 50 years ago.

There came a grand grab at Astoria and it was each for himself and the devil take the hindermost; it was a stampede. System and order went by the board. The strongest stole the most, as usual, but all got a little. And England's gain in citizens was our loss.

Astor lost a million dollars by the venture. He smiled calmly and said, "The plan was right, but my men were weak; that is all. The gateway to China will be from the northwest. My plans were right. Time will vindicate my reasoning."

When the block on Broadway bounded by Vesey and Barclay streets was cleared of its plain two-story houses, preparatory to building the Astor house, wise men shook their heads and said, "It's too far up town."

But the free 'bus that met all boats solved the difficulty and gave the cue to hotel men all over the world. Astor was worth ten million, but he took a personal delight in sitting in the lobby of the Astor house and watching the dollars roll into this palace that his brain had planned.

Astor was tall, thin and commanding in appearance. He had only one hallucination and that was that he spoke the Eglish language. The accent he possessed at 30 was with him in all its pristine effulgence at 85. "Nopody vould know I vas a Cherman—aind't it?" he used to say. Yet where John Jacob wrote it was English without a flaw.

In all of his dealings he was uniquely honorable and upright. He paid and he made others pay. His word was his bond. He was not charitable in the sense of indiscriminate giving. "To give something for nothing is to weaken the giver," was one of his favorite sayings. That this attitude protected a miserly spirit it is easy to say, but it is not wholly true. In his later years he carried with him a book containing a record of his possessions. He would visit a certain piece of property and then turn to his book and see what it had cost him ten or twenty years before. To realize that his prophetic vision had been correct was to him a great source of satisfaction.

His habits were of the best. He went to bed at nine o'clock and was up before six. At seven he was at his office. He knew enough to eat sparingly and to walk, so he was never sick. Millionaires, as a rule, are woefully ignorant. Up to a certain sum, they grow with their acquisitions. Then they begin to wither at the heart. The care of a fortune is a penalty. I advise the gentle reader to think twice before accumulating ten millions.

John Jacob Astor was exceptional in his combined love of money and love of books. Fitz-Green Halleck was his private secretary, hired on a basis of literary friendship. Washington Irving was a close friend, too.

Astor died, aged 86. It was a natural death—a thing that very seldom occurs. The machinery all ran down at once.

William B. Astor, the son of John Jacob, was brought up in the financial way he should go. He was studious, methodical, coonservative, and had the good sense to carry out the wishes of his father. His son, John Jacob Astor, was very much like him, only of more neutral tint. The time is now ripe for another genius in the Astor family. If William B. Astor lacked the courage and initiative of his parent, he had more culture and spoke English without an accent. The son of John Jacob Astor, second, is William Waldorf Astor, who speaks English with an English accent, you know.

John Jacob Astor, besides having the first store for the sale of musical instruments in America, organized the first orchestra of over 12 players. He brought over a leader from Germaany and did much to foster the love of music in the New World.

Every worthy Maecaenas imagines that he is a great painter, writer, sculptor or musician, side tracked by cares thrust upon him by unkind fate. John Jacob Astor once told Washington Irving that it was only business responsibility that prevented his being a novelist; and at other times he declared his intent to take up music as a profession as soon as he had gotten all of his securities properly tied up. And, whether he worked out his dreams or not, there is no doubt but that they added to his peace, happiness and length of days. Happy is the man who escapes the critics by leaving his literary masterpiece in the ink.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. IX. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1910. NO. 50.

Gossip of Washington

What Is Going On at the National Capital.

"Teddy" Absent, Capital Men Drink Tea

WASHINGTON.—After a seven-year lapse during the Roosevelt administration men are again giving teas, because President Taft does not consider tea drinking mollycoddish.

During the last year of the Roosevelt administration men at teas were very scarce. Even the diplomats who were careless of Roosevelt's vigorously expressed views (which often they did not understand) finally yielded to the influence that eventually caused but a handful of them to be present. Teas in the afternoon practically were wiped off the social slate.

Now this is all changed. Even the United States army is becoming host at teas, and Capt. Sherwood A. Cheney gave a tea recently to Miss Roosevelt, daughter of the man who believed that an officer who would be host at a tea was no soldier. The officers at Fort Myer and the Marine barracks expect soon to give teas.

That tea of Capt. Cheney was the third big tea of the season, although the first to be given by an American. Two other large affairs were presided over, one by the secretaries of the German embassy on the occasion of the Emperor William's birthday and the other by the Marquis de Villalobar, the Spanish minister, who took advantage of the occasion to receive "who is who" in Washington by way of official introduction, although his transfer to Lisbon had been gazetted by his government three weeks previously.

The "five o'clock tea" is considered by Washington hostesses who have the spirit of continental entertaining as a happy medium between the breakfast and the dinner. Breakfast usually occurs at an hour when men are already busy with their affairs, while the dinner is looked upon as too ponderous.

With the beginning of the Easter season the president and Mrs. Taft will again inaugurate their lawn parties, which is a different name for afternoon teas. Meanwhile, Lent is in the propitious season for such informal entertainments, especially of an afternoon.

Washington men would now be giving more teas if they lived in quarters suitable for such affairs.

"Uncle Joe" Was Forced to Sit Down

"A NEW story on 'Uncle Joe' that I am told never was printed was related to me by former Gov. Benton McMillin of Tennessee while I was traveling with him recently," said Representative James M. Cox of Dayton, O., in Washington recently.

"It was my first meeting with Gov. McMillin, and my name suggested the story. When McMillin was in the house, a number of years ago the brilliant 'Sunset' Cox of Ohio was a member of that body as was also the present speaker. On one occasion, according to Gov. McMillin, Cox got up to make a speech on some momentous question.

"As always when Cox spoke he had the attention of the house. He had launched into his subject and was addressing himself to an important phase of his speech when 'Uncle Joe' rose and assumed the attitude that is so familar to everybody.

"He jerked his hand out of his pocket, and pointing it at Cox, but addressing himself to the speaker, Mr. Carlisle of Kentucky, requested to ask a question. Mr. Cox paid no attention to 'Uncle Joe' for several minutes, but the latter was insistent, and finally Speaker Carlisle asked Cox if he would yield the floor for a question. Cox paused for a moment and said:

"'I will yield to the gentleman from Illinois for a question on one condition. Every time he interrupts he draws forth his hand and points it at me as if he had a pistol, and it frightens me. If the gentleman from Illinois agrees while speaking to keep his hand in his pocket, I will yield the floor for a question.'

"'Uncle Joe' agreed. But he had not proceeded far when he nervously drew forth his hand and again pointed it directly at Cox. In a moment Cox was on his feet, and, declaring that Cannon had violated his agreement, demanded that Cannon resume his seat. And 'Uncle Joe' had to sit down."

Vice President in Role of a Guide

IF WORSE comes to worst, and Vice-President Sherman is obliged to earn his living in some other way than that which he has pursued heretofore, no doubt, can get employment as one of Capt. Kennedy's assistants as a guide about the capitol in Washington. Only the other day Miss Helen Taft and two of her school friends were at the capitol, and soon after the senate convened the vice-president went up into the gallery and pointed out to them the notables among the senators. He took the three girls through the capitol, showing them such places of interest as usually are pointed out by the regular guides. An interesting sight was that of Vice President Sherman going about Statuary hall and picking out the "whispering stones," upon which the girls were told to stand, while "Sunny Jim" arranged that they should enjoy the echo features of that part of the capitol. The party went into the house of representatives, where Sherman served for more than twenty years, and the notables of that body were pointed out to Miss Taft and her school girl friends. Kennedy has been known for years as the "King of the Capitol Guides," because he is so glib and entertaining. He was told after the vice-president had made his trip about the capitol that Sherman could easily put him out of the guide business if he should engage in that occupation.

Sh! Girls, Green Peas Make You Flirt

TIME was when we didn't feed Rex, Fido, Towser, or whatever that pet pup's name was, raw meat, because we wanted him to become, when he grew up, a nice, cute, well-behaved, home-like canine person. Comes now the department of agriculture in Washington, with its leguminotherapy doctrine (whatever that is!), as a recipe for good human temperament—and for cutting down the "high cost of living."

Vegetables are to be taken, according to the leguminotherapists in quantities and varieties to suit the person that eats them.

Boiled carrots are prescribed for bad tempers; green peas should be denied to girls with a tendency to flirt; overindulgence in potatoes is apt to produce apathy and laziness; spinach should be taken, particularly by the young because it produces energy and develops constancy, and French string beans are said to constitute an ideal diet for poets and artists.

White haricot beans should be eaten by intellectual workers, because they restore the nervous system and should, the science holds, be preferred as a strengthening food to any sort of meat and especially beef.

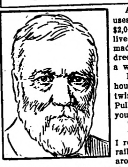
Cauliflower and cabbages are very nourishing, but are not advocated, because they have the drawback of producing vulgarity of character and slowness of perception.

The leguminotherapists declare that these vegetables have all the good qualities that are embodied in either meat or eggs without having, however, their inconveniences. A proper and carefully measured vegetarian diet is the treatment suggested by utilizing vegetables for the physical and moral welfare of the human race.

The absence of meat, it is held, prevents person from being vicious and bloodthirsty.

WHO'S WHO-AND WHY

CARNEGIE'S FIRST $10,000



Andrew Carnegie, who has given to public uses a sum exceeding $150,000,000—more than $2,000,000 a year for every one of the 72 he has lived—told while in Chicago recently how he made his first $10,000 by borrowing several hundred dollars and paying it back at the rate of $5 a week.

Mr. Carnegie, who stopped in Chicago several hours while on his way to California, with eyes twinkling, asked Mr. Leach, superintendent of the Pullman Palace Car Company: "How much did you get when that melon was cut a while back?"

"I don't hold any shares, sir."

"That's too bad. Didn't let you in on it, eh? I remember I was working for the Pennsylvania railroad and a fellow named Woodruff came around with a couple of little sleeping car models wrapped up in a cloth. "'Why,' I said to him when I saw them, 'we're going to need these some day in the railroad business.'

"The outcome was that the Pennsylvania railroad ordered a couple. And later, when I saw Mr. Woodruff again, he said to me: 'You seem like a bright young fellow, Carnegie. I believe I'll let you in with me on this.'

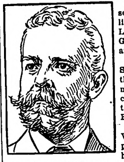
"'All right,' I said; 'I'm willing.'

"'I think I'll give you an eighth interest,' he told me. And he named a sum of a few hundred dollars I would have to pay. I didn't have the money, but I went to one of my employers and asked him to lend me a few hundred dollars.

"'All right, Andy, yes; you're a good boy,' he said. 'I guess I can let you have it.'

"'I'll pay you back $5 a week,' I told him. For I knew I could save that out of my salary. It had just been raised to $40 a month then, I believe. So he let me have the money and that's how I got my start. I made $10,000 off that stock and later got into the Pullman Company.

NAME LODGE AS CHAIRMAN



Despite the opposition of Senator Elkins the senate committee to investigate the high cost of living in this country will be headed by Senator Lodge. The other members of the committee are Gallinger, McCumber, Smoot, Crawford, Simmons and Clarke of Arkansas.

The question as to whether Senator Elkins or Senator Lodge should be the chairman was settled in a conference between Vice-President Sherman, Senator Aldrich, chairman of the finance committee, which favorably reported the resolution providing for the investigation, and Senator Elkins, who was the author of the resolution.

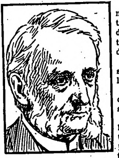
The results of the conference were stated by Vice-President Sherman, when he announced the personnel of the committee. He explained that he had offered the chairmanship of the committee to Senator Elkins because the latter was the author of the resolution that was adopted, and that Senator Elkins has declined on account of the pressure of other work.

Senator Elkins later explained his reasons for declining the honor in private conversation. He said that when he introduced his resolution he did not have as much work on hand as he has now and had considered then he had time to conduct the inquiry which he proposed. Since then the administration bill for the amendment of the interstate commerce laws has come up before the committee on interstate commerce, of which he is chairman.

That is taking so much of his time at present, he said, he has no time to devote to the inquiry into the high cost of living. He told the vice-president that he could not even consider being a member of the committee.

After Senator Elkins had declined the chairmanship the vice-president talked over with him the personnel of the committee. It is believed that his wishes are shown in the appointment of some of the members, but the West Virginia senator didn't want Lodge to be the chairman.

RUSH FOR PEARSON'S GOLD



Since Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons of Chicago announced that he would make a general distribution of his fortune on April 14, his ninetieth birthday, the intermittent stream of letters has grown to a steady torrent amounting to more than 500 daily.

Dr. Pearsons has given away $4,000,000 in a score of years and vows that he will die penniless. So far he has aided 47 colleges.

"Look at this room," he said in despair recently at the sanitarium in Hinsdale, where he is spending the winter.

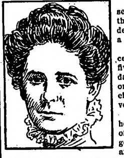
In one corner lay a stack of college catalogues; in another pamphlets from religious institutions; the drawers of his desk and tables were piled with letters, many unopened, and the contents of two waste paper baskets had overflowed and lay in a heap on the floor. "And here comes the postman," he added, with resignation.

The clerk at the resort entered the room with a sack containing 250 letters. One was accompanied by a stamped envelope.

"There, that's better," the philanthropist said, as he glanced through the note. Then he wrote "No" at the bottom and dropped it in the letter box.

"I give almost nothing to individuals," Dr. Pearson said.

SOCIETY WOMAN A CANDIDATE



The club women of Topeka, Kan., created a sensation in city politics when they announced they would run Mrs. F. W. Watson, a past president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, as a candidate for the office of commissioner.

The commission form of government has recently been adopted in Topeka and the first set of five commissioners will be elected the first Tuesday in April. The primary election will be held one week earlier and if Mrs. Watson is one of eight candidates to receive the highest number of votes, she will then be nominated for election.

The women supporting Mrs. Watson intend to hold meetings in every ward to teach the women of the city the value of the commission form of government; to instruct them as to the politics and qualifications of the various candidates for city offices, and to inspire in them a greater interest in municipal affairs.

There is evidence on all sides that Mrs. Watson will have many men fighting in her cause. Signed to Mrs. Watson's petition for nomination are the names of some of the prominent business men and politicians of the city.

Besides the Federation of Women's Clubs many other women's organizations are flocking to Mrs. Watson's support. The Topeka members of the Kansas Press club, a society of women in the Catholic church, and the women of the East Side Progressive league have pledged their allegiance.

Mrs. Watson, who is a past president of the City federation and the wife of a wealthy nurseryman, lives in a beautiful home, holds an important social position, entertains a great deal and always wears beautiful gowns.

Odd News From Big Cities

Stories of Strange Happenings in the Metropolitan Towns

Snores Worth Fifty Cents Each to Him

MAYBE YOU THINK I WON'T PLAY POLICY —WOW—I—! —I! WHEE

NEW YORK.—"These things you hear about the fortunes the Pullman porters make," said one of them, "are mostly foolish; but you do once in a while gather in tips enough on a single trip to buy an overcoat with, a spring overcoat, anyway.

"I think the most profitable single customer I ever struck was a man that rode with me once when I was running on a parlor car between New York, and the first thing he says to me was:

"'Simeon'—that's what he called me, Simeon—'Simeon,' he says to me, 'I haven't had any sleep for a week, and I'm liable to go to sleep the minute I sit down in this car, and when I sleep I always snore, and when I snore I do snore, and if I should snore here I'd be liable to blow the roof off the car and I'd be sure to disturb all the other passengers. What I want, Simeon, is for you to look out for me and see that I don't snore.'

"'Simeon,' he says, 'keep an eye on me, and for every time you keep me from snoring I pay you 50 cents. You keep the score and I settle with you when we get to Buffalo. But understand,' he says, 'for every time you let me snore we deduct $2 from the total.'

"We hadn't much more'n rolled out of New York before I saw his head go back. I was alongside of him before it went back the second time, but from that on he kept me on the jump. I had to stir him up every five or ten or fifteen minutes, and I had to be quick about it. Once he got away from me.

"I made that run from New York to Buffalo many and many a time, but it had never seemed so long to me before. We got there finally, but when he stood up for me to assist him off I was so tired and weak I could hardly waggle the broom.

"'Simmy,' he says, 'I think you did well. What do you make the tally?'

"I told him that he'd been asleep 71 times.

"'Well,' he says, 'Simmy, that would make $35.50 if it had been a perfect score, but we deduct two dollars for the time you let me snore; that brings it down to $33.50. I suppose we could fairly enough knock off another dollar, half price for that half snore; but we didn't make any special contract,' he says, 'about half snores, and so we won't say anything about that. Just let it go.'

"Then he handed me over $33.50; and I got from the other passengers $2.70, making the grand total revenue for the trip $36.20.

Drinks and Love Mixed by Frenchman

I LOF YOU I LOF

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Peter Sivers, a French sheep herder, living on Aliso street, accumulated a jag recently and became amorous to such an extent that his arrest and detention on an insanity charge were deemed necessary.

Sivers in turn made love to a horse, a wagon and a hitching post, and when locked up in the city jail bestowed the most distracting caresses and salutations of love upon the cold and unresponsive bars of his cell.

He is short and slight, with a curling mustache and all the ravings and elaborate figures of speech used by his countrymen. Early one afternoon Sivers began to gather about him strange-looking bottles. He drank from each in turn, without fear or favor.

After all the bottles had been emptied and were lying upon the floor in disconsolate attitudes, the Frenchman arose and went forth in search of adventures. He thought he owned the earth. He tossed his hat in the air in an abandoned manner, and cried his delight. He approached a horse attached to a baker's cart on Aliso street.

"Ah, ze gran' horse, ze big one, I lof you, I lof you," screamed the enraptured Peter, with frantic attempts to embrace the animal. The horse, being of common parentage and having no ambition to speak of, backed away from the approaches of the little man. Peter followed, hat in hand, making the most elaborate bows in the direction of the equine, and at the same time casting the most beseeching glances toward it.

The horse made a few attempts to climb a telegraph pole, and Peter transferred his affairs of love to a picture of a fat damsel, painted on the side panel of the wagon.

Pie Eater Loses When His Face Slips

I CHALLENGE DE WOILD AT EATIN' PIES
CHAMPION PIE EATER

NEWARK, N. J.—Amid great enthusiasm 35 young men, trained to the minute, in Junior hall, Bloomfield, entered the annual pie-eating contest for the championship of New Jersey. Five of the contestants, as well as the state record of 26 pies in half an hour, fell during the battle.

Walter W. Tappin, of Bloomfield, was the winner of the championship. He managed to put himself on the outside of 27 pies in the alloted time, while at least three more, considerably mussed up, clung about his features. Besides, the honors which go with the title, he won the first prize of a $5 gold piece. Mr. Tappin, after the tilt, declared himself willing to sign articles with any opponent on three months' notice.

Second honors went to John Winthrop Brewster of Newark, the favorite of the outsiders. Mr. Brewster reduced the monutain of 200 pies by disposing of 22. For a long time at the start of the race he was in the lead by three mouthfuls and he blames his defeat on the fact that when his face slipped on No. 17 he changed by mistake from peach to mince.

Wanted Pied Piper to Catch This Rat

?
OW—! I'VE GOT 'EM AGAIN!

BUFFALO, N. Y.—If there's a Pied Piper anywhere in the United States he is wanted in Pouhkeepsie to catch Gil Monahan's rat—a big fat fellow that is scampering through cellars, garrets and walls with a sleighbell fast to his neck.

Gil is "the limit" among practical jokers. When three rats were caught in a trap in Walch's cafe recently he thought it would be a merry jest to tie a bell to the largest one and give him his liberty. The big rat, with his bell tinkling merrily, scampered across the floor and disappeared in the nearest hole. He was so proud of his bell that he sallied forth from the building to arouse the envy of all the less fortunate rodents in Pouhkeepsie. He seems to be a great traveler, for his bell has been heard in widely separated parts of the city.

At uncanny hours lonely men and women have heard the strange sound of a bell faintly tinkly in the wall of bedroom or parlor. Rest has been broken; sleep has been driven away.

A young man who had been at a stag party heard the tinkle-tinkle at the head of his bed—louder, then fainter; then louder again. It was there, there, in the ceiling, up and down the wall. Pulling on his clothes, the young man ran to the nearest doctor, exclaiming, "I've got them again!" When he described the strange sounds the doctor said, "Oh! that's only Gil Monahan's rat. Go back to bed."

